The verses move on to another theme, “If you do marvel (at their want of faith), strange is their saying, ‘When we are (actually) dust, shall we then (be raised) in a new creation?’ Such are they who disbelieve in their Lord; such have chains on their necks; such are rightful owners of the Fire; they will abide therein forever.” The Creator who created this magnificent universe has the power to bring people to life after they die once more. It is the shackles that bind the minds and the hearts of the disbelievers that prevent them from reflecting on God’s creation. Since they chose to place their minds under the shackles of disbelief, their necks will be bound by shackles as well and they will end up in Hell fire. They ask you to hasten the punishment, “They ask you to hasten on the evil rather than the good, when exemplary punishments have indeed occurred before them. But your Lord is the Lord of forgiveness to people, notwithstanding their injustice; and most surely your Lord is severe in punishment.” Although they asked the Prophet (PBUH) to hasten the punishment before guidance, the verse cites God’s forgiveness before God’s punishment to show the contrast between the goodness that God wants for them and the evil they want for themselves.

“And the disbelievers say, ‘Why is not a sign sent down to him from his Lord?’ But you are indeed a warner, and to every people (We sent) a guide.” The disbelievers asked the Messenger of God (PBUH) to bring forth a miracle in order for them to believe in him. The Quran tells them that it is not for the Messenger to bring forth a miracle. It is only God who decides when and how a miracle is delivered. The Messenger’s (PBUH) task is to warn and guide people to the right path.

“God knows what every female (womb) bears, and by how much the wombs fall short (of their time or number) or do exceed. And everything with Him is measured.” How many females live in this universe? God knows what each and every one of them bears in her womb. He knows each and every change that occurs in each womb. He knows what is hidden and what is seen, “He is the Knower of the unseen and the seen, the Great, the Most High.” He knows what everyone says whether the words were uttered loudly or were uttered in whisper, “It is the same (to Him) whether any of you conceal his speech or declare it openly; whether he is hidden by night or walks forth freely by day.”

The keepers (angels) follow each human being and they record everything a human being does, “For each (such person) there are angels ranged before him and behind him, who guard him by God’s command.” The Quran did not give any details on the nature or form of these keepers. We should not speculate on such matters. God follows people through the keepers to watch the changes they seek to accomplish, then He deals with them accordingly. Although God knows beforehand what people will do but His actions are based on their actual deeds.

“God does not change the condition of a people until they (first) change that which is in their hearts; and if God wills misfortune for a people there is none that can repel it, nor have they a protector beside Him.” This verse places a heavy responsibility on people because it states that God’s will is to recompense people according to their deeds. The verse also shows the honor that God bestowed on humankind. People’s deeds are an expression of the will of God.

Another theme is then explored, “It is He who shows you the lightning (causing) fear and hope. It is He who raises up the clouds, heavy (with rain).” Lightning and thunder are well known phenomena. They result because of the nature of the universe which God created. These phenomena are awe-inspiring whether we understand the physics behind them or not. The feelings of fear and hope fill the human heart when a person sees lightning, fear of the destruction that may accompany lightning and hope in the rain that revives the earth and fills the rivers. God raises the clouds to bring down rain. Thunder is another consequence of the way God created the universe. The perfection of its creation is an expression of the glory of the Creator. The apparent meaning of the text indicates that the sound of thunder is in a way an expression of how the nature sings the praise of the Creator. This adds dynamics to the scene and allows the cosmic phenomena to join the angels in painting a lively scene. The awesome scene is completed by adding the occurrence of the horrific scene of thunderbolts, “The thunder sings His praise, and so do the angels, with awe. He launches the thunder-bolts, and smites with them whomsoever He wills, while they dispute, and He is mighty in wrath.”

It is surprising that in the midst of this dynamic scene - in which the horrific atmosphere generated by the lightning, thunder and thunderbolts overlaps the atmosphere of spirituality created by the angels praising the glory of their Lord - we find people who argue about God, “For Him (alone) is prayer in truth. And those on whom they call upon besides Him hear them no more than a one who stretches forth his hands toward water (asking) that it may come into his mouth, and it will never reach it. The prayer of the disbelievers goes (far) astray.” They associate partners with God instead of calling upon the true God. Only He is the Truth and anything else is falsehood. They call in vain upon those whom they associate as partners with God. Their weak voices will be overshadowed by the truth from God. They call upon others beside God while all the other creatures prostrate themselves to God, “Whatever beings there are in the heavens and the earth do prostrate themselves to God, willingly or unwillingly, as do their shadows in the morning and the evening hours.” The verses refer to the most profound form of worship – prostration. Not only the beings in heavens and earth do prostrate themselves to God but also their shadows do prostrate.

Rhetorical questions were then posed, “Say, ‘Who is the Lord of the heavens and the earth? Say, ‘(It is) God.’ Say, ‘Do you then take (for worship) protecting guardians other than Him, such as have no power either for good or for harm to themselves?’ Say, ‘Is the blind equivalent to the seeing? Or is darkness equivalent to light?’ Or do they assign to God partners who created the like of His creation so that the creation (which they made and His creation) seemed alike to them? Say, ‘God is the Creator of all things, and He is the One, the Dominator.’” The questions were posed and the answers were given to be heard by those who associated partners with God. The contrast between the blind and the seeing is clear, similarly the contrast between darkness and light is clear. The verse uses the terms blind and seeing to allude to the disbelievers and the believers and it uses the terms darkness and light to allude to the conditions of the disbelievers and the believers. Blindness and darkness are barriers which prevent the disbelievers from seeing the truth.

Did those, whom they associated with God, create creatures similar to the creatures created by God? Did that confuse them? If this were true, then they would be justified in worshipping them side by side with God. But this is not true, “God is the Creator of all things, and He is the One, the Dominator.” God is unique in His creation and He is unique in His power.

The verses then give a parable to juxtapose the truth against the falsehood, “He sends down water from the skies, so that the valleys flow according to their measure, and the flood bears (on its surface) swelling foam. And from that which they smelt in the fire in order to make ornaments and tools rises foam like it. Thus God compares the truth and the falsehood. Then, as for the foam, it passes away as scum upon the banks, while, as for that which benefits the people, it remains in the earth. Thus, God coins parables.” The coming down of rain is part of the image that was given before for the lighting and thunder. It is also a sign of the power of God. Water flows in each valley according to a measure decided by God. As water flows through the valley, it carries foam which floats on the water surface. Sometimes this foam is plenty to the extent that it covers the quite flow of water underneath. This is similar to the process of melting metals. The foam surfaces on top of the molten metal but when it is removed it leaves behind the pure and useful metal. This is the parable of truth and falsehood. Falsehood rises to the top and may cover the truth for a while but eventually it is removed and leaves behind the truth which benefits people.

Those who respond to God’s call will get the best reward but those who did not respond, they will be destined to bad reckoning. It is so bad a reckoning that they would wish they could ransom themselves, even if the ransom is all what is on the earth, “For those who answered God’s call is bliss; and for those who did not answer His call, if they had all that is in the earth, and the like thereof, they would certainly offer it as a ransom. (As for) those, an evil reckoning shall be theirs and their refuge is hell, and evil is the resting-place.”

Verses 19 to 43:

19. Is he who does know that which has been revealed to you from your Lord is the Truth, like him who is blind? But it is only people of understanding who heed (the reminder).
20. Those who fulfill the covenant of God and do not break the covenant;
21. Those who join together those things which God has commanded to be joined, hold their Lord in awe, and fear the terrible reckoning;
22. Those who persevere, seeking the countenance of their Lord; establish regular prayers; spend out of (the gifts) We have bestowed for their sustenance, secretly and openly; and repel evil with good; theirs will be the sequel of the (heavenly) Home;
23. Gardens of Eden which they enter, along with all who do right of their fathers and their spouses and their offspring. The angels will enter upon them from every gate,
24. (Saying), "Peace be on you because you persevered. And excellent is the final home.
25. But those who break the covenant of God, after ratifying it, and sever that which God has commanded to be joined, and make mischief in the land, on them is the curse; for them is the terrible abode.
26. God extends provision for whom He wills and restricts (it); and they rejoice in the life of the world, whereas the life of the world is but a brief comfort as compared with the Hereafter.

27. The disbelievers say, "Why is not a sign sent down to him from his Lord?" Say, "Truly God leaves, to stray, whom He wills. And He guides to Himself those who turn to Him in penitence;
28. Those who believe, and whose hearts find assurance in the remembrance of God. Verily in the remembrance of God hearts are assured.
29. For those who believe and do righteous deeds, is (every) blessedness, and a beautiful place of (final) return.
30. Thus, have We sent you (Muhammad) to a people before whom (long since) have (other) peoples (gone and) passed away; in order that you recite to them what We revealed to you; yet they reject (Him), the Lord of Mercy. Say, "He is my Lord. There is no deity but He. In Him, I put my trust, and to Him do I turn."
31. Had it been possible for a Quran to cause the mountains to move, or the earth to be torn asunder, or the dead to speak, (this Quran would have done so); but to God belongs the affair entirely. Do not those who believe know that, had God willed, He could have guided all humankind? As for those who disbelieve, disaster will not cease to strike them because of what they do, or it dwells near their home until the threat of God comes to pass. Indeed, God does not fail in keeping His promise.
32. And verily messengers (of God) were mocked before you, but I gave respite to those who disbelieved, then I seized them, and how (awful) was My punishment.
33. Is He who is a sustainer of every soul, (knowing) what it has earned? Yet they ascribe partners to God. Say, "Name them. Or do you inform Him of something which He does not know in the earth? Or of what is apparent in speech?" Their contrivance has been made attractive to those who disbelieve and they have been averted from the road. He whom God sends astray, for him there is no guide.
34. For them is torment in the life of this world, and verily the torment of the Hereafter is harder, and they have no defender from God.
35. The similitude of the Garden which is promised to those who are conscious of God, underneath it rivers flow, its food is everlasting, and its shade. This is the reward of those who remain conscious of God, while the reward of the disbelievers is the Fire.
36. Those to whom We have given the Scripture rejoice at what has been revealed to you; but there are among the clans those who reject a part thereof. Say, "I am commanded to worship God, and not to join partners with Him. To Him I invite, and to Him is my return."
37. And thus We have revealed it, a true judgment in Arabic. Were you to follow their whims after the knowledge which has reached you, then you would find neither protecting guardian nor defender against God.
38. We did send messengers before you, and appointed for them wives and children. It was not (given) to any messenger that he should bring a sign save by God's leave. For everything there is an appointed time.
39. God does blot out or confirm what He pleases, and with Him is the Mother of the Book.
40. Whether We shall show you (within your life-time) part of what We promised them or take to Ourselves your soul (before it is all accomplished), your duty is the conveying (of the Message) and Ours is the reckoning.
41. Have they not seen that We set upon the land, reducing it from its borders? And God decides; there is no adjuster of His decision. And He is swift in reckoning.

42. Those before them did (also) devise plots; but to God belongs the plan entirely. He knows what every soul earns, and the disbelievers will know who gets the final home.
43. The disbelievers say, "You are not a messenger." Say, "God is sufficient as a witness between me and you, and whoever has knowledge of the Book (is also a witness)." (13: 19 – 43)

The verses come back to deal with the issue of the revelation, "Is he who does know that which has been revealed to you from your Lord is the Truth, like him who is blind? But it is only people of understanding who heed (the reminder)." The one who knows that what has been revealed to the Prophet (PBUH) is the truth is juxtaposed against the blind. This is an amazing style in building an argument that touches the hearts. In the meantime, there is no exaggeration. Being ignorant of such an obvious fact can only happen if the person is completely blind. People in this regard can be classified into two groups: a seeing group who know the truth, and a blind group of people who do not know the truth. Blindness here refers to insights that have been lost, hearts that have been sealed, senses that have been rendered useless, and knowledge that does not exist. Only those who have understanding will heed the reminder, "Those who fulfill the covenant of God and do not break the covenant;" The covenant of God encompasses all covenants. The major covenant with God is the covenant to believe in the Oneness of God. The covenant to believe in God is an old covenant but it is being renewed. It is old in the sense that it has been implanted in the initial natural disposition of all people. It has been since renewed by the message which the messengers of God brought to guide humanity. In order to fulfill the covenant with God, one has to fulfill all covenants or pledges in which the human being ventures. This is one of the basic rules that form the foundation of the structure of the human society.

Another general rule that has to be fulfilled, "Those who join together those things which God has commanded to be joined, hold their Lord in awe, and fear the terrible reckoning;" One of the attributes of the believers is that they join everything God has commanded to be joined. The verse does not detail the things to be joined but it stated the general rule. This implicitly indicates that a believer has to be completely obedient to God and to follow the Prophet's (PBUH) tradition. This requires the believers to maintain a continuous connection to God and absolute adherence to the straight path. This is motivated by the fact that the believers, "hold their Lord in awe, and fear the terrible reckoning." They are the ones who, "persevere, seeking the countenance of their Lord." There are many categories of perseverance. These include: enduring the difficulties involved in trying to maintain God's covenant, persevering in times of ease and in times of difficulty, and enduring the hurt people some time inflict on the believer. They persevere and endure all these difficulties for the sake of pleasing their Lord and not because they are interested in the praise of people or because they want to avoid people's criticism. Their perseverance is not motivated by the interest in a worldly gain or the avoidance of a worldly loss. They persevere because they submit to the will of God and they are content with whatever God decrees.

They, "establish regular prayers." Although, establishing prayer is a part of the fulfillment of God's covenant but it has been mentioned explicitly in this verse because it is a fundamental component of this covenant. It is a symbol of complete submission and devotion to God. Prayer represents a true portrayal of the relationship between the believer and God.

And they, “spend out of (the gifts) We have bestowed for their sustenance, secretly and openly.” This is also a part of the fulfillment of God’s covenant and joining what God has commanded to be joined but it has been mentioned explicitly because spending represents an important aspect of the relationship between the people. It purifies the souls of the one who gives and the one who receives. It removes the stinginess from the heart of the one who gives and the hatred from the heart of the one who receives. It allows a healthy environment to prevail in the Muslim society. There are two types of spending and each has its own advantage: spending in secret preserves the dignity of people; while spending in the open provides an example for others to follow.

They, “repel evil with good.” They treat people graciously in their daily dealings. They do not only forgive people’s transgression against their persons but they also respond kindly to the transgression of the others. This applies only to situations when repelling evil with good will not be construed as a weakness and thus encourages the aggressor to continue in his/her aggression. Also, this applies only in the areas of human interactions and daily dealings which do not break God’s law.

“Theirs will be the sequel of the (heavenly) Home, Gardens of Eden which they enter, along with all who do right of their fathers and their spouses and their offspring. The angels will enter upon them from every gate, (Saying), ‘Peace be on you because you persevered. And excellent is the final home.’” They will be admitted to the Gardens of Eden to settle and live there with their righteous fathers, spouses, and offspring. Each will be admitted as a reward for his/her righteous deeds however, they will enjoy the company of their righteous families as an extra reward from God.

On the other side are those who lost their understanding so they became heedless and lost their vision so they became blind to the straight path, “But those who break the covenant of God, after ratifying it, and sever that which God has commanded to be joined, and make mischief in the land, on them is the curse; for them is the terrible abode.” They broke their covenant with God, the covenant that God implanted in their initial natural dispositions. Consequently, they break every covenant or pledge they make. Those who break their covenant with God cannot respect other covenants. They sever that which God commands to be joined and they spread mischief in the land. In short, their behavior is contrary to the behavior of those who have understanding in all aspects.

They were happy with the worldly gain that they received in their life and forgot that the pleasure of this life is only transient, while the everlasting pleasure is in the provision of the Hereafter, “God extends provision for whom He wills and restricts (it); and they rejoice in the life of the world, whereas the life of the world is but a brief comfort as compared with the Hereafter.”

The disbelievers asked the Prophet (PBUH) to show them a miracle, “The disbelievers say, ‘Why is not a sign sent down to him from his Lord?’” The answer to their request is that miracles do not lead people to become believers. The road to faith starts from within, and the choice to become a believer is an individual determination, “Say, ‘Truly God leaves, to stray, whom He wills. And He guides to Himself those who turn to Him in penitence, ’’ God guides those who turn to God in penitence. They humble themselves to God and God reciprocates by guiding them. Those who do not humble themselves to God do not deserve to be guided.

Those who believe enjoy security and peace, “Those who believe, and whose hearts find assurance in the remembrance of God. Verily in the remembrance of God hearts are assured.” Living in the nearness of God provides them with a limitless source of happiness, security and safety. They are reassured by the feeling that they are under God’s protection. Their provision is guaranteed by God. They are content with whatever God decrees.

No one is more miserable than those who are deprived of the feeling of being near to God. Those have no way to connect with the universe and they live a lonely life. The remembrance of God provides a continuous flow of reassurance and security. Those who continuously remember God will receive a great reward in the Hereafter, “For those who believe and do righteous deeds, is (every) blessedness, and a beautiful place of (final) return.”

The verses address the Prophet (PBUH) telling him that the security of faith had not touched the hearts of those who requested that he should bring them a miracle. However, this is not the first time that a messenger had faced this situation. God sent many messengers before you (Muhammad), “Thus have We sent you (Muhammad) to a people before whom (long since) have (other) peoples (gone and) passed away; in order that you recite to them what We revealed to you; yet they reject (Him), the Lord of Mercy. Say, ‘He is my Lord. There is no deity but He. In Him, I put my trust, and to Him do I turn.’” It is surprising that these people rejected the belief in the Lord of Mercy whose remembrance brings security and happiness to the hearts. The command issued to the Prophet (PBUH), was that: your task is to recite to them what has been revealed to you. If they turn away, then declare to them that it is God that you put your trust in, and to Him is your return.

God says, We have sent you only to recite the Quran. The function of this Quran is not to bring about material miracles like moving mountains or talking to the dead but it came to address people who are alive, “Had it been possible for a Quran to cause the mountains to move, or the earth to be torn asunder, or the dead to speak, (this Quran would have done so); but to God belongs the affair entirely. Do not those who believe know that, had God willed, He could have guided all humankind? As for those who disbelieve, disaster will not cease to strike them because of what they do, or it dwells near their home until the threat of God comes to pass. Indeed, God does not fail in keeping His promise.” This Quran has changed people who received and accepted it more than moving mountains, tearing the earth asunder, or making the dead speak would have done. The Quran has special powers that affect the souls of those who are able to receive it, and live according to its injunctions. There is no doubt that God’s promise will be fulfilled.

The verse then poses a rhetorical statement, “And verily messengers (of God) were mocked before you, but I gave respite to those who disbelieved, then I seized them, and how (awful) was

My punishment.”

The second issue that this Sura intended to deal with is the issue of associating partners with God. The following verse raises this issue in a sarcastic way, “Is He who is a sustainer of every soul, (knowing) what it has earned? Yet they ascribe partners to God. Say, ‘Name them. Or do you inform Him of something which He does not know in the earth? Or of what is apparent in speech?’ Their contrivance has been made attractive to those who disbelieve and they have been averted from the road. He whom God sends astray, for him there is no guide.” The verse juxtaposes God who is the Sustainer of each and every soul against the helpless associates. The verse also implies that the Sustainer is ever watching over people. The thought that God is watching every move we make sends a shiver throughout our spines. Would any one dare then to associate partners with God? If they do, then they should name them because they are not known. The verse asks sarcastically, “do you inform Him of something which He does not know in the earth?” The torment that awaits those who associate partners with God is then reiterated, “For them is torment in the life of this world, and verily the torment of the Hereafter is harder, and they have no defender from God. “

On the other hand, the felicity that awaits the believers is detailed and juxtaposed against the fate that awaits the disbelievers, “The similitude of the Garden which is promised to those who are conscious of God, underneath it rivers flow, its food is everlasting, and its shade. This is the reward of those who remain conscious of God, while the reward of the disbelievers is the Fire.”

The verses continue to discuss the issues of the revelation and the belief in the Oneness of God. The verses address the response of the people of the Book to the Message which Muhammad (PBUH) brought, and refers to the previous revelations, “Those to whom We have given the Scripture rejoice at what has been revealed to you;” Those who are true believers from the people of the Scripture were happy with the agreement they found between their religion and the new revelation. They appreciated that the Quran refers to, accepts, and respects the previous Scriptures. Imagine the link that unites all those who believe in God together. It is a link that spreads happiness in the pure hearts. This is happiness that emanates from being united around the true belief in God and the fact that the new Book strengthens that belief.

However, there is a party from the disbelievers and some of the people of the Scripture who reject some parts of the new Book, “but there are among the clans those who reject a part thereof.” The verse does not name the parts that were rejected but the response to that rejection is given, “Say, ‘I am commanded to worship God, and not to join partners with Him. To Him I invite, and to Him is my return.’” Only God is worthy of being worshipped and to Him we will all return. The Prophet (PBUH) was commanded to declare that he believes in the Book as a whole, whether the others agreed or not. This is the final message from God, revealed in an Arabic language, “And thus We have revealed it as a true judgment in Arabic. Were you to follow their whims after the knowledge which has reached you, then you would find neither protecting guardian nor r against God.” What you have been given is the truth and what the clans have is only conjecture. The verse also states a fundamental principle: God does not allow anyone to change the Book which He revealed. Whoever does that is doomed.

“We did send messengers before you, and appointed for them wives and children. It was not (given) to any messenger that he should bring a sign save by God's leave. For everything there is an appointed time.” This is a statement of the fact that the Prophet (PBUH) was a human being. It was not within his power to bring about miracles except by the leave of God.

It is only natural that some differences exist between the new and the previous revelations because they were revealed at different times, “God does blot out or confirm what He pleases, and with Him is the Mother of the Book.” God has the power to change whatever He wills.

“Whether We shall show you (within your life-time) part of what we promised them or take to ourselves your soul (before it is all accomplished), your duty is the conveying (of the Message) and ours is the reckoning.” This is an important and a fundamental principle. The Messenger's only task is to deliver the message. Reckoning is for God.

The remnants of previous civilizations are a proof of how the strong hand of God destroyed ancient powerful states when they transgressed; and reduced their power, wealth, status, and land. Whatever God wills will take effect, “Have they not seen that We set upon the land, reducing it from its borders? And God decides; there is no adjuster of His decision. And He is swift in account. Those before them did (also) devise plots; but to God belongs the plan entirely. He knows what every soul earns, and the disbelievers will know who gets the final home.”

The Sura began by providing proofs of the truth of the Message and it ends by addressing the disbelievers' rejection of the Message, “The disbelievers say, ‘You are not a messenger.’ Say, ‘God is sufficient as a witness between me and you, and whoever has knowledge of the Book (is also a witness.)’ There different interpretations that explain who is he who, “knowledge of the Book (is also a witness.)” Some scholars are of the opinion that this refers to God, who has all knowledge. Others, are of the opinion that it refers to people of the Book who embraced Islam. They have knowledge of the Quran from their Books.

Sura14: Ibrahim (Abraham)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

This Sura was revealed in Mecca. It deals, like other Meccan Suras, with the fundamentals of the doctrine: the revelation, the message, the belief in the Oneness of God, and the accountability of human beings. However, its style differs from other Meccan Suras. The attributes of Prophet Abraham (PBUH) the father of the prophets - the blessed, the grateful, the repentant - cast their shadow on this Sura. The emphasis of the Sura is on two fundamental issues: the oneness of the message and the bounty of God which He bestowed on His creation. However, there are other issues which the Sura has touched upon.

Verses 1 to 27:

1. Alif. Lam. Ra. A Book which We have revealed to you (Muhammad), in order that you may lead people out of the depths of darkness into light - by the leave of their Lord - to the way of the Eminent, the Praised.
2. God, to whom belongs whatsoever is in the heavens and whatsoever is in the earth, and woe to the disbelievers from an awful torment.
3. Those who love the life of this world more than the Hereafter, who hinder (people) from the path of God, and would have it crooked; these have gone far astray.
4. And We have never sent a messenger who did not speak the language of his people, so that he might make (the message) clear for them. Then God leaves whom He wills to stray and guides whom He wills. He is the Eminent, the Wise.
5. We verily sent Moses with Our revelations, saying, "Bring your people forth from darkness to light. And remind them of the days of God." Certainly, there are signs in this for each steadfast, thankful (heart).
6. And (remind them) how Moses said to his people, "Remember God's blessings on you when He delivered you from Pharaoh's people who were afflicting you with dreadful torment, and were slaying your sons and sparing your women; that was a tremendous trial from your Lord."
7. And when your Lord proclaimed, "If you give thanks, I will give you more; but if you are thankless, My torment is dire."
8. And Moses said, "If you show ingratitude, you together and all those on earth, indeed God is Self-sufficient, Praised."
9. Has not the story of those before you reached you: the people of Noah, and (the tribes of) 'Aad and Thamud, and those after them? None save God knows them. Their messengers came to them with clear proofs, but they thrust their hands into their mouths, and said, "We disbelieve in that which you have been sent with, and we are in grave doubt concerning that which you call us to."
10. Their messengers said, "Is there a doubt about God, The Creator of the heavens and the earth? It is He who invites you, in order that He may forgive you your sins and give you respite for an appointed term" They said, "You are no more than human, like us. You wish to turn us away from the (gods) our fathers used to worship. Then bring us some clear authority."

11. Their messengers said to them, "True, we are human like you, but God bestows His grace on whomever of his servants as He pleases. It is not for us to bring you an authority except as God permits. And in God let the believers put their trust.
12. How should we not put our trust in God when He has shown us our ways? We surely will persevere and endure the hurt you inflict on us. In God let the trusting put their trust.
13. And the disbelievers said to their messengers, "Verily we will drive you out from our land, unless you return to our religion." Then, their Lord inspired them, (saying), "Verily We shall destroy the wrongdoers.
14. And verily We will settle you in the land after them. This is for him who fears My Majesty and fears My threats."
15. And they sought victory and decision (from their Lord), and frustration was the lot of every powerful obstinate transgressor.
16. Hell is before him, and he is made to drink festering water.
17. In gulps will he sip it, but will be hardly able to swallow it, and death comes to him from every side while yet he cannot die, and before him is a harsh torment.
18. The example of those who reject their Lord: their deeds are like ashes which are blown away by strong wind on a stormy day. They have no control of anything that they have earned. That is the extreme misguidance.
19. Do you not see that God created the heavens and the earth with truth? If He wills, He can remove you and bring (in) some new creation;
20. And that is not difficult for God.
21. They will all come forth in front of their Lord. Then those who were weak will say to those who were arrogant, "We were your followers, will you then avert from us some of God's torment? They will say, "Had God guided us, we would have guided you. It is all the same for us whether we rage or persevere; we have no place to escape to.
22. And Satan will say when the matter has been decided, "It was God who gave you the true promise. I too promised, but I failed you. I had no authority over you except to call you and you responded to me: then do not blame me, but blame yourselves. I cannot help you, nor can you help me. I reject the way you associated me with God before. A painful torment awaits the wrongdoers."
23. And those who believed and did good deeds will be admitted to Gardens underneath which rivers flow, they will abide in it eternally by the permission of their Lord, their greeting therein is "Peace."
24. Have you not seen how God sets forth examples? A good word like a good tree, whose root is firmly fixed, and its branches (reach) to the heavens;
25. Yielding its fruits at all times, by the leave of its Lord. So God sets forth examples for people, in order that they may be mindful.
26. And the example of an evil word is that of an evil tree, uprooted from upon the earth, possessing no stability.
27. God will confirm those who believe, with the firm word in this world and in the Hereafter; but God will leave, to stray, the wrongdoers. God does what He pleases. (14: 1-27)

"Alif. Lam. Ra. A Book which We have revealed to you (Muhammad)," This is a Book written using the letters of the Alphabet. You did not write it yourself, but God did. We have revealed this Book to you, "in order that you may lead people out of the depths of darkness into light - by the leave of their Lord - to the way of the Eminent, the Praised.” You (Muhammad) received this Book so that you lead people out from the darkness of the myth and fairy tales, the darkness of old traditions, and the darkness of the confusion created by polytheism. You should lead people from this darkness to the light of the belief in the One God. This is the light that makes the human being who was created from mud to shine. The light of guidance and the spirit of God which He breathed into the body made out of mud transform this body into a human being. Both humankind and animals were created from mud but humankind became different because of the spirit of God.

The belief in God is a shining light which clear the path to equality, brotherhood, knowledge, and peace. The belief in God, the Creator is an internal light which illuminates the road to God through the clouds of myth, fairytales, desires, and greed. The belief in God is a light; it is the light of justice, the light of freedom, and the light of knowledge. It is a light that emanates from the feeling of the nearness of God and fills the human soul with security and safety. The Prophet’s (PBUH) task was only to deliver the message. The end is achieved only by, “the leave of their Lord.” The light guides to God’s way. God’s way is His law which governs the universe and His rules which govern life. The two attributes of God which are used to end this verse imply a warning to the disbelievers to avoid the wrath of God the Eminent, and a reminder to the believers to be grateful to God the Praised.

The verse is followed by a reminder that God is the owner of the kingdom of heavens and earth, “God, to whom belongs whatsoever is in the heavens and whatsoever is in the earth,” and a warning to the disbelievers of God’s wrath, “and woe to the disbelievers from an awful torment.”

The following verse discloses the secret behind the resistance of the disbelievers to the blessing that God sent His Messenger (PBUH) with, “Those who love the life of this world more than the Hereafter, who hinder (people) from the path of God, and would have it crooked; these have gone far astray.” The love of this world makes it difficult for them to fulfill the responsibilities that come with the belief in God. The believers who love the Hereafter more than they love this world find it easy to fulfill their obligations. Islam does not require people to forfeit the enjoyment of this world for the sake of the Hereafter. Islam implores people to work to establish good life on this earth. That includes enjoying this life. However, life on earth should be based on justice, truth, and good character as dictated by God’s guidance. Those who love this world more than the Hereafter have no scruples. They do not refrain from using any means good or bad to satisfy their desires. Not only they follow crooked paths to achieve their goals but they hinder others to follow the straight path.

“And We have never sent a messenger who did not speak the language of his people, so that he might make (the message) clear for them.” It is a blessing for all people to receive God’s guidance in their own language. Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) was sent as a messenger to the whole world. However, the message was revealed in Arabic so that the Arabs will carry the task of disseminating the message to the whole world. As a human being, Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) could not have delivered the message to the whole world in his limited lifetime. The messenger’s duty is fulfilled once he had delivered the message then, “God leaves whom He wills to stray and guides whom He wills. He is the Eminent, the Wise.”

Likewise, Moses (PBUH) was given a message in the language of his people, “We verily sent Moses with Our revelations, saying, ‘Bring your people forth from darkness to light. And remind them of the days of God.’ Certainly, there are signs in this for each steadfast, thankful (heart).” The same command was issued to both Muhammad (PBUH) and Moses (PBUH). The only difference is that the command for Muhammad (PBUH) was to lead the, “people” out of the depths of darkness into light, while the command to Moses (PBUH) was to bring, “his people,” forth from darkness to light. Muhammad’s (PBUH) message was for the whole humanity, while Moses’ (PBUH) message was for his own people.

All days are God’s days but the expression, “days of God,” refers to days when major events occur. Some of these events are difficult and some are happy. Difficult days require steadfastness while happy days call for gratitude. Moses (PBUH) did what he was commanded to do. “Moses said to his people, ‘Remember God’s blessings on you when He delivered you from Pharaoh’s people who were afflicting you with dreadful torment, and were slaying your sons and sparing your women; that was a tremendous trial from your Lord.’” He reminded his people of the bounty of God when He saved them from the persecution inflicted upon them by Pharaoh and his people. The Egyptians killed the new born males and let the new born females live. This was certainly a great trial. The trial had two sides, the persecution which required perseverance and the deliverance which called for gratitude.

Moses (PBUH) explained what will be the reward for gratitude and the punishment for ingratitude, “And when your Lord proclaimed, ‘If you give thanks, I will give you more; but if you are thankless, My torment is dire.’” This is a true promise from God. Gratitude reflects the mindset of a normal person who responds with gratitude to a blessing bestowed on him/her. A normal person also recognizes that the source of all blessings is God. A normal person uses the blessings bestowed on him/her for the benefit of people. This purifies the soul and entices it to do good deeds and to work hard which in turn causes these blessings to grow. Ingratitude can be the result of thinking that God is not the source of the blessing, or that God does not deserve to be thanked.

God does not need our gratitude and He is not hurt by ingratitude, “And Moses said, ‘If you show ingratitude, you together and all those on earth, indeed God is Self-sufficient, Praised.’”

Moses continued to remind his people, “Has not the story of those before you reached you: the people of Noah, and (the tribes of) ‘Aad and Thamud, and those after them? None save God knows them. Their messengers came to them with clear proofs, but they thrust their hands into their mouths, and said, ‘We disbelieve in that which you have been sent with, and we are in grave doubt concerning that which you call us to.’” The style of the narrative changes, Moses (PBUH) is taken out of the narrative and the verses continued to narrate the experience of previous messengers. Messengers were sent to many people before you with guidance, but the people expressed their doubts about the truth of the message. Their messengers responded, “Is there a doubt about God, the Creator of the heavens and the earth? It is He who invites you, in order that He may forgive you your sins and give you respite for an appointed term” They said, “You are no more than human, like us. You wish to turn us away from the (gods) our fathers used to worship. Then, bring us some clear authority.” Although the messengers called their people to believe in God, the verse refers to God’s invitation for forgiveness to emphasize God’s mercy and grace. It is surprising that people would refuse an invitation to be forgiven. The verse cites another of the blessings of God. God will, “give you respite for an appointed term.” Instead of accepting the generous invitation, they raise another ignorant objection, “You are no more than human, like us. You wish to turn us away from the (gods) our fathers used to worship.” Instead of feeling proud that God has favored one of them to deliver His Message; they reject this bounty expressing their doubts as to the authenticity of the Message. They accused their messengers that they only want to turn them away from the false gods they were worshipping. They did not stop to ask why the messengers would want to turn them away from their old traditions. Instead of evaluating the new message, they asked for a material proof, “bring us some clear authority.”

The messengers did not deny that they were human beings. They even went a step further by emphasizing this, but they explained to their people that God has the power to bestow His grace on whomsoever He pleases, “Their messengers said to them, ‘True, we are human like you but God does bestow His grace to whomever of his servants as He pleases.’” Being selected to deliver God’s Message is a blessing from God, and being chosen to receive His guidance is a blessing from God as well.

Only God can bring about miracles, “It is not for us to bring you an authority except as God permits. And in God let the believers put their trust.” There should be no confusion between the limitless power of God and the limited power of the messengers. The messengers reiterated the fact that only in God one should put his trust.

The messengers remained steadfast in face of the tyranny of the disbelievers and reiterated their trust in God, “How should we not put our trust in God when He has shown us our ways?” This is a statement that can only be made by a believer who is sure of his way, his belief, and the ultimate support of God. The heart that feels it is being led by God is a heart which is connected to God. This feeling leaves no room for hesitation in pursuing the road that God has chosen regardless of the obstacles and the tyranny that may try to hinder the progress. It is then appropriate here to make the connection between the feelings of the messengers that they have been guided by God and their reliance on God. Only those who are moving on God’s road feel that connection. This connection strengthens the messengers and supports them in the face of persecution and temptation, “We surely will persevere and endure the hurt you inflict on us. In God let the trusting put their trust.”

The tyrants did not try to understand or reflect on what the messengers said. The answers only enhanced their stubbornness, “And the disbelievers said to their messengers, ‘Verily we will drive you out from our land, unless you return to our religion.’” This statement highlights the nature of the battle between Islam and the societies living in ignorance. Such societies do not espouse the concept of freedom of religion. Not only they request that the messengers stop inviting people to Islam but they also wanted them to abandon Islam completely and go back to the old religion of their people. However, God interfered to settle the dispute between the tyrants and the messengers, “Then their Lord inspired them, (saying), ‘Verily, We shall destroy the wrongdoers.’” We need to understand that God does not interfere until the messengers had done their duties and exhausted all the ways of convincing their people to the truth of the message. God will destroy the tyrants and will settle the believers in the land and will make them the heirs of the earth. This is God’s true promise for, “him who fears My Majesty and fears My threats.”

Thus, a small group of believers stood in the face of tyranny and persecution. However, the believers had God on their side. Each side sought victory, “And they sought victory and decision (from their Lord), and frustration was the lot of every powerful obstinate transgressor.” But tyranny only brings disappointment to the tyrant. The transgressor will be frustrated on earth but in the background there is also Hell fire. One can see the image of the transgressor in Hell fire where, “he is made to drink festering water. In gulps will he sip it, but will be hardly able to swallow it, and death comes to him from every side while yet he cannot die, and before him is a harsh torment.”

The scene of dust blown away by wind on a windy day is familiar. The image is drawn to describe in a dramatic way how bad deeds will be lost as if they were dust blown away by wind, “the example of those who reject their Lord: their deeds are like ashes which are blown away by strong wind on a stormy day. They have no control of anything that they have earned. That is the extreme misguidance.” The image shows the disbelievers trying in vain to protect the dust from being dispersed by the wind. The verse describes how the deeds which are not based on a foundation of faith are like dust. Deeds are mechanical actions; they get their value from the intention that motivated them. Good deeds are bound by the strong links which connect the deed to the intention and connects the intention to God.

The text then moves from the discussion of the issues of the message, faith, and the messengers to a discussion of heavens and earth. Such jump is an inherent feature of the style of the Quran. There is a secret language between the initial natural disposition of humankind and the universe. When the human being makes the effort to understand the universe, the secrets of this language will be disclosed and harmony will occur, “Do you not see that God created the heavens and the earth with truth? If He wills, He can remove you and bring (in) some new creation; and that is not difficult for God.” The verse uses the word “with truth.” The “truth” has the connotations of power and stability, the limitless power of God and the stability of the universe.

The narrative then moves to another level of God’s power. The verse describes the situation that the disbelievers will encounter on the Day of Judgment, “They will all come forth in front of their Lord. Then those who were weak will say to those who were arrogant, ‘We were your followers, will you then avert from us some of God's torment?’ They will say, ‘Had God guided us, we would have guided you. It is all the same for us whether we rage or persevere; we have no place to escape to.’” All the disbelievers and their weak followers will come forth in front of God. No cover will protect them. The followers will call upon those who led them in life asking them to avert even a small portion of the torment. Those who were weak, were weak because they gave up the most precious attribute that God gave the human being. They gave up their freedom to think and choose and they followed the tyrants blindly. They refused to be God's servants and chose to be servants to the tyrants. Being weak is not an excuse for their bad choice but it is their sin because God does not want human beings to be weak. God wants human beings to be proud by seeking God's protection. Seeking the tyrant's protection deprived them of their status as free human beings. The tyrants cannot force people to change their beliefs. They may be able to control the body with torture and persecution but they cannot control the mind, the spirit, or the conscious. They were weak because they chose to be weak.

The dialogue between these two groups of people shows the lowliness of the weak and the evasiveness of the arrogant. Those who were arrogant will make excuses saying, "Had God guided us, we would have guided you." On that Day, they will recognize the extent of God's power, the same power they denied in life. But God does not command misguidance, "God does not enjoin lewdness." (7:28). Those who were arrogant will implicitly rebuke those who were weak pointing to the fact that there is no escape of the fate that God had decreed. There is no use of exchanging the blame, "It is all the same for us whether we rage or persevere; we have no place to escape to."

Satan, the top seducer, then appears on the scene tantalizing both those who were weak and those who were arrogant, "And Satan will say when the matter has been decided, 'It was God who gave you the true promise. I too promised, but I failed you.'" Satan who whispered to people to disobey, seduced people to commit sin, and lured people away from guidance will tell them on the Day of Judgment that they should not have listened to him. God's promise is the true promise. He will also remind them, "I had no authority over you except to call you and you responded to me: then do not blame me, but blame yourselves. I cannot help you, nor can you help me. I reject the way you associated me with God before. A painful torment awaits the wrongdoers." Satan will clearly say to the two groups that they have only themselves to blame. He had no power over them in life and now he cannot help them and they cannot help him. He then delivers the last bit of news, "A painful torment awaits the wrongdoers."

On the other side, "those who believed and did good deeds will be admitted to Gardens underneath which rivers flow, they will abide in it eternally by the permission of their Lord; their greeting therein is 'Peace.'" What a difference between the fates of the believers and the tyrants?

The narrative moves to another theme, "Have you not seen how God sets forth examples? A good word like a good tree, whose root is firmly fixed, and its branches (reach) to the heavens, yielding its fruits at all times, by the leave of its Lord. So God sets forth examples for people, in order that they may be mindful. And the example of an evil word is that of an evil tree, uprooted from upon the earth, possessing no stability." The juxtaposition of the good tree which is firmly rooted and the bad tree which has been uprooted from upon the earth symbolizes the contrast between the fates of the prophets and the tyrants. The similarity between the good tree and the tree of prophet-hood which started by Prophet Abraham (PBUH) and continued to yield its fruits, one prophet after another, is quite clear. However, the example of the good tree given in the verse has many more dimensions than the one we mentioned.

The good word, the word of truth, is like a good tree. It is firmly rooted, continuously yielding its fruits. The good word stands firm in face of the winds of the persecution of the tyrants. The bad tree may grow big and may seem strong, but in fact its roots are very shallow. Not only it does not yield any fruit but it is shaky and will quickly vanish from the face of the earth. It is a true fact that goodness does not fade out while evil does not last.

God confirms the believers with a strong faith which rests deep in their hearts. God confirms the believers with His words and the words of His Messenger (PBUH). God confirms the believers with His promise that they will prevail in this life and will be successful in the Hereafter, “God will confirm those who believe, with the firm word in this world and in the Hereafter;” On the other hand God will leave the wrongdoers to go astray. Their wrongdoing will become a barrier between them and the light of guidance. They will be lost in the darkness of associating partners with God and the confusion of myths, traditions, and desires, “but God will leave, to stray, the wrongdoers. God does what He pleases.” God has total control of the all laws. He changes whatever laws He wishes to change and keeps whatever law He wishes to keep.

Verses 28 to 52:

28. Have you not seen those who exchanged God's blessings with ingratitude and led their people down to the abode of ruin;
29. Into Hell? They will burn therein, an evil place to stay in.
30. And they set up (idols) as equal to God, to mislead (people) from His path. Say, “Enjoy yourselves, for indeed your journey's end will be the Fire.”
31. Tell My servants who believe to establish prayer and spend of that which We have given them, secretly and publicly, before a day comes wherein there will be neither trading nor friendship.
32. God is He who created the heavens and the earth, and sent down water from the sky, thereby producing fruits as provision for you, and made the ships to be of service for you, that they may run upon the sea at His command, and has made the rivers of service to you;
33. And He has made the sun and the moon, constant in their courses, to be of service for you, and has made the night and the day of service for you.
34. And He has given you of all that you ask for. But if you count the blessings of God, never will you be able to enumerate them. Verily, humankind is a wrongdoer, ungrateful.
35. And when Abraham said, “My Lord, make this town safe, and save me and my sons from worshipping idols.
36. My Lord, they have led many people astray. But whoso follows me, he verily is of me. And whoso disobeys me, You are All-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy.
37. Our Lord, I have settled some of my offspring in an uncultivable valley near Your Holy House, our Lord, so that they may establish prayer; make the hearts of some people incline to them and provide them with fruits in order that they may be thankful.
38. Our Lord, You certainly know what we conceal and what we reveal. Nothing in the earth or in the heaven is hidden from God.

39. Praise be to God who has given me, in my old age, Ishmael and Isaac. My Lord is indeed All-Hearing of prayer.
40. My Lord, make me to establish prayer, and some of my offspring (also). Our Lord, accept my prayer.
41. Our Lord, forgive me and my parents and the believers on the Day of Reckoning.”
42. And do not think that God is unaware of what the wrongdoers do; He only gives them respite until a day on which the eyes stare (in horror.)
43. They will be running forward with necks outstretched, their heads uplifted, their gaze does not return towards them, and their hearts a (gaping) void.
44. And warn people of a day when the torment will come upon them, and those who did wrong will say, “Our Lord, delay us for a little while. We will obey Your call and will follow the messengers. (It will be answered), “Did you not swear before that there would be no end for you?
45. And you dwelt in the dwellings of the people who wronged themselves. You were clearly shown how We dealt with them; and We put forth (many) examples for you.”
46. Verily they have plotted their plot, and their plot is with God, though their plot was one whereby the mountains could be moved.
47. Do not think that God would fail to keep His promise to His messengers. Indeed, God is Eminent, avenger of evil.
48. On the day when the earth will be changed to other than the earth, and the heavens (also will be changed) and they will come forth to God, the One, the Dominator,
49. You will see the guilty on that day linked together in chains,
50. Their garments of liquid pitch, and their faces covered with Fire;
51. That God may repay each soul what it had earned. God is swift in reckoning.
52. This is a clear message for people in order that they may be warned thereby, and that they may know that He is only One God, and that people of understanding may take heed. (14: 28-52)

“Have you not seen those who exchanged God’s blessings with ingratitude and led their people down to the abode of ruin into Hell? They will burn therein, an evil place to stay in.” Do you not wonder (Muhammad) at those people who were blessed by God who sent them a messenger to guide them to the right path, to be forgiven by God, and to be admitted to paradise, and they reject all of this. Those are the chiefs of your community (Muhammad.) They did exactly like many leaders before them did; they led their people to a fate of doom. They rejected God and worshipped idols, “And they set up (idols) as equal to God, to mislead (people) from His path.” The verse implies that these leaders were determined to sway their people away from the path of God by associating idols with God. The belief in the Oneness of God frees people from the tyranny of their leaders. It is easy to control people when they turn away from the belief in One God. When people turn away from the belief in the Oneness of God and submit to their human rulers they lose their freedom and identity. Tell them (Prophet) that the enjoyment that you have indulged yourself in, is not going to last, “Say, ‘Enjoy yourselves, for indeed your journey's end will be the Fire.’”

Turn away (Prophet) from those people to My servants who will listen to your admonition. These are the people who accept gratefully God’s blessings and grace. Teach them how they can show their gratitude to God, “Tell My servants who believe to establish prayer and spend of that which We have given them, secretly and publicly, before a day comes wherein there will be neither trading nor friendship.” Establishing prayer is one of the most sincere ways of expressing gratitude to God. Another way for expressing gratitude to God is by giving the poor either in secret or openly. Giving in secret is more honorable for the poor; however, sometimes giving openly fulfills the purpose of providing a role model.

The following verses open up the book of the universe so people can appreciate the blessings of the Creator, “God is He who created the heavens and the earth, and sent down water from the sky, thereby producing fruits as provision for you, and made the ships to be of service for you, that they may run upon the sea at His command, and has made the rivers of service to you;” One of the miracles of this Book is how it relates the signs of the universe to the belief in the Oneness of God. God “sent down water from the sky, thereby producing fruits as provision for you.” The plants are an important source of food. It is one of the signs of the blessing of God. Growing plants is part of God’s plan. The rules that govern the universe were made to establish harmonious relationships between the different parts of the universe.

When people hear the word “provision,” they only think money. But the word “provision” has a much wider and deeper meaning than only money. Think of the effort that is needed to bring all the components of the universe to work harmoniously together so that we can exist. God made us understand how to build and operate ships, and how to benefit from the running rivers. The sun and the moon provide sources of energy that is necessary for life, “And He has made the sun and the moon, constant in their courses, to be of service for you, and has made the night and the day of service for you.” Even the day and night cycle is essential for life.

“And He has given you of all that you ask for. But if you count the blessings of God, never will you be able to enumerate them. Verily, man is a wrongdoer, ungrateful.” No one can enumerate God’s favors.

The following few verses describe the scene of Abraham (PBUH) standing in humble prayer in front of God’s Sacred House, “And when Abraham said, ‘My Lord, make this town safe, and save me and my sons from worshipping idols.’” Safety is one of the basic needs of human beings. The verse reminds people living in this place that safety is a blessing from God; God responded favorably to Abraham’s (PBUH) prayer and made this place safe. Instead of following the example of Prophet Abraham (PBUH), they followed a different path, they rejected God’s blessing and associated partners with Him. Abraham’s (PBUH) second prayer reflects his total submission to God. He asked God to save him and his offspring from worshipping idols, seeking God’s help and guidance, and expressing his gratitude for another blessing of the blessings of God. This is the blessing of guidance which moves the heart of the believer from the darkness of disbelief to the light of faith, from the confusion and loss to the knowledge and security, and from the humiliating worship of idols to being a proud worshipper of the Lord of people. Abraham (PBUH) said this prayer because he saw how people lost their way as a result of idol worship, “My Lord, they have led many people astray. But whoso follows me, he verily is of me. And whoso disobeys me, You are All-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy.” The last statement shows Abraham's (PBUH) characters of kindness and mercy. He did not ask God to destroy those, from among his offspring, who rejected him nor he asked God to hasten their punishment but he suggested politely that God's mercy and forgiveness may be exercised if God wills.

Abraham's (PBUH) prayer continued stating that the purpose for which he settled some of his offspring in this empty barren land was to establish prayer, "Our Lord, I have settled some of my offspring in an uncultivable valley near Your Holy House, our Lord, so that they may establish prayer;" He then asked God to make people yearn to come to that place and provide for them so they may be thankful, "make the hearts of some people incline to them and provide them with fruits in order that they may be thankful."

The object of settling Abraham's (PBUH) offspring near the Sacred House is mentioned explicitly in these verses. The object is to establish proper worship of God and to express gratitude to God for His blessings of provision and the yearning of hearts which incline to the House. These verses carry an implicit rebuke to the people of Mecca who did not fulfill these objectives.

Abraham's (PBUH) prayer continued, "Our Lord, You certainly know what we conceal and what we reveal. Nothing in the earth or in the heaven is hidden from God." Then he expressed his gratitude to God, "Praise be to God who has given me, in my old age, Ishmael and Isaac. My Lord is indeed All-Hearing of Prayer." Having offspring is a great bounty from God. Abraham (PBUH) continued his prayer requesting God to keep him and his offspring among those who establish prayer, "My Lord, make me to establish prayer, and some of my offspring (also). Our Lord, accept my prayer." The prayer ends with a request of God's forgiveness, "Our Lord, forgive me and my parents and the believers on the Day of Reckoning."

This prayer shows Abraham (PBUH) as the model of the righteous grateful servant of God who continuously remembers his Lord. One should note the use of "My Lord" and "Our Lord" in the prayer of Prophet Abraham (PBUH). The use of "Our Lord" instead of "Our God" stresses the acceptance of leading a life according to God's laws. The word God expresses the majestic attributes of the Creator while the word Lord expresses the attributes which deals with the daily life of human beings. One has to believe in both. Those who believe in God as the Creator but refuse to live by the rules that the Lord has decreed do not fulfill the requirements of faith.

The verses continue to describe the fate of the disbelievers in scenes from the Day of Judgement, "And do not think that God is unaware of what the wrongdoers do; He only gives them respite until a day on which the eyes stare (in horror.)" The Messenger (PBUH) knew that God was aware of what the wrongdoers were doing. This message is for those who may think wrongly that the wrongdoers will continue to enjoy the pleasures of this life. The wrongdoers will be punished on that difficult day when the eyes will be forced to stare in horror. People will, "They will be running forward with necks outstretched, their heads uplifted, their gaze does not return towards them, and their hearts a (gaping) void." The verse paints an image of people who are terrified. They keep running in confusion trying to find an escape from the overwhelming torment. Their hearts are void of feelings and their eyes are gazing but not seeing. This is the day which they will meet after the period of temporary reprieve that God granted them. So, warn them (Prophet) before that day comes, “And warn people of a day when the torment will come upon them, and those who did wrong will say, ‘Our Lord, delay us for a little while. We will obey Your call and will follow the messengers.’” Now they call upon God saying, “Our Lord.” Have they not rejected Him before? One should note that the style of the narrative has changed from a story telling mode to a dialogue mode, as if they were there praying God for a second chance. However, they will be answered, “Did you not swear before that there would be no end for you? And you dwelt in the dwellings of the people who wronged themselves. You were clearly shown how We dealt with them; and We put forth (many) examples for you.” You have seen how the wrongdoers before you were destroyed and you settled in their houses but you never thought that you will meet the same fate.

The scene changes from the events of the Day of Judgment to the events taking place at the time of the Prophet (PBUH), describing the activities of the idolaters of Mecca, “Verily they have plotted their plot, and their plot is with God, though their plot was one whereby the mountains could be moved.” God is aware of their conspiracy and He will deal with it. They may think it is well contrived plot but God has the power to deal with it. No matter how strong their plotting is, God will not fail His messengers, “Do not think that God would fail to keep His promise to His messengers, Indeed God is Eminent, avenger of evil.” God is Almighty and will execute His punishment on the wrongdoers and the plotters. Justice will be done and the crime of the wrongdoers and the plotters will be avenged. This will happen, “On the day when the earth will be changed to other than the earth, and the heavens (also will be changed) and they will come forth to God, the One, the Dominator,” We do not know how these changes will happen nor we know what will be the nature of the new earth and heaven. The verse clearly expresses the limitless bounds of God’s power.

On that day, “You will see the guilty on that day linked together in chains, their garments of liquid pitch, and their faces covered with Fire;” It will be a humiliating scene; the scene of the chained wrongdoers marching in rows. They will be dressed in flammable dirty black garments and their faces will be covered with fire. This will be the reward that awaits them. They will be humiliated because they bargained for conniving and wrongdoing, “That God may repay each soul what it had earned. God is swift in reckoning.”

The Sura ends, as it started, with a proclamation to people, “This is a clear message for people in order that they may be warned thereby, and that they may know that He is only One God, and that people of understanding may take heed.” The proclamation acknowledges the fact that God is One. This is the corner stone of God’s religion on which God’s way of life is established. The intent of the proclamation is not only for people to acknowledge this fact but also to establish a way of life that is based on this acknowledgment. God’s way of life is a comprehensive program that includes all aspects of life: faith, rituals, ethics, manners, values, and standards. The political, economic, and social systems that govern the society should be based on this acknowledgement.

Sura 15: Al-Hijr (Stoneland)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

This is a Meccan Sura. According to the chronological order it comes after Surat Joseph. It was revealed during the period between the year of sadness and the time of migration to Medina. This was a critical time in the life of the Prophet (PBUH). The narrative in the Sura reflects the nature of this period. The Sura includes clear and realistic instructions to the Prophet (PBUH) and the Muslim community to help them in their struggle against the disbelievers.

After the death of the Prophet's uncle, Abu Taleb, the spread of Islam slowed down. The persecution of the Prophet (PBUH) and his companions at the hands of the idolaters of Mecca intensified and the levels of mockery and derision exercised by the idolaters against the Message and the Messenger (PBUH) escalated. Quranic verses revealed during this period responded by threatening the idolaters with a fate similar to previous generations of disbelievers. Examples of previous peoples who were punished and cities which were destroyed were cited. The verses also attempted to console the Prophet (PBUH) and to explain that the rejection that he was facing was simply the result of the stubbornness of the disbelievers.

The style of the Sura and its content are similar to other Suras revealed during this phase of the history of the Muslim community. Similar to the other Suras revealed during the same period, it included the strategy that the Muslim community should adopt in order to deal successfully with the requirements of that phase in the progress of the Islamic movement. This strategy is also applicable whenever similar circumstances arise.

An important feature of the Quran is that it always provides a strategy that is tailored to the specific situation at hand. It takes into consideration the factors of time, place, and circumstances that are relevant to the specific situation. It is important to understand this feature because it is the key to understanding the Quran, its laws, and its objectives. One has to understand this feature in order to be able to understand the motives behind the strategies that were suggested by the Quran to deal with different situations. The verses of the Quran dealt with real life situations and took into consideration the realities of these situations. To understand the meaning and the objectives of the verses of the Quran one has to study the prevalent circumstances in each of these situations.

Those who are undertaking the responsibility of the Call to Islam at any time can correlate the difficulties they are having with the difficulties mentioned in the Sura. They experience the same adverse conditions that the Prophet (PBUH) and his companions experienced in the early days of Islam. The problem we are facing now is the same problem that existed then: the turning away from the comprehensive reality of this religion. One cannot accept the comprehensive reality of this religion without having an absolute belief in God. This will translate into applying His rules in all aspects of life. God's rules should be applied in matters of faith and rituals as well as in the political, economic, social, and ethical spheres.

Verses 1 to 15:

1. Alif. Lam. Ra. These are verses of the Book, a Quran that makes things clear.
2. It may be that those who disbelieve wish ardently that they were Muslims.
3. Let them eat and enjoy life, and let (false) hopes beguile them. They will soon know.
4. And never did We destroy a town but it had a decreed term made known.
5. Neither can a people anticipate its term, nor delay it.
6. And they said, "You, on whom the message has been revealed, you are indeed a madman.
7. Why do not you bring us angels, if you are truthful?"
8. We do not send the angels down except with the truth. (If they come to the ungodly), no respite would they have.
9. We have, without doubt, sent down the Message; and We will assuredly be its guardian.
10. We did send messengers before you among different former communities.
11. But never came a messenger to them but they mocked him.
12. Even so We do let it creep into the hearts of the sinners.
13. They do not believe in it, though the example of the former peoples has already passed.
14. And even if We opened to them a gate into heaven and they kept ascending through it.
15. They would only say, "Our eyes have been dazzled. No, we have been bewitched by sorcery." (15: 1-15)

This is the first group of verses in this Sura. It talks about the nature of the Book which was rejected by the idolaters. The verses threaten the idolaters of a day when they wish they had been Muslims. The verses also explain why God's punishment has been delayed. They are told that God has decreed that the punishment will occur on a previously designated date. The verses refer to their request that angels should bring the message. They are told that the angels will come only to exact God's punishment. The verses finally state that the reason behind their rejection is not the lack of evidence of the truth of the Message but because they are arrogant and stubborn.

"Alif. Lam. Ra. These are verses of the Book, a Quran that makes things clear." The Book has been written using these Alphabetical letters. Although everyone is familiar with these letters but it takes a miracle to use it to compose the Quran. This is beyond the ability of any human being. Those who rejected the Quran will wish one day they had accepted it, "It may be that those who disbelieve wish ardently that they were Muslims." The use of the word, "may be" carries the tones of threat and ridicule. When that day comes, it will be too late and they would have missed the opportunity. This is followed with another threat, "Let them eat and enjoy life, and let (false) hopes beguile them. They will soon know." Let them lead a material life that is void of contemplation, thought, or curiosity. Leave them in their indulgence of material pleasures unaware of the passing of life, thinking that it will last for ever. But one day, when it will be too late, they will come to know the truth.

"And never did We destroy a town but it had a decreed term made known." They should not be deceived with the delay in punishment. God has decreed a limited span of time for each nation. God will extend this time for nations which believe, do good deeds, and remain on the straight path. If they swerve from the right path they meet their end and their decreed term expires. It may be said that there are nations which do not believe nor do good deeds but they continue to flourish. This may be true if we examine the situation superficially but if we look deeper we find that these nations still harbor a measure of goodness. They may be contributing to the development of life on earth in some way, they may be instituting justice even in a narrow sense for their citizens, or they may be contributing to the material benefit of people. This goodness is a cause for life on earth to prosper and for justice to prevail even in a narrow sense. When this goodness expires, the lives of such nations expire. This is God's law. Every nation has a specific term, "Neither can a people anticipate its term, nor delay it."

The verses describe the rudeness of the idolaters in responding to the Prophet (PBUH). He brought them a Book which clarified everything and alerted them to the consequences of their deeds. However, they said to him, "You, on whom the message has been revealed, you are indeed a madman." Not only they rejected the Message in a rude way, but they also called the Prophet (PBUH), "a madman." They even went further asking him to bring down angels to support his message, "Why do not you bring us angels, if you are truthful?" The request of the disbelievers for angels to deliver the message is a sign that they do not have faith in their fellow human beings whom God has chosen to deliver the message. The response comes from God, "We do not send the angels down except with the truth. (If they come to the ungodly), no respite would they have."

The narrative then continued to assure them that it is God who sends His Messengers with guidance, "We have, without doubt, sent down the Message; and We will assuredly be its guardian." If they were really interested in God's guidance, then they better believe in His Message which He revealed to His Messenger. It is God's mercy that He sent them a message instead of sending them angels to destroy them.

The promise has been fulfilled. The Quran has been kept intact for centuries. No one was able to tamper with it. There were many turbulent times in the history of Islam. During these times, many groups were formed each claiming that they were the true Muslims and the others were deviants. Each group tried to support its point of view using corrupted Prophetic traditions. However, no one of them was able to tamper with even one verse from the Quran. There are also times of decline during which Muslims were oppressed. Their enemies could have easily tampered with the Quran and the Muslims could not have raised a finger. But God kept the Quran intact as He promised.

God then consoled His Prophet (PBUH), "We did send messengers before you among different former communities. But never came a messenger to them but they mocked him." God sent many messengers before Muhammad (PBUH) and like him they were rejected by their people. God told His Messenger (PBUH) that his people's hearts, like the hearts of those who rejected their messengers before him, were not open to receive and benefit from the guidance that the messengers brought, "Even so We do let it creep into the hearts of the sinners." Even though, the Quran creeps into their hearts, but it does not leave any trace on them; as if they have never seen it. Those who reject guidance are all alike regardless of when they lived or where they lived, "They do not believe in it, though the example of the former peoples has already passed."

The problem was not that there was a lack of proof of the authenticity of the message. The problem was that they were blinded by their arrogance and stubbornness, “And even if We opened to them a gate into heaven and they kept ascending through it. They would only say, ‘Our eyes have been dazzled. No, we have been bewitched by sorcery.’” These two verses paint an image of their persistence in rejecting the faith. Imagine them ascending into the sky to a door that leads to heaven but they still reject the reality of what they see. They simply think that they are imagining things. Such a trip would be stronger as evidence than having angels coming down to them. But they would have still made an excuse not to believe saying, “No, we have been bewitched by sorcery.” This shows the extent of their stubbornness. The verses portrayed the arrogance of those who reject God and presented a model for all those who reject guidance. The materialists who reject God establish the social structure and the political and economic systems of their nations on the basis of the claim that the universe existed without a Creator; and that the universe does not need the Creator to manage and control it. They claim that these systems are ethical systems based on a scientific approach. Their failure to feel the existence of God, in spite of the cosmic signs that corroborate the need for a creator, indicates that their receptors have malfunctioned. The claim that the universe existed without a creator is against the initial natural disposition of the human being. It is an idea that is unacceptable to the normal human mind.

Verses 16 to 25:

16. It is We who have set out the zodiacal signs in the heavens, and made them fair-seeming to the beholders;
17. And We have guarded them from every cursed devil.
18. Save him who steals the hearing, he will be pursued by a visible flame.
19. And We have spread out the earth, and placed in it firm mountains, and caused each balanced thing to grow in it.
20. And We have provided in it means of subsistence, for you and for those for whose sustenance you are not responsible.
21. And there is not a thing but with Us are the stores thereof. And we do not send it down except in appointed measure.
22. And We send the winds fertilising, then We caused water to descend from the sky, and gave it to you to drink. It is not you who are the holders of the store thereof.
23. And most surely We bring to life and cause to die and We are the heirs (of everything).
24. And certainly We have known those of you who have gone before and We certainly know those who shall come later.
25. And indeed, your Lord will gather them together. Indeed, He is Wise, Omniscient. (15: 16 – 25)

“It is We who have set out the zodiacal signs in the heavens, and made them fair-seeming to the beholders; And We have guarded them from every cursed devil. Save him who steals the hearing, he will be pursued by a visible flame.” This is the first line in a large canvas. This canvas portrays the amazing universe; a canvas which speaks of the signs of the creative power, the meticulous management, and the accurate control behind the creation and the maintenance of the universe. The word zodiacal signs may be a reference to the stars and planets or to their paths, either case they are signs of the power of the Creator, the accuracy of the control, and the beauty of the scene, “and made them fair-seeming to the beholders.” This is a subtle remark indicating that the beauty of the creation was a deliberate plan of God. The scene of the scattered stars over the blue clear sky is a beautiful scene that evokes many feelings in the hearts of the beholder. In addition to the beauty, God also provided protection for the sky; no devil can gain access to it. He protected its purity from being defiled by the temptation of the devil, “And We have guarded them from every cursed devil.” The verse refers to the devil who “steals the hearing.” The nature of the devil and how he will steal the hearing is a matter of the unseen. We will not attempt to discuss this because it is futile to speculate about the unseen. The message is that God will protect the sky from any attempt by the devil to penetrate it.

The second line in this amazing canvas is the scene of the extended land; it is easy to tread on, and it is supported by huge mountains. It provides plants and provisions for people and other living things, “And We have spread out the earth, and placed in it firm mountains, and caused each balanced thing to grow in it.” The verses describing the scenes of the sky and the earth are dominated by enormous structures. The sky has zodiacal signs, the earth has huge mountains, and the plants are well balanced. The verses go on to include the whole creation in the scene, “And We have provided in it means of subsistence, for you and for those for whose sustenance you are not responsible.” The verses not only refer to the cosmic creation of God but also to the living things that God created on earth. It reminds us of the fact that He is the provider not only for the human beings but also for the other living creatures. The human race is but one group of the living creation of God but there are other living creatures which God created and He provides for. It is by the grace of God that He created these living creatures to support the life of the human race on earth. God did not leave the responsibility of providing for these living creatures to the people but He provides for them Himself. These provisions, like everything else, are accurately measured according to God’s will, “And there is not a thing but with Us are the stores thereof. And we do not send it down except in appointed measure.” No one owns or controls the resources on earth. It is God who owns, controls, and disburses all the resources according to His will. These resources are allocated in an, “appointed measure.”

God sends the wind in an appointed measure, “And We send the winds fertilising, then We caused water to descend from the sky, and gave it to you to drink. It is not you who are the holders of the store thereof.” God sent the wind which delivers rain for people to drink however; they will not be able to store it. The wind blows according to certain physical laws, but who created these laws? It is the Creator who created them.

One notices that the verses defer all actions to God even the water that we drink, it is God who gave it to us to drink, “gave it to you to drink.” This can be interpreted that God created humans in such a way that they need water to survive, and He made the water available and beneficial for humans to drink. This flows well with the general theme of these verses. The verses stress the power of God and His ability to control and maintain all His creations. The verses continue along the same lines to stress that life and death are also under God’s control, “And most surely We bring to life and cause to die and We are the heirs (of everything).”

The underlying theme then changes to connect this group of verses with the verses in the first group above, “And certainly We have known those of you who have gone before and We certainly know those who shall come later.” God will certainly gather them together in the end “And indeed, your Lord will gather them together. Indeed, He is Wise, Omniscient.” The verse stresses that life and death are in God’s hand. He is the heir after life, He knows when each one will be put death

Verses 26 to 48:

26. Verily We created man of potter's clay from an altered black mud.
27. And the jinn did We create aforetime of intensely hot fire.
28. And (remember) when your Lord said to the angels, "I am creating a mortal out of potter's clay from altered black mud,
29. When I have fashioned him (in due proportion) and breathed into him of My spirit, fall you down prostrating to him."
30. So the angels prostrated themselves, all of them together.
31. Except Iblis. He refused to be among those who prostrated.
32. (God) said, "Iblis, what is your reason for not being among those who prostrated themselves?"
33. (Iblis) said, "I am not one to prostrate myself to a mortal, whom You created out of potter's clay from altered black mud."
34. (God) said, "Then get you out from here; for you are rejected, accursed.
35. And the curse shall be on you till the Day of Judgment."
36. (Iblis) said, "My Lord, give me then respite till the Day when they are raised."
37. He (God) said, "Indeed, you are of those reprieved;
38. Till the Day of the appointed time."
39. He (Iblis) said, "My Lord, because You has sent me astray, I verily shall adorn the path of error for them on the earth, and shall mislead them every one,
40. Except Your sincere servants."
41. He (God) said, "This is a right course incumbent upon Me.
42. You have no authority over My servants, except those who will follow you from among the ones who go astray.
43. And verily, Hell is the promised abode for all of them.
44. It has seven gates, and each gate has an appointed portion.
45. Those who are God conscious (will be) amid gardens and fountains.
46. (Their greeting will be), 'Enter you here in peace and security.'
47. And We shall remove whatever is in their breasts of rancor. (They will be) Brethren, face to face, (they rest) on couches raised.
48. No sense of fatigue shall touch them, nor shall they (ever) be asked to leave. (15: 26 – 48)

This group of verses discuss the major story of humanity, the story of the initial natural disposition of humankind. It is also the story of guidance versus misguidance and the factors that affect both. It is the story of Adam (PBUH). From what has he been created? What were the events that occurred during and after the process of his creation? This story has been discussed twice before in this book, the first time in Surat Al-Baqara (Chapter 2) and the second time in Surat Al-Aaraf (Chapter 7). However, the account that was given in the previous Suras served different purposes and consequently the presentation was different. Each account had its own style, environment, and tempo. However, the beginning of all three accounts had a common theme: the concept of establishing Adam (PBUH) on earth and making him a vicegerent. In Surat Al-Baqara the story of the creation of Adam (PBUH) started with the verse, “It is He who created for you all things that are on earth; then turned He to the heaven, and fashioned it as seven heavens. And He knows all things.” (2: 29). In Surat Al-Aaraf the verses which described the creation of Adam (PBUH) were preceded by the verse, “And We have given you (humankind) power on earth, and appointed for you therein livelihoods. Little you give thanks.” (7: 10). In this Sura, the story is preceded by the verse, “And We have spread out the earth, and placed in it firm mountains, and caused each balanced thing to grow in it. And We have provided in it means of subsistence, for you and for those for whose sustenance you are not responsible.” (15: 19)

However, as we mentioned before the account given in each Sura is unique. In Surat Al-Baqara the emphasis was on the establishment of Adam (PBUH) on earth as a vicegerent, “And when your Lord said to the angels, ‘I will create a vicegerent on earth.’” (2: 30) The following verses explained the rationale behind the establishment of Adam (PBUH), “They said, ‘Will You place therein one who will make mischief and shed blood? While we do celebrate Your praise and glorify Your Holy (name)?’ He said, ‘I know what you know not.’ And He taught Adam the names of all things; then He placed them before the angels, and said, ‘Tell me the names of these if you are truthful.’ They said, ‘Glory be to You. We have no knowledge, except that which You have taught us. Verily, You are Omniscient, Wise.’ He said, ‘Adam, tell them their names.’ When he had told them, God said, ‘Did I not tell you that I know the unseen in the heavens and earth, and I know what you reveal and what you conceal?’” (2: 30 – 33) The verses continued to narrate the story of God’s command, Satan’s disobedience, the temptation of Adam (PBUH) and his spouse, the descent of Adam (PBUH) and his spouse to live on earth to fulfil their undertaking as vicegerents after they have gone through the difficult experience which prepared them for life on earth, and finally their repentance.

In Surat Al-Aaraf the focus was on the enmity between humankind and Satan. The verses narrated Adam’s (PBUH) journey in heaven and how he was seduced by Satan; and Satan’s request for a reprieve from God and his vow to devote his life until the Day of Judgement to the temptation of the humankind. The verses emphasized the fact that human beings have the choice, if they obey God and do good deeds then they are readmitted to heaven from which their first father was driven out when he disobeyed God; while those who choose to follow Satan and disobey God will end up in Hell fire.

The story in the present Sura deals with the nature of Adam (PBUH) and the innate factors that affect his accepting or rejecting guidance. So, the verses start by stating that Adam (PBUH) was created from potter’s clay from an altered black mud. Then God breathed into Adam (PBUH) from His spirit, “Verily We created man of potter’s clay from an altered black mud. And the jinn did We create aforesaid of intensely hot fire.” The verses state clearly the difference between the nature of Adam (PBUH) and the nature of Satan. The former was created from clay and the latter was created from fire.

“And (remember) when your Lord said to the angels, ‘I am creating a mortal out of potter's clay from altered black mud, When I have fashioned him (in due proportion) and breathed into him of My spirit, fall you down prostrating to him.’ So the angels prostrated themselves, all of them together. Except Iblis. He refused to be among those who prostrated. (God) said, ‘Iblis, what is your reason for not being among those who prostrated themselves?’ (Iblis) said, ‘I am not one to prostrate myself to a mortal, whom You created out of potter's clay from altered black mud.’ (God) said, ‘Then get you out from here; for you are rejected, accursed. And the curse shall be on you till the Day of Judgment.’” When did God speak to the angels? Where did this take place?

How did He speak to the angels? We do not have any answers to these questions. It is a matter of the unseen and there is no authentic text that provides answers to these questions. We also do not know how did God created Adam (PBUH) from clay. It may be said that the main elements that form the human body are the same elements that compose the clay. Then God breathed in Adam (PBUH) of His spirit. God's spirit transformed this lowly formation of clay to the honored human species. The transformation gave the humankind unique characteristics and made him worthy of being a vicegerent on earth. How did this happen? Is it possible for the human creature to ever fathom how the Great Creator works?

We know that Satan was created from intensely hot fire and that he was created before Adam (PBUH). We do not know the nature of Satan nor do we know how he was created. However, he must have acquired some of the characteristics of the intensely hot fire from which he was created. One of these characteristics is the ability to affect clay causing it to change. This change could be harmful since the fire is very hot. We can sense also from the narrative that Satan is arrogant.

Humankind was created from potter's clay and was given a breath from the spirit of God. The spirit differentiated him from the rest of God's creation and made him able to reach to high heaven and made him worthy of the honor of connecting with God. The spirit gave humankind the ability to break the material barrier and be able to receive inspiration from God.

But humankind is weighed down to the earth by the muddy nature of his formation. This nature evokes in him the various desires which are required to satisfy the needs of the physical body. The physical body needs food, drink, and clothes. It has passion and carnal desires. Humankind is a mixture of these two components, physical and spirit. They are inseparable. The goal set for humankind is to maintain the balance between these two components. No component should be nurtured or satisfied on the account of the other component. It is neither desirable for human beings to suppress the needs of the physical body in favor of nurturing the spirit; nor it is desirable for them to indulge in the lusty desires of the physical body and ignore the lofty needs of the spirit. The former course of action could bring them nearer to the circle of angels while the latter course of action brings them nearer to the circle of animals. Neither scenario was intended for the human race. The objective of humankind is to reach and maintain a balance between the body and the spirit. The Prophet (PBUH) admonished three men, the first vowed to lead a celibate life, the second vowed to fast every day his whole life, and the third vowed to spend the whole night praying his whole life. He (PBUH) said according to 'Aisha (RA), “Whoever steered away from my tradition does not belong to me.”

“So the angels prostrated themselves, all of them together; except Iblis. He refused to be among those who prostrated.” The angles prostrated themselves to Adam (PBUH) because they do what they are commanded to do. But Iblis has a different nature he was created from fire while the angels were created from light. Iblis disobeyed the command. When he was asked why he did not obey the command he said, “I am not one to prostrate myself to a mortal, whom You created out of potter's clay from altered black mud.” The arrogant Satan ignored the fact that Adam (PBUH) was not created from clay only but he also carried a breath from God. Satan had to suffer the consequence of his disobedience, “(God) said, ‘Then get you out from here; for you are rejected, accursed. And the curse shall be on you till the Day of Judgment.’”

The vindictive nature of Satan motivated him to seek revenge, “(Iblis) said, ‘My Lord, give me then respite till the Day when they are raised.’” God granted him the reprieve which he requested, “He (God) said, ‘Indeed, you are of those reprieved till the Day of the appointed time.’” Satan wanted time to exact his revenge against Adam (PBUH) and his progeny, “He (Iblis) said, ‘My Lord, because You has sent me astray, I verily shall adorn the path of error for them on the earth, and shall mislead them every one, except Your sincere servants.’” He defined the battle ground. He vowed to adorn the path of error for the children of Adam. However, he knew that he had no power over God’s sincere servants. God said, “This is a right course incumbent upon Me. You have no authority over My servants, except those who will follow you from among the ones who go astray.” This is God’s law. Satan has no power over God’s sincere servants. Their devotion to God protects them from succumbing to Satan’s adorned temptation. But those who choose to go astray will join Satan, “And verily, Hell is the promised abode for all of them. It has seven gates, and each gate has an appointed portion.”

On the other hand, those who remain conscious of God will be rewarded by an abode, “amid gardens and fountains. (Their greeting will be), ‘Enter you here in peace and security.’ And We shall remove whatever is in their breasts of rancor. (They will be) Brethren, face to face, (they rest) on couches raised. No sense of fatigue shall touch them, nor shall they (ever) be asked to leave.” Those who remain conscious of God protect themselves from God’s wrath by avoiding the roads that lead to this wrath. The contrast between those who will end up in paradise and those who will end up in Hell fire is to be noted. The sincere servants of God lead a peaceful and secure life in gardens full of springs. Peace and security will remove rancor and hatred from their hearts. On the other hand, Satan’s host live in fear and agony. Their hearts are full of envy and rancor.

Islam does not attempt to change the nature of humankind. It acknowledges the fact that people’s hearts may incorporate rancor. This is part of the human nature. Islam does not attempt to expunge these feelings from the hearts. Islam tries to attenuate the severity of such feelings and replace it with love and tolerance. Muslims should love only that which brings them nearer to God and should hate only that which separates them from God. How else can one describe faith? But in heaven rancor would be completely expunged from their hearts. Only pure and loving brotherhood remains. This is one of the characteristics that the people of heaven will enjoy. Whoever believes in God and finds that he /she enjoys this characteristic in this life should celebrate it and consider it a good omen for a future in heaven.

Verses 49 to 84:

49. Tell My servants that I am indeed the All-Forgiving, the Giver of Mercy;
50. And that My torment will be indeed the most painful torment.
51. And tell them about the guests of Abraham.
52. When they entered his presence and said, "Peace," He said, "We are afraid of you."
53. They said, "Fear not, we give you glad tidings of a son endowed with great knowledge."
54. He said, "Do you give me glad tidings that old age has seized me? Of what, then, is your good news?"
55. They said, "We give you glad tidings in truth. So do not despair."
56. He said, "And who despairs of the mercy of his Lord, save those who have gone astray?"
57. Abraham said, "Messengers (of God), what then is the business on which you (have come)?"
58. They said, "We have been sent to a people (deep) in sin,
59. (All) save the family of Lot. Them, we shall deliver every one,
60. Except his wife, whom We had decreed that she should be of those who stay behind."
61. And when the messengers came to the family of Lot,
62. He said, "You are unknown people."
63. They said, "We have come to you with that about which they disputed.
64. And we bring you the truth, and we are indeed truthful.
65. So travel with your household in a portion of the night, and follow behind them. Let none of you look back, but go where you are commanded."
66. And We revealed to him (the decree) of that matter: that the root of those (who did wrong) was to be cut off at the early morning.
67. And the people of the town came rejoicing.
68. He (Lot) said, "These are my guests, so do not disgrace me.
69. Be conscious of God and do not shame me."
70. They said, "Have we not forbidden you from (entertaining) anyone?"
71. He said, "Here are my daughters, if you must be doing (lawful marriage)."
72. Verily, by your life (Muhammad), in their wild intoxication, they wandered in distraction, to and fro.
73. But the (mighty) blast overtook them before morning,
74. And We turned (the cities) upside down, and rained down on them brimstones hard as baked clay.
75. In this are signs for those who discern.
76. And the (cities were) right on the high-road.
77. In this is a sign for the believers.
78. And the companions of the thicket were also wrongdoers.
79. So We exacted revenge on them. They were both on an open highway, plain to see.
80. And the dwellers of Al-Hijr denied the messengers.
81. And we gave them Our revelations, but they turned away from them.
82. And they used to carve out dwellings in the hills, (wherein they dwelt) secure.
83. But the (mighty) blast seized them at the early morning.
84. And what they earned did not avail them. (15: 49 -84)

This group of verses portray a number of examples describing God's mercy and torment. These examples were given through a number of narratives: the glad tidings that the angels brought the old Prophet Abraham (PBUH), that a son will be born to him; the deliverance of Prophet Lot (PBUH) and his family except his wife who was among the wrongdoers; and the torment that the people of the thicket and the people of Al-Hijr suffered.

The previous verses described the reward that those who remain conscious of God will get and the torment that those who chose to go astray will suffer. God then issued this command to His Messenger (PBUH), "Tell My servants that I am indeed the All-Forgiving, the Giver of Mercy; and that My torment will be indeed the most painful torment." God mentioned His forgiveness before He talked about His torment, according to the fundamental principle which God decreed. God prescribed mercy on Himself. In some verses God's torment is mentioned first or even mentioned without a reference to God's mercy to illustrate a specific point that needs to be emphasized.

"And tell them about the guests of Abraham. When they entered his presence and said, 'Peace,' He said, 'We are afraid of you.'" The verse skips the details that was mentioned in Surat Hud (Chapter 11) which explain why was Prophet Abraham (PBUH) fearful of these people because the focus here was on the mercy of God which was expressed in the glad tidings that these messengers brought Prophet Abraham (PBUH). They said, "Fear not, we give you glad tidings of a son endowed with great knowledge." The immediate reaction of Prophet Abraham (PBUH) was astonishment, "He said, 'Do you give me glad tidings that old age has seized me? Of what, then, is your good news?'" He was old and his wife was barren, how could they have a son? He needed to be reminded of God's mercy, "They said, 'We give you glad tidings in truth. So do not despair.'" Quickly he remembered and responded appropriately, "He said, 'And who despairs of the mercy of his Lord, save those who have gone astray?'" One should note Prophet Abraham's (PBUH) reference to God's mercy. He also stated one of the fundamental principles, only those who go astray despair of God's mercy. The believers whose hearts are connected to God never despair because they know that no matter how difficult it gets, God's mercy is always near them. God controls the means as He controls the results.

When his fear was gone and he was reassured by the angels he wanted to know what is the business they came to conduct. He asked, "Messengers (of God), what then is the business on which you (have come)?" They answered, "We have been sent to a people (deep) in sin, (All) save the family of Lot. Them, we shall deliver every one, except his wife, whom We had decreed that she should be of those who stay behind." We note that the narrative here ignored the details of the dialogue that ensued between Abraham (PBUH) and the angels about Lot and his people. These details were mentioned previously in Surat Hud.

The narrative continues with the angels going to Lot (PBUH) and his people, "And when the messengers came to the family of Lot, He said, 'You are unknown people.'" This statement shows Lot's (PBUH) frustration. He knew what his people were after and he knew how will they behave towards his guests. He had no support to protect his guests and he was concerned for their safety. But the angels quickly explained to him that they came to impose God's punishment, the punishment that they were promised but they doubted that it will ever happen, “They said, ‘We have come to you with that about which they disputed. And we bring you the truth, and we are indeed truthful.’” These assurances indicate the worried state of mind that Lot (PBUH) was in. They assured him first then gave him the command, “So travel with your household in a portion of the night, and follow behind them. Let none of you look back, but go where you are commanded.” The command indicated that Lot should leave the town with his followers during the night. He should be at the end of the caravan and he should make sure that no one of his followers looks back towards the town. The time for the destruction of the town was set for the morning, “And We revealed to him (the decree) of that matter: that the root of those (who did wrong) was to be cut off at the early morning.” Lot (PBUH) was made privy to the fact that the people of the town will be annihilated in the early morning.

This was a quick outline of the whole episode of the people of Lot (PBUH). It was given as an introduction to the full story which will follow. The detailed account starts when the people of the town came to know about Lot’s (PBUH) guests so they hurried towards his house, “And the people of the town came rejoicing.” The verse expresses the extent of the audacity of the people of Lot (PBUH). They came hurriedly in a group announcing their joy to have found a new prey to satisfy their desires. Lot (PBUH) was stressed trying to find a way to protect his guests and his honor as a host. He tried to argue with his people to evoke the feelings of God consciousness in their hearts, “He (Lot) said, ‘They are my guests, do not disgrace me. Be conscious of God and do not shame me.’” Instead of heeding his admonition, they blamed Lot (PBUH) that he is hosting these people, “They said, ‘Have we not forbidden you from (entertaining) anyone?’” Lot (PBUH) continued to argue with them exploring other ways to keep them away from his guests, “He said, ‘Here are my daughters, if you must be doing (lawful marriage).” Lot (PBUH) tried to address their initial natural disposition by urging them to form families according to the classical definition of the family.

The verses then turn to address the Prophet (PBUH) to describe the state of mind of the people of the town of Lot (PBUH). They were not going to change their life style, “Verily, by your life (Muhammad), in their wild intoxication, they wandered in distraction, to and fro.”

The scene ends with a description of the punishment that had been decreed, “But the (mighty) blast overtook them before morning, And We turned (the cities) upside down, and rained down on them brimstones hard as baked clay.” The verses describe the devastation that was inflicted on the town of Lot (PBUH). It was said that what happened to the town of Lot (PBUH) can be caused by an earthquake. We are certain that cosmic phenomena occur according to God’s physical laws. But God who established the physical laws in the first place is also able to change their outcomes. It is not necessary then to assume that an earthquake was needed to destroy the town of Lot (PBUH). God has the power to destroy any town with whatever means He wills and whenever He wills. He only needs to say, “Be,” and it will be. This is the approach of the believer in understanding the miracles which were brought about by God’s messengers.

The town of Lot (PBUH) lies on the road between Saudi Arabia and Syria. Travellers between these two destinations pass by its geographical location often. There are lessons and admonitions for those who watch and reflect. However, only open hearts which are able to receive the admonitions are able to benefit from these accounts, “In this are signs for those who discern. And the (cities were) right on the high-road. In this is a sign for the believers.”

The people of Shu'ayb (PBUH) (the companions of the thicket) and the people of Saleh (PBUH) (the companions of Al-Hijr) had similar experiences, “And the companions of the thicket were also wrongdoers. So, We exacted revenge on them.” The detailed account of the discourse between Shu'ayb (PBUH) and his people has been given in other Suras. In this Sura, the verses refer to their wrongdoing and the consequence of their deeds. They have been punished and their town was destroyed when their term ended. This confirms the verse in the beginning of Sura which stated that each people have an appointed term. The city of Median and the thicket were near the town of Lot (PBUH). The verse, “They were both on an open highway, plain to see,” could be a reference to Median and the thicket since they are located on a clear road or it could be a reference to the towns of Lot (PBUH) and Shu'ayb (PBUH) both of them are located on the road from Saudi Arabia and Syria. The sites of these towns were on a road travelled by many which make them a suitable reminder of the fate of the disbelievers.

The companions of the Al-Hijr are the people of Saleh (PBUH). The site of their town is still known till the present day. They have carved their houses in the mountains, “And the dwellers of Al-Hijr denied the messengers.” The verse refers to Prophet Saleh (PBUH) in the plural form simply because he brought to them the same message that all other prophets brought to their people. So if they reject Saleh (PBUH) it is as if they rejected all the prophets. “And we gave them Our revelations, but they turned away from them.” God sent the camel as a sign to support Prophet Saleh (PBUH). But God's signs are many and they are all around us. We can see God's sign in the universe and in ourselves. The people of Saleh (PBUH) not only rejected the specific miracle that came to them but they also rejected all God's signs that surround them.

“And they used to carve out dwellings in the hills, (wherein they dwelt) secure. But the (mighty) blast seized them at the early morning. And what they earned did not avail them.” The verses portray a huge leap from a secure state to a complete devastation. They were secure in their formidable houses carved out in the mountains; they were probably just waking up from a comfortable sleep and suddenly the blast seized them and they were not able to escape the annihilation.

This brings us to the end of these three quick accounts which act as illustrative examples of the application of the verse stating God's law that a town is only destroyed when God's decreed term has been reached.

Verses 85 to 99:

85. And We did not create the heavens and the earth and all that in between them except with the truth, and the Hour will certainly come. So forgive, (Muhammad), with a gracious forgiveness.

86. Indeed, your Lord is the Creator of all things, the Omniscient.

87. We have given you seven of the oft-repeated (verses) and the great Quran.
88. Do not extend your eyes toward that which We have given (certain) categories of them to enjoy. And do not grieve on their account, and lower your wing (in tenderness) for the believers.
89. And say, "Surely, I am the plain warner."
90. Such as We send down for those who make divisions,
91. Those who break the Quran into parts.
92. So, by your Lord, We will most certainly question them all,
93. About what they used to do.
94. Therefore, declare openly what you are commanded with and turn away from the polytheists.
95. Indeed, We are sufficient for you against those who scoff,
96. Those who adopt, with God, another god. They will soon come to know.
97. We do indeed know how your heart is distressed at what they say.
98. Therefore, celebrate the praise of your Lord, and be of those who prostrate. And serve your Lord until there comes to you that which is certain. (15: 85 -99)

“And We did not create the heavens and the earth and all that in between them except with the truth, and the Hour will certainly come. So forgive, (Muhammad), with a gracious forgiveness. Indeed, your Lord is the Creator of all things, the Omniscient.” The previous stories are capped with this articulate and meaningful passage. The verses indicate that the creation is entrenched in truth. God created everything to fulfill a definite purpose in consonance with His planning and wisdom. The creation of the heaven and earth was not accidental but it was designed, created, and controlled with deliberate perfect planning. The term truth indicates that the creation of the universe was perfect and the control of the universe is perfect. The promise of God is the truth and the Day of Judgement will certainly come. So Muhammad, be gracious in your forgiveness and free your heart from hate and rancor. Your Lord is certainly the Creator, the Omniscient.

The truth of the Message emanates from the truth of the creation, “We have given you seven of the oft-repeated (verses) and the great Quran.” Most probably the term “seven of the oft-repeated (verses),” refers to Surat Al-Fatiha (Chapter 1) and the term “the great Quran,” refers to the rest of the Quran. The reference to the Quran in this verse connects the Quran to the original truth that upholds the existence of the universe. The Quran is one of the fundamental aspects of the truth. It embodies God’s laws and attracts the human heart to them. The Quran reveals God’s signs in people and in the universe and encourages the hearts to understand these signs. The Quran reveals the means of achieving guidance and the roads that lead people astray. The Quran is part of the truth of this universe. It is an everlasting document that will continue to direct life in spite of the rejection and denials of the disbelievers.

Having been given these seven oft repeated verses and the greatest Quran, both originate in the truth and embody the truth, it does not behove Muhammad (PBUH) to be interested in the transient pleasures of this world, “Do not extend your eyes toward that which We have given (certain) categories of them to enjoy. And do not grieve on their account, and lower your wing (in tenderness) for the believers.” The eye does not extend, it is only the sight that can extend, but the expression paints this picture of an eye going out of its place to see. The expression presents an image of great interest and curiosity. The Prophet (PBUH) was commanded not to be saddened by the fate of the disbelievers. They will be treated justly by God. In the meantime, be kind to the believers.

Your role is to warn people, “And say, ‘Surely, I am the plain warner.’” This is the same message that each and every messenger of God brought to his people. Some of these people were still living in the Arabian Peninsula like the Jews and the Christians who only believed in parts of the Quran, “Such as We send down for those who make divisions, those who break the Quran into parts.” They will certainly be held accountable, “So, by your Lord, We will most certainly question them all, about what they used to do.”

Then a command was issued to the Prophet (PBUH), “Therefore declare openly what you are commanded and turn away from the polytheists. Indeed, We are sufficient for you against those who scoff, those who adopt, with God, another god. They will soon come to know.” The Prophet (PBUH) was asked to make his call known. He was told that he should not fear the polytheists, God will take care of them. The disbelievers will soon come to know the consequences of their disbelief.

The Prophet (PBUH) was a human being. He could not control his feelings of annoyance when he heard people openly express their polytheism and utter obscenities against the Message of truth which he brought. The Prophet (PBUH) was given a cure for these feelings, “We do indeed know how your heart is distressed at what they say. Therefore, celebrate the praise of your Lord, and be of those who prostrate. And serve your Lord until there comes to you that which is certain.”

The Prophet (PBUH) continued to celebrate the praise of God all his life and he sought a remedy in praying to God until that which is certain came to him: death. Thus, the last message from the Sura was to turn away from the disbelievers and to seek refuge with God. One day the disbelievers will wish that they were Muslims.

Sura 16: Al-Nahl (The Bees)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

The rhythm of the verses in this Sura is slow and the cadence is quite but it covers a wide scope of issues. The issues are presented in a comprehensive framework. Similar to other Meccan Suras, it deals with the major issues related to the doctrine: the divine nature of God, God's revelation, and the concept of resurrection after death. It also touches upon a number of related side issues. It articulates the relationship between the religions of Abraham (PBUH) and Muhammad (PBUH), the divine Will regarding guidance and misguidance, the responsibility of the Messengers of God, God's decree concerning those who reject guidance, the myth of idolatry, the migration for the sake of God, the trials that Muslims were subjected to, and the issue of apostasy. In addition, it touches upon ethical issues among which establishing justice, doing good, spending in the way of God, and fulfilment of promise. In the background of the Sura, the heavens and earth; the descending rain and the growing trees; the dark night, the daylight, the sun, the moon and the stars; the mountains, the seas, and the rivers all cast their shadows on the events unfolding.

Verses 1 to 21:

- 1. The commandment of God will come to pass, so do not seek to hasten it. Glorified and Exalted is He above all that they associate (with Him).*
- 2. He sends down the angels with the spirit of His command on whom He wills of His servants, (saying), "Warn that there is no God save Me, so be conscious of Me."*
- 3. He created the heavens and the earth in truth. High is He Exalted above all that they associate (with Him).*
- 4. He created humankind from a sperm-drop; and behold this same (humankind) becomes an open adversary.*
- 5. And the cattle He has created for you, from them you derive warmth, and numerous benefits, and of their (meat) you eat.*
- 6. You find beauty in them for you when you drive them back (to home), and when you send them forth (to pasture).*
- 7. And they carry your heavy loads to lands that you could not (otherwise) reach except with great trouble to yourselves. Your Lord is All-Pitying, Giver of Mercy.*
- 8. And (He has created) horses, mules, and donkeys, for you to ride and use for ornament. And He creates that which you do not know.*
- 9. And God points to the direction of the (right) way, but there are ways which deviate. If God had willed, He could have guided all of you.*
- 10. It is He who sends down rain from the sky, from it you drink, and out of it (grows) the vegetation on which you feed your cattle.*
- 11. With it He produces crops for you, and the olive and the date-palm and grapes and all kinds of fruits. Indeed, in this there is a sign for a people who reflect.*
- 12. And He has subjected to you the night and the day; the sun and the moon; and the stars are all subjected by His Command. Verily, in this are signs for people who understand.*
- 13. And what He has created on earth of varied hues, therein indeed a sign for a people who take heed.*

14. It is He who subjected the sea, that you may eat from it flesh that is fresh and tender, and that you may extract from it ornaments to wear. And you see the ships plowing through, that you may seek of the bounty of God and that you may be grateful.
15. And He has cast into the earth firm mountains, lest it shifts with you, and streams and roads that you may be guided.
16. And landmarks (too), and by the star they are (also) guided.
17. Is then He who creates like the one who does not create? Will you not take heed?
18. *If you count up the favours of God, never would you be able to enumerate them.
Certainly, God is All-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy.*
19. And God does know what you conceal, and what you reveal.
20. And those whom they invoke besides God create nothing and they are themselves created.
21. (They are) dead, not living. And they realize it not when they will be raised. (16: 1 -21)

“The commandment of God will come to pass, so do not seek to hasten it. Glorified and Exalted He above all that they associate (with Him). He sends down the angels with the Spirit of His command on whom He wills of His servants, (saying), ‘Warn that there is no God save Me, so be conscious of Me.’” The idolaters in Mecca were hounding the Prophet (PBUH) about the promised punishment from God. They were challenging the veracity of the promise. The more the punishment was delayed the more their harassment grew and the more aggressive they became in ridiculing the Prophet (PBUH). They did not realize that the reprieve that they were given was a mercy from God and that there was a rationale behind it. They never tried to reflect on the signs of God in the universe and in the Quran. They did not try to reflect on the verses of the Quran which addressed their minds and challenged their intellect. They did not appreciate the Quranic methodology which appeals to the human intellect. This methodology appreciates the abilities and rights of the human being which God bestowed on him. These include the ability to think and feel, the right of expression, and the freedom of will.

The Sura starts with an unequivocal statement, “The commandment of God will come to pass.” This indicates that the command has been issued and this is sufficient for the command to be fulfilled at the time that God has decreed. So, do not be impatient. Nothing will change God’s plan. The decisiveness of the opening statement has a strong impact on the soul of the person, no matter how obstinate that person is. In addition, it only states the reality of the situation. God’s command will be fulfilled. God is high above what the idolaters associate with Him. God sends down the angels with His revelation. The use of the word “spirit” here indicates more than a revelation. It is a revelation that revives the souls, the consciousness, the intellect, and the emotions of people. It is a revelation that revives the society and protects it from corruption and decay. The message is the message of the belief in the Oneness of God. This spirit is the best of the blessings of God that He bestowed on humankind and it is the source of all other blessings which will be detailed in the rest of the Sura. The delivery of the message as a, “warning,” is congruent with the theme of the Sura which addresses those who rejected the message.

“He created the heavens and the earth with the truth. High is He Exalted above all that they associate (with Him).” The creation, control and management of heavens and earth are based on the truth. Nothing has been created accidentally. God’s plan is perfect and meaningful. God is

One and has no associates.

“He created humankind from a sperm-drop; and behold this same (humankind) becomes an open adversary.” This is a great leap from a humble beginning to an adversarial status. This is a great leap between the sperm-drop and the open adversary who argues with and rejects his Creator.

The narrative then starts to review the creation of God which has been created for the benefit of humankind, “And the cattle He has created for you, from them you derive warmth, and numerous benefits, and of their (meat) you eat. You find beauty in them for you, when you drive them back (to home), and when you send them forth (to pasture). And they carry your heavy loads to lands that you could not (otherwise) reach except with great trouble to yourselves. Your Lord is All-Pitying, Giver of Mercy.” The use of cattle could be appreciated greatly in an environment like the one in which the Quran was revealed as well as in many other rural communities. The Arabs were used to camels, cows, sheep, and goats. They also had horses, mules, and donkeys which were used in riding and were sometimes owned for their graceful look. The verses explore the benefits and uses which satisfy the needs and desires of people. The cattle provide skin that can be used to make warm clothes and tents, meat to eat, and milk to drink. They are used to carry heavy loads and to transport people. It also has a sight pleasing to the beholder.

The sentence, “You find beauty in them,” emphasizes the value of beauty in life. Beauty is an essential aspect of life on earth. God’s blessings are not limited to the necessities of life but they extend to cover human aspirations for the fulfillment of the sense of beauty in the hearts of people.

“And (He has created) horses, mules, and donkeys, for you to ride and use for ornament. And He creates that which you do not know.” This verse opens the door for the human creativity to think about new modes of transportation which carry heavy cargo and people.

The faith of Islam is a flexible and broad minded faith. It is open for new developments that use all the tools and means which God created to help us lead a better life. It accepts new innovations that are made possible through knowledge, ability, and science. The means of transportation will be ever changing as life progresses.

In juxtaposition to the cattle which are used to transport people physically, the Quran talks about another mode of transportation which transport people spiritually along God’s straight path, “And God points to the direction of the (right) way, but there are ways which deviate. If God had willed, He could have guided all of you.” God promised to make the road leading to Him clear through His messengers and His signs. God warns us not to follow the crooked ways which lead away from His path. Had God willed He could have guided all the people on earth. But God created humankind with equal propensity towards good and evil. God also gave the humankind the ability to differentiate and choose between right and wrong. Some will follow the straight path and some will choose the crooked path all according to the will of God which gave the humankind the free will.

The verses continue to describe another group of God's blessings, "It is He who sends down rain from the sky, from it you drink, and out of it (grows) the vegetation on which you feed your cattle. With it He produces crops for you, and the olive and the date-palm and grapes and all kinds of fruits. Indeed, in this there is a sign for a people who reflect." Rain comes down from the sky according to a physical law created by God. This is one of the laws which God created to control the behavior of the universe. People use rain water to drink, to grow vegetation to feed the cattle, and to plant trees and plants which produce food to eat. One should reflect on the creation of God which ensured this harmony between the different components of His creation.

The third group of blessings include the cosmic phenomena which makes life on earth possible, "And He has subjected to you the night and the day; the sun and the moon; and the stars are all subjected by His Command. Verily in this are signs for people who understand." The presence of the cosmic phenomena like the night, daylight, the sun, the moon, and the stars makes one think about the harmony in God's creation. God created these cosmic phenomena and controlled them to create a suitable environment for human life. These phenomena are signs to be understood by those who reflect.

A fourth blessing from God, "And what He has created on earth of varied hues, therein indeed a sign in this for a people who take heed." God also created a vast number of minerals and metals that are kept underground for the human beings to use. These are treasures for people to extract one after the other. This is a sign for those who pay heed and recognize God's power which created these treasures and kept them safe until they are discovered by people.

The fifth blessing is the creation of living beings that live in the salty sea. This is the salty sea whose water cannot be used for drinking but God allows it to be an environment in which fish and other species can live, "it is He who subjected the sea, that you may eat from it flesh that is fresh and tender, and that you may extract from it ornaments to wear. And you see the ships plowing through, that you may seek of the bounty of God and that you may be grateful." The sea provides fish for food and pearls for jewelry in addition to the shells which are used to make other types of ornaments. The words that were used to describe the motion of ships at sea do not only point to their use as a means of transportation, but also to draw the attention to the beautiful scene of a ship going through the water. It indicates that human beings should not only focus on the necessities of life but they also should find time to appreciate the beauty of nature around them. These blessings are a reason for us to be grateful to God.

Now we come to the last blessing that is mentioned in this group of verses, "And He has cast into the earth firm mountains, lest it shifts with you, and streams and roads that you may be guided. And landmarks (too), and by the star they are (also) guided." God created the mountains to maintain the earth's stability. It is appropriate to mention the high mountains in connection with the flowing rivers. The foot of a mountain is usually the starting point of a river.

The previous verses which discussed the creation and the blessings of God which He bestowed on His creatures lead to a final conclusion. The conclusion is posed in the form of a question, "Is then He who creates like the one who does not create? Will you not take heed?" The inevitable answer should be no. No one can equate the Creator to those who cannot create. This calls for reflection.

“If you count up the favours of God, never would you be able to enumerate them. Certainly, God is All-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy.” Are we able to count the blessings of God? The answer is no, so how about showing gratitude to God for the numerous blessings? Humankind is unaware of many of the blessings that God bestowed on him. We take many of these blessings for granted we only appreciate their value when we miss them. However, God is All-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy.

The Creator knows His creation, “And God does know what you conceal, and what you reveal.” How can these idolaters equate Him to those idols who create nothing and know nothing? They are dead and the dead have no feelings, “And those whom they invoke besides God create nothing and they are themselves created. (They are) dead, not living. And they realize it not when they will be raised.” How can they be considered gods while they do not know when their followers will be resurrected from death?

Verses 22 to 50:

22. Your God is one God. As to those who do not believe in the Hereafter, their hearts are disapproving, and they are arrogant.
23. Undoubtedly God does know what they conceal, and what they reveal. Verily, He does not love the arrogant.
24. When it is said to them, "What has your Lord send down?" they say, "Fables of former peoples."
25. That they may bear their burdens undiminished on the Day of Resurrection, with some of the burdens of those whom they mislead without knowledge. Evil is that which they bear.
26. Those before them did also plot (against God's Way), but God demolished their buildings from their foundations, and the roof fell down on them from above; and the torment came to them from wherever they did not realize.
27. Then, on the Day of Judgment, He will cover them with shame, and will say, "Where are My partners, for whose sake you opposed (My guidance)? Those who have been given knowledge will say, "Disgrace and evil are this day upon the disbelievers."
28. Those whom the angels cause to die while they were wronging themselves will make full submission (saying), "We did not do any wrong." Surely God has full knowledge of what you used to do.
29. So enter the gates of Hell, to dwell therein forever. Evil indeed is the abode of the arrogant.
30. And it is said to those who were God conscious, "What has your Lord send down?" They will say, "Good." For those who do good in this world there is a good (reward) and the home of the Hereafter will be better. Pleasant indeed will be the home of those who are God conscious;
31. Gardens of Eden which they enter, underneath which rivers flow, wherein they have what they please. Thus God rewards those who are conscious of Him.
32. Those whom the angels cause to die (when they are) good, they (the angels) say, "Peace be upon you. Enter the Garden for what you used to do."

33. Do they (the ungodly) wait until the angels come to them, or there comes the command of your Lord (for their doom)? So did those who went before them. God wronged them not, but they wronged themselves,
34. But the evil results of their deeds overtook them, and that which they used to mock surrounded them.
35. And the idolaters say, "Had God willed, we would not have worshipped anything beside Him, we and our fathers, nor would we have forbidden anything without (a command from) Him." So did those before them. Are the messengers charged with anything except plain conveyance (of the message)?
36. We assuredly sent into every nation a messenger, (with the command), "Serve God, and shun false gods." Then some of them were among those whom God guided, and some of them were upon whom error was (deservedly) decreed. Do travel in the land and see what the end of those who denied was.
37. Even if you are keen on guiding them, God does not guide those whom He leaves to go astray, and there is none to help them.
38. They swear their strongest oaths by God that God will not raise up those who die. But yes, it is a true promise (binding) on Him, but most people do not know.
39. (They must be raised up), in order that He may explain to them the truth of that wherein they differ, and that the disbelievers would know that they were liars.
40. Indeed, to anything which We have willed, We but say the word, "Be", and it is.
41. And those who emigrated for (the sake of) God after they had been oppressed, We verily shall give them goodly lodging in the world, and surely the reward of the Hereafter is greater, if they but know;
42. Those who persevered and put their trust in their Lord.
43. And We did not send (as messengers) before you other than men to whom We gave revelations. Ask the followers of the message (former Scriptures) if you do not know.
44. (We sent them) with clear proofs and written ordinances; and We have sent down to you (also) the Message; that you may explain clearly to the people what is sent for them, and that they may reflect.
45. Do then those who devise evil (plots) feel secure that God will not cause the earth to swallow them up, or that the torment will not come on them from where they do not realize?
46. Or that He will not seize them in their going to and fro so that there is no escape for them?
47. Or that He will not seize them gradually? Your Lord is indeed All-Pitying, Giver of Mercy.
48. Have they not observed all things that God has created, how their shadows incline to the right and to the left, making prostration to God, and they are humble?
49. And to God prostrates whatever is in the heavens and whatever is in the earth of creatures, and the angels (too) and they are not arrogant.
50. They fear their Lord above them, and do what they are commanded. (16: 22 – 50)

"Your God is one God. As to those who do not believe in the Hereafter, their hearts are disapproving, and they are arrogant." The verse links the belief in the oneness of God with the belief in the Hereafter. It goes further and makes one predicated on the other. The belief in resurrection is an integral part of the belief in the Oneness of God. God's ultimate justice will be displayed in the Hereafter. The previous verses presented the logic that leads to the conclusion that the Creator is One. Those who do not believe in the Oneness of God and in the Hereafter are simply denying the truth. Their denial is not based on a lack of evidence but is rooted in their arrogance. God knows all about their arrogance, “Undoubtedly God does know what they conceal, and what they reveal. Verily He does not love the arrogant.”

“When it is said to them, ‘What has your Lord send down?’ they say, ‘Fables of former peoples.’” There is no way to reach the hearts of those arrogant people. Their arrogance drives them to be dishonest. They read the Quran and claim that it is some of ancient fables. They fail to see the value of the Quran which delineates a perfect way of life for the benefit of individuals and society. This denial makes them fully responsible for their own sins and also partially responsible for the sin of those who followed them and believed in them, “That they may bear their burdens undiminished on the Day of Resurrection, with some of the burdens of those whom they mislead without knowledge. Evil is that which they bear.” The sins are called burdens because they weigh down on the souls as actual weights weigh down on the body which carries them.

Ibn Abi Hatem has narrated on the authority of Assadi, that the (leaders of the tribe of) Quraish gathered in a meeting to discuss their strategy to curb the spreading of Islam. It was said that Muhammad (PBUH) has a way with words and he is able to talk people into joining his new religion. It was suggested that some of their well known chiefs should intercept foreigners, those who come from other towns, before Muhammad (PBUH) was able to talk to them; and tell them that Muhammad (PBUH) is a liar and only the weak minded and the slaves have followed him. They should also say that the honored chiefs of the tribe have abandoned him. Many of the people who came seeking to meet with Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) to know about Islam were turned back by Quraish and were never able to talk to the Prophet (PBUH). The few who were sincere in seeking the truth refused to go back before hearing from Muhammad (PBUH) personally. They went ahead to meet with the Prophet (PBUH). When they asked the believers what does Muhammad (PBUH) say, the believers said, “He says good.”

The tribe of Quraish waged an organized and systematic propaganda war against Islam. The same war was launched by other peoples in different places at different times. Their arrogance blocked their way to the truth. The following verse describes the end of those who schemed and plotted against guidance before Quraish, “Those before them did also plot (against God's Way), but God demolished their buildings from their foundations, and the roof fell down on them from above; and the torment came to them from wherever they did not realize.” The verse describes their scheme as a building with a foundation, walls and a roof. The foundation was destroyed and the roof fell on their heads, a scene of utter destruction. This was their end in this life. The torment will continue, “Then, on the Day of Judgment, He will cover them with shame, and will say, ‘Where are My partners, for whose sake you opposed (My guidance)?’ Those who have been given knowledge will say, ‘Disgrace and evil are this day upon the disbelievers.’” On the Day of Judgement, they will be asked about those whom they took as partners with God. They will be dumbfounded. Those who were given the knowledge from among the angels, the messengers, and the believers and who will be given the right to speak will say, “Disgrace and evil are this day upon the disbelievers.” Those, “Whom the angels cause to die while they were wronging themselves will make full submission (saying), "We did not do any wrong." Surely God has full knowledge of what you used to do." The verse displays the scene at the time of death of these disbelievers and the dialogue between them and the angels who were sent to capture their souls. Finally, it will be said to them, "So enter the gates of Hell, to dwell therein forever. Evil indeed is the abode of the arrogant."

On the other side we see those who remained conscious of their Lord, "And it is said to those who were God conscious, 'What has your Lord send down?' They will say, 'Good.' For those who do good in this world there is a good (reward) and the home of the Hereafter will be better. Pleasant indeed will be the home of those who are God conscious; gardens of Eden which they enter, underneath which rivers flow, wherein they have what they please. Thus, God rewards those who are conscious of Him. Those whom the angels cause to die (when they are) good, they (the angels) will say, 'Peace be upon you. Enter the Garden for what you used to do.'" Those who remain conscious of their Lord recognize that goodness is the essence of God's message. So when they are asked about what God brought down they simply sum it up in one word: goodness. The verse continues to detail the reward for those who remain conscious of their Lord. The verse then takes us back to the time of death of these people, "Those whom the angels cause to die (when they are) good. They (the angels) say, 'Peace be upon you. Enter the Garden for what you used to do.'" Those who remained conscious of their Lord yearn to His meeting. The angels will reassure their hearts. They will greet them and give them glad tidings of earning their place in paradise, an ample reward for what they did during their lifetime.

The scene moves now to the idolaters of Quraish. What did they expect? Did they expect the angels to take their souls? Did they expect God's command for resurrection? What will it be like at the time of their death? What will it be like on the Day of Resurrection? "Do they (the ungodly) wait until the angels come to them, or there comes the command of your Lord (for their doom)? So did those who went before them. God wronged them not, but they wronged themselves, but the evil results of their deeds overtook them, and that which they used to mock surrounded them."

It is amazing how people continue to go along a path that had been trodden before them and proved to be futile. They see what happened to those before them but they somehow convince themselves that the consequences of their deeds will be different. God's laws are constant and consistent. The same deeds will always lead to the same results. God does not wrong anyone. They were given the freedom to reflect, think, and choose. God presented to them His signs and warned them of the consequences of going astray. They are the ones who wronged themselves by making the wrong choice. The punishment will commensurate with the crime.

"And the idolaters say, 'Had God willed, we would not have worshipped anything beside Him, we and our fathers, nor would we have forbidden anything without (a command from) Him.' So did those before them. Are the messengers charged with anything except plain conveyance (of the message)? We assuredly sent into every nation a messenger, (with the command), 'Serve God, and shun false gods.' Then some of them were among those whom God guided, and some of them were upon whom error was (deservedly) decreed. Do travel in the land and see what the end for those who denied was." The idolaters claim that it is God's will that made them commit the sins of associating partners with God and made them prohibit the food which God had made lawful to please their false gods. This claim flies in the face of the true meaning of God's will. It takes away from humankind the most important characteristic, a characteristic that God bestowed upon humankind to use in their daily lives. It does not please God to have His servants practice idolatry or to deprive them from enjoying the good things that God had made lawful. This principle has been enunciated in the message that all God's Messengers brought to humanity. Each Messenger exhorted his people to "Serve God, and shun false gods." This was God's command and will.

God created humankind with propensity to both goodness and evil. God gave humankind the freedom of will to choose between goodness and evil. God gave humankind the intellect to help him in making the decision to choose between goodness and evil. God also filled the universe with signs that lead humankind to the right path. God sent messengers with guidance which provides the standard of goodness to guide the human intellect to make the right decision. The Messengers' role was to deliver the message not to force people to believe. The Messengers delivered the message that only God is worthy of worship and that false gods should be shunned. Some people accepted the guidance and some rejected it. Each group used their intellect to choose thus, God's will has been fulfilled.

"Even if you are keen on guiding them, God does not guide those whom He leaves to go astray, and there is none to help them." Neither guidance nor misguidance is the responsibility of the messenger. His role is only to deliver the message.

"They swear their strongest oaths by God that God will not raise up those who die. But yes, it is a true promise (binding) on Him, but most people do not know. (They must be raised up), in order that He may explain to them the truth of that wherein they differ, and that the rejecters of truth would know that they were liars. Indeed, to anything which We have willed, We but say the word, "Be", and it is." One of the major problems that faced the messengers of God whenever they brought the Message to their people is that many people found the concept of the resurrection after death difficult to accept. The Prophet (PBUH) had the same problem with the idolaters of Quraish. Although they believed in God, but they refused to accept the idea of the resurrection after death. They disregarded the miracle of the creation in the first place and they did not understand the unlimited power of the Creator. They also did not comprehend the divine wisdom behind the necessity of the Hereafter. All disputes that were not resolved in this life will be resolved in the Hereafter. God had made a promise and He will fulfill it, "But yes, it is a true promise (binding) on Him." On the Day of Judgement those who rejected the truth will know that they were telling a lie when they claimed that they will not be resurrected. Resurrection will happen whenever God wills. He only needs to say, "Be" and it is.

The verses then move to the opposite side, "And those who emigrated for (the sake of) God after they had been oppressed, We verily shall give them goodly lodging in the world, and surely the reward of the Hereafter is greater, if they but know, those who persevered and put their trust in their Lord." Those who left behind their belongings, their families, and the things they loved and migrated for the sake of God, they will be compensated in the Hereafter for the sacrifices they made.

“And We did not send (as messengers) before you other than men to whom We gave revelations. Ask the followers of the Message (former Scriptures) if you do not know. (We sent them) with clear proofs and written ordinances; and We have sent down to you (also) the Message; that you may explain clearly to the people what is sent for them, and that they may reflect.” God sent only men with the Message. He did not send angels, nor did He send special creatures. God chose certain men and gave them revelations similar to the revelation that was given to Muhammad (PBUH). If the people of Quraish were in doubt they should ask those who received a Scripture before. God sent messengers before Muhammad (PBUH) with, “clear proofs and written ordinances;” and God gave Muhammad (PBUH) a Book that he, “may explain clearly to the people what is sent for them.” The Quran also invites them to think and reflect.

At the end of this group of verses, a reference is made to those who are arrogant and those who scheme against God’s way and a reminder of the limitless power of God, “Do then those who devise evil (plots) feel secure that God will not cause the earth to swallow them up, or that the torment will not come on them from where they do not realize? Or that He will not seize them in their going to and fro so that there is no escape for them? Or that He will not seize them gradually? Your Lord is indeed All-Pitying, Giver of Mercy.”

“Have they not observed all things that God has created, how their shadows incline to the right and to the left, making prostration to God, and they are humble? And to God prostrates whatever is in the heavens and whatever is in the earth of creatures, and the angels (too) and they are not arrogant. They fear their Lord above them, and do what they are commanded.” It is amazing how some people choose to ignore God’s power when they see how God seizes people in their prime. They continue to scheme thinking that they are safe unaware that God’s wrath can seize them suddenly or gradually whenever God pleases. Should not they reflect on God’s signs in the universe and how every creature prostrates itself to God.

Verses 51 to 76:

51. And God said, "Do not take two deities; He is only one God; so fear only Me."
52. And to Him belongs whatever is in the heavens and on the earth, and everlasting obedience is His right. Do you then fear any other than God?
53. And whatever Blessings is (bestowed) on you it is from God; then when evil afflicts you, you call on Him for help.
54. Yet, when He removes the affliction from you, some of you associate partners with their Lord.
55. Let them show their ingratitude for the favours We have bestowed on them. Then enjoy yourselves, you will soon know.
56. And they assign a portion of that which We have given them to what they do not know. By God, you will indeed be asked about that which you used to falsify.
57. And they assign daughters to God - Glory be to Him - and for themselves what they desire.

58. When one of them receives tidings of the birth of a female, his face remains darkened, and he suppresses his grief.
59. He hides himself from the people because of the evil of that which he was informed of. Shall he keep it with disgrace or bury it (alive) in the dust? Now verily evil is what they decide.
60. The attribute of evil applies to all those who do not believe in the Hereafter but God has the most sublime attribute. He is the Eminent, the Wise.
61. If God were to take the people to task for their wrongdoing, he would not have left on it (earth) a living creature, but He reprieves them to an appointed term, and when their term comes they will not be able to delay (it) an hour nor can they bring (it) on (before its time).
62. They attribute to God what they hate (for themselves), and their tongues assert the falsehood that all good things are for themselves. Certainly, for them is the Fire and they will be the first to be hastened to it.
63. By God, We verily sent messengers to nations before you, but the devil made their deeds fair-seeming to them. So he is their patron this day, and theirs will be a painful torment.
64. And We have revealed the Book to you only that you may explain to them that wherein they differ, and (as) a guidance and a mercy for a people who believe.
65. And God sends down rain from the skies, and gives therewith life to the earth after its death. Indeed, in this is a sign for those who listen.
66. And verily in the cattle (too) will you find a lesson. We give you drink, from what is in their bellies between excretions and blood - pure milk, agreeable to those who drink it.
67. And from the fruit of the date-palm and the vine, you get out intoxicants and wholesome food. Indeed, in that is a sign for those who understand.
68. And your Lord inspired the bee to build its cells on the hills, on trees, and in what they construct.
69. Then eat of all the fruits, and follow the ways of your Lord, made smooth (for you). There comes forth from their bellies a drink of different hues. In it there is healing for people. In this indeed is a sign for people who reflect.
70. It is God who created you, then puts you to death; and of you there are some who will be reduced, in old age, to a most abject state, so that they know nothing after having known (much). God is Omniscient, All-Powerful.
71. And God has favoured some of you above others in provision. Now those who are more favoured will by no means be able to hand over their provision to those whom their right hands possess, so that they may be equal to them therein. Is it then the Blessing of God that they deny?
72. And God has made for you mates of your own nature, and made for you, out of them, children and grandchildren, and has provided you with good things. Is it then in falsehood that they believe and in the Blessing of God that they disbelieve?
73. And they worship beside God that which does not possess for them any provision from the heavens or the earth nor do they have any power.
74. Do not make up similarities to God. God knows, and you do not know.
75. God sets forth the parable (of two men, one) a slave under the dominion of another; he has no power of any sort; and (the other) a man on whom We have bestowed goodly favours from Ourselves, and he spends thereof (freely), privately and publicly. Are the two equal? (By no means) praise be to God. But most of them do not know.

76. God sets forth (another) parable of two men: one of them dumb, with no power of any sort; a wearisome burden is he to his master; whichever way he directs him, he brings no good. Is such a man equal to the one who commands justice, and is on a straight path?
(16: 51 -76)

“And God said, ‘Do not take two deities, indeed He is only one God; so fear only Me.’ And to Him belongs whatever is in the heavens and on the earth, and everlasting obedience is His right. Do you then fear any other than God? And whatever Blessing is (bestowed) on you it is from God; then when evil afflicts you, you call on Him for help. Yet, when He removes the affliction from you, some of you associate partners with their Lord. Let them show their ingratitude for the favours we have bestowed on them. Then enjoy yourselves, you will soon know.” God commanded people not to worship two deities. It is only one God that they should worship. The command is expressed in an unequivocal language. The dual form of the word “deity” is followed by the number two and the word “only” is added to the command to worship one God to emphasize the command. This command is followed by another specific command not to fear anything else other than God, “fear only Me.” This emphasis is necessary and appropriate because the belief in the Oneness of God is the corner stone of the doctrine of Islam. God is One, the owner of the heavens and earth is One, and only Him deserves to be obeyed. He is the one who bestows His blessings on His servants. In time of difficulty, the initial natural disposition of the human being seeks God’s help. Praise be to Him who is alone the God, the King, the Master, the Giver of blessings, and the Giver of help. At the time of difficulty, the initial natural disposition of the human being turns spontaneously to God alone. But once they are saved, some people turn away from the path of God seeking temporary enjoyment. They should wait and see, they will soon know.

The behavior of many people fits exactly the human model that has been described in the above mentioned verses. In the time of need, their hearts harken to God asking for help, but in the time of ease and prosperity the link becomes weak and they indulge in the pleasures of life.

“And they assign a portion of that which We have given them to what they do not know. By God, you will indeed be asked about that which you used to falsify.” The idolaters used to prohibit eating or riding certain cattle, as has been mentioned in Surat Al-Anaam, in the name of their false gods about which they have no knowledge. God, not the false gods, did provide them with the cattle. God is the provider. Instead of showing gratitude to the Provider, they disobey Him. Not only they associate partners with God but they assign a portion of the provision He provided them with to these false gods. They will be definitely asked about this on the Day of Judgement.

“And they assign daughters to God - Glory be to Him - and for themselves what they desire.” The doctrine is the basis of the way of the life. When the doctrine is corrupt, the way of life becomes crooked. The Arabs used to claim that the angels are God’s daughters but in the mean time they hated having daughters. The corrupt doctrine which they believed in provided them with excuse to practice infanticide against baby girls. Those daughters who survive would be subjected to bad treatment and humiliation. They thought that women are potential sources of disgrace and poverty for the tribe because they are not raised to fight or to earn their living. The true doctrine of Islam protects women from this inferior status. Islam states that it is God who provides. He provides for men as well as women with no distinction on the basis of gender. Men and women complement each other and have the same worth in front of God.

The verses paint an ugly picture of one of the traditions adopted by the Arabs in Jahiliya (the pre-Islamic era), “When one of them receives tidings of the birth of a female, his face remains darkened, and he suppresses his grief. He hides himself from the people because of the evil of that which he was informed of. Shall he keep it with disgrace or bury it (alive) in the dust? Now verily evil is what they decide.” The verse describes the reaction of a father when he would receive the news that his wife delivered a baby girl; his face would turn black reflecting how much anger and sadness he felt. A baby girl is like a baby boy they are both gifts from God. God is He who forms the human being in the womb. Creation is a miracle. The process through which a sperm-drop grows to become a human being is a miraculous process. We have to celebrate the birth of a new baby whether a boy or a girl. It is the Divine wisdom that willed that procreation can only occur through the meeting of a male and a female. The female and the male are essential partners in the process of procreation.

“The attribute of evil applies to all those who do not believe in the Hereafter but God has the most sublime attribute. He is the Eminent, the Wise.” The rejection of the concept of the Hereafter is closely related to the principle of belief in the Oneness of God. They start from the same premise and they lead to the same consequence. Those who do not believe in the Day of Judgement are an example of all evil attributes in life. God gives the highest example for the best attributes. He controls everything wisely.

God could punish people any time He wills but His divine wisdom willed that the wrongdoers are given a reprieve, “If God were to take the people to task for their wrongdoing, he would not have left on it (earth) a living creature, but He reprieves them to an appointed term, and when their term comes they will not be able to delay (it) an hour nor can they bring (it) on (before its time).”

The disbelievers assign that which they hate to God and they claim that they will be rewarded for doing this, “They attribute to God what they hate (for themselves), and their tongues assert the falsehood that all good things are for themselves. Certainly, for them is the Fire and they will be the first to be hastened to it.” The Arabic expression suggests that their tongues became a symbol of falsehood because they had a long history of uttering false statements. They will certainly get their punishment in Hellfire.

The idolaters of Mecca were not the first people to stray away from the straight path. There were people before them who succumbed to the temptation of Satan and they took him as their patron, “By God, We verily sent messengers to nations before you, but the devil made their deeds fair-seeming to them. So he is their patron this day, and theirs will be a painful torment.” God sent Muhammad (PBUH) to save the people and guide them to the truth. Muhammad (PBUH) was sent as a guide and a mercy for those who chose to believe, “And We have revealed the Book to you only that you may explain to them that wherein they differ, and (as) a guidance and a mercy for a people who believe.” The main objective of the last Book and the last Message is to settle the disputes which had arisen among the people who were given Scriptures before and to state clearly the principle of the belief in the Oneness of God. The Quran was revealed to remove any shred of doubt about this fundamental principle and to purify the religious practices from any form of idolatry.

The following verses present signs that we see around us which support the concept of the Oneness of God. The previous verse refers to the revelation of the Quran. It is the Book that sustains the spiritual life of people. The following verse refers to the water that God cause to descend from the sky and which sustains the physical life of people, “And God sends down rain from the skies, and gives therewith life to the earth after its death. Indeed, in this is a sign for those who listen.” Water is the basis of life on earth. Life on earth can only be sustained by water. Only He who gives life after death is worthy of being God. There is a lesson in this for those who listen and reflect.

Another sign can be seen in the creation of cattle, “And verily in cattle (too) will you find a lesson. We give you drink, from what is in their bellies between excretions and blood - pure milk, agreeable to those who drink it.” The pure milk that the cattle produce is actually made from the food that has been digested by the animal and the blood that feeds the cells of the animal. Producing milk requires a very complex and delicate process which cannot be duplicated by any manmade machine. This scientific fact has been only recently discovered and it was certainly not known at the time of the revelation of the Quran.

“And from the fruit of the date-palm and the vine, you get out intoxicants and wholesome food. Indeed, in that is a sign for those who understand.” The fruits that was produced as a result of the water coming down from the sky can be used to make wine (wine had not been prohibited at the time of the revelation of this verse) and wholesome food. The verse suggests that wine is not considered as wholesome. This may have been a step towards making drinking wine unlawful. The verse was only describing the practice that was used at that time and should not be used as evidence that it is lawful to make and drink wine.

“And your Lord inspired the bee to build its cells on the hills, on trees, and in what they construct. Then eat of all the fruits, and follow the ways of your Lord, made smooth (for you). There comes forth from their bellies a drink of different hues. In it there is healing for people. In this indeed is a sign for people who reflect.” The bee does its job instinctively. This can be considered a form of inspiration which directs the bee to perform such an intricate process to produce pure honey. Many researchers discussed the healing function of honey, however, as believers we believe in the absolute veracity of the Quranic verses.

Let us stop a moment to reflect on the blessings which, the water coming down from the sky, being us. What is the common feature between producing milk by cattle, and producing honey by the bee? One common feature is that these are all fluids which are produced for human consumption. That is why only the milk produced by cattle was mentioned in this passage. In a later passage other benefits derived from the cattle will be mentioned.

“It is God who created you, then puts you to death; and of you there are some who will be reduced, in old age, to a most abject state, so that they know nothing after having known (much). God is Eminent, All-Powerful.” Every mortal will enjoy life and will suffer death. Humankind by instinct love life, thinking about life may soften the hard heart and may make the individual reflect on God’s power and blessings. The fear of approaching the end of life may induce the human being to become conscious of God and may encourage him to seek God’s support. The image of old age and the helplessness associated with it may encourage the human being to reflect upon the phases of life and teaches him/her to be humbler. The verse ends with the statement, “God is Omniscient, All-Powerful,” which juxtaposes God’s infinite knowledge and power with the limited knowledge and power of the human being in terms of both magnitude and duration.

Human beings vary considerably in the amount of money they make. God favors some over others with more earnings for reasons known only to God. God’s provision is bestowed according to a plan. A person may be talented as a scholar or a scientist but his earnings are little while another may be less talented in these areas but is clever in earning and investing money. Different people have different talents and abilities. One may be inclined to think that there is no relationship between the earnings and the abilities. But this is a superficial look. If we look deeper we could discover a certain relationship between people’s abilities and their earnings. On the other hand, plentiful earnings may be a test from God, and low earnings may be as well a test from God, “And God has favoured some of you above others in provision. Now those who are more favoured will by no means be able to hand over their provision to those whom their right hands possess, so that they may be equal to them therein. Is it then the Blessing of God that they deny?” The verse berated those who were giving a portion of the provision that God bestowed on them to the false gods which they adopted.

“And God has made for you mates of your own nature, and made for you, out of them, children and grandchildren, and has provided you with good things. Is it then in falsehood that they believe and in the Blessing of God that they disbelieve?” The verse states the similar nature of males and females. The human worth of both males and females is the same. God had willed that human beings procreate and produce children and the children produce grandchildren so that life on earth would continue. So, in a way, the children and grandchildren are an extension of the life of an individual. Should then people be ungrateful to God? “And they worship beside God that which does not possess for them any provision from the heavens or the earth nor do they have any power.” Not only they disbelieve in God who provides for them but they also make up equals to Him. God has no equal and He is unique, “Do not make up similarities to God. God knows, and you do not know.”

The following verses strike two parables for the master who owns a slave and provides for him and the slave who is incapable of owning or providing to illustrate the difference between the two and to emphasize that God is above everything and He is unique, “God sets forth the parable (of two men, one) a slave under the dominion of another; he has no power of any sort; and (the other) a man on whom We have bestowed goodly favours from Ourselves, and he spends thereof (freely), privately and publicly. Are the two equal? (By no means) praise be to God. But most of them do not know. God sets forth (another) parable of two men: one of them dumb, with no power of any sort; a wearisome burden is he to his master; whichever way he directs him, he brings no good. Is such a man equal to the one who commands justice, and is on a straight path?"

The first parable must have been easy to understand by the Arabs of Mecca. Many of them owned slaves and they would appreciate the boundaries that differentiated between a master and a slave. If they could not imagine that their slaves could be their equals, how dare they make equals to God the Master and Owner of everything? The second parable illustrates another concept: the comparison between a disabled person and a powerful person who uses his power in establishing justice on earth. The question that the verse raises is how can one equate God the Almighty, the Omniscient who commands justice to an idol made of stone.

Verses 77 to 89:

- 77. To God belongs the unseen of the heavens and the earth. And the decision of the Hour (of Judgment) is as the twinkling of an eye, or even quicker. God has power over all things.*
- 78. It is He who brought you forth from the wombs of your mothers when you knew nothing; and He gave you hearing and sight and hearts, that you may give thanks (to God).*
- 79. Have they not seen the birds constrained in mid-air? None holds them save God. Verily, in this there are signs for a people who believe.*
- 80. And God has given you in your houses an abode, and has given you (also), of the hides of cattle, tents which you find light (to carry) on the day of your march and on the day of pitching camp; and of their wool and their fur and their hair, (He has given you) household items and items for enjoyment for a time.*
- 81. It is God Who made out of the things He created, some things to give you shade; of the hills He made some for your shelter; He made you garments to protect you from heat, and coats (of armour) to protect you from your (mutual) violence. Thus, does He complete His blessings on you that you may submit (to Him).*
- 82. But if they turn away, your duty is only to convey the clear Message.*
- 83. They recognize the Blessings of God; then they deny them; and most of them are disbelievers.*
- 84. And one day We will raise up a witness from each nation, then the disbelievers will not be given a leave, nor are they allowed to make amends.*
- 85. When the wrongdoers will see the torment, then it will not be mitigated, nor will they receive respite.*
- 86. When those who associated partners with God will see their "partners," they will say, "Our Lord, these are our 'partners,' those whom we used to invoke besides You." But they will throw back their word at them (and say), "Indeed you are liars."*
- 87. That day they shall show (their) submission to God; and all that they used to invent will fail them.*
- 88. For those who disbelieve and debar (people) from the way of God, We will increase them in torment over torment for the corruption they caused.*
- 89. One day We shall raise in every nation a witness against them from among themselves, and We will bring you (Muhammad) as a witness against these. And We revealed the Book to you as an exposition of all things, and a guidance and a mercy and good tidings for those who submit. (16: 77 – 89)*

“To God belongs the unseen of the heavens and the earth. And the decision of the Hour (of Judgment) is as the twinkling of an eye, or even quicker. God has power over all things.” The concept of resurrection after death is one of the issues in the doctrine which raised great objections, in each age and for every Messenger of God. This is part of the unseen whose knowledge belongs only to God. No mortal was able to break the barrier of the unseen. No mortal knows what the future will bring and when he/she will die. It could happen any moment. It is certainly a mercy of God that people do not know the future. This ignorance allows them to dream, aspire, work, and produce. They leave behind what they have accomplished in their lives for someone else to complete or to further develop. Had people known the time for the Hour of Judgement, life would have stopped. However, “And the decision of the Hour (of Judgment) is as the twinkling of an eye, or even quicker,” but this is not measured using the known human standard. God is able to bring it about any time He wills, “God has power over all things.”

“It is He Who brought you forth from the wombs of your mothers when you knew nothing; and He gave you hearing and sight and hearts, that you may give thanks (to God).” The verse gives an example using the development of the human fetus. This is also a part of the unseen although it happens right in front of our eyes. One can see the development of the fetus but no one knows exactly how the process develops. This is the secret of human life which cannot be discovered no matter how knowledgeable we become. The Quran uses the words heart and brain interchangeably. The heart is considered the center of all discriminatory faculties of the human being at the levels of the conscious and the subconscious. One should express gratitude to God by worshipping Him alone.

Another amazing example of God’s power, “Have they not seen the birds constrained in mid-air? None holds them save God. Verily, in this there are signs for a people who believe.” The scene of birds flying in the sky is a familiar scene. One can only sense the beauty and appreciates the miracle when the curtain is lifted off one’s heart to realize that it is God who allows birds to fly and maintains their balance in the sky.

“And God has given you in your houses an abode, and has given you (also), of the hides of cattle, tents which you find light (to carry) on the day of your march and on the day of pitching camp; and of their wool and their fur and their hair, (He has given you) household stuff and a provision for a time. It is God who made out of the things He created, some things to give you shade; of the hills He made some for your shelter; He made you garments to protect you from heat, and coats (of armour) to protect you from your (mutual) violence. Thus does He complete His blessings on you that you may submit (to Him).” Safety and security which a person finds within the confines of his/her own home are great blessings from God. No one can appreciate the value of these blessings except a person who has no shelter in which he/she finds the security and safety that come with one’s own home. It is interesting to note that the talk about houses came after the unseen was mentioned. The common element between the two is that both provide cover to their contents.

The verse also sheds light on the concept of a home in Islam, “God has given you in your houses an abode.” The home in Islam is a place where a person finds psychological as well as physical comfort and security. The home should provide an environment of love and compassion between the members of the family. It is not a place for bickering and turmoil but it is a place for comfort, peace, and security. Islam protects the privacy of people inside their homes. No one is allowed to break in forcibly – except by the power of law. No one is allowed to spy on people while they are in the privacy of their homes. Visitors should seek permission from the owner of the house before they are allowed in.

The verse continued to enumerate the benefits that human beings derive from the cattle, “has given you (also), of the hides of cattle, tents which you find light (to carry) on the day of your march and on the day of pitching camp; and of their wool and their fur and their hair, (He has given you) household items and items for enjoyment for a time.” The verse did not stress only the aspects that can be considered necessities of life “household items,” but also the uses from which people derive enjoyment. Shade brings comfort, shelter brings security, and garments bring safety and comfort. Hopefully, then people would appreciate the blessings of God and submit to Him. Submission to God also brings peace and tranquillity. However, “if they turn away, your duty is only to convey the clear Message. They recognize the favours of God; then they deny them; and most of them are disbelievers.” The messenger’s task is only to deliver the message.

The verses then go back to the scene of the Hour, “And one day We will raise up a witness from each nation, then the disbelievers will not be given a leave, nor are they allowed to make amends. When the wrongdoers will see the torment, then it will not be mitigated, nor will they receive respite. When those who associated partners with God will see their ‘partners,’ they will say, ‘Our Lord, these are our ‘partners,’ those whom we used to invoke besides You.’ But they will throw back their word at them (and say), ‘Indeed you are liars.’ That day they shall show (their) submission to God; and all that they used to invent will fail them. For those who disbelieve and debar (people) from the way of God, We will increase them in torment over torment for the corruption they caused.” The scene starts with the prophets reporting about what they experienced when they took the message to their people. The disbelievers will be standing there watching but will not be given the chance to seek forgiveness because it will be too late for seeking forgiveness. This is the time for reckoning. When they will see those whom they used to associate with God, they will point to them and say to God, “Our Lord, these are our ‘partners,’ those whom we used to invoke besides You.” Note that at that moment they will admit that God is their Lord, they will say, “Our Lord.” They will also say, “these are our ‘partners,” rather than say these are God’s partners. Their partners will deny any responsibility and will call them liars, “Indeed you are liars.” Those who fabricated lies in their lives will find no support, “that they used to invent will fail them.” All those who are guilty will be punished.

The verses then move to the Prophet’s (PBUH) situation, “One day We shall raise in every nation a witness against them from among themselves, and We will bring you (Muhammad) as a witness against these. And We revealed the Book to you as an exposition of all things, and a guidance and a mercy and good tidings for those who submit.” To end the scene of the Day of Reckoning, the Prophet (PBUH) is promised the status of being a witness over his people. The verse emphasizes that the Book that has been revealed to the Prophet (PBUH) explains all things. Thus, none has an excuse. It is also guidance and mercy for those who chose to believe in it.

Verses 90 to 111:

90. God commands justice, the doing of good, and giving (help for) relatives, and He forbids all shameful deeds, and bad conduct and oppression. He admonishes you, that you may take heed.
91. And fulfill the covenant of God when you have made a covenant, and do not break oaths after you have confirmed them; indeed, you have made God surety over you; for God knows all that you do.
92. And be not like (the woman) who unravels her yarn, after she has spun it strongly. You make your oaths to be means of deceit between you because (one) nation is more numerous than (another) nation. God only tries you by this; and He will most certainly make clear to you on the Day of Resurrection that in which you differed.
93. If God so willed, He could have made you all one nation. But He sends astray whom He wills and guides whom He wills, and you will indeed be asked about what you used to do.
94. And do not use your oaths as a means of deceit between yourselves, lest a foot should slip after being firmly planted and you taste evil because you debarred (people) from the way of God, and you would suffer an awful torment.
95. And do not sell the covenant of God for a miserable price; that which God has is better for you, if you did but know.
96. What you have will run out, but what God has is ever lasting. And We will certainly reward those who persevere according to the best of their deeds.
97. We will give, whoever does right whether a man or a woman and is a believer, a life that is good and pure and We will bestow on such their reward according to the best of their deeds.
98. And when you recite the Quran, seek refuge in God from Satan, the outcast.
99. He has no power over those who believe and put their trust in their Lord.
100. He has power only over those who take him as an ally, and those who associate partners with God.
101. When We substitute one verse in place of another - and God knows best what He reveals - they say, "You (Muhammad) are but a forger," but most of them do not understand.
102. Say, "The Holy Spirit has delivered it from your Lord with the truth, that it may confirm (the faith of) those who believe, and as guidance and glad tidings for those who have surrendered (to God).
103. We know indeed that they say, "It is a man that teaches him." The tongue of him they wickedly refer to is notably foreign, while the language of this Book is Arabic, pure and clear.
104. Those who do not believe in God's revelations God will not guide them, and theirs will be a painful torment.
105. It is those who do not believe in God's revelations who forge falsehood. It is they who lie.
106. With the exception of those who are forced to deny God under duress while their hearts remain firm in faith, those who reject God after believing in Him and open their hearts to disbelief will have the wrath of God upon them and a grievous torment is waiting for them.

107. This is because they love the life of this world more than the Hereafter, and God does not guide those who disbelieve.
108. Those are they whose hearts, ears, and eyes God has sealed up, and they are heedless.
109. Without doubt, in the Hereafter they will be the losers.
110. Verily your Lord is All-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy to those who leave their homes after having been persecuted then they strive and persevere.
111. On the Day when every soul will come pleading for itself, and every soul will be repaid what it did, and they will not be wronged. (16: 90 – 111)

“God commands justice, the doing of good, and giving relatives, and He forbids all shameful deeds, and bad conduct and oppression. He admonishes you, that you may take heed.” The Book came to establish a nation and organize a community. This nation and this community act as a model for the whole human race. The Book introduces a universal system for all humanity. The Message is not exclusive for a tribe, a nation, or a race. It introduced a system which brings people together around one faith irrespective of their race, nationality, or tribal affiliation. It brought principles which guarantee the coherence of the community and the security of people and nations. These principles came to establish a system for daily dealings that people can trust.

One of these basic principles is justice. Establishing justice ensures the use of a single standard for the judiciary system. All people are equal in front of the law. The law is not governed by the whims of people or the type of government. There is no place for nepotism or favouritism in such system.

The second principle is doing good. Doing good is a comprehensive term that includes each and every deed and behavior performed by human beings as part of their daily activities. These activities encompass the relationship between the individual and his/her creator, family, community, and the whole human race. Implicit in doing good is being generous in helping one's relatives. This has been singled out in the verse to emphasize its importance for protecting the integrity of the family and to emphasize the principle of collective responsibility of the members of the community. The verse also states the command to refrain from committing indecencies, obscenities, and oppression.

“And fulfill the covenant of God when you have made a covenant, and do not break oaths after you have confirmed them; indeed, you have made God surety over you; for God knows all that you do.” God's covenant includes all types of agreements and pledges that a Muslim makes. This principle builds up the trust between people. The verse admonishes people not to break these pledges reminding them that they made God a witness over their pledges. God knows what they do. Islam is very strict about the application of the principle of the fulfilment of pledges and promises. The following verse strikes a parable for those who break their oaths and pledges, “And be not like (the woman) who unravels her yarn, after she has spun it strongly. You make your oaths to be means of deceit between you because (one) nation is more numerous than (another) nation. God only tries you by this; and He will most certainly make clear to you on the Day of Resurrection that in which you differed.” Those who break their promise are similar to a stupid woman who spins her yarn and once she had completed it she unravels it again. Her life is completely wasted because she continues to unravel what she had spun before.

The verse also refers to some Arabs who pledged their allegiance to the Prophet (PBUH) but later changed their minds and broke up their pledge for fear of the revenge of mighty tribe of Quraish. They thought that Quraish had an advantage in numbers over the believers. This was a test for them, so that God would know who of them would persevere.

“If God so willed, He could have made you all one nation. But He sends astray whom He wills and guides whom He wills, and you will indeed be asked about what you used to do.” Diversity is a deliberate plan. God created people with different aptitudes and established laws for guidance and misguidance. Everyone will be held accountable for what he/she had done. Thus, Muslims should honor their promises whether they were made to other Muslims or to non Muslims.

“And do not use your oaths as a means of deceit between yourselves, lest a foot should slip after being firmly planted and you taste evil because you debarred (people) from the way of God, and you would suffer an awful torment.” A person who takes an oath knowing that he/she does not intend to keep but using it as a means to cheat and deceive people is a person whose faith is shaky. His/her trickery not only inflicts harm on him/her but also destroys the image of true believers in the sight of people. Trickery puts the person on a precarious footing and implants distrust in the minds of people who have been tricked. He/she gives the worst example of a believer thus debars people from seeking the path of the God.

Many groups and nations reverted to Islam because of their positive experience in dealing with Muslims. Muslims were honest in conducting business and they were always true to their word. Dishonesty is a short sighted strategy in business and in life in general. Honesty and keeping one's promise are very fruitful in the long run.

Islam inculcated the principle of keeping one's promise in Muslims, individuals and nations. It is narrated that Mo'awiah bin Abi Sufian (RA) entered in an armistice agreement with the Roman emperor. When the term of the agreement was about to expire Mo'awiah (RA) led his army and took the Romans by surprise. Omar bin 'Otbbah (RA) said to him, “God is Great, you should not have taken them by surprise. You should have fulfilled your agreement. I heard the Messenger of God (PBUH) say, ‘whoever entered in an armistice agreement with a people, he should not attack before the expiry of the term of the agreement.’” Mo'awiah (RA) withdrew his army and evacuated the place he had conquered. The Quran emphasized this principle, telling people that the price one gets for breaking promises is cheap, “And do not sell the covenant of God for a miserable price; that which God has is better for you, if you did but know.” The fulfillment of the promise will have a great reward from God. This reward is everlasting while the benefit that one gets from breaking promises is only transient, “What you have will run out, but what God has is ever lasting. And We will certainly reward those who persevere according to the best of their deeds.”

The verses then state a fundamental principle, “We will give, whoever does right whether a man or a woman and is a believer, a life that is good and pure and We will bestow on such their reward according to the best of their deeds.” Both males and females are equal in the sight of God. Both are required to do good deeds and both will be rewarded equally. Good deeds are grounded in the belief in God. A strong faith in God inculcates in the believer the attribute of doing good. Good deeds are then transformed from being sporadic events in the life of the believer to become an integral part of the character of the believer. It becomes one of the values of the way of life of the believers.

God promised good-doers who believe in Him a good life in this world and a great reward in the Hereafter. The goodness of the worldly life that the good-doers are promised is not measured in terms of material gains only. There is more to a good life than money. Good life is not achieved without security, health, contentment, and God’s blessings. Good life is a life where the individual is continuously connected to God. Good life is a life where the individual lives in harmony with his/her family. This is the best reward a believer can hope for.

The narrative moves to a discussion of the etiquette which should be followed when a believer reads the Quran, “And when you recite the Quran seeks refuge in God from Satan, the outcast. He has no power over those who believe and put their trust in their Lord. He has power only over those who take him as an ally, and those who associate partners with God.” Seeking refuge in God from Satan prepares the individual to the experience of reciting Quran. It creates an atmosphere free from delusions and focuses the attention of the reader on what he/she is about to read. Satan has no control over the believers, those who sincerely dedicate their hearts to God. Their connection with God protects them from the temptation of Satan. Only those who chose to follow Satan are controlled by him.

“When We substitute one verse in place of another - and God knows best what He reveals - they say, ‘You (Muhammad) are but a forger,’ but most of them do not understand. Say, ‘The Holy Spirit has delivered it from your Lord with the truth, that it may confirm (the faith of) those who believe, and as guidance and glad tidings for those who have surrendered (to God).’” The idolaters did not understand the purpose of this Book. They did not understand that the Book was revealed to provide the basis for establishing a universal human society and to train a nation to play a leadership role in guiding this society. This Book contained the last Message that God has revealed for the benefit of the human race. Some verses were revealed to provide a temporary solution. God may replace the outdated verse with another which would provide a lasting solution. The idolaters did not appreciate the logic behind replacing a verse by another, so they thought that the Prophet (PBUH) is forging the verses. How can the Prophet (PBUH) forge it? It was brought down with the truth by the Holy Spirit. It included guidance which guides the believers to the straight path and glad tidings of victory.

“We know indeed that they say, ‘It is a man that teaches him.’ The tongue of him they wickedly refer to is notably foreign, while the language of this Book is Arabic, pure, and clear.” This was another lie that the idolaters told. They claimed that a man who was not an Arab was the one who taught the Prophet (PBUH) the Quran. The rebuttal of this claim is simple and straight forward. How can a person who does not speak Arabic teaches a Book that is written in a pure and clear Arabic language?

“Those who do not believe in God’s revelations God will not guide them, and theirs will be a painful torment. It is those who do not believe in God’s revelations who forge falsehood. It is they who lie.” Those who did not believe in God’s verses were not guided by God to the truth; they will not be guided to the truth in any other matter because they turned away from the way that leads to the truth. Forging falsehood about God is a capital sin. No believer would ever try to commit such a sin.

“With the exception of those who are forced to deny God under duress while their hearts remain firm in faith, those who reject God after believing in Him and open their hearts to disbelief will have the wrath of God upon them and a grievous torment is waiting for them. This is because they love the life of this world more than the Hereafter, and God does not guide those who disbelieve. Those are they whose hearts, ears, and eyes God has sealed up, and they are heedless. Without doubt, in the Hereafter they will be the losers.” The verse indicates that those who reject faith after they had become Muslims will suffer a grievous punishment. Except those who were forced to do so under duress. The early Muslims were persecuted by the idolaters of Mecca. The torture that some Muslims were subjected to was beyond any human endurance. The idolaters would continue torturing a Muslim until he/she declares that they were no longer Muslims. The verse made an exception for these Muslims. They declared their rejection of Islam verbally but their hearts were full of faith. Their declaration was only a means to stop the torture they were subjected to.

It is narrated that this verse was revealed to address the situation of ‘Ammar bin Yaser (RA). ‘Ammar was a slave who was subjected to extreme forms of torture. At one time he capitulated to the demands of those who were torturing him and said that he was no longer a believer. He went to the Prophet (PBUH) and asked him about this. The Prophet (PBUH) asked him how he felt in his heart. ‘Ammar (RA) told the Prophet (PBUH) that his heart was full of faith. The Prophet (PBUH) approved what he did. Some Muslims did not follow ‘Ammar’s (RA) example and preferred to die rather than to capitulate to the idolater’s demands. ‘Ammar’s (RA) parents died during one of the sessions of torture. The idolaters used to lay Bilal (RA) down on the hot ground in the desert and place a huge rock on his chest and leave him to suffer in the hot summer’s sun but he never gave in. Others suffered the same fate without giving in. A believer’s faith is a trust. A true believer sacrifices everything to protect this trust even if that would cost him/her their lives.

“Verily your Lord is All-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy to those who leave their homes after having been persecuted then they strive and persevere. On the Day when every soul will come pleading for itself, and every soul will be repaid what it did, and they will not be wronged.” Some Muslims were weakened by the persecution they suffered and gave in but they migrated as soon as they got the chance to do so. God promised to forgive them. On the Day of Judgement everyone will be for him/herself. However, no one will be wronged.

Verses 112 to 128:

112. God sets forth a parable: a city enjoying security and safety, abundantly supplied with sustenance from every place, but it denied the favours of God. So God made it taste hunger and terror (in extremes) (closing in on it) like a garment (from every side), because of what they used to do.
113. And there came to them a messenger from among themselves, but they rejected him; so the torment seized them while they were wrongdoers.
114. So eat of the sustenance which God has provided for you, lawful and good; and be grateful for the blessings of God, if it is He whom you serve.
115. He has forbidden for you only carrion and blood and swine flesh and that which has been immolated in the name of any other than God; but he who is forced by hunger, neither craving nor transgressing, then God is All-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy.
116. And do not say falsely, "This is lawful, and this is forbidden," to invent a lie against God. Those who invent a lie against God will not succeed.
117. A brief enjoyment (will be theirs); and theirs is a painful torment.
118. To the Jews We prohibited such things as We have mentioned to you before. We did not wrong them, but they wronged themselves.
119. But verily your Lord - to those who do wrong in ignorance, but who thereafter repent and make amends - your Lord, after all this, is All-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy.
120. Abraham was indeed a (comprehensive) model, devoutly obedient to God, true in faith, and he was not of the idolaters.
121. He showed his gratitude for the blessings of God, who chose him and guided him to a straight path.
122. And We gave him good in this world, and he will be, in the Hereafter, in the ranks of the righteous.
123. Then We revealed to you (Muhammad), to follow the religion of Abraham, the upright one, and he was not of the idolaters.
124. The Sabbath was only made (strict) for those who disagreed (as to its observance); but God will judge between them on the Day of Judgment, as to their differences.
125. Call to the way of your Lord with wisdom and fair exhortation, and reason with them in the best manner. Your Lord knows best who strayed from His way, and He knows best those who are rightly guided.
126. If you punish, then punish with the like of that wherewith you were afflicted. But if you persevere, verily it is better for the perseverant.
127. Persevere (Muhammad). Your perseverance is only by (the help of) God. Grieve not for them, and be not in distress because of that which they scheme.
128. For God is with those who remain conscious of Him and those who do good. (16: 112 – 128)

“God sets forth a parable: a city enjoying security and safety, abundantly supplied with sustenance from every place, but it denied the favours of God. So God made it taste hunger and terror (in extremes) (closing in on it) like a garment (from every side), because of what they used to do.” Mecca could be a perfect example for the city that the verse is referring to. God established the Sacred House in Mecca and He made the city itself an inviolable place. Whoever enters this city enjoys safety and security; no one can harm any of its inhabitants even if they were murderers or criminals. This safety and security are lost once an individual steps outside the boundaries of the city. Mecca itself was situated in a barren valley but it was a thriving city because of the wealth and provisions that the pilgrims brought during the season of pilgrimage.

“And there came to them a Messenger from among themselves, but they rejected him; so the torment seized them while they were wrongdoers.” The people of Mecca knew Muhammad (PBUH) all his life. He was known among them as the truthful, the honest. However, when he became a messenger bringing them God’s mercy, they rejected him and called him a liar. They wronged him and persecuted his followers. The verse threatened the idolaters of Mecca with a punishment that would replace the safety, security, and affluence which they were enjoying with fear and hunger. The metaphorical description of the punishment as a garment and the use of the word “taste,” imply that the effect of the punishment will not be only felt superficially but it will also be felt inside their bodies.

“So eat of the sustenance which God has provided for you, lawful and good; and be grateful for the blessings of God, if it is He whom you serve.” God commanded them to eat of that which He made lawful. If they truly worship God, then they should follow His rules not the rules made in the name of false gods. The command is then followed by a list of the foods that were prohibited, “He has forbidden for you only carrion and blood and swine flesh and that which has been immolated in the name of any other than God; but he who is forced by hunger, neither craving nor transgressing, then God is All-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy.” These foods were prohibited either for the physical or for the spiritual harm they inflict on the human being. Islam does allow exceptions when it is necessary to break the rule. If the individual could suffer a greater harm as a result of obeying the rule, then the person is allowed a measure of exception that would alleviate the potential danger.

These were the limits that God has decreed for what is lawful and what is forbidden. The verses commanded not to reject them in favor of idolatry myth. People should not take the law in their hands to determine what is lawful and what is forbidden. No one has the right to determine what is lawful and what is forbidden except God. Those who usurp the right to state what is lawful and what is forbidden are fabricating a lie against God. Those who fabricate lies against God will never succeed, “And do not say falsely this is lawful and this is forbidden,” to invent a lie against God. Those who invent a lie against God will not succeed. A brief enjoyment (will be theirs); and theirs is a painful torment.” They will have a brief enjoyment in this life but they will meet their doom in the Hereafter.

The things that God made unlawful for the Jews, which have been mentioned in Surat Al-An’am, are lawful for the Muslims, “To the Jews We prohibited such things as We have mentioned to you before. We did not wrong them, but they wronged themselves.” These were made unlawful to the Jews as a punishment for their transgression. God did not wrong them but they wronged themselves. Those Jews who repented and sought forgiveness from God before they died, they will be forgiven, “But verily your Lord - to those who do wrong in ignorance, but who thereafter repent and make amends - your Lord, after all this, is All-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy.” This is a general ruling that applies to whomsoever sins but later repents and seeks God's forgiveness.

The claim of the Arabs that they were following the religion that Prophet Abraham (PBUH) brought is addressed in the following verse, “Abraham was indeed a (comprehensive) model, devoutly obedient to God, true in faith, and he was not of the idolaters. He showed his gratitude for the blessings of God, who chose him and guided him to a straight path. And We gave him good in this world, and he will be, in the Hereafter, in the ranks of the righteous. Then We revealed to you (Muhammad), to follow the religion of Abraham, the upright one, and he was not of the idolaters.” The Quran's rendering of Prophet Abraham (PBUH) portrays him as a model for guidance, obedience, gratitude, and repentance to God. The use of the Arabic word “Ummah” to describe Prophet Abraham (PBUH) can be interpreted in different ways. It may mean that the attributes that the Quran used to describe Prophet Abraham (PBUH) are equivalent to the attributes that a whole nation would possess. It may also convey the meaning of the comprehensive leadership that Prophet Abraham (PBUH) had. A comprehensive leader guides his nation to goodness and God will reward him for the goodness that each and everyone in the nation does.

Prophet Abraham (PBUH) was fully dedicated to God, obedient and upright. He was not one of the idolaters. Prophet Abraham (PBUH) showed his gratitude for the blessings that God bestowed upon him. His gratitude was both reflected on his deeds as well as on his words. God has chosen him and guided him to the straight path, the path of the belief in the Oneness of God. This is the same path that God revealed to Muhammad (PBUH) and commanded him to follow.

The prohibitions that God has prescribed during the Sabbath were not part of Abraham's (PBUH) religion. They were made specifically for those who differed about it, “The Sabbath was only made (strict) for those who disagreed (as to its observance); but God will judge between them on the Day of Judgment, as to their differences.”

Having clarified the nature of the new religion; stating the fact that it is an extension to the religion that Prophet Abraham (PBUH) brought before; and expounding the differences between it and the distorted beliefs that were adopted by the idolaters and the Jews; God commanded His Messenger to use wisdom and good admonition to call to the doctrine of the belief in the Oneness of God, “Call to the way of your Lord with wisdom and fair exhortation, and reason with them in the best manner. Your Lord knows best who strayed from His way, and He knows best those who are rightly guided.” But if the Muslims were attacked, then they should respond in a fair way. However, perseverance is better, knowing that God will reward everyone fairly, “If you punish, then punish with the like of that wherewith you were afflicted. But if you persevere, verily it is better for the perseverant. Persevere (Muhammad). Your perseverance is only by (the help of) God. Grieve not for them, and be not in distress because of that which they scheme. For God is with those who remain conscious of Him and those who do good.” These verses establish a strategy and a methodology for calling people to Islam. People calling to Islam should not harbor feelings of superiority over others and should only expect their reward from God.

Wisdom requires knowing one's audience and understanding their needs and their circumstances. One should be brief and respect the human limits on the length of the span of attention. Fair exhortation indicates that one should use an amiable approach that touches the hearts in a kind way. Reasoning in the best manner indicates that one should use an approach which both articulates and elucidates the tenets of the religion.

Sura 17: Al-Israa (The Night Journey, Children of Israel)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

This Sura is a Meccan Sura. It starts by glorifying God and ends by praising Him. It deals with a number of topics, most of them are related to the doctrine. It also deals with topics related to the code of ethics for the individuals and the communities. It narrates some of the stories about the Children of Israel and Adam (PBUH).

Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) figures prominently in the Sura. The Sura narrates the story of his night journey to heaven and meeting God. The Sura deals with the interactions between the Prophet (PBUH) and the people of Mecca. It talks about the Quran, its nature and its contents. It also considers the unique characteristic of Muhammad's (PBUH) message.

Hawwa suggested that the Sura consists of an introduction and five sections. The introduction consists of the first three verses. The first section consists of the verses 4 to 40. The second section consists of verses 41 to 69. The third section consists of verses 70 to 88. The fourth section consists of the verses 89 to 100. The fifth section consists of the verses 101 to 111.

Verses 1 to 21:

1. Glorified be He who carried His servant by night from the Sacred Mosque to the far distant Mosque whose neighbourhood We have blessed, that We might show him of Our signs. Indeed, He is the All-Hearing, the All-Seeing.
2. We gave Moses the Scripture, and made it guidance for the Children of Israel, saying, "Choose no guardian beside Me."
3. (They were) the seed of those whom We carried (in the ship) along with Noah. He was a grateful servant.
4. And We decreed for the Children of Israel in the Scripture, "Most certainly you will spread corruption in the earth twice, and you will become great tyrants."
5. So when the time for the first of the two came, We sent against you servants of Ours of great might who ravaged (your) country, and it was a promise fulfilled.
6. Then we allowed you to prevail against your enemy, and We aided you with wealth and children and made you more numerous.
7. (Saying), "If you do good, you do good for your own souls, and if you do evil, it is for them (in like manner). So, when the time for the second (of the judgments) came (We sent against you others of Our slaves) to shame your faces, and to enter the Temple as they entered it the first time, and to lay waste all that they conquered.
8. It may be that your Lord will have mercy on you, but if you repeat (the crime) We shall repeat (the punishment), and We have appointed Hell a prison for the disbelievers.
9. Verily this Quran does guide to that which is most upright, and gives the glad tidings to the believers who do good deeds, that they shall have a magnificent reward;
10. And to those who do not believe in the Hereafter, We have prepared for them a grievous torment.
11. And humankind prays for evil as he ought to pray for good, and humankind is ever hasty.

12. We have made the night and the day as two (of Our) signs. Then We have made the sign of night to pass away and We have made the sign of the day manifest, so that you may seek a bounty from your Lord, and that you might know the numbering of years and the reckoning; and We have explained everything with distinctness.
13. Every person's fate We have fastened to his own neck and on the Day of Judgment We shall bring out for him a scroll, which he will find wide open.
14. (It will be said to him), "Read your (own) record. Your soul suffices as a reckoner against you this day."
15. Whosoever is guided, it is only for (the good of) his own soul; and whosoever goes astray it is only to its detriment. Nor can the bearer of a burden bear the burden of another, nor do We torment until We have sent a messenger.
16. When We decide to destroy a township, We (first) send a definite command to its affluent folk but they transgress therein, so the word (of doom) comes into effect against them, and we destroy it (with complete) destruction.
17. How many generations have We destroyed since Noah? And God suffices as Totally-Aware and All-Seeing with regard to His servants' sins.
18. Whoso desires this present life, We hasten for him therein what We will for whom We please. And afterward We assign him to Hell; he will enter it to burn, despised and banished.
19. Those who desire the Hereafter, and strive for it with the necessary effort, being believers; for such, their striving shall surely be accepted.
20. Of the bounties of your Lord We bestow freely on all - these as well as those. The bounties of your Lord are never restricted.
21. See how We have bestowed more on some than on others; but verily the Hereafter will be greater in degrees and greater in distinction. (17: 1 – 21)

"Glorified be He who carried His servant by night from the Sacred Mosque to the far distant Mosque whose neighbourhood We have blessed, that We might show him of Our sign. Indeed, He is the All-Hearing, the All-Seeing." The Sura opens by glorifying God, an appropriate opening that is befitting the topic of the miracle of carrying the Prophet (PBUH) from the Sacred Mosque to the far distant Mosque. The opening emphasized the fact that even though the Prophet (PBUH) has reached a rank with God that has not been achieved by any other mortal, he is still God's servant. The rationale behind this is to clarify any doubt regarding the human nature of the Prophet (PBUH).

The Arabic word "Israa," is derived from the word "Sra," meaning walking by night. The location of the beginning and end of the trip which was taken by the Prophet (PBUH) has been decided by God. The path of the trip brings together the monotheistic messages which embodied the doctrine of the Oneness of God. These are the messages which were brought by the messengers of God starting by Abraham and Ishmael (PBUT) and ending by Muhammad (PBUH). It is intended as a statement of the progression of the chain of prophet-hood from Abraham (PBUH) to Muhammad (PBUH). The precinct of the far distant Mosque has been blessed by God. The use of the expression, "the far distant Mosque whose neighbourhood We have blessed," indicates that God not only blessed the mosque but His blessings also flooded the mosque and overflowed onto its surroundings. The miracle of carrying the Prophet (PBUH) from the Sacred Mosque in Mecca to the far distant Mosque in Jerusalem was not the only miracle that the Prophet (PBUH) experienced during this trip.

This trip was one of God's miracles. It started at the Sacred Mosque in Mecca and ended at the far distant Mosque in Jerusalem. The far distant Mosque is located in the middle of the Sacred Land in which God settled the Children of Israel for some time. It was then appropriate to mention Prophet Moses (PBUH), "We gave Moses the Scripture, and made it guidance for the Children of Israel, saying, 'Choose no guardian beside Me.'" This verse and the subsequent ones narrate a part of the history of the Children of Israel. This part was not told in any other Sura in the Quran. The verses reminded the Jewish people of the Scripture that has been revealed to Prophet Moses (PBUH) and which included God's warning. A reminder of their relationship to Prophet Noah (PBUH) is also mentioned, "(They were) the seed of those whom We carried (in the ship) along with Noah. He was a grateful servant." This was a reminder and a warning of God's promise that will be stated later, "nor do We torment until We send a messenger."

The verse stated that the first objective of giving Moses (PBUH) the Scripture was to command the Children of Israel not to choose a guardian other than God. They should put their trust in God alone. This is the guidance and this is the true faith. The verse addressed the Children of Israel as the descendants of Noah (PBUH) to remind them that their ancestors were among those who believed in God and were saved by Him in the ship with Prophet Noah (PBUH). Prophet Noah (PBUH) was described as the "grateful servant of God." Being a servant of God puts Prophet Noah (PBUH) among the group of people who were chosen by God. Earlier in the Sura, Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) was given the same attribute.

The Scripture that was given to Moses (PBUH) as a guidance to the Children of Israel foretold of God's punishment that would be inflicted on them because of the mischief they committed twice, therefore they deserved to be punished twice, "And We decreed for the Children of Israel in the Scripture, 'Most certainly you will spread corruption in the earth twice, and you will become great tyrants.'" This does not mean that God has prescribed on the Children of Israel to commit mischief. God does not command people to commit sinful acts, "God, verily, does not enjoin lewdness." (7: 28). The verse foretold what they will do because God knows what will happen. They deserved to be punished because they chose to commit sinful behavior.

"So when the time for the first of the two came, We sent against you servants of Ours of great might who ravaged (your) country, and it was a promise fulfilled." The verse describes the first of these episodes. The Children of Israel became powerful in the Holy land. Their power tempted them to become tyrants and spread mischief in the land. God sent some of His servants who were more powerful who conquered the land and destroyed everything with impunity. This was a promise fulfilled.

When the Children of Israel tasted defeat and humility they regretted their previous behavior, sought repentance, and did good deeds God rewarded them and allowed them to defeat their enemy, "Then we allowed you to prevail against your enemy, and We aided you with wealth and children and made you more numerous."

But the story was repeated again. Before the narrative of the second episode was completed a statement of a fundamental rule of the commensuration of deed and reward is interjected, “(Saying), ‘If you do good, you do good for your own souls, and if you do evil, it is for them (in like manner).’” This is a fundamental rule that does not change. The reward is proportionate to the deed. One thus reaps which he had sown. The narrative then continued to describe the second episode, “So, when the time for the second (of the judgments) came (We send against you others of Our slaves) to shame your faces, and to enter the Temple as they entered it the first time, and to lay waste all that they conquered.” The narrative did not tell what happened in the period between the two episodes but continued to describe the second episode directly. Their enemy entered and shamed their faces and destroyed everything. The prophecy was realized and the promised was fulfilled. The Quran does not mention any details about the enemy of the Children of Israel. This is in accordance with the style of the Quran; it does not mention details which do not contribute to the lesson to be learnt. However, this punishment may have been a way for receiving God’s mercy, “It may be that your Lord will have mercy on you, but if you repeat (the crime) We shall repeat (the punishment), and We have appointed Hell a prison for the disbelievers.”

“Verily this Quran does guide to that which is most upright, and gives the glad tidings to the believers who do good deeds, that they shall have a magnificent reward;” This is a comprehensive statement. This Quran guides all people, in all places and at all times. The Quran guides to that which is upright in the cognitive as well as the psychological domains. The Quran offers a simple and a clear doctrine as a vehicle for this guidance, a doctrine which frees the human soul of the shackles of myth and superstition. It frees human energy so that a civilization that benefits humankind can be established, a civilisation that is based on the harmony between the laws of nature and the laws of the initial natural disposition of the humankind.

The Quran guides to a way of life that is based on maintaining a harmony between emotions and behavior; and between faith and deeds. It provides a connection between the humankind and God through the link that does not break. It transforms all human endeavors that have been dedicated to God into acts of worship even if these endeavors involved entertainment and seeking pleasure.

The Quran guides to what is upright in the area of performing acts of worship. It guides to the maintenance of a balance between ability and duty, preventing human tendencies to go to the extreme.

The Quran guides to what is upright in the relationships among members of the same community, between the state and people, and among different states. It guides to relationships that are based on objective and rational principles and not based on the whims and desires of mortals. These are the principles that God has established. He knows best what benefits His creatures. The Quran provides principles which organize the political, economic, social, and international relations systems that befit a human society.

The Quran guides to a way which accepts and reconciles all divinely revealed religions; respects their holy traditions; and protects their sanctuaries. This will establish peace between all.

The Quran brings glad tidings to the believers who do good deeds that they will have a great reward. But those who chose to reject faith will be recompensed accordingly, “And to those who do not believe in the Hereafter, We have prepared for them a grievous torment.” It is the same principle that the deeds and the recompense are commensurate. Those who reject the guidance of the Quran will fall prey to the whims of humankind; this is the humankind who cannot find the way to achieve his best interest. He is ever hasty and often follows unsubstantiated gut feelings to his detriment, “And humankind prays for evil as he ought to pray for good, and humankind is ever hasty.” His actions are irrational and they are usually motivated by urges which he cannot control. He does not appreciate the consequences of his deeds. Thus ends up committing mistakes.

The phenomenon of the ever sequential day and night is controlled by a universal law. This phenomenon organises people’s activities, allows us to perform computations, and helps us to determine the elapsed time. It is a phenomenon which reflects the perfection of God’s law, “We have made the night and the day as two (of Our) signs. Then We have made the sign of night to pass away and We have made the sign of the day manifest, so that you may seek a bounty from your Lord, and that you might know the numbering of years and the reckoning; and We have explained everything with distinctness.” The verse describes the night as if it were an eraser which erases the light and the activities of the day so only darkness and quiet remain. Daylight allows people to see what is happening. This sequence allows people to pursue their normal activities during the day and they can rest during the night. Humankind can design a calendar to show the passing of time on the basis of the alternation of day and night. God has provided clear explanations for everything. God controls the universe and everything in the universe runs according to God’s plan. The perfect execution of the plan attests to the power of the Creator.

It is God’s plan that everyone in this universe will be rewarded according to his deeds, “Every person's fate We have fastened to his own neck and on the Day of Judgment We shall bring out for him a scroll, which he will find wide open.” The actions of a person are allegorically referred to in this verse as his/her fate. The actions are inseparable from the person. One cannot escape what he /she had done during life on earth. All these actions will be presented to the individual on the Day of Judgement in an open scroll. One cannot hide or ignore it, “It will be said to him), ‘Read your (own) record. Your soul suffices as a reckoner against you this day.’”

Thus, accepting guidance is a personal responsibility, “Whosoever is guided, it is only for (the good of) his own soul; and whosoever goes astray it is only to its detriment. Nor can the bearer of a burden bear the burden of another, nor do We punish until We send a messenger.” Each person will be held accountable for his/her own deeds. No one can carry the burden of another. In addition to God’s signs in the universe and the initial natural disposition of the human being which guide to the existence of the Creator, God sent His messengers to guide people to the straight path. This is God’s mercy.

“When We decide to destroy a township, We (first) send a definite command to its affluent folk but they transgress therein, so the word (of doom) comes into effect against them, and we destruct it (with complete) destruction.” When a community allows its affluent people, who lost their lives completely to the pursuit of pleasures and immersed themselves in carnal desires; to continue in spreading mischief with impunity, God's punishment seizes it. It is the community's responsibility to stop its affluent people from spreading corruption in the land and if it does not, then the community deserves to be punished. The verse stresses the importance of the collective responsibility of the community as a whole in following the straight path. Many communities were destroyed because they did not heed God's law, "How many generations have We destroyed since Noah? And God suffices as Totally-Aware and All-Seeing with regard to His servants' sins."

Those whose mere interest is the enjoyment of this life, do not need to concern themselves with the pursuit of a higher goal. God will give them what they worked for in this life, but Hellfire will be waiting for them in the Hereafter. Those who are merely interested in pursuing the satisfaction of their lusts and carnal desires will be certainly rewarded for their sins with the proper punishment, "Whoso desires this present life, We hasten for him therein what We will for whom We please. And afterward We assign him to Hell; he will enter it to burn, despised and banished." But those who are more interested in a better life in the Hereafter must work hard to achieve their goal. Strong faith can only be achieved by hard work. A strong faith cannot be achieved merely by wishing for it. A strong faith rests deep in one's heart and is reflected in the deeds of the person, "Those who desire the Hereafter, and strive for it with the necessary effort, being believers; for such, their striving shall surely be accepted." Pursuing a better life in the Hereafter does not mean that a person should be deprived of the good pleasures of this world. But pursuing the worldly pleasures should not be the ultimate goal of the person. People who seek a better life in the Hereafter should not be enslaved by the pleasures of this worldly life.

"Of the bounties of your Lord We bestow freely on all - these as well as those. The bounties of your Lord are never restricted." Everyone will get his/her share from the bounty of God. Those who seek this worldly life will get their share and those who seek a better life in the Hereafter will get their share.

It is obvious that people in this life have different means, different goals, and different lives. The real difference in status will be seen in the Hereafter, "See how We have bestowed more on some than on others; but verily the Hereafter will be greater in degrees and greater in distinction."

Verses 22 to 39:

22. Do not associate with God any other god, lest you sit down despised, forsaken.
23. Your Lord has decreed that you worship none but Him, and that you be kind to parents. Whether one or both of them attain old age in your life, say not to them a word of contempt, nor repel them, but address them in terms of honour.
24. And, out of kindness, lower to them the wing of humility, and say, "My Lord, bestow on them Your mercy as they cared for me in childhood."
25. Your Lord knows best what is in your hearts. If you are righteous, then He was ever Forgiving to those who turn often (to Him).
26. Give the kinsman his due, and the needy, and the wayfarer, and do not squander (your wealth) wastefully.
27. Verily the squanderers were ever brothers of the devil, and the devil was ever ungrateful to his Lord.

28. And even if you had to turn away from them in pursuit of mercy from your Lord, which you hope for, speak to them a gentle word.
29. And do not let your hand be chained to your neck nor open it widely, lest you sit down rebuked and overwhelmed with regret.
30. Verily your Lord does provide sustenance in abundance for whom He pleases and He provides in a just measure. He was Totally-Aware, All- Seeing of His servants.
31. Do not kill your children for fear of want. We shall provide sustenance for them as well as for you. Verily the killing of them is a great sin.
32. Nor come near adultery, for it is an abomination and an evil way.
33. And do not take the life which God has made sacred except for a just cause. And if anyone is slain wrongfully, We have given his heir authority, but let him not exceed the bounds in the matter of taking life; for he is helped (by the Law).
34. Come not near the orphan's property except to improve it, until he attains the age of full strength; and fulfill (every) pledge, for you will be asked about (every) pledge (on the Day of Reckoning).
35. Give full measure when you measure, and weigh with an even balance. This is the most fitting and the most advantageous in the final determination.
36. And pursue not that of which you have no knowledge. You will be asked about every act of hearing, or of seeing or of (feeling in) the heart (on the Day of Reckoning).
37. And do not walk on earth with insolence, for you cannot rend the earth asunder, nor will you reach the mountains in height; the evil of all that is hateful in the sight of your Lord. This is part of the (precepts of) wisdom, which your Lord has revealed to you. Do not associate any other god with God lest you should be thrown into Hell, blamed, banished. (17: 22 – 39)

“Do not associate with God any other god, lest you sit down despised, forsaken.” The verse states a basic principle: do not associate partners with God. It is a general command but it is given in the singular form to indicate that it is a command for each and every human being. The belief in the Oneness God is a personal responsibility. The consequence for anyone who commits this sin is to remain despised and forsaken. Those whom God does not support will find no support. The use of the word, “sit down,” casts a shadow of weakness and debilitation on the person, “Your Lord has decreed that you worship none but Him, and that you be kind to parents. Whether one or both of them attain old age in your life, say not to them a word of contempt, nor repel them, but address them in terms of honour.” The command to worship no one but God followed the command not to associate partners with Him. It came as a decree. God’s decrees could not be disputed. This is the basic foundation of this doctrine. Laws dealing with personal and communal responsibilities are built upon the basic foundation of the doctrine. The first of these responsibilities is to be kind to one’s parents. This command places family bond next to the faith bond, emphasizing its importance in the sight of God. The language of the verse evokes emotions of mercy, love, and kindness in the hearts of the children towards their parents. Human beings by nature focus their attention on their children. The children are a symbol of hope in the future. The initial natural disposition of human beings drives parents to care for their children. Parents are happy to make sacrifices and to work hard to provide a good life for their children. In the process of raising their children, people forget the older generations. The Quran reminds people that the older generations need their attention and need to be treated kindly. The command has been constructed in the form of a decree to emphasize its unequivocal certainty.

The mention of old age alludes to the vulnerability of old people and their need for help. That requires that children not only be careful in addressing them and never to scold them or talk to them harshly, but also to speak to them respectfully. “And, out of kindness, lower to them the wing of humility, and say, ‘My Lord, bestow on them Your Mercy as they cared for me in childhood.’” The children should be humble when they treat their parent. Furthermore, they should pray God to bestow His mercy on them.

“Your Lord knows best what is in your hearts. If you are righteous, then He was ever Forgiving to those who turn often (to Him).” The verse is interjected here to remind people that God knows their intentions and their emotions. It also opens the door for the sinner to repent.

“Give the kinsman his due, and the needy, and the wayfarer, and do not squander (your wealth) wastefully.” The Quran gave family members, the needy, and the wayfarer rights that need to be fulfilled. Helping family members, the needy, and the wayfarer financially is a duty upon those who are able. It is a debt that one has to pay to those named. This serves two purposes. It spreads love among people and it fulfills one’s duty towards God. Helping these people is an integral part of worshipping God. The verse commands people not to squander their wealth. Ibn Mass’oud (RA) and Ibn Abbas (RA) define squandering as the act of spending money wastefully. Megahed (RA) said that those who spend their wealth for a legitimate cause are not considered squanderers even if they spend all what they have got, but those who spend even a small portion of their wealth wastefully are considered squanderers. The squanderers are the brothers of the devil because they spend their money in evil sinful deeds, “Verily the squanderers were ever brothers of the devil, and the devil was ever ungrateful to his Lord.”

If the person is unable to help those in need, he/she should explain their reasons in kind words and ask them to be patient until such time he/she have the means to help, “And even if you had to turn away from them in pursuit of mercy from your Lord, which you hope for, speak to them a gentle word.”

In general, we are commanded to spend money moderately, “And do not let your hand be chained to your neck nor open it widely, lest you sit down rebuked and overwhelmed with regret.” Moderation is a cardinal rule in Islam. Islam is against extremism in everything including spending money. One should neither be extravagant nor spendthrift; both extremes are unwise. God provides according to His wisdom, “Verily your Lord does provide sustenance in abundance for whom He pleases and He provides in a just measure. He was Totally-Aware, All-Seeing of His servants.” God knows best what is appropriate.

“Do not kill your children for fear of want. We shall provide sustenance for them as well as for you. Verily the killing of them is a great sin.” A corrupted doctrine has a negative impact not only on the practice of rituals but also on the daily life of the members of the community. A sound doctrine helps develop human beings with healthy feelings and emotions which is necessary for the sound and healthy social life in the community. The practice of infanticide was a direct import of the crooked doctrine of the idolater Arabs. There is a verse in Surat Al-An’am which addresses the same issue. It is interesting to note the subtle difference in the composition of the two verses. Here it says, “We shall provide sustenance for them as well as for you,” while in Surat Al-An’am it says, “We shall provide sustenance for you as well as for them.” The verse in this Sura addresses those who kill their children because they are afraid that getting more children will make the parents poor. God says He will provide for the newborn and in addition He will also provide for you. In Surat Al-An’am, God addresses the parents who kill their children because they are already poor. The verse stresses that God will provide for the parents and in addition He will also provide for the newborn.

“Nor come near adultery, for it is an abomination and an evil way.” There is a connection between infanticide and adultery. Adultery involves killing in different forms. The sperms which form the material of life are wasted. Adultery usually results in undesirable consequences which may be eliminated by performing abortion. If the child is born, he/she becomes a bastard and consequently will lead a miserable life. This is one life lost to the community. Adultery weakens family ties. Consequently, it weakens community bonds. It obscures the lineage and it reduces marriage rates and increases divorce rates. Reading history shows that nations in which adultery became pervasive were doomed to destruction. Because of these dire consequences Quran takes a preventive approach by commanding people to avoid the means that lead to adultery.

“And do not take the life which God has made sacred except for a just cause. And if anyone is slain wrongfully, we have given his heir authority, but let him not exceed the bounds in the matter of taking life; for he is helped (by the Law).” Islam is a religion of peace it protects the sanctity of life. Killing people is a capital crime. It is an abhorrent sin second only to the sin of associating partners with God. God gives life; no one else has the right to take it back. The right of life is sacred and is protected. Killing can only be executed according to the law for a just cause. The just causes which allow killing were made clear by God. It was not left to whims of people to decide which cause is just. The Prophet (PBUH) has been quoted to have said, “The law allows the execution of a Muslim as a punishment for three sins only: taking the life of another person, committing adultery by who is married or have been married, and apostasy and abandoning the community.” The first just cause for executing a person is as a retribution for a murder crime that has been committed. This is a fair retribution. It prevents the possibility of the vicious cycle of revenge. This harsh punishment is a deterrent for those who contemplate killing others. It actually provides a protection and security for members of the society. The second just cause for executing a person is a deterrent against spreading immorality. The third just cause is a deterrent for those who want to spread chaos and mischief in the community. Apostates who cause harm to the community are punished by execution.

If someone was murdered for a reason other than the three just causes mentioned above, then his nearest of kin is given an authority either to exact retribution or to forgive with or without a ransom. The government should support the family’s victim in exercising their right. Having given the next of kin this power to exact retribution or to forgive, Islam warns against taking an unnecessary revenge. The approach that Islam has taken to deal with this crime addresses the needs of the victim’s family and it brings closure and peace to the family. It closes the door in the way of the possibility of the eruption of a vicious circle of revenge. It also opens up the door for the chance that they may forgive the culprit thus bringing peace to the community and spreading tolerance. The verse warns the victim's family against exacting extreme measures of retribution.

“Come not near the orphan's property except to improve it, until he attains the age of full strength; and fulfill (every) pledge, for you will be asked about (every) pledge (on the Day of Reckoning).” The verse addresses the issue of the sanctity of the Muslim's wealth. The Prophet (PBUH) has been quoted to have said, “Muslim's blood, honor, and wealth have been sanctified. No Muslim should violate the sanctity of these three for another Muslim.” This verse stresses the abhorrence of defrauding an orphan of his/her wealth. Orphans are usually helpless and vulnerable. The guardians should look after their trust. It is the duty of the Muslim community to make sure that the guardians are doing their job.

It is interesting to note that the commands regarding matters which are considered personal responsibilities were issued in the singular form. These included the commands regarding being kind to parents; helping family members, the needy, and the wayfarer; avoiding extravagance; exercising moderation in spending; shunning arrogance. Commands dealing with matters which are considered communal responsibilities were issued in the plural form. These included the commands to shun infanticide, adultery, murder, defrauding orphans, and breaking promises.

Islam emphasized the importance of honoring a promise. The verse stated that people will be held accountable on the Day of Judgement for the promises that they broke. Honoring promises is the backbone of the integrity of the individual and the society.

“Give full measure when you measure, and weigh with an even balance. This is the most fitting and the most advantageous in the final determination.” Conducting fair business dealings is in a way a form of honoring a promise. Fair business dealings create an atmosphere of trust and bring blessings to life. It brings goodness to this life and in the Hereafter there will be a good reward. The Prophet (PBUH) has been quoted to have said, “If a person is able to defraud another but he/she chose not to only because he/she fears God, then God will give him/her a better gain in this life and a better reward in the Hereafter.” Fraudulent business transactions may bring short term gains but in the end they will cause great loss to the individual and to the community. This is a fact that many business people realized. Islam espoused this principle as part of its doctrine which brings material success in line with spiritual fulfillment. This adds more dimensions to life and broadens its horizon.

The Islamic doctrine is a clear and straight doctrine. It is not based on conjectures but it is based on clear proofs, “And pursue not that of which you have no knowledge. You will be asked about every act of hearing, or of seeing or of (feeling in) the heart (on the Day of Reckoning).” These few words establish a comprehensive plan for the heart and the mind. This plan comprises the scientific approach, the purity of the heart, and the consciousness of God. This plan is far more superior over the abstract scientific approach alone.

The verse tells us that in order to be able to make a sound determination regarding a news item, a phenomenon, or a suggestion one should be absolutely sure of their meaning, veracity, and reliability. People should not make a decision on the basis of a conjecture. If we apply this principle, then objectivity will prevail in all aspects of life. The banner of scientific integrity which has been raised recently is only a component of the intellectual and spiritual integrity which has been commanded by Islam. The verse indicated the consequence of violating this integrity. It is a trust for which everyone will be held accountable on the Day of Judgement. It is a trust that needs to be observed by all the senses that a human owns: the hearing, the sight, and the intellect. The Prophet (PBUH) has been quoted to have said, “Avoid conjecture. A conjecture is the most severe act of lying.” Prophetic traditions as well as Quranic verses point to the importance of making sure that the available information in a certain situation are authentic and reliable before making a decision. Thus, the verses establish a methodology which is based on the certainty of information and the objectivity of the person.

The last of these commands which constitute a component of the belief in the Oneness of God is to abandon arrogance, “And do not walk on earth with insolence, for you cannot rend the earth asunder, nor reach the mountains in height.” When a heart becomes void of the belief in God, it becomes an easy prey to the temptation to be boastful of what its owner has of wealth, power, or beauty. A person who realizes that whatever he/she has of wealth, power, or beauty is a blessing from God relinquishes any desire to be boastful of these material acquisitions. The verse brings the boastful face to face with human weaknesses and limitations, “you cannot rend the earth asunder, nor will you reach the mountains in height.” Islam commands modesty to combat the sin of arrogance. Modesty is a necessary attribute necessary for the individual to maintain sound relationships with God and with people. An arrogant person is hated by God because of his ingratitude and is hated by people because of his boastful attitude.

The commands are then followed by a statement that expresses God’s abhorrence of the bad attributes that the commands shunned, “The evil of all that is hateful in the sight of your Lord.” It is a reminder that these bad attributes have been shunned because God hates them. Finally, a reminder of the relationship between the content of these commands and the belief in the Oneness of God is made, “This is part of the (precepts of) wisdom, which your Lord has revealed to you. Do not associate any other god with God lest you should be thrown into Hell, blamed, banished.”

Verses 40 to 57:

40. Has then your Lord chosen you (to have) sons, and (for Himself) taken daughters from among the angels? Most surely you utter a grievous saying.
41. We verily have explained things in various ways in this Quran that they may take heed, but it only added to their aversion.
42. Say, “If there had been (other) gods with Him, as they say, they would certainly have sought out a way against the Lord of the Throne.”
43. Glory be to Him. Exalted is He above what they say by great sublimity.
44. The seven heavens and the earth, and all beings therein praise Him. There is not a thing but celebrates His praise and yet you understand not their praise. Verily He is Forbearing, All-Forgiving.

45. When you recite the Quran, We place, between you and those who do not believe in the Hereafter, an invisible veil.
46. And We placed veils upon their hearts lest they should understand it, and in their ears a deafness; and when you mention your Lord alone in the Quran, they turn their backs in aversion.
47. We know best what they wish to hear when they give you an ear and when they take secret counsel, when the evil-doers say, "You follow but a man bewitched."
48. See what similes they strike for you, but they have gone astray, and never can they find a way.
49. They say, "What, when we are reduced to bones and dust, should we really be raised up as a new creation?"
50. Say, "Be you stones or iron;
51. Or some created thing that is yet greater in your thoughts." Then they will say, "Who shall bring us back (to life)." Say, "He who created you in the first instance." They will shake their heads at you, and say, "When will it be?" Say, "Perhaps, it will be soon.
52. It will be on a day when He will call you, and you will answer (His call) with (words of) His praise, and you will think that you tarried but a little while."
53. Say to My servants that they should (only) say those things that are best, for Satan does sow dissensions among them. Satan is indeed humankind's avowed enemy.
54. It is your Lord who knows you best. If He pleases, He grants you mercy, or if He pleases, He will torment you. We have not sent you (Muhammad) as a guardian over them.
55. And your Lord knows best all who are in the heavens and the earth. And we preferred some of the prophets above others, and We gave David the Psalms.
56. Say, "Call on those whom you claim beside Him, they have neither the power to remove your troubles from you nor to change them."
57. Those whom they call upon seek a way of approach to their Lord, which of them shall be the nearest; they hope for His mercy and they fear His torment. The torment of your Lord is to be cautious of. (17: 40 – 57)

"Has then your Lord chosen you (to have) sons, and (for Himself) taken daughters from among the angels? Most surely you utter a grievous saying." This question is posed in such a way to express God's sarcasm and denunciation of what the disbelievers say. The question rejects the claim they make that the angels are females and they are God's daughter. If they believe that God gives both males and females, then how come, and He is the Creator, that he chooses females while they themselves reject females? This is a horrible saying.

"We verily have explained things in various ways in this Quran that they may take heed, but it only added to their aversion." The Quran came with the message that is based on the fact that God is One. The Quran explained and clarified the doctrine of Islam in many ways so that they would heed the message. But whenever they heard these clarifications they became more averse to the message. They did not want to leave the superficial security that they find in their false beliefs. The Quran refutes their claim that there are other gods with God, "Say, 'If there had been (other) gods with Him, as they say, they would certainly have sought out a way against the Lord of the Throne.'" This claim is not true. All those whom they took as gods besides God, are things which God created. God is Glorified above all these claims, "Glory be to Him. Exalted is He above what they say by great sublimity.”

Everything in the heavens and earth praise His glory, “The seven heavens and the earth, and all beings therein praise Him. There is not a thing but celebrates His praise and yet you understand not their praise. Verily He is Forbearing, All-Forgiving.” Reading this verse, an image comes to mind in which one sees each atom in this universe as if it were a living being praising the glory of God. The whole universe becomes alive singing in unison the praise of God. Each thing in the universe sings the praise of God in its own way and using its own language. Your mortality hinders your understanding of these languages. One needs to listen to the praise with one’s heart not ears. As the soul becomes sublimated it will be able to listen to the praise of the creatures of God, it will be ready to connect with the sublime host, and it will be able to comprehend the secrets of the universe. God is truly Forbearing and All-Forgiving. He is forbearing towards the those who are ungrateful and associate partners with God; He reprieves them, reminds them, and admonishes them. He forgives the heedlessness of the mortals who do not praise His glory while the rest of the universe is singing His praise.

The chiefs of Quraish used to listen to the Quran but they resisted their initial natural disposition to be touched by its beauty. Thus, God placed a barrier between them and Muhammad (PBUH). They listened but did not hear or understand, “When you recite the Quran, We place, between you and those who do not believe in the Hereafter, an invisible veil. And We placed veils upon their hearts lest they should understand it, and in their ears a deafness; and when you mention your Lord alone in the Quran, they turn their backs in aversion. We know best what they wish to hear when they give you an ear and when they take secret counsel, when the evil-doers say, “You follow but a man bewitched. See what similes they strike for you, but they have gone astray, and never can they find a way.” Ibn Ishaq narrated that one night three of the chiefs of Quraish - Abu Sufian ibn Harb, Abu Jahl ibn Hesham, and Al-Akhnas ibn Shuraiq – went separately and discreetly to listen to the Prophet (PBUH) reciting Quran. Each one of them was unaware of what the others were doing. Each one of them hid in a place close to the Prophet’s (PBUH) house. They spent the whole night listening to him reciting the Quran. At dawn when they were about to leave to go home, they bumped into each other. They started rebuking each other. They admonished each other not do this again. They reminded each other that they should not do this otherwise they would be setting a bad example for the people of Quraish. However, the same story was repeated for three nights. On the third night when they met as they were heading home, they said we have to make a pledge to each other not to listen again to Muhammad (PBUH) reciting Quran. The next day when Al-Akhnas met Abu Sufian, he asked him what he thought of what he heard from Muhammad (PBUH). Abu Sufian said, “I heard things that I knew about and I know what it means, and I heard things which I did not know before and I do not understand what they mean.” Al-Akhnas said to him, “This is exactly my experience.” Al-Akhnas then went to see Abu Jahl and asked him the same question. Abu Jahl said, “We were in a competition with Banu Abd Manaf, which of the two tribes gets higher status among the other tribes; they fed people and we matched them, they provided rides for people and we matched them, they helped people financially and we matched them; but when we were about to be equal in status they came up with the idea that one of them is a prophet who receives revelation from heaven. How can we compete with this? We will never believe in Muhammad (PBUH) nor will we follow him.”

The Quran touched the hearts and souls of the chiefs of Quraish, however, they forced themselves to disbelieve. Their initial natural disposition was to accept the Message but they worked hard to suppress this natural feeling in their hearts. This is why God placed a barrier between them and the Quran. The barrier prevented the guidance to reach them. They were averse to the message because it posed a threat to their status among the other Arabs. Islam threatened the chiefs' power and authority. They finally found a plausible excuse not to follow Muhammad (PBUH), "You follow but a man bewitched." This statement in itself reflects the magnitude of the Quran's impact on them. They realized that this could not have been composed by a mortal. They thought that there must have been a supernatural power behind it; because they did not want to admit that it is a God's revelation, they said it must be magic.

The idolaters of Mecca found the concept of resurrection after death difficult to accept. They argued at length with the Prophet (PBUH) about it and these arguments were documented in the Quran. The Quran explained the concept in great detail. Those who understood the nature of life, death, and resurrection found it easy to accept, "They say, 'What, when we are reduced to bones and dust, should we really be raised up as a new creation?'" did they not realize that they were not alive before they were born? And that resurrecting a dead person is not much different from creating this person in the first instance. God who has the power to create humankind is able to resurrect them. The response came to challenge them, "Say, 'Be you stones or iron; or some created thing that is yet greater in your thoughts.' Then they will say, 'Who shall bring us back (to life).'' Say, 'He who created you in the first instance.' They will shake their heads at you, and say, 'When will it be?'' Say, 'Perhaps, it will be soon.'" Even if you were a stone or a piece of iron God is able to put life back into you. Stone and iron are farther from life than bones and dust. Then they will ask who will resurrect us. The answer is simple, God who created you the first time is able to bring you back to life another time. They will ask again when this will take place. The Prophet (PBUH) did not know when, but he was commanded to say, "Perhaps, it will be soon."

The verses continued to construct the scene when this will happen, "It will be on a day when He will call you, and you will answer (His call) with (words of) His praise, and you will think that you tarried but a little while." The scene depicts those who rejected faith before rising to sing the praise of God.

The narrative then moves to deal with another theme. The verse commands the Prophet (PBUH) to direct the believers to always say a good word, "Say to My servants that they should (only) say those things that are best, for Satan does sow dissensions among them. Satan is indeed humankind's avowed enemy." This is a comprehensive statement. God's servants should always say only good things. They should always choose the best speech to address each other. A good word spreads love and brotherhood and eliminates hate and animosity. This is the way to circumvent Satan's efforts who will try always to sow the seeds of discord among them. Satan is humankind's avowed enemy.

God has the absolute knowledge of what will happen and what people will do. He will bestow His mercy on whoever He pleases and He will punish whoever He pleases, “It is your Lord who knows you best. If He pleases, He grants you mercy, or if He pleases, He will torment you. We have not sent you (Muhammad) as a guardian over them.” The Prophet’s (PBUH) task is only to deliver the message not to act as a warden over people.

“And your Lord knows best all who are in the heavens and the earth. And we preferred some of the prophets above others, and We gave David the Psalms.” God in His divine knowledge chose to prefer some prophets over others. Only God knows the criteria for this categorization. One of the signs of preference is that some got books as in the case of David (PBUH).

This group of verses deals with the denunciation of the concept of God’s having daughters or partners. The verses emphasize God’s uniqueness and oneness and His comprehensive and absolute knowledge. The verses conclude by a challenge to the disbelievers, “Say, ‘Call on those whom you claim beside Him, they have neither the power to remove your troubles from you nor to change them.’” Those whom the disbelievers call upon are only part of the creation of God. They cannot offer their followers any help. God is the only one who can offer help to His creatures. Those whom the disbelievers call upon besides God they themselves race to please God and they fear His torment, “Those whom they call upon seek a way of approach to their Lord, which of them shall be the nearest; they hope for His mercy and they fear His torment. The torment of your Lord is to be cautious of.”

Verses 58 to 72:

58. There is not a township but We shall destroy before the Day of Resurrection, or torment it a dire torment. That has been written in the Divine ordinance.
59. And We refrain from sending the signs, only because the people of former generations denied them. And We gave Thamud the she camel as a clear sign but they wronged it, and We do not send signs but as a warning.
60. We told you that your Lord does know all about humankind. We gave you the vision which We showed you, as a test for people, as also the cursed tree (mentioned) in the Quran. We threaten them, but it only increases their inordinate transgression.
61. And when We said to the angels, “Prostrate before Adam and they fell prostrate all save Iblis, he said, “Shall I fall prostrate before that which You created out of clay?”
62. He (Iblis) said, “Do You see the one whom You honoured above me, if You give me respite till the Day of Judgment, I will surely bring all his descendants under my sway except for a few.”
63. (God) said, “Go, and whosoever of them follows you, then certainly Hell is your recompense, an ample recompense.
64. And incite whomsoever of them you can with your voice, and use against them what you can muster of forces riding and on foot, and share with them their wealth and children, and hold out promises to them; and Satan’s promises are only a deception.
65. Indeed, you have no authority over My servants. Your Lord suffices as (their) Guardian.

66. Your Lord is He who makes the ships go smoothly for you through the sea, in order that you may seek of His bounty, for He is most Merciful toward you.
67. And when distress touches you at sea, those whom you call upon desert you except He; but when He brings you safe to the land, you turn away; and humankind is ever ungrateful.
68. Do you then feel secure that He will not cause you to be swallowed up beneath the earth when you are on land, or that He will not send a sand-storm upon you, and then you will find that you have no guardian?
69. Or do you feel secure that He will not send you back a second time to sea and send against you a heavy gale to drown you because of your ingratitude, so that you find no helper against Us?
70. Verily We have honored the Children of Adam. We carry them on land and sea, and have made provision of good things for them, and have favoured them far above many of those whom We created.
71. On the Day when We shall summon all people along with their leaders, those who are given their books in their right hands will read their books and they will not be wronged a shred.
72. But those who were blind in this world, will be blind in the Hereafter, and will be further away from the path. (17: 58 – 72)

The previous verses established the fact that only God controls people's fate. He can either forgive them or punish them as He pleases. The following verse describes the fate that awaits all people, "There is not a township but We shall destroy before the Day of Resurrection, or torment it a dire torment. That has been written in the Divine ordinance." God willed that all human beings would perish before the Day of Resurrection. God also decreed that the people who sinned should be punished.

God sent messengers to guide people and gave them miraculous signs to convince people of the veracity of the message. Those whose hearts were open to receive guidance believed but many rejected guidance. The last messenger was not supported with such material miraculous evidence, "And We refrain from sending the signs, only because the people of former generations denied them. And We gave Thamud the she camel as a clear sign but they wronged it, and We do not send signs but as a warning." The Quran is the miracle of Islam. It is a Book that presents a complete way of life. It addresses both the intellect and the emotions of humankind. It appeals to the initial natural disposition of humankind. It is an everlasting Book that will remain available for all future generations. Physical miracles benefit only those who experience it firsthand. Many of the people who witnessed God's miracles did not believe in their messengers. An example of that is the she camel that was sent to the tribe of Thamud who asked their prophet to bring about a sign but when the sign came they rejected it.

These human experiences indicated that the last Message should not be accompanied by a physical miracle but it should be supported by an everlasting miracle which can benefit all future generations. Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) was given physical miracles as well but these miracles were not meant to be a proof of his prophet hood. These miracles were meant to be a test for his followers, "We told you that your Lord does know all about humankind. We gave you the vision which We showed you, as a test for people, as also the cursed tree (mentioned) in the Quran. We threaten them, but it only increases their inordinate transgression.” Some people became apostates after the miracle of Israa and Mi’raj but the same event strengthened the faith of others. The statement, “We told you that your Lord does know all about humankind,” was a promise from God to His Messenger that God will protect him and grant him victory over his enemies.

The subsequent verses disclose the real reasons behind rejecting guidance. They also illustrate the reasons behind the traditional animosity between Iblis and humankind, “And when We said to the angels, ‘Prostrate before Adam,’ and they fell prostrate all save Iblis, he said, ‘Shall I fall prostrate before that which You created out of clay?’” Iblis envied Adam (PBUH) for the honor that God bestowed on him. Iblis looked down upon this creature whom God created from mud. He forgot that God breathed of His breath in this creature. Iblis then expressed his disdain for the weakness of humankind, “He (Iblis) said, ‘Do You see the one whom You honoured above me, if You give me respite till the Day of Judgment, I will surely bring all his descendants under my sway except for a few.’” Iblis forgot that humankind has equal propensity for guidance and misguidance. Iblis forgot that humankind has the will to reach for God and become guided. Humankind was given the will to choose. That is why God allowed Iblis to try, “(God) said, ‘Go, and whosoever of them follows you, then certainly Hell is your recompense, an ample recompense.’”

“And incite whomsoever of them you can with your voice, and use against them what you can muster of forces riding and on foot, and share with them their wealth and children, and hold out promises to them; and Satan’s promises are only a deception.” It is a battle between humankind and Satan. He will amass his power and will use different strategies to conquer his enemies and tempt them to deviate from the straight path. He will share their wealth and their children as they used to do in the name of the idols. This also refers to the wealth which is obtained through illegitimate means and the children who are conceived outside wedlock. The partnership between the disbelievers and Iblis is about sharing wealth and children which are the main sources for pleasure and enjoyment for the human world. Iblis will try to use all means to achieve his objectives. Perhaps one of the most tempting promises is the promise that the sinner will be forgiven.

“Indeed you have no authority over My servants. Your Lord suffices as (their) Guardian.” Iblis has no authority on those whose hearts are connected to God, who nurture that link through acts of worship, and who hold tight to the most trustworthy handhold.

Iblis tries to sway people away from the straight path and God bestows His mercy on people and He saves them from difficult situations, “Your Lord is He who makes the ships go smoothly for you through the sea, in order that you may seek of his bounty, for He is most Merciful toward you. And when distress touches you at sea, those whom you call upon desert you except He; but when He brings you safe to the land, you turn away; and humankind is ever ungrateful.” The verses use the scene of a ship at sea as an example for difficult situations when there is no one to save those aboard the ship except God. The verses juxtapose the comfortable scene in which a ship sails safely on a quiet sea with the promise of a profit that will be gained at the completion of the trip with the difficult scene of a ship being tossed around by huge waves no one is able to control; and no one knows what the end will be. The first scene reflects God's mercy on people. In the second scene people pray to God to save them. But once they feel secure upon reaching the shore they forget their savior.

Is there real security except with God? “Do you then feel secure that He will not cause you to be swallowed up beneath the earth when you are on land, or that He will not send a sand-storm upon you, and then you will find that you have no guardian? Or do you feel secure that He will not send you back a second time to sea and send against you a heavy gale to drown you because of your ingratitude, so that you find no helper against Us?” People are in God's hands whether they are at sea or on land. No one can provide protection against the dangers that one faces on land like tornados and volcanos or at sea like giant waves and stormy winds except God.

God honored humankind over many of His creatures. God honored humankind when He bestowed on him a straight posture and an initial natural disposition that combines mud and God's breath. This is the initial natural disposition which joins the heavens and the earth. God honored humankind when He bestowed on him the aptitude that makes him eligible for the position of vicegerency on earth. He gave him the ability to develop the earth and make it a habitable place. God honored humankind when He subjected the forces of the universe to make him live a better life. God honored humankind when He prepared for him a huge reception during which the angels bowed to him, “Verily we have honored the Children of Adam. We carry them on land and sea, and have made provision of good things for them, and have favoured them far above many of those whom We created.”

God also honored humankind by giving him the responsibility to conduct himself. Humankind is responsible for his actions and has the free will to choose, consequently he will be held accountable for his actions and choices, “On the Day when We shall summon all people along with their leaders, those who are given their books in their right hands will read their books and they will not be wronged a shred. But those who were blind in this world, will be blind in the Hereafter, and will be further away from the path.” The verse describes the scene on the Day of Resurrection when all human beings will be gathered together. Each nation will be called by its name, whether it is the name of its ideology, its messenger, or its leader. Every nation will receive its record and its reward. Those who will be given their record in their right hands will be happy with their record. They will get a full reward. But those who were blind in their daily life and missed the guidance, they also be blind in the Hereafter. They will miss the good reward.

Verses 73 to 111:

73. And their purpose was to tempt you away from that which We had revealed to you, to substitute in our name something quite different; and then they would have accepted you as a friend.

74. And had We not given you strength, you would nearly have inclined to them a little.

75. Then We would have made you taste double (of punishment) in this life, and double after death, and moreover you would have found none to help you against Us.
76. Their purpose was to scare you off the land, in order to expel you; but in that case they would not have stayed (therein) after you, except for a little while.
77. (This was Our) way with the messengers We sent before you. You will not find a change in Our ways.
78. Establish regular prayers at the sun's decline till the darkness of the night, and (the recital of) the Quran at dawn. (the recital of) the Quran at dawn is ever witnessed.
79. And during the night wake up and pray, as an extra offering of your own. So that your Lord may raise you to a praised estate.
80. And say, "My Lord, make me enter a sound entrance and exit a sound exit. And give me from Yourself a sustaining Power.
81. And say, "Truth has arrived, and falsehood perished. Falsehood is (by its nature) bound to perish."
82. And We reveal of the Quran that which is a healing and a mercy for the believers, and it adds only to the perdition of the wrongdoers.
83. And when We bestow Our blessings on humankind, he turns away and becomes averse; and when ill touches him he is in despair.
84. Say, "Everyone acts according to his own disposition. But your Lord knows best who it is that is best guided on the way."
85. They ask you concerning the Spirit. Say, "The Spirit is of the affair of my Lord. And you have not been given of knowledge except a little."
86. If We had willed, We could take away that which We have revealed to you, then you would find no guardian for you against Us.
87. Except (We have left it with you) as mercy from your Lord. Indeed, the bounty He bestowed on you is great.
88. Say, "If the whole of humankind and jinn were to gather together to produce the like of this Quran, they could not produce the like thereof, even if they backed up each other with help and support."
89. And We have explained to the people, in this Quran, every kind of similitude, but most people persist in disbelieving.
90. They say, "We shall not believe in you, until you cause a spring to gush forth for us from the ground,
91. Or (until) you have a garden of date trees and vines, and cause rivers to gush forth in their midst, carrying abundant water;
92. Or you cause the sky to fall in pieces on us, as you claimed will happen; or you bring God and the angels before (us) face to face;
93. Or you have a house adorned with gold; or you ascend into the skies. No, we shall not even believe in your ascension until you send down to us a book that we could read."
Say, "Glory to my Lord, was I ever but a human messenger."
94. What prevented people from believing when the guidance came to them save that they said, "Has God sent a mortal as (His) messenger?"
95. Say, "If there were on the earth angels walking securely, We would have sent down for them from heaven an angel as a messenger."
96. Say, "God suffices as a witness between me and you. Indeed, He is Totally-Aware and All-Seeing of His servants.

97. It is he whom God guides, that is on true guidance; but he whom He leaves to go astray, you will find no protecting guardians besides Him. On the Day of Judgment, We shall gather them together, on their faces, blind, dumb and deaf; their habitation will be Hell. Whenever it subsides, We increase its flame for them.
98. That is their recompense, because they rejected Our signs, and said, "When we are reduced to bones and broken dust, should we really be raised up (to be) a new creation?"
99. Have they not seen that God who created the heavens and the earth is able to create the like of them, and has appointed for them a term about which there is no doubt? But the wrongdoers persist in disbelieving.
100. Say, "If you had control of the treasures of the mercy of my Lord, you would have kept them back, for fear of spending them. Humankind is indeed stingy."
101. And verily We gave Moses nine clear signs. Do ask the Children of Israel when he came to them, then Pharaoh said to him, "Moses, I think you are bewitched."
102. Moses said, "You know well that these things have been sent down by none but the Lord of the heavens and the earth as eye-opening evidence. Pharaoh, I believe you are indeed doomed to destruction."
103. And he wished to scare them from the land, but We drowned him and those with him, all together.
104. And We said to the Children of Israel after him, "Dwell in the land; but when the promise of the Hereafter comes to pass We shall bring you as a crowd gathered out of various nations."
105. We sent down the (Quran) in truth, and in truth has it descended. And We did not send you except as a bearer of glad tidings and a warner.
106. (It is) a Quran which We have divided in parts, in order that you recite it to the people over a long period of time. We have revealed it in stages.
107. Say, "Whether you believe in it or not, it is true that those who were given knowledge beforehand, when it is recited to them, fall down prostrate on their faces."
108. And they say, "Glory to our Lord, verily the promise of our Lord has been fulfilled."
109. They fall down on their faces in tears, and it increases their humility.
110. Say, "Call upon God, or call upon Al-Rahman. By whatever name you call upon Him, for to Him belong the Most Beautiful Names. Do not raise your voice in your prayer, nor say it in a low voice, but seek a middle course in between."
111. Say, "Praise be to God, who begat no son, and has no associate in (His) dominion. He did not need any to protect Him from humiliation. Magnify Him for His greatness and glory." (17: 73 – 111)

"And their purpose was to tempt you away from that which We had revealed to you, to substitute in our name something quite different; and then they would have accepted you as a friend. And had We not given you strength, you would nearly have inclined to them a little. Then We would have made you taste double (of punishment) in this life, and double after death, and moreover you would have found none to help you against Us. Their purpose was to scare you off the land, in order to expel you; but in that case they would not have stayed (therein) after you, except for a little while. (This was Our) way with the messengers We sent before you. You will not find a change in Our ways." The verses refer to the attempts that the idolaters of Mecca tried with the Prophet (PBUH) to sway him from performing his task. They tried to reach a compromise with him. At one time they offered to worship his God and in return he should stop criticizing their gods. Another time some of them wanted to make their land sacred land like the land around the Sacred Mosque. A third time the chiefs wanted exclusive audience with Muhammad (PBUH), no one except them would be allowed to attend. The verses do not give details of such attempts but simply remind the Prophet (PBUH) that it is by the grace of God that he was able to stay the course according to the revelation he received.

The attempts that the idolaters of Mecca tried are a classic example of the way people in authority deal with people of principles. They try to get them to compromise their principles. Initial compromises may be minor but as time passes the compromise increases and soon the initial message would be replaced by a completely different thing.

When the idolaters of Mecca failed to sway the Prophet (PBUH) from his path, they tried to drive him out of Mecca. However, God commanded him to migrate to Medina. The verse states that had the idolaters of Mecca been successful in forcing the Prophet (PBUH) out of Mecca they would have been destroyed, “Their purpose was to scare you off the land, in order to expel you; but in that case they would not have stayed (therein) after you, except for a little while. (This was Our) way with the messengers We sent before you. You will not find a change in Our ways.” This is God’s law that does not change.

The Prophet (PBUH) was commanded to connect with God and seek His help and support, “Establish regular prayers at the sun's decline till the darkness of the night, and (the recital of) the Quran at dawn. (The recital of) the Quran at dawn is ever witnessed.” This command was specific to the Prophet (PBUH). He was commanded to pray during the time between sunset till the beginning of the night. Times for regular prayers are known and were given in authentic prophetic traditions. The expression, “the sun's decline till the darkness of the night,” alludes to the time of the vanishing day light; while the expression, “and (the recital of) the Quran at dawn,” alludes to the beginning of the day. These two times have their impact on the believer. They evoke feelings of complete dedication to God. They inspire the believer to reflect on the signs of God in the universe. The dawn announces the beginning of life at the start of the day as is the prayer which fills the believer’s heart with life.

The Prophet (PBUH) was commanded to perform extra prayer during the night. The voluntary prayers and the recitation of the Quran will strengthen the connection with God which will lead to a high status, “And during the night wake up and pray, as an extra offering of your own. So that your Lord may raise you to a praised estate.” Muslims are in great need to follow this advice.

“And say, ‘My Lord, make me enter a sound entrance and exit a sound exit. And give me from Yourself a sustaining Power.’” God taught His Prophet (PBUH) this supplication so that he can teach his nation to say it. It is a supplication that requests God to make Muslims truthful from the entrance to the exit, from the beginning to the end. Truthfulness promotes security, purity, and fidelity. The supplication implies that one should seek support and help only from God.

“And say, ‘Truth has arrived, and falsehood perished. Falsehood is (by its nature) bound to perish.’” Falsehood is bound to disappear. History teaches us that no matter how long a kingdom built on falsehood lasted it was bound to be destroyed. Falsehood is bound to perish. Falsehood may be supported by human power and it is certainly supported by Satan but God’s promise is the truth and His power is stronger and everlasting. Whoever tasted the sweetness of faith also tasted the sweetness of God’s promise. Who is more truthful in His promise than God?

“And We reveal of the Quran that which is a healing and a mercy for the believers, and it adds only to the perdition of the wrongdoers.” The Quran brings healing to the believers in so many ways. It is a remedy for confusion, insecurity, and scepticism. It purifies the heart and removes any traces of greed, envy, and immorality. It supports the believer against the temptation of Satan and the whims and desires of the self. The Quran brings stability to the human soul. It supports the intellect with the objectivity of thought. It frees the mind to seek productive ways. The Quran brings remedy to the social illnesses that afflict communities. It provides a theme for the unity of the community, thus bringing peace and security to the life of people. The wrongdoers will not benefit from the mercy and healing that the Quran brings. This fills their hearts with envy and hate. However, they continue in their obstinacy thus become losers.

Those who are left out of the mercy of God suffer the tribulations of life, “And when We bestow Our blessings on humankind, he turns away and becomes averse; and when ill touches him he is in despair.” When they receive a bounty they become arrogant forgetting that it is God who bestowed His bounty on them and when they are faced with adversity they despair because they lost their contact with God so they have no hope in His mercy. The believers on the other hand are grateful to God when they receive His bounty; and they seek His mercy when they face adversity. Each behaves according to his own disposition, “Say, ‘Everyone acts according to his own disposition. But your Lord knows best who it is that is best guided on the way.’”

The Quran provided direct and simple answers to the questions people asked the Prophet (PBUH). However, some questions were beyond the level of human understanding, “They ask you concerning the Spirit. Say, ‘The Spirit is of the affairs of my Lord. And you have not been given of knowledge except a little.’” This answer did not place a ban on the curiosity of human mind but simply indicated that there are areas of knowledge that are beyond human understanding.

“If We had willed, We could take away that which We have revealed to you, then you would find no guardian for you against Us. Except (We have left it with you) as mercy from your Lord. Indeed, the bounty He bestowed on you is great.” The revelation which the Prophet (PBUH) has received is a bounty from God. God could continue His revelation or could stop it anytime He wants.

God composed this Quran. No one can compose a similar book. Even if the humans and jinn collaborated together, they cannot compose a similar book, “If the whole of humankind and jinn were to gather together to produce the like of this Quran, they could not produce the like thereof, even if they backed up each other with help and support.” The jinn and the humans represent the unseen and seen creatures of God. Only God knows the secrets of the Quran and the Spirit.

In addition to its miraculous linguistic composition, the Quran presents a complete, comprehensive, and consistent way of life; a way of life that addresses the needs of the individual as well as the community. It provides for all contingencies that can be encountered in the life of the individual and the community. Its rules and injunctions show deep understanding of the human initial natural dispositions and the community dynamics.

“And We have explained to the people, in this Quran, every kind of similitude, but most people persist in disbelieving. They say, ‘We shall not believe in you, until you cause a spring to gush forth for us from the ground, or (until) you have a garden of date trees and vines, and cause rivers to gush forth in their midst, carrying abundant water; or you cause the sky to fall in pieces on us, as you claimed will happen; or you bring God and the angels before (us) face to face; or you have a house adorned with gold; or you ascend into the skies. No, we shall not even believe in your ascension until you send down to us a book that we could read.’ Say, ‘Glory to my Lord, was I ever but a human messenger.’” They failed to appreciate the miracle of the Quran, so they requested a number of physical miracles. They requested the Prophet (PBUH) to cause a spring to gush out from the ground, to produce a garden with rivers flowing through it, to make pieces from the sky to fall down on them, to ask God and the angels to come face to face with them, to have a house adorned with gold, or to ascend into the sky; even then they will not believe unless he brings them a book that they can read. These were requests that reflected their immaturity and obstinacy. They failed to appreciate the real challenge that was posed to them in the Quran. They were challenged to compose a book similar to the Quran.

“What prevented people from believing when the guidance came to them save that they said, ‘Has God sent a mortal as (His) messenger?’” People thought that God should send an angel to deliver His message. They thought it is farfetched that God would send a human being as a messenger. They underestimated the value of their humanity. They did not understand that God has honored humankind and gave him a status higher than many of His creation. They also did not understand the nature of the angels. The angels were not created to live on earth, “Say, ‘If there were on the earth angels walking securely, We would have sent down for them from heaven an angel as a messenger.’” Had God willed the angels to live on earth, He would have given them the form of human beings, because this is the form that is suitable for life on earth, “And if We had made him an angel, We would certainly have made him a man.” (6: 9) God has the power to do what He pleases but He created laws to govern His creation. These laws do not change. At this point, the Prophet (PBUH) was commanded to end the argument by referring the whole matter to God, “Say, ‘God suffices as a witness between me and you. Indeed, He is Totally-Aware and All-Seeing of His servants.’” The statement embodies an implicit warning. The consequences of the actions of those who reject faith is explained, “It is he whom God guides, that is on true guidance; but he whom He leaves to go astray, you will find no protecting guardians besides Him. On the Day of Judgment, We shall gather them together, on their faces, blind, dumb and deaf; their habitation will be Hell. Whenever it subsides, We increase its flame for them. That is their recompense, because they rejected Our signs, and said, ‘When we are reduced to bones and broken dust, should we really be raised up (to be) a new creation?’ Have they not seen that God who created the heavens and the earth is able to create the like of them, and has appointed for them a term about which there is no doubt? But the wrongdoers persist in disbelieving.” God has decreed that those who seek guidance should follow a specified route. Those who do not follow the route that God has specified for achieving guidance will be misguided. Humankind was created with equal propensity for good and evil and they were given the freedom to choose the route they want to take. Those who seek guidance and embark on the route that God has specified for guidance will be helped in their endeavor by God. Those are the truly guided. Those who chose to turn their back to the route of guidance will have no one to support them and on the Day of Judgment they will be ushered to Hell fire in a humiliating way. This is a bad ending but that was their choice. They found it hard to believe that there will be resurrection after death. Did they not realize that God who created the heavens and earth is able to raise them after death?

Those who asked the Prophet (PBUH) to bring them physical miracles were in actual fact stingy. Even if God were to give them His treasures, they would not have entertained the desire to spend out of their wealth, “Say, ‘If you had control of the treasures of the mercy of my Lord, you would have kept them back, for fear of spending them. Humankind is indeed stingy.’” In spite of the fact that the treasures of the mercy of God are limitless, they would still be unable to spend.

The Sura started with a reference to Prophet Moses (PBUH) and the Children of Israel and ends with a reference to their story and the story of the demise of Pharaoh, “And verily We gave Moses nine clear signs. Do ask the Children of Israel when he came to them, then Pharaoh said to him, ‘Moses, I think you are bewitched.’” The nine signs that were given to Moses’ (PBUH) included the miracles of turning his hand to become illuminated without a disease, and transforming his staff to become a serpent. They also included the punishments which God inflicted on the Egyptians. These were the draught, the scarcity of crops, the flood, the locusts, the lice, the frogs, and the blood. Pharaoh, the tyrant accused Moses (PBUH) of sorcery because he did not tolerate Moses (PBUH) call to the truth and the worship of God. Moses (PBUH) stood in the face of the tyrant because he was assured of God’s help, “Moses said, ‘You know well that these things have been sent down by none but the Lord of the heavens and the earth as eye-opening evidence. Pharaoh, I believe you are indeed doomed to destruction.’”

Pharaoh tried to use his material power to punish Moses (PBUH) and his people but God was ever watching, “And he wished to scare them from the land, but We drowned him and those with him, all together.” The tyrant was drowned and the meek inherited the land, “And We said to the Children of Israel after him, ‘Dwell in the land; but when the promise of the Hereafter comes to pass We shall bring you as a crowd gathered out of various nations.’” Everyone will be called upon on the Day of Judgment to account for their deeds.

The Quran was revealed with the truth; it is an everlasting sign for people to heed the truth. It has been revealed in parts so it can be recited over a long period of time, “We sent down the (Quran) in truth, and in truth has it descended. And We did not send you except as a bearer of glad tidings and a warner. (It is) a Quran which We have divided in parts, in order that you recite it to the people over a long period of time. We have revealed it in stages.” The Quran embodied the details of a way of life to be followed by a nation of believers. This nation was commanded to present this way of life to the whole humanity. The Quran was revealed over a long period of time to use practical life situations to teach the nation God’s way of life. It provided a meticulously designed program to be implemented over a specified time plan. The first generation of Muslims listened to the Quran as it was revealed, they understood it, and they implemented it in their daily life. Ibn Mas’ood (RA) said, “We used to read ten verses at a time, we do not move to the next ten verses until we have understood the first ten and implemented them in our daily life.”

This Quran was revealed with the truth to establish the truth; its contents are the truth and its objective is to establish the truth. The Prophet (PBUH) was commanded to call the people to submit to the truth but to leave to them the choice whether they believe in it or not. They should be willing to face the consequences of their choice, “Say, ‘Whether you believe in it or not, it is true that those who were given knowledge beforehand, when it is recited to them, fall down prostrate on their faces. And they say, ‘Glory to our Lord, verily the promise of our Lord has been fulfilled.’ They fall down on their faces in tears, and it increases their humility.” Verses paint a scene that moves the inner self of the human being, the scene of those who were given the knowledge before the revelation of the Quran. When they listened to the Quran they could not control their feelings; they fell down prostrating, their eyes flowing with tears. They recognized the truth of the Quran and they realized that the promise of God has been fulfilled.

The verses turn again to the idolaters of Mecca telling them to call upon God using any of His beautiful names. They should not follow the myth of the idol worship which prohibited them from calling God Al-Rahman, “Say, ‘Call upon God, or call upon Al-Rahman. By whatever name you call upon Him, for to Him belong the Most Beautiful Names. Do not raise your voice in your prayer, nor say it in a low voice, but seek a middle course in between.’” The rules regarding the level of voice which Muslims should use during the prayer were set.

The Sura is concluded as it was started, by praising God and stating His uniqueness and His independence. Say, “Praise be to God, who begat no son, and has no associate in (His) dominion. He did not need any to protect Him from humiliation. Magnify Him for His greatness and glory.”

Sura18: Al-Kahf (The Cave)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

A major part of this Sura is dedicated to the narration of a number of stories. The rest of the Sura provides a commentary on these stories, in addition to a description of a scene from the Day of Judgment. The stories narrated include the story of the companions of the cave, the story of the two gardens, the story of Moses (PBUH) and the righteous man, and the story of Zulqarnain. In addition, there is a brief reference to the story of Adam (PBUH) and Iblis. The stories are used to emphasize the main topical theme of the Sura. The main topical theme of the Sura discusses the use of true faith as a standard to define the foundation of the sound way of life and its values.

Hawwa mentions that the stories of the companions of the cave and Zulqarnain were narrated in response to the questions posed by the pagans of Mecca. He quotes al-Souoti in narrating the following story.

The pagans of Mecca consulted with the Jews of Medina about how to ascertain the prophet-hood of Prophet Muhammad (PBUH). The Jews suggested that they should ask him about three things: What is the spirit, what is the story of the companions of the cave, and what is the story of Zulqarnain. They said that if he answered these questions correctly, this would prove that he is a true prophet. The answer to the first question was given in Surat al-Israa, while the answers to the other two questions was mentioned in this Sura.

Hawwa also mentions the great benefits and blessings that accrue as a result of reciting Surat al-Kahf especially on Fridays.

Verses 1 to 27:

- 1. Praise be to God who sent down the Book upon His servant, and did not place any crookedness in it.*
- 2. (He has made it) Straight (and clear) in order that He may warn (the godless) of a terrible punishment from Him, and that He may give glad tidings to the believers who do good deeds, that they shall have a goodly reward.*
- 3. In which they shall remain forever.*
- 4. And to warn those who say, "God has taken a son."*
- 5. They have no knowledge of such a thing, nor had their fathers. Grave is the word that comes out of their mouths. They speak nothing but a lie.*
- 6. Perchance you would fret yourself to death, in grief, over them if they do not believe in this message.*
- 7. We have made whatever is on the earth an embellishment for it, so that We may try them (as to) which of them is best in deeds.*
- 8. Verily, We shall make what is on earth a barren ground.*
- 9. Or did you think that the Companions of the Cave and of the Inscription were some of Our wonderful signs?*
- 10. When the young men fled to the cave seeking refuge and said, "Our Lord, grant us mercy from Your presence, and provide for us a right course in our affair.*

11. Then We sealed up their hearing in the Cave for a number of years.
12. Then We roused them, in order to test which of the two parties was best at calculating the time they had remained.
13. We narrate to you their story with truth. They were young men who believed in their Lord, and We increased them in guidance.
14. We strengthened their hearts when they stood up and said, "Our Lord is the Lord of the heavens and the earth. We call upon no god beside Him, for then we would be uttering a transgression.
15. These, our people, have taken gods other than Him though they bring no clear proof. Who is in greater wrong than he who invents a lie against God?
16. And when you abandon them and that which they worship except God, then seek refuge in the cave; your Lord will spread for you of His mercy and will prepare for you an easy way out from your ordeal."
17. And (had you been present) you would have seen the sun, when it rose, declining to the right from their cave, and when it set, turning away from them to the left, while they lay in the open space in the midst of the cave. Such are among the signs of God. He whom God guides is rightly guided; but he whom God leaves to go astray, for him you will not find a protecting guardian to guide him.
18. (Had you seen them) You would have thought they were awake, while they were asleep, and We turned them on their right and on their left sides, their dog stretching his two fore-legs on the threshold. Had you seen them, you would have certainly turned back from them in flight, and would certainly have been filled with terror of them.
19. And thus We awakened them that they might question one another. A speaker from among them said, "How long have you remained?" They said, "We remained a day or some part of a day." (Others) said, "Your Lord knows best how long you remained. Now send one of you with this silver coin of yours to the city, and let him see what food is purest there and bring you a supply thereof. Let him be courteous and let no one know of you.
20. For if they should come upon you, they would stone you or force you to return to their cult, and in that case you would never succeed."
21. Thus did We make their case known to the people, that they might know that the promise of God is true, and that there can be no doubt about the Hour of Judgment. They disputed among themselves as to their affair. (Some) said, "Construct a building over them," Their Lord knows best about them. Those who prevailed over their affair said, "Let us surely build a place of worship over them."
22. (Some) will say they were three, the dog being the fourth among them; and (some) say they were five, the dog being the sixth, doubtfully guessing at the unknown; (yet others) say they were seven, the dog being the eighth. Say, "My Lord knows best their number." It is but few that know their (real case). Enter not, therefore, into controversies concerning them, except on a matter that is clear, nor consult any of them about (the affair of) them (the sleepers).
23. And never say of anything, "Indeed I shall do that tomorrow,"
24. Except if God wills. And remember your Lord when you forget, and say, "It may be that my Lord guides me to a way nearer to the truth than this."
25. And (it is said) they remained in their cave three hundred years plus nine.

26. Say, "God knows best how long they stayed." With Him is (the knowledge of) the secrets of the heavens and the earth. How clearly He sees, how finely He hears (everything.) They have no protecting guardian other than Him; nor does He share His command with any person whatsoever.
27. And recite that which has been revealed to you of the Book of your Lord. None can change His words, and you will not a refuge other than Him. (18: 1 - 27)

"Praise be to God who sent down the Book upon His servant, and did not place any crookedness in it. (He has made it) Straight (and Clear) in order that He may warn (the godless) of a terrible punishment from Him, and that He may give glad tidings to the believers who do good deeds, that they shall have a goodly reward, In which they shall remain forever. And to warn those who say, "God has taken a son." They have no knowledge of such a thing, nor had their fathers. Grave is the word that comes out of their mouths. They speak nothing but a lie. Perchance you would fret yourself to death, in grief, over them if they do not believe in this Message. We have made whatever is on the earth an embellishment for it, so that We may try them (as to) which of them is best in deeds. Verily, We shall make what is on earth a barren ground." From the outset the verses set a clear framework for the doctrine. God is the One who revealed the Book, we should be grateful to God, Muhammad (PBUH) is God's servant, and God did not beget a son. The verses emphasize the clarity and authenticity of the Book. Its meanings are forthright and there is no deviation or ambiguity in them. The goal of the Book is clear; it brings a warning and a glad tidings. The language used to issue the warning is stern. First a general warning is issued followed by a specific warning to those who claim that God has begotten a son. They have no knowledge to support their claim. This is a major sin since it deals with the essence of the faith. The way the verse was worded magnifies the gravity of the sin by suggesting that their uttering is like a bullet coming out of their mouths. Then it emphasizes the falsity of their claim.

One can detect a note of disapproval, "Perchance you would fret yourself to death, in grief, over them if they do not believe in this message." The verse addresses the Prophet (PBUH) telling him that he should not feel bad about those people who rejected guidance. God created the earth and its ornaments as a testing ground for people. God knows what each and every one will do but He will only hold people accountable for their actions not according to His knowledge. This is out of God's immense mercy and fairness. In the end the earth will lose all its ornaments and become a barren ground.

The following verses tell the story of the companions of the cave. The story portrays an example of how faith brings security to the believing soul. The companions of the cave preferred to flee with their faith seeking refuge in an abandoned cave rather than enjoy the pleasures of life living in a faithless atmosphere. God rewarded them for their deeds and made them an example for humanity. The verses present a summary for the story first then it delves into the details of the story.

"Or did you think that the Companions of the Cave and of the Inscription were some of Our wonderful signs? When the young men fled to the cave seeking refuge and said, 'Our Lord, grant us mercy from Your presence, and provide for us a right course in our affair.' Then We sealed up their hearing in the Cave for a number of years. Then We roused them, in order to test which of the two parties was best at calculating the time they had remained.” This is a summary of the story from which we know that the companions of the cave were young people – of unknown number – who were believers and they sought refuge in a cave. God put them to sleep for a number of years then He aroused them after their long sleep. Although this is an amazing story, but God’s signs in the universe around us are more amazing.

This was the summary, now we come to the details, “We narrate to you their story with truth. They were young men who believed in their Lord, and We increased them in guidance. We strengthened their hearts when they stood up and said, “Our Lord is the Lord of the heavens and the earth. We call upon no god beside Him, for then we would be uttering a transgression. These, our people, have taken gods other than Him though they bring no clear proof. Who is in greater wrong than he who invents a lie against God?” This is the first scene in the story. Because they were young believers they received more guidance from God which enabled them to make the right decision. God strengthened their hearts and filled them with security and pride in their faith. They stood up against their people who were idol worshipers and acknowledged their own monotheistic faith. They were steadfast in rejecting any form of associating partners with God. They had no recourse but to part ways with their people because their ways became irreconcilable. They decided to flee with their faith. They were not messengers of God so they were not responsible for guiding their people to the right path. They were simply a group of young men who believed in God and could not live in this disbelieving environment. They made their belief known. They must have been persecuted by their people. Their only course of action which was available for them to escape the persecution was to flee to a cave. .

“And when you abandon them and that which they worship except God, then seek refuge in the cave; your Lord will spread for you of His mercy and will prepare for you an easy way out from your ordeal.” It is amazing how the mercy of God fills the hearts of the believers who abandoned their people and left the comfortable life of the city to the rugged life of the cave. God’s mercy filled their hearts with tranquility and strength so they felt comfortable in the cave.

“And (had you been present) you would have seen the sun, when it rose, declining to the right from their cave, and when it set, turning away from them to the left, while they lay in the open space in the midst of the cave. Such are among the signs of God. He whom God guides is rightly guided; but he whom God leaves to go astray, for him you will not find a protecting guardian to guide him. (Had you seen them) You would have thought they were awake, while they were asleep, and We turned them on their right and on their left sides, their dog stretching his two fore-legs on the threshold. Had you seen them, you would have certainly turned back from them in flight, and would certainly have been filled with terror of them.” The verses paint a dynamic scene as if it were a movie showing how the young men slept and how the sun moved away from the cave so that it would not disturb their sleep. These are signs of God. They stayed alive all this time. God’s guidance is controlled by His law. There are means for seeking and receiving guidance. Those who seek guidance and use the means that God has decreed will be guided by God. Those who reject guidance will never find anyone to guide them. The depiction of the scene continues. God moved them around in their sleep and the dog was sitting at the entrance of the cave as if it was providing protection. Anyone who saw them would run away in fear. This was God's plan.

Then they got up, “And thus We awakened them that they might question one another. A speaker from among them said, ‘How long have you remained?’ They said, ‘We remained a day or some part of a day.’ (Others) said, ‘Your Lord knows best how long you remained. Now send one of you with this silver coin of yours to the city, and let him see what food is purest there and bring you a supply thereof. Let him be courteous and let no one know of you. For if they should come upon you, they would stone you or force you to return to their cult, and in that case you would never succeed.’” The verses describe the scene when they woke up. They did not know how long they had slept. Since they had no way of knowing how long they slept, they continued to discuss how they were going to get food from the town without being detected. They were afraid that if they were detected they would be captured and tortured or executed; and if they were forced to abandon their faith then this would be the greatest loss.

We understand from the narrative that while the young men were sleeping in the cave the people of the town had become believers. The people of the town celebrated the return of the young people. One can imagine the enormity of the surprise the young men must have experienced when they realized how long the period they spent sleeping. Their return was a miracle and people treated them as celebrities. But they have lost all ties to the community. The people they knew and cared for were all long gone. It was the mercy of God that now they would actually die. We can imagine all these intermediate scenes, but the Quran moves directly to the scene when they died. People were arguing how they should celebrate their story to keep their memory alive, “Thus did We make their case known to the people, that they might know that the promise of God is true, and that there can be no doubt about the Hour of Judgment. They disputed among themselves as to their affair. (Some) said, ‘Construct a building over them,’ their Lord knows best about them. Those who prevailed over their affair said, ‘Let us surely build a place of worship over them.’” The main lesson to be learned from this story is the fact that God is able to resurrect people after death. There is no doubt that God's promise will be fulfilled and that the Day of Judgement will come.

There were several stories about the number of these young people, “(Some) will say they were three, the dog being the fourth among them; and (some) say they were five, the dog being the sixth, doubtfully guessing at the unknown; (yet others) say they were seven, the dog being the eighth. Say, ‘My Lord knows best their number.’ It is but few that know their (real case). Enter not, therefore, into controversies concerning them, except on a matter that is clear, nor consult any of them about (the affair of) them (the sleepers).” It is really not important to know how many they were. God knows their exact count. The objective of the story has been achieved whether they were many or few. So the Quran commands the Prophet (PBUH) not to get into an argument with anyone about their number.

“And never say of anything, ‘Indeed I shall do that tomorrow,’” Every move one makes and every breath one inhales is controlled by God's will. Humankind is unable to see beyond the present moment. So do not say that you will do this tomorrow, because tomorrow is unseen as far as mortals are concerned. This does not mean that we stop thinking and planning about the future, but what it means is that we need to enlist God's help for the success of our plans. Humankind must think and plan but he should realize that his thoughts and his planning are a blessing from God. One has to do one's best to achieve his/her goal but should realize that the results are in the hand of God. One has to accept the results that God has decreed and submit to His will, "Except if God wills. And remember your Lord when you forget, and say, 'It may be that my Lord guides me to a nearer way of truth than this.'"

The narrative comes back to the story of the companions of the cave, "And (it is said) they remained in their cave three hundred years plus nine. Say, 'God knows best how long they stayed.' With Him is (the knowledge of) the secrets of the heavens and the earth. How clearly He sees, how finely He hears (everything.) They have no protecting guardian other than Him; nor does He share His Command with any person whatsoever." The verse states the principle of the oneness of God which is the underlying theme of the story.

A command was then issued to the Prophet (PBUH), "And recites that which has been revealed to you of the Book of your Lord. None can change His words, and you will not a refuge other than Him."

Verses 28 to 46

28. And persevere with those who call on their Lord morning and evening, seeking His Face; and let not your eyes pass beyond them, seeking the pomp and glitter of this Life; nor obey any whose heart We have made heedless of Our remembrance, who follows his own whim and whose affair is ever in neglect.
29. And Say, "The truth is from your Lord." Then whosoever wills, let him believe, and whosoever wills, let him disbelieve. We have prepared for the disbelievers Fire. They will be surrounded by it from all sides. If they ask for relief, they will be showered with water like molten lead which burns the faces, evil the drink and ill the resting-place.
30. As to those who believe and do good deeds, verily We shall not waste the reward of any who does a good deed.
31. For them will be Gardens of Eden; beneath them rivers will flow; they will be adorned therein with bracelets of gold, and they will wear green garments of fine silk and heavy brocade. They will recline therein on raised couches. Excellent is the recompense and good is the resting place.
32. Set forth to them the parable of two men. For one of them We provided two gardens of grape-vines and surrounded them with date palms; in between the two We placed corn-fields.
33. Each of those gardens brought forth its produce, and failed not in the least therein. In the midst of them We caused a river to flow.
34. (Abundant) was the produce this man had. He said to his companion, in the course of a mutual argument, "I have more wealth, honour, and power than you."
35. And he went into his garden, while he (thus) wronged himself. He said, "I think not that all this will ever perish."

36. I do not think that the Hour will ever come, and if indeed I am brought back to my Lord I will most certainly find better than this as a resort.
37. His companion said to him, in the course of the argument with him, "Did you reject Him who created you out of dust, then out of a sperm-drop, then fashioned you into a man?"
38. But He is God, my Lord, and I do not associate anyone with my Lord.
39. If only, when you entered your garden, you had said, "That which God wills (will come to pass.) There is no strength save that given by God. Though you see me as less than you in wealth and children,
40. Yet it may be that my Lord will give me better than your garden, and will send on it a bolt from the sky, and some morning it will be a smooth ground without plants;
41. Or the water of the garden will run off underground so that you will never be able to find it."
42. So his fruits were destroyed, and he remained twisting and turning his hands over what he had spent on his property, which had (now) tumbled to pieces to its very foundations, and he could only say, "I wish I had not associated partners with my Lord."
43. And he had no one to help him against God, nor could he save himself.
44. Protection comes only from the True God, He provides the best reward, and guarantees the best outcome.
45. Set forth to them the similitude of the life of this world. It is like the rain which we send down from the skies. The earth's vegetation absorbs it, but soon it becomes dry stubble, which the winds do scatter. It is (only) God who has power over all things.
46. Wealth and children are the ornament of the life of this world. But good deeds which endure are better in your Lord's sight for reward, and better grounds for hope. (18: 28 – 46)

The following verses establish the values which are entrenched in the Islamic faith. Wealth, authority, power, and material pleasures are not the true values of human life. These are all transient commodities. Islam allows its adherents to enjoy these pleasures when they are obtained through legitimate means. One should be grateful to God that allowed the enjoyment of such pleasures. However, these pleasures should not be an end in themselves and the good deeds that endure are better than the transient pleasures. The Quran commands the Prophet (PBUH) to choose the company of those who remember God over the company of those who are heedless, "And persevere with those who call on their Lord morning and evening, seeking His Face; and let not your eyes pass beyond them, seeking the pomp and glitter of this Life; nor obey any whose heart We have made heedless of Our remembrance, who follows his own whim and whose affair is ever in neglect. And Say, "The truth is from your Lord." Then whosoever wills, let him believe, and whosoever wills, let him disbelieve. We have prepared for the disbelievers Fire. They will be surrounded by it from all sides. If they ask for relief, they will be relieved with water like molten lead which burns the faces, evil the drink and ill the resting-place."

It is narrated that this verse was revealed when some of the chiefs of Quraish wanted a private audience with the Prophet (PBUH) that does not include the poverty stricken Muslims like Bilal (RA), Suhaib (RA), 'Ammar (RA) and others. The Prophet (PBUH) thought that may be if he granted the chiefs their request they would adopt Islam. This verse came down to establish a fundamental principle and to outline the correct values of life. The Prophet (PBUH) should be perseverant and continue with those who continuously seek God's blessings. These are the people who will be willing to support the message wholeheartedly. The Prophet (PBUH) was commanded to keep their company and not to listen to a person, "whose heart We have made heedless of Our remembrance, who follows his own whim and whose affair is ever in neglect." A heart that is full of love for the transient worldly pleasures has no room for God's remembrance, it is a heedless heart.

Islam came to make all people equal. The status of people should neither be decided on the basis of wealth nor on the basis of power. The status of people is decided on the basis of their dedication and devotion to God.

The Prophet (PBUH) was commanded to, "Say, 'The truth is from your Lord.' Then whosoever wills, let him believe, and whosoever wills, let him disbelieve." This is an unequivocal statement that establishes a firm rule. There is no compromise regarding matters of doctrine. The doctrine has been established by God, no one else has the power to change it.

The end of the disbelievers is presented through a depiction of one of the scenes of the Day of Judgment, "We have prepared for disbelievers Fire. They will be surrounded by it from all sides. If they ask for relief, they will be relieved with water like molten lead which burns the faces, evil is the drink and ill is the resting-place." But the believers will enjoy their reward, "As to those who believe and do good deeds, verily We shall not waste the reward of any who does a good deed. For them will be Gardens of Eden; beneath them rivers will flow; they will be adorned therein with bracelets of gold, and they will wear green garments of fine silk and heavy brocade. They will recline therein on raised couches. Excellent is the recompense and good is the resting place."

The subsequent verses narrate the story of two men one of them had two gardens while the other did not have any. The story depicts two kinds of people, the rich man who embraced the worldly life and the poor man who finds his pride in his faith. The rich man whose indulgence in the worldly pleasures made him forget about God and the Hereafter; and the believing man who continuously remembers God realizing that whatever he has is a blessing from God for which he should express his gratitude. The first scene is the scene of two blooming gardens, "Set forth to them the parable of two men. For one of them We provided two gardens of grape-vines and surrounded them with date palms; in between the two We placed corn-fields. Each of those gardens brought forth its produce, and failed not in the least therein. In the midst of them We caused a river to flow. (Abundant) was the produce this man had." The two gardens were blooming with grapes, the palm trees produced dates, and there are plenty of crops in between. It is a beautiful scene that reflects vivid life and richness. The gardens gave their produce in full, nothing was lost. When the owner of the gardens looked at them he became arrogant, "He said to his companion, in the course of a mutual argument, 'I have more wealth, honour, and power than you.'" He forgot that it is God who bestows His bounty on people. His arrogance made him reject the truth of the Day of Judgement, "And he went into his garden, while he (thus) wronged himself. He said, 'I think not that all this will ever perish. I do not think that the Hour will ever come, and if indeed I am brought back to my Lord I will most certainly find better than this as a resort.”

The other man did not have gardens and he was poor but he was proud to espouse the everlasting values of this life. He was proud of his faith and proud of the blessings of God. He warned his companion of the evil consequences of his attitude; he advised him to remember God’s bounty and to show gratitude to God, “His companion said to him, in the course of the argument with him, ‘Did you reject Him who created you out of dust, then out of a sperm-drop, then fashioned you into a man? But He is God, my Lord, and I do not associate anyone with my Lord. If only, when you entered your garden, you had said, “That which God wills (will come to pass.) There is no strength save that given by God.” Though you see me as less than you in wealth and children, Yet it may be that my Lord will give me better than your garden, and will send on it a bolt from the sky, and some morning it will be a smooth ground without plants; or the water of the garden will run off underground so that you will never be able to find it.’”

The narrative suddenly moved from the scene of the blooming gardens to the scene of destruction and devastation. The arrogant man became sorry for what he had done. What the believing man had expected happened, “So his fruits were destroyed, and he remained twisting and turning his hands over what he had spent on his property, which had (now) tumbled to pieces to its very foundations, and he could only say, ‘I wish I had not associated partners with my Lord.’” The two gardens were completely destroyed and no produce was left.

Only God has the absolute power, “And he had no one to help him against God, nor could he save himself. Protection comes only from the True God, He provides the best reward, and guarantees the best outcome.”

The example of the life of this world is like the example of the two gardens. It will not last long, “Set forth to them the similitude of the life of this world. It is like the rain which we send down from the skies. The earth's vegetation absorbs it, but soon it becomes dry stubble, which the winds do scatter. It is (only) God who has power over all things.” This is a very short scene appropriate for the example being struck for the short duration of the life of this world. But the real value of this life is given, “Wealth and children are the ornament of the life of this world. But good deeds which endure are better in your Lord's sight for reward, and better grounds for hope.” Wealth and children are the ornaments of this worldly life but they should not be used as criteria for determining the eminence of people. The real value is gained by doing good deeds which endure.

Verses 47 to 59:

- 47. And (warn of) the day on which We will cause the mountains to pass away and you will see the earth exposed and We will gather them and leave not any one of them behind.*
- 48. And they will be marshalled before your Lord in ranks, (and it will be said to them), “Now you have come to Us as We created you the first time and you thought We shall not fulfill the appointment made to you to meet (Us).”*

49. And the record will be placed, and you will see the guilty fearful of that which is therein, and they will say, "What kind of record is this that does leave out neither a small thing nor a great thing but counted it." And they will find all that they did present (before them), and your Lord wrongs no one.
50. And (remember) when We said to the angels, "Fall prostrate before Adam," and they fell prostrate, all save Iblis. He was of the jinn, so he rebelled against his Lord's command. Will you take him and his seed as your protecting guardians instead of Me, when they are your enemy? Wretched it is for the wrongdoers as an exchange.
51. I did not make them to witness the creation of the heavens and the earth, nor their own creation; I would not have taken those who lead (others) astray as helpers.
52. And (be mindful of) the Day when He will say, "Call those whom you claimed as partners of Mine." Then they will call them, but they will not respond to their call, and We shall set a gulf of doom between them.
53. And the guilty will see the Fire and will know that they are about to fall therein, and they will find no way of escape from it.
54. Verily, We have explained in detail in this Quran, for the benefit of humankind, every kind of similitude; but humankind is more contentious than any other 'thing.'
55. And what prevented people from believing now that guidance has come to them, and from asking the forgiveness of their Lord, except that what happened to the ancients should overtake them, or (that) they should be confronted with the torment.
56. We only send the messengers to give glad tidings and to give warnings. But the disbelievers dispute with vain argument, in order therewith to weaken the truth; and they treat My revelation and the warning that had been issued to them as a jest.
57. And who does greater wrong than one who is reminded of the revelations of his Lord, but turns away from them, forgetting the (deeds) which his hands have sent forth? Verily We have set veils over their hearts lest they should understand this, and deafness over their ears. If you call them to guidance, they will never follow the right course.
58. Your Lord is All-Forgiving, Full of Mercy. If He took them to task (now) for what they earned, He would hasten on the torment for them; but theirs is an appointed term from which they will find no escape.
59. And (all) those townships, We destroyed them when they acted unjustly, and We have appointed a time for their destruction. (18: 47 – 59)

"And (warn of) the day on which We will cause the mountains to pass away and you will see the earth exposed and We will gather them and leave not any one of them behind. And they will be marshalled before your Lord in ranks, (and it will be said to them), "Now you have come to Us as We created you the first time and you thought We shall not fulfill the appointment made to you to meet (Us)." The verses paint a scene using elements from the nature to emphasize the horror on the Day of Judgment. The panic on that day will move the heavy stable mountains. The earth will be exposed as an open flat page; similarly, the secrets of the hearts will be exposed. Everyone will be gathered, from the time of Adam (PBUH) to the end of time, and they will be standing in rows in front of their Lord. The narrative changes from the mode of description to the mode of addressing people who will be gathered on that day. They thought that this day will never come but here it is and you are standing in front of your Lord feeling humiliated.

Then the narrative continues, “And the record will be placed, and you will see the guilty fearful of that which is therein, and they will say, ‘What kind of record is this that does leave out neither a small thing nor a great thing but counted it.’ And they will find all that they did present (before them), and your Lord wrongs no one.” They will get their records, very meticulous records that do not leave anything out. They will be held accountable for what they did and they will get their fair recompense. God does not wrong anyone.

Those who will be regretting their actions on the Day of Judgement were forewarned about Satan and how he was determined to lead them astray, in spite of that they followed him, “And (remember) when We said to the angels, ‘Fall prostrate before Adam,’ and they fell prostrate, all save Iblis. He was of the jinn, so he rebelled against his Lord's command. Will you take him and his seed as your protecting friends instead of Me, when they are your enemy? Wretched it is for the wrongdoers as an exchange.” The reference to the story of Adam (PBUH) and Iblis is made to express how amazing it is that the descendants of Adam (PBUH) still fall for the temptation of the descendants of Iblis after they had realized that they were their enemies. They have taken the descendants of Satan as their protecting friends when they fell for their temptation and disobeyed God. Why did the criminals take the descendants of Satan as protecting friends while they had no extraordinary knowledge or power, “I did not make them to witness the creation of the heavens and the earth, nor their own creation; I would not have taken those who lead (others) astray as helpers.” God is independent, He does not need helpers but the verse exposes the myth that the idolaters were propagating. They thought that Satan and his descendants have extraordinary knowledge and power.

On the Day of Judgement God will address the guilty, “And (be mindful of) the Day when He will say, ‘Call those whom you claimed as partners of Mine.’ Then they will call them, but they will not respond to their call, and We shall set a gulf of doom between them. And the guilty will see the Fire and will know that they are about to fall therein, and they will find no way of escape from it.” The disbelievers will be placed in a difficult position. They will be asked to produce those whom they associated with God but they will not find them. They will look up and see the Fire and will realize that this is their end.

“Verily, We have explained in detail in this Quran, for the benefit of humankind, every kind of similitude; but humankind is more contentious than any other ‘thing.’” The verse refers to humankind as a “thing,” and as “contentious,” to induce humankind to moderate his arrogance and make him realize that God has created so many other creatures. Humankind was more contentious than any of the other creatures of God.

“And what prevented people from believing now that guidance has come to them, and from asking the forgiveness of their Lord, except that what happened to the ancients should overtake them, or (that) they should be confronted with the torment.” Many earlier generations received guidance from God but they always challenged the messengers to bring about the punishment that they were threatened with. The messengers’ role was only to deliver the message not to exact punishment, “We only send the messengers to give glad tidings and to give warnings. But the disbelievers dispute with vain argument, in order therewith to weaken the truth; and they treat My revelation and the warning that had been issued to them as a jest.” The truth was obvious to them but they argued falsely against it, “And who does greater wrong than one who is reminded of the revelations of his Lord, but turns away from them, forgetting the (deeds) which his hands have sent forth? Verily We have set veils over their hearts lest they should understand this, and deafness over their ears. If you call them to guidance, they will never follow the right course.” There is no hope that those who were mocking the Prophet (PBUH), and the verses of the Quran, will ever find guidance. God gave them respite to a specified term, “Your Lord is the All-Forgiving, Full of Mercy. If He took them to task (now) for what they earned, He would hasten on the torment for them; but theirs is an appointed term from which they will find no escape.” They should not misunderstand God’s reprieve because the term will end and they will meet the promised destiny, “And (all) those townships, We destroyed them when they acted unjustly, and We have appointed a time for their destruction.

Verses 60 to 82:

60. And when Moses said to his servant, “I will not give up until I reach the point where the two seas meet, or will continue on for ages.”
61. But when they reached the junction, they forgot (about) their fish, which took its course into the sea, slipping away.
62. And when they had gone further, he said to his servant, “Bring us our midday meal. Verily we have become tired in our journey.”
63. He said, “Did you see, when we took refuge on the rock, I forgot the fish - and none but Satan caused me to forget to mention it - it took its way into the sea amazingly.”
64. He (Moses) said, “This was what we were seeking.” So they retraced their steps again.
65. Then they found one of Our servants, to whom We had given mercy from Us, and had taught him knowledge from Our presence.
66. Moses said to him, “May I follow you; that you may teach me from what you have been taught of sound judgment?”
67. (The other) said, “Verily you will not be able to have patience with me;
68. And how can you have patience about things about which you did not get a comprehensive knowledge?”
69. Moses said, “You will find me, if God so wills, perseverant; nor shall I disobey you in any matter.”
70. He said, “If you go with me, ask me not concerning anything till I myself make mention of it to you.”
71. So they both proceeded until, when they were in the boat, he made a hole therein. (Moses) said, “Did you make a hole therein to drown its people?” You verily did a dreadful thing.”
72. He answered, “Did I not say that you will not be able to have patience with me?”
73. Moses said, “Do not rebuke me for forgetting, nor be hard upon me for my fault.”
74. Then they proceeded until, when they met a young man, he slew him. Moses said, “Did you slew an innocent person who had slain none? Truly you have done a horrid thing.”
75. He answered, “Did I not tell you that you will not be able to have patience with me?”

76. (Moses) said, "If I ever ask you about anything after this, keep me not in your company. You have received an excuse from me."
77. Then they proceeded until, when they came to the inhabitants of a town, they asked them for food, but they refused them hospitality. They found there a wall on the point of falling down, but he set it up straight. (Moses) said, "If you had wished, you could have taken some payment for it."
78. He answered, "This is the parting between you and me. Now I will tell you the interpretation of (those things) over which you were unable to hold patience."
79. As for the boat, it belonged to poor people working at sea. I wanted to mar it, for there was after them a king who used to seize every boat by force.
80. And as for the lad, his parents were believers and we feared that he would oppress them by rebellion and disbelief.
81. So we desired that their Lord would give them in exchange (a son) better in purity (of conduct) and closer in affection.
82. As for the wall, it belonged to two orphan boys in the town; and there was a treasure buried beneath it, to which they were entitled. Their father had been a righteous man. So your Lord desired that they should attain their age of full strength and get out their treasure - a mercy (and favour) from your Lord. I did it not of my own accord. Such is the interpretation of (those things) over which you were unable to hold patience." (18: 60 - 82)

This episode from the story of Prophet Moses (PBUH) appears in this Sura only. The Quran does not specify the location in which it took place. The location is only referred to as, "the point where the two seas meet." The Quran also did not fix the date of this episode. No information was given about the righteous servant of God whom Moses (PBUH) was looking for.

We understand from the narrative that Moses (PBUH) was determined to reach the point at which the two seas meet no matter how difficult it was or how long it would take him to get there, "And when Moses said to his servant, 'I will not give up until I reach the point where the two seas meet, or will continue on for ages.'"

"But when they reached the junction, they forgot (about) their fish, which took its course into the sea, slipping away. And when they had gone further, he said to his servant, 'Bring us our midday meal. Verily we have become tired in our journey.' He said, 'Did you see, when we took refuge on the rock, I forgot the fish - and none but Satan caused me to forget to mention it - it took its way into the sea amazingly.'" Moses (PBUH) realized that he missed the place where he was supposed to meet the righteous servant of God. So Moses (PBUH) and his servant went back and he found the righteous man at the rock, "He (Moses) said, 'This was what we were seeking.' So they retraced their steps again. Then they found one of Our servants, to whom We had given mercy from Us, and had taught him knowledge from Our presence."

It seems that the encounter between Moses (PBUH) and the righteous man was meant to be a confidential meeting. So there is no mention of Moses' (PBUH) servant in the following verses, “Moses said to him, ‘May I follow you, that you may teach me from what you have been taught of sound judgment?’” Moses (PBUH) requested the righteous man’s company in a very polite way, a way that is befitting of a prophet. He wanted to learn from the righteous man. The knowledge that this man had was not normal human knowledge but it was a special kind of knowledge which the man had received from his Lord. The man realized that Moses (PBUH), being not privy to such knowledge, will not be able to put up with the strange things that they will encounter. So he warned Moses (PBUH), “(The other) said, ‘Verily you will not be able to have patience with me; and how can you have patience about things about which you did not get comprehensive knowledge?’” But Moses (PBUH) was determined to accompany the man; he enlisted the help of God to give him patience, “Moses said, ‘You will find me, if God so wills, perseverant; nor shall I disobey you in any matter.’” The man then outlined his conditions to allow Moses (PBUH) to accompany him, “He said, ‘If you go with me, ask me not concerning anything till I myself make mention of it to you.’” Moses (PBUH) agreed. They proceeded together. The following verse describes the first scene of the trip, “So they both proceeded until, when they were in the boat, he made a hole therein. (Moses) said, ‘Did you make a hole therein to drown its people? You verily did a dreadful thing.’” Moses (PBUH) was surprised by what the righteous man did when they boarded the ship among others. The ship was at sea and the righteous man drilled a hole in the ship. It was apparent that this action will cause the ship to sink and subject the people to drowning. Why would the man do this? Moses (PBUH) forgot what the man told him and forgot his promise to the man. Sometimes one agrees to do something in principle but gets to appreciate the gravity of the consequences of the deed when one actually has to perform what he had agreed upon. Moses (PBUH) was told that he would not be able to be patient, seeing surprising things which are happening without an apparent justification. Nevertheless, Moses (PBUH) was determined to accompany the righteous man. Moses asked God for help and made up his mind to be patient but when he saw the man drilling a hole in the ship he could not stand by and watch silently. This behavior was in conformity with Moses (PBUH) personality. It appears that Moses (PBUH) was an emotional and impulsive man. This nature was apparent when he tried to support his fellow Jew and pushed the Egyptian who was fighting with the Jew and the Egyptian fell dead. Moses (PBUH) asked God for forgiveness and God forgave him, but the next day the same story was about to be repeated again.

The righteous man responded to Moses’ (PBUH) objection calmly and nicely, “He answered, ‘Did I not say that you will not be able to have patience with me?’” Moses (PBUH) remembered the promise he made so he apologized, “Moses said, ‘Do not rebuke me for forgetting, nor be hard upon me for my fault.’” The righteous man accepted his apology and they continued on their trip, “Then they proceeded until, when they met a young man, he slew him. Moses said, ‘Did you slew an innocent person who had slain none? Truly you have done a horrid thing.’” Moses (PBUH) could not have stood silent seeing an innocent young man being killed. He objected strenuously. The righteous man responded, “He answered, ‘Did I not tell you that you will not be able to have patience with me?’” One can notice the emphasis in the righteous man’s second response, “Did I not tell you.” Moses (PBUH) asked the righteous man to give him one last chance, “(Moses) said, ‘If I ever ask you about anything after this, keep me not in your company. You have received an excuse from me.’”

They proceeded, “until, when they came to the inhabitants of a town, they asked them for food, but they refused them hospitality. They found there a wall on the point of falling down, but he set it up straight. (Moses) said, ‘If you had wished, you could have taken some payment for it.’” They were hungry, the people of the town refused to feed them but the man saw a wall that was about to collapse so he volunteered to repair it. That looked contradictory to Moses (PBUH), again he could not keep himself from sounding his objection. This was his last chance, “He answered, ‘This is the parting between you and me. Now I will tell you the interpretation of (those things) over which you were unable to hold patience.’”

So far we are in the same boat as Moses (PBUH). We are facing these surprising acts that the righteous man performed without having any inkling of what was behind them. We do not even know the name of the righteous man. However, what do we gain had we known his name? The lesson that we learn is that the divine wisdom may allow things, which seems unreasonable to us, to happen because they will result in the achievement of beneficial goals in the long term. The fact that the identity of the righteous man was kept hidden is befitting to a story that deals with the knowledge of the unseen.

The righteous man started to explain the reasons behind his actions, “As for the boat, it belonged to poor people working at sea. I wanted to mar it, for there was after them a king who used to seize every boat by force.” The hole that the righteous man drilled would render the boat undesirable in the sight of the king and its owners will be able to keep it.

“And as for the lad, his parents were believers and we feared that he would oppress them by rebellion and disbelief. So we desired that their Lord would give them in exchange (a son) better in purity (of conduct) and closer in affection.” The young man may have been innocent but he was going to be a tyrant and had he been allowed to live he would have caused his parents a great deal of agony and harm. The decision to kill the young man was based on divine knowledge revealed to the righteous man. Such a decision is not a human prerogative. Human judgement should only be based on known facts. According to Islamic law since the young man did not commit a crime so far he should not have been killed. But here we are dealing with the knowledge of the unseen.

Finally, the matter of the wall is explained, “As for the wall, it belonged to two orphan boys in the town; and there was a treasure buried beneath it, to which they were entitled. Their father had been a righteous man. So your Lord desired that they should attain their age of full strength and get out their treasure - a mercy (and favour) from your Lord. I did it not of my own accord. Such is the interpretation of (those things) over which you were unable to hold patience.” God wanted the two orphans to grow up and reclaim the treasure which their father left for them. The treasure was buried under the wall and had the man not repaired the wall the treasure would have been exposed and the two boys would have lost their treasure. Their father was a righteous man so God wanted to reward them for their father’s deeds.

The story of the righteous man and the story of the companions of the cave share the common theme of trusting the unseen to God. He manages the affairs according to His divine wisdom and comprehensive and absolute knowledge. Such knowledge is kept hidden from people to be revealed only to whom God wills and at the right time.

Verses 83 to 110:

83. And they ask you about Zulqarnain. Say, "I will recite to you an account of him."
84. Verily We established him on earth, and We gave him the ways and the means to all ends.
85. And he followed a road;
86. Till, when he reached the setting-place of the sun, he found it setting in a muddy spring, and found a people thereabout. We said, "Zulqarnain, either you torment or show them kindness."
87. He said, "We will torment whoever does wrong, then he will be sent back to his Lord; and He will punish him an awful torment.
88. But whoever believes, and does good deeds, he shall have a goodly reward, and easy will be his task as we order it by our command."
89. Then he followed a road;
90. Till, when he reached the rising-place of the sun, he found it rising on a people for whom We had given no shelter therefrom.
91. So (it was). And We knew all about him.
92. Then he followed a road;
93. Till, when he reached (a pass) between the two mountains, he found beside them a people who could hardly understand a word.
94. They said, "Zulqarnain, verily Gog and Magog make mischief in the land. Shall we then pay you a tribute on condition that you erect a barrier between us and them?"
95. He said, "That which the Lord empowered me with is better (than your tribute). Help me therefore with strength (labour), I will erect a strong barrier between you and them.
96. Bring me blocks of iron." At length, when he had filled up the space between the two steep mountain-sides, He said, "Blow (with your bellows.)" Then, when he had made it (red) as fire, he said, "Bring me molten copper to pour upon it."
97. And (Gog and Magog) were not able to surmount, nor could they pierce (it).
98. He said, "This is a mercy from my Lord. But when the promise of my Lord comes to pass, He will make it into dust; and the promise of my Lord is true."
99. On that Day We shall leave them to surge like waves on one another. The trumpet will be blown, and We shall gather them all together.
100. And We shall present Hell that Day for disbelievers to see, all spread out.
101. Those whose eyes were blind to My reminder, and who could not even hear.
102. Did the disbelievers think that they can take My servants as protecting guardians besides Me? Verily We have prepared Hell as a lodge for the disbelievers.
103. Say, "Shall we tell you of those who lose most in respect of their deeds?"
104. Those whose efforts have been wasted in this life, while they thought that they were doing good deeds?
105. Those are they who disbelieved in the revelations of their Lord and in the meeting with Him. Therefor their deeds are in vain, and on the Day of Resurrection We assign no weight to them.
106. That is their reward, Hell, because they disbelieved, and made a jest of Our revelations and Our messengers.

107. As to those who believed and did good deeds, they have, for their lodging, the gardens of paradise,
108. Wherein they shall dwell for ever with no desire to be removed from them.”
109. Say, “If the sea became ink for the words of my Lord, verily the sea would be used up before the words of my Lord were exhausted, even if We brought the like of it as a supplement.”
110. Say, “I am only a mortal like you. It has been revealed to me that your God is only One God. And whoever hopes for the meeting with his Lord, let him do good deeds, and do not associate partners with his Lord.” (18: 83 – 110)

“And they ask you about Zulqarnain. Say, ‘I will recite to you an account of him.’” Muhammad bin Ishaq narrated (through a chain of narration that quoted Ibn Abbas (RA)) that this Sura was revealed to answer questions that the idolater Arabs asked the Prophet (PBUH). Quraish sent Al-Nadar bin Al-Hareth and ‘Oquobah bin Abi Ma’et to ask the Jews of Medina about Muhammad (PBUH). The Jews of Medina came up with three questions for Quraish to ask Prophet Muhammad (PBUH). They said to them only a prophet would be able to give the correct answers to these questions. The questions were about the companions of the cave, a man who travelled from one end of the earth to the other end, and the nature of the spirit. Al-Nadar and ‘Oquobah came back from Medina and told their people the three questions. The chiefs of Quraish went to the Prophet (PBUH) and asked him to give them answers to the three questions. The Prophet (PBUH) told them that he will give them the answers the following day. Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) waited for a revelation from God to give him the answers however; his waiting period went on for two weeks. The chiefs of Quraish started to be critical of the Prophet (PBUH). He was saddened by what the chiefs of Quraish were saying. At the end of the two weeks the angel Gabriel came to him and gave him Surat Al-Kahf, telling him not to be saddened by what the chiefs of Quraish were saying and giving him the answers to the three questions.

There are other narrations which deal with the reasons behind the revelation of this Sura. It is better not to dwell on them. It is better to focus on the Quranic text which indicates that the questions were posed to the Prophet (PBUH). However, the Quran does not indicate who asked the questions, “And they ask you about Zulqarnain.” The answer to this question indicated that God gave Zulqarnain great power which enabled him to establish a vast kingdom, “Verily We established him on earth, and We gave him the ways and the means to all ends.” Zulqarnain travelled westward, “And he followed a road; till, when he reached the setting-place of the sun, he found it setting in a muddy spring, and found a people thereabout. We said, ‘Zulqarnain, either you torment or show them kindness.’” It is difficult to determine the place that he reached in his travel but it seems that he was able to reach a place from which he saw that the sun was setting into a lake. He found a people there. God gave him the choice to either punish them or to treat them kindly. This may had been either a revelation or an inspiration. Zulqarnain announced his policy regarding treating the people whom he conquered, “He said, ‘We will torment whoever does wrong, then he will be sent back to his Lord; and He will punish him an awful torment. But whoever believes, and does good deeds, he shall have a goodly reward, and easy will be his task as we order it by our command.’” He announced that the wrongdoers will be punished in this life; then they will get their just recompense in the Hereafter. The believers who do good deeds will be treated kindly and God will reward them nicely on the Day of Judgment.

Then he travelled eastward, “Till, when he reached the rising-place of the sun, he found it rising on a people for whom We had given no shelter therefrom. So (it was). And We knew all about him.” Again we have no certain knowledge where his travel took him eastward, but it seems that he reached a place where the land was flat with no mountains or trees. Most likely this was a desert where a person would have no place to hide from the sun’s heat. One can draw a likeness between the open flat land and the psyche of Zulqarnain. Like the open flat land, Zulqarnain had no hidden agenda. His plans and policies were declared and made known.

He continued until he reached a place where he found a people who had great difficulty understanding him, “Then he followed a road; till, when he reached (a pass) between the two mountains, he found beside them a people who could hardly understand a word.” However, somehow they communicated to him their needs. They wanted a barrier to protect them from the attacks of Gog and Magog, “They said, ‘Zulqarnain, verily Gog and Magog make mischief in the land. Shall we then pay you a tribute on condition that you erect a barrier between us and them?’” According to his policies which supported the righteous and fought the wrongdoers, Zulqarnain agreed to offer his help without compensation. He wanted to build a dam that extended from one mountain to the other. Instead of compensation, he asked them to help him with their manual labor, “He said, ‘That which the Lord empowered me with is better (than your tribute). Help me therefore with strength (labour), I will erect a strong barrier between you and them. Bring me blocks of iron.’” He blocked the passage between the two mountains with blocks of iron. Then he asked them to heat the iron, “At length, when he had filled up the space between the two steep mountain-sides, He said, ‘Blow (with your bellows.)’ Then, when he had made it (red) as fire, he said, ‘Bring me molten copper to pour upon it.’” When the iron melted and looked as if it were a fire, he poured over it molten copper. Thus the dam was made from an iron alloy. The dam was very strong so, “Gog and Magog were not able to surmount, nor could they pierce (it).”

The concept of the alloys was only discovered recently, but Zulqarnain was far ahead of his time. When Zulqarnain saw the great barrier he built; he remembered that the power and the knowledge that he had were a gift from God. He expressed his gratitude to God. He also reminded the people that all these great buildings will be destroyed on the Day of Judgment, “He said, ‘This is a mercy from my Lord. But when the promise of my Lord comes to pass, He will make it into dust; and the promise of my Lord is true.’”

This is the story of a righteous king; God gave him power and knowledge that helped him establish a vast kingdom and was able to travel the earth from one end to the other but never became conceited or arrogant. He acknowledged the bounty of God and expressed his gratitude to Him.

The Sura ends with a scene from the Day of Judgment, “On that day We shall leave them to surge like waves on one another. The trumpet will be blown, and We shall gather them all together. And We shall present Hell that day for the disbelievers to see, all spread out. Those whose eyes were blind to My reminder, and who could not even hear.” It is a scene that depicts a multitude of people of different races, colors, places, and ages gathered together moving randomly shoving and pushing each other in a chaotic way like sea waves. When the trumpet is blown they will all stand in lines and Hellfire will be presented to them. The disbelievers will not be able to turn away from it as they used to turn away from God's revelations before. Did they think that they could find support in God's creatures against Him, "Did the disbelievers think that they can take My servants as protecting guardians besides Me? Verily We have prepared Hell as a lodge for the disbelievers." The disbelievers will find their resting place in Hellfire.

The Sura ends with three short statements. The first statement juxtaposes the values of the disbelievers versus those of the believers, "Say, 'Shall we tell you of those who lose most in respect of their deeds? Those whose efforts have been wasted in this life, while they thought that they were doing good deeds? Those are they who disbelieved in the revelations of their Lord and in the meeting with Him. Therefore their deeds are in vain, and on the Day of Resurrection We assign no weight to them.'" These are the values of the disbelievers who lost their way in the worldly life. They thought that they were doing good deeds but they were heedless and their heedlessness rendered all their deeds in vain. Their deeds will be worthless on the Day of Judgement and they will end up in Hell fire, "That is their reward, Hell, because they disbelieved, and made a jest of Our revelations and Our messengers." But those who believed, "As to those who believed and did good deeds, they have, for their lodging, the gardens of paradise, wherein they shall dwell for ever with no desire to be removed from them." One may reflect on the expression, "with no desire to be removed from them." The nature of the human being rejects monotony. People like change even when they are living in paradise. The need for change is appropriate for the worldly life because it fosters curiosity, creativity and discovery which are needed for the progression of life on earth. However, in heaven the nature of people will be different and they will not be looking for any change in their comfortable and beautiful abode.

The second statement compares the extent of divine knowledge with the extent of human knowledge. God's knowledge is limitless and His words are infinite, "Say, 'If the sea became ink for the words of my Lord, verily the sea would be used up before the words of my Lord were exhausted, even if We brought the like of it as a supplement.'" This is an example which helps people appreciate the extent of God's knowledge.

Finally, the third statement is presented. It is a statement which puts in perspective the difference between God's power and the power of mortals; even if these mortals were messengers sent by God, "Say, 'I am only a mortal like you. It has been revealed to me that your God is only One God. And whoever hopes for the meeting with his Lord, let him do good deeds, and do not associate partners with his Lord.'" This is the way to obtain the permit to meet God. Those who hope to meet God should do good deeds and never associate partners with Him.

Sura19: Maryam (Mary)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 40:

1. Kaf. Ha. Ya. 'Ain. Sad.
2. (This is) A mention of the mercy of your Lord to His servant Zachariah.
3. When he called upon his Lord in private.
4. He said, "My Lord, indeed my bones became feeble and my head is shining with grey hair, and I have never been unsuccessful in my prayer to You.
5. I fear the successors after me, since my wife is barren. Give me from Your presence an heir.
6. Who shall inherit me and inherit (also) the house of Jacob. And make him, my Lord, acceptable (to You).
7. (It was said to him), "Zachariah, We bring you tidings of a son whose name is John; We have given the same name to none before (him).
8. He said, "My Lord, how will I have a son, when my wife is barren and I have reached infirm old age?"
9. He said, "So (it will be) your Lord said, 'It is easy for Me, and indeed I created you before, when you were nothing.'"
10. He said, "My Lord, give me a sign. He (God) said, "Your sign is that you will not be able to speak to the people three nights while in sound health."
11. Then he came out from the sanctuary to his people, and signaled to them that they should glorify God at the break of day and the fall of night.
12. (And it was said), "John, hold fast to the Scripture." And we gave him wisdom while he was still a boy.
13. And compassion from Our presence, and purity; and he was devout,
14. And kind to his parents, and he was not disobedient or rebellious.
15. Peace be on him the day he was born, and the day he dies and the day he shall be raised to life.
16. And mention Mary in the Book, when she had withdrawn from her people to a chamber looking east,
17. And she had chosen to go into seclusion from them. Then We sent to her Our Spirit and it assumed for her the likeness of a perfect man.
18. She said, "I seek refuge in the Lord of Mercy from you, if you are God conscious.
19. He said, "I am only a messenger of your Lord, that I may bestow on you a pure son."
20. She said, "How can I have a son when no mortal has touched me, nor have I been unchaste?"
21. He said, "So (it will be). Your Lord says, 'It is easy for Me. And We will make him a sign for humankind and a mercy from Us, and this is a matter which has been ordained.'"
22. And she conceived him, and she withdrew with him to a far place.
23. And the pains of childbirth drove her to the trunk of a palm-tree. She said, "I wish, I had died before this. I wish I had been a thing forgotten and out of sight."
24. But (a voice) called to her from below saying, "Grieve not, for your Lord has made a stream to flow beneath you;

25. And shake the trunk of the palm-tree toward you; it will drop on you fresh ripe dates.
26. So eat and drink and be consoled. And if you meet any mortal, say, "I have vowed a fast to the Lord of Mercy, and I will not speak this day to any mortal."
27. Then she came to her own people, carrying him. They said, "Mary, you have certainly done an unprecedented thing.
28. Sister of Aaron, your father was not a wicked man nor was your mother a harlot.
29. She pointed to him. They said, "How can we talk to a young boy in the cradle?"
30. He said, "I am indeed a servant of God. He has given me the Scripture and made me a prophet;
31. And He made me blessed wherever I may be, and enjoined upon me prayers and almsgiving so long as I remain alive;
32. (He) made me kind to my mother, and He did not make me a tyrant nor miserable;
33. Peace on me the day I was born, and the day I die, and the day I shall be raised to life."
34. That is Jesus, son of Mary. (This is) a statement of the truth concerning which they dispute.
35. It is not befitting to God that He should beget a son. Glory be to Him. When He decrees a matter, He only says to it, "Be", and it is.
36. Verily God is my Lord and your Lord. So serve (worship) Him. That is the right path.
37. But parties from among them disagreed with each other, so woe to those who disbelieved – from the scene of a tremendous Day.
38. How clear will they see and hear on the Day they will appear before Us, but the wrongdoers today are in manifest error.
39. And warn them of the Day of anguish when the case has been decided. Now they are in a state of heedlessness, and they do not believe.
40. It is We who will inherit the earth, and all those who are on it, and to Us they shall be returned. (19: 1 - 40)

The main theme of this Sura is the Oneness of God and the refutation of the myth that God has a son or a partner. The concept of resurrection after death is discussed as a corroborating evidence for the concept of the Oneness of God. The Sura narrates a number of stories. It starts with the story of Zachariah and John; the story of Mariam and the birth of Jesus; and the story of Abraham and the dialogue he had with his father. There is also mention of a number of prophets. These include Isaac, Jacob, Moses, Aaron, Ishmael, Idris, Adam, and Noah (PBUH).

The Sura can be divided into three parts. The first deals with the story of Zachariah and John, and the story of Mariam and the birth of Jesus. The second part deals with the story of Abraham and his father. This part also includes a reference to a number of prophets. It ends with the unequivocal proclamation of the Oneness of God. The third part deals with the concept of the resurrection after death. This part describes some of the scenes of the Day of Judgement.

"Kaf. Ha. Ya. 'Ain. Sad." The Sura starts with letters from the Arabic alphabet, the common language of the Arabs. This was meant to be a challenge, daring the Arabs to compose a book similar to the Quran using the language that they were familiar with. The subsequent verses narrate the story of Zachariah (PBUH). The story starts with a mention of God's mercy, "A mention of the mercy of your Lord to His servant Zachariah." This is quite appropriate since the main theme of the story of Zachariah (PBUH) revolves around God's mercy. He called upon his lord, “When he called upon his Lord in private. He said, ‘My Lord, indeed my bones became feeble and my head is shining with grey hair, and I have never been unsuccessful in my prayer to You. I fear the successors after me, since my wife is barren. Give me from Your presence an heir; who shall inherit me and inherit (also) the house of Jacob. And make him, my Lord, acceptable (to You).’” He called upon his Lord in solitude, beseeching God to comfort his sorrow. He was old, his body became weak and his hair became gray. He confessed to God that he never was disappointed when he called upon Him before. He explained his problem. He was nearing the end of his life; he could not entrust the legacy of prophet-hood to any of his apparent successors. He had no sons to entrust his legacy to one of them because his wife was barren. He asked God to give him a successor who can carry the responsibility of prophet-hood and continue the legacy of Zachariah and Jacob (PBUT). Zachariah (PBUH) defined the trait that he wished his successor to have, “And make him, my Lord, acceptable (to You).” God responded favorably to Zachariah’s (PBUH) prayer, “(It was said to him), ‘Zachariah, We bring you tidings of a son whose name is John; we have given the same name to none before (him).’” This was a response that embodied the divine generosity. Not only he will be given a son but the son will be unique.

Zachariah (PBUH) must have been overwhelmed with the response. He could not but ask, “My Lord, how will I have a son, when my wife is barren and I have reached infirm old age?” He knew that God’s promise will be fulfilled but the question was how will this happen. The answer to the question was delivered, “So (it will be) your Lord said, ‘It is easy for Me, and indeed I created you before, when you were nothing.’” It is not difficult for God to create. God made a barren woman unable to conceive and an old man unable to have children. He is able to reverse the process and allow the barren woman to conceive and the old man to have children. Zachariah (PBUH) was anxious, he wanted a sign. God told him that the sign is that he will not be able to speak for three days. There was nothing wrong with him; there was no physical reason to prevent him from speaking but nevertheless he will not be able to speak. This was the sign he asked for, “He said, ‘My Lord, give me a sign.’ He (God) said, ‘Your sign is that you will not be able to speak to the people three nights while in sound health.’” He wanted his people to join him in expressing gratitude to God, “Then he came out from the sanctuary to his people, and signaled to them that they should glorify God at the break of day and the fall of night.”

The narrative now turns to address John who grew up and became a young man, “John, hold fast to the Scripture.” It is a divine address that shows John’s (PBUH) status in the sight of God. This is a confirmation for Zachariah’s (PBUH) request that his successor would be worthy of carrying the legacy of Prophets Zachariah and Jacob (PBUT). John’s (PBUH) first task was the preservation of the Scripture (the Torah), the implementation of its teachings, and the conveyance of its message. He was commanded to be steadfast and to carry out his duty relentlessly. God prepared him to fulfill this trust, “And we gave him wisdom while he was still a boy.” This was the training that John (PBUH) received from God to be able to undertake the responsibility. Not only he was given the wisdom at an early age but he was also given, “And compassion from Our presence, and purity; and he was devout, and kind to his parents, and he was not disobedient or rebellious. Peace on him the day he was born, and the day he dies and the day he shall be raised to life.” Compassion is not an acquired trait but it is a gift from God. It is a necessary trait for a prophet to enable him to guide the people to goodness. He was pure in heart and in body, such purity opened up a channel of communication with God. This made him devout and always conscious of his Lord.

The narrative then moves to the story of a birth which was more miraculous than the birth of John (PBUH), the story of the birth of Jesus (PBUH). John's (PBUH) mother was barren but Jesus' (PBUH) mother was a virgin. The creation of Adam (PBUH) was a miracle that was not witnessed by humans. But people did witness the birth of Jesus (PBUH). This makes it the most miraculous event in the history of humanity. Having been unable to witness the first miracle of creation, the divine wisdom willed that the normal law of procreation be broken to provide humanity with an evidence of the power of the Creator.

The verses narrate the story of the conception of Jesus (PBUH), “And mention Mary in the Book, when she had withdrawn from her people to a chamber looking east, and she had chosen to go into seclusion from them. Then We sent to her Our Spirit and it assumed for her the likeness of a perfect man. She said, ‘I seek refuge in the Lord of Mercy from you, if you are God conscious.’ He said, ‘I am only a messenger of your Lord, that I may bestow on you a pure son.’ She said, ‘How can I have a son when no mortal has touched me, nor have I been unchaste?’ He said, ‘So (it will be). Your Lord says, ‘It is easy for Me. And We will make him a sign for humankind and a mercy from Us, and this is a matter which has been ordained.’” The verses describe the scene of a young virgin, a saint who was dedicated by her mother - while she was still a fetus in the womb - to the service of God. She was known for her purity and piety. She was in seclusion when she suddenly saw a perfect man standing in front of her. She was frightened. It was natural for her to seek the help of God. In addition, she tried to implore the man standing in front of her to be conscious of God. The fear gave way to surprise when she heard the man saying, “I am only a messenger of your Lord; that I may bestow on you a pure son.” One can only imagine the thoughts that went through her mind at that time. Could she trust this man? Was he really God's messenger? And how can she become pregnant while she had not been touched by a man before? She expressed her doubts, “How can I have a son when no mortal has touched me, nor have I been unchaste?” Her question indicates that she was not able to think outside the box. She never thought that the law of normal human procreation could be broken. But there are other ways that this could be achieved, “Your Lord says, ‘It is easy for Me. And We will make him a sign for humankind and a mercy from Us, and this is a matter which has been ordained.’” This was the miracle that Mary did not expect to happen. God wanted this miracle to be a sign for people, a sign showing the power of God. Jesus (PBUH) was sent as a mercy to the Children of Israel and to the whole humanity.

The narrative continues to describe what happened to Mary, “And she conceived him, and she withdrew with him to a far place. And the pains of childbirth drove her to the trunk of a palm-tree. She said, ‘I wish, I had died before this. I wish I had been a thing forgotten and out of sight.’” The narrative did not explain how the conception occurred; or how long it took. Did the fetus go through the normal growth process? Or was the process completed in a miraculous way? However, these questions are not relevant to the objective of the story. One can imagine Mary alone thinking about the consequences of this situation. How will she face her people? What kind of scandal will she face? Her thoughts were diverted by the pains of delivery. She rested her back to the trunk of a palm tree. She wished that she was dead before this had happened. She was yet in for another surprise, a voice that addressed her, “Grieve not, for your Lord has made a stream to flow beneath you; and shake the trunk of the palm-tree toward you; it will drop on you fresh ripe dates. So eat and drink and be consoled. And if you meet any mortal, say, 'I have vowed a fast to the Lord of Mercy, and I will not speak this day to any mortal.'" How much amazed must have she been to hear the voice of her newly born baby to speak to her, consoling her, reminding her of God's mercy, and directing her to the food and water which God provided for her survival and the survival of the baby. The voice also gave her an advice, how to deal with her people. One can imagine how bewildered must have she been when she heard this voice. It must have taken her a while before the advice had sunk in. Having seen God's provision, she must have felt reassured of God's support. She must have realized that she had the proof of her chastity, a newly born baby who speaks, "Then she came to her own people, carrying him. They said, 'Mary, you have certainly done an unprecedented thing. Sister of Aaron, your father was not a wicked man nor was your mother a harlot. She pointed to him. They said, 'How can we talk to a young boy in the cradle?' He said, 'I am indeed a servant of God. He has given me the Scripture and made me a prophet; and He made me blessed wherever I may be, and enjoined upon me prayers and almsgiving so long as I remain alive; (He) made me kind to my mother, and He did not make me rebellious or miserable. Peace on me the day I was born, and the day I die, and the day I shall be raised to life.'" When she brought her baby to her people, they chastised her for having had a baby out of wedlock. They did not imagine how a virgin who was dedicated to the service the temple can do a thing like that. She came from a good home and she was chaste. Then they were surprised by her request to speak to the baby, but their surprise must have been greater when they heard him actually speak. Jesus (PBUH) made it clear that he was neither a God nor a son of God as claimed by some, but he was a prophet and a servant of God. He was blessed by God who commanded him to be kind to his mother and to establish prayer and almsgiving as long as he lived. So he was a human being with a limited span of life. He was born, he will die, and he will be resurrected on the Day of Judgment. The verses do not report the people's response to Jesus' (PBUH) statement. However, the episode ends by a statement of the lesson to be learnt from the event, "That is Jesus, son of Mary. (This is) a statement of the truth concerning which they dispute. It is not befitting to God that He should beget a son. Glory be to Him. When He decrees a matter, He only says to it, 'Be', and it is. Verily God is my Lord and your Lord. So serve (worship) Him. That is the right path." It is not befitting to the majesty of God that He would have a son. Mortals need children for their lineage to continue and weak people need children to support them in their fights. God is infinite and is powerful. If He says to a thing "Be" it will happen. Jesus (PBUH) made a clear and unequivocal statement, "Verily God is my Lord and your Lord. So serve (worship) Him. That is the right path."

"But parties from among them disagreed with each other," The emperor Constantine convened the first ecumenical Council of Nicaea. The first item on the agenda was a discussion of the nature of Jesus (PBUH). The attendees had different points of view regarding the nature of Jesus (PBUH) and they argued vehemently among themselves about this issue. Those who adopted a view that deviated from the doctrine of the Oneness of God were warned, "Woe to those who disbelieved – from the scene of a tremendous Day." During their lives they neither listened to nor used their eyes to see the truth when the listening and seeing would have been beneficial. On the Day of Judgment their listening and their sight will be very sharp but they will be listening and hearing humiliating things, "How clear will they see and hear on the Day they will appear before Us, but the wrongdoers today are in manifest error.”

“And warn them of the Day of anguish when the case has been decided. Now they are in a state of heedlessness, and they do not believe. It is We who will inherit the earth, and all those who are on it, and to Us they shall be returned.” Warn them that on the Day of Judgment, the day that will be full of anguish, there anguish will be of little avail. On that Day they will see the consequence of their heedlessness. Everything will return to God, the only Heir.

Verses 41 to 65:

- 41. And mention in the Book (the story of) Abraham. He was a man of truth, a prophet.*
- 42. When he said to his father, “My father, why do you worship that which neither hears nor sees, and will not benefit you in the least;*
- 43. My father, indeed there has come to me knowledge which has not come to you, therefore follow me, I will guide you to an even path;*
- 44. My father, do not worship Satan. Indeed, Satan is a rebel against (God) the Lord of Mercy.*
- 45. My father, I fear that a torment from the Lord of Mercy should afflict you and you become a companion of Satan.”*
- 46. He (the father) said, “Abraham, do you reject my gods? If you do not desist, I shall certainly stone you. Leave me for a long while.”*
- 47. Abraham said, “Peace be on you, I will pray to my Lord for your forgiveness. He is to me Most Gracious.*
- 48. And I will leave you and those whom you invoke besides God. I will call on my Lord and trust that my prayer is not in vain.”*
- 49. When he left them and those whom they worshipped besides God, We bestowed on him Isaac and Jacob, and each one of them We made a prophet.*
- 50. And We bestowed of Our mercy on them, and We granted them a high and true renown.*
- 51. And mention in the Book Moses. He was indeed chosen, and he was a messenger (and) a prophet.*
- 52. And we called him from the right side of Mount (Sinai), and brought him near to Us.*
- 53. And, out of Our mercy, We gave him his brother Aaron, (also) a prophet.*
- 54. And mention in the Book Ishmael. He was a keeper of his promise, and he was a messenger (of God), a prophet.*
- 55. He enjoined on his people prayers and almsgiving. He was most acceptable in the sight of his Lord.*
- 56. And mention in the Book Idris. He was a man of truth, (and) a prophet.*
- 57. And We raised him to a lofty station.*
- 58. Those were some of the prophets on whom God did bestow His Blessing, of the posterity of Adam, and of those whom We carried (in the Ark) with Noah, and of the posterity of Abraham and Israel of those whom We guided and chose. Whenever the revelations of (God) Lord of Mercy were rehearsed to them, they would fall down in prostration, adoring and weeping.*

59. Now a later generation has succeeded them. They ruined worship and followed sensual desires, so they going to meet perdition.
60. Except those who repent and believe, and do good deeds, these will enter the garden and will not be wronged in the least;
61. Gardens of Eden, which the Lord of Mercy promised his servants in the unseen. His promise is ever sure of fulfilment.
62. They will hear therein no idle talk, but only peace; and therein they have sustenance both mornings and evenings.
63. Such is the garden which We give as an inheritance to those of Our servants who are God conscious.
64. (The angels say), "We do not descend except by the command of your Lord. To Him belong what is before us and what is behind us, and what is in between. Your Lord never forgets.
65. The Lord of the heavens and of the earth, and of all that is in between them; so worship Him, and persevere in His worship. Do you know of any who is worthy of the same Name as He?" (19: 41 – 65)

In the previous section the story of Jesus (PBUH) was narrated in which the myth of God's son has been refuted. Now we move to the story of another prophet, Prophet Abraham (PBUH) which also deals with the myth of associating partners with God. The following verses describe Prophet Abraham's (PBUH) character, emphasizing the trait of contentment and his gentle nature. The dialogue with his stubborn father reflects his gentle nature. The Quran describes him as a man of truth and a prophet. This description is a true depiction of his character, "And mention in the Book (the story of) Abraham. He was a man of truth, a prophet. When he said to his father, 'My father, why do you worship that which neither hears nor sees, and will not benefit you in the least;'" He spoke to his father in a very gentle tone trying to guide him to the goodness of guidance. He addressed his father in an endearing way, "My father." He questioned his father religious practices, pointing to the fact that idols which do not hear nor see are not worthy of being worshipped. He then followed his question with a statement about the knowledge that he received but his father did not have, "My father, indeed there has come to me knowledge which has not come to you, therefore follow me, I will guide you to an even path;" This knowledge which came from God made the young Abraham (PBUH) see the truth. It is not unheard of that an older man would follow the guidance of a more knowledgeable but younger man. Abraham continued to explain the risk of following Satan, "My father, do not worship Satan. Indeed, Satan is a rebel against (God) the Lord of Mercy. My father, I fear that a torment from the Lord of Mercy should afflict you and you become a companion of Satan." Satan seduces people to worship idols. The worship of idols is tantamount to the worship of Satan. Satan disobeyed God. Abraham (PBUH) warned his father that his religious practices will incur the wrath of God. God will punish him by making him a follower and supporter of Satan. God's guidance is a blessing; following and supporting Satan will deprive a person of this blessing. These kind and gentle words did not reach the hard hearted father. Kindness is countered by a threat, "He (the father) said, 'Abraham, do you reject my gods? If you do not desist, I shall certainly stone you. Leave me for a long while.'" His father expressed his amazement that Abraham (PBUH) had the audacity to request him to abandon idol worship. He even threatened that he would stone him if he persisted. But Abraham (PBUH), being the gentle and kind son, does not lose his patience and his kindness, “Abraham said, ‘Peace be on you, I will pray to my Lord for your forgiveness. He is to me Most Gracious. And I will leave you and those whom you invoke besides God. I will call on my Lord and trust that my prayer is not in vain.’” Abraham’s (PBUH) response was quite peaceful, he did not blame his father nor did he argue with him. He even told him that he will pray God to forgive him and to guide him to the straight path. Abraham (PBUH) promised to stay away from his people and their bad religious practices and to continue to worship God alone. All what Abraham (PBUH) was asking from God was to bestow His blessings on him.

God did not leave Abraham (PBUH) alone when he abandoned his people, “When he left them and those whom they worshipped besides God, We bestowed on him Isaac and Jacob, and each one of them We made a prophet. And We bestowed of Our mercy on them, and We granted them a high and true renown.” Isaac (PBUH) was Abraham’s (PBUH) son and Jacob (PBUH) was his grandson. Abraham (PBUH) raised the two of them according to his religious practices. This gift from God was a mercy that He bestowed on Abraham (PBUH) and his progeny. They were respected by their people.

From among Abraham’s (PBUH) progeny Moses is mentioned, “And mention in the Book Moses. He was indeed chosen, and he was a messenger (and) a prophet. And we called him from the right side of Mount (Sinai), and brought him near to Us. And, out of Our mercy, We gave him his brother Aaron, (also) a prophet.” The Quran states that Moses (PBUH) was chosen by God. He was also a prophet and a messenger of God. A prophet is a person who receives a revelation from God but is not assigned the task to call people to his religion, while a messenger is assigned the task of delivering the message to his people. God assigned a number of prophets from the Children of Israel after the time of Moses (PBUH) and entrusted them with the task of applying the laws of the Torah.

God spoke to Moses (PBUH) when he was on the Mount of Sinai. This was an honor that was exclusive to Moses (PBUH). We believe in the truth of the statement that God spoke to Moses (PBUH) but we have no way of knowing how this communication took place. God bestowed His mercy on Moses (PBUH) by responding favourably to his request to appoint his brother Aaron (PBUH) a prophet to support Moses (PBUH) in his mission.

The second branch of Abraham’s (PBUH) progeny was then mentioned, “And mention in the Book Ishmael. He was a keeper of his promise, and he was a messenger (of God), a prophet. He enjoined on his people prayers and almsgiving. He was most acceptable in the sight of his Lord.” Ishmael (PBUH) was reputed for honoring his promises.

Finally, Prophet Idris (PBUH) is mentioned, “And mention in the Book Idris. He was a man of truth, (and) a prophet. And We raised him to a lofty station.” It is not known what time period Prophet Idris (PBUH) lived in. The Quran simply described him as a man of truth and a prophet.

“Those were some of the prophets on whom God did bestow His Blessing, of the posterity of Adam, and of those whom We carried (in the Ark) with Noah, and of the posterity of Abraham and Israel of those whom We guided and chose. Whenever the revelations of (God) Lord of Mercy were rehearsed to them, they would fall down in prostration, adoring and weeping. Now a later generation has succeeded them. They ruined worship and followed sensual desires, so they going to meet perdition.” The narrative stops at milestones in the history of the prophets that God sent to guide the humanity. They were Adam’s (PBUH) progeny, some were the progeny of those who believed with Noah (PBUH), some were from the progeny of Abraham and Jacob (PBUT). These prophets together with those who followed them had this unique trait that, “Whenever the revelations of (God) Lord of Mercy were rehearsed to them, they would fall down in prostration, adoring and weeping.” But after these people who were extremely conscious of their Lord came other generations of people who went astray. They will be punished. However, the door of repentance will always be open for those who wish to repent, “Except those who repent and believe, and do good deeds, these will enter the garden and will not be wronged in the least; Gardens of Eden, which the Lord of Mercy promised his servants in the unseen. His promise is ever sure of fulfilment. They will hear therein no idle talk, but only peace; and therein they have sustenance both mornings and evenings. Such is the garden which We give as an inheritance to those of Our servants who are God conscious.” True repentance is the basis for the renewal of faith and performing good deeds. God promised those who repent the Garden of Eden. God’s promise is always fulfilled. In the gardens of Eden there will be neither idle talk nor arguments. An atmosphere of peace and comfort will prevail. Provisions will be given in abundance. This will be the reward for those who remain conscious of God.

“(The angels say), ‘We do not descend except by the command of your Lord. To Him belong what is before us and what is behind us, and what is in between. Your Lord never forgets. The Lord of the heavens and of the earth, and of all that is in between them; so worship Him, and persevere in His worship. Do you know of any who is worthy of the same Name as He?’” Several stories mentioned that this verse was revealed in connection with Prophet Muhammad’s (PBUH) impatience when Gabriel (PBUH) was late in coming. God commanded Gabriel (PBUH) to tell the Prophet (PBUH) that the angels move according to the command of God. God has sole control over them. God does not forget. He sends His revelation according to His plan. He is the Lord of heavens and earth so the Prophet should persevere in worshipping Him. God’s worship in Islam does not only consist of the rituals but it goes beyond this to encompass all human activities. Islam is a way of life that requires the human being to be continuously conscious of God. Each and every thought, feeling, emotion, movement, and activity should be made while being conscious of God.

Verses 66 to 98:

66. Humankind says, “When I am dead, shall I then be raised up alive?”
67. Does not humankind call to mind that We created him before, when he was nothing?
68. So, by your Lord, without doubt, We shall gather them together, and the devils, then We shall bring them, crouching, around hell.
69. Then We will certainly drag out from every sect all those who were most stubborn in rebellion to the Lord of Mercy.

70. And We certainly know best those who are most worthy of being burned therein.
71. There is not one of you but shall approach it. That is an unavoidable decree of your Lord.
72. Then We shall save those who were God conscious, and We shall leave the wrongdoers therein, crouching.
73. When Our clear revelations are recited to them, the disbelievers say to those who believe, "Which of the two groups is better in position? And best in association?"
74. How many generations before them have we destroyed, who were more imposing in respect of gear and outward appearance.
75. Say, "As for him who is in error, the Lord of Mercy will verily prolong his span of life until, when they see that which they were promised, whether it be torment (in the world), or the Hour (of doom), they will know who is worse in position and who is weaker as an army.
76. And God increases in guidance those who seek guidance. The good deeds which endure are better in your Lord's sight for reward, and better for resort.
77. Have you then seen the (sort of) human being who rejects Our revelations, yet says, "I shall certainly be given wealth and children?"
78. Has he gained knowledge of the unseen, or made a covenant with the Lord of Mercy?
79. Nay, We shall record what he says, and We shall add and add to his torment.
80. To Us shall return all that he talks of and he shall appear, single and alone, before Us.
81. And they have taken (for worship) gods other than God, to give them power and glory.
82. Instead, they shall reject their worship, and become adversaries against them.
83. Do you not see that We sent the devils against the disbelievers, to incite them with fury?
84. Therefore, do not be in haste against them; We only countdown to them the number (of days).
85. On the day when We shall gather the God conscious to the Lord of Mercy, as a goodly company.
86. And We shall drive the sinners to Hell, like thirsty cattle driven down to water.
87. None shall have the power of intercession, except him who has made a covenant with his Lord.
88. They say, "The Lord of Mercy has begotten a son."
89. Certainly you have made an abominable assertion.
90. Whereby the heavens are almost torn, and the earth is split asunder and the mountains fall in ruins,
91. That they ascribed a son to the Lord of Mercy.
92. For it is not befitting to the majesty of the Lord of Mercy that He should beget a son.
93. Not one of the beings in the heavens and the earth but must come to the Lord of Mercy as a servant.
94. Verily, He took an account of them (all), and has numbered them (all) exactly.
95. And each one of them will come, single and alone, to Him on the Day of Judgment.
96. On those who believe and do good deeds, the Lord of Mercy will bestow love.
97. So have We made the (Quran) easy in your own tongue, that with it you may give glad tidings to the God conscious, and warnings to people given to contention.
98. And how many generations before them have We destroyed? Can you find a single one of them (now) or hear (so much as) a whisper of them? (19: 66 – 98)

The verses describe a scene of a human being wondering about the concept of resurrection, “Humankind says, ‘When I am dead, shall I then be raised up alive?’” This was a question that was raised by many people over the span of many generations of humanity. The question expresses a rejection of the concept of resurrection. The rejection shows that humankind is oblivious to how he was brought to being. Where was he? What was he? He was not there but he came to being. Resurrection is easier to imagine than the first creation, “Does not humankind call to mind that We created him before, when he was nothing?” God is certainly able to resurrect not only all human beings but also those devils who used to whisper to them and to tempt them, “So, by your Lord, without doubt, We shall gather them together, and the devils, then We shall bring them, crouching, around hell.” They will be gathered and will be made to kneel around Hell fire in a humiliating posture. Their leaders in tyranny will be pulled and dragged out, “Then We will certainly drag out from every sect all those who were most stubborn in rebellion to the Lord of Mercy.” God knows who is the most deserving of His punishment, “And We certainly know best those who are worthiest of being burned therein.” The believers will witness this terrifying scene, “There is not one of you but shall approach it. That is an unavoidable decree of your Lord.” Then those who were God conscious will be saved and the wrongdoers will be left kneeling there, “Then We shall save those who were God conscious, and We shall leave the wrongdoers therein, crouching.”

The verses move from the scene of the Day of Judgement to a scene in this worldly life. This is a scene where the disbelievers look upon the believers in disdain and brag about their wealth and power, “When Our clear revelations are recited to them, the disbelievers say to those who believe, ‘Which of the two groups is better in position? And best in association?’” The rich and powerful gather together to celebrate and boast their worldly possessions; posing the greatest temptation for others. On the other side the believers are modest and steadfast. They call people to join the procession of the belief in God. They do not have money to tempt people with nor do they have glamour to dazzle them; they only have their faith to offer. Their route entails hard work which leads to God.

The same scene repeated itself at the time of Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) when the chiefs of Quraish looked upon the poor believers in disdain. They used their worldly material standards to determine who is better among people. They posed the question, “Which of the two groups is better in position? And best in association?” Who is better in position, the rich and powerful disbelievers or the poor and weak believers? God reminded the idolaters Arabs of those who posed that question before them. Their wealth and power did not avail them anything, “How many generations before them have we destroyed, who were more imposing in respect of gear and outward appearance.”

God then commanded His prophet to challenge the disbelievers, “Say, ‘As for him who is in error, the Lord of Mercy will verily prolong his span of life until, when they see that which they were promised, whether it be torment (in the world), or the Hour (of doom), they will know who is worse in position and who is weaker as an army.’” Let them claim that they are more guided than those who followed you (Muhammad). God will certainly let those who chose misguidance to indulge in their lost way and He will increase the guidance for those who believe, “And God increases in guidance those who seek guidance. The good deeds which endure are better in your Lord's sight for reward, and better for resort.”

“Have you then seen the (sort of) human being who rejects Our revelations, yet says, ‘I shall certainly be given wealth and children?’” The verse portrays an example of the audacity of the disbelievers. It has been narrated that this verse was revealed in relation to a specific event, which involved one of the believers by the name of Khabab bin Al-Arrat (RA). He said, “I was a blacksmith. A man by the name of Al-‘Ass bin Wael owed me a sum of money. I came to him to ask for my money, he said that he would not repay his debt to me until I denounce Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) and reject his faith. I replied that I would never reject Muhammad’s (PBUH) faith even after you die and you are resurrected again. Al-‘Ass answered sarcastically that I should wait until he dies and is resurrected, then he would pay his debt to me.” The verse addressed such people sarcastically, wondering if they truly knew the unseen, or did they have a covenant with God, “Has he gained knowledge of the unseen, or made a covenant with the Lord of Mercy?” A firm answer to the disbelievers’ claim is given. It is an answer full of rebuke, “Nay, We shall record what he says, and We shall add and add to his torment.” Everything will be recorded no one will be able to dispute the record. God will take their wealth and children and on the Day of Judgement they will come alone without wealth, children, or support of any kind, “To Us shall return all that he talks of and he shall appear before Us bare and alone.”

“And they have taken (for worship) gods other than God, to give them power and glory. Instead, they shall reject their worship, and become adversaries against them. Do you not see that We sent the devils against the disbelievers, to incite them with fury? Therefore, do not be in haste against them; We only countdown to them the number (of days). On the day when We shall gather the God conscious to the Lord of mercy, as a goodly company. And We shall drive the sinners to Hell, like thirsty cattle driven down to water, none shall have the power of intercession, except him who has made a covenant with his Lord.” The disbelievers worshipped idols, the angels, or jinn thinking that their gods will give them honor and will support them in life. However, on the Day of Judgement these gods will denounce the disbelievers. Then the verse addresses the Prophet (PBUH) asking him to be patient. God is giving them a short reprieve. All their deeds are recorded and counted accurately. They will be held responsible for what they committed during their lives on earth. On the other hand, the believers will be honored. The believers will be led in a procession to meet their Lord, while the disbelievers will be driven like cattle to Hell fire. Only those who did good deeds will have the power of intercession. Those who did good deeds will receive what God promised them. They will get their reward in full; God never breaks His promise.

The verses move to another false claim, “They say, ‘The Lord of Mercy has begotten a son.’” This is truly, “an abominable assertion.” The whole universe abhors this false claim; it erupts expressing its anger, “Whereby the heavens are almost torn, and the earth is split asunder and the mountains fall in ruins, that they ascribed a son to the Lord of Mercy. For it is not consonant with the majesty of the Lord of Mercy that He should beget a son.”

An unequivocal statement is made in response, “Not one of the beings in the heavens and the earth but must come to the Lord of Mercy as a servant. Verily, He took an account of them (all), and has numbered them (all) exactly. And each one of them will come, single and alone, to Him on the Day of Judgment.” All beings in the heavens and earth are God’s servants. They will come to their Lord in submission. He neither has an associate nor a son. None of the beings of the heaven and earth will be able to escape this gathering. There is an accurate account of all of them. They will all come to the gathering individually bare of any help or support. Each one has his/her deeds to account for personally.

But those who believed and did good deeds will receive God’s blessings, “On those who believe and do good deeds, the Lord of Mercy will bestow love.” The Love of God will touch their souls and will fill their hearts with tranquility. God’s love will over flow and fill the whole universe.

It has been narrated that the Prophet (PBUH) said, “When God loves one of His servants, He would say to Gabriel, ‘Gabriel, I love this person.’ Gabriel will also love this person and will call those in heaven saying, ‘God loves this person, so you should also love him/her.’ Those in heaven will then love that person. And the people on the earth will accept him/her. However, when God hates one of His servants, He would say to Gabriel, ‘Gabriel I hate this person.’ Gabriel will also hate this person and will call those in heaven saying, ‘God hates this person, so you should also hate him/her.’ Those in heaven will then hate that person. And the people on the earth will also hate him/her.”

The previous verses brought glad tidings to the believers and a warning to the disbelievers. This is the objective of this Quran. God has made this Quran easy to understand, “So have We made the (Quran) easy in your own tongue, that with it you may give glad tidings to the God conscious, and warnings to people given to contention.”

The Sura ends with a scene that exhorts the heart to reflect and the inner conscious to tremble, “And how many generations before them have We destroyed? Can you find a single one of them (now) or hear (so much as) a whisper of them?”

Sura 20: Ta-Ha (Ta-Ha)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 98:

1. Ta-Ha.
2. We have not sent down the Quran that you should be distressed,
3. But as a reminder to him who fears.
4. A revelation from Him who created the earth and the high heavens.
5. The Lord of Mercy is firmly established on the Throne.
6. To Him belongs what is in the heavens and on earth, and all that is between them, and all that is beneath the ground.
7. If you utter the words aloud, verily He knows what is secret and what is yet more hidden.
8. God, there is no god but Him. To Him belong the most beautiful names.
9. Has the story of Moses reached you?
10. When he saw a fire. He said to his family, "Wait, I see a fire; perhaps I can bring you some burning brand therefrom, or find some guidance at the fire."
11. And when he came to the fire, he was called by name, "Moses,
12. Verily I am your Lord. So take off your shoes, for you are in the holy valley of Tuwa.
13. And I have chosen you, so listen to what is revealed.
14. Verily, I am God. There is no god but I. So worship Me, and establish regular prayer for celebrating My remembrance.
15. Verily, the Hour is surely coming. But I will to keep it hidden, that every soul may be rewarded for that which it strives (to achieve).
16. Therefore, let not him who does not believe in it and follows his whims turns you away from it lest you perish;
17. And what is that in your right hand, Moses?"
18. He said, "It is my rod. I lean on it; with it I beat down fodder for my flocks; and I have other uses for it."
19. He (God) said, "Cast it down, Moses."
20. So he cast it down, and it was a serpent, running.
21. He said, "Take hold of it and fear not; We will restore it to its former state.
22. And thrust your hand within your armpit, it will come forth white without any harm. (This is) another sign.
23. In order that We may show you some of our greater signs.
24. Go you to Pharaoh, for he has indeed transgressed all bounds."
25. (Moses) said, "My Lord, expand my breast;
26. And make my task easy;
27. And remove the impediment from my speech,
28. So that they may understand what I say;
29. And appoint for me a minister from my family;
30. Aaron, my brother,
31. To strengthen my back by him,
32. And let him share my task;
33. That we may celebrate Your praise much,

34. And remember You often.
35. Indeed, You are ever seeing us.”
36. (God) said, “Your prayer has been granted, Moses.
37. And indeed We conferred a favour on you another time (before).
38. When We inspired your mother that which is inspired,
39. ‘Throw him into the ark, and throw (the ark) into the river. The river will cast him up on the bank, and he will be taken up by one who is an enemy to Me and an enemy to him.’ And I endued you with love from Me, that you may be raised according to My will.
40. When your sister went and said, ‘Shall I tell you of one who will nurse him?’ and we restored you to your mother that her eyes might be refreshed and might not grieve. And you did kill a man and We delivered you from great distress, and tried you with a heavy trial. And you did stay years among the folk of Midian. Then you came as ordained by Me, Moses,
41. And I have chosen you for Myself.
42. Go, you and your brother, with My Signs, and slacken not, either of you, in remembering Me;
43. Go, both of you, to Pharaoh, for he has indeed transgressed all bounds;
44. And speak to him a gentle word, that perchance he may heed or fear.”
45. They (Moses and Aaron) said, “Our Lord, we fear that he may hasten with insolence against us, or he transgresses all bounds.”
46. He said, “Fear not, for I am with you. I hear and see (everything).
47. So go you both to him, and say, ‘Verily we are messengers sent by your Lord. So let the Children of Israel go with us, and torment them not. We bring you a sign from your Lord. And peace will be for him who follows the right guidance.
48. Verily it has been revealed to us that the torment will be for him who rejects the truth and turns his back to it.”
49. (Pharaoh) said, “Who then is your Lord, Moses?”
50. He said, “Our Lord is He who gave everything its nature, then guided it aright.”
51. (Pharaoh) said, “What then is the state of the former generations?”
52. He replied, “The knowledge of that is with my Lord, duly recorded. My Lord never errs, nor forgets.”
53. It is He who has made the earth as a bed and has threaded roads for you therein and has sent down water from the sky and thereby We have brought forth diverse kinds of vegetation.
54. Eat and pasture your cattle. Verily, in this are signs for those who are endowed with understanding.
55. From the (earth) did We create you, and into it shall We return you, and from it shall We bring you out once again.
56. And We showed Pharaoh all Our signs, but he did reject and refuse.
57. He said, “Did you come to drive us out of our land with your magic, Moses?
58. But we surely can produce for you, magic like yours; so make an appointment between us and you, which neither we nor you shall fail to keep, at a place convenient (to us both).”
59. Moses said, “Your appointment is the day of the Festival and let the people be gathered together in the early forenoon.”
60. Then Pharaoh went and gathered his strength, then came.

61. Moses said to them, "Beware, do not forge a lie against God, lest He destroys you utterly by a torment; the forger will never succeed."
62. Then they debated their affair among themselves, and they kept their counsel secret.
63. They said, "These two are certainly (expert) magicians, their objective is to drive you out from your land with their magic, and to do away with your best traditions.
64. Therefore, concert your efforts, and come in battle line. Whoso is uppermost this day will be indeed successful."
65. They said, "Moses, will you cast first or we will be the first to cast?"
66. He said, "You cast first." Then their ropes and their rods - so it seemed to him on account of their magic - began to move.
67. Moses conceived a fear in his mind.
68. We said, "Fear not, for you have indeed, the upper hand;
69. And cast that which is in your right hand, it will quickly swallow up that which they have faked. What they have faked is but a magician's trick; and the magician will never succeed (no matter) where he goes."
70. The magicians were thrown down in prostration. They said, "We believe in the Lord of Aaron and Moses."
71. (Pharaoh) said, "Did you believe in him before I give you permission? Surely, this must be your leader, who has taught you magic. I will cut off your hands and feet on opposite sides, and I will have you crucified on trunks of palm-trees, so you will know for certain, which of us can give the more severe and the more lasting torment."
72. They said, "We will never choose you above the clear proofs that have come to us, and above Him who created us. So decree what you will decree. You can decide only matters in this life of the world.
73. We have indeed believed in our Lord, so that He may forgive us our sins, and the magic to which you forced us to do. God is Best and Ever Lasting.
74. Verily he who comes to his Lord as a sinner - for him is Hell - therein shall he neither die nor live.
75. But whoso comes to Him a believer, having done good deeds, for such are the high stations;
76. Gardens of Eternity, beneath which rivers flow, they will dwell therein forever. That is the reward for those who purify themselves."
77. We revealed to Moses, "Travel by night with My servants, and strike a dry path for them through the sea, fearing not to be overtaken, nor being afraid (of drowning).
78. Then Pharaoh followed them with his hosts and there covered them that which did cover them of the sea.
79. And Pharaoh led his people astray instead of guiding them.
80. Children of Israel, We have delivered you from your enemy, and We made a covenant with you on the right side of Mount (Sinai), and We sent down to you manna and quails.
81. (Saying), "Eat of the good things which We have provided you, and transgress not lest My wrath comes upon you. He on whom My wrath comes, he is lost indeed.
82. Verily I am All-Forgiving towards him who repents and believes and does good, and then continues to follow the right direction."
83. And (it was said), "What has made you hasten from your people, Moses?"
84. He said, "They are close upon my track. I hastened to You, my Lord, that You may be well pleased."

85. (God) said, "We have tested your people in your absence. The Samiri has led them astray."
86. So Moses returned to his people in a state of indignation and sorrow. He said, "My people, did not your Lord make a fair promise to you? Did then the promise seem to you long (in coming)? Or did you desire that a wrath should descend from your Lord on you, and so you broke your promise to me?"
87. They said, "We did not break the promise to you of our own will, but we were burdened with the weight of the people's ornaments, and we threw them (into the fire), and similarly did the Samiri throw."
88. Then he produced for them a calf, of saffron hue, which gave forth a mooing sound. And they said, "This is your god and the god of Moses, but he forgot."
89. Did they not see that it could not return to them any speech (for answer), and that it had neither power to harm them nor to do them good?
90. Aaron had already, before this said to them, "My people, you are being tested in this, for verily your Lord is (God) the Lord of Mercy; so follow me and obey my command."
91. They had said, "We will never cease being devoted to it until Moses returns to us."
92. He (Moses) said, "Aaron, what held you back when you saw them going astray,
93. From following me? Have you then disobeyed my order?"
94. (Aaron) replied, "Son of my mother, do not seize me by my beard or by my head. Truly, I feared that you would say, 'You have caused a division among the Children of Israel, and you did not observe my word.'"
95. (Moses) said, "What then is your case, Samiri?"
96. He replied, "I saw what they did not see, so I took a handful (of dust) from the footprint of the messenger, and threw it; thus did my soul entice me?"
97. (Moses) said, "Then go, you have been given (the right) in this life to say, 'Touch me not,' but indeed there is an appointment for you that you cannot break. Now look at your god which you were devoted to. Verily we will burn it and will scatter its dust over the sea.
98. Your god is the One God. There is no god other than Him. He embraces all things in His knowledge. (20: 1 – 98)

"Ta-Ha. We have not sent down the Quran that you should be distressed, but as a reminder to him who fears." A gentle opening which starts with two letters of the Alphabet, to emphasize that this Sura as well as the rest of the Quran have been composed using the Arabic Alphabet. The two letters used to begin the Sura has the same rhyme as the other verses in the Sura. The beginning is followed, as usual, with a reference to the Quran. The Prophet (PBUH) is told that the Quran was not revealed to cause him distress. It was not meant to burden him beyond his ability with its recitation. The Quran has been made so that people will find it easy to recite. The commandments that the Quran brought are within the power of people. God does not burden a soul beyond its capacity. The Quran has been sent as a blessing, a way to connect with the high host. It is a source for tranquility and assurance. It is a source for happiness and a way to reach to God. It is also implied that, it should not annoy the Prophet (PBUH) to see some people who chose not to believe. It is not his task to force them to believe. The Quran has been sent as a reminder. Those who fear God will heed the reminder. They will then seek the forgiveness of their Lord.

The Quran has been revealed by God, “A revelation from Him who created the earth and the high heavens. The Lord of Mercy is firmly established on the Throne. To Him belongs what is in the heavens and on earth, and all that is between them, and all that is beneath the ground.” God who created the heavens and earth is He who revealed the Quran. The Quran is a cosmic phenomenon like the heavens and earth. The verse connects the laws that control the universe with the laws that were revealed in the Quran. The Quran is a revelation from the Lord of Mercy. It came down as a mercy to humankind. The cosmic phenomena mentioned here explain the extent of God’s kingdom. God is the owner of all that exists. He knows the seen and the unseen, “If you utter the words aloud, verily He knows what is secret and what is yet more hidden. God, there is no god but Him. To Him belong the most beautiful names.” These verses were revealed to assure the Prophet (PBUH) of God’s support. God hears the Prophet’s (PBUH) words and knows his thoughts and He is with him supporting him in his struggle against the disbelievers.

The verses then narrate Moses’ (PBUH) story as an example of God’s support for the people whom He chose to deliver His message. Moses’ (PBUH) story permeates the Quran; it is the most often mentioned story in the Quran. However, it is narrated in episodes, each episode blends well with the main theme of the sura in which it appears. “Has the story of Moses reached you?”

When he saw a fire, he said to his family, ‘Wait, I see a fire; perhaps I can bring you some burning brand therefrom, or find some guidance at the fire.’” The verse tells the story of Moses’ (PBUH) when he was travelling with his family going back to Egypt from Midian. He saw a fire and wanted to get a burning brand so he can start a fire himself for his family. But when he got there he was faced with a great surprise, “And when he came to the fire, he was called by name, ‘Moses, Verily I am your Lord. So take off your shoes, for you are in the holy valley of Tuwa. And I have chosen you, so listen to what is revealed.’” The heart dries out and the body trembles when one envisages the scene of Moses (PBUH) alone, in the dark night, in the middle of the desert and he hears the sound, “Verily I am your Lord.” The expression, “he was called by name,” intimates that Moses (PBUH) heard the voice but did not know from where it came from or who was calling him. Moses (PBUH) was asked to take off his shoes because he was in the scared valley in the presence of God. God bestowed on him the highest honor, “I have chosen you.” So he has to listen to what will be revealed. He was commanded to perform three tasks: to believe in the oneness of God, to worship God, and to believe in the Day of Judgement, “Verily, I am God. There is no god but I. So worship Me, and establish regular prayer for celebrating My remembrance. Verily, the Hour is surely coming. But I will to keep it hidden, that every soul may be rewarded for that which it strives (to achieve). Therefore, let not him who does not believe in it and follows his whims turns you away from it lest you perish;” The belief in the oneness of God is the cornerstone of the doctrine of Islam. The verse emphasizes the principle of the belief in the oneness of God. The command to worship God is given in the form of establishing prayers. Prayers are the perfect example of the worship of God. Prayers crystallize the remembrance of God. They are the connection between people and their God. The Hour refers to the Day of Judgement. On that Day everyone will be held accountable and everyone will be recompensed fairly. It is coming but no one knows when. Do not let those who follow their whims and desires bar you from preparing for it.

“And what is that in your right hand, Moses?” Moses (PBUH) may have realized that the question was about the usage of the rod, “He said, ‘It is my rod. I lean on it; with it I beat down fodder for my flocks; and I have other uses for it.’” Moses (PBUH) used his rod to lean on, to get fodder for his flock, and other things, but he never envisaged how will the divine power transform the rod into another tool to be used in the mission he will soon undertake, “He (God) said, ‘Cast it down, Moses.’ So he cast it down, and it was a serpent, running.” A miracle took place and Moses (PBUH) was taken by surprise. The fact that this surprise filled Moses’ (PBUH) heart with fear, which have been mentioned in details in another episode, is only lightly alluded to in this episode, “He said, ‘Take hold of it and fear not; We will restore it to its former state.’”

Moses (PBUH) was reassured and he picked up the serpent and it went back to its original form, a rod. Another command was then issued, “And thrust your hand within your armpit, it will come forth white without any harm. (This is) another sign.” Moses (PBUH) placed his hand under his armpit and it came out white with no trace of sickness or harm. This was another miracle. He was then promised that he will see the greatest miracle, “In order that We may show you some of our greater signs.” To prepare him for the big mission that he was to undertake, “Go you to Pharaoh, for he has indeed transgressed all bounds.” This was another surprise. He knew who Pharaoh was, he was brought up in his palace; and he knew of his tyranny. But He is now in the presence of his Lord who honored him and chose him for this mission, so he asked his Lord, “(Moses) said, ‘My Lord, expand my breast; And make my task easy; And remove the impediment from my speech, So that they may understand what I say; and appoint for me a minister from my family; Aaron, my brother, To strengthen my back by him, And let him share my task;’” Moses (PBUH) asked God to expand his breast; this transforms hard work into pleasure, and provides motivation for completing the undertaking. Then he asked that God would make his task easy for him. This is an essential requirement for a task to be successful. Then he asked God to remove an impediment from his speech and to appoint his brother to help him.

Moses recognized that the new mission that he was asked to undertake will require a special spiritual preparation. So he explained that the things that he asked God for were tools to help him and his brother to celebrate God’s praise, “That we may celebrate Your praise much, and remember You often. Indeed, You are ever seeing us.” Moses’ (PBUH) made a long list of requests, he explained his vulnerability, and he requested God’s help; the answer was brief and prompt, “(God) said, ‘Your prayer has been granted, Moses.’” The requests have already been granted. The mention of Moses (PBUH) by name shows the blessings of God and His gentleness in treating His Messengers. The verses continued to remind Moses (PBUH) with the blessings that God had bestowed on him before, “And indeed We conferred a favour on you another time (before). When We inspired your mother that which is inspired, ‘Throw him into the ark, and throw (the ark) into the river. The river will cast him up on the bank, and he will be taken up by one who is an enemy to Me and an enemy to him.’ And I endued you with love from Me that you may be raised according to My will. When your sister went and said, ‘Shall I tell you of one who will nurse him?’ and we restored you to your mother that her eyes might be refreshed and might not grieve.” Moses (PBUH) was going to face a tyrant, the mightiest king on earth. He was going to fight for his faith and to deal with the problems that the Children of Israel were plagued with. They have been enslaved and persecuted for a long time. Even if he was successful with Pharaoh, it would not be easy to erase the effects of the long years of slavery and persecution which the Children of Israel suffered in Egypt. But God reminded him that he will not be alone in his struggle. God has helped him and supported him before and will not let him down in his new mission. These verses mention the favours that God bestowed on Moses (PBUH). When he was born, God inspired his mother to put him in an ark and to throw the ark in the river. The ark was captured by an enemy of both God and Moses (PBUH). But God's love protected Moses (PBUH) from his enemy. Then Moses (PBUH) was raised in his enemy's house according to God's will. Then God brought him back to his mother to nurse him. When Pharaoh's wife convinced her husband to adopt the baby that came in the ark, they looked for someone to nurse him. But by God's will, Moses (PBUH) refused to be nursed by the women that were hired to nurse him. His sister went to the palace and suggested to the queen to give Moses (PBUH) to his biological mother to nurse without divulging her real identity. Thus, God brought Moses (PBUH) back to his mother to nurse him and raise him. God's protection saved Moses (PBUH) from drowning and then from being killed at the hands of the Pharaoh.

Then the verses reminded Moses (PBUH) of another of God's favours, “And you did kill a man and We delivered you from great distress, and tried you with a heavy trial. And you did stay years among the folk of Midian. Then you came as ordained by Me, Moses, and I have chosen you for Myself.” Moses (PBUH) grew up in Pharaoh's palace. One day he went to the city where he found an Israeli fighting with an Egyptian. The Israeli called him for help. Moses (PBUH) pushed the Egyptian and the Egyptian fell down dead. Moses (PBUH) regretted this. He did not intend to kill the Egyptian he only wanted to push him, but the push was so hard that it killed the Egyptian. God inspired him to repent and to seek His forgiveness and God relented toward him and forgave him. Moses (PBUH) was tried several times by God. He had to flee Egypt and take refuge in a foreign land. Moses had to work for his living as a Sheppard after having been raised in the king's palace leading a comfortable life. When Moses (PBUH) was ready for his mission, God brought him back, “And you did kill a man and We delivered you from great distress, and tried you with a heavy trial. And you did stay years among the folk of Midian. Then you came as ordained by Me, Moses, and I have chosen you for Myself.”

“Go, you and your brother, with My Signs, and slacken not, either of you, in remembering Me; Go, both of you, to Pharaoh, for he has indeed transgressed all bounds; And speak to him a gentle word, that perchance he may heed or fear.” Having been supported by God's signs, the command was issued to Moses and Aaron (PBUT) to go to Pharaoh. They should continuously remember God because this was the tool God provided them with to be able to face the tyranny of Pharaoh. They were commanded to talk to Pharaoh gently. A provocative talk may incite stubbornness and arrogance. They should not give up on Pharaoh; he may still have a chance to repent and believe. God new how will Pharaoh react to their call; but God does not punish people on the basis of His knowledge. God punishes people on the basis of their actual deeds.

Moses and Aaron (PBUH) expressed their apprehension of speaking to Pharaoh, “They (Moses and Aaron) said, ‘Our Lord, we fear that he may hasten with insolence against us, or he transgresses all bounds.’” Aaron (PBUH) was certainly not present with Moses (PBUH) during this exchange between Moses (PBUH) and God but this is one of the features of the style of Quran. The narrative moves from one scene to another ignoring the details in between so that the message which moves people is emphasized. This part of the dialogue must have occurred when Moses (PBUH) returned back from the meeting with God. He must have told Aaron (PBUH) about his dialogue with God and that resulted in this call to God, “Our Lord, we fear that he may hasten with insolence against us, or he transgresses all bounds.” God reassured them of His support in a prompt and firm statement, “Fear not, for I am with you. I hear and see (everything).” The reassurance is emphasized by the statement that God hears and sees everything. The verses continued to teach Moses and Aaron (PBUH) the approach they should use, “So go you both to him, and say, ‘Verily, we are messengers sent by your Lord. So let the Children of Israel go with us, and torment them not. We bring you a sign from your Lord. And peace will be for him who follows the right guidance. Verily it has been revealed to us that the torment will be for him who rejects the truth and turns his back to it.’” The approach consisted of four points. First they should start by stating the fundamental fact that they are speaking to him as God’s messengers. The phrasing of the expression expressed the fact that they were the messengers of Pharaoh’s Lord, to emphasize the principle of the Oneness of God. He is Moses’ (PBUH) God as well as Pharaoh’s God. He is the God of everyone and everything. The second step was to explain their objective, “So let the Children of Israel go with us, and torment them not.” The third point was to give the evidence that they were who they said they were, “We bring you a sign from your Lord.” Finally, they were to give an inducement followed by a warning, “And peace will be for him who follows the right guidance. Verily it has been revealed to us that the doom will be for him who rejects the truth and turns his back to it.”

They went to Pharaoh and they did what they were told to do. Pharaoh responded, “Who then is your Lord, Moses?” Pharaoh ignored Moses’ (PBUH) statement that his Lord is also Pharaoh’s Lord. Moses’ (PBUH) response gave the description of God as the Creator, “He said, ‘Our Lord is He who gave to everything its nature, then guided it aright.’” God gave each creature its nature and its existence. Then He guided each and every creature to the way which enables them to perform the task which they were created for. This verse outlines the perfect attributes of God: He gives the existence, the shape and form, and the ability to perform the assigned task. These principles apply to all created things. Pharaoh continued to question Moses (PBUH), “(Pharaoh) said, ‘What then is the state of the former generations?’” Moses (PBUH) responded wisely, “The knowledge of that is with my Lord, duly recorded. My Lord never errs, nor forgets.” Only God knows the unseen. He knows everything and He is not forgetful.

Moses (PBUH) continued to explain to Pharaoh the way God controls His creation, “It is He who has made the earth as a bed and has threaded roads for you therein and has sent down water from the sky and thereby We have brought forth diverse kinds of vegetation.” The earth is truly the cradle of humanity in each place and each time. It has been made easy for people to walk on, to till, to plant, and to live. God the Creator created the earth to be suitable for all these tasks. He also gave the human beings the ability to perform these tasks. This was a very appropriate example because it was an example which can be easily appreciated by an Egyptian; Egyptians lived in the fertile valley, tilling and planting. The Creator caused the rain to come down forming rivers like the river Nile. The Nile flew in the valley giving rise to many kinds of plants. The plants come out in pairs like most living things. Some plants carry the male and female cells together and sometimes they are carried separately in different plants like many mammals, “Eat and pasture your cattle. Verily, in this are signs for those who are endowed with understanding.”

The narrative continued to describe the earth but in the words of God, “From the (earth) did We create you, and into it shall We return you, and from it shall We bring you out once again.” Human beings were created from the dust which covers this earth. Both humankind and the earth are made from the same elements. Humankind was created from the earth, will be buried in the earth, and will be resurrected from the earth. Not only humankind was created from the same elements which constitute the earth, but he continues to eat plants from the earth, drink water that runs through the earth, and breathe air that is produced by the earth. When he dies, he will be buried under its surface and his body will decompose and will become part of the earth. On the Day of Resurrection, he will be raised again as he was created in the first instance. It is appropriate to mention the beginning and end of humankind and his relationship to the earth in view of the fact that Pharaoh, the tyrant, never thought of himself as a human being, he considered himself god.

It is implicit that at this point, Moses (PBUH) must have shown Pharaoh the miracles that God gave him, but the Quran simply cites the conclusion, “And We showed Pharaoh all Our signs, but he did reject and refuse.” Pharaoh could not argue with Moses (PBUH) since he saw the miracles but still he rejected and accused Moses (PBUH) of using magic, “He said, ‘Did you come to drive us out of our land with your magic, Moses?’”

It seems that the persecution of the Children of Israel had political dimensions. Pharaoh, the tyrant, wanted to restrict their power base. So, he used to kill their males and enslave the females. So, when Moses (PBUH) requested that Pharaoh should let the Children of Israel leave Egypt he responded saying, “Did you come to drive us out of our land with your magic, Moses?” Pharaoh may have thought that freeing the Children of Israel will be a preamble for controlling the land and the government of Egypt. Pharaoh thought that Moses (PBUH) is after worldly gains because the like of Pharaoh only believes in material gains. The answer then was to challenge Moses (PBUH) with magic tricks, “But we surely can produce for you magic like yours; so make an appointment between us and you, which neither we nor you shall fail to keep, at a place convenient (to us both).” Pharaoh thought that Moses (PBUH) was simply trying to usurp his power. He challenged Moses (PBUH) to come to a magic competition that would be witnessed by all people. He warned him not to miss that competition. Moses (PBUH) accepted the challenge and named the time and place of the competition, “Moses said, ‘Your appointment is the day of the Festival and let the people be gathered together in the early forenoon.’”

The narrative continued to describe the scene on the day of the competition. The present episode does not mention the details of the dialogue between Pharaoh and the chiefs of his people nor does it mention the details of the dialogue between Pharaoh and the magicians in which he exhorted them to defeat Moses (PBUH) and promised them a great reward. These details were mentioned elsewhere but here the narrative summarized all of this in one verse, “Then Pharaoh went and gathered his strength, then came.” Moses (PBUH) advised and warned the magicians before the beginning of the contest, “Moses said to them, ‘Beware, do not forge a lie against God, lest He destroys you utterly by torment; the forger will never succeed.’” It seems that the truth in Moses’ (PBUH) words touched the hearts of some of the magicians. An argument between the magicians ensued when they heard Moses’ (PBUH) words, “Then they debated their affair among themselves, and they kept their counsel secret.” However, the group who were interested in Pharaoh’s reward tried to brush aside Moses’ (PBUH) warning and exhorted their fellow magicians to unite against Moses (PBUH), “They said, ‘These two are certainly (expert) magicians, their objective is to drive you out from your land with their magic, and to do away with your best traditions; therefore, concert your efforts, and come in battle line. Whoso is uppermost this day will be indeed successful.’”

A word of truth has a magic power. It is like a bullet that shatters the ranks of falsehood and makes their false beliefs crumble. This explains why Pharaoh accepted to arrange a contest between Moses and Aaron (PBUT) on one side and the magicians on the other side. One wonders what power Moses (PBUH) had in the face of the power of the Pharaoh the tyrant to force Pharaoh to arrange such a public contest and to sit and watch. It must have been the aura that God bestowed on Moses and Aaron (PBUH) that made Pharaoh and the magicians feel intimidated.

The magicians wanted to show their confidence so they asked, “Moses, will you cast first or we will be the first to cast?” Moses (PBUH) showed his confidence by letting them start, “He said, ‘You cast first.’ Then their ropes and their rods - so it seemed to him on account of their magic - began to move.” The verse paints an image of the power of their magic, to the extent that even Moses (PBUH) became afraid, “Moses conceived a fear in his mind.” But God reassured him, “We said, ‘Fear not, for you have indeed the upper hand; And cast that which is in your right hand, it will quickly swallow up that which they have faked. What they have faked is but a magician's trick; and the magician will never succeed (no matter) where he goes.’” God reassured Moses (PBUH), He told him you have the truth on your side and they have nothing but falsehood; he had the truthful faith and they had the art of magic; he was fighting for the truth to prevail and they were fighting for the reward and the glory; and he was connected to the greatest power and they relied on the power of an immortal. God told him to cast what he had in his right hand and it will swallow what they cast. The magicians will never succeed because they create illusions that do not last and cannot stand in the face of the truth.

So, the greatest surprise happened when Moses (PBUH) cast his rod. The magicians were awed by the scene of Moses' (PBUH) rod swallowing their ropes and rods and they suddenly realized the truth in Moses' (PBUH) words. The change in their feelings was overwhelming, they did not find the words to describe their thoughts, they simply bowed in prostration to Moses (PBUH), “The magicians were thrown down in prostration. They said, ‘We believe in the Lord of Aaron and Moses.’” However, the tyrant was oblivious to the meaning of what he just observed; he was blinded by his own arrogance and tyranny, “(Pharaoh) said, ‘Did you believe in him before I give you permission? Surely, this must be your leader, who has taught you magic. I will cut off your hands and feet on opposite sides, and I will have you crucified on trunks of palm-trees, so shall you know for certain, which of us can give the more severe and the more lasting torment.’” He had the audacity to blame them for submitting to God before asking for his permission. In his denial, he accused Moses (PBUH) to be their master who taught them magic. He did not appreciate the fact that their hearts were guided to the belief in God because God removed the veil that clouded their insight, so they saw the truth. He then continued to threaten them with the harsh punishment that he can inflict on them. He thought he can control the bodies since the hearts eluded him. But it was too late. The touch of faith connected the minute atom with its huge source and gave it tremendous power. The worldly power became weak, the worldly life became worthless, and the believing hearts yearned for the new horizons of faith, “They said, ‘We will never choose you above the clear proofs that have come to us, and above Him who created us. So decree what you will decree. You can decide only matters in this life of the world. We have indeed believed in our Lord, so that He may forgive us our sins, and the magic to which you forced us to do. God is Best and Ever Lasting.’” The magicians simply told Pharaoh that they value their faith much higher than he could ever offer them. He could only control them in this short worldly life. They had hopes in the life of the Hereafter. The life of the Hereafter is better than anything he could offer them and it is everlasting.

God inspired the believing magicians to teach Pharaoh a lesson in faith, “Verily, he who comes to his Lord as a sinner - for him is Hell - therein shall he neither die nor live. But whoso comes to Him a believer, having done good deeds, for such are the high stations; Gardens of Eternity, beneath which rivers flow, they will dwell therein forever. That is the reward for those who purify themselves.” He could threaten them all he wanted in this life but the real threat is for those who come to their Lord as criminals. They will be in a state between life and death. They will neither be allowed to die and escape the torment nor will they be allowed to live and enjoy life.

The narrative moves to another scene when God inspired Moses (PBUH) to lead his people out of Egypt, “We revealed to Moses, ‘Travel by night with My servants, and strike a dry path for them through the sea, fearing not to be overtaken, neither being afraid (of drowning).’” The verse stated very briefly God’s command to Moses (PBUH) to travel towards the sea. He was again reassured of victory over Pharaoh.

The following verse mentions very briefly how Pharaoh went in their pursuit but he and his soldiers drowned in the sea, “Then Pharaoh followed them with his hosts and there covered them that which did cover them of the sea. And Pharaoh led his people astray instead of guiding them.” There is a lesson to be learnt here. This was a battle between the weak believers and Pharaoh’s powerful army. The believers were by far a negligible force compared to Pharaoh’s army. They had no chance to be saved except by a divine interference. When the believers dared the tyrant and were not afraid to die, God provided His support. When the Israelites were persecuted by Pharaoh and they gave in to the oppression there was no divine intervention; but when they revolted against the tyrant and proclaimed their faith, God provided His support.

Having saved them, the narrative continued to remind the Israelites of the bounty of God and to warn them lest they forget that victory is only attainable by the grace of God, “Children of Israel, We have delivered you from your enemy, and We made a covenant with you on the right side of Mount (Sinai), and We sent down to you Manna and quails. (Saying), ‘Eat of the good things which We have provided you, and transgress not lest My wrath comes upon you. He on whom My wrath comes, he is lost indeed. Verily I am All-Forgiving towards him who repents and believes and does good, and then continues to follow the right direction.’” The verses tell of God’s decision to meet with Moses (PBUH) on the right side of the Mount and to give him the Tablets which included the doctrine and the law that the Israelites should observe. God gave them Manna and quail to eat. This was a great bounty of God which allowed them to survive in the desert. God reminded them of His bounties and warned them against excesses. Over indulgence in material desires promotes heedlessness and laziness. God was preparing them to the serious undertaking that they were about to receive. The fate that Pharaoh met was still fresh in their minds and was used to emphasize the need to seek God's support by remembering Him often. They were also reminded of the availability of the path of repentance for those who forget and sin. Repentance is not merely words to be uttered but it is in the first place a strong intention of the heart, its effect is realized through belief and good deeds, and it should be reflected on the behavior of the believer. The right direction will be followed only when these three steps were completed.

The next few verses describe the scene of Moses' (PBUH) meeting with God. God decided to meet with Moses (PBUH) in forty days after the exodus. In this meeting, Moses (PBUH) was given the undertaking to lead the Israelites in the post victory era. Moses (PBUH) went up the mountain, leaving his people in the valley and appointed Aaron (PBUH) as his deputy. Moses (PBUH) aspired to the meeting with God. His strong yearning to the meeting made him hasten to the appointed place. There he had a surprise, "And (it was said), 'What has made you hasten from your people, Moses?' He said, 'They are close upon my track. I hastened to You, my Lord, that You may be well pleased.' (God) said, 'We have tested your people in your absence. The Samiri has led them astray.'" It was a surprise for Moses (PBUH) to be told that his people fell for the seduction of the Samiri. The verses did not detail the nature of the sin that the Israelites committed, but Moses (PBUH) must have realized the gravity of the situation. Moses (PBUH) went back quickly to his people angry, "So Moses returned to his people in a state of indignation and sorrow. He said, 'My people, did not your Lord make a fair promise to you? Did then the promise seem to you long (in coming)? Or did you desire that a wrath should descend from your Lord on you, and so you broke your promise to me?'" These verses explain the details of the trial that the Israelites were subjected to and the sin which they committed. Moses found them worshipping a golden calf. Moses (PBUH) was saddened and hurt by what he saw. He reminded his people of God's promise, the promise to give them victory and to bring them back to the Holy Land. He rebuked them for their forgetfulness and impatience.

Their answer was, "We did not break the promise to you of our own will, but we were burdened with the weight of the people's ornaments, and we threw them (into the fire), and similarly did the Samiri throw. Then he produced for them a calf, of saffron hue, which gave forth a mooing sound. And they said, 'This is your god and the god of Moses, but he forgot.' Did they not see that it could not return to them any speech (for answer), and that it had neither power to harm them nor to do them good?" They explained to Moses (PBUH) that they brought with them from Egypt jewelry that was entrusted to them. They wanted to get rid of the jewelry because they realized that it was not allowable for them to keep it. The Samiri took the jewelry, melt it, and cast the molten metal into a calf. The calf was made in such a way that it produced a sound when the wind blew through it. The Israelites were awed by the golden calf which produced an amazing sound so they believed the Samiri when he told them that this was their god. It was an obvious trick that they fell for. The trick was naïve, however, they failed to realize that the calf neither spoke nor presented them with any benefit nor harm. They also ignored Aaron (PBUH)

when he tried to advise them of their mistake, “Aaron had already, before this said to them, ‘My people, you are being tested in this, for verily your Lord is (God) the Lord of Mercy; so follow me and obey my command.’” Instead of heeding Aaron’s (PBUH) advice they were adamant in pursuing their sinful attitude, “They had said, ‘We will never cease being devoted to it until Moses returns to us.’”

Moses (PBUH) came back and listened to what his people said and in his anger looked at his brother and grabbed him by the head, and said to him, “Aaron, what held you back when you saw them going astray, from following me? Have you then disobeyed my order? (Aaron) replied, ‘Son of my mother, do not seize me by my beard or by my head. Truly I feared that you would say, ‘You have caused a division among the children of Israel, and you did not observe my word.’”” One can glean from the verse that Aaron (PBUH) was well composed and he appealed to the brotherhood’s link between him and Moses (PBUH) to calm him down. He then explained the underlying rationale for his behavior. He told Moses (PBUH) that had he been forceful in dealing with them they would have had certainly split into divisions, some would have sided with him and some would have been against him. The way he chose to act was actually aligned with Moses’ (PBUH) advice to keep the people united.

Moses (PBUH) addressed his people first because they were the ones who committed the offence. They were not forced to worship the calf but they succumbed to the temptation which the Samiri subjected them to. Moses (PBUH) then turned to his brother because he was the leader and should have prevented the deviant behavior of his people. Moses (PBUH) then turned to the source of evil, the Samiri, “(Moses) said, ‘What then is your case, Samiri?’” The undertone of the question reflected Moses (PBUH) displeasure of what the Samiri did. The Samiri replied, “I saw what they did not see, so I took a handful (of dust) from the footprint of the messenger, and threw it; thus did my soul entice me?” There are different interpretations of the verse, but none of them is unequivocal. The verse states the reply of the Samiri without further elaboration. We think that the Samiri was evasive in his response, trying to deflect Moses (PBUH) blame. Moses (PBUH) decided to sever all ties between the Samiri and the Israelites until he dies then he would be held accountable by God. Moses (PBUH) spoke to the Samiri harshly to prove to his people that the calf could not protect the Samiri against Moses (PBUH), “(Moses) said, ‘Then go, you have been given (the right) in this life to say, ‘Touch me not,’ but indeed there is an appointment for you that you cannot break. Now look at your god which you were devoted to. Verily we will burn it and will scatter its dust over the sea.’” Then Moses (PBUH) stated the fundamental principle of the true faith, “Your god is the One God. There is no god other than Him. He embraces all things in His knowledge.”

Verses 99 to 135:

99. Thus, We narrate to you some stories of what happened before, and We have given you a message from Ourselves.

100. Whoso turns away from it, he verily will bear a burden on the Day of Resurrection,

101. Abiding under it - an evil burden for them to carry on the Day of Resurrection,

102. On the day when the trumpet is blown We will assemble the guilty blue-eyed (with terror),
103. Murmuring among themselves, "You remained only ten (days)."
104. We know best what they say, when their eminent leader will say, "You did not remain more than a day."
105. They ask you concerning the mountains. Say, "My Lord will uproot them and scatter them as dust;
106. He will leave them as plains smooth and level;
107. You shall not see therein any crookedness or unevenness."
108. On that Day they will follow the caller with no deviation therefrom. All voices will be hushed in the presence of the Lord of Mercy and you will hear only a faint murmur.
109. On that day no intercession avails except for those for whom permission has been granted by the Lord of Mercy and whose word is acceptable to Him.
110. He knows what (appears to His creatures as) before or after or behind them, but they shall not encompass Him with their knowledge.
111. (All) faces shall be humbled before (Him) - the Living, the Self-Existing. He who bears iniquity will certainly be unsuccessful.
112. But he who does good deeds and has faith, will neither fear injustice nor deprivation.
113. Thus, We have sent it down as an Arabic Quran and explained therein in detail some of the warnings, in order that they may be conscious of God, or that they may take heed.
114. High above all is God, the King, the Truth. And hasten not (Muhammad) with the Quran before its revelation to you is completed, but say, "My Lord, increase me in knowledge."
115. We had already, beforehand, taken the covenant of Adam, but he forgot, and We found him lacking in firm resolve.
116. And when We said to the angels, "Prostrate yourselves to Adam," they prostrated themselves except Iblis; he refused.
117. Therefor We said, "Adam, this is an enemy to you and to your wife, so let him not drive you both out of the Garden so that you come to toil.
118. Surely it is (promised) for you that you shall neither be hungry therein nor unclothed;
119. You will neither suffer thirst, nor will you be exposed to the sun's heat."
120. But Satan whispered evil to him, he said, "Adam, shall I show you the tree of immortality and a kingdom that never decays?"
121. They both ate of the tree, and so their nakedness became apparent to them. They began to sew together, for their covering, leaves from the Garden. And Adam disobeyed his Lord and erred.
122. Then his Lord chose him, and relented toward him, and guided him.
123. He (God) said, "Go down from the Garden, all of you, one of you a foe to the other. But when there comes to you from Me a guidance, then whoso follows My guidance, he will not go astray nor come to grief.
124. But whosoever turns away from My Message, verily for him life will be hard, and We shall raise him up blind on the Day of Judgment."

125. He will say, "My Lord, why have You raised me up blind, while I had sight (before)?"
126. (God) will say, "Our Signs came to you and you disregarded them; thus will you this day, be disregarded."
127. And thus do We recompense him who was given to excesses and did not believe in the revelations of his Lord, and the torment of the Hereafter is far more grievous and more lasting.
128. Is it not a guidance for them (to know) how many a generation We destroyed before them, in whose dwelling-places they walk? Most surely there are signs in this for those endowed with understanding.
129. Had it not been for a decree that had already gone forth from your Lord, and a term already fixed, the judgment would have been inevitable.
130. Therefor (Muhammad), persevere in enduring what they say, and celebrate the praise of your Lord before the rising of the sun and before sunset. And glorify Him some hours of the night and at the two ends of the day that you may be well pleased.
131. Do not stretch your eyes toward that which We have given for enjoyment to parties of them - the splendour of the life of this world - through which We test them; but the provision of your Lord is better and more lasting.
132. Enjoin prayer on your family and your people, and persevere in doing it. We do not ask you to provide sustenance, We provide for you. But the (fruit of) the Hereafter is for (those who remain) God conscious.
133. And they say, "If only he would bring us a sign from his Lord." Has not come to them a clear evidence of what is in the former Scriptures?
134. And if We had inflicted on them a torment before this, they would have said, "Our Lord, if only You sent us a messenger, we would have certainly followed Your revelations before we were humiliated and put to shame."
135. Say, "Each one (of us) is waiting. So you wait. You will come to know who the followers of the straight path are and who the guided are." (20: 99 – 135)

"Thus, We narrate to you some stories of what happened before, and We have given you a message from Ourselves. Whoso turns away from it, he verily will bear a burden on the Day of Resurrection; abiding under it - an evil burden for them to carry on the Day of Resurrection. On the day when the trumpet is blown, We will assemble the guilty blue-eyed (with terror), murmuring among themselves, 'You remained only ten (days).' We know best what they say, when their eminent leader will say, 'You did not remain more than a day.'" Like the story of Moses (PBUH), the Quran narrates to you other stories about events of the past. These stories are mentioned in the Quran which was revealed to you as a message to humankind. The verses paint a picture for those who turn away from this message, they are called criminals. The picture shows these criminals as if they were carrying weights. The criminals will be gathered together on the Day on which the trumpet will be blown. They will come whispering to each other and their faces will be darkened as if their guilt has covered their faces with a black veil. The fear will overwhelm them and they will not dare raise their voices. They will be wondering how long did they stay on earth. Their whole life on earth will seem very short. Some will think it lasted ten days, but a prominent leader among them will tell them, "You did not remain more than a day.” How trivial will then the pleasures which they were interested in during their worldly lives seem? How short the duration of life on earth is in comparison with the life of the Hereafter?

The scene will become horrific when they ask, “you concerning the mountains.” The answer will reflect the horrible scene, “Say, ‘My Lord will uproot them and scatter them as dust; He will leave them as plains smooth and level; you shall not see therein any crookedness or unevenness.’” They will follow the caller walking on the smooth plains that were left after the mountains were destroyed, “On that Day they will follow the caller with no deviation therefrom.”

Silence will wrap the place every one will be attentive in the presence of the Lord of Mercy, “All voices will be hushed in the presence of the Lord of Mercy and you will hear only a faint murmur.” No one will be able to intercede on behalf of another except by the permission of the Lord of Mercy, “On that day no intercession avails except for those for whom permission has been granted by the Lord of Mercy and whose word is acceptable to Him. He knows what (appears to His creatures as) before or after or behind them, but they shall not encompass Him with their knowledge. (All) faces shall be humbled before (Him) - the Living, the Self-Existing. He who bears iniquity will certainly be unsuccessful. But he who does good deeds and has faith, will neither fear injustice nor deprivation.” The wrongdoers will be punished and those who believed and did good deeds shall suffer neither injustice, nor fear.

The Quran contained various forms of warning to alert people to the consequences of heedlessness, “Thus, We have sent it down as an Arabic Quran and explained therein in detail some of the warnings, in order that they may be conscious of God, or that they may take heed.”

The Prophet (PBUH) used to be anxious that he may forget the Quran as it was recited to him by Gabriel (PBUH), so the verse reassured him that he will not forget, “High above all is God, the King, the Truth. And hasten not (Muhammad) with the Quran before its revelation to you is completed, but say, ‘My Lord, increase me in knowledge.’” Muhammad (PBUH) was commanded to pray for knowledge from God.

The subsequent verses address a different theme. The verses narrate the story of Adam (PBUH). God tested Adam but he succumbed to the temptation of Satan and disobeyed God. However, God taught him how to seek God’s forgiveness and he was forgiven. There is an interesting connection between this story and the previous verse. In the previous verse, the Prophet (PBUH) was worried that he might forget the verses of the Quran which Gabriel (PBUH) was reciting to him while in the story of Adam (PBUH), Adam (PBUH) disobeyed God because he forgot God’s warning about Satan, “We had already, beforehand, taken the covenant of Adam, but he forgot, and We found him lacking in firm resolve.” This was the covenant that Adam (PBUH) pledged to God. Adam (PBUH) pledged to obey God’s command not to eat the fruits of a specific tree. Adam (PBUH) was allowed to eat the fruits of all the trees in paradise except for this single tree. The covenant exemplified the concept of the lawful and forbidden. This was a necessary training course to build up the determination and the discipline which free humankind from the control of the carnal instincts and human desires. Self-discipline is a true measure of the ability of the soul to be free of the control of material desires. It is a valid measure for the progress of human civilisation. Animals have no self-discipline; their behavior is totally controlled by their instincts and desires. The divine wisdom willed that Adam (PBUH) should be trained for his role on earth. His determination was tested to awaken his ability to resist Satan's temptation and to alert him to the never ending battle between him and Satan.

“And when We said to the angels, ‘Prostrate yourselves to Adam,’ they prostrated themselves except Iblis; he refused.” The details of the scene have been omitted here and mentioned in details in other Suras because the focus of the present verses is on God's blessings on Adam (PBUH), “Therefor we said, ‘Adam, this is an enemy to you and to your wife, so let him not drive you both out of the Garden so that you come to toil. Surely, it is (promised) for you that you shall neither be hungry therein nor unclothed; you will neither suffer thirst, nor will you be exposed to the sun's heat.’” God warned Adam (PBUH) to beware of Satan. When Satan was commanded to prostrate to Adam (PBUH), he refused to obey and vowed to be the eternal enemy for humankind. God told Adam (PBUH) and his wife that Satan will do whatever he can to drive them out of Paradise, “So, let him not drive you both out of the Garden so that you come to toil.” God told Adam (PBUH) and his spouse that they will enjoy a life in Paradise that is free of toil, stress, uncertainty, pain, and loss. But Satan discovered the areas of human weakness in Adam (PBUH) and approached him, “But Satan whispered evil to him, he said, ‘Adam, shall I show you the tree of immortality and a kingdom that never decays?’” Two vulnerabilities that humankind has: love of immortality and power. Satan promised him that he will get both when he eats the fruits of the forbidden tree. Adam (PBUH) forgot God's warning and succumbed to the temptation. Their nakedness became apparent to them, “They both ate of the tree, and so their nakedness became apparent to them. They began to sew together, for their covering, leaves from the Garden. And Adam disobeyed his Lord and erred.” It may be understood that when they ate the fruits of the tree they suddenly became aware of their nakedness. Their private parts became apparent to them, so they became ashamed of their nakedness and started using the tree leaves to cover their private parts. It may also be understood that somehow eating the forbidden fruit awakened their sexual drives. Entertaining sexual desires and thoughts made them feel ashamed. The message that one gets from the verse is that there was a connection between eating the fruits of the tree and the awareness of being naked. The verse stated that, “their nakedness became apparent to them,” which implies that they were naked before but they were not aware of their nakedness. The awareness may have resulted from inner feelings that they entertained. The episode was mentioned in different ways in other places of the Quran, “But Satan whispered to them to make apparent to them that was concealed from them of their private parts.” (7: 20) and “Children of Adam, let not Satan tempt you as he removed your parents from Paradise, stripping them of their clothing to show them their private parts.” (7: 27) The clothing that is referred to in this verse may have not been material but psychological. It may be a reference to innocence, purity, and being connected to God. However, these are all conjectures.

God then bestowed His mercy on Adam and his spouse and forgave them, “Then his Lord chose him, and relented toward him, and guided him.” The details of them seeking forgiveness are not mentioned to leave the ambience for the mercy of God. The command was issued to the two enemies to go down to live on earth, the field of the long battle between the two, “He (God) said, ‘Go down from the Garden, all of you, one of you a foe to the other.’” The Children of Adam were thus forewarned of the enmity of Satan. God willed to bestow His mercy on the Children of Adam, so He sent His messengers to guide people to the straight path, “But when there comes to you from Me a guidance, then whoso follows My guidance, he will not go astray nor come to grief. But whosoever turns away from My Message, verily for him life will be hard, and We shall raise him up blind on the Day of Judgment.” Those who follow God’s guidance will be protected from going astray and they will never grieve. Grief is the fruit of going astray. Going astray may be accompanied with pleasure but it is a pleasure that will promote grief; grief in this life and in the Hereafter. Forbidden pleasure is always followed by pain and leads to bad consequences. Those who turn away from guidance will endure a life of hardship and will be raised blind in the Hereafter. When he asks, “My Lord, why have You raised me up blind, while I had sight (before)?” The answer will be, “Our Signs came to you and you disregarded them; thus will you this day, be disregarded. And thus do We recompense him who was given to excesses and did not believe in the revelations of his Lord, and the torment of the Hereafter is far more grievous and more lasting.” Those who reject God’s guidance have transgressed. They transgressed when they abandoned guidance and rejected the most valuable gift that God gave them. They transgressed when they refused to see God’s signs. They did not make good use of the gift of sight during their worldly lives, so they will be deprived of this gift in the Hereafter.

The following verses deal with a different theme, the stories of ancient generations. These stories may be more compelling to the disbelievers than the description of the Day of Judgment, since the stories are part of the recent history while the scenes of the Day of Judgment are part of the unseen, “Is it not a guidance for them (to know) how many a generation We destroyed before them, in whose dwelling-places they walk? Most surely there are signs in this for those endowed with understanding.” When we read the history of these ancient generations, we can close our eyes and imagine the scenes of their lives, their civilizations, their hopes, and their movements. However, when we open our eyes and we find that their homes have been destroyed and their civilizations have been destroyed, we will realize that we will have the same fate. This should be a lesson to those who are endowed with understanding. God in His wisdom has decreed that the people of this generation will not be tormented like the earlier generations, “Had it not been for a decree that had already gone forth from your Lord, and a term already fixed, the judgment would have been inevitable.”

They are only reprieved until a certain time has been reached, so be patient and celebrate the praise of your Lord, “Therefore (Muhammad), persevere in enduring what they say, and celebrate the praise of your Lord before the rising of the sun and before sunset. And glorify Him some hours of the night and at the two ends of the day that you may be well pleased.” Praising God is a link that connects the servant to God. This link provides the soul with security and contentment. The soul will revel in the feelings of being near to God. It will lose the interest in worldly pleasures, “Do not stretch your eyes toward that which We have given for enjoyment to parties of them - the splendour of the life of this world - through which We test them; but the provision of your Lord is better and more lasting.” These pleasures are not only transient pleasures but they are also a test. The provision of your Lord is better because it is a blessing from God. This was not a call to become ascetic, but it is a command to appreciate the true ethical values; God’s nearness is better than transient wealth and power.

“Enjoin prayer on your family and your people, and persevere in doing it. We do not ask you to provide sustenance, We provide for you. But the (fruit of) the Hereafter is for (those who remain) God conscious.” The first duty of a Muslim is to raise a Muslim family, a family that is connected to God through prayer. Establishing prayers is a difficult task. It requires perseverance and steadfastness to produce its effects. Prayers and other rituals are of benefit to people; there is no benefit that will accrue to God. These rituals provide a way for people to become God conscious. God consciousness will be rewarded both in this life and in the Hereafter.

The narrative turns to another theme, an address to those who were asking the Prophet (PBUH) to bring a miracle, “And they say, ‘If only he would bring us a sign from his Lord.’ Has not come to them a clear evidence of what is in the former Scriptures?” Their request was motivated only by their arrogance and stubbornness. The Quran itself is a sign that connects Islam with the previous revelations.

God sent Muhammad (PBUH) so that they would have no excuse, “And if We had inflicted on them a torment before this, they would have said, ‘Our Lord, if only You sent us a messenger, we would have certainly followed Your revelations before we were humiliated and put to shame.’” They then should wait for their inevitable fate, “Say, ‘Each one (of us) is waiting. So you wait. You will come to know who are the followers of the straight path and who is guided.’”

Sura 21: Al-Anbiya (The Prophets)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 35:

1. Their reckoning has drawn near to people, while they turn away in heedlessness.
2. Never comes to them a new reminder from their Lord but they listen to it while they play,
3. With hearts preoccupied. And they confer in secret. The wrongdoers say, "Is this other than a mortal like you? Will you then yield to magic while you see (it)?"
4. He said, "My Lord knows what is spoken in the heaven and the earth. He is the All-Hearing, the Omniscient."
5. Nay, they say, "(these are but) medleys of dreams. Nay, he forged it. Nay, he is a poet. Let him then bring us a sign like the ones that were sent to those (Prophets) of old."
6. Not a township before them believed, of those which We destroyed, would they then believe?
7. And We did not send before you other than men, whom We gave revelations. Ask the followers of the pervious Scriptures if you do not know?
8. And We neither made them bodies that did not eat food nor were they immortal.
9. Then, We fulfilled what they were promised, and We delivered them and those whom We willed, and We destroyed those who were given to excesses.
10. Indeed, We have revealed to you a Book in which there is a reminder for you. Have you then no understanding?
11. How many a community that committed wrongdoings have We shattered, and raised up after them another people.
12. And, when they felt Our might coming upon them, they fled.
13. Do not flee, but return back to the pleasures that you reveled in and to your dwellings, that you may be questioned.
14. They said, "Woe to us. We were indeed wrongdoers."
15. And that cry of theirs did not cease until We made them as reaped corn, lifeless.
16. And We did not create the heaven and the earth and all that is in between in jest.
17. If We had wished to find a pastime, We would have surely taken it from the things nearest to Us, if We would do (such a thing).
18. Nay, We hurl the truth against falsehood, and it destroys it, and there upon the falsehood perishes. Woe is to you for the (false) things you ascribe (to Us).
19. To Him belong all (the creatures) that are in the heavens and on earth. Those who are in His (very) Presence are not too proud to worship Him, nor are they (ever) weary (of His service).
20. They celebrate His praise night and day, tirelessly.
21. Or have they taken (for worship) gods from the earth who can raise (the dead)?
22. If there were, in the heavens and the earth, other gods besides God, there would have been confusion in both. Glorified be God, the Lord of the Throne, from all that they ascribe (to Him).
23. He will not be questioned as to that which He does, but they will be questioned.

24. Or have they taken for worship (other) gods besides him? Say, "Bring your proof; this is the Message of those with me and the Message of those before me." But most of them know not the truth, and so they turn away.
25. And We did not send a messenger before you but We reveal to him, (saying), "There is no God save Me, so worship Me."
26. And they say the Lord of Mercy has begotten a son; Glory to be Him. They are only honored servants.
27. They speak not until He has spoken, and they act by His command.
28. He knows what is before them, and what is behind them, and they cannot intercede except for him whom He accepts, and they tremble in awe of Him.
29. If any of them should say, "I am a god besides Him", such a one We do recompense with Hell; thus do, We recompense the wrongdoers.
30. Do not the disbelievers see that the heavens and the earth were joined together (as one unit of creation), then We separated them? And We made from water every living thing. Will they not then believe?
31. And We have set on the earth mountains standing firm, lest it should shift with them, and We have made therein broad highways (between mountains) for them to pass through; that they may be guided.
32. And We have made the heavens as a canopy, well-guarded; yet they turn away from its signs.
33. It is He who created the night and the day; and the sun and the moon. All swim along, each in its own orbit.
34. We did not grant immortality to any one before you; so if you die, would they be immortal?
35. Every soul shall have a taste of death; and We try you with evil and with good, and to Us you will return. (21: 1 – 35)

This is a Sura which was revealed in Mecca. It deals with the fundamental issue that has been dealt with in all other Meccan Suras, the doctrine. The Sura deals with the aspects of the belief in the Oneness of God, the Message and the concept of resurrection. The narrative uses the cosmic phenomena as a vehicle to discuss these aspects. The doctrine is part of this universe. It has been established on the truth which is the basis of the creation of the universe. God did not create His creation in jest. The Sura then takes the reader on a trip around the heavens and earth, pointing to the unity of the laws that govern both. The narrative links the unity of the creation to the Oneness of God. The Sura indicates that the lives of all living creatures start from water and end by death. All living things share the same beginning and end.

Hawwa stipulates that this Sura elaborate on verses 6 and 7 of Surat al-Baqarah, "Surely, those who reject faith, it is the same to them whether you warn them or do not warn them; they will not believe. God has set a seal on their hearts and on their hearing, and a veil on their eyes; great torment is theirs."

Since the doctrine is a part of the universal law, truth will prevail and falsehood will perish. God will destroy the wrongdoers and will support the believers. The Sura then explores the experience of a number of God's messengers. Accounts of some messengers were given in more details than others. Finally, some of the scenes of the Day of Judgment are explored. These different topics fit together to serve the presentation of the main theme of the Sura and to motivate people to seek the truth that the Message of Muhammad (PBUH) brought.

"Their reckoning has drawn near to people, while they turn away in heedlessness. Never comes to them a new reminder from their Lord but they listen to it while they play, with hearts preoccupied." A very strong commencement, it shakes the heedless and alerts them to the coming reckoning. It rebukes the disbelievers for being blind to God's signs which are portrayed in front of their eyes.

"And they confer in secret" The disbelievers used to meet secretly to discuss the nature of the Message which Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) brought and ways of counteracting it, some of them would say, "Is this other than a mortal like you? Will you then yield to magic while you see (it)?" They were overwhelmed by the language of the Quran. They tried to explain why they were impressed by the Quran by making excuses. Some claimed that the Quran is a product of magic. They rebuked each other for being awed by this magic. The Prophet (PBUH) sought God help, saying, "My Lord knows what is spoken in the heaven and the earth. He is the All-Hearing, the Omniscient." God is aware of all talks, whether made in the open or in secret. In their deliberations about the nature of the Quran, some said it was magic. Others said it is nothing but dreams, "(these are but) medleys of dreams." Yet a third group said, "he forged it," and a fourth group said, "he is a poet." None of these explanations was convincing so, they took another course of action, "Let him then bring us a sign like the ones that were sent to those (Prophets) of old." They asked for a material miracle. They should have known that God's miracles usually herald catastrophic events which lead to the destruction of the communities, "Not a township before them believed of those which We destroyed, would they then believe?" This scenario happened several times in the past, why would it be different this time?

"And We did not send before you other than men, whom We gave revelations. Ask the followers of the previous Scriptures if you do not know? And We neither made them bodies that did not eat food nor were they immortal." It was the divine will that the Message is delivered by human messengers. The Messengers were ordinary human beings with physical bodies that need nourishment just like anyone else. It was logical to send human beings as Messengers. God's Messengers should be able to lead a life like normal human beings and feel the same emotions and pains like normal people so that they would be able to relate to the human beings whom they were sent to guide. Asking people to emulate a creature that is different than them is futile. How can an individual who does not feel like they feel; does not enjoy life like they enjoy it; and does not appreciate the failings of human beings be a role model for them.

God's choice of a human being to carry His Message to the people is an honor that God bestowed on the human race. This was God's will and it was also His will to deliver the righteous and to destroy the transgressors, "Then, We fulfilled what they were promised, and We delivered them and those whom We willed, and We destroyed those who were given to excesses."

“Indeed, We have revealed to you a Book in which there is a reminder for you. Have you then no understanding?” The Quran is an eternal miracle that will last for all future generations to see and experience. It is not like other material miracles which would have a real impact only on the generation that witnessed it. The Arabs were unknown before they received the Quran. The Quran was the only reason the world knew about the Arabs. The contribution of the Muslims to the world civilisation was a direct product of the way of life that the Quran preached. It was God’s mercy that He did not respond to the request of the Arabs to send a material miracle; instead He gave them this eternal miracle.

“How many a community that committed wrongdoings have We shattered, and raised up after them another people.” God completely demolished the habitations of those who transgressed in the past and brought about new generations who built their own towns on the remains of previous towns. When people sensed the threat of destruction they tried to flee, “And, when they felt Our might coming upon them, they fled.” They thought they could escape God’s punishment. They did not realize that God’s power can reach them anywhere. The verse describes sarcastically their futile effort, “Do not flee, but return back to the pleasures that you reveled in and to your dwellings, that you may be questioned.” Go back to your comfortable lodging and the pleasures in which you indulgent yourselves, so that you would be questioned about how you spent your lives? When they realized the perilous situation that surrounded them they tried to ask for forgiveness, “They said, ‘Woe to us. We were indeed wrongdoers.’” But it was too late. They could cry as much as they want; their fate has already been settled, “And that cry of theirs did not cease until We made them as reaped corn, lifeless.”

The playful attitude that the disbelievers expressed when they received the Quran is juxtaposed against the seriousness of the creation of the heavens and the earth, “And We did not create the heaven and the earth and all that is in between in jest. If We had wished to find a pastime, We would have surely taken it from the things nearest to Us, if We would do (such a thing).” God created the universe for a reason and controlled its affairs wisely. God sent the Messengers to guide the people to the straight path. God promised to hold people to account on the Day of Judgement. This is a very serious process. The creation was not made in jest. Had God wanted to have fun (which is a rhetorical assumption) He could have had this in His own way. However, God would not do this anyway as is clear from the statement, “if We would do (such a thing).” But it is a reminder of the gravity of the playful attitude of the disbelievers. God’s law is to establish the truth and to abolish falsehood, “Nay, We hurl the truth against falsehood, and it destroys it, and there upon the falsehood perishes. Woe is to you for the (false) things you ascribe (to Us).”

A model for the obedient creatures of God is presented in the following verse, “To Him belong all (the creatures) that are in the heavens and on earth. Those who are in His (very) Presence are not too proud to worship Him, nor are they (ever) weary (of His service).” They continuously worship and serve tirelessly. Only God knows who His creatures in the heavens and the earth are. We are only sure about the existence of the human beings on earth. The believers know that there are angels and jinn because they believe in the Quran. However, we do not know anything about them except for the information that was mentioned in the Quran. When we read, “To Him belong all (creatures) that are in the heavens and on earth,” we acknowledge our ability to know that the human beings exist and we leave alone those whom we have no knowledge of. Those are part of the unseen.

The verse, “They celebrate His praise night and day, tirelessly.” may be referring to the angels or other creatures of God, that only He knows. The angels continuously praise God. Human beings could also praise God continuously since each and every human activity can be considered an act of worship if the individual has the intention that these activities are done for the sake of God.

“Or have they taken (for worship) gods from the earth who can raise (the dead)? If there were, in the heavens and the earth, other gods besides God, there would have been confusion in both. Glorified be God, the Lord of the Throne, from all that they ascribe (to Him).” This rhetorical question carries the tone of rebuke. Can these gods raise the dead? Obviously, they cannot. The first attribute of the true God is that He has the power to raise the dead. In addition, they should have known that confusion would have prevailed in the heaven and the earth had there been more than one God. There is one law that governs the whole universe. This law has been created by God and is maintained by Him. The different components of the universe work together in perfect harmony because they are all governed by the same law. Had there been more than one god, there would have been more than one will and more than one law. These wills would have contradicted each other and these laws would have contravened each other. God is above all what they ascribe to Him. “He will not be questioned as to that which He does, but they will be questioned.” Who can question the One who is in control of the whole universe? Who can question the Creator whose power is limitless? He is the one who created the standards and the measures that we know and He is exalted above all these standards and measures. Some people have the audacity to question why did God do specific things? Or what is the rationale behind these things? They cross the limits set for humans by God. These matters are beyond the understanding of mortals.

“Or have they taken for worship (other) gods besides him? Say, ‘Bring your proof; this is the Message of those with me and the Message of those before me.’” Do they have any credible evidence that these idols are gods? Previous messages came with the doctrine of the Oneness of God. However, people turned away from guidance, “most of them know not the truth, and so they turn away.” All previous messengers preached the same doctrine, “And We did not send a Messenger before you but We reveal to him, (saying), ‘There is no God save Me, so worship Me.’” The Oneness of God is the fundamental truth that all previous messages were based upon.

“And they say the Lord of Mercy has begotten a son. Glory be to Him. They are only honored servants. They speak not until He has spoken, and they act by His command. He knows what is before them, and what is behind them, and they cannot intercede except for him whom He accepts, and they tremble in awe of Him. If any of them should say, ‘I am a god besides Him’, such a one We do recompense with Hell; thus do, We recompense the wrongdoers.” The claim that God has children came in different forms in different polytheistic religions. The idolaters of Mecca claimed that the angels were the daughters of God. The verses rebut this false claim. The angels are honored servants of God. They follow His command and they do not intercede on behalf of anyone except by the leave of God. They are always in awe of God. They never claimed to be gods. The destination of anyone who dares to make such claim will be Hellfire.

The narrative then takes the human heart on a trip around the huge universe. The verses explore the signs that lead to the belief in the Oneness of God, many people see these signs but they turn away from them in disbelief, “Do not the disbelievers see that the heavens and the earth were joined together (as one unit of creation), then We separated them? We made from water every living thing. Will they not then believe?” This description of how the universe started may agree with present day scientific knowledge. However, scientific facts may change from one time to the other depending on the discovery of new evidence, but the Quran is unchangeable. This is why we do not try to use the Quran to prove or disprove scientific facts. We believe in the truth of the Quran. The Quran does not offer us a scientific treatise but it offers us a way of life. What we can state now is that the present day theories regarding the formation of heavens and earth do not contradict the text of the Quran. Another scientific fact that these verses state is that water is the origin of all living things.

The verses continue to explore other cosmic phenomena, “And We have set on the earth mountains standing firm, lest it should shift with them, and We have made therein broad highways (between mountains) for them to pass through; that they may be guided.” The mountains were created to maintain the earth’s equilibrium. Broad highways were made between these high mountains to guide people in their passage. There is also a subtle reference to the guidance that people should seek in their search for God.

“And We have made the heavens as a canopy well-guarded, yet they turn away from its signs.” The Arabic term for heavens refers to anything that is held high. People look at the sky and see a canopy. God maintains this canopy well guarded. It is kept flawless to maintain the integrity of the universe and it is kept pure as a place from which the revelation is brought down. But people turn away from these signs.

The day and night are two cosmic phenomena that are closely related to human life on earth, “It is He who created the night and the day; and the sun and the moon. All swim along, each in its own orbit.” The sun and the moon regulate human life on earth. They are set in perpetual motion that does not deviate from its set path. This is one of the signs of the Oneness of God.

At the end of this group of verses, the law that governs human life is enunciated, “We did not grant immortality to any one before you; so if you die, would they be immortal?” God did not grant immortality to any one before the Prophet (PBUH). Every life ends with death. Do they think that they will live forever? Since they will eventually die, why do not they heed this fact and work for the Hereafter? “Every soul shall have a taste of death; and We try you with evil and with good, to Us you will return.” Every human being will eventually die. Life on earth is only a trial. People are sometimes tested with evil and sometimes they are tested with good. People’s perseverance and trust in God is tested with adversity. One may also be tested with good things in life. This is a harder test than being tested with adversity. Many are able to persevere in adversity but only few are able to successfully pass the test when they are tested with abundance. Many succumb to their desires when they are given power, health, and wealth. People should be alert to the dangers that good things in life bring. The believer is fully aware of these dangers and is able to deal with both kinds of testing. The Prophet (PBUH) has been quoted to have said, “I wonder about the believer all his conditions are good and this is only true for the believer. If he is blessed with a bounty from God, he shows his gratitude and this is good. If he is faced with an adversity, he perseveres and this is good also.”

Verses 36 to 47:

36. And when those who disbelieve see you, they mock you, (saying), “Is this he who mentions your gods? And they reject all mention of the Lord of Mercy.
37. Humankind is a creature of haste, soon I will show you My Signs; so do not ask Me to hasten them.
38. They say, “When will this promise come to pass, if you are telling the truth?”
39. If only the disbelievers knew when they will not be able to ward off the fire from their faces, nor from their backs, and they will not be helped.
40. Nay, it may come to them all of a sudden. They will then be confounded and no power will they have then to avert it, nor will they be reprieved.
41. Messengers before you were indeed mocked, but those who mocked them were surrounded by what they used to ridicule.
42. Say, “Who guards you in the night or in the day from the Lord of Mercy? Nay, but they turn away from the mention of their Lord.”
43. Or do they have gods that can guard them from Us? They have no power to aid themselves, nor can they be defended from Us.
44. Nay, We gave the good things of this life to these (disbelievers) and their fathers until life grew long for them; do not they see that We gradually reduce the land from its outlying borders? Is it then they who will prevail?
45. Say, “I warn you only by the revelation.” But the deaf will not hear the call, (even) when they are warned.
46. And if a breath of your Lord's torment were to touch them, they assuredly would say, “Alas for us. We were wrongdoers.”
47. And We set a just balance for the Day of Resurrection so that no soul is wronged in the least. And even if there was the weight of a grain of mustard seed, We will bring it forth. And We suffice as reckoners. (21: 36 - 47)

“And when those who disbelieve see you, they mock you, (saying), “Is this he who mentions your gods? And they reject all mention of the Lord of Mercy.” The disbelievers who rejected the belief in the Lord of Mercy, the Creator of the heavens and earth were angry at the Messenger of God (PBUH) when he denounced their idols. They did not have any qualms in rejecting the Lord of Mercy and they refused to let the Prophet (PBUH) denounce their gods. They mocked the Prophet (PBUH) and dared him to bring the promised punishment, “Humankind is a creature of haste, soon I will show you My Signs; so do not ask Me to hasten them. They say, ‘When will this promise come to pass, if you are telling the truth?’” Human beings are, by nature, always in haste; they are always looking to what is next. Quran warned them of the consequences of the challenge they posed to the Prophet (PBUH), “If only the disbelievers knew when they will not be able to ward off the fire from their faces, nor from their backs, and they will not be helped. Nay, it may come to them all of a sudden. They will then be confounded and no power will they have then to avert it, nor will they be reprieved. Messengers before you were indeed mocked, but those who mocked them were surrounded by what they used to ridicule.” Had they known what the consequences of their rejection will be, they would have been able to avoid the inevitable doom, and they would have not persisted in mocking the Messenger (PBUH). They were told that the promise will be fulfilled as it had been fulfilled before. The punishment will be sudden because they wanted God to hasten the punishment. The sudden occurrence of doom will stop them in their tracks, they will neither be able to think nor will they be able to act. In addition to the torment in the Hereafter, they will receive punishment in this life. They will meet the same end that other nations who mocked their messengers met before.

“Say, ‘Who guards you in the night or in the day from the Lord of Mercy? Nay, but they turn away from the mention of their Lord.’” Who can protect them other than the Lord of Mercy? This is a rhetorical question which has a tone of rebuke. Do they think that there is anyone else who can protect them other than the Lord of Mercy? The question is repeated in another way, “Or do they have gods that can guard them from Us? They have no power to aid themselves, nor can they be defended from Us.” How can these gods that they worship protect them when they are unable to protect themselves? These gods are not only helpless but they cannot even seek help from God.

“Nay, We gave the good things of this life to these (disbelievers) and their fathers until life grew long for them; do not they see that We gradually reduce the land from its outlying borders? Is it then they who will prevail?” In spite of their rejection, God gave them good things in this life. The indulgence in the pleasures of this life obliterated their spirituality, sealed their hearts, and weakened their insight. They lost touch with God. They should reflect on the history of huge empires before them which suffered decline and degeneration. Will they then be able to avoid the same end?

The Prophet (PBUH) was then commanded to issue them an ultimatum, “Say, ‘I warn you only by the revelation.’ But the deaf will not hear the call, (even) when they are warned. And if a breath of your Lord's torment were to touch them, they assuredly would say, ‘Alas for us. We were wrongdoers.’” The word, “breath” is usually associated with mercy. Its usage here means that even the slightest punishment will be devastating and will make them cry out, “Alas for us, we were wrong doers.” However, the submission will be too late.

The following verse ends the scene of the Day of Judgement, “And We set a just balance for the Day of Resurrection so that no soul is wronged in the least. And even if there was the weight of a grain of mustard seed, We will bring it forth. And We suffice as reckoners.” A grain of mustard seed is a tiny seed that can be hardly seen with the naked eye. Its weight is negligible. However, it will not be lost on the Day of Judgment. It will be accounted for on the Day of Judgment.

Verses 48 to 92:

48. And We verily gave Moses and Aaron the Criterion (to differentiate between right and wrong) and a light and a reminder for those who remain conscious of God,
49. Those who fear their Lord in secret, and who dread the Hour (of Judgment).
50. And this is a blessed message which We have sent down, will you then reject it?
51. And We verily gave Abraham his sound judgment before, and We were aware of him,
52. When he said to his father and his people, "What are these idols to which you are devoted?"
53. They said, "We found our fathers worshipping them."
54. He said, "Verily, you and your fathers were in manifest error."
55. They said, "Have you brought us the truth, or are you one of those who jest?"
56. He said, "Nay, your Lord is the Lord of the heavens and the earth, He who created them (from nothing); and I bear witness to this.
57. And by God, I will plan against your idols, after you turn your backs and go away."
58. So he broke them to pieces, (all) but the biggest of them that they may return to it.
59. They said, "Who did this to our gods? He must indeed be one of the wrongdoers."
60. They said, "We heard a young man called Abraham speaks of them."
61. They said, "Then bring him before the people's eyes that they may testify."
62. They said, "Abraham, did you do this to our gods?"
63. He said, "Nay, this was done by this, their biggest one. Ask them, if they can speak."
64. So they turned to themselves and said, "Surely you are the wrongdoers."
65. Then they were utterly confounded. (They said), "You know full well that these (idols) do not speak."
66. (Abraham) said, "Do you then worship, besides God, things that can neither benefit nor harm you?"
67. Fie upon you, and upon the things that you worship besides God. Do you not have any understanding?
68. They said, "Burn him and protect your gods, if you do (anything at all)."
69. We (God) said, "Fire, be cool and safe for Abraham."
70. Then, they planned to harm him, but We made them the greatest losers.
71. And We delivered him and Lot (and brought them) to the land which We have blessed for all peoples.
72. And We gave him Isaac and, as an additional gift, (a grandson) Jacob, and We made both of them righteous men.
73. And We made them leaders who guide by Our command, and We inspired in them the doing of good deeds and establishing prayer and the giving of alms, and they worshipped Us (alone).
74. And to Lot, too, We gave wisdom and knowledge, and We saved him from the town which practised abominations. Truly, they were evil people and transgressors.
75. And We brought him into Our mercy. He was one of the righteous.
76. And (remember) Noah, when he cried to Us before, We listened to his (prayer) and delivered him and his family from the great distress.
77. And delivered him from the people who denied Our revelations. They were evil people, therefore We drowned them all.

78. And (remember) David and Solomon, when they gave judgment in the matter of the field into which the sheep of certain people had strayed by night, and We did witness their judgment.
79. And We made Solomon to understand (the case); and We gave wisdom and knowledge to both of them. And we subdued the hills and the birds to hymn (His) praise along with David. We were the doers (thereof).
80. It was We who taught him the making of coats of mail for your benefit, to guard you from each other's violence. Will you then be grateful?
81. (It was Our power that made) the violent wind to flow (tamely) for Solomon according to his command, to the land which We had blessed, for We do know all things.
82. And of the devils (jinn) some dived for him and did other work, and We kept them under our guard.
83. And (remember) Job, when He cried to his Lord, "Truly I have been afflicted with adversity. You are the Most Merciful of those who are merciful."
84. So We heard his prayer and removed the adversity which he suffered, and We gave him his household (that he had lost) and the like thereof along with them, a mercy from Us, and a remembrance for the worshippers;
85. And (remember) Ishmael, Idris, and Dhu'l-Kifl. All were perseverant.
86. And We brought them into Our mercy. They are among the righteous.
87. And remember Dha-nun (the one with the whale), when he went off in anger and deemed that We would not decree anything over him, but he cried out in the darkness, saying, "There is no God save You. Be You Glorified, I have been a wrongdoer."
88. So We heard his prayer and We delivered him from the anguish. Thus We save the believers.
89. And (remember) Zachariah, when he cried to his Lord, "My Lord, leave me not without offspring, You are the best of inheritors."
90. Then We heard his prayer, and bestowed upon him John, and adjusted his wife (to bear a child) for him. They used to vie one with the other in doing good deeds, and they cried to Us in longing and in fear, and were submissive to Us.
91. And (remember) her who guarded her chastity, We breathed into her of Our spirit, and We made her and her son a sign for all peoples.
92. Verily, this brotherhood of yours is a single brotherhood, and I am your Lord therefore worship Me (and no other). (21: 48 – 92)

The previous verses mentioned the fact that the disbelievers used to discredit the Prophet (PBUH) because they did not imagine that God would send a mortal as His messenger. They called the revelation poetry, magic, or fables. The Quran responded by reminding them that God did indeed send messengers before Muhammad (PBUH), "And We verily gave Moses and Aaron the Criterion (to differentiate between right and wrong) and a light and a reminder for those who remain conscious of God." The verse describes the Scripture that was given to Moses (PBUH) "The Criterion," the same name that was given to the Quran. All the divine revelations are called Criteria because they provide the criteria which differentiate between truth and falsehood. The verse labels the Torah as "light," because it lights the flame of faith in the hearts, and thus removes the darkness of falsehood that enshrouds the disbelieving hearts. The Torah, like the Quran, is a reminder for those who remain conscious of God. The Quran becomes their reminder.

It reminds them of God and in the process it raises their status among people. Those who remain conscious of God, they fear His anger and work hard for the Hereafter. They benefit from the flame of light and use it to guide them to the right path, “Those who fear their Lord in secret, and who dread the Hour (of Judgment).” This Quran embodies the blessed message, will you then reject it, “And this is a blessed message which We have sent down, will you then reject it?”

“And We verily gave Abraham his sound judgment before, and We were aware of him,” God gave Abraham (PBUH) the sound judgement and He was well aware of the ability of Abraham (PBUH) to carry the responsibility of the message. He said to his father and his people, “What are these idols to which you are devoted?” This was a sign of his sound judgment. He did not refer to the stone statues and the wooden carvings, which his people were worshipping, as gods. He called them idols, which exactly what they were. He rebuked them for being devoted to the worship of such unanimated things. The only excuse they had was that, “We found our fathers worshipping them.” This was a lame excuse that reflected a lack of independent thinking. It reflected a shaky faith. They did not have any reason to worship the idols except that they found their forefathers doing the same. Prophet Abraham (PBUH) explained to them the error they had committed both them and their forefathers, “He said, ‘Verily you and your fathers were in manifest error.’” They replied back by a question, “Have you brought us the truth, or are you one of those who jest?” This is a question which reflects their shaky state of mind. They asked Prophet Abraham (PBUH) whether he was serious. Contrast this with the confidence that Prophet Abraham (PBUH) exhibited in his unequivocal statement, “He said, ‘Nay, your Lord is the Lord of the heavens and the earth, He who created them (from nothing); and I bear witness to this.’” He was certain beyond any doubt of who created the heavens and earth to the extent that he can bear witness to the fact that God created them. Prophet Abraham (PBUH) did not actually see the creation of the heavens and earth but it was clear in his mind that God is the Creator. Everything in the universe testifies to that.

Prophet Abraham (PBUH) told them that he had a plan to deal with their idols, “And by God, I will plan against your idols, after you turn your backs and go away.” He did not mention the details of the plan. The Quran does not state the response of his people to his declaration. They may have been sure that he could not harm their idols, so his statement did not bother them. He broke them into pieces but he left the biggest idol intact, “So he broke them to pieces, (all) but the biggest of them that they may return to it.” When they came back, they saw what the broken idols and they started wondering, who did this? They did not reflect on what happened or how it could have happened. Idol worship disabled their ability to think rationally. So they started wondering who was the culprit, “Who did this to our gods? He must indeed be one of the wrongdoers.” Those who were aware of Abraham’s (PBUH) argument against their idols remembered his threat, “They said, ‘We heard a young man called Abraham speaks of them.’” It is obvious from the verse that Abraham (PBUH) was a young man when God bestowed on him the ability of sound judgement. We do not know whether at this time he was given God’s revelation or not. God may have inspired him to reject idol worship and to criticise his father and his people for committing this sin. This seems to be the case. They may have called him a “young man” to belittle his influence.

“They said, ‘then bring him before the people's eyes that they may testify.’” They wanted to question him in front of everyone. When he was brought in front of them, “They said, ‘Abraham, did you do this to our gods?’” They still insisted that these were gods, even after they saw them broken into pieces. Abraham (PBUH) responded sarcastically, “Nay, this was done by this, their biggest one. Ask them, if they can speak.” It seems that this sarcastic answer brought them back to their senses, “So they turned to themselves and said, ‘Surely you are wrongdoers.’” But this short awakening did not last long, they quickly lapsed into their previous state of ignorance, they said, “You know full well that these (idols) do not speak.” Abraham (PBUH) lost his patience and rebuked them for their nonsensical behaviour, he said, “Do you then worship, besides God, things that can neither benefit nor harm you? Fie upon you, and upon the things that you worship besides God. Do you not have any understanding?” They were confounded and could not give him a rational answer. Their exit from this embarrassing situation was to say, “Burn him and protect your gods, if you do (anything at all).” God said to the fire, “Fire, be cool and safe for Abraham.” How did this happen? It is God’s will, He says be and it is. But look at the precise language of the Quran. God commanded the fire to be, “cool and safe.” Had the command been for the fire to be cool, it could have been unsafe for Abraham (PBUH). God foiled their plans and saved Abraham (PBUH), “Then they planned to harm him, but We made them the greatest losers.” God made them the losers. God saved Abraham and his nephew, Lot (PBUH) and brought them to Syria, “And We delivered him and Lot (and brought them) to the land which We have blessed for all peoples.” The reference here is to the Greater Syria which became the land of prophet-hood for a long time. This is the area which was blessed by having the second holy Mosque (the Aqsa Mosque) and the Holy Land. God’s blessings made its land fertile and made it the place where His messengers received His revelations, generation after generation.

Abraham (PBUH) left his homeland, his people, and his family and migrated to the Greater Syria, so God replaced his loss, “And We gave him Isaac and, as an additional gift, (a grandson) Jacob, and We made both of them righteous men.” He gave him a son and a grandson who were both righteous and from them came a huge nation. They carried the flame of guidance to guide people to goodness, establishing prayers, and paying the poor-dues. Abraham (PBUH) persevered in face of adversity, so God rewarded him the best reward, “And We made them leaders who guide by Our command, and We inspired in them the doing of good deeds and establishing prayer and the giving of alms, and they worshipped Us (alone).”

“And to Lot, too, We gave wisdom and knowledge, and We saved him from the town which practised abominations. Truly, they were evil people and transgressors. And We brought him into Our mercy. He was one of the righteous.” This is a quick reference to Lot (PBUH). His story was detailed elsewhere. God saved him from the evil people and admitted him into His mercy. God’s mercy is a refuge for people where they can find security and safety.

Noah (PBUH) was also referenced quickly, “And (remember) Noah, when he cried to Us before, We listened to his (prayer) and delivered him and his family from the great distress. And delivered him from the people who denied Our revelations. They were evil people, therefore We drowned them all.”

The following verses mention Prophets Solomon and David (PBUT) in some detail, “And (remember) David and Solomon, when they gave judgment in the matter of the field into which the sheep of certain people had strayed by night, and We did witness their judgment. And We made Solomon to understand (the case); and We gave wisdom and knowledge to each of them. And We subdued the hills and the birds to hymn (His) praise along with David. We were the doers (thereof). It was We who taught him the making of coats of mail for your benefit, to guard you from each other's violence. Will you then be grateful?” The verses narrate a story about two men who came to Prophet David (PBUH) to resolve a dispute which arose between them. The first man had a planted field and the second man had a flock of sheep. The sheep entered the field by night and ate whatever plants they found. David (PBUH) decided that the owner of the flock should give his flock to the owner of the field as a replacement for the loss that the sheep caused. The Sheppard went to Prophet Solomon (PBUH) and told him about the dispute and David’s (PBUH) decision. Solomon (PBUH) had a better way for resolving the dispute. He told his father that it would be better if the Sheppard worked in the field to bring it back to its condition before the sheep entered it. In the meantime, the owner of the field would keep the flock of sheep to benefit from its milk; once his field was reclaimed he should give back the flock of sheep to the Sheppard and he would take back his field. David (PBUH) accepted this decision. Both David and Solomon (PBUT) did their best to arrive at a just resolution. David’s (PBUH) aimed at replacing the loss of the owner of the field, while Solomon’s (PBUH) resolution, which came as an inspiration from God, aimed not only at replacing the loss but also at reclaiming the field. Not only justice was served but also the field was reclaimed. God bestowed wisdom and knowledge on both of them. Each one of them was given special traits as a bounty from God. God subdued the hills and the birds to hymn (His) praise along with David (PBUH) and taught him how to make coats of mail to guard against violence. The Psalms of David (PBUH) were his way of singing God’s praise with hills and the birds. God subjected the wind to flow under Solomon’s (PBUH) command, “(It was Our power that made) the violent wind to flow (tamely) for Solomon according to his command, to the land which We had blessed, for We do know all things. And of the devils (jinn) some dived for him and did other work, and We kept them under our guard.” God also subjected the jinn to work under Solomon’s command.

The next verse touches upon the trials of Prophet Job (PBUH), “And (remember) Job, when He cried to his Lord, ‘Truly I have been afflicted with adversity. You are the Most Merciful of those that are merciful.’” This is one of the most moving stories. The Quran only gave the highlights of the story, no details were given. The verses in this Sura only outline Job’s (PBUH) prayer and God’s response to his prayer. Job’s (PBUH) prayer was brief, simply stating his general condition. He did not even ask for a relief from his condition trusting in God’s mercy. He gave the highest example of the perseverant servant of God. God responded, “So We heard his prayer and removed the adversity which he suffered, and We gave him his household (that he had lost) and the like thereof along with them, a mercy from Us, and a remembrance for the worshippers;” God gave him health and replaced the family he had lost. In addition, God gave him more children and grandchildren. This was a mercy from God. The story is a reminder for the worshippers because they are the most likely to suffer such trials. The believers carry a grave responsibility; they are more likely to be tested in the course of fulfilling their responsibility.

The trait of perseverance is again highlighted in connection with three prophets: Ishmael, Idris, and Dhu'l-Kifl (PBUT), “And (remember) Ishmael, Idris, and Dhu'l-Kifl. All were perseverant. And We brought them into Our mercy. They are among the righteous.” The Quran narrated the story of Ishmael (PBUH) elsewhere, but no details were mentioned about the other two prophets. The message is that they persevered so God brought them into His mercy.

Prophet Yunus' (PBUH) experience with the whale is then narrated, “And remember Dha-nun, when he went off in anger and deemed that We would not decree anything over him, but he cried out in the darkness, saying, ‘There is no God save You. Be You Glorified, I have been a wrongdoer.’” He was labelled the “companion of the whale,” because the whale swallowed him then spat him out. He was sent as a messenger of God to a town. The people of the town rejected him and he did not exercise patience and became angry with them; so he decided to abandon them. He did not wait to be told by God what to do. He thought that he can travel in the land and his travel will not be restricted. This is the interpretation of the phrase, “We would not decree anything over him.” He left the town and went to the seashore where he boarded a ship. The ship was overloaded and the people onboard decided that they should throw someone overboard to lighten the ship's weight. They made a toss and he was chosen to be thrown overboard. He was then swallowed by the whale. When he was in the darkness of the whale's belly he called upon his Lord saying, “There is no God save You. Be You Glorified, I have been a wrongdoer.” God heard his prayer and responded to it and delivered him from his predicament, “So We heard his prayer and We delivered him from the anguish. Thus we save the believers.”

We need to stop at this point and reflect on Yunus' (PBUH) experience. It is clear from the verses that Yunus (PBUH) was impatient with his people. When he was faced by rejection, he simply relinquished his task and left the town. Consequently, he was faced with a much harder affliction. When he realized his mistake he repented. God relieved him of his adversity and delivered him from the anguish. The lesson is that those who are calling people to the straight path will always face difficulties. They will be rejected. They may even be subjected to torture and persecution. They must persevere and they must remain steadfast in face of these adverse conditions. Perseverance is a condition for success. God's promise will be fulfilled, “Thus we save the believers.”

The next prophet to be discussed is Prophet Zachariah (PBUH), “And (remember) Zachariah, when he cried to his Lord, ‘My Lord, leave me not without offspring, You are the best of inheritors.’” The story of the birth of John (PBUH) was narrated before in Surat Al-Imran (Chapter 3) and in Surat Mariam (Chapter 19). Here a brief mention is made. The story starts with Zachariah's (PBUH) prayer, “My Lord, leave me not without offspring.” Zachariah (PBUH) was entrusted with the upkeep of the temple before the birth of Jesus (PBUH). Zachariah (PBUH) did not lose sight of the fact that God will ultimately inherit everything, “You are the best of inheritors.” However, he wanted someone to carry the responsibility of his family, his faith and his wealth after him. God's response was quick and to the point, “Then We heard his prayer, and bestowed upon him John, and adjusted his wife (to bear a child) for him.” Zachariah's (PBUH) wife was barren but the verses simply ignored the details and addressed the request directly. The response was fast because Zachariah (PBUH) and his family used to, “vie one with the other in good deeds, and they cried to Us in longing and in fear, and were submissive to Us.” Zachariah (PBUH) and his wife deserved the blessing of God who bestowed on them a righteous son because they had such high traits.

The final prophet to be mentioned is Jesus (PBUH) and his story started with a reference to his mother, “And (remember) her who guarded her chastity, We breathed into her of Our spirit, and We made her and her son a sign for all peoples.” The verse did not mention Mariam by name because the Sura is about God’s prophets. The mention of Mariam came in relation to her son. The verse emphasized the fact that she guarded her chastity which indicates that she did not engage, at any time, in any intimate relationship with a man whether legitimate or illegitimate. She was a pure virgin. She and her son were a sign for all people. Nothing like this had ever happened before.

Having presented examples of the messengers of God, the tests that they met, and the bounties of God which were bestowed upon them; the narration comes to the ultimate goal of the discourse, “Verily, this brotherhood of yours is a single brotherhood, and I am your Lord therefore worship Me (and no other).” Your nation is a single nation. The brotherhood of the messengers is a single brotherhood. They belong to the same faith and they believe in the same doctrine, the doctrine of the belief in the Oneness of God; one nation on earth and one God in heaven. There is no deity but He.

Verses 93 to 112:

93. And they have divided their religion (into fragments) among them, (yet) all are returning to Us.
94. Whosoever does good deeds and is a believer, there will be no rejection of his effort. We will record (it) for him.
95. And it is prohibited for any community, which We have destroyed, to return,
96. Until the Gog and Magog are let loose, and they will descend from every high land.
97. And the true promise draws near; then, the disbelievers will be staring with their eyes wide open in terror. (They say), “Alas for us, we did not heed this during our lives. Nay, we were wrongdoers.”
98. Verily you, (idolaters) and that which you worship beside God are the firewood of Hell; to it you shall come.
99. If these had been gods, they would not have gotten there, but each one will abide therein.
100. There, sobbing will be their lot, and therein they will not hear.
101. Those for whom Our kindness has been decreed before, will be removed far therefrom.
102. They will not hear the slightest sound thereof, while they abide in that which their souls desire.
103. The great terror will bring them no grief, and the angels will welcome them saying, “This is your Day which you were promised;”
104. The Day when We roll up the heavens like a scroll rolled up for books (completed). As We began the first creation, so shall We repeat it, a promise We have undertaken. Truly shall We fulfil it.
105. And verily we have written in the Scripture, after the reminder, My righteous servants will inherit the earth.

106. Verily in this (Quran) is a Message for people who are devout.
107. We sent you not, but as a mercy to the worlds.
108. Say, "It is only revealed to me that your God is One God. Will you therefore submit?"
109. But if they turn away, Say, "I have proclaimed the Message to you all alike and in truth; but I know not whether that which you are promised is near or far.
110. It is He who knows what is said openly and what you hide (in your hearts).
111. I do not know; may be it is a trial for you and enjoyment for a while."
112. He said, "My Lord, judge You in truth. Our Lord is the Lord of Mercy the One whose help should be sought against the blasphemies you utter." (21: 93 – 112)

"And they have divided their religion (into fragments) among them, (yet) all are returning to Us. Whosoever does good deeds and is a believer, there will be no rejection of his effort. We will record (it) for him." The brotherhood of the Messengers is a single brotherhood. They all belong to one faith, a faith that is founded on the belief in the Oneness of God. All God's messages came to call people to worship the One God. The different messages came with different ways of life. Each message was appropriate to the time, place, and the people to whom it was revealed. However, in spite of the fact that all these messages had the same fundamental foundation their adherents went in different ways. Each group took a piece of the original message for themselves. Arguments and differences erupted among the adherents of the different messages. Even the adherents of one message were divided among themselves. They used these differences as a reason to kill each other. They will return to God in the Hereafter and He will judge among them. The good deeds will be accepted and recorded and their owners will be rewarded. Good deeds are grounded in the belief in God. The belief in God is the basis of life. It is the true link between the human being and the universe and the link between the universe and God. Good deeds are like a building and the belief in God is the foundation of that building. Good deeds are the fruits of the belief in God. Good deeds are the manifestation of the true faith. This is why good deeds are always mentioned in conjunction with the belief in God in the Quran.

The accountability of people will be in the Hereafter, even if a part of it was manifested during this life. Thus, the nations which were punished in their lives will receive their ultimate punishment in the Hereafter, "And it is prohibited for any community, which We have destroyed, to return."

The following verses describe a scene of the scenes of the Day of Judgement. The verses start with a mention of one of the signs of the approach of the Day of Judgement, "Until the Gog and Magog are let loose, and they will descend from every high land." This will signal the approach of the Day of Judgement. However, there is no mention of the timing but the focus is on the surprise that will overwhelm people, "And the true promise draws near; then the disbelievers will be staring with their eyes wide open in terror. (They say), 'Alas for us, we did not heed this during our lives. Nay, we were wrongdoers.'" The horror will overtake the wrongdoers and their eyes will remain wide open. They will regret what they have done in their life time. The judgement will be announced, "Verily you, (idolaters) and that which you worship beside God are the firewood of Hell; to it you shall come." They will be shown the evidence which proves that their claims were false, “If these had been gods, they would not have got there, but each one will abide therein. There, sobbing will be their lot, and therein they will not hear.” The verse also describes their lot in Hell.

The verses then turn to the other side, the side of the believers, “Those for whom Our kindness has been decreed before, will be removed far therefrom. They will not hear the slightest sound thereof, while they abide in that which their souls desire.” They will be saved by the grace of God; they will not hear even the slightest sound of Hellfire. They will be saved from the great terror that will be inflicted upon the wrongdoers. The angels will welcome them into heaven and they will live forever getting what their hearts desire, “The great terror will bring them no grief, and the angels will welcome them saying, ‘This is your Day which you were promised;’”

“The Day when We roll up the heavens like a scroll rolled up for books (completed). As We began the first creation, so shall We repeat it, a promise We have undertaken. Truly shall We fulfil it.” This is another scene of the scenes of the Day of Judgment. The heavens will be rolled up signalling the end. God will then restart the creation as He did the first time.

The narrative then turns to a new theme, the theme of God’s established rules regarding the believers, “And verily we have written in the Scripture, after the reminder, My righteous servants will inherit the earth.” The Scripture may be referring to the Psalms of David (PBUH); in this case the reminder would be the Torah. The Scripture may be also a reference to every one of God’s revealed Books. In this case the reminder would be the Sacred Tablets kept by God which embodies all the revelations. At any rate, God’s established rule is that, “My righteous servants will inherit the earth.” What is meant by the term, “inherit the earth,” and who are God’s righteous servants?

God created Adam to establish a civilization on earth. God established a divine project for humanity to follow so that they are able to perform their task. The divine project is based on the belief in God and doing good deeds. The divine project was not meant only to enable the establishment of a material civilization but was concerned in the first place with nurturing the spirituality of humankind to raise him to the level of civility that God wanted for him and to protect him from succumbing to the material desires that are usually part of any material civilization. The divine project aims at balancing the material and the spiritual. As we go through the history of humankind we see nations which lost this balance. However, the nations which base their good deeds on a foundation of strong belief in God are the heirs of this earth. God’s promise will be fulfilled.

“Verily in this (Quran) is a Message for people who are devout.” The Quran brought a message that can be understood only by those who are devout, because they open their hearts to God’s words. God sent Muhammad (PBUH) as a mercy to humankind, “We sent you not, but as a mercy to the worlds.” The divine project that Muhammad (PBUH) brought from God guides people to the right path and to a happy way of life. The divine project helps humankind achieve the perfection that God wants them to have. This message was not sent to humankind until humanity reached its maturity. The message included the fundamentals of a way of life befitting humans; it is a way of life that does not change with time. However, these fundamentals provide a methodology which allows people to cope with the ever changing needs of a human society. The divine project guaranteed the freedom of thought and it removed all obstacles that may hinder human creativity. Islam called for a human society in which all geographical and ethnic barriers are removed. It brings all people to one doctrine and one social structure.

The Prophet (PBUH) was then commanded to confront the disbelievers, “Say, ‘It is only revealed to me that your God is One God. Will you therefore submit?’” This is the true element of the mercy which frees the human society from the shackles of idol worship and the oppression of ignorance and myth. This is the road of mercy, will you then submit? However, if they turn away, “Say, ‘I have proclaimed the Message to you all alike and in truth; but I know not whether that which you are promised is near or far. It is He who knows what is said openly and what you hide (in your hearts). I do not know; maybe it is a trial for you and enjoyment for a while.’”

Finally, the Prophet (PBUH), having fulfilled his task, turns to his Lord asking for His help, “My Lord, judge You in truth. Our Lord is the Lord of Mercy the One whose help should be sought against the blasphemies you utter.”

Sura 22: Al-Hajj (The Pilgrimage)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 24:

1. People, be conscious of your Lord, for the earthquake of the Hour (of Doom) is a tremendous thing.
2. On the Day when you see it, every nursing mother will forget her nursling and every pregnant one will be delivered of her burden, and you will think people are drunk, yet they will not be drunk, but the torment of God will be severe.
3. Yet there is he who still disputes about God, without knowledge, and follow every rebellious Satan.
4. For him, it is decreed that whoso takes him for a friend, he will mislead him and will guide him to the torment of the blazing Fire.
5. People, if you have a doubt about the Resurrection, (consider) that We created you out of dust, then out of a drop of sperm, then out of a leech-like clot, then out of a lump of flesh, partly formed and partly unformed, in order that We may manifest (our power) to you; and We cause what We will to remain in the wombs for an appointed time, and afterward We bring you forth as infants, then (make you grow) until you attain your full strength. And among you there is he who dies (young), and among you there is he who is brought back to the most abject time of life, so that, after knowledge, he will know nothing. And you see the earth barren, but when We send down water thereon, it quivers and swells and puts forth every lovely kind (of growth).
6. That is because God is the Truth and because He brings back the dead to life; and because He has power over all things;
7. And because there is no doubt that the Hour will come; and because God will raise those who are in the graves.
8. Yet among people is he who still disputes about God, without knowledge, without guidance, and without a book of enlightenment;
9. Turning away in pride to beguile (people) from the way of God. For him, in this world is ignominy, and on the Day of Resurrection We make him taste the torment of burning.
10. (It will be said), "This is because of the deeds which your hands sent forth, for verily God is not unjust to His servants."
11. And among humankind is he who worships God (sitting) on a verge so that if good befalls him he is content therewith, but if a trial befalls him, he falls away utterly. He loses both this world and the Hereafter. That is the sheer loss.
12. They call on such deities, besides God, as can neither hurt nor profit them, that is straying far indeed (from the Way).
13. (Perhaps) they call on one whose hurt is nearer than his benefit; evil, indeed, is the patron, and evil is the associate.
14. Verily God will admit those who believe and do good deeds, to Gardens, beneath which rivers flow, for God does what He pleases.
15. If any think that God will not help him (His Messenger) in this world and the Hereafter, let him stretch out a rope to the sky and climb all the way up; then let him see whether his plan will remove that which enrages (him).

16. Thus, have We sent down (the Quran) as plain revelation, and verily God guides whom He wills.
17. Those who believe (in the Qur'an), those who follow the Jewish (scriptures), the Sabians, the Christians, the Magians, and the idolaters, God will judge between them on the Day of Resurrection. God is a Witness over all things.
18. Do you not see that all things that are in the heavens and on earth, the sun, the moon, the stars, the hills, the trees, the animals, and a great number among humankind do prostrate themselves to God? while there are many for whom the torment is justly deserved. He whom God scorns, there is none to give him honor. God does what He pleases.
19. These two antagonists disputed with each other about their Lord. But those who deny (their Lord), for them will be cut out garments of Fire and boiling water will be poured down on their heads.
20. Whereby that which is in their bellies, and their skins too, will be melted;
21. In addition, there will be maces of iron (to punish) them.
22. Every time they wish to get away therefrom, they will be forced back therein; and (it will be said), "Taste the torment of Fire."
23. God will admit those who believe and do good deeds into Gardens beneath which rivers flow. They shall be adorned therein with bracelets of gold and pearls; and their garments there, will be of silk.
24. For they have been guided (in this life) to the purest of speeches; they have been guided to the path of the Praised. (22: 1 – 24)

Some of the verses of this Sura were revealed in Mecca while some were revealed in Medina. We know that Muslims were not granted permission to fight back until they migrated to Medina. We know that when the people of Medina pledged their allegiance to the Prophet (PBUH), they offered to fight the disbelievers of Menna he declined their offer saying, "I was not commanded to do so." When the Islamic state was established in Medina, Muslims were granted the permission to fight back to protect themselves against the attacks of the disbelievers and to provide an environment which guarantees the freedom of religion. However, the general atmosphere of the Sura reflects the Meccan themes. The Sura emphasizes the concepts of the Oneness of God, the Resurrection, the accountability, the horrifying scenes of the Day of Judgment, and God's signs in the universe. However, the Sura also includes the themes of the permission to fight back, the sanctity of God's rituals, and the promise of God's help to the believers. These themes appeared only in the Quran revealed after the migration to Medina.

"People, be conscious of your Lord, for the earthquake of the Hour (of Doom) is a tremendous thing. On the Day when you see it, every nursing mother will forget her nursling and every pregnant one will be delivered of her burden, and you will think people are drunk, yet they will not be drunk, but the torment of God will be severe." The Sura starts with a horrifying statement depicting a scene which makes the hearts tremble. The Sura starts with a call to all people to be conscious of their Lord and alerts them to the horror of the Day of Judgment. Some of the details of this terrifying scene are mentioned in the second verse. Nursing women will forget about their nursing babies and pregnant women will be delivered of their babies prematurely. The shock will make people appear as if they were drunk. They will not be drunk but the shock will be severe. These two verses are mentioned to warn those who argue about God without knowledge of the consequences of their deeds, “Yet among people is he who still disputes about God, without knowledge, and follow every rebellious Satan. For him, it is decreed that whoso takes him for a friend, he will mislead him and will guide him to the torment of the blazing Fire.” This includes people who argue about the existence of God, the Oneness of God, His power, His knowledge, or His attributes. These people argue without true knowledge. They argue because they were deluded by Satan, who tempted them to adopt such an attitude. God has decreed that the fate of these people is the torment of Fire. They will be led to it by Satan who seduced them in the first place. They may have thought that Satan was guiding them while in true fact they were being misled by Satan.

Are people in doubt that there will be Resurrection after death? They should then reflect on the beginning of life in the first place. They should look around for the signs of God which support the concept of Resurrection, “People, if you have a doubt about the Resurrection, (consider) that We created you out of dust, then out of a drop of sperm, then out of a leech-like clot, then out of a lump of flesh, partly formed and partly unformed, in order that We may manifest (our power) to you; and We cause what We will to remain in the wombs for an appointed time, and afterward We bring you forth as infants, then (make you grow) until you attain your full strength. And among you there is he who dies (young), and among you there is he who is brought back to the most abject time of life, so that, after knowledge, he will know nothing. And you see the earth barren, but when We send down water thereon, it quivers and swells and puts forth every lovely kind (of growth).” The concept of Resurrection may seem easier than the concept of starting the life of a human being from nothing. But both concepts are easy for God, because He only says, “Be,” and it is. However, the Quran uses arguments that appeal to the limited human imagination. The verse reminds people that they were created from the dust of this earth. The human body has the same elements that constitute the earthly dust. When God breathed His spirit into the dust it became a human being. It is a great leap from dust to a human being, a leap that attests to the power of God. The verses then continued to describe the process of the creation of the human being. First there is the sperm, then the leech-like clot, then a morsel of flesh. These transformations have been happening for millions of years, yet we are still unable to discover the secret behind them. The process starts with a sperm from the male which unites with an egg from the female to form a leech-like clot which attaches itself to the wall of the womb. The leech-like clot is transformed into a little lump of flesh. The lump is then transformed into a skeleton. The skeleton may then become covered with flesh or it may be discharged prematurely when a miscarriage occurs. The statement, “in order that We may manifest (our power) to you,” is interjected between the stages of the clot and the formation of the baby in the womb. It is a reminder of the miraculous transformation from a clot to a fully formed baby. The process of formation of the baby continues for a period of time, usually nine months. However, the changes that occur during this relatively short period are huge. Another huge period of development between the little baby and the mature human being, “We bring you forth as infants, then (make you grow) until you attain your full strength.” Some may die early, and some may grow to be old. Death is the ultimate end for each mortal. However, the aging process offers another opportunity for reflection on the miracle of creation. Aging brings the human being a full circle back to the state of early childhood. People lose the knowledge and the skills that they gained during their lives. The verse then moves from the miracle of human creation to the miracle of plant creation, “And you see the earth barren, but when We send down water thereon, it quivers and swells and puts forth every lovely kind (of growth).” A barren land is in a state between life and death. This is the state of a piece of land before it is being watered. Water brings life to a barren land. When the land is watered it quivers and swells. This is an observation that the Quran described more than fourteen hundreds years ago but became only known recently. The verse describes the miracles of human life and plant life in the same verse to indicate the relationship between the two. It is also an indication that there is only one power behind the two miracles.

“That is because God is the Truth and because He brings back the dead to life; and because He has power over all things; and because there is no doubt that the Hour will come; and because God will raise those who are in the graves.” Creating a human being from dust and changing the land from a barren state to a state capable of producing plants are rooted in the fact that God is the Truth. God created the laws that regulate the continuation of human life and plant production and growth. These laws function continuously without interruption. It is God who will raise the dead and He will resurrect those who died and are buried in their graves. The phases of the creation of the embryo, the development of the fetus, and the complete cycle of the development of the human being until he/she returns back to a state of childhood, indicate that there must be another life where the human being is allowed to reach perfection. This will only happen in the Hereafter. These phases give dual evidence that the Resurrection will happen. The phases show God’s power as a Creator and His ability to re-create since He was the One who created in the first instance. They also show the inevitability of the Resurrection because the perfection that the mortals are destined for cannot happen during their life on earth.

Yet, there are those who still argue about the power of God, “Yet among people is he who still disputes about God, without knowledge, without guidance, and without a book of enlightenment; turning away in pride to beguile (people) from the way of God. For him in this world is ignominy, and on the Day of Resurrection We make him taste the torment of burning.” The reflection on the issues of the creation renders disputing God’s power illogical. In addition, those who dispute God’s power have no knowledge, nor do they have a book that supports their claim. Their argument is baseless. The verse depicts an image of an arrogant person, “turning away in pride,” who uses his arrogance to mislead people away from the right path. His recompense will be ignominy in the life on earth and severe torment of fire in the Hereafter. This will be his well deserved recompense because God never treats any of His servants unjustly, “(It will be said), ‘This is because of the deeds which your hands sent forth, for verily God is not unjust to His servants.’”

“And among humankind is he who worships God (sitting) on a verge so that if good befalls him he is content therewith, but if a trial befalls him, he falls away utterly. He loses both this world and the Hereafter. That is the sheer loss. They call on such deities, besides God, as can neither hurt nor profit them, that is straying far indeed (from the Way). (Perhaps) they call on one whose hurt is nearer than his benefit; evil, indeed, is the patron, and evil is the associate.” This is another kind of people. People who consider faith as a business deal. They think that faith is only good as long as it leads them to material gain in this life. They do not understand that faith is the strong foundation that holds the believers life firm in face of the turbulent events that impact human life. Faith should be the source of support in face of calamities and the source of light that guides the believers to the shore of security when the darkness of doubt surrounds them. Faith is the link between God and the believers. It is a two- way channel through which the believer seeks God's guidance and then receives God's support. The expression used in the verse, to describe those who are content with their faith as long as faith brings them material benefits and they turn away if life becomes difficult, reflects the doubts in their hearts and the hesitation in their intention as if they are sitting on the edge of an abyss. They only need a slight push to throw them off balance. This is a true loss. They suffer the material loss which caused them to lose their faith and in addition, they lose the security and the contentment which faith brings to the heart of the believer. They lose the way that can bring them salvation and they seek help from patrons or associates other than God. They do not know that those will cause them harm and will not benefit them.

But God has something better for the believers, even if they suffer a great material loss in this life, "Verily God will admit those who believe and do good deeds, to Gardens, beneath which rivers flow, for God does what He pleases." Believers should stand firm in the face of trials and adversity. They should rely on their faith in God to get them through these difficult times. Only God can remove the afflictions. Those who cannot stand this test will realize that there is no alternative, "If any think that God will not help him (His Messenger) in this world and the Hereafter, let him stretch out a rope to the sky and climb all the way up; then let him see whether his plan will remove that which enrages (him)." Believers should never despair of the mercy and help of God.

God revealed His Quran to guide people to the straight path, "Thus, have We sent down (the Quran) as plain revelation, and verily God guides whom He wills." God will guide those who want God's guidance and strive for it. Those who follow different ways will be judged by God on the Day of Judgment, "Those who believe (in the Qur'an), those who follow the Jewish (scriptures), the Sabians, the Christians, the Magians, and the idolaters, God will judge between them on the Day of Resurrection. God is a Witness over all things."

Human beings were given the freedom to choose, but the universe has been created to worship God, "Do you not see that all things that are in the heavens and on earth, the sun, the moon, the stars, the hills, the trees, the animals, and a great number among humankind do prostrate themselves to God?; while there are many for whom the torment is justly deserved. He whom God scorns, there is none to give him honor. God does what He pleases." Those who reject God's guidance will receive their share of ignominy.

The following verses describe one of the scenes of the Day of Judgment which depicts examples of those honored by God and those who will be disgraced by God, "These two antagonists disputed with each other about their Lord. But those who deny (their Lord), for them will be cut out garments of Fire and boiling water will be poured down on their heads. Whereby that which is in their bellies, and their skins too, will be melted; in addition there will be maces of iron (to punish) them. Every time they wish to get away there from, they will be forced back therein; and

(it will be said), ‘Taste the torment of Fire.’” The verses describe a horrific scene: garments made out of fire, boiling water is poured over the heads, and rods of hot iron are used to strike people. The disbelievers will wish to leave, however they will only get rebuke, “Taste the torment of Fire.”

On the other hand, those who believed will get a different treatment, “God will admit those who believe and do good deeds into Gardens beneath which rivers flow. They shall be adorned therein with bracelets of gold and pearls; and their garments there will be of silk.” They will be guided to say the purest of speech, “For they have been guided (in this life) to the purest of speeches; they have been guided to the path of the Praised.”

Verses 25 to 41:

- 25. Those who disbelieve and bar (people) from the way of God and from the Sacred Mosque, which We have appointed for all people together, its residents and its visitors. Whosoever tries to violate its sanctity with wrongdoing, We shall make him taste a painful torment.*
- 26. We showed the site of the (Sacred) House, to Abraham, (saying), “Do not associate anything with Me; and purify My House for those who circle around it, or stand up, or bow, or prostrate themselves (therein in prayer).*
- 27. And proclaim the pilgrimage to people. They will come to you on foot and on every lean camel; they will come from every deep ravine.*
- 28. That they may witness the benefits (provided) for them, and celebrate the name of God, through the appointed Days, over the cattle which He has provided for them (for sacrifice). Then, eat of them and feed the distressed and the needy.*
- 29. Then, let them complete the rites prescribed for them, perform their vows, and (again) circumambulate the Ancient House.*
- 30. That (is the command). And whoso respects the sacred ordinances of God, it will be well for him in the sight of his Lord. The cattle are lawful to you save that which has been recited to you. So shun the filth of idols, and shun false statements;*
- 31. Being true in faith to God, and never associating partners with Him. Whoso associates partners with God is as if he had fallen from the sky and the birds had snatched him or the wind had blown him to a far-off place.*
- 32. All this (is ordained by God); and whoever respects the rites of God, this is surely (the outcome) of the piety of the hearts.*
- 33. In them you have benefits for an appointed term; and afterward they are brought for sacrifice near the Ancient House.*
- 34. And for every nation have We appointed a ritual, that they may mention the name of God over the beast of cattle that He has given them for food; and your god is One God, therefore surrender to Him. And give glad tidings (Muhammad) to the humble;*
- 35. Whose hearts are filled with awe when God is mentioned; and who endure whatever may befall them; and those who establish worship; and who spend of that We have bestowed on them.*
- 36. And the camels We have designated to be part of God’s sacred rites. Therein you have much good. So mention the name of God over them as they are lined up for sacrifice.*

- Then when their flanks fall (dead), eat thereof and feed the beggar and the suppliant. Thus, We have subjected them to you, that haply you may give thanks.*
37. It is neither their meat nor their blood that reaches God. It is your piety that reaches Him. He has thus subjected them to you, that you may glorify God for having guided you and to give glad tidings to all who do good.
38. Verily, God will defend those who believe; verily, God does not love the treacherous, the ungrateful.
39. Sanction is given to those who fight because they have been wronged; and God is indeed able to give them victory;
40. Those who have been driven from their homes unjustly only because they said, "Our Lord is God." If God did not repel some people by means of others, monasteries, churches, synagogues, and mosques, wherein the name of God is oft mentioned, would assuredly have been pulled down. Verily God helps those who help Him. God is Strong, Eminent.
41. Those who, if We give them power in the land, establish worship and pay the poor-due and enjoin kindness and forbid iniquity; and God controls the outcome of all events. (22: 25-41)

"Those who disbelieve and bar (people) from the way of God and from the Sacred Mosque, which We have appointed for all people together, its residents and its visitors, whosoever tries to violate its sanctity with wrongdoing, We shall make him taste a painful torment." This verse refers to what Quraish was doing; they barred the Muslims who wanted to visit the Sacred Mosque and did not allow them to perform the rites of pilgrimage and Umra. This incident took place during the 6th year (H). God made the Sacred Mosque a safe ground. No fight was allowed within the precinct of the Sacred Mosque. All people have the right to feel safe and are able to freely perform their worship without a threat or disturbance. All people whether they were residents of Mecca or visiting from outside have equal rights. The precinct of the Sacred Mosque remained an oasis for peace since it was established until now. The Quran threatens anyone who dares to violate its sanctity, "whosoever tries to violate its sanctity with wrongdoing, We shall make him taste a painful torment." The threat is directed to those who may want to "try," which indicates the seriousness of the crime.

"We showed the site of the (Sacred) House, to Abraham, (saying), 'Do not associate anything with Me; and purify My House for those who circle around it, or stand up, or bow, or prostrate themselves (therein in prayer). And proclaim the pilgrimage to people. They will come to you on foot and on every lean camel; they will come from every deep ravine, that they may witness the benefits (provided) for them, and celebrate the name of God, through the appointed Days, over the cattle which He has provided for them (for sacrifice). Then eat of them and feed the distressed and the needy. Then let them complete the rites prescribed for them, perform their vows, and (again) circumambulate the Ancient House.'" The Sacred House was established to be the symbol of the Oneness of God on earth. God guided Prophet Abraham (PBUH) to its place to rebuilt and take care of it, on one condition, "Do not associate anything with Me." God commanded Prophet Abraham (PBUH) to purify the House and prepare it for the rituals of pilgrimage. When he completed his task, God commanded him to proclaim pilgrimage to people.

God promised Prophet Abraham (PBUH) that people will respond to his proclamation and will come to perform pilgrimage from far and wide. That promise was kept and people still come to the Sacred Mosque to perform pilgrimage to this day. Millions of people, rich and poor, come to perform pilgrimage every year. The verse mentions some of the objectives of pilgrimage, “that they may witness the benefits (provided) for them, and celebrate the name of God, through the appointed Days, over the cattle which He has provided for them (for sacrifice).” The benefits that people find in pilgrimage are many. Pilgrimage is an event which combines both spiritual and material benefits for Muslims. Pilgrimage is a conference for Muslims to meet, discuss common issues, and coordinate major initiatives. It is a business opportunity for people. It is a huge market place. Pilgrimage is a major religious event in the life of a believer. It is a time for purification of the soul. Believers experience their nearness to God in His Sacred Mosque. Believers circulate around the House and remember Prophet Abraham (PBUH) when he had to leave his spouse and his baby boy in this barren place, praying to God to protect them and to provide for them. They remember Lady Hajer running between the two hills of Safa and Marwah looking for water for her baby boy. They imagine her having went back and forth seven times then she saw the water gushing from under the tiny feet of her son. Then they remember Prophet Abraham (PBUH) ready to sacrifice his son in response to the command he received from God in his dream. They remember the submission and perseverance of Prophet Ishmael (PBUH) in obeying God’s command. Many memories come back to the minds of the believers as they spend time seeking God’s nearness in His House. These memories remind them of their identity as Muslims having one God, raising one banner, and looking towards one Qibla.

“That (is the command). And whoso respects the sacred ordinances of God, it will be well for him in the sight of his Lord. The cattle are lawful to you save that which has been recited to you. So shun the filth of idols, and shun false statements; being true in faith to God, and never associating partners with Him. Whoso associates partners with God is as if he had fallen from the sky and the birds had snatched him or the wind had blown him to a far-off place.” Those who respect the things which have been decreed sacred by God, refrain from breaking God’s rules. This purifies their souls and creates a world that is safe for people to live in. The verse emphasizes that only God has the right to determine what is sacred. The Arabs used to sanctify certain animals claiming that these were God’s commands. The verse came to refute this claim explaining that only God has the right to determine what things are sacred. In addition, the verse stated that the filth of idols and false talk should be shunned. Associating partners with God is a filth that spoils the souls. Associating partners with God is a false statement but false statements are wider in scope than associating partners with God. The verse stated clearly that false statements in general are completely forbidden. Making a false statement is extremely abhorred in Islam, a fact that is portrayed by linking it to associating partners with God. This has been emphasized by prophetic traditions. The Prophet (PBUH) has been quoted to have said, “Making false statements is as bad as association partners with God.” God wants people to avoid all forms of associating partners with God as well as making false statements. God wants people to follow the straight path to God. The verse paints a horrifying picture for those who wander away from the true path of God, “Whoso associates partners with God is as if he had fallen from the sky and the birds had snatched him or the wind had blown him to a far-off place.” It is a true depiction of those who associate partners with God. They fall from the heaven of faith to the abyss of disbelief. They lose the solid foundation of faith which provides security and balance in life, and fall into an unbounded space of insecurity and imbalance.

“All this (is ordained by God); and whoever respects the rites of God, this is surely (the outcome) of the piety of hearts. In them you have benefits for an appointed term; and afterward they are brought for sacrifice near the Ancient House.” The verse links piety of the hearts to the pilgrimage’s ritual of sacrifice. Attaining piety of the hearts is the ultimate goal of pilgrimage. The rituals are symbols of the believer’s obedience and submission to God. Thus, performing the rituals is an expression of the believer’s willingness to obey and submit to God’s commands following the example that has been set before by Prophet Abraham (PBUH).

The pilgrims are allowed to make use of the sacrificial animals on their way to the Sacred House, if there was a need. They can ride the animals and drink their milk until they reach the Sacred House. At the sacred House, the animals are slaughtered and their meat is distributed to the poor and needy.

“And for every nation have We appointed a ritual, that they may mention the name of God over the beast of cattle that He has given them for food; and your god is One God, therefore surrender to Him. And give glad tidings (Muhammad) to the humble, whose hearts are filled with awe when God is mentioned, and who endure whatever may befall them, and those who establish worship and who spend of that We have bestowed on them.” The ritual of animal sacrifice has been known to various nations, Islam makes it clear that sacrifice has to be made with the intent that it is a symbol of obedience to God. Sacrificing animals for another cause is prohibited. The verse reiterates this fact again, “your god is One God, therefore submit to Him.” This is a voluntary submission to God. It is a submission of those who are seeking security in submitting to God, whose hearts tremble in awe when the name of God is mentioned. Those who endure with patience whatever befall them. They are content with whatever God decrees. They continue to establish prayer and spend in the way of God. Rituals and doctrine are intertwined together. The doctrine provides a foundation for the rituals and the rituals are symbols of the doctrine.

“And the camels We have designated to be part of God’s sacred rites. Therein you have much good. So mention the name of God over them as they are lined up for sacrifice. Then when their flanks fall (dead), eat thereof and feed the beggar and the suppliant. Thus We have subjected them to you, that haply you may give thanks. It is neither their meat nor their blood that reaches God. It is your piety that reaches Him. He has thus subjected them to you, that you may glorify God for having guided you and to give glad tidings to all who do good.” Among the animals to be sacrificed, camels are mentioned explicitly because they represent the greatest sacrifice. God created them to be used for riding, for their milk to be drunk, and for their meat to be eaten. God has no use for their meat but the sacrifice is a way for the attainment of piety of the hearts.

Believers should protect the sanctity of God’s rituals and places of worship. They should protect the freedom of faith and freedom of worship. That is why permission was granted to fight back those who try to oppress the believers, “Verily God will defend those who believe; verily, God does not love the treacherous, the ungrateful. Sanction is given to those who fight because they have been wronged; and God is indeed able to give them victory; those who have been driven from their homes unjustly only because they said, ‘Our Lord is God.’ If God did not repel some people by means of others, monasteries, churches, synagogues, and mosques, wherein the name of God is oft mentioned, would assuredly have been pulled down. Verily God helps those who help Him. God is Strong, Eminent. Those who, if We give them power in the land, establish worship and pay the poor-due and enjoin kindness and forbid iniquity. And God controls the outcome of all events.” The battle between good and evil is an ever continuous battle. It started with the creation of Adam (PBUH) and will continue till the end of time. The forces of evil are always well equipped, they are ready to oppress and persecute the believers. The forces of evil have no scruples. They use whatever means available to seduce people and turn them away from the right path. God wanted the believers to be well equipped to be able to resist the forces of evil. Material preparation is important. Before granting the permission to fight back, the believers were reassured that God will protect them, “Verily God will defend (from ill) those who believe.” They were told that God does not like their enemies because they were treacherous. The believers had the right to defend themselves because they were wronged, “Sanction is given to those who fight because they have been wronged;” They should feel reassured because God will support and protect them, “God is indeed able to give them victory.” The believers were fighting for a noble cause: they were defending the principle of freedom of faith not only for themselves but also for all people. The verse then stated a fundamental principle, the principle of the need to defend freedom of faith. The example was given for the need to protect places of worship for Jews, Christians and Muslims. These places can be easily demolished by the forces of evil if the believers do not stand up to defend them. There are times when the truth needs to be protected and defended against the onslaught of falsehood. The believers were commanded to use whatever material means to defend these places of worship and to defend the freedom of faith against the oppression of falsehood.

One needs to reflect on the message that these verses state. God promised to protect and defend the believers against the onslaught of falsehood. So, why is He commanding the believers to fight back? Why should the believers fight, and suffer? The answer to this question is that this is God’s will. There is divine wisdom behind this course of action. Victory should be earned not granted. For the believers to earn victory they should satisfy two main requirements. The first requirement is the preparation of all material means available for them. The second requirement is the spiritual preparation through prayers, recitation of Quran, and praying for God’s victory. The believers should remain conscious of God.

The believers are entrusted to the task of carrying the banner of the divine project. Those who carry the banner should be willing to strive, work hard, and sacrifice for the sake of God. This is the way for people to mature and for human talents and skills to be discovered. It is also a training opportunity for the community to unite around a cause and to work together towards a goal.

Sometimes the believers feel that victory is slow in coming. It is important to understand that for victory to be effective it has to be well timed. Premature victory is as dangerous as losing the battle. Victory can be achieved only when the environment is suitable. The delay in achieving victory may be an indication that the community is lacking in one or more of the aspects needed to attain victory; or it may be that the community did not reach the required maturity to receive victory and to appreciate it. Premature victory can be easily lost and it may be difficult to regain victory after it has been lost. God’s promise will be fulfilled when all conditions for achieving victory have been realized, “Verily God helps those who help Him. God is Strong, Eminent. Those who, if We give them power in the land, establish worship and pay the poor-due and enjoin kindness and forbid iniquity. And God controls the outcome of all events.” God will never let the believers down. But who are those who deserve God’s support? Those who will use God’s support to establish prayers, pay the poor-dues, and enjoin kindness and forbid iniquity. They will establish goodness and will fight evil and corruption. They will strive to fulfill the divine project on earth, the divine project which guarantees justice and freedom for people.

Verses 42 to 57:

42. If they reject you (Muhammad), so did the people of Noah, and (the tribes of) ‘Aad and Thamud, before you, reject (Our messengers);
43. And the people of Abraham and the people of Lot;
44. (and) The dwellers of Midian. And Moses was rejected; but I granted respite to the disbelievers for a long while, then I seized them, and how (terrible) was My reproach.
45. How many a township have We destroyed while it was sinful, so that it lies (to this day) in ruins, and (how many) a deserted well and lofty tower.
46. Have they not travelled in the land, and do they not have hearts to feel with and ears to hear with? For indeed it is not the eyes that grow blind, but it is the hearts, which are within the bosoms, that grow blind.
47. And they ask you to hasten on the torment, and God will by no means fail in His promise, and surely a day with your Lord is as a thousand years of what you count.
48. And how many a township did I give respite while it was unjust, then I overtook it, and to Me is the return.
49. Say, “People, I am only a plain warner to you.”
50. Those who believe and do good deeds, they shall have forgiveness and an honorable provision.
51. But those who strive to oppose Our revelations, they will be the rightful owners of the Fire.
52. And We did not send before you any messenger or prophet except that when he wished something Satan did insinuate something, into these wishes, but God removes that which the Satan insinuates then does God affirms His revelations, and God is Omniscient, Wise.
53. He makes Satan’s insinuations a temptation only for the sick at heart and those whose hearts are hardened. Indeed, the wrongdoers are in profound discord.
54. And that those who have been given knowledge may know that it is the truth from your Lord, so that they believe therein and their hearts submit humbly to Him. God will certainly guide those who believe to a straight path.
55. And those who disbelieve will not cease to be in doubt thereof until the Hour overtakes them suddenly, or there comes to them the torment of a disastrous day.
56. On that day the Dominion will be God’s. He will judge between them, so those who believe and do good deeds will be in Gardens of bliss.
57. While those who disbelieved and denied Our revelations, for them will be a shameful torment. (22: 42 – 57)

“If they reject you (Muhammad), so did the people of Noah, and (the tribes of) ‘Aad and Thamud, before you, reject (Our messengers); and the people of Abraham and the people of Lot; (and) the dwellers of Midian. And Moses was rejected; but I granted respite to the disbelievers for a long while, then I seized them, and how (terrible) was My reproach.” Muhammad (PBUH) was not the first messenger to be rejected by the people to whom he was sent, all the previous messengers were rejected by their people. God’s rule was applied to those who rejected guidance before, they were all destroyed. Note that Prophet Moses (PBUH) was mentioned separately because he was not rejected by his own people but it was Pharaoh who rejected Moses (PBUH). God gave them all respite then He seized them. How hard was God’s seizure? The following verse gives an indication of God’s seizure, “How many a township have We destroyed while it was sinful, so that it lies (to this day) in ruins, and (how many) a deserted well and lofty tower.” The ruins of empty palaces, deserted wells, and demolished towers are testaments of God’s seizure. One does not need to travel very far to see these ruins, “Have they not travelled in the land, and do they not have hearts to feel with and ears to hear with? For indeed it is not the eyes that grow blind, but it is the hearts, which are within the bosoms, that grow blind.” The fate that people who denied their messengers met before, whose traces could be clearly seen around, should have been a lesson for the idolaters of Mecca. The verse poses a rhetorical question, “do they not have hearts to feel with and ears to hear with.” Their ears did not listen and their hearts did not understand the lesson. Instead, they became stubborn in their rejection, “And they ask you to hasten on the torment, and God will by no means fail in His promise, and surely a day with your Lord is as a thousand years of what you count.” The wrongdoers do not benefit from the experience of the others. They always think that they are different. The idolaters of Mecca had the audacity to ridicule the Prophet (PBUH) and to dare him to hasten the punishment. God’s promise will never fail. However, God has a different scale for time other than that which is used by humans. So, never doubt God’s promise, “And how many a township did I give respite while it was unjust, then I overtook it, and to Me is the return.”

The following verse starts a new theme. The Prophet (PBUH) was commanded to, “Say, ‘People, I am only a plain warner to you.’” This statement outlines the task of the Prophet (PBUH). God sent him to warn people, telling them the alternative fates for those who believe and those who reject, “Those who believe and do good deeds, they shall have forgiveness and an honorable provision. But those who strive to oppose Our revelations, they will be the rightful owners of the Fire.” God will forgive those who believed and did good deeds and will give them honorable provision. But those who were stubborn and tried to prevent guidance to reach people will become the dwellers of Hell.

God protects the integrity of His Message; no one can change the message. Satan would like to change the Message. He tries to get to his objective through the wishes that the Messengers have as human beings. The messengers were human beings they had human feelings, anxieties, and ambitions; but God protected the messengers from Satan’s attacks. The messengers wanted to succeed in spreading the Message. They were anxious to remove the obstacles that kept the message from reaching people. They were eager to see all people become guided. Satan tried to penetrate these feelings and desires to change the message, but God protected the integrity of His message and destroyed Satan’s plans, “And We did not send before you any messenger or prophet except that when he wished something Satan did insinuate something, into these wishes, but God removes that which the Satan insinuates then does God affirms His revelations, and God is Omniscient, Wise. He makes Satan's insinuations a temptation only for the sick at heart and those whose hearts are hardened. Indeed, the wrongdoers are in profound discord. And that those who have been given knowledge may know that it is the truth from your Lord, so that they may believe therein and their hearts may submit humbly to Him. God will certainly guide those who believe to a straight path." There are many narrations that explain the reason for the revelation of these verses. However, all these narrations lack authenticity, according to Ibn Katheer and the scholars of Hadeeth.

We can attempt to explain the words of God according to our limited understanding, God knows best what He meant by these verses. These verses provide a general statement that applies to all messengers of God, not only to Prophet Muhammad (PBUH). The verses may refer to incidents where the messenger may have wanted to take an action that he thought would be in the best interest of spreading the message, but his action could have created a doubt about the application of a certain fundamental principle of the message. God intervened and clarified the true application of the principle so that there would be no doubt. There are several examples in the life of Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) which may explain this. One of these examples is the incident which involved a companion of the Prophet (PBUH) by the name of Ibn Um Maktoom (RA). Ibn Um Maktoom (RA) was a blind person. One day, while the Prophet (PBUH) was busy talking to the chiefs of Quraish, Ibn Um Maktoom (RA) approached the Prophet (PBUH) asking the Prophet (PBUH) to teach him some verses of the Quran. The Prophet (PBUH) was at a point in the discussion where he was hopeful that the chiefs of Quraish may be inclined to adopt Islam and he was worried about the interruption by Ibn Um Maktoom (RA). Ibn Um Maktoom (RA), being unaware of the situation, kept insisting on his request. The Prophet (PBUH) was annoyed and turned away from Ibn Um Maktoom (RA). Verses from the Quran were revealed on this occasion which reproached the Prophet (PBUH) for turning away from Ibn Um Maktoom (RA), "He frowned and turned away; because there came the blind man." (80: 1 – 2). Ever since this incident, the Prophet (PBUH) used to greet Ibn Um Maktoom (RA) saying, "Welcome to the man about whom God reproached me."

"And those who disbelieve will not cease to be in doubt thereof until the Hour overtakes them suddenly, or there comes to them the torment of a disastrous day. On that day the Dominion will be God's. He will judge between them, so those who believe and do good deeds will be in Gardens of bliss. While those who disbelieved and denied Our revelations, for them will be a shameful torment." Those who disbelieve will always be in doubt of the Quran. They will never realize its beauty; until the Day of Judgment overtakes them suddenly. They will realize then that only God has the Dominion over everything. The believers will end up in paradise while the disbelievers will meet their doom.

Verses 58 to 78:

58. Those who fled their homes in God's cause, and are then slain or die, on them will God bestow a goodly provision. Verily, God is the Best of the providers.
59. Verily He will admit them to a place with which they shall be well pleased; God is Omniscient, Forbearing.

60. That (is so). And whoso has retaliated with the like of that which he was made to suffer and then has (again) been wronged, God will support him; God is verily Effacer of Sins, All-Forgiving.
61. That is because God merges night into day, and He merges day into night, and verily God is All-Hearing, All- Seeing.
62. That is because God is the Truth, and that which they call upon instead of Him, is falsehood; God is the Most High, the Great.
63. Do you not see that that God sends down rain from the sky, and forthwith the earth becomes clothed with green? God is Subtle, Totally-Aware.
64. To Him belongs all that is in the heavens and on earth; God is verily Independent, Praised.
65. Do you not see that God has subjected to you all that is on earth, and the ships that sail through the sea by His Command? He withholds the sky from falling on the earth except by His leave; God is All-Pitying, Giver of Mercy to people.
66. It is He who gave you life, will cause you to die, and will again give you life. Truly, humankind is a most ungrateful creature.
67. To every people have We appointed rites and ceremonies which they are to perform; so let them not dispute with you about the matter, but call to your Lord. You are indeed on the right guidance.
68. If they do wrangle with you, say, "God knows best what it is you are doing.
69. God will judge between you on the Day of Judgment concerning the matters in which you differ."
70. Do you not know that God knows what is in the heaven and the earth? Surely, this is in a Record; surely, this is easy to God.
71. And they worship besides God that for which He did not send down authority and that whereof they have no knowledge. The wrongdoers have no helper.
72. And when Our revelations are recited to them, you recognize the denial in the faces of those who disbelieve; they would be on the verge of assaulting those who recite Our revelations to them. Say "Shall I proclaim to you worse than that? The Fire, God has promised it for those who disbelieve; a hapless journey's end."
73. People, a parable have been coined, so pay heed to it. Those on whom you call besides God will never create a fly even if they gather together for the purpose. And if the fly took something from them, they could not rescue it from it. So weak are (both) the seeker and the sought.
74. They did not give God His rightful measure; God is Strong, Eminent.
75. God chooses messengers from angels and from people. God is All-Hearing, All-Seeing.
76. He knows what is before them and what is behind them. To God go back all matters (for decision).
77. Believers, bow down and prostrate yourselves, and worship your Lord, and do good, that haply you may succeed.
78. And strive for God with the endeavor which is His right. He has chosen you and has not laid upon you in religion any hardship; the faith of your father Abraham (is yours). He has named you Muslims of old time and in this (Book) that the Messenger may be a witness against you, and that you may be witnesses against humankind. So establish prayer, pay the poor-dues, and hold fast to God. He is your Patron; a blessed Patron and a blessed Helper. (22: 58 – 78)

“Those who fled their homes in God’s cause, and are then slain or die, on them will God bestow a goodly provision. Verily, God is the Best of the providers. Verily, He will admit them to a place with which they shall be well pleased; God is Omniscient, Forbearing.” Those who fled their homes in God’s cause left everything they own behind. They left behind their homes, their families, their homeland, and their property and migrated to a new place where they can practice their faith freely. They gave up their worldly possessions seeking God’s pleasure. God will reward them with a good provision, whether they die on a battleground or they die in their homes. God will give them the reward He kept for the martyrs because they left their homes in God’s cause. He will admit them to paradise through an entrance that they will be pleased with.

God promised to lend His support to those who were wronged and retaliated in a proper measure then they were again subjected to wrongdoings, “That (is so). And whoso has retaliated with the like of that which he was made to suffer and then has (again) been wronged, God will support him; God is verily Effacer of Sins, All- Forgiving.” The condition for obtaining God’s support is not to exceed the limit in retaliation. The verse ends by stating that God is, “verily, Effacer of Sins, All-Forgiving.” Mortals may choose not to forgive and may want to retaliate for any wrongdoing inflicted on them, but God is ever Forgiving. The verses then continue to describe the cosmic phenomena created by God. This may indicate that God’s promise to support those who suffered wrongdoing is one of the norms that God created in this universe, “That is because God merges night into day, and He merges day into night, and verily God is All-Hearing, All-Seeing.” The verse describes a phenomenon that happens every day. Everyone sees it and takes it for granted. The verse draws people’s attention to this regular phenomenon so that they recognize the limitless power of God which maintains these cosmic phenomena. Similarly, God’s support for those who suffer from the wrongdoings inflicted upon them by others is part of the phenomena of this universe. This is closely linked to the fact that God is the Truth. The Truth is the power that holds the equilibrium of the universe and maintains its discipline, “That is because God is the Truth, and that which they call upon instead of Him, is falsehood; God is the Most High, the Great.” This is enough reason for the eventual loss of falsehood and the victory of what is right and fair; God is Great.

The verses continue to explore other cosmic phenomena, “Do you not see that that God sends down rain from the sky, and forthwith the earth becomes clothed with green? God is Subtle, Totally-Aware.” Most people consider the phenomena of the fall of rain, the subsequent revival of the earth, and the growth of plants to be normal events. These phenomena are usually taken for granted. However, these phenomena can evoke strong emotions in the sensitive hearts. People who are sensitive to these cosmic phenomena may even see a similarity between the budding life of a small plant and the budding life of a small child. The process of the vegetation growth requires the right constituents of the soil and the right amount of water. The tiny trunk of the plant that penetrates the solid soil looking for air and sun is a sign of the power of God which works in a subtle way. God is the owner of the heavens and earth and He does not need anything and He most worthy of all praise, “To Him belongs all that is in the heavens and on earth; God is verily Independent, Praised.”

“Do you not see that God has subjected to you all that is on earth, and the ships that sail through the sea by His command? He withholds the sky from falling on the earth except by His leave; God is All-Pitying, Giver of Mercy to people.” God subjected many things for the use of people on earth, but many of them are unaware of the blessings of God. God created the laws that allow ships to float on sea and travel through waves. God created the universe and maintains its equilibrium using laws He created. God is able to disable these laws if he wills.

“It is He who gave you life, will cause you to die, and will again give you life. Truly humankind is a most ungrateful creature.” Originating life from nothing was a miracle. The miracle of life happens every day; its secrets are still a mystery. Death is another mystery that keeps us wondering. It can happen in a split second. It transfers the human being from the state of life to a state of death; two states which are separated by a split second, yet they are separated by a huge gulf. Life after death is part of the unseen however; it does not seem to be impossible on the basis of the first creation. All these phenomena provide points for reflection and thought. Unfortunately, humankind does not reflect, “Truly humankind is a most ungrateful creature.”

The following verses move to another theme, “To every people have We appointed rites and ceremonies which they are to perform; so let them not dispute with you about the matter, but call to your Lord. You are indeed on the right guidance.” The Prophet (PBUH) is commanded to continue on his mission and avoid the distractions that are created by the idolaters of Mecca. There is a project for each nation which involves its way of life, its beliefs, its behavior, and its thought. God controls these projects. God will guide a nation which seeks the road to guidance, while He will let go astray a nation that does not seek guidance. Thus, the Prophet (PBUH) should realize that each nation has its own project and he should not get tempted into disputing the idolaters, because these disputes aim at distracting him from his major task. He should continue to call to his Lord on a straight path, “You are indeed on the right guidance.”

The Prophet (PBUH) was told that if they insist on arguing with him, he should tell them, “God knows best what it is you are doing.” God will have the final say, “God will judge between you on the Day of Judgment concerning the matters in which you differ.” No one can argue with God’s judgment, because it is a judgment which is based on full knowledge, “Do you not know that God knows what is in the heaven and the earth? Surely this is in a Record; surely this is easy to God.” God’s knowledge encompasses everything that happens in the heavens and the earth.

“And they worship besides God that for which He did not send down authority and that whereof they have no knowledge. The wrongdoers have no helper.” Having told His Prophet (PBUH) to stop arguing with the idolaters, God reveals the distorted doctrine of the idolaters. They worship idols. The doctrine they followed had no support or proof to substantiate it.

Because they had no proof to substantiate their falsehood they did not have any argument to uphold the credibility of their beliefs, “And when Our revelations are recited to them, you recognize the denial in the faces of those who disbelieve; they would be on the verge of assaulting those who recite Our revelations to them. Say, ‘Shall I proclaim to you worse than that? The Fire, God has promised it for those who disbelieve; a hapless journey's end.’”

An unequivocal statement has been proclaimed, “People, a parable has been coined, so pay heed to it. Those on whom you call besides God will never create a fly even if they gather together for the purpose. And if the fly took something from them, they could not rescue it from it. So weak are (both) the seeker and the sought.” This is a proclamation for all people. It proclaims a general statement that cannot be disputed, “Those on whom you call besides God will never create a fly even if they gather together for the purpose.” Not only they are incapable of creating a fly, but also if a fly takes away something from them, they will not be able to rescue it from the fly. They are so weak, “So weak are (both) the seeker and the sought.” The weakness of the false gods is juxtaposed against the power of the true God, “They did not give God His rightful measure; God is Strong, Eminent.”

“God chooses messengers from angels and from people. God is All-Hearing, All-Seeing. He knows what is before them and what is behind them. To God go back all matters (for decision).” The Messengers were chosen by God alone. God sent Muhammad (PBUH) with the authority to call people to the right path. God oversees everything and hears everything. All matters are controlled by Him.

The following verses are commands issued to the believers to worship God, discharge their responsibility, and maintain a straight course, “Believers, bow down and prostrate yourselves, and worship your Lord, and do good, that haply you may succeed. And strive for God with the endeavor which is His right. He has chosen you and has not laid upon you in religion any hardship; the faith of your father Abraham (is yours). He has named you Muslims of old time and in this (Book) that the Messenger may be a witness against you, and that you may be witnesses against humankind. So establish prayer, pay the poor-dues, and hold fast to God. He is your Patron; a blessed Patron and a blessed Helper.” These two verses outline the divine project which God planned for this nation, summarize its responsibility, and determine the status that it can achieve if it lived according to the divine project and fulfilled its responsibility. The verses start with the command to bow and prostrate. The verse refers to the prayer using its two most conspicuous components. This representation animates the prayer.

The second command given in the verses refers to worshipping God in general. Worship encompasses all human activities which are carried out with the intention of pleasing God. Each and every activity that the believers perform during their daily life can be considered an act of worship if the believers have the intention that they are performing it to seek God's acceptance. This includes all regular tasks even those tasks that are used to satisfy human desires and pleasures. The verse then concludes by a command to do good. This is a general command to do good in all human transactions. Thus, the first two commands deal with the relationship between the individual and God, and the third command deals with relationship between the individual and other people in general. These are the commands that lead to success. Worshipping God provides the strong foundation to a successful human life and treating people nicely and fairly provides the support for a successful community life. The community which fulfills these commands is ready to undertake the responsibility that God placed on the shoulders of the believer: to strive in the way of God. This is a huge undertaking, but God is Merciful, He does not want to lay any hardship on the believers. This divine project is an old project; it has its roots in the Message that Prophet Abraham (PBUH) brought to humanity. God called the nation of the believers: Muslims, those who submit to God. Islam is the complete and voluntary submission to God. Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) was sent to be a witness over the believers and the believers are made witnesses over the whole humanity. This task cannot be accomplished unless they continue to establish prayers, pay the poor dues, and hold tight to God. God is their Patron; a blessed Patron and a blessed Helper.

Sura 23: Al-Muminun (The Believers)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 22:

1. Successful indeed are the believers.
2. Those who are humble in their prayers;
3. And who shun vain talk;
4. Who are active in deeds of charity;
5. And who guard their modesty;
6. Except with their wives or the (slaves) that their right hands possess, for indeed they will not be blamed,
7. But those whose desires exceed those limits are transgressors;
8. And those who faithfully observe their trusts and their covenants;
9. And who (strictly) guard their prayers;
10. These will be the heirs,
11. Who will inherit Paradise; they will dwell therein (forever).
12. Verily, We created humankind from a product of wet earth;
13. Then We placed him as a drop of sperm in a safe lodging;
14. Then We made the sperm into a leech-like clot;
15. Then We fashioned the clot into a little lump of flesh; then We fashioned the little lump into bones; then We clothed the bones with flesh, and then produced it as another creation. So blessed be God, the best of creators.
16. Then after that you will surely die.
17. Then on the Day of Resurrection you will be raised (again).
18. And We have made, above you, seven layered heavens; and We are never unmindful of (Our) creation.
19. And We send down water from the sky according to a due measure, and We give it lodging in the earth, and We are able to take it away.
20. With it, We grow for you gardens of date-palms and vines, in them you have abundant fruits, and of them you eat;
21. And (We brought forth) a tree springing from Mount Sinai that produces oil and relish for the eaters.
22. And in the cattle there is verily a lesson for you. We give you to drink of that which is in their bellies, and many uses you have in them, and of them do you eat; and on them and on the ships you are carried. (23:1 – 22)

“Successful indeed are the believers. Those who are humble in their prayers; and who shun vain talk; who are active in deeds of charity; and who guard their modesty; except with their wives or the (slaves) that their right hands possess, for indeed they will not be blamed, but those whose desires exceed those limits are transgressors; and those who faithfully observe their trusts and their covenants; and who (strictly) guard their prayers; these will be the heirs; Who will inherit Paradise; they will dwell therein (forever).” This is a promise that God made to the believers. It is not only a true promise, but it is also a guarantee for the success of the believers. God does not renege on His promise and no one can change God’s decree. The promised success is a success in this life as well as in the Hereafter. It is a comprehensive success in all aspects of life. It includes the success that people know and that which is beyond their imagination.

But what are the characteristics of the believers to whom this promise was made? Those believers are humble in their prayers, they shun vain talk, they are active in deeds of charity, they guard their modesty, they faithfully observe their trusts and their covenants, and they strictly guard their prayers. What is the meaning of these characteristics? These characteristics define the Muslim character as practiced by the highest example, the example of Prophet Muhammad (PBUH). Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) was raised and trained by his Lord, Who described him in His Book by the words, “And indeed, you are of a great moral character.” (68: 4). When A’isha (RA) was asked about the Prophet’s character, she said, “His character was according to the Quran.” She then recited the first eleven verses in this Sura.

Those who are humble in their prayers are awed by their Lord. While in prayer their senses submit to God and their souls are overwhelmed by His presence. Their thoughts are focused on the meeting with God and speaking to Him. There is no place in their minds for other worldly thoughts. The experience purifies their souls of all sins.

The believers shun vain talk. Vain talk usually leads to vain thoughts, vain feelings, and vain deeds. Vain thoughts distract the believers from the remembrance of God and from the practice of the true teachings of Islam. When the believers shun vain talk, deeds, and thoughts; their spirits are freed so that they can engage in the remembrance of God and reflect on His signs. Practicing the teachings of Islam motivates the believers to purify their thoughts, practice fairness in their dealings, persevere in resisting the temptation of corruption, observe the duty of enjoining good and forbidding evil, and contribute to the welfare of the community. These are never ending duties for the believers; it could be either individual or communal duties depending on the situation. This does not mean that the believers are deprived of any right to enjoy innocent entertainment. Innocent entertainment is different from finding enjoyment in vain talk and vain deeds.

The believers fulfill the financial obligations in terms of giving the poor-dues. The poor-dues purify the soul and the wealth of the believer. Paying charity provides the discipline of being generous; it rids the believer of the bad trait of being stingy. Paying charity is also a way for gaining the blessing of God. These purify the soul and the wealth. The poor-dues are a safeguard for the community members from ever becoming deprived.

Observing modesty purifies the soul, the family, and the community of the ills of indecency and illegitimate relationships. Communities whose members indulge in indecent and illegitimate sexual acts are open for corruption. These acts deprive the family of security, peace, and fidelity. The family is the fundamental building block of the community. When the family loses security, the community will eventually lose security as well. Human civilizations are a product of their values. The ability of human beings to exercise control over their desires and lusts is one of these values. This value distinguishes human beings from animals.

The verse specifies the pure places where the male can implant the seeds of life, “their wives or the (slaves) that their right hands possess.” Having sexual relationship with spouses is the normal way for procreation. The issue of what is meant by the term, “what the right hand possesses,” needs to be discussed. The way Islam dealt with slavery has been discussed elsewhere in this book however; we will discuss it briefly here. At the time of inception of Islam, slavery was a well-established universal institution. The principle of enslaving prisoners of war was, at that time, an established component of the code of war. It was illogical and impractical for Islam to abolish the practice unilaterally. This would have given the enemies of Islam an unfair advantage over Muslims in war. Islam devised a system which would abolish all types of slavery except for the prisoners of war. However, the Islamic approach to the issue of slavery certainly leads to the abolishment of slavery, when the world was ready for it.

The term “those whom their right hands possess,” refers to non-Muslim women captured during wars. Islam legitimized sexual relationships between the slave women and their owners. Islam also instituted a multitude of ways to enable these women to gain their freedom. A slave woman could negotiate to pay a ransom for her freedom and a slave woman who gave birth was freed upon the death of her master. These are only two of several ways which Islam devised to free slave women captured in wars. In addition, slave owners were encouraged to free their slaves for the atonement of their sins or for gaining a reward from God. Allowing sexual relations between a master and a slave girl provided a practical way for dealing with the natural desires of both the male masters and the female slave. The verse admonished males not to go beyond the decreed limits.

The believers, “faithfully observe their trusts and their covenants;” This verse applies to individuals as well as communities. The first trust that a believer should observe is the trust that is embedded in the initial natural disposition of the human being, the sound disposition that God implanted in humankind to be able to live in harmony with the universe. This is the disposition that leads humankind to the belief in the oneness of the Creator. This is also the first covenant that a believer should fulfill; the covenant of the belief in one God. This covenant is the fundamental base upon which all other covenants are established because this covenant makes God a witness over all covenants that a believer subscribes to.

A Muslim community is required to fulfill all trusts and covenants that it subscribes to. The terminology indicates that the verse covers all aspects of trust and covenants. Fulfillment of trusts and covenants by the community as a whole is the only way to guarantee a secure and safe environment for people living in this community.

The believers, “strictly guard their prayers.” They are neither lazy nor negligent when it comes to performing their prayer. They perform it in the best way they can. They consider the prayer a link that connects them to God, so they guard it as they guard the most precious thing they have. It is interesting to note that the verses that described the believers started and ended by characters related to establishing and guarding the prayers. This shows the important role that the prayers play in building the character of the believer.

The characters described in the previous verses define the characteristics of the believers both at the individual and community levels. These characteristics define the identity of Muslims and the style of life in the Muslim community. These characteristics enable the believers to lead an honorable and righteous life, the life that God wanted humankind to lead. However, life in the world can never be perfect; therefore, God wanted the believers who followed His way to continue on their way for the perfect life in the Hereafter, the eternal life. They will become, “the heirs, who will inherit Paradise; they will dwell therein (forever).” This is the ultimate success which God promised to bestow on the believers.

The following verses deal with phenomena that lead to the belief in God. The verses describe the beginning of humankind, “Verily We created man from a product of wet earth; then We placed him as a drop of sperm in a safe lodging; then We made the sperm into a leech-like clot of; then We fashioned the clot into a little lump of flesh; then We fashioned the little lump into bones; then We clothed the bones with flesh, and then produced it as another creation. So blessed be God, the best of creators. Then after that you will surely die. Then on the Day of Resurrection you will be raised (again).” The development of human life is a tribute to the existence of the Creator who planned the process and controls its progress. The process unfolds into deliberate stages without faltering or deviation. The articulation of the process of creation and the elaborate description of the stages through which human life is developed is an indication that only those who have acquired the characteristics of the believers can reach the perfect life which God had intended for humankind.

The verse refers to the stages of the creation of humankind but does not specify how that happened. The stages of the creation started with a product of wet earth and ended up with a human being. God decreed that after the creation of the first couple, the human race should propagate through a process in which the female is fertilized by a drop from the sperm of the male. First, the sperm is lodged in a safe place inside the female’s uterus. The sperm is then used to fertilize the female’s egg and to form a clot of congealed blood which clings to the wall of the uterus and feeds on the female’s blood. The clot then becomes a lump of flesh which develops into a skeleton and the skeleton becomes covered with flesh. It is astounding that the verses describe a process that was only discovered recently. One should also note that the verse talks about the different times at which the skeleton and the flesh are formed. Anatomical studies confirm the stages of fetus development described in the Quran. This is the creation of the absolute best of the creators.

The stages that every human being goes through after birth until death have been also decreed by God. Similar to the process of creation, the process of growth and decay and eventual death of the human being has never changed since the creation of the first human being. The resurrection is another stage of the development of humankind.

“And We have made, above you, seven layered heavens; and We are never unmindful of (Our) creation.” It is not known exactly what is meant by the seven layered heavens. It could mean seven astronomical paths or seven constellations. At any rate it is seven cosmic installations that are high above the earth. God created these installations with wisdom and controls it according to a divine law. God also sent water from the sky, “And We send down water from the sky according to (due) measure, and We give it lodging in the earth, and We are able to take it away.” The discovery that ground water has been formed from rain coming down from the sky is a fairly recent one. God decreed that rain water should come down according to a due measure; a moderate amount that is beneficial but harmless and only comes at the appropriate time. Rain water seeps into the ground until it reaches a secure place where it will be stored. God is capable to take it away any time He wills. Life springs out from water, “With it We grow for you gardens of date-palms and vines, in them you have abundant fruits, and of them you eat (and have enjoyment);” date-palms and vines are two examples of life that is generated by water. A third example is the olive tree, “And (We brought forth) a tree springing from Mount Sinai that produces oil and relish for the eaters.” The olive tree provides many benefits. People can eat its fruits and use its oil and wood. It grows in the holy valley near the Mount of Sinai feeding on ground water.

“And in the cattle there is verily a lesson for you. We give you to drink of that which is in their bellies, and many uses you have in them, and of them do you eat; and on them and on the ships you are carried.” God subjected the animals to serve people. There are many lessons to be learnt from their creation. They use the food they graze on to produce the milk we drink. In addition, animals help people to move around and their meat is edible. God made it lawful to people to eat the meat of camels, cows, sheep, and goats; but it is forbidden to torture these animals. Using their meat contributes to the welfare of the human race but torture is an act of cruelty that is useless. God has created the water, ships and air to allow ships to float and travel over water. These three elements have been created in perfect harmony with each other.

Verses 23 to 52:

23. And We verily sent Noah to his people, and he said, “My people, worship God. You have no other deity save Him. Will you not be conscious of Him?”
24. The chiefs of the disbelievers among his people said, “He is only a mortal like you who desires to make himself superior to you. Had God willed, He surely could have sent down angels. We never heard anything like this from our forefathers.
25. He is only a madman, so bear with him for a while.”
26. He (Noah) said, “My Lord, help me because they denied me.”
27. Then We inspired him, saying, “Make the ship under Our eyes and by Our inspiration. Then, when Our command comes and the water gushes out from the oven, carry onto it of every (species) two spouses, and your household save him thereof against whom the word has already gone forth. And plead not with Me on behalf of the wrongdoers. They will be drowned.
28. And when you are onboard the ship, you and whoso is with you, then say, ‘Praise be to God who has saved us from the wrongdoers.’”
29. And say, “My Lord, let me land at a blessed landing-place, for You are the best of all who bring to land.”

30. Verily in this there are signs (for people to understand); (thus) do We put (humankind) to the test.
31. Then, after them, We brought forth another generation;
32. And We sent them a messenger from among themselves, (saying), "Worship God, you have no other deity but Him. Will you be conscious of (Him)?"
33. And the chiefs of his people, who disbelieved and denied the meeting of the Hereafter, and on whom We had bestowed the good things of this life, said, "He is no more than a mortal like yourselves. He eats of that which you eat, and drinks of what you drink.
34. If you obey a mortal like yourselves, you will indeed be losers.
35. Does he promise you, that when you die and become dust and bones, you shall be brought forth (again)?
36. Far, very far is that which you are promised.
37. There is nothing but our life in this world. We shall die and we live, but we shall never be raised up again.
38. He is only a man who invents a lie against God, but we are not the ones to believe in him."
39. (The prophet) said, "My Lord, help me because they denied me."
40. (God) said, "In a little while, they will surely become regretful.
41. Then the blast overtook them rightly, and We made them debris; so away with the wrongdoers.
42. Then We raised after them other generations.
43. No people can hasten their term, nor can they postpone it.
44. Then We sent our messengers one after another. Whenever its messenger came to a nation they denied him; so We caused them to follow one another (to disaster) and We made them narrations; so away with a people who do not believe.
45. Then We sent Moses and his brother Aaron, with Our signs and clear authority;
46. To Pharaoh and his Chiefs. But they behaved insolently and they were an arrogant people.
47. They said, "Shall we believe in two men like ourselves while their people serve us?"
48. So they denied them, and became of those who were destroyed.
49. And We gave Moses the Scripture in order that they might receive guidance.
50. And We made the son of Mary and his mother a sign. We sheltered both of them on high ground, affording rest and security and furnished with springs.
51. Messengers, eat of the good things, and do good. I am aware of what you do. And verily your religion is a one religion, and I am your Lord therefore be conscious of Me. (23: 23 – 52)

"And We verily sent Noah to his people, and he said, 'My people, worship God. You have no other deity save Him. Will you not be conscious of Him?'" This is the call to the truth that never changes. It is the basis of the existence of everything and everything in the universe is a testament of its veracity. Shouldn't people be conscious of God? How can people deny the truth upon which the universe exists? But the chiefs did not contemplate Noah's (PBUH) call and they did not reflect on his argument, "The chiefs of the disbelievers among his people said, "He is only a mortal like you who desires to make himself superior to you. Had God willed, He surely could have sent down angels. We never heard anything like this from our forefathers." They ignored the main issue and discussed Noah's (PBUH) personality. They did not focus on the major issue and were sidetracked into a meaningless discussion. They accused Noah (PBUH) of being an ambitious person who is seeking higher status through his call. They did not realize that by denying Prophet Noah (PBUH) they were in fact denying the whole human race the honor that God bestowed on them when He chose a man from among them to deliver His message. They wanted God to send an angel with the message because they did not consider humans to be worthy of being God's messengers. They followed in the footsteps of their forefathers, and never tried to think for themselves. They became rigid in their way of thinking accusing those having liberating thoughts of being crazy, "He is only a madman, so bear with him for a while."

When Noah (PBUH) despaired of being able to convince them to consider the message, he asked for God's help, *"He (Noah) said, 'My Lord, help me because they denied me.'" God has two ways to deal with a community when it becomes rigid in its thoughts to the extent that it becomes an impediment in the way of the progress of human life on earth. God can either destroy the community to allow life of the human race to continue in its development on earth; or God can sideline the community and leave them in a conclave of their own making and allow the rest of humanity to go on the path of development so that human life can flourish. God chose the first approach in dealing with Noah's (PBUH) people, *"Then We inspired him, saying, 'Make the ship under Our eyes and by Our inspiration. Then, when Our command comes and the water gushes out of the oven, carry onto it of every (species) two spouses, and your household save him thereof against whom the word has already gone forth. And plead not with Me on behalf of the wrongdoers. They will be drowned.'" God's decree was made and implemented to clear the path for humanity to flourish. God decreed that a flood will occur to punish the disbelievers. God gave the believers the tool for survival: a ship. God commanded Noah (PBUH) and the believers to build their way to survival. God wants people to employ all available means to build their civilization. Noah (PBUH) became the second father of the human race; God taught him how to build the ship. Noah (PBUH) was given a sign for the inception of the flood; he was told that the process will start when, "the water gushes out of the oven." He should then carry on the ship all the elements which will help human life to continue on earth, "carry onto it of every (species) two spouses." The believers were allowed to be carried on the ship but those who disbelieved, and were doomed by God's decree, were not allowed to be carried on the ship, *"And plead not with Me on behalf of the wrongdoers. They will be drowned."

The verses did not give any more details but they moved on to the second phase, *"And when you are onboard the ship, you and whoso is with you, then say, 'Praise be to God who has saved us from the wrongdoers.'" Noah (PBUH) and the believers should praise God and express their gratitude for the blessings of God which saved them from drowning in the flood. They should also pray God to settle them in a blessed place, *"And say, 'My Lord, let me land at a blessed landing-place, for You are the best of all who bring to land.'" The lesson is then summarized, "Verily in this there are signs (for people to understand); (thus) do We put (humankind) to the test." Tests can take different forms. There are tests which are meant to test the perseverance of people and there are tests which are meant to test people's ability to show gratitude. There are tests which are designed to guide people to a certain path and others which are designed to allow people to gain rewards.

“Then, after them, We brought forth another generation; and We sent them a messenger from among themselves, (saying), ‘Worship God, you have no other deity but Him. Will you be conscious of (Him)?’ And the chiefs of his people, who disbelieved and denied the meeting of the Hereafter, and on whom We had bestowed the good things of this life, said, ‘He is no more than a mortal like yourselves. He eats of that which you eat, and drinks of what you drink. If you obey a mortal like yourselves, you will indeed be losers. Does he promise you that, when you die and become dust and bones, you shall be brought forth (again)? Far, very far is that which you are promised. There is nothing but our life in this world. We shall die and we live, but we shall never be raised up again. He is only a man who invents a lie against God, but we are not the ones to believe in him.’ (The prophet) said, ‘My Lord, help me because they denied me.’ (God) said, ‘In a little while, they will surely become regretful.’ Then the blast overtook them rightly, and We made them debris; so away with the wrongdoers.” The narration of the stories that describe the difficulties that the messengers experienced when God sent them to deliver the message to their people was meant to establish the fact that God sent all messengers with the same message and to show that all messengers were rejected by their people. The narrative started with the story of Prophet Noah (PBUH) and ended with the story of Prophet Jesus (PBUH). Many of the names of the messengers who came in between these two were not mentioned. The reason being that irrespective of the personality of the messenger, they all had the same message and they all had the same experience.

The previous verses describe the experience of every prophet with his people. People objected to the fact that the messenger was a mere mortal; they said God could have sent an angel with the message. The concept of resurrection after death and the idea of accountability were difficult to understand and to accept. The same scenario was repeated for each messenger. Some people believed and the rest did not believe. When the messenger realized that he had done all what he could and lost hope that anyone else would believe in him, he would ask God for help, “My Lord, help me because they denied me,” and God responded, “in a little while, they will surely become regretful.” Then the blast overtook them, and they became debris. They and their belongings were destroyed.

“Then, We raised after them other generations. No people can hasten their term, nor can they postpone it. Then, We sent our messengers one after another. Whenever its messenger came to a nation they denied him; so We caused them to follow one another (to disaster) and We made them narrations; so away with a people who do not believe.” These verses summarize the stories of all messengers from Noah to Jesus (PBUT). Each generation completed its term. The messengers were denied and the disbelievers were punished and cursed.

The following verses give a general outline of the experience of Prophet Moses (PBUH), “Then We sent Moses and his brother Aaron, with Our signs and clear authority; to Pharaoh and his chiefs. But they behaved insolently and they were an arrogant people. They said, ‘Shall we believe in two men like ourselves while their people serve us?’ So they denied them, and became of those who were destroyed. And We gave Moses the Scripture in order that they might receive guidance.” Prophet Moses and his brother Aaron (PBUT) were rejected because they were human beings. In addition, they belonged to the Children of Israel who were subservient to the Egyptians. The chiefs did not pay attention to the signs of God that Moses (PBUH) brought them.

The narrative then moves on to the story of Jesus (PBUH), “And We made the son of Mary and his mother a sign. We sheltered both of them on high ground, affording rest and security and furnished with springs.” There is no definite authentic evidence which specifies the location of the shelter that God gave them. The location of the shelter is irrelevant, what is important is that God provided them with a safe and secure shelter which had plants and pleasant springs.

All messengers are then addressed, “Messengers, eat of the good things, and do good. I am aware of what you do. And verily your religion is a one religion, and I am your Lord therefore be conscious of Me.” It is an address which portrays the human nature of the messengers, “eat of the good things, and do good.” Eating is part of the human necessities but eating of the good things purifies people and allows them to connect with God. They were commanded to do good deeds. Working is part of being human, but good work distinguishes the chosen people. It elevates them to become worthy of connecting with God. The universal fact is reiterated, “And verily your religion is a one religion, and I am your Lord therefore be conscious of Me.”

Verses 53 to 98:

53. But they (the people) have divided their religion among themselves into sects, each sect rejoicing in its own tenets.
54. So leave them in their error till a time.
55. Do they think that because We have granted them abundance of wealth and sons,
56. We would hasten for them every good thing? Nay, they do not realize.
57. Verily those who stand in awe of their Lord;
58. Those who believe in the revelations of their Lord;
59. Those who do not associate partners with their Lord;
60. And those who dispense their charity with hearts that tremble at the thought that they will return to their Lord;
61. It is those who hasten to do every good work, and they are foremost in (attaining) them.
62. And We do not task any soul beyond its ability, and with Us is a Record which speaks the truth, and they will not be wronged.
63. But their hearts are in confused ignorance of this; and there are, besides that, deeds of theirs, which they will (continue) to do;
64. Until when We seize in torment, the affluent among them, they will cry in supplication.
65. (It will be said), “Do not cry in supplication this day; for you shall certainly not be helped by Us.
66. My revelations were indeed recited to you, but you used to turn back on your heels;
67. In arrogance; saying evil about the (Qur'an), like one telling fables by night.”

68. Do they not reflect on the Word (of God), or has anything come to them that did not come to their forefathers?
69. Or do they not recognize their messenger so that they deny him?
70. Or do they say, "He is possessed"? Nay, he has brought them the truth, but most of them hate the truth.
71. If the truth had been in accord with their whims, truly the heavens and the earth, and all beings therein would have been in confusion and corruption. Nay, We brought them their message, but they turn away from their message.
72. Or do you ask them for recompense? But the recompense of your Lord is best. He is the Best of the providers.
73. But verily you call them to the straight path;
74. And verily those who do not believe in the Hereafter are deviating from that path.
75. And even if We bestowed mercy on them and relieved them of the harm afflicting them, they still would wander blindly on in their contumacy.
76. We have already seized them with torment, but they did not humble themselves to their Lord, nor did they pray.
77. Until We open to them a gate leading to a severe torment; then they will be plunged in despair therein.
78. It is He who has created for you the faculties of hearing, sight, and understanding (hearts); little thanks it is you give.
79. And He has multiplied you through the earth, and to Him shall you be gathered back.
80. It is He who gives life and death, and to Him (is the control of) the alternation of night and day; will you not then understand?
81. On the contrary they say things similar to what the former people said.
82. They say, "What! when we die and become dust and bones, shall we then, be raised again?"
83. Such things have been promised to us and to our forefathers before; they are nothing but fables of old people."
84. Say, "To whom belong the earth and all beings therein? (say) if you know."
85. They will say, "To God;" say, "Will you not then remember?"
86. Say, "Who is the Lord of the seven heavens, and the Lord of the Great Throne?"
87. They will say, "(They belong) to God." Say, "Will you not then be conscious of Him?"
88. Say, "In whose hand is the dominion over all things and He protects, while against Him there is no protection, if you know?"
89. They will say, "(It belongs) to God." Say, "Then how are you deluded?"
90. We have sent them the truth; but most surely they are liars.
91. God has not chosen any son, nor is there any deity along with Him; else each deity would have assuredly championed that which he created, and some of them would assuredly have overcome others. Glorified be God above all that they allege.
92. He knows what is hidden and what is visible; too exalted is He above the partners they attribute to Him.
93. Say, "My Lord, if You show me (in my lifetime) that which they are warned against;
94. Then, My Lord, do not put me among the wrongdoers."
95. And We are certainly able to show you that which We have promised them.
96. Repel evil with that which is best. We are well acquainted with the things they say.
97. And say, "My Lord, I seek refuge with You from the incitements of the evil ones.

98. And I seek refuge with You, My Lord, lest they should come near me." (23:53 – 98)

"But they (the people) have divided their religion among themselves into sects, each sect rejoicing in its own tenets." The messengers formed one community and brought one message; but the people, after receiving the message, divided the community and the message into sects. Every group was pleased with the piece that it took from the message. They were deluded by what they got and forgot the initial message. The Prophet (PBUH) was commanded to, "leave them in their error till a time." In their delusions, they did not realize that God gave them respite and bestowed on them wealth and children as a test for them. They thought that these good things which were bestowed upon them will remain forever. It was a test but they did not perceive it, "Do they think that because We have granted them abundance of wealth and sons, We would hasten for them every good thing? Nay, they do not realize."

The Quran juxtaposes the image of the believers against the image of the disbelievers, "Verily those who stand in awe of their Lord; those who believe in the revelations of their Lord; those who do not associate partners with their Lord; and those who dispense their charity with hearts that tremble at the thought that they will return to their Lord; it is those who hasten to do every good work, and they are foremost in (attaining) them." The verses present the effect that faith has on the hearts of the believers. The hearts of the believers are tender; they are always in awe of their Lord. They seek perfection in what they do. They believe in their Lord; they never associate partners with Him; and they perform their tasks in the best way they can. In addition, they give in charity never thinking that what they do is enough.

It was narrated that ‘Aisha (RA) asked Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) about these verses. She asked if those who "dispense their charity with hearts that tremble at the thought that they will return to their Lord;" are they who steal, commit adultery, or drink alcohol while they fear God? The Prophet (PBUH) said, "No. These are the people who pray, fast, and give charity while their hearts are full of fear of God." The hearts of the believers are always in awe of God. They always appreciate the blessings that God bestowed on them and they belittle every good deed they make. They hasten to do more good deeds and they become the vanguard for those who do good deeds.

"And We do not task any soul beyond its ability, and with Us is a Record which speaks the truth, and they will not be wronged." God knows the endurance limit of each human being; and He does not over burden anyone beyond his capacity. He only asks people to perform tasks that are appropriate for their capabilities. People are only accountable for the tasks they are able to perform. All deeds are accurately recorded in a truthful record. God will not wrong people.

The hearts of those who do not see the truth are sealed, "But their hearts are in confused ignorance of this; and there are, besides that, deeds of theirs, which they will (continue) to do; until when We seize in torment, the affluent among them, they will cry in supplication. (It will be said), 'Do not cry in supplication this day; for you shall certainly not be helped by Us. My revelations were indeed recited to you, but you used to turn back on your heels; in arrogance; saying evil about the (Qur'an), like one telling fables by night.'" The disbelievers did not see the truth because they were rushing on the road of falsehood. But they will suddenly realize the consequence of their actions when they are seized by God's punishment. At that moment, they will pray loudly asking for God's forgiveness. But it will be too late, they had their chance before but they were arrogant to heed the message of God.

“Do they not reflect on the Word (of God), or has anything come to them that did not come to their forefathers? Or do they not recognize their messenger so that they deny him? Or do they say, ‘He is possessed?’ Nay, he has brought them the truth, but most of them hate the truth. If the truth had been in accord with their whims, truly the heavens and the earth, and all beings therein would have been in confusion and corruption. Nay, We brought them their message, but they turn away from their message. Or do you ask them for recompense? But the recompense of your Lord is best. He is the Best of the providers. But verily you call them to the straight path; and verily those who do not believe in the Hereafter are deviating from that path.” Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) brought a beautiful, perfect, and consistent message. It is a message that appeals to the initial natural disposition of the human being. Anyone who reflects on this message cannot but accept it. They did not accept the message simply because they did not reflect on it; or it may be that they thought that the belief in the Oneness of God is a new concept that is not deeply rooted in history; or it may be that they did not recognize their messenger. But they knew him very well. They knew his lineage and they knew his character. They knew him to the extent that they used to call him the honest, the trustworthy. Yet, some of them had the audacity to call him a mad person. They did not reject him because of the lies they made about him but because they refused to accept the truth.

They rejected the truth because they wanted to follow their whims and desires. The truth does not follow the whims of people. There is only one truth but there are many whims and desires. The universe can only be controlled by the truth.

Did they reject the message because they thought that the Prophet (PBUH) was asking for a recompense for his efforts? They should have known that the Prophet (PBUH) was not looking for their recompense because God provides the best recompense. The Prophet (PBUH) was only guiding them to the straight path, the straight path that connects them with God. They chose to deviate from the straight path, so they became disbelievers.

“And even if We bestowed mercy on them and relieved them of the harm afflicting them, they still would wander blindly on in their contumacy.” This is a general attribute of such disbelievers. Those who do not believe in the Hereafter are heedless whether they were tested by affliction or by blessings. When they are tested with blessings they indulge in their lusts and when they are tested with an affliction they do not seek forgiveness. Their hearts are hardened. The idolaters of Mecca who fought the Prophet (PBUH) were among these people, “We have already seized them with torment, but they did not humble themselves to their Lord, nor did they pray, Until We open to them a gate leading to a severe torment; then they will be plunged in despair therein.” Humbling oneself to God is an indication of soft heartedness. It is the road to connect with God. Tender hearted people learn from the tests they face in life; these lessons protect them against heedlessness and going astray. Those whose hearts are hardened are destined to follow the road of falsehood until they suddenly face the punishment of their Lord. At that time there will be nothing but despair.

The following verses take us on another tour to explore the signs of God in His creation, “It is He who has created for you (the faculties of) hearing, sight, and understanding (hearts); little thanks it is you give. And He has multiplied you through the earth, and to Him shall you be gathered back. It is He who gives life and death, and to Him is the control of the alternation of night and day; will you not then understand?” When people reflect on the way God created them and the faculties and abilities that God bestowed on them; they will surely realize that there is only one Creator. No one but God is able to create such a magnificent creature like the human being. The senses of hearing, sight, and understanding work in a miraculous way to allow the human beings to hear voices and to understand what they mean; to see things and to know what they are; and to think, understand, and value things around them. Discovering how the senses work is a miracle in itself. How about the creation of such senses in harmony with the bigger plan of creation of the universe? But people do not show gratitude.

God gave humankind the senses and faculties which allow them to live on earth and He multiplied their numbers and finally He will gather all people to the Day of Judgment. God creates life and death. These are two events that we witness every moment. Only God has the power to give life and only He knows its secret. No one can give life or take it except God. People may be able to become tools for killing but they do not cause death; God is the one who decrees when the life of a person should end. God controls the alternation of day and night according to a divine law. The concept of the alternating of day and night is similar to the concept of death coming after life for a human body. People need to reflect and understand these phenomena.

“On the contrary they say things similar to what the former people said. They say, ‘What, when we die and become dust and bones, shall we then, be raised again? Such things have been promised to us and to our forefathers before; they are nothing but fables of old people.’” Instead of reflecting on these phenomena, they dismiss them as ancient fables. It is strange for a person who reflects on these phenomena to dismiss it as fables. The idolatrous Arabs even ridiculed the assertion that there will be resurrection after death. Resurrection has been decreed by God, it will take place at the time that was determined by God.

The idolatrous Arabs were inconsistent in their beliefs. They did not deny the existence of God; and they did not dispute the fact that He is the Creator, the Controller, and the Owner of the heavens and earth. However, they associated partners with God, claiming that these partners can intercede on their behalf. The following verses refute this claim and emphasize the concept of the Oneness of God, “Say, ‘To whom belong the earth and all beings therein? (say) if you know,’ They will say, ‘To God;’ say, ‘Will you not then remember?’” This argument shows the inconsistent attitude of the idolaters. They knew that the heavens and earth belong to God, but they do not remember this when they associate partners with Him.

They knew that He is the Lord of heavens and earth, “Say, ‘Who is the Lord of the seven heavens, and the Lord of the Great Throne?’ They will say, ‘(They belong) to God.’ Say, ‘Will you not then be conscious of Him?’” The verse poses a question about the Lordship of God and His divine will that controls the universe. There is no clear and definite statement about what is meant by “seven heavens.” However, the Throne could be a symbol of the majesty and control. They knew that God is the Lord of the universe but still they associated partners with Him. Why were they not conscious of God?

“Say, ‘In whose hand is the dominion over all things and He protects, while against Him there is no protection, if you do but know?’ They will say, ‘(It belongs) to God.’ Say, ‘Then how are you deluded?’” This is a question about who has dominion over the heavens and earth. They knew it is God who has the dominion, yet they associated partners with God as if they were struck by a spell of magic.

Finally, the correct analysis is laid down, “We have sent them the truth; but most surely they are liars. God has not chosen any son, nor is there any deity along with Him; else each deity would have assuredly championed that which he created, and some of them would assuredly have overcome others. Glorified be God above all that they allege.” Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) brought them the truth. All their claims were invented lies. God never had a son nor did He have other gods associated with Him. Had there been other gods, each of these little gods would have claimed his share of the creation and they would have fought together, each one trying to capture his share of power. God is the only deity, it is only He who knows the hidden and the seen, “Exalted is He above the partners they attribute to Him.”

“Say, ‘My Lord, if You show me (in my lifetime) that which they are warned against; then, My Lord, do not put me among the wrongdoers.’” God chose Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) to be His messenger and He would not put him among the wrongdoers when they suffer God’s punishment. But this supplication is an extra precaution and a message for the followers of the Prophet (PBUH) to take extreme care in avoiding God’s wrath.

“And We are certainly able to show you that which We have promised them.” God showed His Prophet (PBUH) examples of this promise in the battles of Badr and the opening of Mecca. The following verse outlines the strategy of perseverance which the Muslims were commanded to follow in the Meccan stage, “Repel evil with that which is best. We are well acquainted with the things they say.”

“And say, ‘My Lord, I seek refuge with You from the incitements of the evil ones. And I seek refuge with You, My Lord, lest they should come near me.’” Although the Prophet (PBUH) was protected from the incitement of the evil ones but he was asked to seek God’s protection. This is also an example to be followed by his followers. The Prophet (PBUH) and his followers were asked to seek not only protection from the incitement of the evil ones but also to seek God’s protection which does not allow the evil ones to approach them.

Verses 99 to 118:

99. Until, when death comes to one of them, he says, "My Lord, send me back;
100. In order that I may do good in the things I neglected." But no, it is but a word he says. Before them is a partition till the day when they are raised.
101. Then when the trumpet is blown, there will be no kinship among them that day, nor will they ask one another.
102. Then those whose balance (of good deeds) is heavy will be the successful.
103. But those whose balance is light, will be those who have lost their souls, in Hell will they abide.
104. The Fire will burn their faces, and they will therein have taut smiles.
105. (It will be said,) "Were not My revelations recited to you, but you used to reject them?"
106. They will say, "Our Lord, our misfortune overwhelmed us, and we went astray.
107. Our Lord, bring us out of this; if we ever return (to evil), then we shall be wrongdoers indeed."
108. He will say, "Remain despised into it and do not speak to Me.
109. There was a party of My servants who said, 'Our Lord, we believe, therefore forgive us and have mercy on us for You are the best of Merciful ones;'
110. But you treated them with ridicule, so much so that (ridiculing) them made you forget My message while you were laughing at them.
111. I have rewarded them this day for their perseverance; they are indeed the ones that have achieved success."
112. He (God) will say, "What is the number of years did you stay on earth?"
113. They will say, "We stayed a day or part of a day; but ask those who keep account."
114. He will say, "You stayed only a little, if you had only known.
115. Did you then think that We had created you in jest, and that you would not be brought back to Us (for account)?"
116. Therefore, Exalted be God, the King, the Truth. There is no deity but He, the Lord of the Throne of Honor.
117. If anyone invokes, besides God, any other god, he has no authority then his reckoning will be only with his Lord; and verily the disbelievers will not be successful.
118. So say, "My Lord, forgive and have mercy, for You are the Best of the Merciful ones." (23: 99 – 118)

"Until, when death comes to one of them, he says, 'My Lord, send me back; In order that I may do good in the things I neglected.'" The verse describes the scene at the time of death of a disbeliever when he would request to be returned back to life to do good deeds; but it will be too late. In addition, he does not really mean it, "But no, it is but a word he says. Before them is a partition till the day when they are raised." The disbelievers are not sincere in this request. The narrative turns to the scene after death, when people will be in between the worldly life and the Hereafter. This is the Islamic version of the purgatory. Then the narrative continues to the scene in the Hereafter, "Then when the trumpet is blown, there will be no kinship among them that day, nor will they ask one another." On that day people will stand up separated from one another; the links, the connections, and the kinship which used to bring them together in their worldly lives will no longer exist. The reckoning will start, “Then those whose balance (of good deeds) is heavy will be the successful. But those whose balance is light, will be those who have lost their souls, in Hell will they abide. The Fire will burn their faces, and they will therein have taut smiles.” People will be divided into two groups: the successful ones and the losers. The former came with heavy balance of deeds while the latter came with light balance.

The style of the verses turns from a narrative style to a direct address. The Quran speaks to the disbelievers in a direct way. It will be said, “Were not My revelations recited to you, but you used to reject them?” They may think that there is still a chance to be forgiven if they confess, “They will say, ‘Our Lord, our misfortune overwhelmed us, and we went astray. Our Lord, bring us out of this; if we ever return (to evil), then we shall be wrongdoers indeed.’” Their confession reflects the bitterness they feel and the misfortune that engulfs them. The response comes to reprimand them for their presumption, “He will say, ‘Remain despised into it and do not speak to Me; there was a party of My servants who said, “Our Lord, we believe, therefore forgive us and have mercy on us for You are the best of Merciful ones;” but you treated them with ridicule, so much so that (ridiculing) them made you forget My message while you were laughing at them. I have rewarded them this day for their perseverance; they are indeed the ones that have achieved success.’” Not only did you disbelieve but you had the audacity to ridicule My servants who believed. Your ridicule made you forget to remember Me and kept you away from reflecting on My signs. Today, I give those whom you ridiculed a great reward for their perseverance. They are truly the successful ones.

Another line of interrogation starts, “He (God) will say, ‘What is the number of years did you stay on earth?’” God knows how long they stayed on earth; but the question highlights the short span of the worldly life. There answer comes, “We stayed a day or part of a day; but ask those who keep account.” But you should know that the worldly life is very short compared to the Hereafter, “He will say, ‘You stayed only a little, if you had only known.’”

The verses turn to a mode of rebuke, “Did you then think that We had created you in jest, and that you would not be brought back to Us (for account)?” The concept of resurrection is part of the divine plan of creation. It is a stage in the life of the human race; it is a necessary stage to complete this life. Only the heedless who are deprived of insight cannot realize this fact.

The Sura ends with the statement of the first rule of faith: the belief in the Oneness of God, “Therefore Exalted be God, the King, the Truth. There is no deity but He, the Lord of the Throne of Honor. If anyone invokes, besides God, any other god, he has no authority then his reckoning will be only with his Lord; and verily the disbelievers will not be successful.” The verses at the end of the Sura confirm the statement which was made in the beginning of the Sura that the belief in God is the road to success.

The Sura ends with a prayer requesting the forgiveness and mercy of God, “So say, ‘My Lord, forgive and have mercy, for You are the Best of the Merciful ones.’”

Sura 24: Al-Nur (The Light)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 26:

1. (Here is) a Sura which We have revealed and enjoined, and wherein We have revealed plain verses, that you may take heed.
2. The adulterer and the adulteress, flog each one of them a hundred stripes. And let not pity for them withhold you from obedience to God, if you believe in God and the Last Day. And let a party of the believers witness their torment.
3. The adulterer shall not marry save an adulteress or an idolatress, and the adulteress shall not marry save an adulterer or an idolater, and all that is forbidden for the believers.
4. And those who accuse chaste women but do not bring four witnesses, flog them eighty stripes and never (afterward) accept their testimony; they are indeed transgressors.
5. Unless they repent thereafter and mend (their conduct); verily, God is All-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy.
6. As for those who accuse their wives but have no witnesses except themselves; let each one of them call God to witness, swearing four times by God, that he is telling the truth.
7. And the fifth (oath) (should be) that he solemnly invokes the curse of God on himself if he was lying.
8. But it would avert the torment for the wife, if she bears witness four times (with an oath) by God, that (her husband) is telling a lie;
9. And the fifth (oath) should be that she solemnly invokes the wrath of God on herself if (her accuser) is telling the truth.
10. If it were not for God's grace and mercy on you, and that God is Ever-Relenting, Wise, (You would be ruined indeed).
11. Those who brought forward the lie are a gang among you. Do not think it to be an evil thing to you; on the contrary it is good for you. To every man among them (will come the punishment) of the sin that he earned, and to him who took on himself the lead among them, will be a grievous torment.
12. Why did not the believers - men and women - when you heard of the affair, think good of their own people, and say, "It is an evident falsehood?"
13. Why did they not produce four witnesses? Since they did not produce any witnesses, they verily are liars in the sight of God.
14. Had it not been for the grace of God and His mercy on you, in the world and the Hereafter, a grievous torment would have certainly touched you on account of the discourse which you entered into.
15. When you welcomed it with your tongues, and uttered with your mouths that whereof you had no knowledge, you thought it was a trifle but it is very great in the sight of God.
16. And why you did not, when you heard it, say, "It is not right of us to speak of this. Glory be to God; this is a most serious slander?"
17. God admonishes you, that you may never repeat such (conduct), if you are (true) believers.
18. And God makes the verses plain to you; for God is Omniscient, Wise.

19. Those who love that slander should be spread concerning those who believe, theirs will be a painful torment in the world and in the Hereafter. God knows and you do not know.
20. Had it not been for the grace of God and His mercy on you; and that God is All-Pitying, Giver of Mercy.
21. Believers, do not follow in Satan's footsteps; whoever follows in the footsteps of Satan, he will indeed command what is shameful and wrong. Had it not been for the grace and mercy of God on you, not one of you would ever have been pure. But God purifies whom He pleases. And God is All-Hearing, Omniscient.
22. And let not those who possess dignity and abundance of wealth among you swear not to give to the near of kin and to the needy, and to those who migrated in God's way. Let them pardon and forbear. Do you not yearn that God forgive you? God is All-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy.
23. Those who slander the chaste, virtuous, believing women (who are) unaware (of the evil), are cursed in this world and the Hereafter, and they shall have a grievous torment.
24. On the day when their tongues, their hands, and their feet testify against them as to what they used to do.
25. On that day, God will pay them their just due, and they will know that God is the evident Truth.
26. Vile women are for vile men, and vile men for vile women. Good women are for good men, and good men for good women; such are innocent of that which people say. For them is pardon and a bountiful provision. (24: 1 – 26)

This Sura is entitled the light. The word light is mentioned as an attribute of God. God is the light of the heavens and the earth. The impact of the light on the hearts and souls is described. It fills the hearts and souls with ethics and values both for the individual as well as the community. This shines the light on the hearts and on life. It connects the hearts to the comprehensive universal light.

The Sura starts with an unequivocal proclamation that it is announcing responsibilities and duties for the community of the believers. The Sura institutes certain ethical behaviors that the community of the believers should practice. It starts with a statement that clearly indicates the importance that Quran attaches to ethical behavior and describes how it is deeply rooted in the doctrine of Islam.

The main theme of the Sura is the ethical training which is the basis of criminal laws as well as spiritual preparations. These spiritual preparations connect the hearts of the believers with the light of God and allow this light to illuminate the values, norms, and principles that shape the Islamic way of life.

“(Here is) a Sura which We have revealed and enjoined, and wherein We have revealed plain verses, that you may take heed.” It is a unique beginning. The Sura starts with the word, “enjoined.” It emphasizes the importance of following all the injunctions that are given in the Sura, whether they describe norms of ethical behavior or punishment to be exacted in case of breaking the law. This is followed with a description of the punishment for the crime of adultery, “The adulterer and the adulteress, flog each one of them a hundred stripes. And let not pity for them withhold you from obedience to God, if you believe in God and the Last Day. And let a party of the believers witness their torment. The adulterer shall not marry save an adulteress or an idolatress, and the adulteress shall not marry save an adulterer or an idolater, and all that is forbidden to believers.”

Verse 15 in Sura 4, outlined the punishment for adultery during the early days of Islam, “Those who commit immorality (i.e. unlawful sexual intercourse) of your women – produce four witnesses from among you to testify against them. And if they testify, confine them (i.e. the guilty women) to houses until death takes them or God ordains for them (another) way.” (4: 15) The punishment for women was to confine them to their houses and rebuke them, while the punishment for men was to rebuke them for committing such crime. Then the punishment was changed as expressed in this Sura. This was the “way,” referred to in the verse (4: 15). Flogging is the punishment for virgin men and women who commit adultery. But those who commit adultery after they had been married are punished by stoning. These punishments are applied to adult, free, and sane Muslim men and women. The punishment by stoning has been confirmed by the tradition of the Prophet (PBUH).

The punishment should be enacted once the conditions are satisfied and the witnesses have given their testimony. No pity should stop the enactment of the prescribed punishment. The punishment should be made in public to become a deterrent for others.

Those who commit adultery are not considered believers when they commit such crime. They are not allowed to marry believing men and women unless they offer sincere repentance and seek God’s forgiveness. The verses show how committing these crimes sever the ties between the culprit and the Muslim community.

The enactment of such severe punishment does not mean that Islam ignores the natural inclinations which drive people to engage in sexual interactions, nor does it want people to suppress their sexual desires. Islam wanted to organize the sexual interactions between men and women within a framework which guarantees healthy families and communities. Relations between men and women should not be solely based on sexual desires. These relations should involve a combination of love and compassion that strengthens the ties between the members of the family. A family should be based on the meeting of two hearts willing to share common aspirations and to struggle together to build a strong unit in the community, producing good citizens.

These severe punishments were enacted in Islam to protect the individual, the family and the community of the evil consequences of such crimes. There are clear consequences of the spread of such crimes. These include the confusion that would plague the lineages of individuals; and the bad psychological impact on the members of the family including the children.

It should be emphasized that the community should establish guarantees which would protect its members from falling into the web of temptation. In addition, these severe punishments can only be enacted after the culprit has been proven guilty without a shred of a doubt. The Sura mentions some of the measures that should be taken to avoid opportunities for temptation.

Punishment is waived whenever there is the slightest doubt regarding the testimony of the witnesses. The Prophet (PBUH) has been quoted to have said, “Waive the punishment as much as you can, if there is any doubt. It is better not to punish a criminal than to punish an innocent person.” That is why the punishment can only be enacted if there were four eye witnesses who were present while the act was being committed; or if the culprit provides voluntary confession. The witnesses should be known for their integrity.

Some may think that these stringent requirements may render the punishment impractical. The strategy of Islam to deal with such crimes is both reactive and proactive. Islam provides preventative measures to minimize the occurrence of such acts. These include ethical upbringing of the individuals, means for the purification of the souls, and building a conscious willingness to follow the injunctions of Islam. Only those who have the audacity of committing such crimes in public would be punished, or those who voluntarily chose to receive the punishment as an act of purification from their sin.

“And those who accuse chaste women but do not bring four witnesses, flog them eighty stripes and never (afterward) accept their testimony; they are indeed transgressors.” Islam provides stringent measures to protect chaste Muslim women against false accusations that tarnish their reputations and destroy their lives. Islam has decreed a punishment approximately similar to the punishment for the crime of adultery as a deterrent for those who find it easy to attack chaste women without having concrete evidence that supports their accusations. The punishment for the crime of false accusations does not consist only of bodily punishment but it also includes psychological punishment. The accusers who are found to be lying are labeled, “transgressors,” in addition their testimony is not accepted in a court of law until they offer sincere repentance and seek God’s forgiveness, “Unless they repent thereafter and mend (their conduct); verily, God is All-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy.”

However, an accusation waged by a husband against his wife is dealt with in a different way, “As for those who accuse their wives but have no witnesses except themselves; let each one of them call God to witness, swearing four times by God, that he is telling the truth; and the fifth (oath) (should be) that he solemnly invokes the curse of God on himself if he was lying. But it would avert the torment for the wife, if she bears witness four times (with an oath) by God that (her husband) is telling a lie; and the fifth (oath) should be that she solemnly invokes the wrath of God on herself if (her accuser) is telling the truth. If it were not for God’s grace and mercy on you, and that God is Ever-Relenting, Wise, (You would be ruined indeed).” This process for resolving the conflict between two spouses is suitable for the special relationship between them. If a husband comes to know that his wife has committed adultery but is unable to produce four witnesses, he should then follow the process described in the above verses. The law gave the wife a way to address this accusation. If she chooses to follow the process, she would not be punished but she would be divorced. Her child would bear her name not her husband’s name. It is God’s grace that He provided equitable ways to resolve such conflicts.

The following verses describe a real event that involved the slander of the Prophet’s (PBUH) wife ‘Aisha (RA), “Those who brought forward the lie are a gang among you. Do not think it to be an evil thing for you; on the contrary it is good for you. To every man among them (will come the punishment) of the sin that he earned, and to him who took on himself the lead among them, will be a grievous torment. Why did not the believers - men and women - when you heard of the affair, think good of their own people, and say, 'It is an evident falsehood?' Why did they not produce four witnesses? Since they did not produce any witnesses, they verily are liars in the sight of God. Had it not been for the grace of God and His mercy on you in the world and the Hereafter a grievous torment would have certainly touched you on account of the discourse which you entered into. When you welcomed it with your tongues, and uttered with your mouths that whereof you had no knowledge; you thought it was a trifle but it is very great in the sight of God. And why you did not, when you heard it, say, 'It is not right of us to speak of this. Glory be to God; this is a most serious slander?' God admonishes you, that you may never repeat such (conduct), if you are (true) believers. And God makes the verses plain to you; for God is Omniscient, Wise. Those who love that slander should be spread concerning those who believe, theirs will be a painful torment in the world and in the Hereafter. God knows and you do not know. Had it not been for the grace of God and His mercy on you; and that God is All-Pitying, Giver of Mercy. Believers, do not follow in Satan's footsteps; whoever follows in the footsteps of Satan, he will indeed command what is shameful and wrong. Had it not been for the grace and mercy of God on you, not one of you would ever have been pure. But God purifies whom He pleases. And God is All-Hearing, Omniscient."

The incident of the slander of 'Aisha (RA) was a very painful experience for the Prophet (PBUH), his wife, and the whole community. Doubts destroyed the serenity of the hearts of the Prophet (PBUH), his close friend and father in law, and the companion of the Prophet (PBUH) Safwan bin Al Mu'atal (RA) for a whole month. Let us listen to the description of the incident as it was narrated by 'Aisha (RA). Here is the story as narrated by 'Aisha (RA) herself:

Each time the Prophet (PBUH) wanted to go on a trip he used to choose one of his wives to accompany him. The process he followed was to draw a toss between his wives whoever wins the toss would accompany him. On one of these trips, after Hijab has been mandated, it was my turn to accompany the Prophet (PBUH). My camel had a tent for me to sit in. While I was visiting the toilet, the Prophet (PBUH) commanded his army to prepare for the return trip to Medina. On my way back to the place where I left my camel, I found out that I lost my rosary so I went back to fetch it. In the mean time the driver of my camel came and drove the camel never realizing that I was not inside my tent on top of the camel. When I came back to the place of the camp I found that the army had left. I decided to stay where I was, thinking that soon they will realize that I am not in my tent on top of the camel and they will come back for me. I was tired so I was overcome by sleep. While I was sleeping Safwan (RA) happened to be passing by and saw me. Safwan (RA) knew who I was. So he took me on his camel until we caught up with the army. When I reached Medina I became sick and continued to be sick for about a month. In the meantime Abdu Allah bin Salool made up the story slandering me and he circulated the slander among people. People were talking about the slander and all the time I was unaware of what was going on. I was a bit suspicious of the Prophet's (PBUH) behavior. The Prophet (PBUH) was always warm towards me, but during this month I sensed a change in his attitude, but he never mentioned anything. One day, after my recovery I was going to the toilet outside the house with Um Mustah (RA). While we were walking I heard Um Mustah (RA) cursing her son Mustah. I was deeply concerned that a man who participated in the battle of Badr would be cursed by his mother. I asked her why she was doing this. She said, “Did you not know about the rumor being circulated?” I said, “No, what rumor.” She told me about the rumor accusing me of a relationship with Safwan (RA). This was extremely painful, I became ill again and I went home crying. I spent the whole night crying. The Prophet (PBUH) asked Ali bin Taleb (RA) and Usama bin Zaid (RA) for advice. Usama (RA) defended me and attested to my innocence. Ali (RA) on the other hand said to the Prophet (PBUH) that he can always marry another one if he wanted, but he also asked him to ask my servant of my behavior. My servant attested to my innocence.

The Prophet (PBUH) came to enquire about my health, so I asked him to let me go visit my mother, I wanted to ask my mother about the rumor. She confirmed what I heard from Um Mustah (RA). The next day my parents were with me and the Prophet (PBUH) came to see me. He sat on the bed and told me about what was going on, he said, “If you are innocent, God will announce your innocence, but if you were guilty then you should repent. God forgives all sins.” I did not know how to answer back. I asked my mother to respond but she did not say anything. I said, “By God, I know that you heard the rumor and believed it. If I say I am innocent, you will not believe me but if I confess my guilt, while God knows my innocence, you would believe me. I can only say what the father of Joseph said, ‘Beautiful patience is most befitting, I seek God’s help regarding what you say.’ (12: 18)”. I was certain of my innocence but I could not fathom the idea that God would send a revelation to declare my innocence. My best hope was that the Prophet (PBUH) would see in his dream that I am innocent. Suddenly, I realized that the Prophet (PBUH) was in the state of receiving a revelation. When he came around, he was smiling and he said, “‘Aisha, praise your Lord. He declared your innocence.” The Prophet (PBUH) then recited the ten verses in Surat Al-Noor which talked about the slander.

Mustah who spread the rumor about ‘Aisha (RA) was Abu Bakr’s (RA) cousin. Abu Bakr (RA) used to help Mustah (RA) financially as a form of charity. Abu Bakr (RA) decided that he will stop helping Mustah (RA) as he used to do before the incident. But then a verse was revealed which made Abu Bakr (RA) change his mind, “And let not those who possess dignity and abundance among you swear not to give to the near of kin and to the needy, and to those who have fled in God’s way. Let them forgive and show indulgence. Do you not yearn that God forgive you? God is All-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy.” (24:22)

For a whole month the Prophet (PBUH) and his wife, Abu Bakr (RA) and his wife, Safwan (RA), and indeed the whole Muslim community suffered through this horrible experience. The young, pure, and innocent ‘Aisha (RA) was slandered and her reputation has been tarnished. Not only she felt the pain of being falsely accused, but she was horrified at the thought that the Prophet (PBUH) had doubts about her innocence. Her parents suffered with her. Safwan (RA) a companion of the Prophet (PBUH) was deeply pained by the accusations launched against him. The whole episode continued for a whole month before the decisive verses declaring ‘Aisha’s (RA) innocence were revealed. The slander was not meant to harm ‘Aisha (RA) only but was also meant to hurt the Prophet (PBUH). The rumors were meant to undermine the Prophet (PBUH), his message, and his leadership. It was planned and executed by a group of people, “Those who brought forward the lie are a gang among you. Do not think it to be an evil thing to you; on the contrary it is good for you.” It was a gang of people led by Abdel Allah bin Saloul the leader of the hypocrites. The gang included few Muslims who were deceived by the hypocrites, e.g. Hamna bint Jahsh, Hassan bin Thabet, and Mustah bin Athatha. The verse indicated the enormity of the conspiracy but reassured the believers that it was not bad for them on the contrary it was good. It was good because it exposed those who were scheming against Islam; those who were bent on hurting the Prophet (PBUH) and his wives. It was also good because it alerted the believers to the dire consequences of slandering people. Slandering people has a grievous impact not only on the falsely accused but also on the whole community. This incident provided the opportunity to state the standards for the proper Islamic behavior in times of trials. The pains that the Prophet (PBUH), his wife, and indeed the whole Muslim community suffered were the price that had to be paid to pass safely through this trial. Those who fabricated and propagated the lie will be punished, each according to his/her share in the crime. Abdel Allah bin Saloul who twisted the facts, fabricated the lie, and worked hard to propagate it will have the greatest share of the punishment.

“Why did not the believers - men and women - when you heard of the affair, think good of their own people, and say, ‘It is an evident falsehood?’” The verse describes the proper Islamic behavior when faced with such trials. The believers should have consulted their hearts and listened to their gut feelings. They would have reached the conclusion that it was a lie. They should have known that the wife of their Prophet (PBUH), the chaste daughter of the Prophet’s (PBUH) close friend, could not have committed such indecency. There are stories that were narrated indicating that this was exactly the reaction of some Muslims e.g. Abu Ayoub Al-Ansari (RA).

This verse and the following one describe the proper process to handle rumors that slander people. The process consists of two steps. The first step requires the believers to reflect on the accusation and to give the accused the benefit of the doubt. The second step is to assume the innocence of the accused until proven guilty on the basis of hard and concrete evidence. A rigorous methodology in investigating the evidence should be followed, “Why did they not produce four witnesses? Since they did not produce any witnesses, they verily are liars in the sight of God.” A heinous accusation such as this should be proven beyond a shred of a doubt before a verdict is reached; four eyewitnesses should come forward to substantiate the accusation. If the person who has launched the accusation is unable to produce four eyewitnesses to substantiate his claim, then he is considered a liar. The believers did not follow this process when the accusation was launched against ‘Aisha (RA). The verses warn the believers not to commit such a mistake again, “Had it not been for the grace of God and His mercy on you in the world and the Hereafter a grievous torment would have certainly touched you on account of the discourse which you entered into.”

The verses go on to describe the details of the believers’ disgraceful reaction to the accusations, “When you welcomed it with your tongues, and uttered with your mouths that whereof you had no knowledge, you thought it was a trifle but it is very great in the sight of God.” The verse describes how the rumors take a life of their own when people repeat what they heard without verifying its veracity. People repeat false accusations not realizing the damage that they are causing. Their reaction should have been to shun those who were spreading the rumors, “And why you did not, when you heard it, say, ‘It is not right of us to speak of this. Glory be to God, this is a most serious slander?’” The verses end with an admonition and a warning, “God admonishes you, that you may never repeat such (conduct), if you are (true) believers. And God makes the verses plain to you; for God is Omniscient, Wise.”

The verses continue to describe the impact of the reckless behavior of those who spread rumors which slander chaste women on the community. Such behavior promotes instability, desensitizes the community to indecent acts, and strips the community of its decent values. These people will be punished, “Those who love that slander should be spread concerning those who believe; theirs will be a painful punishment in the world and in the Hereafter. God knows and you do not know.” Then a reminder was issued to remind the believers of the mercy and grace of God, “Had it not been for the grace of God and His mercy on you; and that God is All-Pitying, Giver of Mercy.”

“Believers, do not follow in Satan's footsteps; whoever follows in the footsteps of Satan, he will indeed command what is shameful and wrong. Had it not been for the grace and mercy of God on you, not one of you would ever have been pure. But God purifies whom He pleases. And God is Hearer, Knower.” The verse warns that the reckless behavior of those who spread rumors has been instigated by Satan. The believers were then warned not to succumb to the temptation of Satan.

“Those who slander chaste, virtuous, believing women (who are) unaware (of the evil), are cursed in this world and the Hereafter, and they shall have a grievous torment. On the day when their tongues, their hands, and their feet testify against them as to what they used to do. On that day God will pay them their just due, and they will know that God is the evident Truth.” The verse points to the enormity of the sin committed by those who slander chaste believing women by juxtaposing their evil intent against the innocence of these virtuous women. They will be cursed. Their tongues, their hands, and their feet will testify against them on the Day of Judgment. They will then receive their due share of the punishment.

The story of the slander ends with a statement expressing the choices that people make on the basis of their various dispositions, “Vile women are for vile men, and vile men for vile women. Good women are for good men, and good men for good women; such are innocent of that which people say. For them is pardon and a bountiful provision.”

Verses 27 to 34:

27. Believers, do not enter houses other than your own, until you have asked permission and saluted those in them. That is best for you, in order that you may be heedful.
28. And if you find no one in the house, do not enter until permission is given to you; and if you are asked to go back, go back. That makes for greater purity for yourselves; and God knows well all that you do.
29. It is not a sin that you enter uninhabited houses wherein there is benefit for you. God knows the things you do openly, and the things you conceal.
30. Tell the believing men to lower their gaze and be modest. That is purer for them. God is aware of what they do.

31. And tell the believing women to lower their gaze and be modest, and to display of their adornment only that which is apparent, and to draw their veils over their bosoms, and not to reveal their adornment save to their own husbands or fathers or husbands' fathers, or their sons or their husbands' sons, or their brothers or their brothers' sons or sisters' sons, or their women, or their slaves, or male attendants who have no sexual desire, or children who do not know of women's nakedness. And let them not stamp their feet so as to reveal what they hide of their adornment. And turn to God together, believers, in order that you may succeed.
32. And marry off those among you who are single and those who are fit among your male slaves and your female slaves; if they are needy, God will make them free from want out of His grace; and God is Vast, Omniscient.
33. And let those who cannot find a match keep chaste until God enriches them by His grace. And those of your slaves who seek a contract (of emancipation), contract them if you are aware of their goodness; and bestow upon them of the wealth of God which He has bestowed upon you. Force not your slave-girls to whoredom that you may seek enjoyment of the life of the world, when they themselves wish to remain chaste. And whoever compels them, then surely after their compulsion God is All-Forgiving, Giver of Merc.
34. And verily We have sent down to you clear revelations and examples of those who passed away before you. This is an admonition to those who are conscious of God. (24: 27 – 34)

God made the home a sanctuary for its inhabitants to relax, enjoy their privacy, and feel secure. No one is allowed to intrude on people's homes without permission. This can only happen when the visitors respect the rule that it is the inhabitants' right to decide when to receive visitors. This rule was not respected by the Arabs before Islam. Such a practice constituted a violation of the privacy of people in their homes. It put the inhabitants of a house in awkward and embarrassing situations. The verses describe the measures stated by the Quran to guarantee the preservation of the home's sanctity and the respect for the privacy of people in their homes. Visitors should seek permission first and wait until permission has been granted before they enter. If the inhabitants are not home or they refuse to grant permission, then the visitor should turn back without any bad feeling for being refused, "Believers, do not enter houses other than your own, until you have asked permission and saluted those in them. That is best for you, in order that you may heedful. And if you find no one in the house, do not enter until permission is given to you; and if you are asked to go back, go back. That makes for greater purity for yourselves; and God knows well all that you do."

However, these restrictions do not apply to public places, "It is not a sin that you enter uninhabited houses wherein there is benefit for you. God knows the things you do openly, and the things you conceal."

The previous verses dealt with the etiquette of respecting people's privacy in their homes. The following verses address the etiquette of the encounters between males and females. Islam pays special attention to maintaining the purity of the community. The etiquette aims at minimizing the opportunity for situations where sexual desires are excited. The society aims at creating a decorous environment for the encounter between the sexes. Islam uses preventive measures to ensure that such a decorous environment is maintained. The following verses state some of the measures that the Quran provided to achieve such a decorous environment “Tell the believing men to lower their gaze and be modest. That is purer for them. God is aware of what they do.” Men should lower their gaze and be modest. This provides a framework for male behavior in the presence of women. The framework aims at minimizing the chances of temptation that may open the door to sin. Lowering the gaze and being modest require a degree of self discipline. This self discipline is motivated by the fact that, “That is purer for them. God is aware of what they do.”

Women are also directed to, “lower their gaze and be modest.” Women by nature like to display their beauty. Islam does not attempt to suppress this natural behavior. However, such behavior if left uncontrolled will produce a society in which chaotic sexual interactions predominate. Islam aims at channeling this behavior to be expressed in a family environment. Thus women are directed, “to display of their adornment only that which is apparent, and to draw their veils over their bosoms, and not to reveal their adornment save to their own husbands or fathers or husbands' fathers, or their sons or their husbands' sons, or their brothers or their brothers' sons or sisters' sons, or their women, or their slaves, or male attendants who have no sexual desire, or children who do not know of women's nakedness. And let them not stamp their feet so as to reveal what they hide of their adornment. And turn to God together, believers, in order that you may succeed.” Women are allowed to show their faces and hands; but they should cover bosoms.

When this verse was revealed, believing women did not hesitate to conform to these norms immediately. It is narrated by ‘Aisha (RA) that as soon as this verse was revealed, the women of Medina hastened to adopt the dress code which the verse described. This etiquette elevated the standards for the appreciation of beauty for Muslims. It made them appreciate the difference between decency and the pure physical attraction to the other sex. However, the dress code can be relaxed when fear of temptation is unwarranted. Thus, the dress code can be relaxed in the presence of, “fathers or husbands' fathers, or their sons or their husbands' sons, or their brothers or their brothers' sons or sisters' sons, or their women, or their slaves, or male attendants who have no sexual desire, or children who do not know of women's nakedness.” Women were also directed to avoid intentional gestures which may provoke men’s sexual desires, “And let them not stamp their feet so as to reveal what they hide of their adornment.” The verse ends with a reminder to the believers, “And turn to God together, believers, in order that you may succeed.”

Islam considers that marriage is the normal way for satisfying natural sexual needs for men and women. Thus, Islam urges those who can afford it to get married, “And marry off those among you who are single and those who are fit among your male slaves and your female slaves; if they are needy, God will make them free from want out of His grace; and God is Vast, Omniscient.” Usually, financial means are an obstacle in the way of getting married for many people. Islam directs the Muslim community to come to the aid of those who would like to get married but are unable financially to get married. Most of the scholars have indicated that this is not an obligatory duty for the community to undertake but it is a recommendation. It should be pointed out here that Islam mandates social justice. The Islamic economic and social systems are tailored so that a decent life is guaranteed for each and every citizen in the state. However, since there can still be people who cannot afford the financial burden of marriage, the verse directs the Muslim state to help those people in getting married. Poverty should not be an obstacle preventing people who want to get married to do so. The Prophet (PBUH) has been quoted to have said, “God pledged to help three kinds of people: the person who strives in the way of God, a slave who needs money to buy his/her freedom, and a single man or woman who needs help to get married.”

However, Muslims are directed to guard their chastity until they are able to get married, “And let those who cannot find a match keep chaste until God enriches them by His grace.” Islam inherited a universal slavery system. Islam could not have abolished this system unilaterally. In addition, Islam recognized that social changes cannot be achieved instantaneously. Thus, Islam adopted a gradual plan that led to the abolishment of slavery. One step in this plan was to allow a slave to buy his/her freedom, “And those of your slaves who seek a contract (of emancipation), contract them if you are aware of their goodness; and bestow upon them of the wealth of God which He has bestowed upon you.” Once the contract between the slave and his/her master has been signed, everything that the slave earned became his/her own money. The money that the slave earned would then be used to buy his/her freedom. The slave was also eligible for receiving poor-dues from the state. The word “goodness” in the verse means that the slave is a Muslim and he/she is able to earn their living once they became free persons.

In the pre-Islamic society masters used to act as pimps for their slave girls. Islam abolished this practice, “Force not your slave-girls to whoredom that you may seek enjoyment of the life of the world, when they themselves wish to remain chaste. And whoever compels them, then surely after their compulsion God is All-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy.” These were clear verses that have been revealed as an admonition, “And verily We have sent down to you clear revelations and examples of those who passed away before you. This is an admonition to those who are conscious of God.”

Verses 35 to 45:

35. God is the Light of the heavens and the earth. The likeness of His light is as a niche wherein there is a lamp. The lamp is in a glass. The glass is as it were a shining star. (This lamp is) kindled from a blessed tree, an olive neither of the east nor of the west, whose oil would almost glow forth (of itself) though no fire touched it. Light upon light. God guides to His light whom He pleases. And God sets forth parables for men, and God is Cognizant of all things.
36. In houses which God has permitted to be exalted and in which His name may be remembered and He is glorified in the mornings and the evenings,
37. By men whom neither commerce nor profit beguiles from the remembrance of God and constancy in prayer and paying to the poor their due; who fear a day when hearts and eyeballs will be overturned;

38. That God may reward them according to the best of their deeds, and add even more for them out of His Grace. God does provide for those whom He wills, without measure.
39. But the disbelievers, their deeds are like a mirage in a desert. The thirsty one thinks it to be water till he comes to it and finds it nothing, but finds God before him, Who will pay him his due; and God is swift in reckoning.
40. Or as darkness on a vast, abysmal sea; there covers it a wave, above which is a wave, above which is a cloud, layer upon layer of darkness. When he holds out his hand he can barely see it. And he for whom God does not give light, for him there is no light.
41. Do you not see that God is glorified by all those who are in the heavens and the earth; and the birds with expanded wings? Each (of them) has known its (means of) prayer and glorifying (Him), and God is Cognizant of what they do.
42. And to God belongs the sovereignty of the heavens and the earth, and to God is the destination.
43. Did you not see how God drives along the clouds, then gathers them, then makes them layers, and you see the rain comes forth from between them; He sends down from the heaven mountains wherein is hail, and smites therewith whom He wills, and averts it from whom He wills. The flashing of His lightning almost takes away the eyesight.
44. God turns over the night and the day; most surely there is a lesson in this for those who can see.
45. And God has created every animal from water. Some creep on their bellies, some walk on two legs; and some walk on four. God creates what He wills for verily God has power over all things. (24: 35 – 45)

“God is the Light of the heavens and the earth.” This is a statement that one can almost see its effect in a light that engulfs the whole universe and creeps into the heart illuminating it. This is a light that removes the darkness thus rendering the hearts transparent and the souls free, floating in a sea of light. This is the light which forms the essence of the heavens and earth and from which they derive their existence. It is an overwhelming image beyond human imagination. The Quran tries to explain this using a parable that makes it easy for humans to understand, “The likeness of His light is as a niche wherein there is a lamp. The lamp is in a glass. The glass is as it were a shining star. (This lamp is) kindled from a blessed tree, an olive neither of the east nor of the west, whose oil would almost glow forth (of itself) though no fire touched it. Light upon light.” The parable uses the example of the niche, with which everyone is familiar, to describe the process of illuminating the limitless bounds of the heavens and the earth. The lamp which illuminates this niche is like a shining star it gets its oil from a blessed tree. The oil of the tree is unique, it has a glowing nature, it glitters even before it is lit. This light is the light of guidance, “God guides to His light whom He pleases. And God sets forth parables for men, and God is Cognizant of all things.”

Those who are guided by this light can be found in, “In houses which God has permitted to be exalted and in which His name may be remembered and He is glorified in the mornings and the evenings.” These are, “Men whom neither commerce nor profit beguiles from the remembrance of God and constancy in prayer and paying to the poor their due; who fear a day when hearts and eyeballs will be overturned; that God may reward them according to the best of their deeds, and add even more for them out of His Grace. God does provide for those whom He wills, without measure.” The verse suggests a correspondence between the lamp which spreads its light through the niche and the hearts that are illuminated by God’s light.

God has decreed that His name should be mentioned in these houses. This decree elevated these houses and made them exalted. These houses became exalted because in them are people who continuously raise their voices by the remembrance of God. Nothing of the activities of this worldly life can lure them away from praying to God. They fulfill the duties which God has mandated them to do. However, they are anxious; their hearts are filled with fear and hope, seeking God’s pleasure and reward. God will provide for them without measure.

On the other hand, “the disbelievers, their deeds are like a mirage in a desert. The thirsty one thinks it to be water till he comes to it and finds it nothing, but finds God before him, and Who will pay him his due; and God is swift in reckoning. Or as darkness on a vast, abysmal sea; there covers him a wave, above which is a wave, above which is a cloud, layer upon layer of darkness. When he holds out his hand he can barely see it. And he for whom God does not give light, for him there is no light.” Two images are given to describe the hopelessness of the disbelievers. One image describes their deeds as a mirage in a desert. A thirsty person in a desert who sees a mirage runs towards it thinking that he will get a drink to quench his thirst but instead he finds God there waiting for him to give him his due recompense. What a horrifying experience? In the second image we see how darkness closes on a person. The verse paints an image of a person not only engulfed within waves one on the top of the other, but on top of all that there is a dark cloud that covers the waves. It is an image of complete darkness to the extent that a person would not be able to see his own hand. This is the darkness of disbelief. God’s light brings guidance to the heart and depth to the insight.

Humankind is not alone in this universe. God’s creatures fill the universe around the human race. God’s creatures have different forms, different shapes, and different natures but they all share one thing. They all praise God, “Do you not see that God is glorified by all those who are in the heavens and the earth glorify; and the birds with expanded wings? Each (of them) has known its (means of) prayer and glorifying (Him), and God is Cognizant of what they do.” God knows what they do. The verse points to the fact that each of God’s creatures has a way to sing the praise of God. God understands their languages. It is incumbent on humankind to join the rest of God’s creatures in singing the praise of God, because the ultimate abode is with God, “And to God belongs the sovereignty of the heavens and the earth, and to God is the destination.” God is the only refuge, no one can be protected from His wrath, to him is the final destination, and no one will be able to escape this destiny.

“Did you not see how God drives along the clouds, then gathers them, then makes them layers, and you see the rain comes forth from between them; He sends down from the heaven mountains wherein is hail, and smites therewith whom He wills, and averts it from whom He wills. The flashing of His lightning almost takes away the eyesight.” A detailed scene is being presented to alert the hearts to think and reflect on the creation of God. God’s hand moves the clouds and then gathers them together. When the clouds become heavy with water, the rain comes down. The description of clouds as mountains can be clearly seen from a plane flying above the clouds. God controls the movement of the clouds and when and where rain will come down.

“God turns over the night and the day; most surely there is a lesson in this for those who can see.” The perpetual alternation of day and night reminds us of the perfect laws that govern the universe. Such a scene should awaken the heedless hearts to sense the beauty of God’s creation. The Quran tries to revive our ability to reflect on these phenomena which are signs of God’s power. It is a blessing of God to be able to appreciate these beautiful phenomena. This appreciation enhances our bond with the universe. This bond is part of God’s plan for us to live in harmony with the rest of His creation.

“And God has created every animal from water. Some creep on their bellies, some walk on two legs; and some walk on four. God creates what He wills for verily God has power over all things.” The verse makes a very powerful assertion. It confirms the oneness of the origin of life for all living creatures. We will not argue about the scientific content of this statement. We simply agree with the Quranic statement that all the diverse creatures were created from water, “God creates what He wills for verily God has power over all things.”

Verses 46 to 57:

46. We have indeed sent down clear revelations. God guides whom He wills to a straight path.
47. And they say, “We believe in God and the Messenger, and we obey;” then after that a party of them turns away. Such are not believers;
48. When they are summoned to God and His Messenger, in order that He may judge between them, a party of them turns aside.
49. But if the right is on their side, they come to him in prompt obedience.
50. Is there a disease in their hearts, or have they doubts, or do they fear that God and His Messenger should wrong them in judgment? No, such are the wrongdoers.
51. The answer of the believers, when they are summoned to God and His Messenger, in order that He may judge between them, is no other than to say, “We hear and we obey;” those are the successful.
52. Whosoever obeys God and His Messenger, fears God, and remains conscious of Him is indeed the victorious.
53. They swear their strongest oaths by God that, if only you would command them, they would go forth. Say, “Do not swear; (such) obedience is known;” verily, God is Totally-Aware of all that you do.
54. Say, “Obey God, and obey the Messenger.” But if they turn away, he is only responsible for the duty with which he has been discharged, and upon you is that with which you have been discharged. If you obey him, you shall be rightly guided. The Messenger's duty is only to convey the (Message) clearly.
55. God has promised, those among you who believe and do good deeds, that He will certainly make them to succeed (the present rulers) on the earth as He caused those who were before them to succeed (others); and that He will surely establish for them their religion which He has approved for them, and will substitute their state of fear with a sense of security. They worship Me. They do not associate partners with Me. Those who disbelieve henceforth, they are the transgressors.

56. So establish prayer and pay the poor-due and obey the Messenger, that haply you may receive mercy.

57. Do not ever think that the disbelievers are going to frustrate (God's Plan) on earth. Their refuge is the Fire, and it is indeed an evil destination. (24: 46 – 57)

“We have indeed sent down clear revelations. God guides whom He wills to a straight path.” God’s revelations are indeed clear. They open up the door for God’s light for His servants, and they lead the way to the springs of guidance. They identify what is good and what is bad. They delineate the Islamic way of life and they establish clearly God’s rulings concerning all the daily affairs of people. It is God who has the absolute control over who will be guided and who will be left to go astray, “God guides whom He wills to a straight pat.” However, God has established a way that leads to guidance. Those who follow that way will receive, by the will of God, guidance and those who refuse to follow the way, will be left to go astray.

The hypocrites say, “We believe in God and the Messenger, and we obey;” but these were merely words that were not reflected on their deeds. Their deeds gave them away and showed that they do not really believe in what they say; “a party of them turns away. Such are not believers.” True faith is what rests deep in one’s heart and is reflected on one’s deeds. The Islamic project aims at translating the deep feeling of faith in the believer’s heart into a plan of action that control’s one’s behavior. The plan of action which is rooted in the believer’s faith becomes the way of life that a Muslim leads. Those whose actions do not reflect their words are not true believers. The sign of their bad faith is that, “When they are summoned to God and His Messenger, in order that He may judge between them, a party of them turns aside. But if the right is on their side, they come to him in prompt obedience.” They knew that God and His Messenger (PBUH) will always judge fairly, but they were not interested in justice. They were only interested in winning, lawfully or unlawfully. That is why they always avoided seeking the Messenger’s ruling to decide their affairs. However, when they were certain that the Messenger (PBUH) will rule in their favor, they would hasten to seek his judgment.

The verses illustrate a classical example of the behavior of the hypocrites. They do not believe, but they do not have the courage to state their position in public, however, their behavior betrays their disbelief. Certainly, accepting the decrees of God and His Messenger (PBUH) is a sign of true belief. Those who do not accept the decrees of God and His Messenger (PBUH) must have a disease in their hearts, “Is there a disease in their hearts?” The statement is posed in a question form. Indeed, only those who have a disease in their hearts would refuse the rulings of God and His Messenger (PBUH). The verse continues to wonder, “or have they doubts?” Do they really have doubts about God’s decrees? Are they not certain that these were God’s decrees? The verse continues to question their behavior using a third question, “or do they fear that God and His Messenger should wrong them in judgment?” Are they afraid that God would rule unfairly? Do they not know that God will only rule with justice?

God's rulings are examples of the absolute justice. God is the Creator of the whole human race. He will not take the side of one party of His creation against others. God's decrees are made to establish justice for all His creations. Manmade laws are always flawed. They tend to favor a group over another. Those who refuse God's law are certainly, "wrongdoers."

The believers are never hesitant in their obedience to God and His Messenger (PBUH), "The answer of the believers, when they are summoned to God and His Messenger, in order that He may judge between them, is no other than to say, 'We hear and we obey.' Those are the successful." They have complete trust in God's justice and they submit fully to His rulings. Therefore, they will be successful. They have entrusted their affairs to God and He will not let them down. God knows best where their interests lie and He will judge among them according to His knowledge and with justice. Human knowledge is less than complete and human justice is less than perfect; very often human justice is blurred by human whims and desires.

The previous verse spoke of accepting God's rulings. The following verse speaks of being obedient to God in all matters, "Whosoever obeys God and His Messenger, fears God, and remains conscious of Him is indeed the victorious." The verse indicates that those who obey God in all aspects of their lives are indeed the victorious. They do whatever God commands them to do and abstain from that which they are forbidden to do. They are continuously conscious of God in all their deeds. They will be victorious in this life as well as in the Hereafter. This is God's promise and God always keeps His promise.

Those who are obedient to God in all affairs have reached a higher status in their belief. Only those whose hearts have been illuminated by God's light can reach such state. Those who reach such a state are blessed by God's honor. They cannot force themselves to be obedient to mortals like them who command them to follow rules that have not been sanctioned by God and His Messenger (PBUH). They only obey what God's decreed.

After this short talk about obedience, the verses return to discuss the behavior of the hypocrites, "They swear their strongest oaths by God that, if only you would command them, they would go forth. Say, 'Do not swear; (such) obedience is known;' verily, God is Totally-Aware of all that you do." The hypocrites took the strongest oath to assure the Prophet (PBUH) that they would fight with him, if and when he commands them to do so. God knew that they were lying. The verse is telling them, there is no need to take an oath because God knows what kind of obedience they expressed to the Messenger (PBUH). This is not the kind of obedience that God desires, God desires sincere obedience. He commands His Messenger to convey this message, "Say, 'Obey God, and obey the Messenger.' But if they turn away, he is only responsible for the duty with which he has been discharged, and upon you is that with which you have been discharged. If you obey him, you shall be rightly guided. The Messenger's duty is only to convey the (Message) clearly." The task of the Messenger (PBUH) is to deliver the message; their task is to offer sincere obedience. If they follow the Messenger's advice, then they will be rightly guided but if they turn away then they should suffer the consequences.

“God has promised, those among you who believe and do good deeds, that He will certainly make them to succeed (the present rulers) on the earth as He caused those who were before them to succeed (others); and that He will surely establish for them their religion which He has approved for them, and will substitute their state of fear with a sense of security. They worship Me. They do not associate partners with Me. Those who disbelieve henceforth, they are the transgressors.” This is God’s promise which He made to those who believe and do good deeds from among the followers of Prophet Muhammad (PBUH). God promised to make them the heirs of power on earth and to establish their religion, the religion that He desired for them. What is the essence of this belief? And what is the meaning of being heirs? The essence of true belief is to completely submit to God in all matters of life. True belief controls and guides all human activities. It rests deep in the heart and is reflected on each and every human activity. It overcomes human whims and desires and aligns them to the guidance brought by the Messenger of God (PBUH). It is a state that permeates the whole being of the believer and controls his/her emotions, senses, movements, and behavior. This state defines a complete way of life. This way of life prepares the believers to undertake the great responsibility, the responsibility of being vicegerents on earth. What is the nature of this responsibility?

It is not only the responsibility to rule, control and govern but to use all of this for the benefit of humankind. It is the responsibility to build and reform not to destroy and abuse. It is the responsibility to implement the way of life that God has decreed for humankind. This is the promise that God made to those who believe and do good deeds. He promised to empower them to undertake this responsibility, establish justice on earth, and lead humanity to the perfection that God has ordained for them. This explanation of the meaning of the promise mentioned in the verse is confirmed by the statement, “that He will surely establish for them their religion which He has approved for them.” God promised to empower them so that they practice the religion which He approved for them. This religion promotes goodness and fairness; it demands that they rise above their carnal desires; it commands that they establish a good life on earth; and it commands them to make use of all the resources that God made available for them, all of this is carried out for the sole purpose of seeking God’s approval. And, “will substitute their state of fear with a sense of security.” It has been narrated by Al-Rabei’ bin Anas (RA) that, “When the command came down to the believers to fight back those who fight them, the believers became apprehensive. They would keep their weapons close by day and night. One of the companions asked the Messenger (PBUH) how long will this state continue? He said, ‘Very soon, the one of you will enjoy sitting in a large gathering without having to carry weapons.’ Then God revealed this verse and Islam spread in the whole Arabian Peninsula and the Muslims enjoyed the safety that God promised in this verse.” God promise will only be fulfilled if the Muslims fulfill the condition stipulated in the verse, “They worship Me. They do not associate partners with Me.” This condition has to be observed before God’s promise is fulfilled. The next verse reminds the believers of this condition, “So establish prayer and pay the poor-due and obey the Messenger, that haply you may receive mercy. Do not ever think that the disbelievers are going to frustrate (God's Plan) on earth. Their refuge is the fire, and it is indeed an evil destination.” These are the elements of the preparation: connecting with God through prayer, overcoming avarice through paying the poor-dues, obeying the Messenger by accepting his rulings, and implementing God’s law in each and every situation. Once these conditions have been fulfilled the believers need not worry about the might of the disbelievers because they will never be able to frustrate God’s plan.

Verses 58 to 64:

58. Believers, let those whom your right hands possess, and the (children) among you who have not reached puberty, ask leave of you at three times (before they come into your presence): before the Dawn prayer, and when you put off your clothes at midday, and after the evening prayer; these are three times of privacy for you. It is neither a sin for you nor for them, besides these times, that some of you go round about (waiting) upon others. Thus, does God make clear to you the revelations, and God is Omniscient, Wise.
59. But when the children among you reach puberty, let them (also) ask for permission, as those before them used to ask. Thus, God makes clear His revelations for you; God is Omniscient, Wise.
60. As for women, past child-bearing age who have no hope of marriage, it is no sin for them if they put off their (outer) clothing in such a way as not to show adornment. But to refrain is better for them; God is All-Hearing, Omniscient.
61. No blame is there upon the blind, nor any blame upon the lame, nor any blame upon the sick, nor on yourselves, if you eat from your houses, or the houses of your fathers, or the houses of your mothers, or the houses of your brothers, or the houses of your sisters, or the houses of your fathers' brothers, or the houses of your fathers' sisters, or the houses of your mothers' brothers, or the houses of your mothers' sisters, or (from that) whereof you hold the keys, or (from the house) of a friend. No sin shall it be for you whether you eat together or separately. But when you enter houses, salute one another with a greeting from God, blessed and good. Thus God makes clear His revelations for you that haply you may understand.
62. The true believers are only those who believe in God and His Messenger and, when they are with him on some common errand, they do not leave until they have asked his permission. Those who ask your permission, those are they who believe in God and His Messenger. So, if they ask your permission to attend to some of their affair, give permission to whom you will, and ask God to forgive them; God is All-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy.
63. Make not (your) calling of the Messenger among yourselves as the call of one of you to another. God knows those of you who slip away, hiding themselves. And let those who conspire to evade his orders beware lest grief or painful torment befall them.
64. Verily, to God belongs whatsoever is in the heavens and the earth. He knows your condition. And (He knows) the Day when they are returned to Him so that He may inform them of what they did. God is Cognizant of all things. (24: 58 – 64)

“Believers, let those whom your right hands possess, and the (children) among you who have not reached puberty, ask leave of you at three times (before they come into your presence): before the Dawn prayer, and when you put off your clothes at midday, and after the evening prayer; these are three times of privacy for you. It is neither a sin for you nor for them, besides these times, that some of you go round about (waiting) upon others. Thus, does God make clear to you the revelations, and God is Omniscient, Wise.” Earlier verses detailed the etiquette of entering the homes of others, and this verse delineates the etiquette for seeking permission inside the home. Those whom your right hands possess and the children who did not yet reach the age of puberty are allowed to enter the private quarters at any time except for three periods during the day. These are the periods when people may be dressed in a way that reveals parts of their bodies which they do not want others to see. These periods are the times before Dawn prayer, during the noon naps, and after the evening prayer. These are times for privacy. Quran teaches us to respect the privacy of people. Seeing adult family members at these times of privacy may have adverse effects on the children or the servants. Outside these times children and servants are allowed to move around the house freely. This etiquette combines between the ease of living and the respect of privacy. When the children reach the age of puberty then they should ask for permission at all times according to the general rule which has been mentioned before, “But when the children among you reach puberty, let them (also) ask for permission, as those before them used to ask. Thus God makes clear His revelations for you.” God is Omniscient, Wise. He knows the inner feelings of people and knows what is best for them.

In previous verses, women were commanded to cover their adornment so that to avoid being seductive. The following verse provides an exemption from the general rule for women who are no longer interested in marriage. These women have more liberty in putting off their outer garments without revealing their private body parts, “As for women past child-bearing age, who have no hope of marriage, it is no sin for them if they put off their (outer) clothing in such a way as not to show adornment. But to refrain is better for them.” However, it is better for them to be decently dressed all the time. “God is All-Hearing, Omniscient;” God hears everything and knows the inner thoughts of people.

The following verse deals with the etiquette of the relationships between family members and friends, “No blame is there upon the blind nor any blame upon the lame nor any blame upon the sick nor on yourselves if you eat from your houses, or the houses of your fathers, or the houses of your mothers, or the houses of your brothers, or the houses of your sisters, or the houses of your fathers' brothers, or the houses of your fathers' sisters, or the houses of your mothers' brothers, or the houses of your mothers' sisters, or (from that) whereof you hold the keys, or (from the house) of a friend. No sin shall it be for you whether you eat together or separately. But when you enter houses, salute one another with a greeting from God, blessed and good. Thus God makes clear His revelations for you that haply you may understand.” It has been narrated that before the revelation of this verse, people used to go visit and eat without seeking permission. Then the verse, “Do not consume one another's wealth unjustly,” (2: 188) was revealed which made the believers feel awkward about visiting each other and eating at each other's homes. The present verse was then revealed to explain the etiquette of visiting and eating at each other's homes.

This verse delineates a legal rule. We notice how the words were chosen carefully, precisely, and concisely to convey accurately the rules to be followed. It states that we are allowed to eat, “from your houses,” this includes the houses of the spouses and the sons and daughters. Then the allowed houses are mentioned in succession. The reason behind specifying that people can eat together or separately is that before Islam people used to refrain from eating separately. So the verse came down to remove that restriction. People should salute each other when they enter these houses. Salutation enhances the bond between people.

The verses move on to delineate the etiquette of dealing with the Messenger of God (PBUH), “The true believers are only those who believe in God and His Messenger and, when they are with him on some common errand, they do not leave until they have asked his permission. Those who ask your permission, those are they who believe in God and His Messenger. So, if they ask your permission to attend to some of their affair, give permission to whom you will, and ask God to forgive them; God is All-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy. Make not (your) calling of the Messenger among yourselves as the call of one of you to another. God knows those of you who slip away, hiding themselves. And let those who conspire to evade his orders beware lest grief or painful punishment befall them. Verily to God belongs whatsoever is in the heavens and the earth. He knows your condition. And (He knows) the Day when they are returned to Him so that He may inform them of what they did. God is Cognizant of all things.” It has been narrated that when the idolaters of Quraish mobilized the Arabian tribes to attack the Muslims in Medina, it was suggested that the best strategy for defense is to dig a trench around Medina. That is why this battle was called the battle of the Trench. While digging, the hypocrites would slip off without permission to avoid participating in the hard work. On the other hand, the believers would only go to attend to their most urgent errands after they had asked the permission of the Prophet (PBUH). These verses came to describe this situation and to delineate the etiquette of the relationship between the leader and the group. It starts by stating the conditions that a true believer must meet, “The true believers are only those who believe in God and His Messenger and, when they are with him on some common errand, they do not leave until they have asked his permission.” They believe in God and His Messenger and that belief is reflected on their deeds. They only leave to attend to the most urgent need, and they ask the Messenger’s (PBUH) permission before they leave. The Quran gives the Messenger (PBUH) the liberty to give or withhold his approval of permission depending on the perceived need. The verse exhorts the believers to seek permission only for the most urgent need and commands the Prophet (PBUH) to seek God’s forgiveness for those who have to leave. The verse exhorts the believers to address their Prophet (PBUH) respectfully and to use a language different from that which they use to address each other.

The verses then turn to warn the hypocrites who sneak away in a stealthy way thinking that no one has seen them, but they should realize that God sees everything. It is a dire warning for those who do not follow the commands of the Prophet (PBUH), “And let those who conspire to evade his orders beware lest grief or painful torment befall them.” They will be afflicted by painful doom in this life and in the Hereafter.

The Sura ends on a note of reminding people that God knows everything, “Verily, to God belongs whatsoever is in the heavens and the earth. He knows your condition. And (He knows) the Day when they are returned to Him so that He may inform them of what they did. God is Cognizant of all things.” The believers are reminded to remain conscious of God and to maintain strong links to Him. This is the only way to salvation.

Sura 25: Al-Furqan (The Criterion)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 20:

1. Blessed is He who sent down the Criterion to His servant, that it may be an admonition to all peoples.
2. It is He to whom belongs the dominion of the heavens and the earth. He did not have a son, nor has He a partner in His dominion. It is He who created all things, and ordered them in due measure.
3. Yet they have taken, besides him, gods that can create nothing but are themselves created; that have no control of hurt nor good to themselves; nor can they control death, nor life, nor resurrection.
4. But the disbelievers say, "This is nothing but a lie which he has forged, and others have helped him at it." Indeed, it is they who have committed injustice and fabricated a lie.
5. And they say, "Fables of the ancient, which he has written down and they are dictated to him morning and evening."
6. Say, (to them, Muhammad), "He who knows the secret of the heavens and the earth revealed it. He is All-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy."
7. And they say, "What sort of a messenger is this, who eats food, and walks through the streets? Why has not an angel been sent down to him to give admonition with him?"
8. Or (why) has not a treasure thrown down to him, or why does he not have a garden from which to eat?" And the wrongdoers say, "You are following only a man who is bewitched."
9. See what kinds of comparisons they make for you. But they have gone astray, and they will never find a way.
10. Blessed is He who, if He had willed, could give you better (things) than those: gardens beneath which rivers flow; and He could give you palaces.
11. But they denied the Hour (of Judgment). Indeed, We have prepared a blazing Fire for those who deny the Hour.
12. When it sees them from a place afar, they will hear its fury and its roaring.
13. And when they are thrown, bound together, into a narrow place therein they will pray thereupon for destruction.
14. (They will be told) "This day, do not pray for a single destruction; pray for much destruction.
15. Say, "Is that (doom) better or the Garden of Immortality which is promised to those who remain conscious of God? It will be their reward and their final destination.
16. In it, they will have whatever they wish for. They will dwell (there) forever. This is a promise binding upon your Lord; and of Him to be requested."
17. And on the day when He will gather them and that which they worship apart from God and will say, "Was it you who misled my servants or did they (themselves) go astray from the path?"
18. They will say, "Glory to You, we should not have taken protecting guardians beside You. But You did bestow, on them and their fathers, good things (in life), until they forgot the message and became lost people."

19. Thus, they will give you the lie regarding what you say, then you can neither avert (the doom) nor obtain help. And whoso among you does wrong, We shall make him taste great torment.
20. And the messengers whom We sent before you were all (men) who ate food and walked through the streets. We have made some of you as a trial for others. Will you persevere? God is All-Seeing. (26: 1-20)

This Sura has been revealed in Mecca. One can discern two main themes for this Sura. The objective of the first theme is to comfort, reassure, and support the Messenger of God (PBUH) in delivering the Message to the stubborn, insolent and abusive idolaters of Quraish. The second theme provides a description of the fierce battle that the Messenger (PBUH) had to engage in the course of delivering the Message to the idolaters of Quraish who used all types of false arguments to stem the tide of the Message. The two themes are intertwined together and can be hardly separated from one another. However, one can also discern four sections in this Sura. The first section starts with the glorification of God. It then describes the challenges posed by the idolaters and the doom they will face on the Day of Judgment as a result of their obstinacy. The first section ends with verses to comfort the Messenger (PBUH) and to reassure him in his struggle. The second section continues to describe some of the challenges that the idolaters posed and to contrast them against the challenges posed by previous nations who went astray before them. It laments the fact they did not learn from these examples, which puts them at the same level of brainless cattle that are unable to think. The third section takes us on a tour of the cosmos. The fourth section describes the characteristics of the servants of the Lord of Mercy and their reward.

“Blessed is He who sent down the Criterion to His servant, that it may be an admonition to all peoples.” The beginning of the Sura states its main message: The Quran is a divine revelation, the Message is a universal message, and God is One. The word “the Criterion” is used to refer to the Quran because it differentiates between the truth and falsehood and between guidance and going astray. The Quran describes a clear and unique lifestyle; and consequently it sets a demarcation between the ways of life before and after the advent of Islam. Quran brought a universal message that addresses all people, “that it may be an admonition to all people.”

The verse honored the Messenger (PBUH) by calling him “God’s servant.” This mode of address has been repeated in several places in the Quran; in Chapter 17, verse 1, “Glorified be He who carried His servant by night from the Sacred Mosque to the far distant Mosque;” in Chapter 18, verse 1, “Praise be to God who sent down the Book upon His servant;” and Chapter 72, verse 19, “Yet when the servant of God stood forth to invoke Him.” This shows that being God’s servant is an honor that people should aspire to. It also indicates that human beings can never be more than God’s servants. God has no equal or partner. God is unique He is the Creator and everyone else is His creation. The Quran has been revealed to be, “an admonition to all peoples.” This statement emphasizes the fact that Islam was meant to be a universal message from the start. This refutes the claim by some that the universality of the message came as a later development in the growth of Islam.

“It is He to whom belongs the dominion of the heavens and the earth.” God is the owner of the heavens and earth. He has absolute control over them. He has the absolute power to plan, to manage, to control, and to change the universe. He did not have a son nor did He have a partner, “He did not have a son, nor has He a partner in His dominion.” Procreation is needed to guarantee the existence of the human race, but God is eternal. Many signs in the universe affirm the Oneness of God. God created everything according to a measured order, “It is He who created all things, and ordered them in due measure.” The idolaters were heedless of these signs. They adopted deities who were themselves created and could neither help nor harm those who worshiped them, “Yet they have taken, besides him, gods that can create nothing but are themselves created; that have no control of hurt or good to themselves; nor can they control death nor life nor resurrection.” This is in itself a major transgression against God. It is one of the ugliest sins. The Messenger (PBUH) was asked, “What is the most heinous sin?” He said, “To claim that God has a partner.”

It is not surprising then that they would transgress against the Messenger (PBUH), “But the disbelievers say, ‘This is nothing but a lie which he has forged, and others have helped him at it.’ Indeed, it is they who have committed injustice and fabricated a lie.” This was a major lie and what was surprising is that they knew that it was a lie. They acknowledged that the language and style of the Quran are different from the language and style that they were used to. They knew that Muhammad (PBUH) never lied or cheated before. They even used to call him, “the truthful, the trustworthy.” How can the “the truthful, the trustworthy” fabricate a lie about God?

But they were worried about losing their social status and religious leadership. They used these arguments to discourage the ordinary Arabs from joining the new religion. But, if the Messenger (PBUH) was able to compose such a Quran with the help of other mortals, why were the chiefs of Quraish unable to compose a similar Quran?

When the Quran narrated stories of previous nations, the chiefs of Quraish hastened to describe the Quran as, “Fables of the ancient, which he has written down and they are dictated to him morning and evening.” They claimed that others who knew these fables dictated them to Muhammad (PBUH), but God’s answer came immediately refuting their claims, “Say, (to them, Muhammad), ‘He who knows the secret of the heavens and the earth has revealed it. He is ever Forgiving, Merciful.’” It was revealed by God whose knowledge is unbounded; He knows all the secrets of the heaven and earth.

“And they say, ‘What sort of a messenger is this, who eats food, and walks through the streets? Why has not an angel been sent down to him to give admonition with him? Or (why) has not a treasure thrown down to him, or why does he not have a garden from which to eat?’ And the wrongdoers say, ‘You are following only a man who is bewitched.’” They repeat the same objections that had been voiced by the disbelievers over the centuries. How can a mortal be a messenger? They knew him; they knew his family and his history. He was a normal human being, just like anyone of them; he ate like them and he walked like them. How could he be a messenger who receives a revelation from God? This may seem farfetched; but it is also plausible. God created human beings to live on earth. God breathed into them of His spirit and gave them the responsibility of managing the earth. The knowledge and experience that the human beings had were limited. Therefore, God chose messengers from among this race to help guide them to the straight path. The spirit of God which He breathed in humankind gave him a higher status among the rest of God's creation and gave him the disposition to connect to God to receive His guidance and His revelation. God has honored humankind but the people begrudged the chosen ones from among themselves the blessings that God bestowed on them. They wondered why was not an angel sent down to help the messenger. They underestimated the value of humankind and they underestimated the honor that God bestowed on humankind; the honor that was symbolized by God's command to the angels to prostrate themselves to Adam.

It is the divine will that messengers were chosen from among the human race. A messenger who is one of the people feels their pains, understands their feelings, appreciates their needs, and recognizes their shortcomings. Such a messenger is able to lead his people to the straight path. A messenger chosen from among the people provides a natural example. It is more convincing for people to follow an example set by one of them rather than one set by a super natural creature like an angel.

The idolaters wondered at the fact why would God require His messenger to earn his living like anyone else? God did not want His messenger to be wealthy or to have a Garden. God wanted His messenger to be one of the people. God wanted His messenger to be a role model for his people. God wanted His Messenger to struggle patiently to bring guidance to his people and in the mean time to work hard to earn his living and support his family. Even when life became comfortable and wealth became abundant, the Messenger (PBUH) was not distracted by the wealth and he gave it all away to help the poor and the needy.

Then they called him bewitched, "And the wrongdoers say, 'You are following only a man who is bewitched.'" This type of transgression on their part was mentioned also in Chapter 17, and the Quran responded to this transgression in both places in the same way, "See what kinds of comparisons they make for you. But they have gone astray, and they will never find a way." They tried to belittle the Messenger (PBUH) accusing him of being a mad man that no one should pay attention to. The flip side of this accusation is that they were convinced in their mind that the Quran is a supernatural phenomenon. The Quran simply throws that in their faces, "they have gone astray, and they will never find a way."

The Quran then showed them how ridiculous their argument was and how trivial their request was, "Blessed is He who, if He had willed, could give you better (things) than those: gardens beneath which rivers flow; and He could give you palaces." God is able to give His Messenger (PBUH) more than they can imagine in wealth, gardens, and palaces. God gave His Messenger (PBUH) something better and more valuable than all the material things that they suggested. God gave His Messenger (PBUH) the sweetness of being near to God and the blessing of being connected to God.

"But they denied the Hour (of Judgment). Indeed, We have prepared a blazing fire for those who deny the Hour." They denied the Hour reaching the limit in their disbelief. As a result, they will be tormented in the blazing Fire. The Quran paints a dynamic image, as if the blazing Fire became a living creature that sees and roars, "When it sees them from a place afar, they will hear its fury and its roaring.” This is a horrible scene that shakes the ground under the feet of the disbelievers and makes their hearts tremble. And when they reach it, they are thrown into it, helpless and their hands bound together, “And when they are thrown, bound together, into a narrow place therein they will pray thereupon for destruction.” Their agony motivates them to wish that they are dead. They pray for their own demise to escape this torment. But they will be mocked. They will be told that praying for their own demise will not be of any help even if they pray many prayers for their demise they will not be able to escape the torment, “(They will be told) "This day, do not pray for a single destruction; pray for much destruction.”

The Quran then describes the reward for the believers, those who were conscious of their Lord and believed in the inevitability of the Hour, “Say, 'Is that (doom) better or the Garden of Immortality which is promised to those who remain conscious of God?' It will be their reward and their final destination. In it they will have whatever they wish for. They will dwell (there) forever. This is a promise binding upon your Lord; and of Him to be requested.” The question is then posed; which end is better?

The verses continue to describe another scene of the scenes of the Day of Judgment, the scene of the idolaters when they are gathered together with their deities whom they worshipped besides God. They will all stand in front of God to be questioned, “And on the day when He will gather them and that which they worship apart from God and will say, 'Was it you who misled my servants or did they (themselves) go astray from the path?'” These deities may have been idols, jinn, angels, or any other deity that they worshipped beside God. God knows everything but He willed that they would be questioned in front of everyone so that they feel the gravity of their deeds. They will apologize expressing their regret for what they committed, “They will say, 'Glory to You, we should not have taken protecting guardians beside You. But You did bestow, on them and their fathers, good things (in life), until they forgot the message and became lost people.'” They inherited abundance of wealth and were heedless of the One who bestowed His blessings on them. Their hearts became dry and lifeless like a barren land that does not yield fruits.

The idolaters will then be told that they were deceived by their false deities, “Thus they will give you the lie regarding what you say, then you can neither avert (the doom) nor obtain help. And whoso among you does wrong, We shall make him taste great torment.” They will not escape the torment nor will they be able to get any help.

The address is now turned to the Messenger (PBUH), “And the messengers whom We sent before you were all (men) who ate food and walked through the streets. We have made some of you as a trial for others. Will you persevere? God is All-Seeing.” God used these words to comfort His Messenger (PBUH). The idolaters did not reject the Messenger (PBUH) as a person, but they rejected God’s plan. God decreed a plan to test people, “We have made some of you as a trial for others.” Those who heed God’s message will persevere when faced with afflictions. God is All-Seeing. He knows what are in the hearts and He knows the unseen.

Verses 21 to 44:

21. And those who do not look forward for Our meeting, say, "Why have not angels been sent down upon us, or (why) do we not see our Lord?" They indeed have become too arrogant within themselves and they have become excessively defiant.
22. On the day when they will see the angels, on that day there will be no good tidings for the guilty; and they shall say, "It is a forbidden thing totally prohibited."
23. And We shall turn to whatever deeds they did (in this life), and We shall make it a scattered dust.
24. The companions of the Garden will be well, that day, in their dwelling place; and they will have the fairest of places for rest.
25. And on the day when the heaven shall be split asunder with the clouds; and the angels shall be sent down descending (in ranks).
26. The Sovereignty on that day will be the True (Sovereignty) belonging to the Lord of Mercy, and it will be a hard day for the disbelievers.
27. On the day when the wrongdoer shall bite his hands, he will say, "I wish I had chosen a way together with the messenger (of God).
28. Alas for me, I wish I had never taken that one for a friend.
29. He verily led me astray from the reminder after it had reached me. Satan was ever man's deserter in the hour of need."
30. Then the Messenger will say, "My Lord, My people took this Quran as a forsaken thing."
31. Thus have We made for every prophet an enemy among the guilty but God suffices as a Guide and a Helper.
32. And those who disbelieve say, "Why is the Quran not revealed to him all at once?" (It is revealed) so that We may strengthen your heart therewith; and We have arranged it in the right order.
33. And they do not bring you a similitude but We bring you the truth, and a better argument.
34. Those who will be gathered on their faces to Hell; they are worse in place and further away from the right path.
35. We verily gave Moses the Scripture and appointed with him his brother Aaron as an assistant.
36. Then We said, "Go together to the folk who have denied Our revelations. Then We destroyed them utterly.
37. And the people of Noah, when they rejected the messengers, We drowned them; We made them a sign for humankind; and We have prepared for the wrongdoers a grievous torment.
38. And (We destroyed the tribes of) A'ad and Thamud, and the dwellers of Ar-Rass, and many generations in between.
39. Each (of them) We warned by examples, and each (of them) We brought to utter ruin.
40. And indeed they have passed by the town which was showered with an evil rain. Can it be that they have not seen it? No, but they do not expect resurrection.
41. And when they see you (Muhammad) they treat you only as a jest (saying), "Is this he whom God has sent as a messenger?"
42. He almost would have led us far away from our gods had we not persevered in worshipping them." But they will know, when they see the torment, who has strayed farther away from the path.

43. Have you seen him who takes his whims as his god? Will you then be a guardian over him?
44. Or do you think that most of them listen or understand? They are only like cattle. No, they are farther astray. (25: 21-44)

The idolaters did not expect to meet God and they never believed it will happen. They planned their lives accordingly, and they did not prepare for such a meeting. Their questions reflected their doubts that God would send a mortal as a messenger to guide them, “And those who do not look forward for Our meeting, say, ‘Why have not angels been sent down upon us, or (why) do we not see our Lord?’” They expressed their defiance. They declared that they will not believe unless God sends down angels, or unless they see God. This defiance was rooted in their arrogance, “They indeed have become too arrogant within themselves and they have become excessively defiant.” Who are they to dictate their conditions to God? They deserved to be ridiculed and told that God will grant their request to see the angels but this will happen on a very difficult day, “On the day when they will see the angels, on that day there will be no good tidings for the guilty; and they shall say, ‘It is a forbidden thing totally prohibited.’” On that day they will see what they asked for and they will wish they never asked for it because the angels will bring them torment.

“And We shall turn to whatever deeds they did (in this life), and We shall make it a scattered dust.” All what they accomplished in their lives will be turned into dust that will be scattered around. Deeds are considered good deeds if they are rooted in the belief in God. These deeds connect the heart of the person with God. They are well planned and follow consistent pattern. They are not random deeds motivated by whims and desires. Deeds which do not satisfy these conditions will be turned to dust on the Day of Judgment.

On the other hand, the believers will be resting in Paradise, “The companions of the Garden will be well, that day, in their dwelling place; and they will have the fairest of places for rest.” They will be enjoying the tranquility, the security, and the shade in Paradise.

“And on the day when the heaven shall be split asunder with the clouds; and the angels shall be sent down descending (in ranks).” This verse and similar others suggest that major cosmic phenomena will occur on the Day of Judgment. The laws that govern the universe will cease to take effect signaling the end of the world as we know it. Some of the verses that talk about the changes that will happen are, “When the sun is wrapped up (in darkness); and when the stars fall, dispersing; and when the mountains are removed.” (81: 1-3) “When the sky breaks apart; and when the stars fall, scattering; and when the seas are erupted.” (83:1-3) “When the sky has split (open); and has listened to its Lord and was obligated; and when the earth has been extended and has cast out that within it and relinquished.” (84: 1-4)

All of these verses and others describe the horrendous end of our world. The earth will be shaken, the mountains will be blown up, and the seas will erupt. The stars will lose their luster, the sky will be split asunder, and the constellations will be destroyed. The sun and the moon will appear together and the smoke will engulf the burning sky. These verses paint a fearful picture of the state of the world on the Day of Judgment. On that Day the true sovereignty will be only to God, “The Sovereignty on that day will be the True (Sovereignty) belonging to the Lord of Mercy, and it will be a hard day for the disbelievers.”

Those who lost their way and were misguided will regret their past behavior. They will bite their fingers in anguish, “On the day when the wrongdoer shall bite his hands, he will say, ‘I wish I had chosen a way together with the messenger (of God). Alas for me, I wish I had never taken that one for a friend. He verily led me astray from the reminder after it had reached me. Satan was ever man’s deserter in the hour of need.’” They will regret that they ever associated with those who deceived them and led them astray.

The verses then move on from the description of the events of the Day of Judgment to explore the idolaters’ response to the Messenger (pbu), “Then the Messenger will say, ‘My Lord, My people took this Quran as a forsaken thing.’” They shunned the Quran which God revealed to His Messenger (PBUH) to warn and guide them. They did not even want to listen to it for fear of being bewitched by its beauty. They never reflected on its verses to learn the truth and find the guidance. The Quran came to outline a way of life that leads to happiness but they never gave it a chance. The Messenger (PBUH) called upon his Lord to tell Him that he did his best, but God already knew this. God responded by comforting His Messenger (PBUH), “Thus have We made for every prophet an enemy among the guilty but God suffices as a Guide and a Helper.” All other messengers of God had enemies who refused to be guided and tried their best to sway the people away from guidance but God granted His messengers victory at the end.

It is the divine wisdom that allowed those enemies to fight the messengers and the Message because only through struggling with falsehood that the call to the truth will be strengthened and bloom. This struggle is the only way to discriminate between fake messages and the truth. This struggle will also discriminate between the true believers and those who join a call seeking worldly benefits.

An authentic call to the truth involves hard work and struggle against falsehood. People who undertake the responsibility to propagate these calls are required to make sacrifices and to endure persecution. Their struggle does not only strengthen their belief but it also brings maturity to the message allowing others to see the truth and to follow the message. That is why it was necessary to have enemies who fight the messengers thus providing the opportunities to fight back and allow the battle between the truth and falsehood to take place.

“And those who disbelieve say, ‘Why is the Quran not revealed to him all at once?’ (It is revealed) so that We may strengthen your heart therewith; and We have arranged it in the right order.” The Quran was revealed to establish the Islamic project which should be followed by the Muslim nation and to outline the way of life that God wants Muslims to lead. This required the implementation of major changes to the way of life people were used to. This feat could not be achieved overnight. The elements of the Islamic project had to be delivered gradually so that the changes it requires would be implemented gradually, making the changes as natural as possible. The Quran was also revealed gradually to address real needs of the Muslim society. These needs developed over time. The Quran was not meant to be a book which would be read and enjoyed as an intellectual exercise but it was meant to be a book that outlines a realistic way of life that should be led by people living on earth. It is for these reasons that the Quran was revealed gradually to give the people the time to understand and absorb the new changes to their way of life. The gradual revelation of the Quran gave support to the Messenger (PBUH) during his struggle with the disbelievers. The strategy which was followed in the revelation of the Quran achieved tremendous results in preparing the Muslims to adopt the way of life suggested by the Quran. The downfall of the Muslims occurred when they forgot the main objective of the Quran and started to use the Quran as a book to be read but not to be implemented.

God continued to reassure His Messenger (PBUH), “And they do not bring you a similitude but We bring you the truth, and a better argument.” God will support His Messenger (PBUH). He will provide him with true evidence to refute their false arguments. He also reminded His Messenger (PBUH) of the horrible end that the disbelievers will meet. “Those who will be gathered on their faces to Hell; they are worse in place and further away from the right path.”

The following verses cite the examples of previous nations of disbelievers and their fateful doom. It starts with Prophet Moses (PBUH), “We verily gave Moses the Scripture and appointed with him his brother Aaron as an assistant. Then We said, ‘Go together to the folk who have denied Our revelations.’ Then We destroyed them utterly.” Then it mentions the people of Noah (PBUH), “And the people of Noah, when they rejected the messengers, We drowned them; We made them a sign for humankind; and We have prepared for the wrongdoers a grievous torment.” Although they rejected Noah (PBUH) only but the verse indicates that they, “rejected the messengers,” because all the messengers came with the same Message. Rejecting one messenger amounts to rejecting all messengers. The people of Noah (PBUH) were drowned in the flood which remains as a sign of God’s wrath. Similarly, “And (We destroyed the tribes of) A’ad and Thamud, and the dwellers of Ar-Rass, and many generations in between. Each (of them) We warned by examples, and each (of them) We brought to utter ruin. And indeed they have passed by the town which was showered with an evil rain. Can it be that they have not seen it? No, but they do not expect resurrection.” These are examples of the disbelieving communities over the ages. They all rejected the guidance and never believed that they will meet God and they were destroyed.

The narrative turns to the ridicule that the Messenger (PBUH) met at the hands of the idolaters. And when they see you (Muhammad) they treat you only as a jest (saying), “Is this he whom God has sent as a messenger?” Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) was well respected by his people before being sent as a messenger of God. He came from a well-respected family and tribe and he was known as the “the truthful, the trustworthy.” Quraish accepted his arbitration to settle the dispute which erupted regarding who would replace the Black Stone to its place in the Ka’ba. However, all this was forgotten once he told them that he was God’s messenger.

Their ridicule was one way to hide their feeling of insecurity. They were afraid of the consequences of believing in the Quran as can be seen clearly from this verse, “He almost would have led us far away from our gods had we not persevered in worshipping them.” The Quran responds by pointing out that soon they will find out who was on the straight path and who was led astray. However, it will be too late, “But they will know, when they see the torment, who has strayed farther away from the path.”

The Quran continued to comfort and reassure the Messenger (PBUH), “Have you seen him who takes his whims as his god? Will you then be a guardian over him?” He who is controlled by his low desires will not listen to the voice of reason. The Messenger (PBUH) has done his best but what could he do with people who refuse to listen to the voice of reason. The Quran comforted the Messenger (PBUH) by telling him that it was not his shortcoming that they did not believe. They did not believe because they were unable to see the truth. They were just like animals who do not think and are unable to understand, “Or do you think that most of them listen or understand? They are only like cattle. No, they are farther astray.”

Verses 45 to 62:

45. Have you not seen how your Lord has spread the shade - and if He willed He could have made it stationary; then We have made the sun its indicator.
46. Then We withdrew it to Us, a gradual withdrawal?
47. And it is He who made the night as a covering for you, and the sleep a rest; and made the day a resurrection.
48. And it is He who sends the winds, glad tidings heralding His mercy, and We send down purifying water from the sky,
49. That We may give life thereby to a dead land, and We give it as a drink, to Our numerous creatures: livestock and people.
50. And verily We have repeated it among them that they may take heed, but most of humankind are ungrateful.
51. Had it been Our Will, We could have sent a warner to every town.
52. Therefore, do not listen to the disbelievers, but strive against them with it (the Quran) strenuously.
53. It is He who has made the two seas to flow freely. One is fresh and sweet, and the other is salty and bitter; and He placed between the two a barrier and inviolable partition.
54. It is He who has created humankind from water; then He established for him blood relationships and marriage relationships. Your Lord is All-Powerful.
55. And they worship, besides God, things that can neither profit them nor harm them; and the disbeliever is a helper (of Evil), against his own Lord.
56. But We only sent you to give glad tidings and admonition.
57. Say, “I ask no reward of you for this, except that whoso wills may take a way to his Lord.”
58. And put your trust in Him who lives and never dies; and celebrate his praise. He suffices as the Totally-Aware of the sins of His servants.
59. It is He who created the heavens and the earth and all that in between, in six days, and firmly established Himself on the Throne (of Authority). He is God, the Lord of Mercy. Ask you, then, about Him one who is well informed.

60. When it is said to them, "Prostrate to the Lord of Mercy," they say, "And what is the Lord of Mercy? Shall we prostrate to that which you command us?" And it increases their aversion (to the Truth).
61. Blessed is He Who made constellations in the skies, and placed therein a lamp and a moon giving light;
62. And it is He who made the night and the day to follow each other, for him who desires to remember, or desires to be thankful. (25: 45 – 62)

"Have you not seen how your Lord has spread the shade - and if He willed He could have made it stationary; then We have made the sun its indicator. Then We withdrew it to Us, a gradual withdrawal?" The sight of the shade evokes in the soul feelings of comfort, tranquility and security. With these words, God comforted His Messenger (PBUH) to support him during his struggle against the disbelievers. God created the cosmos with certain characteristic among which the characteristics of the shade. The verse provides an invitation to reflect on the phenomenon of the formation of the shade and how it changes and how it finally disappears in the darkness. The verse alludes to the movements of the earth and the sun; which makes one think of the power of the Creator.

"And it is He who made the night as a covering for you, and the sleep a rest; and made the day a resurrection." God created the night as a cover and as time for rest. People and other creatures sleep during the night. Sleep is a sort of death. The night is followed by daylight which brings life to the world, a kind of resurrection from the death of the sleep.

"And it is He who sends the winds, glad tidings heralding His mercy, and We send down purifying water from the sky, That We may give life thereby to a dead land, and We give it as a drink, to Our numerous creatures: livestock and people." God sends the wind which brings glad tidings of rain. Water is essential for the continuation of life on earth. Some people depend directly on water for irrigation. Those people recognize God's blessings in sending these winds because their whole livelihood is dependent on rain water. Others benefit from rivers, springs and wells which are formed and replenished by rain. The verse emphasizes the purifying function of water, "We send down purifying water," and the fact that water is the basis of life on earth, "That We may give life thereby to a dead land."

The following verse takes us from the water's role in physically cleansing life to the Quran's role in the purification of the soul, "And verily We have repeated it among them that they may take heed, but most of humankind are ungrateful. Had it been Our Will, We could have sent a warner to every town. Therefore, do not listen to the disbelievers, but strive against them with it (the Quran) strenuously." God explained the Quran to the disbelievers in many different ways so they may heed its meaning but most of them rejected it. The task of the Messenger (PBUH) was enormous. God could have sent others to help him in this task, but the divine wisdom willed that only one person was given this undertaking. He was the seal of the prophets. His task was universal. He brought one single message to the whole world. The Messenger (PBUH) was then commanded to endure, not to listen to the disbelievers and to strive against them with the Quran.

“It is He who has made the two seas to flow freely. One is fresh and sweet, and the other is salty and bitter; and He placed between the two a barrier and inviolable partition.” God made the two seas, one fresh and the other salty, to flow freely towards each other until their waters meet however, they never mix together as if there was a physical barrier between the two. Usually, fresh water rivers flow towards salt water seas. The opposite does not normally happen. Thus the freshness of the water river is not spoiled by the salt water from the sea. The fresh water necessary for sustaining human and animal life is protected.

The verses then move from sea and river waters to the water of life, “It is He who has created humankind from water; then He established for him blood relationships and marriage relationships. Your Lord is All- Powerful.” Human life springing from water is more miraculous than plant life springing from rain. A single sperm out of thousands of the male sperms unites with one female egg to begin the creation of a complicated creature. Similar eggs and sperms produce different creatures. No one knows how this is done. God is certainly All- Powerful.

Having explored the processes of creation from water coming down from the sky and water produced by the male sperm, it seems obnoxious to worship anyone but God. However, there are still people who do this, “And they worship, besides God, things that can neither profit them nor harm them; and the disbeliever is a helper (of Evil), against his own Lord.” The disbelievers support evil against God. They are too insignificant to wage war against God, but when they fight God’s message and messengers they are in effect fighting God. The message to the Messenger (PBUH) is not to worry; God will take care of them. The responsibility of the Messenger (PBUH) is only to deliver the message, “But We only sent you to give glad tidings and admonition. Say, ‘I ask no reward of you for this, except that whoso wills may take a way to his Lord.’ And put your trust in Him who lives and never dies; and celebrate his praise. He suffices as the Totally-Aware of the sins of His servants.” The Messenger (PBUH) did not expect compensation from people for his work. In doing his work, the Messenger (PBUH) was commanded to put his trust in God, the Eternal; and to celebrate His praise.

“It is He who created the heavens and the earth and all that in between, in six days, and firmly established Himself on the Throne (of Authority). He is God the Lord of Mercy. Ask you, then, about Him One who is well informed.” This verse presents different manifestations of God’s power, the Creator. The word, “days,” mentioned in the verse refers to time periods different from the days that we are familiar with. The earthly days are a product of the solar system which came to being after the heavens and earth were created. The days mentioned in the verse may refer to the phases that the heavens and earth went through to develop to their current form. Only God knows the true meaning of this term since He can only say and it is. The term, “is firmly established on the Throne,” is a reference to God’s control and authority. In spite of His absolute authority and total control He is the Lord of Mercy. You can only ask one who is well informed about God and who else is more informed about God except God Himself.

The disbelievers respond to the call to worship God insolently, “When it is said to them, ‘Prostrate to (God) the Lord of Mercy,’ they say, ‘And what is the Lord of Mercy? Shall we prostrate to that which you command us?’ And it increases their aversion (to the Truth).” This is an ugly picture for a people who are insolent towards God. It is not surprising then that these people would treat the Messenger (PBUH) insolently. They claim that they do not know who is the Lord of Mercy? But they only show their aversion to the name of God, the Lord of Mercy.

The Quran responds to their query by praising and exalting God, “Blessed is He who made constellations in the skies, and placed therein a lamp and a moon giving light; and it is He who made the night and the day to follow each other, for him who desires to remember, or desires to be thankful.” The response alludes to the power of the Creator who created the constellations, the sun, and the moon. He controls the sequence of the day and the night. Without this perpetual alternation of day and night life would not have possible on earth. These are signs for those who want to remember the blessings of God and be grateful to Him.

Verses 63 to 77:

63. And the servants of the Lord of Mercy are those who walk on earth in humility, and when the ignorant address them, they say, "Peace;"
64. Those who spend the night before their Lord, prostrating and standing;
65. Those who say, "Our Lord, avert from us the torment of Hell, for its torment is indeed a grievous affliction;
66. Evil indeed it is as a dwelling place, and as a place to rest in.”
67. Those who, when they spend, are not extravagant and not niggardly, but hold a just (balance) between these (extremes);
68. Those who do not invoke with God, any other deity, nor take the life which God has made sacred except in (course of) justice, nor commit adultery; and he who does this shall pay the penalty.
69. On the Day of Judgment, he will receive double the torment, and he will dwell therein in ignominy;
70. Except for those who repent, believe, and do righteous deeds, God will change the evil of such persons into good, and God is All-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy.
71. And whosoever repents and does good he will certainly repent toward God with true repentance.
72. Those who do not offer false testimony, and if they pass by vain speech, they pass by it with dignity;
73. And those who, when they are reminded of the revelations of their Lord, do not fall upon them deaf and blind.
74. And those who say, "Our Lord, grant us wives and offspring who will be the comfort of our eyes, and give us (the grace) to lead the God conscious."
75. Those are the ones who will be rewarded with the highest place in heaven, because of their perseverance. They shall be met therein with salutations and peace,
76. Dwelling therein forever; how beautiful a dwelling place and a place of rest.
77. Say (to the disbelievers), “My Lord would not concern Himself with you but for your prayer. But now you have denied (the Truth), therefore there will be judgment.” (25: 63 -

77)

The following verses describe the attributes of the servants of the Lord of Mercy. These traits are the fruits of a long battle between guidance and misguidance; a battle between the messengers of God and the ungrateful disbelievers. The name “servants of the Lord of Mercy” is an honor bestowed on those who have special characteristics detailed in these verses. The verses list the traits that a person worthy of the name, “a servant of God,” should have. The first trait is, “And the servants of the Lord of Mercy are those who walk on earth in humility, and when the ignorant address them, they say, ‘Peace.’” The servants of God walk in an easy manner showing no pride or arrogance. It is a walk that reflects tranquility, security, and confidence. It does not show submissiveness nor weakness. They do not pay attention to vain talk and if someone spoke to them in an inappropriate way they respond by saying, “Peace.”

“Those who spend the night before their Lord, prostrating and standing; those who say, ‘Our Lord, avert from us the torment of Hell, for its torment is indeed a grievous affliction; evil indeed it is as a dwelling place, and as a place to rest in;’” The verse uses the two components of prayers, “prostrating and standing,” as a representation of the of the movements that the servants of God busy themselves with during the night while the people are sleeping comfortably in their beds. The servants of God spend the night in sincere prayers to their Lord, they stand to Him alone, and they prostrate themselves to Him alone. In their prayer they call upon their Lord to save them from the torment of Hellfire. They did not see Hellfire but they read about it in the Quran and heard about from the Messenger (PBUH) and what they read and what they heard filled their hearts with fear. This fear is one of the fruits of their strong faith and belief in the truth of what they read and what they heard. They belittle their good deeds and recognize they are in desperate need of God’s mercy to save them from Hellfire.

“Those who, when they spend, are not extravagant and not niggardly, but hold a just (balance) between these (extremes).” This is a trait that Islam instills in both Muslim individuals and communities. It is the trait of maintaining a well-balanced life in all aspects. Islam recognizes the right of personal ownership, however it does not allow individuals to spend their wealth freely without imposing limits. Muslims have to follow a well-balanced plan when it comes to spending money. This plan is balanced between extravagance and niggardliness.

The belief in the oneness of God and abstaining from committing capital sins are among the traits of the servants of God, “Those who do not invoke with God, any other deity, nor take the life which God has made sacred except in (course of) justice, nor commit adultery; and he who does this shall pay the penalty; on the Day of Judgment he will receive double the torment, and he will dwell therein in ignominy;” The belief in the oneness of God is the cornerstone of the religion of Islam. Islam maintains the sanctity of human life and no one is allowed to destroy a human life without a just cause. Adultery opens the door to a life full of social ills. These three traits form a crossroad between two ways of life: a way of life that humankind, who was honored by God, deserves to live and a cheap way of life based on satisfying the carnal desires of human beings. Those who chose the latter way of life will receive their punishment. Not only they will receive double torment on the Day of Judgment but they will also be humiliated. But the door for repentance is always open, “Except for those who repent, believe, and do righteous deeds, God will change the evil of such persons into good, and God is All-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy, and whosoever repents and does good he will certainly repent toward God with true repentance.” Not only the repentance of those who repent will be accepted, but God also promised to change their evil deeds into good deeds. This is a blessing and bounty from God that is available for those who repent and are sincere in their repentance. Sincere repentance is accomplished by fulfilling its conditions. These conditions consist of expressing regret for committing the sin, making a sincere intention not to return to the sin, and finally doing good deeds to show the serious intention of repentance.

The servants of God are those, “who do not offer false testimony, and if they pass by vain speech, they pass by it with dignity.” We may take the face value of the verse that they do not give a false testimony which may result in bringing harm to someone, or we may extend the verse to cover any involvement whether directly or indirectly in producing a false testament.

Some of their traits is that they do not only have open hearts and minds for receiving admonitions but they also reflect and contemplate these admonitions, “And those who, when they are reminded of the revelations of their Lord, do not fall upon them deaf and blind.” The verse contrasts them against the disbelievers who do not think, reflect or contemplate. They simply follow what their forefathers did.

“And those who say, ‘Our Lord, grant us wives and offspring who will be the comfort of our eyes, and give us (the grace) to lead the God conscious.’” One of their traits is that they call upon God to provide them with good spouses and to guide their progeny to the straight path.

This passage then ends with a list of the rewards that God has kept for His servants, “Those are the ones who will be rewarded with the highest place in heaven, because of their perseverance. They shall be met therein with salutations and peace, Dwelling therein forever; how beautiful a dwelling place and a place of rest.” They will be given the highest place in paradise in which they will reside forever.

“Say (Muhammad to the disbelievers), ‘My Lord would not concern Himself with you but for your prayer. But now you have denied (the Truth), therefore there will be judgment.’” This whole humanity and the earth they live on are not worth more than an atom in the universe which God created and controls. They are of no concern to God. This ending is in line with the theme of the chapter in comforting the Messenger (PBUH) and belittling the efforts of the disbelievers to ridicule him.

Sura 26: Al-Shu'araa (The Poets)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 9:

1. Ta. Sin. Mim.
2. These are verses of the Book that makes (things) clear.
3. It may be that you torment yourself with grief, that they do not become believers.
4. Had We wished, We could have sent down to them from the sky a sign, to which they would bend their necks in humility.
5. Whenever a newly-revealed message from the Lord of Mercy is brought to them, they turn away from it.
6. They have indeed rejected (the Message), so they will know soon the truth of what they mocked at.
7. Do they not look at the earth, how many noble things of all kinds We have produced therein?
8. Verily, in this is a sign, but most of them do not believe.
9. And verily, your Lord is the Eminent, the Giver of Mercy. (26: 1 – 9)

The main theme of this Sura revolves around the doctrine; as is the case with all the Meccan Suras of the Quran. The Sura discusses the different components of the doctrine: the belief in the Oneness of God, the fear of the Day of Judgment, and the belief in the revelation which the Messenger of God (PBUH) received. In addition, it elaborates on the consequences of disbelief and it provides comfort to the Messenger of God (PBUH) to support him in his struggle against the disbelievers.

“Ta. Sin. Mi,” The discursive letters of the Alphabet at the beginning of the Sura allude to the fact that the Quran has been composed using the letters of the Arabic Alphabet. The disbelievers knew the language but they were unable to compose a similar text. The subsequent verse connects the letters to the Book, “These are verses of the Book that makes (things) clear.” The narrative then turns to comforting the Messenger (PBUH), “It may be that you torment yourself with grief, that they do not become believers.” One senses a hint of rebuke in the wording of the verse for the Messenger’s (PBUH) sadness caused by the rejection of the Quran by the idolaters of Mecca. The verse comforted the Messenger (PBUH) telling him that it was not his fault that they denied him and rejected the Quran. Had God willed He would have forced them to believe, “Had We wished, We could have sent down to them from the sky a sign, to which they would bend their necks in humility.” But it is God’s will that the evidence of the truth of His last Message would be the Quran and not a physical miracle. The Quran is the miracle that testifies to the truth of this Message. The miracle of the Quran has been manifested in various ways. It is manifested in its consistent style, in the logical argument that it provides, and in its appeal to the human heart. It continues to provide the message to all people, at all places, and at all times.

“Whenever a newly-revealed message from the Lord of Mercy is brought to them, they turn away from it.” This Message is a mercy that the Lord of Mercy bestowed on His creatures. But they rejected it, therefore they have to suffer the consequences, “They have indeed rejected (the Message), so they will know soon the truth of what they mocked at.” The verse embodies a dire threat wrapped in a mocking style to address their mocking attitude.

“Do they not look at the earth, how many noble things of all kinds We have produced therein?” They requested a physical miracle to support the Message, while they ignored all the signs around them which testify to the power of God. The verse refers to the miracle of growing plants from the earth. It alerts the human mind to reflect on the signs of God in the universe around us. These signs point to the unity of the creation and the role of the human being as part of this creation, “Verily, in this is a sign, but most of them do not believe.” Many people ignore these signs and refuse to believe. However, God is both Exalted in might and Most Merciful, “And verily, your Lord is the Eminent, the Giver of Mercy.” God has the power to produce these signs but He also exercises His mercy and sends messengers to guide people to the right path before He holds them accountable.

Verses 10 to 69:

10. And when your Lord called to Moses, "Go to the wrongdoers,
11. The people of Pharaoh. Will they not be conscious of God?"
12. He said, "My Lord, I do fear that they will call me a liar,
13. And that my breast will tighten and my tongue will not be fluent, so send Aaron too.
14. And they have a charge of crime against me; and I fear they may slay me."
15. God said, "No (they will not). Go both of you, with Our signs; We are with you, and will be listening.
16. So go forth, both of you, to Pharaoh, and say, 'We have been sent by the Lord of the worlds;
17. Send the Children of Israel with us.'"
18. (Pharaoh) said, "Did we not raise you as a child among us? And did you not stay with us for many years of your life?
19. And you did your deed which you did, and you were of the ungrateful."
20. Moses said, "I did it then, I was misguided when I did it.
21. So I fled from you when I feared you; but my Lord has invested me with judgment (wisdom) and appointed me as one of the messengers.
22. And this is the favor which you remind me with - that you enslaved the Children of Israel."
23. Pharaoh said, "And what is the 'Lord of the worlds?'"
24. (Moses) said, "The Lord of the heavens and the earth, and everything in between, if you only have certitude."
25. (Pharaoh) said to those present, "Do you hear (what he says)?"

26. (Moses) said, "He is your Lord and the Lord of your forefathers."
27. (Pharaoh) said, "Indeed your messenger who has been sent to you is mad."
28. (Moses) said, "Lord of the East and the West, and everything between them, if you only have sense."
29. (Pharaoh) said, "If you take any god other than me, I will certainly put you in prison."
30. (Moses) said, "Even if I showed you a clear and convincing sign?"
31. (Pharaoh) said, "Show it then, if you are telling the truth."
32. So (Moses) threw his staff, and suddenly it became a serpent, plain (for all to see).
33. And he drew out his hand, and it was white for all the observers to see.
34. (Pharaoh) said to the Chiefs around him, "This is indeed a learned sorcerer.
35. His plan is to get you out of your land by his sorcery; what do you advise?"
36. They said, "Keep him and his brother for a while, and send messengers to the cities;
37. Who will bring you every accomplished sorcerer."
38. So the sorcerers were gathered together for the appointment on a specified day,
39. And the people were asked, "Will you congregate?
40. That we may follow the sorcerers if they win?"
41. So when the sorcerers arrived, they said to Pharaoh, "Shall we be rewarded if we win?"
42. He said, "Yes, and you shall be among those who are favored by me."
43. Moses said to them, "Throw whatever you will throw."
44. So they threw their ropes and their staffs, and said, "By the might of Pharaoh, it is we who will certainly win."
45. Then Moses threw his rod, and at once it swallowed up all the falsehoods which they faked.
46. The sorcerers fell down in prostration,
47. They said, "We believe in the Lord of the Worlds,
48. The Lord of Moses and Aaron."
49. (Pharaoh) said, "Did you believe in him before I give you permission? He must be your leader, who has taught you sorcery. But soon you shall know. I will cut off your hands and your feet on opposite sides, and I will cause you all to die on the cross."
50. They said, "That will do us no harm. We shall return to our Lord.
51. Our only desire is that our Lord will forgive us our faults, since we were the first to believe."
52. And We inspired Moses. "Travel by night with my servants; for surely you shall be pursued."
53. Then, Pharaoh sent messengers to (all) the cities,
54. (Saying), "These (Israelites) are but a small band,
55. And they are enraging us;
56. But we are all cautious of them."
57. So We drove them out of gardens, springs,
58. Treasures, and every kind of honorable position.
59. Thus it was, but We made the Children of Israel inheritors of such things.
60. Then they pursued them at sunrise.

61. And when the two groups saw each other, the people of Moses said, "We shall definitely be overtaken."
62. (Moses) said, "By no means, my Lord is with me. Soon will He guide me."
63. Then We inspired Moses, "Strike the sea with your staff." It parted, and each separate part became like a huge, firm mountain.
64. And We brought the other party near.
65. We delivered Moses and all who were with him;
66. And We drowned the others.
67. Verily in this is a Sign, but most of them do not believe.
68. And verily your Lord is the Eminent, the Giver of Mercy. (26: 10 – 68)

This episode of the story of Prophet Moses (PBUH) is narrated in a way consistent with the theme of the present Sura. The focus of the story is on aspects of the consequences of rejecting the Message and how God supports His messengers and the believers even when they do not have the material power needed for victory on earth. The Sura draws a parallel between the conditions of the Children of Israel in Egypt and the Muslims in Mecca.

Different episodes of the story of Prophet Moses (PBUH) have been narrated so far in several Suras of the Quran: Al-Baqara (Chapter 2), Al-Maidah (Chapter 5), Al-A'raf (Chapter 7), Yunus Chapter (10), Al-Israa (Chapter 17), Al-Kahf (Chapter 18), and Taha (Chapter 20). In addition, it has been also referred to in other Suras as well. Each of these episodes focused on an aspect of the story which is closely related to the theme of the Sura in which it was narrated, in addition to the episodes provided appropriate arguments which supported the theme of the Suras. This episode from the story of Prophet Moses (PBUH) consists of seven scenes. The first scene describes God's assignment to Moses (PBUH) to become a messenger of God. The second scene depicts the confrontation between Pharaoh and Moses (PBUH). The third scene describes Pharaoh's scheme to defeat Moses (PBUH). The fourth scene depicts the dialogue between Pharaoh and his magicians before the actual confrontation with Moses (PBUH). The fifth scene is the scene of the confrontation between Moses (PBUH) and the magicians which Pharaoh brought to defeat Moses (PBUH). The sixth scene consists of two parts: the first deals with God inspiration to Moses to flee with the Children of Israel and the second deals with Pharaoh's call to assemble an army to follow them. The last scene describes the problem that faced the Children of Israel when they reached the sea shore and the miracle of the parting sea.

"And when your Lord called to Moses, 'Go to the wrongdoers, the people of Pharaoh. Will they not be conscious of God?'" This is the first scene, the scene that narrates the details of the encounter between God and Moses (PBUH) during which Moses (PBUH) was given the responsibility of delivering the Message to Pharaoh and his people. The verse describes the people of Pharaoh as wrongdoers because they wronged themselves by rejecting guidance and they wronged the Children of Israel by persecuting them. They killed their baby boys and they enslaved the adults. How could any people do this? Did they not fear God's wrath which was certain to befall them as a result of their wrongdoing? Moses (PBUH) was familiar with the tyranny of Pharaoh, he therefore appealed to God for help, “He said, ‘My Lord, I do fear that they will call me a liar, and that my breast will tighten and my tongue will not be fluent, so send Aaron too. And they have a charge of crime against me; and I fear they may slay me.’” He made a reference to the impediment in speech that he suffered from. He was worried that this impediment would not allow him to be eloquent enough to convince Pharaoh. This would also make his breast tightens. A reference to this condition was made in Chapter 20 (Taha), “And remove the impediment from my speech.” (20: 27). Moses (PBUH) asked God to appoint Aaron (PBUH) to help him in his mission because Aaron (PBUH) was more articulate than him. Aaron (PBUH) could also continue the mission in case the Egyptians tried to kill Moses (PBUH) in revenge for killing an Egyptian before. God accepted his request and assured him that He will be with them, “God said, ‘No (they will not). Go both of you, with Our signs; We are with you, and will be listening. So go forth, both of you, to Pharaoh, and say, ‘We have been sent by the Lord of the worlds. Send the Children of Israel with us.’” So they were commanded to go to Pharaoh and deliver the Message and show him God’s signs: the staff and the hand. God assured them of His support. He will be with them and He will be listening to what will transpire. God will be there providing His protection when they will confront Pharaoh. They should have no fear confronting Pharaoh because God is on their side. The Arabic text indicates that they were sent as “one messenger,” because they brought a single message to Pharaoh. It is obvious from these verses and others that Moses (PBUH) was not sent to call Pharaoh and his people to follow his religion. He was only sent to request Pharaoh to deliver the Children of Israel so that they can worship God according to the religion that Prophet Jacob (PBUH) brought before for them.

The narrative moves on to the second scene, where we see the confrontation between Moses (PBUH) and Pharaoh, “(Pharaoh) said, ‘Did we not raise you as a child among us? And did you not stay with us for many years of your life? And you did your deed which you did, and you were of the ungrateful.’ Moses said, ‘I did it then, I was misguided when I did it. So I fled from you when I feared you; but my Lord has invested me with judgment (wisdom) and appointed me as one of the messengers. And this is the favor with which you remind me with - that you enslaved the Children of Israel.’” Pharaoh was shocked when Moses (PBUH) told him that he and Aaron (PBUH) were messengers of the Lord of the Worlds and then asked him to set the children of Israel free. Pharaoh reminded Moses (PBUH) that he was a baby whom they picked up from the river. They adopted him and raised him in the palace. He killed an Egyptian and then fled. Pharaoh wondered how did he become a messenger of God? His surprise was reflected on his sarcastic words, “Did we not raise you as a child among us?” Pharaoh wanted to say to Moses (PBUH), “Is this the reward for saving you and raising you in the palace? and how come you spent all these years in the palace and never said anything about being a messenger of God.” Pharaoh reminded him with the killing of the Egyptian using euphemism, “And you did your deed which you did, and you were of the ungrateful,” to magnify the effect of the deed showing that it was so horrendous that he could not speak of it explicitly. Pharaoh thought that his answer would silence Moses (PBUH) but with God’s help the words came fluently from his mouth, “I did it then, I was misguided when I did it. So I fled from you when I feared you; but my Lord has invested me with judgment (wisdom) and appointed me as one of the messengers.” Moses (PBUH) responded to Pharaoh's sarcasm with sarcasm, reminding him that he ended up in the palace only because the Children of Israel were enslaved and persecuted. His mother threw him in the sea to save him from the fate of being killed at the hands of Pharaoh's soldiers.

Pharaoh continued to question Moses (PBUH), "And what is the 'Lord of the worlds?'" The question reveals that Pharaoh found Moses' (PBUH) claim unbelievable. Moses (PBUH) responded, "The Lord of the heavens and the earth, and everything between them, if you only have certitude." He is the Lord of the huge universe; Pharaoh's kingdom is only an atom in this universe. Pharaoh's response reflected his amazement at Moses (PBUH) claim; he asked those who were around him "Do you hear (what he says)?" Moses continued to describe the attributes of God, "He is your Lord and the Lord of your forefathers." This was a blunt statement directed at Pharaoh's claim that he is god. At this point Pharaoh loses his patience and he becomes agitated, "Indeed your messenger who has been sent to you is mad." Pharaoh tried to belittle Moses (PBUH) message and described him as a mad man but Moses (PBUH) continued relentlessly, "Lord of the East and the West, and everything between them, if you only have sense."

When his argument with Moses (PBUH) failed, he started threatening Moses (PBUH), "(Pharaoh) said, 'If you take any god other than me, I will certainly put you in prison.'" This threat showed that Pharaoh could not respond to Moses' (PBUH) argument with a logical counter argument. However, the threat did not deter Moses (PBUH), he continued, "Even if I showed you a clear and convincing sign?" Would Pharaoh imprison Moses (PBUH) even if Moses (PBUH) brought him a convincing proof? This challenge put Pharaoh in a bind. He had to accept Moses' (PBUH) challenge, "(Pharaoh) said, 'Show it then, if you are telling the truth.'" Moses (PBUH) displayed his miracles, "So (Moses) threw his staff, and suddenly it became a serpent, plain (for all to see). And he drew out his hand, and it was white for all the observers to see." The narrative indicates that the staff actually became a living serpent and that his hand became actually white. This was not a trick of magic; these were actual miracles.

Pharaoh's reaction was quick, "(Pharaoh) said to the Chiefs around him, 'This is indeed a learned sorcerer. His plan is to get you out of your land by his sorcery; what do you advise?'" He was impressed by the miracles but he called it magic to attenuate its effect on those who were present. He tried to counter the effect of Moses' (PBUH) miracles by posing the threat that Moses' (PBUH) objective was to get them out of their country using his magic. Then he asked them for their advice. This was also part of the trick; he wanted to appease them by asking for their advice. This was a lip service on his part. Would a god ask his servants for advice? But they were his close followers. They stood to lose if Pharaoh was defeated, so they advised him, "Keep him and his brother for a while, and send messengers to the cities; who will bring you every accomplished sorcerer."

Then we move to the scene of the preparations for the meeting between the magicians and Moses (PBUH), "So the sorcerers were gathered together for the appointment on a specified day, and the people were asked, 'Will you congregate? That we may follow the sorcerers if they win?'" The verses point to Pharaoh's efforts in mobilizing the people for the showdown between Moses (PBUH) and the magicians. The verse describing the meeting between Pharaoh and the magicians before the showdown portrays their greed. They negotiated their reward, "So when the sorcerers arrived, they said to Pharaoh, 'Shall we be rewarded if we win?'" He promised them more than they aspired for, he promised to make them part of his favored company, "He said, 'Yes, and you shall be among those who are favored by me.'"

Now we come to the scene for the great showdown, "Moses said to them, 'Throw whatever you will throw.'" This was a statement which reflected the confidence that Moses (PBUH) had in God. He was neither intimidated by the number of the magicians who came to challenge him nor by the people who came to witness the showdown. The magicians did their best, "So they threw their ropes and their staffs, and said, 'By the might of Pharaoh, it is we who will certainly win.'" The following verse jumps to the conclusion of the scene without giving any intermediate details, "Then Moses threw his staff, and at once it swallowed up all the falsehoods which they faked." The magicians prepared for this challenge; they did their best and were sure that they will win. But suddenly all their hopes collapsed. They realized that what they saw was not magic but it was a miracle. They saw the truth and they could not but submit to it, "The sorcerers fell down in prostration, they said, 'We believe in the Lord of the Worlds, the Lord of Moses and Aaron.'" The truth they saw changed them from being a hired hand selling their expertise to Pharaoh to believers in God.

This was a shocking experience for Pharaoh. He mobilized the people and prepared them to see his ultimate victory over the Children of Israel. But the magicians let him down and revolted against him in front of his people. His immediate reaction was to take recourse to threatening the magicians, "(Pharaoh) said, 'Did you believe in him before I give you permission? He must be your leader, who has taught you sorcery. But soon you shall know.'" How dare they believe before taking Pharaoh's permission? Then he accused them of being complicit in Moses' (PBUH) conspiracy. Then he escalated the tone of his threats, "I will cut off your hands and your feet on opposite sides, and I will cause you all to die on the cross." However, it was too late for the magicians to be deterred by threats. They tasted the sweetness of faith which touched their hearts. Their faith gave them the strength to challenge the tyranny of Pharaoh, "They said, 'That will do us no harm. We shall return to our Lord. Our only desire is that our Lord will forgive us our faults, since we were the first to believe.'" The faith filled their hearts with confidence and security; faith made them rise above the material world that they lived; they yearned to be connected with God.

The narrative jumps over a number of years during which Moses (PBUH) continued to live in Egypt. The details of what happened during these years are mentioned in Surat Al-A'raf (Chapter 7). The following verses describe how Moses (PBUH) and his people fled Egypt, "And We inspired Moses. 'Travel by night with my servants; for surely you shall be pursued.' Then Pharaoh sent messengers to (all) the cities, (Saying), 'These (Israelites) are but a small band, and they are enraging us; but we are all cautious of them.'" God inspired Moses (PBUH) to travel by night with his people. The travel was well planned before hand. Moses (PBUH) knew that Pharaoh and his soldiers will follow them. Pharaoh, on the other hand started mobilizing his army to pursue the Children of Israel.

The narrative then moves to describe the consequences of the tyranny of Pharaoh, “So We drove them out of gardens, springs, treasures, and every kind of honorable position; thus it was, but We made the Children of Israel inheritors of such things.” When they went out to pursue the Israelites they met their doom. They never returned back to their comfortable life in which they enjoyed gardens, springs, and the treasures they had. The verse mentioned that the Israelites inherited these treasures, but it is not known in history that the Israelites ever went back to Egypt. The scholars explain that the verse does not mean that the Israelites actually inherited what the Egyptians left behind but they inherited similar gardens, springs, and treasures.

After this short digression the verses turn back to the last scene in this episode, “Then they pursued them at sunrise. And when the two groups saw each other, the people of Moses said, ‘We shall definitely be overtaken.’” The Egyptians followed the Israelites at sunrise. The Israelites having reached the seashore and seeing that they were being followed, they panicked. They braced themselves to be overtaken, but Moses (PBUH) was confident of God’s promise, “(Moses) said, ‘By no means, my Lord is with me. Soon will He guide me.’” He was certain of God’s help. This help came in an inspiration, “Then We inspired Moses, ‘Strike the sea with your staff.’ It parted, and each separate part became like a huge, firm mountain.” The miracle happened and the sea parted. The Children of Israel crossed the sea walking. Pharaoh must have been shocked by the surprise. Then he and his soldiers continued to pursue the Israelites, “And We brought the other party near. We delivered Moses and all who were with him; and We drowned the others.” God’s plan was completed; the Israelites were saved and the Egyptians were drowned. This is certainly a sign, but not many people believe even when they see these signs, “Verily in this is a Sign, but most of them do not believe. And verily your Lord is the Eminent, the Giver of Mercy.”

Verses 69 to 104

69. And recite to them the story of Abraham.
70. When he said to his father and his people, “What do you worship?”
71. They said, “We worship idols, and we remain constantly in attendance on them.”
72. He said, “Do they listen to you when you call (on them);
73. Or do they benefit or harm you?”
74. They said, “No, but we found our fathers doing so.”
75. He said, “Do you then see whom you have been worshipping,
76. You and your fathers before you?
77. Indeed, they are enemies to me; except the Lord of the Worlds;
78. Who created me, and it is He who guides me.
79. And who gives me food and drink.
80. And when I am ill, it is He who cures me.
81. And who will cause me to die, and then bring me to life.

82. And who, I hope, will forgive me my faults on the Day of Judgment.
83. My Lord, grant me wisdom, and join me with the righteous.
84. And grant me honorable mention on the tongue of truth among the later generations.
85. And make me one of the inheritors of the Garden of Bliss.
86. And forgive my father, for he was among those who have gone astray.
87. And do not disgrace me on the Day when people will be resurrected;
88. The Day on which neither wealth nor children will be of benefit;
89. Except those who come to God with a sound heart.
90. And the Garden will be brought near to those who are God conscious.
91. And the Hellfire will be placed in full view to those who had gone astray.
92. And it shall be said to them, "Where are the (gods) you worshipped,
93. Besides God. Can they help you or help themselves?"
94. Then they will be thrown headlong into the (Fire), they and those who had gone astray,
95. And the soldiers of Iblis all together.
96. They will say there in their mutual bickering,
97. "By God, we were truly in evident error,
98. When we held you as equals with the Lord of the Worlds.
99. And our seducers were only those who were steeped in guilt.
100. Now, we have none to intercede on our behalf.
101. Nor do we have a single friend.
102. If we only had another chance, we shall truly be of those who believe."
103. Verily, in this is a sign but most of them do not believe.
104. And verily, your Lord is the Eminent, the Giver of Mercy. (26: 69 – 104)

The following verses narrate the story of Prophet Abraham (PBUH). The Messenger (PBUH) was commanded to narrate it to the idolaters of Mecca. They claimed that they were the descendants of Prophet Abraham (PBUH) and that they were following his religion. The story showed them that the practices which they adopted were foreign to Abraham's (PBUH) religion. Different episodes of this story were mentioned in other Suras. Each episode focused on a theme which was congruent to the theme of the Sura.

"And recite to them the story of Abraham." The idolaters of Mecca claimed that they were followers of Prophet Abraham (PBUH). The Prophet (PBUH) was commanded to narrate to them the story of Prophet Abraham (PBUH) so that they would realize that their claim was far from the truth and so that they would recognize that Prophet Abraham (PBUH) disapproved of the worship of idols practiced by his father and his people, "When he said to his father and his people, 'What do you worship?'" They responded, "We worship idols, and we remain constantly in attendance on them." So they knew that those whom they worshipped were mere idols. Abraham (PBUH) tried to raise their awareness of the stupidity of what they were doing, "He said, 'Do they listen to you when you call (on them); do they benefit or harm you?'" How could these people worship an idol which did not hear them when they call upon it? His people did not attempt to refute his argument but simply ignored it saying, "No, but we found our fathers doing so." It is an embarrassing response, but they had the audacity to use it. They stated that the only reason they were worshipping idols was that they saw their fathers do it. Abraham (PBUH) tried to respond strongly announcing that he hated these idols, “He said, ‘Do you then see whom you have been worshipping, You and your fathers before you? Indeed, they are enemies to me; except the Lord of the Worlds;’” He announced that he will not follow in the footsteps of his father. This verse established a principle that the obligation to the faith is more important than the obligation to kin relationship. Abraham (PBUH) realized that some of his people may have worshiped God, hence his statement, “except the Lord of the Worlds.”

Abraham (PBUH) continued to describe his Lord, “Who created me, and it is He who guides me.” The statement shows the close relationship between Abraham (PBUH) and his Lord. Abraham (PBUH) put his trust in his Lord, he loved Him, and he lived every moment of his life remembering Him. God created him; God knows everything about him. God guided him to the straight path. This is a statement which reflects Abraham’s (PBUH) absolute submission to God. He then explained how God takes good care of him, “And who gives me food and drink. And when I am ill, it is He who cures me.” Then he expressed his absolute faith in God who is the Creator of life and death; and who will resurrect people on the Day of Judgment, “And who will cause me to die, and then bring me to life. And who, I hope, will forgive me my faults on the Day of Judgment.” Abraham’s (PBUH) ultimate hope is to be forgiven by God on the Day of Judgment. This is the ultimate hope of those who are God conscious. Abraham (PBUH) summarized in these statements the basic tenets of the true doctrine: the belief in the Oneness of God, the belief that God has complete control over His servants, the belief in the inevitability of resurrection, and the belief that people will be held accountable for what they have done during their lifetimes on earth. These were the tenets which his people rejected.

Abraham (PBUH) asked God in humility to accept his prayers, “My Lord, grant me wisdom, and join me with the righteous. And grant me honorable mention on the tongue of truth among the later generations. And make me one of the inheritors of the Garden of Bliss; and forgive my father, for he was among those who have gone astray. And do not disgrace me on the Day when people will be resurrected; the Day on which neither wealth nor children will be of benefit; except those who come to God with a sound heart.” In this long supplication, Abraham (PBUH) never asked for worldly gains, he did not even ask for good health. He asked for better and higher things. He asked for wisdom which will help him differentiate between true and false values, so he can remain on the straight path that leads to God. He asked to be one of righteous, a request which reflects Abraham’s (PBUH) humility and piety. He asked that God extends his call to the later generations. This may be the same prayer that he made in a different place when he prayed, ““Our Lord, accept (this service) from us. Indeed, You are the All-Hearing, the Omniscient. Our Lord, make us bow to You in submission, and of our progeny a people who bow to You in submission; and show us our way of worship; and relent towards us. Verily, You are the Ever-Relenting, Giver Mercy. Our Lord, and raise up in their midst a messenger from among them who shall recite to them Your revelations, and shall instruct them in the Scripture and in wisdom and purify them. Verily, You are the Eminent, Wise.” (2: 128-129) This was the prayer that God accepted; the prayer that was fulfilled thousands of years after it had been made.

He then asked that God make him of those who reside in Paradise, “And make me one of the inheritors of the Garden of Bliss.” He asked before to be one of the righteous and the righteous are destined to live in Paradise. Then He asked God to forgive his father in spite of the harsh treatment that he received from him. Abraham (PBUH) did promise his father to ask God to forgive him, and he fulfilled this promise. The Quran has explained later that it is not appropriate to ask God to forgive those who associate partners with Him and that the reason that Abraham (PBUH) made this request was that he had promised his father to do so. However, when Abraham (PBUH) realized that his father was God’s enemy he absolved himself from any relationship to his father. “The prayer of Abraham for the forgiveness of his father was only because of a promise he had promised him, but when it had become clear to him that he (his father) was an enemy to God he (Abraham) disowned him.” (9:114) This is one of the basic Islamic values. The most important bond that brings people together is the bond of the faith in God. This bond is the foundation of all other bonds that bring people together.

Abraham (PBUH) finished his prayer by asking God, “And do not disgrace me on the Day when people will be resurrected; the Day on which neither wealth nor children will be of benefit; except those who come to God with a sound heart.” This prayer reflected his sheer apprehension about the Day of Judgment. It reflected his appreciation of the importance of being sincere in faith to God, the importance of purifying the heart from all sinful feelings, and the importance of dedicating the heart completely to the belief in God.

The following verses describe some of the scenes of the Day of Judgment which Abraham (PBUH) prayed God to save him from, “And the Hellfire will be placed in full view to those who had gone astray. And it shall be said to them, “Where are the (gods) you worshipped, besides God. Can they help you or help themselves?” Then they will be thrown headlong into the (Fire), they and those who had gone astray, and the soldiers of Iblis all together. They will say there in their mutual bickering, ‘By God, we were truly in evident error, when we held you as equals with the Lord of the Worlds.’”

On the Day of Judgment, the Paradise will be brought near to those who were conscious of their Lord and who feared His punishment. Hellfire will be clear to be seen by those who lost their way and denied the Day of Judgment. A rhetorical question will be posed to them, “Where are the (gods) you worshipped, besides God. Can they help you or help themselves?” Then they will be, “thrown headlong into the (Fire), they and those who had gone astray, and the soldiers of Iblis all together. They will say there in their mutual bickering,” They will bicker with their idols, “By God, we were truly in evident error, when we held you as equals with the Lord of the Worlds. And our seducers were only those who were steeped in guilt.” They will have no friend or helper, “Now, we have none to intercede on our behalf. Nor do we have a single friend.” They will wish that they were given a second chance, “If we only had another chance, we shall truly be of those who believe.” But it will be too late. This group of verses ends with the same comments that usually come at the end of the stories which describe the fate of those who denied the messengers and went astray, “Verily in this is a sign but most of them do not believe. And verily your Lord is the Eminent, the Giver of Mercy.”

Verses 105 to 122

105. The people of Noah rejected the messengers.
106. When their brother Noah said to them, "Will you not be conscious of God?"
107. I am a trustworthy messenger sent to you.
108. So be conscious of God, and obey me.
109. I do not ask you for a reward. My reward is only from the Lord of the Worlds.
110. So be conscious of God, and obey me."
111. They said, "Shall we believe in you when it is the meanest (of people) that followed you?"
112. He said, "And what do I know as to what they do?"
113. Their account is only with my Lord, if you could (but) realize.
114. I am not going to drive away those who believe.
115. I am sent only as a clear warner."
116. They said, "Noah, if you do not desist, you shall be stoned."
117. He said, "My Lord, my people have rejected me.
118. Judge You, then, between me and them openly, and deliver me and the believers who are with me."
119. So We delivered him and those with him, in the Ark filled (with all creatures).
120. Thereafter, We drowned those who remained behind.
121. Verily in this is a sign, but most of them do not believe.
122. And verily your Lord is the Eminent, the Giver of Mercy. (26: 106 – 122)

The narrative in the Quran does not follow a chronological order. The next few verses address the story of Prophet Noah (PBUH). Different aspects of the story of Prophet Noah (PBUH) have been dealt with in several Suras of the Quran. The presentation in this Sura focuses on Noah's (PBUH) call to his people to become conscious of God telling them that he did not expect any reward from them. Those who were powerful among his people refused to associate themselves with the poor people who followed Noah (PBUH). His answer was clear; he was not going to abandon the poor believers who followed him because they were poor.

"The people of Noah rejected the messengers." The narrative started with an outline of the conclusion of the story then, the details followed. It is interesting to note that the verse wording indicated that Noah's (PBUH) people rejected the "messengers" while in fact they only rejected Noah (PBUH). This is a powerful indication that God sent all the messengers with the same message. So, when a people reject one messenger, it is as if they rejected all messengers.

"When their brother Noah said to them, 'Will you not be conscious of God? I am a trustworthy messenger sent to you. So be conscious of God, and obey me. I do not ask you for a reward. My reward is only from the Lord of the Worlds. So be conscious of God, and obey me.'" This was Noah's (PBUH) message to his people. They should have trusted him because they knew him well but they did not give any weight to the relationship that he had with them. He invited them to be conscious of God assuring them that he is a trustworthy messenger of God and reminding them that he was not interested in a worldly reward, his reward is with God. In these few verses he reiterated the concept of God consciousness three times to emphasize its importance.

Their objection was, “They said, ‘Shall we believe in you when it is the meanest (of people) that followed you?’” They objected that his followers were the poorest among them. His answer established the basic principle that underlies the mission of the messenger, “He said, ‘And what do I know as to what they do? Their account is only with my Lord, if you could (but) realize. I am not going to drive away those who believe. I am sent only as a clear warner.’” All what Noah (PBUH) was commanded to do was to deliver the message. His only task was to warn people. It is God who holds people accountable for what they do; He rewards and He punishes.

They were stunned by his clear arguments so they took recourse to threats, “They said, ‘Noah, if you do not desist, you shall be stoned.’” Noah (PBUH) knew that there was no use in pursuing the argument, so he asked God to judge between him and his people, “He said, ‘My Lord, my people have rejected me. Judge You, then, between me and them openly, and deliver me and the believers who are with me.’” God responded favorably to His messenger and delivered him and the believers who followed him, “So We delivered him and those with him, in the Ark filled (with all creatures).” The disbelievers were drowned, “Thereafter We drowned those who remained behind.” This was God’s sign, “Verily in this is a sign, but most of them do not believe. And verily your Lord is the Eminent, the Giver of Mercy.”

Verses 123 to 140

123. The people of 'Ad rejected the messengers.
124. *When their brother Hud said to them, “Will you not be conscious of God?
125. I am a trustworthy messenger sent to you.
126. So be conscious of God and obey me.
127. I do not ask you for a reward. My reward is only from the Lord of the Worlds.
128. Do you build a monument on every high place to amuse yourselves?
129. And do you get for yourselves fine buildings in the hope of living therein
(for ever)?
130. And when you strike, you strike like tyrants?
131. So be conscious of God, and obey me.
132. Be conscious of Him who has bestowed on you freely all that you know.
133. He bestowed on you cattle and children,
134. And gardens and springs.
135. I truly fear for you the torment of a grievous day.”
136. They said, “It is the same to us whether you admonish us or do not admonish.
137. We only do what our forefathers did.*

138. And we will not be tormented.”
 139. So they rejected him, and We destroyed them. Verily in this is a sign, but most of them do not believe.
 140. And verily your Lord is the Eminent, the Giver of Mercy. (26: 123 – 140)

The people of Hud (PBUH) used to reside in a place called Al-Ahqaf. Al-Ahqaf were sand dunes near Hadramout near Yemen. They came after the people of Noah (PBUH) were drowned. However, they went astray. Their story was told in greater details in Surat Al-A'raf (Chapter 7) and also in Surat Hud (Chapter 11) and Surat Al-Muminun (Chapter 23). Only a brief account of this story is given this Sura, “The people of 'Ad rejected the messengers. When their brother Hud said to them, “Will you not be conscious of God? I am a trustworthy messenger sent to you. So be conscious of God and obey me. I do not ask you for a reward. My reward is only from the Lord of the Worlds.” Their Prophet Hud (PBUH) came to them with the same message that other messengers brought from God. He asked them to be conscious of God assuring them that he is giving them a sincere advice and that he did not expect any reward from them.

Hud (PBUH) berated them for their extravagance, “Do you build a monument on every high place to amuse yourselves? And do you get for yourselves fine buildings in the hope of living therein (for ever)?” They spent their money and effort erecting great buildings, thinking that these buildings will provide them protection. He also berated them for their ferocity in vengeance, “And when you strike, you strike like tyrants?” and finally he advised them to heed his message, “So be conscious of God, and obey me.” He reminded them of God’s bounty which He bestowed on them. God gave them great knowledge and great resources, “Be conscious of Him who has bestowed on you freely all that you know. He bestowed on you cattle and children, and gardens and springs.” Then he warned them of the torment on the Day of Judgment, “I truly fear for you the torment of a grievous day.” However, his words fell on hard hearts. They expressed their rejection in an impertinent way, “They said, ‘It is the same to us whether you admonish us or do not admonish. We only do what our forefathers did. And we will not be tormented.’” They were following in the footsteps of their predecessors.

So, they rejected his message and they were punished, “So they rejected him, and We destroyed them.” In their story there is a sign but most people do not believe, “Verily in this is a sign, but most of them do not believe. And verily your Lord is the Eminent, the Giver of Mercy.

Verses 141 to 159:

141. The people of Thamud rejected the messengers.
 142. When their brother Salih said to them, “Will you not be conscious of God?”
 143. I am a trustworthy messenger sent to you.
 144. So be conscious of God, and obey me.
 145. I do not ask you for a reward. My reward is only from the Lord of the Worlds.
 146. (Do you think) you will be left secure forever in what you have,

147. Gardens and springs,
 148. And fields of crops and palm trees with softened fruits?
 149. And you carve houses out of (rocky) mountains with great skill.
 150. So, be conscious of God and obey me;
 151. And do not follow the bidding of those who are given to excesses.
 152. Who make mischief in the land, and mend not (their ways)."
 153. They said, "You are only one of those bewitched.
 154. You are no more than a mortal like us. Bring us a sign, if you are telling the truth."
 155. He said, "Here is a she-camel. She should have her turn to drink and so should you, each on a specified day.
 156. Do not touch her with harm, lest the torment of a grievous day seizes you."
 157. But they ham-strung her. Then they became full of regrets.
 158. But the torment seized them. Verily in this is a sign. And most of them do not believe.
 159. And verily your Lord is the Eminent, the Giver of Mercy. (26: 141 – 159)

Prophet Salih (PBUH) repeated to his people the same message, which each previous messenger brought before, but they rejected him, "The people of Thamud rejected the messengers. When their brother Salih said to them, 'Will you not be conscious of God? I am a trustworthy messenger sent to you. So be conscious of God, and obey me. I do not ask you for a reward. My reward is only from the Lord of the Worlds.'" Then Prophet Salih (PBUH) continued to remind them of the bounties that God blessed them with. He tried to evoke in their hearts the feeling of gratitude to God for His blessings, "(Do you think) you will be left secure forever in what you have, gardens and springs, and fields of crops and palm trees with softened fruits? And you carve houses out of (rocky) mountains with great skill." Do you think that these blessings will last forever? Then he exhorted them to be conscious of God, "So be conscious of God and obey me; and do not follow the bidding of those who are given to excesses, who make mischief in the land, and mend not (their ways)." But his call fell on deaf ears and did not reach the solid hearts. They responded, "You are only one of those bewitched. You are no more than a mortal like us. Bring us a sign, if you are telling the truth." They thought he was crazy and they were astonished that a mere mortal like them brings them a message from God. They challenged him to bring them a sign. So, he brought them a sign, "He said, 'Here is a she-camel. She should have her turn to drink and so should you, each on a specified day. Do not touch her with harm, lest the torment of a grievous day seizes you.'" God sent them the she-camel as a sign. They will alternate their drinking with the she-camel: one day for her and one day for them. He warned them against harming the she-camel. But they did not heed the warning, "But they ham-strung her. Then they became full of regrets. But the torment seized them. Verily in this is a sign. And most of them do not believe. And verily your Lord is the Eminent, the Giver of Mercy." An evil group of people among them killed the she-camel but they were all responsible and they were all punished for that evil act.

Verses 160 to 175:

160. The people of Lut rejected the messengers.
161. When their brother Lut said to them, "Will you not be conscious of God?"
162. I am a trustworthy messenger sent to you.
163. So, be conscious of God and obey me.
164. I do not ask you for a reward. My reward is only from the lord of the Worlds.
165. Of all the creatures in the world, will you approach the males?
166. And you leave those whom God has created for you to be your mates? You are exceeding all bounds."
167. They said, "Lut, if you do not desist, you will assuredly be cast out."
168. He said, "I do detest what you do.
169. My Lord, deliver me and my family from what they do."
170. So We delivered him and his family all,
171. Except an old woman who lingered behind.
172. And We destroyed the rest.
173. And We rained down on them a shower (of brimstone). Evil was the shower on those who were admonished (but heeded not).
174. Verily in this is a sign. But most of them do not believe.
175. And verily your Lord is the Eminent, the Giver of Mercy. (26: 160 – 175)

The verses tell the story of Prophet Lut (PBUH) and it starts in a way similar to the other stories. Lut (PBUH) started by reassuring his people that he was God's messenger. He came to deliver a message for them to be conscious of God. He reassured them that he was not after a worldly reward. His interest is to guide them and this would start by being conscious of God, "The people of Lut rejected the messengers. When their brother Lut said to them, 'Will you not be conscious of God? I am a trustworthy messenger sent to you. So be conscious of God and obey me. I do not ask you for a reward. My reward is only from the lord of the Worlds. Of all the creatures in the world, will you approach the males? And you leave those whom God has created for you to be your mates? You are exceeding all bounds.'" The people of Lut (PBUH) were practicing homosexuality. Lut (PBUH) called upon them to relinquish this practice but they rejected and threatened him, "They said, 'Lut, if you do not desist, you will assuredly be cast out.'" Lut (PBUH) was not originally of this country but he came to it with his uncle Prophet Abraham (PBUH) and he resided with them until God sent him as a messenger to these people. In response to their threat, he told them that he did not like what they were doing, "He said, 'I do detest what you do.'" He then continued to pray to God to save him from these people, "My Lord, deliver me and my family from what they do." God delivered him and his family except his wife who approved her people's practices, "So, We delivered him and his family, all except an old woman who lingered behind. And We destroyed the rest. And We rained down on them a shower (of brimstone). Evil was the shower on those who were admonished (but heeded not). Verily in this is a sign. But most of them do not believe. And verily your Lord is the Eminent, the Merciful."

Verses 176 to 191:

176. The companions of the thicket rejected the messengers.
177. When, Shu'aib said to them, "Will you not be conscious of God?"
178. I am a trustworthy messenger sent to you.
179. So, be conscious of God and obey me.
180. I do not ask you for a reward. My reward is only from the Lord of the Worlds.
181. Give just measure, and do not be of those who cause loss (to others).
182. And weigh using just scales.
183. Do not deprive people of what is rightly theirs. And do not spread mischief in the land.
184. And be conscious of Him who created you and (who created) the earlier generations."
185. They said, "You are only one of those bewitched.
186. You are no more than a mortal like us, and indeed we think you are a liar.
187. Let a piece of the sky to fall on us, if you are truthful."
188. He said, "My Lord knows best what you do."
189. But they rejected him. Then, the torment of the Day of the Shadow seized them, and that was a torment of a grievous day.
190. Verily, in that is a sign; But most of them do not believe.
191. And verily your Lord is the Eminent, the Giver of Mercy. (26: 176 – 191)

This is the story of Prophet Shu'aib it occurred before Moses time but it comes here because it conveys the same lesson as the other stories narrated in this chapter. The people of the thicket were most probably the people of Median. The geographical position of Median is between Palestine and Hijaz around the Gulf of Aqaba. The first few verses are similar to the first few verses in the previous stories, "The companions of the thicket rejected the messengers. When, Shu'aib said to them, 'Will you not be conscious of God? I am a trustworthy messenger sent to you. So be conscious of God and obey me. I do not ask you for a reward. My reward is only from the Lord of the Worlds.'" Then he continued to berate them on the practice of unfair measure in their business, "Give just measure, and do not be of those who cause loss (to others). And weigh using just scales. Do not deprive people of what is rightly theirs. And do not spread mischief in the land." They used to usurp people's rights and use unfair practices in their dealings. Shu'aib (PBUH) tried to dissuade them from these bad practices and remind them of God consciousness, "And fear Him who created you and (who created) the earlier generations." They called him a mad man and a liar, "They said, 'You are only one of those bewitched. You are no more than a mortal like us, and indeed we think you are a liar.'" They challenged him to punish them for their transgression, "Let a piece of the sky to fall on us, if you are truthful." He responded saying, "My Lord knows best what you do." And the conclusion of the story came swiftly, "But they rejected him. Then, the torment of the Day of the Shadow seized them, and that was a torment of a grievous day. Verily in that is a sign; But most of them do not believe. And verily your Lord is the Eminent, the Giver of Mercy."

Verses 192 to 227:

192. Verily, this is a revelation from the Lord of the Worlds.
193. The Trustworthy Spirit brought it down,
194. To your heart that you may be of the warners;
195. In a clear Arabic tongue.
196. And indeed it is mentioned in the Scriptures of previous peoples.
197. Is it not a sign to them that it has been recognized by the scholars of the Children of Israel?
198. Had We revealed it to any of the non-Arabs,
199. And had he recited it to them, they would not have believed in it.
200. So We make it pass straight through the hearts of the criminals.
201. They will not believe in it until they see the grievous torment;
202. But the (torment) will come to them suddenly, while they are unaware;
203. Then they will say, "Shall we be reprieved?"
204. Do they then ask for Our torment to be hastened on?
205. Then have you considered if We do let them enjoy (this life) for a few years,
206. Then there came to them the torment which they were promised?
207. It will not benefit them that they enjoyed (this life).
208. Never did We destroy a town, but it had its warners.
209. As a reminder; and We are never unjust.
210. And the devils did not bring down this (Revelation).
211. It is not in their interest nor in their power.
212. Indeed, they have been removed far from even (a chance of) hearing it.
213. So call not on any other deity with God, or you will be among those who will be tormented.
214. And admonish your nearest kinsfolk,
215. And lower your wing to the believers who follow you.
216. Then if they disobey you, say, "I bear no responsibility for what you do. "
217. And put your trust in the Eminent, the Giver of Mercy,
218. Who sees you when you stand up,
219. And your movements among those who prostrate themselves,
220. For He is the All-Hearing, the Omniscient.
221. Shall I inform you, on whom the devils descend?
222. They descend on every lying, wicked person,
223. (Into whose ears) they pour hearsay vanities, and most of them are liars.
224. Only those who have gone astray follow the poets.
225. Do you not see how they roam aimlessly in every valley?
226. And that they say what they do not do?
227. Except those who believe, and do righteous deeds, and remember God often, and defend themselves only after they have been unjustly attacked. And soon will the unjust know what vicissitudes their affairs will take. (26: 192 – 227)

The conclusion of the Sura picks up the theme that the Sura started with: the rejection of the Quran by the idolaters of Quraish. This rejection annoyed the Messenger of God

(PBUH). The conclusion emphasizes the nature of the Quran. It is certainly a divine revelation. It was brought down by the angel Gabriel (PBUH) and delivered to the heart of the Messenger (PBUH). The Messenger (PBUH) kept it in his heart and delivered it as he received it in a sound Arabic tongue. The Arabs knew that the Quran was a literary miracle and they recognized the fact that such a text could not have been composed by a human being, “Verily this is a revelation from the Lord of the Worlds. The Trustworthy Spirit brought it down, to your heart that you may be of the warners; in a clear Arabic tongue.”

In addition, it has been mentioned in the previous Scriptures, “And indeed it is mentioned in the Scriptures of previous peoples. Is it not a sign to them that it has been recognized by the scholars of the Children of Israel?” The idolaters rejected the Quran not for the lack of evidence that it was a divine revelation but because they were stubborn. Even if it were revealed to a non-Arab they would have still not believed, “Had We revealed it to any of the non-Arabs, and had he recited it to them, they would not have believed in it.”

“So, We make it pass straight through the hearts of the criminals. They will not believe in it until they see the grievous torment; But the (torment) will come to them suddenly, while they are unaware; then they will say, ‘Shall we be reprieved?’” They were stubborn in their disbelief to the extent that it passed through their hearts but left no impact on them. They will never change their minds until they see the torment, then they will beg for getting a second chance. They used to challenge the Messenger (PBUH) to hasten God’s torment, thinking it will never come, “Do they then ask for Our torment to be hastened on? Then have you considered if We do let them enjoy (this life) for a few years, then there came to them the torment which they were promised? It will not benefit them that they enjoyed (this life).”

God implanted the belief in Him in the initial natural disposition of humankind. That belief will grow in the human nature as long as it is kept sound and uncorrupt. God also placed many signs around us. When people forget about these signs or their nature deviate from the initial sound state, God sends His messengers to warn people and to bring them back to the straight path, “Never did We destroy a town, but it had warners. As a reminder; and We are never unjust.”

The following verses address a new theme, “And the devils did not bring down this (Revelation). It is neither in their interest nor in their power. Indeed, they have been removed far from even (a chance of) hearing it.” The previous verses ascertained that the Quran is a divine revelation. These verses reiterate the same fact by refuting the claim that it was brought down by the devil. It is not appropriate to say that the devils brought it down. The Quran preaches goodness and guidance and the devils preach misguidance, corruption and disbelief. They have been kept segregated from it, so they could not even listen to it.

The verses move to yet another theme, warning the Messenger of God (PBUH) from associating partners with God, even though he was so remote from committing such act, “So call not on any other deity with God, or you will be among those who will be tormented.” The Messenger (PBUH) could not have committed this sin, however the verse is meant to magnify the consequences of associating partners with God.

Then the Messenger (PBUH) was commanded to warn the nearest of kin and to put his trust in God, “And admonish your nearest kinsfolk.” When this verse was revealed, the Messenger (PBUH) went to the top of mount Al-Safa and called upon his nearest of kin, they all came to listen to what he was going to say. He asked them first, “If I were to tell you that people on horses are gathered in the valley behind this mountain waiting for an opportune moment to attack you, would you believe me?” They said, “Yes.” He then said, “I was sent as a warner, to save you from the torment of Hellfire.” So, he did what he was commanded to do and fulfilled his responsibility towards his kinsfolk.

The Messenger (PBUH) was commanded to treat his followers kindly, “And lower your wing to the believers who follow you.” The Messenger (PBUH) gave the highest example of humility and kindness in dealing with his followers all his life. His manners were a physical depiction of the commandments of the Quran. He was not responsible for those who deviate, “Then if they disobey you, say, ‘I bear no responsibility for what you do.’”

“And put your trust in the Eminent, the Giver of Mercy, who sees you when you stand up, and your movements among those who prostrate themselves, for He is the All-Hearing, the Omniscient.” He was told to put his trust in God, the Eminent, the Giver of Mercy. He sees you when you pray, and when you are alone. God is the All-Hearing, the Omniscient.

Then, the narrative turns again to the topic of the Quran. First, it was ascertained that the Quran is a divine revelation. Then the verses refuted the claim that it has been brought down by the devils. The next few verses indicate that the Messenger of God (PBUH), who is an example of trustworthiness, honesty and credibility could not have been associated with devils. The devils are only associated with people who are liars and wicked, “Shall I inform you, on whom the devils descend? They descend on every lying, wicked person, (Into whose ears) they pour hearsay vanities, and most of them are liars.” There were priests among the Arabs who claimed that they were able to communicate with the devils. Through these communications they were able to predict future events. They were mostly lying. In any case, they were not in the business of guiding people to the right path, or commanding people to be conscious of God. The Messenger (PBUH) was definitely not one of these priests.

The idolaters of Mecca claimed that the Quran was a form of poetry. But the Quran was written using a style far different from poetry and the behavior of the Messenger (PBUH) was completely different from the behavior of the known poets. So the verses came to refute that claim, “Only those who have gone astray follow the poets. Do you not see how they roam aimlessly in every valley? And that they say what they do not do.”

The Quran provides a structured way of life for humankind. Poets create their own imaginary world and are creative about what they do and what they would like to do.

However, it should be stressed that Islam does not fight poetry and poets as such but it frowns upon the style which is motivated by whims, desires and emotions that are not guided by any principle or value.

There were Muslim poets whose style did conform to the Islamic values and principles and these were exempt from the criticism that the Quran leveled at the Arab poets of that time, “Except those who believe, and do righteous deeds, and remember God often, and defend themselves only after they have been unjustly attacked.”

The chapter concludes by waging a threat to the disbelievers, “And soon will the unjust know what vicissitudes their affairs will take.”

Sura 27: Al-Naml (The Ants)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 6:

1. Ta, Sin. These are verses of the Quran and the Book that makes (things) clear;
2. Guidance and glad tidings for the believers,
3. Those who establish regular prayers and pay the poor-due and who have certitude in the Hereafter.
4. Those who do not believe in the Hereafter, We have indeed made their deeds seem pleasing to them; and so they wander blindly.
5. Those are they, for whom is the worst of torment, and in the Hereafter they will be the greatest losers.
6. You certainly receive the Quran from the One who is Wise, Omniscient. (27: 1 - 6)

This is a Meccan Sura, it was revealed after Surat Al-Shu'ara (Chapter 26). Both of them have the same style. The Sura starts with an introduction which outlines the theme of the Sura and ends with an appropriate conclusion. Between the introduction and the conclusion, stories are narrated which elaborate on the theme and explain the similarities between the people in the stories and the people of Mecca. The main theme of the Sura is the doctrine: the belief in the Oneness of God, the inevitability of the Hereafter, the belief in God's revelations, the belief in the unseen, and the belief in the unbounded power of God.

"Ta, Sin." The Sura starts with letters of the Arabic alphabet to draw the attention to the fact that the Quran was composed using these letters. Then, the Quran is mentioned, "These are verses of the Quran and the Book that makes (things) clear." The Book is itself the Quran. The Quran is described as guidance and glad tidings, "Guidance and glad tidings for the believers." So the Quran itself is guidance, it provides guidance to the believers in all matters. It also brings glad tidings to the believers about this life and the Hereafter. This Quran is guidance to the believers because it addresses the heart. Hearts which are open to the belief in God will be able to benefit from the Quran and enjoy its beauty. But hard hearts which are not ready to receive faith will not be able to benefit from it. The Quran embodies great treasures of knowledge which can only be accessed by those who believe. Belief is the key which will open these treasures and allow people to benefit from it.

The verses go on to outline the characteristics of the believers, "Those who establish regular prayers and pay the poor-due and who have certitude in the Hereafter." They establish prayers; they do it in the best way they can. When they pray they are fully devoted to God; feeling the sanctity of the moment when they are in the presence of God. They pay the poor-due. Paying the poor-due purifies their souls from stinginess. They help their brothers and they contribute to the welfare of their community. They are certain of the inevitability of the Hereafter. They are mindful of the Day of Reckoning and that deters them from committing evil deeds. On the other hand, there are those who do not fit this description, "Those who do not believe in the Hereafter, We have indeed made their deeds seem pleasing to them; and so they wander blindly. Those are they for whom is the worst of torment, and in the Hereafter they will be the greatest losers.” The belief in the Hereafter is the bridle which reins in the whims and desires of the human being; and allows the human being to live a well-balanced life. Those who do not believe in the Hereafter will not control their whims and desires. They will live a hedonistic life. They will find their pleasures in satisfying their physical desires. This is the course which will be followed by those who are not guided. God created humankind with equal propensity for good and evil. God will guide those whose senses are open for receiving guidance but those who block their senses and refuse to receive guidance are left to wander blindly in this life. The end for them is known, “and in the Hereafter they will be the greatest losers.”

The introduction to the Sura ends by stating the source of Quran, “You certainly receive the Quran from the One who is Wise, Omniscient.” The Arabic text implies that the Quran is a gift from God who is Wise and Omniscient. His wisdom and omniscience are clearly reflected on the Quran, its style, its commands, its guidance, and its methodology.

Verses 7 to 14:

7. (Remember) when Moses said to his family, “I see a fire; I will bring you from it some news, or I will bring to you from it a burning brand so that you may warm yourselves.
8. But when he came to the (fire), he was called, “Blessed is whoever in the fire and whoever is round about it. And Glory be to God, the Lord of the Worlds.
9. Moses, I am God, the Eminent, the Wise.
10. And throw your staff. But when he saw it moving (of its own accord) as if it were a demon, he turned to flee headlong; (but it was said to him), “Moses, fear not. The Messengers shall not fear in My presence,
11. I am truly All-Forgiving and Giver of Mercy to those who do wrong and then replace their evil with good.
12. And put your hand into the bosom of your robe, it will come forth white but unharmed. (This will be one) among nine signs to Pharaoh and his people. They were ever transgressing people.”
13. But when Our signs came to them, that should have opened their eyes, they said, “This is clear magic.”
14. And they rejected these signs in iniquity and arrogance, even though their souls were convinced of their truth. Then see the consequence for the mischief-makers. (27: 7-14)

The following verses narrate an episode from the story of Prophet Moses (PBUH), “(Remember) when Moses said to his family, “I see a fire; I will bring you from it some news, or I will bring to you from it a burning brand so that you may warm yourselves.” This verse tells about Moses’ (PBUH) trip to Egypt with his family. He lost his way in the desert in a dark cold night. He saw a fire near the mountain. People used to light fires to guide the travelers and to provide a place where they can rest. When Moses (PBUH) saw the fire he felt reassured. He was hopeful that he would get directions for the road at the fire, or he would get a burning stick to start a fire for his family in order that they become warm. Moses (PBUH) went towards the fire, “But when he came to the (fire), he was called, ‘Blessed is whoever in the fire and whoever is round about it. And Glory be to God, the Lord of the Worlds. Moses, I am God, the Eminent, the Wise.’” The passive voice is used to add majesty to the situation, “he was called.” Then the voice said, “Blessed is whoever is in the fire and whoever is round about it.” So who was in the fire and who was round about it? Most probably that was not a fire like any fire that we are familiar with. It must have been a fire that emanated from the Higher Host, a fire that was lit by the pure spirits of God’s angels. This must have been the fire of guidance. The blessings of God were showered on the angels, “Blessed is whoever is in the fire,” and on Moses (PBUH), “whoever is round about it.” The universe echoed the rest of the verse, “I am God, the Eminent, the Wise.” God declared Himself to His servant as the Eminent the Wise. Moses (PBUH) found the, “news” he was looking for; and what kind of news? And he got the warmth he was looking for, but it was the warmth of guidance to the straight path. The call was made to announce that Moses (PBUH) was chosen to carry the responsibility of the message to the worst tyrant on earth.

Moses (PBUH) had to be trained for the task, “And throw your staff. But when he saw it moving (of its own accord) as if it were a demon, he turned to flee headlong;” When Moses (PBUH) threw his staff it became a serpent, full of life. Moses (PBUH) was taken by surprise and he became apprehensive and started running away from the serpent. God called him back, “Moses, fear not. The Messengers shall not fear in My presence,” God told him that you are a Messenger and Messengers should not experience fear in the presence of their Lord. Only those who commit wrong should experience fear. But even for those who do wrong but repent and replace the wrong they did with good deeds, God is certainly All-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy, “I am truly All-Forgiving and Giver of Mercy to those who do wrong and then replace their evil with good.”

God then revealed to Moses (PBUH) the second miracle, “And put your hand into the bosom of your robe, it will come forth white but unharmed.” Moses (PBUH) placed his hand into the bosom of his robe and when he took it out he saw that it became white. The hand did not suffer any ailment, so the change did not happen as a result of sickness but it was one of the miracles that God gave him to support his message to Pharaoh and his people, “(This will be one) among nine signs to Pharaoh and his people. They were ever transgressing people.” The narrative here does not mention the other seven miracles. They are mentioned in Surat Al- ‘Araf (Chapter 7). These were the years of famine, the diminishing harvest, the flood, the locusts, the lice, the frogs, and the blood. The focus here is on the strength and clarity of the miracles not on their description. One of the objectives of these verses is to stress the absurdity of the denial of Pharaoh and his people to the clear signs of God, “But when Our signs came to them, that should have opened their eyes, they said, ‘This is clear magic.’” They dismissed these miracles as magic.

They recognized the strength of the proof but they chose not to believe. They denied the truth, in spite of the fact that they were certain of the veracity of the message, “And they rejected these signs in iniquity and arrogance, even though their souls were convinced of their truth. Then see the consequence for the mischief-makers.” This was exactly the response of the chiefs of Quraish. They knew that the Quran is the truth but they rejected it because they were arrogant. They were afraid that submitting to God will deprive them of the status, the interests, and the pleasures they were enjoying.

Verses 15 to 44:

15. And We verily gave David and Solomon knowledge and they said, "Praise be to God, who has favored us above many of His believing servants."
16. And Solomon became David's heir. He said, "People, we have been taught the language of the birds, and we have been given (abundance) of all things. This surely is an evident blessing."
17. And Solomon's armies of the jinn and humankind, and of the birds, were marshaled in ordered ranks before him;
18. Till, when they reached the valley of the ants, an ant said, "Ants, enter your dwellings lest Solomon and his armies unwittingly crush you."
19. And (Solomon) smiled, laughing at her speech, and said, "My Lord, enable me to be thankful for Your blessing which You have bestowed on me and on my parents, and to do good that shall be pleasing to You, and include me by Your mercy among Your righteous servants."
20. And he took a muster of the birds; and he said, "Why do not I see the hoopoe? Or is he among the absentees?"
21. I will certainly punish him with a severe torment, or I will execute him, unless he brings me a valid excuse."
22. But the hoopoe tarried not far. He (came up and) said, "I have learnt something that you do not know, and I have come to you from Sheba with confirmed information."
23. I found a woman ruling over them, and she has been given (abundance) of all things, and hers is a mighty throne."
24. I found her and her people worshipping the sun besides God. Satan has made their deeds seem pleasing to them, and has kept them away from the straight path, so they became misguided."
25. So that they do not worship God, who brings forth the hidden in the heavens and the earth, and who knows what you hide and what you declare."
26. God, there is no deity save Him, the Lord of the great Throne."
27. (Solomon) said, "Soon we shall see whether you are telling the truth or you are lying."
28. Go with this letter of mine and throw it down to them; then turn away and see what (answer) they return."
29. The Queen of Sheba (when she received the letter) said, "Chiefs, a noble letter has been delivered to me."
30. It is from Solomon, and it is (as follows), 'In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy the Giver of Mercy;
31. Do not be haughty with me but come to me in submission (to God).''
32. She said, "Chiefs, advise me in my affair; I would not make a decision except in your presence."
33. They said, "We are people of might and great power, but the decision is yours, so consider what you will command."
34. She said, "Indeed kings, when they enter a country, they ruin it, and subjugate its dignified people. And thus do they behave."
35. But I am going to send them a present, and (wait) to see with what (answer) the messengers will return."

36. So when (the messengers) came to Solomon, (the King) said, "What! Are you offering me wealth? What God has given me is better than that which He has given you. It is you (and not I) who rejoice in your gift.
37. Return to them. We shall verily come upon them with hosts that they cannot resist, and we shall drive them out from their land in disgrace, and they will be abased."
38. He said (to his own men), "Chiefs, which of you can bring me her throne before they come to me in submission?"
39. A powerful one from among the jinn said, "I will bring it to you before you rise from your place; indeed, I am strong and trustworthy."
40. The one who had knowledge of the Book said, "I will bring it to you within the twinkling of an eye." Then when (Solomon) saw it placed firmly before him, he said, "This is by the Grace of my Lord to test me whether I am grateful or ungrateful - and if any is grateful, truly his gratitude is for his own soul; but if any is ungrateful, truly my God is Rich, Generous."
41. He said, "Disguise her throne for her that we may see whether she will be guided or remains one of the misguided."
42. So when she arrived, she was asked, "Is this your throne?" She said, "It is as though it were the very one." And (Solomon said), "We were given the knowledge before her and we had submitted (to God)."
43. And what she worshipped besides God prevented her, surely she was of one of people who disbelieve.
44. It was said to her, "Enter the hall." And when she saw it she thought it was a pool and bared her legs. (Solomon) said, "It is a hall, paved with smooth glass." She said, "My Lord, I have wronged myself, and I submit with Solomon to God, the Lord of the Worlds." (27: 15 - 44)

The following verses talk about Prophets David and Solomon (PBUT). They were both prophets who were sent to the Children of Israel. The verses narrate a story about Prophet Solomon (PBUH) in detail. The story is about his encounter with the Queen of Sheba. The story starts with a verse about the most important blessing that God showered on his Prophets David and Solomon (PBUT), "And We verily gave David and Solomon knowledge and they said, 'Praise be to God, Who has favored us above many of His believing servants.'" They recognized God's blessings and expressed their gratitude to God. The verse does not detail which kind of knowledge God gave David and Solomon (PBUT) to emphasize the value of knowledge as a whole and that it is a blessing from God. All knowledge comes from God. Those whom God bless with knowledge should recognize that God is the source of all knowledge and they should express gratitude to Him. They should use this knowledge in a way that pleases God, for the benefit of humanity. Knowledge should lead its owner to God.

The following verses focus on the story of Solomon (PBUH), "And Solomon became David's heir. He said, 'People, we have been taught the language of the birds, and we have been given (abundance) of all things. This surely is an evident blessing.'" Solomon (PBUH) expressed his gratitude to God that he gave him the knowledge and the ability to understand the language of the other creatures of God. The Quran tells us, "And there is no animal that walks on the ground nor a bird that flies with its two wings but (they are) communities like yourselves;" (6: 38)

Members of a community need a language so that they can communicate with each other. Each one of the communities of birds, animals and insects has its own language; which they use in communicating with each other. God gave Solomon (PBUH) the ability to understand these languages. This was one of the miracles that God bestowed on Solomon (PBUH). Another miracle that was bestowed on Solomon (PBUH) was the ability to control and use the jinn and the birds and to perform certain tasks.

“And Solomon’s armies of the jinn and humankind, and of the birds, were marshaled in ordered ranks before him.” The Solomon’s (PBUH) army consisted of jinn, humankind, and birds. We do not know much about jinn. The Quran told us that jinn were created from fire. They are able to see human beings but human beings cannot see them. The army went forward until they reached the valley of the ants, “Till, when they reached the valley of the ants, an ant said, ‘Ants, enter your dwellings lest Solomon and his armies unwittingly crush you.’” Solomon (PBUH) heard, understood what the ant said, and smiled. He remembered the grace of God and he expressed his gratitude. He prayed that God would give him the power to continually express his gratitude with all his body and all his senses. He also prayed that God directs him to do good deeds and admits him among the righteous of His servants, “And (Solomon) smiled, laughing at her speech, and said, ‘My Lord, enable me to be thankful for Your blessing which You have bestowed on me and on my parents, and to do good that shall be pleasing to You, and include me by Your mercy among Your righteous servants.’”

There are two miracles that need to be noted here. The first is Solomon’s (PBUH) ability to understand what the ant said. The second is the fact that the ant recognized that it was Solomon’s (PBUH) army that was marching towards them.

The following verses narrate the story of Solomon (PBUH), his hoopoe, and the Queen of Sheba, “And he took a muster of the birds; and he said, ‘Why do not I see the hoopoe? Or is he among the absentees?’” This is the first scene in the story, Solomon (PBUH) inspecting his army and finding the hoopoe missing. It must have been a special hoopoe that is why his absence was conspicuous. The verse also illustrates one of Solomon’s (PBUH) traits. He was very observant and firm with his soldiers. The hoopoe was missing and he left without permission, it should be punished. But Solomon (PBUH) was a prophet and he was not a tyrant so he deferred his final judgment until he had heard from the hoopoe itself, “I will certainly punish him with a severe torment, or I will execute him, unless he brings me a valid excuse.” But the hoopoe came back with surprising news, “But the hoopoe tarried not far. He (came up and) said, ‘I have learnt something that you do not know, and I have come to you from Sheba with confirmed information. I found a woman ruling over them, and she has been given (abundance) of all things, and hers is a mighty throne. I found her and her people worshipping the sun besides God. Satan has made their deeds seem pleasing to them, and has kept them away from the straight path, so they became misguided. So that they do not worship God, who brings forth the hidden in the heavens and the earth, and who knows what you hide and what you declare. God, there is no deity save Him, the Lord of the great throne.” The hoopoe responded to the king with a bold statement, “I have learnt something that you do not know.” This bold statement must have been intended to capture the king’s attention. The hoopoe then continued to tell the details of its discovery. The hoopoe told the king about the woman who reigns over a people in South Yemen in a kingdom with the name of Sheba. She was given an abundance of everything and she had a great throne. But they were worshipping the sun. The hoopoe deduced that the devil must have lured them away from the straight path. We find ourselves in front of an astonishing bird. The verses not only depict an intelligent bird who understands and expresses itself in an eloquent way but also a bird who believes in God and knew what is right and what is wrong.

Solomon (PBUH) did not hasten to make a decision regarding what he had heard, but wanted first to ascertain the truth, “(Solomon) said, ‘Soon we shall see whether you are telling the truth or you are lying. Go with this letter of mine and throw it down to them; then turn away and see what (answer) they return.’” The contents of the letter were not disclosed at this point. The following verse depicts another scene, the scene of the Queen’s court. The Queen was asking her counselors, “(The Queen of Sheba, when she received the letter) said, ‘Chiefs, a noble letter has been delivered to me. It is from Solomon, and it is (as follows), ‘In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy; do not be haughty with me but come to me in submission (to God).’” She told them that she received a letter, however she did not know how was the letter delivered. But she described the letter as, “a noble letter.” There must have been something about the letter that made her make this statement. In addition, Solomon (PBUH) must have been well known to her and her people. The letter itself was a simple letter. It had only one request, “Do not be haughty with me but come to me in submission (to God).” They should not behave arrogantly and they should go to him in submission to God, whose name was at the top of the letter.

Having told them about the contents, she continued to seek their advice, “She said, ‘Chiefs, advise me in my affair; I would not make a decision except in your presence.’” This showed her wisdom in handling the situation. Her counselors responded, “We are people of might and great power, but the decision is yours, so consider what you will command.” Her response reflected her aversion to violence, “Indeed kings, when they enter a country, they ruin it, and subjugate its dignified people. And thus do they behave. But I am going to send them a present, and (wait) to see with what (answer) will messengers return.” She knew the devastation that a country would suffer as a result of war and wanted to avoid this. Furthermore, she wanted to extend a hand for peace. She decided to send Solomon (PBUH) a gift. It was also a way to test what kind of a man Solomon (PBUH) is. Is he after wealth, or is he a man of principle?

The narrative moves to describe the scene when the messengers brought Solomon (PBUH) the queen’s gift, “(the King) said, ‘What! Are you offering me wealth? What God has given me is better than that which He has given you. It is you (and not I) who rejoice in your gift.’” Solomon (PBUH) expressed his dismay that the queen did not understand the intent of his call. He declared it loud and clear that he is not after money. His main interest was to guide them to the worship of God alone. He then followed by issuing a dire threat, “Return to them. We shall verily come upon them with hosts that they cannot resist, and we shall drive them out from their land in disgrace, and they will be abased.”

The verses do not detail what happened after that, what was her response and how it was relayed to Solomon (PBUH). But we understand from the text that Solomon (PBUH) knew that the queen and her entourage accepted his invitation and were on their way to meet him. He may have also anticipated this from the way she handled the situation and guessed at her intention to avoid war. The following verses describe the deliberations between Solomon (PBUH) and his soldiers about the way to bring her throne to him before she arrives, “He said (to his own men), ‘Chiefs, which of you can bring me her throne before they come to me in submission?’ A powerful one from among the jinn said, ‘I will bring it to you before you rise from your place; indeed, I am strong and trustworthy.’ The one who had knowledge of the Book said, ‘I will bring it to you within the twinkling of an eye.’” Why did Solomon (PBUH) want to bring her throne before she arrived? Most probably that was his way of impressing her with his power and resources. One of the jinn offered to bring the throne to him before he had finished his meeting, but the one who had knowledge of the Book said that he could bring it in a twinkling of an eye. The verses do not explain who was that who had the knowledge, nor did they specify which Book that had this knowledge. But we understand that he was a believer and that was given extraordinary powers as a gift from God.

When Solomon (PBUH) saw the throne in front of him, he expressed his gratitude to God, “Then when (Solomon) saw it placed firmly before him, he said, ‘This is by the Grace of my Lord to test me whether I am grateful or ungrateful - and if any is grateful, truly his gratitude is for his own soul; but if any is ungrateful, truly my Lord is Rich, Generous’” Solomon (PBUH) realized the responsibility of being blessed by God and responded by expressing his gratitude. It is a great trial when God bestows His blessings on people. They should recognize the source of the blessings and they should be grateful to Him. God does not need their gratitude but it is for the benefit of the people themselves.

Solomon (PBUH) wanted to surprise the queen, “He said, ‘Disguise her throne for her that we may see whether she will be guided or remains one of the misguided.’” It may have been also a way to test the perspicacity of the queen when she was faced with such a surprise. She was quite witty in her response, “So when she arrived, she was asked, ‘Is this your throne?’ She said, ‘It is as though it were the very one.’ And (Solomon said), ‘We were given the knowledge before her and we had submitted (to God).’”

The verses explain why she did not believe before this encounter with Solomon (PBUH), “And what she worshipped besides God prevented her, surely she was of one of people who disbelieve.”

Yet, there was another surprise that Solomon (PBUH) had for her, “It was said to her, ‘Enter the hall.’ And when she saw it she thought it was a pool and bared her legs. (Solomon) said, ‘It is a hall, paved with smooth glass.’ She said, ‘My Lord, I have wronged myself, and I submit with Solomon to God, the Lord of the Worlds.’” When she saw the water through the crystal floor of the hall she thought that she is entering into a shallow pool. She raised her dress so that it would not get wet. Solomon (PBUH) then explained to her that the hall had a crystal floor. She then realized that Solomon (PBUH) was given extraordinary powers and she submitted herself to God. She understood that submission is to God alone and that whatever powers Solomon (PBUH) had were bestowed by God on him; so she submitted with him to the Lord of the Worlds.

Verses 45 to 53:

45. And We verily sent to Thamud their brother Salih, saying, "Worship God." And they then became two parties quarrelling.
46. He said, "My people, why do you hasten on the evil rather than the good? Why do not you ask pardon of God, that you may receive mercy."
47. They said, "We consider you and those who are with you a bad omen." He said, "Your omen is with God; you are a people who are being tested."
48. There were nine men in the city who made mischief in the land, and would not reform.
49. They said, "Swear one to another by God, that we will attack him and his family by night, and afterward we will surely say to his next of kin, 'We did not witness the destruction of his family. And we are indeed telling the truth.'"
50. So they plotted a plot; and We plotted a plot, while they realized it not.
51. Then see the consequence of their plotting - We destroyed them and their people, every one.
52. Here are their homes in ruin because they practiced wrongdoing. Verily in this is a sign for people who have knowledge.
53. And We saved those who believed and were conscious of God. (27: 45 – 53)

"And We verily sent to Thamud their brother Salih, saying, 'Worship God.' And they then became two parties quarrelling. The verse summarized the Message that Salih (PBUH) brought his people; it has one objective, "Worship God." This is the fundamental principle on which the divine message is based. His people became divided, one group believed in him while the other rejected him. Those who believed were in the minority. Those who disbelieved challenged Salih (PBUH) to bring about the punishment he promised them if they do not believe. His response was, "He said, 'My people, why do you hasten on the evil rather than the good? Why do not you ask pardon of God, that you may receive mercy.'" Rather than seeking guidance and appreciating the message they said to Salih (PBUH), "We consider you and those who are with you a bad omen." The belief in bad and good omens is an old tradition and a superstition. This particular expression described a practice that people in old communities used to follow. Whenever someone wanted to embark on a new venture, a person would hold a bird in his hand, then would let it go, allowing it to fly. If the bird flew to the right, then this would be considered to be a good omen. They would then go ahead with their venture. But if the bird flew to the left, they would consider this a bad omen and quit that venture. Salih (PBUH) tried to point out to them that birds do not know the unseen. Depending on the bird to tell them the future is sheer stupidity. Their future is in the hands of God, "He said, 'Your omen is with God; you are a people who are being tested.'" God decides the future. This was a test from God to give them the choice between guidance and misguidance.

"There were nine men in the city who made mischief in the land, and would not reform. They said, 'Swear one to another by God that we will attack him and his family by night, and afterward we will surely say to his friend, 'We did not witness the destruction of his family. And we are indeed telling the truth.””” These nine people were bent on destruction, corruption, and violence. They decided to kill Salih (PBUH). It is amazing as they were deliberating how to kill Salih (PBUH) they would swear by God whom Salih (PBUH) is inviting them to worship. They decided to lie to his next of kin (the one who is responsible for executing his will and avenging his death) saying that they did not see him when he perished, thinking that since they will kill him in the dark they can say we did not see him being killed. This plot reflects a twisted superficial way of thinking. But they can plot all they want because God’s plot is perfect, “So they plotted a plot; and We plotted a plot, while they realized it not. Then see the consequence of their plotting- We destroyed them and their people, every one. Here are their homes in ruin because they practiced wrongdoing.” They were destroyed in a blink of an eye. They perished and their houses became empty.

There is indeed a sign in this, “Verily in this is a sign for people who have knowledge.” Knowledge is one of the themes of this Sura. God saved the believers, “And We saved those who believed and were conscious of God.”

Verses 54 to 58:

- 54. (We also sent) Lut (as a messenger), He said to his people, "Will you commit abomination knowingly?
- 55. Do you lust after men instead of women? You are truly ignorant people.
- 56. The only answer his people gave was, “Drive out the followers of Lut from your city; these are indeed people who want to be clean and pure.”
- 57. But We saved him and his family, except his wife; We destined her to be of those who stayed behind.
- 58. And We rained down on them a shower (of brimstone); and evil was the shower on those who have been warned. (27: 54 – 58)

Lut (PBUH) lived in a community in which homosexuality was prevalent. It was an acceptable practice for people. The following verses expressed Lut’s (PBUH) criticism of such practice, “He said to his people, ‘Will you commit abomination knowingly? Do you lust after men instead of women? You are truly ignorant people.’” Their response was to expel Lut (PBUH) and those who believed in him (his family) from their city, “The only answer his people gave was, ‘Drive out the followers of Lut from your city; these are indeed people who want to be clean and pure.’” It may be that they wanted to be sarcastic when they described Lut (PBUH) and his people as, “people who want to be clean and pure.” But God saved Lut (PBUH) and his family except his wife, “But We saved him and his family, except his wife; We destined her to be of those who stayed behind. And We rained down on them a shower (of brimstone); and evil was the shower on those who have been warned.”

Verses 59 to 93:

- 59. Say, “Praise be to God, and peace on his servants whom He has chosen. Who is better? God or the false gods they associate (with Him)?
- 60. Is not He (best) who created the heavens and the earth, and sends down for you water from the sky? With it We produce gardens of joyful beauty, whose trees you could not - have grown yourselves. Is there a deity beside God? No, but they are people who ascribe equals (to Him).*

61. Is not He (best) who made the earth a stable abode, and made rivers flow through it, and set firm mountains on it, and has set a barrier between the two seas? Is there any deity beside God? No, but most of them do not know.
  62. Is not He (best) who answers the one in need when he calls upon Him and removes the evil, and has made you viceroys on the earth? Is there a deity beside God? Little do you remember?
  63. Is not He (best) who guides you in the darkness of the land and the sea, He who sends the winds as heralds of His mercy? Is there a deity beside God? High exalted be God above all that they associate (with Him).
  64. Is not He (best) who originates the creation, then reproduces it, and who provides for you from the heaven and the earth? Is there a deity beside God? Say, "Bring your proof, if you are truthful."
  65. Say (Muhammad), "None in the heavens and the earth knows the unseen save God; and they do not realize when they will be raised (again)."
  66. Their knowledge cannot comprehend the Hereafter. They are in doubt concerning it. They are quite blind to it.
  67. Yet those who disbelieve say, "When we have become dust like our fathers, shall we verily be brought to life again?"
  68. We were promised this, we and our fathers. These are only ancient fables.
  69. Say (to them, Muhammad), "Travel in the land and see how was the end of the guilty."
  70. And grieve you not for them, nor be in distress because of what they plot (against you).
  71. And they say, "When (will) this promise (be fulfilled), if you are truthful?"
  72. Say, "It may be that a part of which you seek to hasten is close behind you."
  73. And indeed, your Lord's bounty for people is limitless, but most of them are not grateful.
  74. And indeed, your Lord knows all that their bosoms do hide, and all that they proclaim.
  75. And there is nothing hidden in the heaven or the earth but it is in a clear Record.
  76. Indeed, this Quran narrates to the Children of Israel most of that which they differ about.
  77. And it certainly is guidance and a mercy to those who believe.
  78. Verily your Lord will judge between them in His wisdom, and He is the Eminent, the Omniscient.
  79. So put your trust in God, indeed you are on (the path of) the manifest truth.
  80. You cannot make the dead to hear; nor can you make the deaf to hear the call if they turn to flee.
  81. Nor can you lead the blind out of their error. You can make none to hear, save those who believe in Our revelations and they have submitted.
  82. And when the word (i.e. the decree) is fulfilled concerning them, We shall bring forth a beast from the earth to speak to them about how the people did not have certitude in Our signs.
  83. One day We shall gather together from every people a group of those who rejected our revelations, and they shall be kept in ranks.
  84. Until, when they come (before their Lord), He will say, "Did you reject My revelations when you could not encompass them in knowledge, or what was it that you did?"
  85. And the Word will be fulfilled concerning them because they have done wrong, and they will not speak.

86. Have they not seen, how We have made the night that they may rest therein, and the day a time for them to see? Indeed, in that are signs for a people who believe.
87. On the Day, when the Trumpet will be blown and all who are in the heavens and the earth will be terrified, save him whom God wills. And all will come to Him in humility.
88. You see the mountains and think them firmly fixed but they shall pass away as the clouds pass away. This is the work of God, who disposes of all things in perfect order; for he is Totally- Aware of all that you do.
89. Whoso brings a good deed will have better than its worth; and they are safe from the fear of that Day.
90. And whoso brings an ill-deed, they will be flung down on their faces in the Fire. Are you recompensed except for what you used to do?
91. I (Muhammad) am commanded only to serve the Lord of this land which He has hallowed, and to whom belong all things. And I am commanded to be of those who submit (to Him),
92. And to recite the Quran. And whoso becomes guided, becomes guided only for (the good of) his own soul; and as for him who goes astray - (to him) say, "I am only a warner."
93. And say, "Praise be to God who will show you His signs so that you shall know them. And your Lord is not unaware of what you do." (27: 59 – 93)

“Say, ‘Praise be to God, and peace on his servants whom He has chosen.’” God commanded His Messenger to say the word with which all believers should start and end their talk, dialogue, or discourse. God is worthy of all praise from His servants for all His blessings. The first of these blessings is His guidance. This verse is followed by a number of rhetorical questions. All these questions have only one answer. It starts with a question, “Who is better? God or the false gods they associate (with Him)?” There is no comparison between God and these false gods. This is a sarcastic question that was meant to rebuke those who associate partners with God. Then the questions continue, “Is not He (best) who created the heavens and the earth, and sends down for you water from the sky? With it We produce gardens of joyful beauty, whose trees you could not have grown yourselves. Is there a deity beside God? No, but they are people who ascribe equals (to Him).” The existence of the heavens and the earth are facts that cannot be disputed by anyone. No one can claim that they were created by the idols, the angels, the devils, the moon, or the sun. The rain that comes down from the sky is a fact that could not be explained except by the existence of God who created the laws that allow the rain to fall down. The rain is the reason for the growth of beautiful gardens with trees and flowers. No one knows how these plants spring to life. There can only be One God.

Then comes another question, “Is not He (best) who made the earth a stable abode, and made rivers flow through it, and set firm mountains on it, and has set a barrier between the two seas? Is there any God beside God? No, but most of them do not know.” The verse talks about the way the earth had been fashioned by God. God made the earth a suitable place for people to live on. The existence of the earth and its ability to provide a “stable abode” for humanity is controlled with a number of delicate laws which were created by God. Any disturbance that happens to these laws could render life on earth impossible. God created rivers. Rivers are the veins of life for earth. They run in different directions to carry irrigation water to different places for plants to grow and crops to be reaped. The mountains are essential for the stability of the earth. Usually, moving rivers start at the feet of a fixed mountain. God made a natural barrier between the salty sea and fresh water river so that their waters do not mix. This is the work of God but many people do not know.

“Is not He (best) who answers the one in need when he calls upon Him and removes the evil, and has made you viceroys of the earth? Is there a deity beside God? Little do you remember?” This verse touches upon the people’s hearts when they are reminded with their inner feelings. A person in distress has no one to call upon except God. When all powers fail and all help is useless and all support is lost; the only One left to turn to is God. When we call upon Him He responds and removes our distress and saves us from evil. We tend to forget this when we are enjoying good times so we seek help and support from mortals like us. We forget that the support, the help, and the power of mortals are transient. They all disappear when an adversity strikes. Only God is eternal. He made humankind a viceroy on earth. God created humankind in such a way that they are able to carry this responsibility. God created the cosmic laws that enabled humankind to live on earth and to fulfill their obligations which they were entrusted with. God created life and death and decreed succession of generations so that human life continues to flourish on earth. One generation replaces another so that the struggle between generations does not hamper the growth of life on earth. Each generation pushes the wheel of progress forward. But humankind forgets these facts.

“Is not He (best) who guides you in the darkness of the land and the sea, He who sends the winds as heralds of His mercy? Is there a deity beside God? High exalted be God above all that they associate (with Him).” Sailors (of them were some who were present at the time of the revelation of the Quran) learn the secrets of navigation through the sea and earn the experience of handling ships at sea. Who enabled them to gain this knowledge? Who enabled their initial natural disposition to discover the natural laws of the universe and discover its secrets? Is not God who taught them? Who created the laws that control the movements of the wind? Is not God who created the laws which control the wind?

“Is not He (best) who originates the creation, then reproduces it, and who provides for you from the heaven and the earth? Is there a deity beside God? Say, ‘Bring your proof, if you are truthful.’” The beginning of the creation is a fact that no one can deny. No one can explain how the creation could have begun without the existence of God. People may argue about resurrection, but having accepted the fact that God is the One who started the creation then it is easy to accept the fact that He can also resurrect people after death. The creation and maintenance of the universe require an enormous amount of planning, management, and control. It makes sense that part of the plan is for people to be resurrected to be held accountable for what they have done during their lives. God provides for people from the heaven and earth. God’s provision for people on earth takes different forms: the plants, the animals, air, water, and the mineral resources whether underground or under the sea. The provision from heaven has many forms: light, heat, rain, and other sources of energy and power. In addition, there is the provision in the Hereafter, which only God knows. The provision is closely related to the creation and the recreation. The provision from the earth is necessary for the beginning and continuation of life. The provision from the heaven is also necessary for the continuation of life on earth and it is closely related to the recompense in the Hereafter. In the Hereafter people will be held accountable for the way they spent the provision that God gave them.

“Say (Muhammad), ‘None in the heavens and the earth knows the unseen save God; and they do not realize when they will be raised (again).’” The belief in the resurrection; the belief in the gathering on the Day of Judgment; and the belief in the accountability of human beings are integral components of the doctrine. The belief in the Day of Judgment is an incentive for people to do good deeds in this life because on that Day people will be recompensed for their deeds. The different generations of the human race have always had difficulty in the belief in resurrection after death. The miracle of the beginning of a new life should have been proof enough for them to believe in the inevitability of resurrection. The verse states that the unseen is only known to God. People knowledge stops at the realm of what can they see or touch. Humankind were not the only creatures who were deprived of the knowledge of the unseen but also the jinn and the angels are equally deprived of this knowledge, “None in the heavens and the earth knows the unseen save God,” a clear and unequivocal statement. They also do not know when they will be resurrected. Not only their knowledge is limited and cannot encompass the Hereafter, but they also harbor doubts regarding it. They are quite blind to it, “Their knowledge cannot comprehend the Hereafter. They are in doubt concerning it. They are quite blind to it.”

So the disbelievers ask, “When we have become dust like our fathers, shall we verily be brought to life again?” people always wondered about resurrection, how can they be brought back to life after their bodies became dust? They forget that they were created before from nothing. No one knows how the cells that formed their original bodies came from. They remember that previous messengers came with the same promise before, “We were promised this, we and our fathers. These are only ancient fables.” But they never thought that these promises will materialize one day. They should take a lesson from the fate of previous generations, “Say (to them, Muhammad), ‘Travel in the land and see how was the end of the guilty.’” Travel and see what happened to those who disbelieved before. Natural laws never change.

The Messenger (PBUH) is then commanded to leave them to their fate; he has done his duty and should not be annoyed with what will happen to them, “And grieve you not for them, nor be in distress because of what they plot (against you).”

The disbelievers continued to challenge the Messenger (PBUH), “And they say, ‘When (will) this promise (be fulfilled), if you are truthful?’” The response came to settle their doubts and to throw fear in their hearts. The fulfillment of the promise may be nearer than what they thought, “Say, ‘It may be that a part of which you seek to hasten is close behind you.’” God’s bounty is abundant. He delayed the punishment to give them a chance to repent but they continued to be ungrateful, “And indeed, your Lord’s bounty for people is limitless, but most of them are not grateful.” God gave them respite in spite of the fact that He knows what they harbor in their hearts, “And indeed, your Lord knows all that their bosoms do hide, and all that they proclaim. And there is nothing hidden in the heaven or the earth but it is in a clear Record.”

“Indeed, this Quran narrates to the Children of Israel most of that which they differ about.” The Quran came with clear verses which established the truth about many of the issues that the Children of Israel differed about. It is also a guidance and mercy for the believers, “And it certainly is guidance and a mercy to those who believe.” The Quran unites the believers around the Islamic project and protects them from going astray. It is a mercy that clears their doubts and provides a link to God. The Islamic project is a unique program that trains the spirits to live in harmony with the natural laws that controls this universe. This fills the spirits with peace and security. The Messenger was reassured that God will settle the dispute between him and his people, “Verily your Lord will judge between them in His wisdom, and He is the Eminent, the Omniscient.” The Messenger (PBUH) was commanded to put his trust in God. God has decreed that the truth will prevail, “So put your trust in God, indeed you are on (the path of) the manifest truth.”

The verses continued to comfort the Messenger (PBUH) telling him that he did his best but he could not let the dead hear his call, “You cannot make the dead to hear; nor can you make the deaf to hear the call if they turn to flee. Nor can you lead the blind out of their error. You can make none to hear, save those who believe Our revelations and they have submitted.” The Quran paints a lively dynamic image for the psyche of the disbeliever. The image portrays their rigid hearts, their numb spirits, and their lack of feelings. These are all characteristics of the dead. Those who listen to God’s words are the truly living, “save those who believe in Our revelations and they have submitted.” Only those whose hearts are open to receive guidance can hear the Messenger (PBUH). They are alive so they can hear and feel.

The following verses take us on a tour of the signs of the approaching Day of Judgment, “And when the word (i.e. the decree) is fulfilled concerning them, We shall bring forth a beast from the earth to speak to them about how the people did not have certitude in Our signs.” The story of this beast was mentioned in several prophetic traditions some of them are sound and others are weak. The sound traditions do not mention the characteristics of the beast. So, we will not discuss the shape and form of this beast. The things that are important and relevant is the fact that the coming of the beast is one of the signs that will herald the approaching Day of Judgment. At that time the opportunity for repentance will have passed. The beast will be one of God’s miracles because it will be able to communicate with people and they will be able to understand what it will say.

A description of some of the images on the Day of Judgment follows, “One day We shall gather together from every people a group of those who rejected our revelations, and they shall be kept in ranks.” The verse depicts the disbelievers as a powerless flock being herded, they will not have a say as to where they will be driven. They will then be questioned, “Until, when they come (before their Lord), He will say, ‘Did you reject My revelations when you could not encompass them in knowledge, or what was it that you did?’” They will be rebuked in a sarcastic way. They will be speechless and will have no answers to the questions being asked, “And the Word will be fulfilled concerning them because they have done wrong, and they will not speak.” They will receive their judgment for the wrong they did before and they will be speechless.

The narrative then moves to another theme, scenes from the worldly life, “Have they not seen how We have made the night that they may rest therein, and the day a time for them to see? Indeed, in that are signs for a people who believe.” The day and night are cosmic phenomena which evoke religious feelings in the hearts of people, feelings which entice those with open hearts to guidance to seek the pleasure of being close to God who moves the night and day around. Without a day and a night no life would be able to continue on earth. The day and night were created in just balance to maintain life on earth. The heat of a longer day would burn plants and animals. The cold of a longer night would cause everything to freeze. Then the scene moves rapidly to the Day of Judgment again, “On the Day when the Trumpet will be blown, and all who are in the heavens and the earth will be terrified, save him whom God wills. And all will come to Him in humility.” The trumpet will be blown once, and fear will fill all those who are in the heaven and the earth except those whom God chose not be frightened; it is said that those are the martyrs. Everyone will perish. Then the trumpet will be blown again and people will be resurrected. The third blow will gather people together in humility.

God’s creation is wonderful, “You see the mountains and think them firmly fixed but they shall pass away as the clouds pass away. This is the work of God, who disposes of all things in perfect order; for He is Totally- Aware of all that you do.”

“Whoso brings a good deed will have better than its worth; and they are safe from the fear of that Day.” The believers will be rewarded. What better reward than being safe from the fear of the Day of Judgment? Those who disbelieved will have their recompense as well, “And whoso brings an ill-deed, they will be flung down on their faces in the Fire. Are you recompensed except for what you used to do?”

In the conclusion, the Messenger (PBUH) summarizes his Message and his approach in calling people to the Message, “I (Muhammad) am commanded only to serve the Lord of this land which He has hallowed, and to whom belong all things. And I am commanded to be of those who submit (to Him), and to recite the Quran.” The idolaters of Mecca recognized the sanctity of their city and the holiness of the House of God. However, they did not believe in the Oneness of God who made this place holy. The verses state the fundamental components of faith. He was commanded to worship God alone; the Lord of this city is the Lord of the universe. He was commanded to submit to God alone. These are the fundamentals of the faith. The methodology of maintaining this faith is then outlined. First, He was commanded to recite the Quran. The Quran is the Book of this faith and its constitution. It is the tool that the believers should use in their struggle against the disbelievers. It is the tool that the believers should use in their struggle against temptation.

The verses state the individual responsibility in the belief in the Oneness of God, “And whoso becomes guided, becomes guided only for (the good of) his own soul; and as for him who goes astray - (to him) say, ‘I am only a warner.’” Everyone is responsible for his own deeds. The way to guidance is only through the Quran. The task of the Messenger (PBUH) is only to warn.

And say, 'Praise be to God who will show you His signs so that you shall know them. And your Lord is not unaware of what you do.' God's signs are all around us. Every day a new sign is revealed. The Sura ends with the unequivocal statement. God is Totally-Aware of all what we do.

Sura 28: Al-Qasas (The Stories)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 43:

1. Ta. Sin. Mim.
2. These are Verses of the Book that makes (things) clear.
3. We narrate to you part of the story of Moses and Pharaoh in truth, for people who believe.
4. Pharaoh exalted himself in the land and divided its people into factions. He persecuted a group of them, killing their sons and sparing their women. He was, indeed, of those who spread corruption.
5. And We desired to confer favor on those who were oppressed in the land, and to make them leaders, and to make them the inheritors,
6. And to establish them in the land, and to show Pharaoh and Haman and their hosts that which they feared from them.
7. And We inspired the mother of Moses, saying, "Suckle him and, when you fear for his safety, then cast him into the river and fear not nor grieve. We shall bring him back to you and shall make him (one) of Our messengers.
8. And the family of Pharaoh picked him up, that he might become for them an enemy and a source of grief; indeed, Pharaoh and Haman and their hosts were deliberate sinners.
9. The wife of Pharaoh said, "(Here is) joy of the eye, for me and for you. Do not slay him. It may be that he will be of use to us, or we may adopt him as a son." And they realized not (what they were doing).
10. And the heart of the mother of Moses became void, and she would have betrayed him if We had not fortified her heart, that she might be of the believers.
11. And she said to his sister, "Follow him." So she observed him from afar, and they were unaware.
12. And We ordained that he would refuse to be suckled by any of the wet nurses, so she (his sister) said, "Shall I tell you about a household who will take care of him for you?"
13. So We returned him to his mother that she might be comforted and not grieve, and that she might know that the promise of God is true. But most of them do not know.
14. When he reached maturity, and became firmly established, We bestowed on him wisdom and knowledge. Thus, do We reward the doers of good.
15. And he entered the city unnoticed, and he found there two men fighting, one of his own people, and the other, of his foes. The man who was of his own people asked for help against his foe. Moses struck him with his fist and (unintentionally) killed him. He said, "This is the work of Satan, for he is an enemy that openly misleads."
16. He said, "My Lord, I have wronged myself, so forgive me." Then He forgave him. He is the All-Forgiving, the Giver of Mercy.
17. He said, "My Lord, in as much as you have bestowed Your Blessing on me, I shall never be a supporter of the criminals."

18. The next morning, he was walking in the city, fearful, vigilant; when the one who sought his help the day before cried out to him for help. Moses said to him, "You are clearly a mischief-maker."
19. As he was about to strike the man who was their enemy, he said, "Moses, do you want to kill me as you killed a person yesterday. You want to be a tyrant in the land, and you do not want to be a peacemaker."
20. And a man came hurriedly from the farthest part of the city. He said, "Moses, the chiefs are conspiring to kill you; therefore, escape. I am giving you good advice."
21. So he escaped from the city, fearful, vigilant. He said "My Lord, deliver me from the wrongdoers."
22. Then, when he turned his face towards (the land of) Madyan, he said, "I do hope that my Lord will show me the straight path."
23. And when he arrived at the watering (place) in Madyan, he found there, a group of men watering (their flocks), and besides them he found two women who were keeping back (their flocks). He said, "What is the matter with you?" They said, "We cannot water (our flocks) until the shepherds take back (their flocks). And our father is a very old man."
24. So, he watered (their flocks) for them; then he turned back to the shade, and said, "My Lord, truly I am in (desperate) need of any good that You send down for me."
25. Then one of the two women came to him, walking shyly. She said, "My father invites you, that he may reward you having watered (the flock) for us. Then, when he came to him and told him the (whole) story, he said, "Fear not, you escaped from the wrongdoers."
26. One of the two women said, "My father, hire him. Indeed, the best (man) that you can hire is the strong, the trustworthy."
27. He said, "I desire to wed one of these two daughters of mine to you, on condition that you serve me for eight years; but if you complete ten years, it will be (a grace) from you. But I intend not to place you under any difficulty. You will find me, indeed, God willing, one of the righteous."
28. He said, "That (is settled) between you and me. Whichever of the two terms I fulfill, there will be no injustice to me, and God is a witness over what we say."
29. Then, when Moses had fulfilled the term, and was travelling with his family, he saw in the distance a fire. He said to his family, "Wait, I see in the distance a fire; maybe I shall bring you some news, or a burning brand from the fire that you may warm yourselves."
30. But when he came to the (fire), a voice was heard from the right bank of the valley at the blessed spot from the tree, "Moses, I, am God, the Lord of the Worlds."
31. Throw down your staff, and when he saw it wiggling as it had been a demon, he turned to flee headlong, (and it was said to him), "Moses, draw near and fear not. You are of those who are secure."
32. Thrust your hand into the bosom of your robe it will come forth white without being harmed. And draw in your arm close to you (to guard) from fear. Then, these shall be two proofs from your Lord to Pharaoh and his chiefs. They are indeed transgressors."
33. He said, "My Lord, I killed one of them and I fear that they will kill me."
34. And my brother Aaron is more eloquent than me in speech. Therefore, send him with me as a helper to confirm my words. I fear that they will reject me."

35. He (God) said, "We will certainly strengthen your arm with your brother, and invest you both with authority, so they shall not be able to touch you. With Our signs, you two as well as those who follow you will be triumphant."
36. When Moses came to them with Our clear signs, they said," this is nothing but invented magic. We never heard of this from our forefathers."
37. Moses said, "My Lord knows best who brings guidance from Him and whose end will be best in the Hereafter. Certainly, the wrongdoers will not succeed."
38. Pharaoh said, "Chiefs, I know not of any deity for you but myself. Therefore, Haman, light me a (kiln to bake bricks) out of clay, and build me a lofty tower, that I may mount up to the god of Moses. But I think he (Moses) is a liar."
39. And he was unjustly proud in the land, he and his hosts, and they deemed that they would not be brought back to Us.
40. So, We seized him and his hosts, and We cast them into the sea, see what was the end of the wrongdoers.
41. And we made them leaders who invite to the Fire; and on the Day of Resurrection they will not be helped.
42. And We made a curse to follow them in this world, and on the Day of Resurrection they will be among the hateful.
43. We did reveal to Moses the Scripture after We had destroyed the earlier generations, (to give) insight to people, and guidance and mercy, that they might remember. (28: 1 - 43)

This Sura was revealed in Mecca. The Muslims were few in number at the time. They were persecuted and humiliated by the idolaters who had the power, the wealth, and the numbers. The Sura establishes the true measure for power and values. The Sura states that there is one power in this universe: the power of God. It states that there is only one value in this universe: the value of faith. Those who are aligned with God should not have any worry even if they were few in number and even if they lacked the material strength. Those who are against God have neither security nor assurance, even if they are able to muster a mighty material power. To the faithful belongs all goodness.

The Sura starts with three letters of the Alphabet, "Ta. Sin. Mim," to emphasize the fact that the Quran has been composed using the letters of the Arabic Alphabet. The Quran is a revealed Book, "These are Verses of the Book that makes (things) clear." God addresses the believers using this Quran. God's words provide training to the believers and outline the fundamentals of the Islamic project, "We narrate to you part of the story of Moses and Pharaoh in truth, for people who believe." God honors the believers by addressing them using the verses of the Quran.

The following verses describe the conditions in Egypt at the time when Moses (PBUH) was born. Only in this Sura the story of Moses (PBUH) starts with mention of Moses (PBUH) birth. This brings into focus the contrast between Pharaoh's might and Moses' (PBUH) helplessness, "Pharaoh exalted himself in the land and divided its people into factions. He persecuted a group of them, killing their sons and sparing their women. He was, indeed, of those who spread corruption.” The verses do not specify which Pharaoh was the subject of this story. The verses focus on the characteristics of Pharaoh not his name. He was a tyrant and he persecuted the Children of Israel who came to Egypt with their father Israel (PBUH) at the time of Joseph (PBUH). They resided in Egypt and multiplied. They had their own religion, the religion of Israel (PBUH) and did not share the Egyptians their beliefs. Pharaoh was concerned about the perceived threat which the Israelis posed to his kingdom and his person. He needed them to complement his labor force. So, he could not expel them from Egypt; instead, he devised the evil scheme of slaying the males among the newborn and letting the females live. In addition, he persecuted the adults. Pharaoh thought that this will save him and he forgot that safety and security are decreed by God alone. God’s will always overpower the will of His creatures no matter how powerful they are. The verses then declare what God willed, “And We desired to confer favor on those who were oppressed in the land, and to make them leaders, and to make them the inheritors, and to establish them in the land, and to show Pharaoh and Haman and their hosts that which they feared from them.” God wanted those who were persecuted and humiliated to take their place of honor in the land. God promised to bestow His grace on them and will make them leaders and inheritors of the land. This was God’s reward for them, they earned it by being believers and righteous. Let Pharaoh, Haman and their hosts scheme and persecute, but God’s plan will prevail without they even realizing it.

Having set the stage, the verses continue to narrate the details of Moses’ (PBUH) birth story. The next verse describes the first scene of the story, the scene of the perplexed mother who was fearful for the life of her newborn and how God comforted her and inspired her, “And We inspired the mother of Moses, saying, ‘Suckle him and, when you fear for his safety, then cast him into the river and fear not nor grieve. We shall bring him back to you and shall make him (one) of Our messengers.’” Moses’ (PBUH) mother was apprehensive when she gave birth to Moses (PBUH), she was afraid that the news will reach Pharaoh’s soldiers. So, God inspired her to cast him in the river. The inspiration brought comfort and security to Moses’ (PBUH) mother: do not fear nor grieve, God will take care of him. The promise was made that not only God will return him safe and sound to her but He will also make him one of God’s messengers.

The second scene of the story depicts the events at Pharaoh’s place when they picked up the newborn baby in his cradle, “And the family of Pharaoh picked him up, that he might become for them an enemy and a source of grief, indeed, Pharaoh and Haman and their hosts were deliberate sinners.” Pharaoh’s soldiers were looking everywhere for the newborn male babies to slay them, and here is one that would float right into Pharaoh’s palace. The verse indicates clearly the intention of bringing the harmless, helpless Moses’ (PBUH) into the hands of Pharaoh. He will become for them, “an enemy and a source of grief.” God made Pharaoh’s wife tender towards the baby. She pleaded with her husband, “The wife of Pharaoh said, ‘(Here is) joy of the eye, for me and for you. Do not slay him. It may be that he will be of use to us, or we may adopt him as a son.’ And they realized not (what they were doing).” Moses (PBUH) was protected from Pharaoh’s persecution, not by force but by love. God filled Pharaoh’s wife with overwhelming love for this baby whom they just picked up from the river. She argued that he may be of use to them or they may want to adopt him as a son so they spared his life. Little they knew what the future will bring, “And they realized not (what they were doing).”

Then we come to the third scene, the scene of Moses’ (PBUH) mother, the worried mother who acted according to the inspiration but now became apprehensive and fearful of what might happen to her baby, “And the heart of the mother of Moses became void, and she would have betrayed him if We had not fortified her heart, that she might be of the believers.” The Quran uses an extremely expressive word to describe the mother’s feelings, “And the heart of the mother of Moses became void.” Her heart became void of all means of rationalization or power to think. She was about to give her secret away, “would have betrayed him,” but God gave her the strength to trust in His promise and to remain steadfast, “if We had not fortified her heart.”

However, she wanted to know her son’s fate, “And she said to his sister, ‘Follow him.’ So she observed him from afar, and they were unaware.” She must have seen him in the hands of Pharaoh’s servants while they were looking for a woman to nurse him. It was part of the divine plan that Moses (PBUH) would refuse to suckle from any of the women that were ready to suckle him, “And We ordained that he would refuse to be suckled by any of the wet nurses,” His sister then came forward suggesting a solution to save the baby, “so she (his sister) said, ‘Shall I tell you about a household who will take care of him for you?’” This suggestion was happily embraced by the people of Pharaoh. So, he was brought back to his mother, “So We returned him to his mother that she might be comforted and not grieve, and that she might know that the promise of God is true. But most of them do not know.” The baby was returned safe and sound back to his mother, protected by Pharaoh, and loved by Pharaoh’s wife.

Moses’ (PBUH) years of growing up are missing from the narrative. The verses move to the time when Moses’ (PBUH) reached maturity, “When he reached maturity, and became firmly established, We bestowed on him wisdom and knowledge. Thus, do We reward the doers of good.” The age of maturity is around thirty years of age. Many questions arise, did Moses (PBUH) live in Pharaoh’s palace all this time? Or did he move out at some point in time? He must have known who he was and what his faith was. How did he feel about the way the Israelis were treated in Egypt? These questions have no answers, but the verse states that he was a doer of good and God rewarded him by bestowing on him wisdom and knowledge.

“And he entered the city unnoticed, and he found there two men fighting, one of his own people, and the other, of his foes. The man who was of his own people asked for help against his foe. Moses struck him with his fist and (unintentionally) killed him. He said, ‘This is the work of Satan, for he is an enemy that openly misleads.’” He entered the city and found two men fighting, one of them was an Israeli and the other was an Egyptian. The Israeli asked him for help. Moses (PBUH) struck the Egyptian with his fist and killed him. It took one strike from his fist to kill the man which indicates the physical strength of Moses (PBUH). Moses (PBUH) did not intend to kill the Egyptian and when he saw him lying on the ground dead, he regretted ever striking him. He asked God for forgiveness, “He said, ‘My Lord, I have wronged myself, so forgive me.’ Then He forgave him. He is the All-Forgiving, the Giver of Mercy.” It seems that the high level of spirituality that Moses (PBUH) had achieved made him feel that God has forgiven him, so he made a pledge to God, “He said, ‘My Lord, in as much as you have bestowed Your Blessing on me, I shall never be a supporter of the criminals.”” It is a clear pledge that affirmed his intention not to side with the guilty. This represented an unequivocal denunciation of all types of crimes and criminals, even if it were in response to persecution or humiliation.

The verses move to describe the following scene, “The next morning, he was walking in the city, fearful, vigilant; when the one who sought his help the day before cried out to him for help. Moses said to him, ‘You are clearly a mischief-maker.’” The first encounter ended with the death of an Egyptian. Moses (PBUH) regretted what he had done and sought God’s forgiveness which he received. He then pledged not to support the wrongdoers in any way. He woke up in the morning fearing that the authorities would discover what he had done and punish him for it. The Arabic text describes Moses (PBUH) to be in a state of anticipation and apprehension. One may also assume that Moses (PBUH) was no longer attached to Pharaoh’s court in any way at that time. Why would he be afraid if he was still part of that court? While he was in this situation, Moses (PBUH) heard a cry for help from the same Israeli who sought his help the previous day. He was again involved in a fight with another Egyptian. Moses (PBUH) realized that this person was indeed a mischief-maker. Moses’ (PBUH) volatile nature overcame him and he was about to strike the Egyptian. His actions may have been also motivated by the feelings of injustice and persecution practiced for many years by the Pharaoh against his people. The Egyptian reminded Moses (PBUH) of what had happened the day before, “As he was about to strike the man who was their enemy, he said, ‘Moses, do you want to kill me as you killed a person yesterday. You want to be a tyrant in the land, and you do not want to be a peacemaker.’” One also may deduce from the way that the Egyptian used in addressing Moses (PBUH) that Moses (PBUH) had a reputation for being a peacemaker. It also confirms the idea that Moses (PBUH) was not connected to Pharaoh’s court at that time. Had he been, the Egyptian would not have dared to rebuke him in such a strong language. It is important to notice how the Quran described Moses’ (PBUH) actions in these two episodes. While it does not justify the assault on the Egyptians, it describes clearly the context of the conflicts and how Moses’ (PBUH) reactions were motivated in part by his resentment of the way the Egyptians treated the Israelis. The remarks of the Egyptian stopped Moses (PBUH) in his tracks and the Egyptian fled safely.

The verses then move to another scene, “And a man came hurriedly from the farthest part of the city. He said, ‘Moses, the chiefs are conspiring to kill you; therefore, escape. I am giving you good advice.’” The chiefs in the Pharaoh’s court knew about the incidents and they must have feared that these incidents would precipitate a revolt against the authorities. So, they schemed to kill Moses (PBUH). They must have thought that it is better to be proactive in quelling the revolt before it erupts. Moses (PBUH) reacted quickly, “So he escaped from the city, fearful, vigilant. He said ‘My Lord, deliver me from the wrongdoers.’” The verse describes Moses’ (PBUH) mindset. He was afraid, apprehensive, and feeling lonely in the vast desert. His only recourse was to God. So he prayed God for safety, security, and guidance, “Then, when he turned his face towards (the land of) Madyan, he said, ‘I do hope that my Lord will show me the straight path.’”

“And when he arrived at the watering (place) in Madyan, he found there a group of men watering (their flocks), and besides them he found two women who were keeping back (their flocks). He said, ‘What is the matter with you?’ They said, ‘We cannot water (our flocks) until the shepherds take back (their flocks). And our father is a very old man.’” His long journey ended up at a watering place in Madyan. He arrived tired and exhausted. He saw a crowd of shepherds watering their sheep and he noticed these two ladies who were keeping their sheep away from the watering place. His gallant nature revolted against this lack of etiquette. He asked them, “What is the matter with you?” They said, “We cannot water (our flocks) until the shepherds take back (their flocks). And our father is a very old man.” So he watered their sheep for them. One cannot but notice the nobility of Moses’ (PBUH) character. A fleeing man, tired and exhausted after this long journey thinks of only one thing: to help the weak. He was not worried about his safety; he was only worried about helping whoever is in need, “So he watered (their flocks) for them;”

He then sought to rest in the shade, which indicates that it was a hot sunny morning. Moses (PBUH) sat in the shade and prayed God, “Then he turned back to the shade, and said, ‘My Lord, truly I am in (desperate) need of any good that You send down for me.’” Moses (PBUH) pleaded with God saying he was in desperate need for help. The response was quick, “Then one of the two women came to him, walking shyly. She said, ‘My father invites you, that he may reward you having watered (the flock) for us.’” One of the two ladies came walking shyly to him. The verse stresses her decent approach to Moses (PBUH) inviting him to meet her father. Although she was shy but her speech was clear and the message was precise. The following verse takes us to the meeting between Moses (PBUH) and the old man. The Quran does not reveal the identity of the old man, but only narrates the dialogue between him and Moses (PBUH), “Then, when he came to him and told him the (whole) story, he said, ‘Fear not, you escaped from the wrongdoers.’” The old man reassured Moses (PBUH) that he was safe in Madyan.

“One of the two women said, ‘My father, hire him. Indeed the best (man) that you can hire is the strong, the trustworthy.’” The two women worked hard to take care of the sheep, feed them, and water them. The previous verses described the difficulty they were facing in watering the sheep and how they had to compete with strong men to be able to do it. The two ladies were reluctant to engage in such a competition with the other shepherds. One of them saw an opportunity for a solution that would benefit them and in the same time benefit the stranger. She advised her father to hire him. She described him as “strong and trustworthy,” a conclusion that shows the woman’s intuition. The old man accepted the idea and approached Moses (PBUH) in a straight forward way, “He said, ‘I desire to wed one of these two daughters of mine to you, on condition that you serve me for eight years; but if you complete ten years, it will be (a grace) from you. But I intend not to place you under any difficulty. You will find me, indeed, God willing, one of the righteous.’” This was a simple and straight forward offer combined with a promise of fair working conditions. The old man did not promote himself but expressed his hope that Moses (PBUH) would find him a righteous person which reflects his modesty and good character. Moses accepted, “He said, ‘That (is settled) between you and me. Whichever of the two terms I fulfill, there will be no injustice to me, and God is a witness over what we say.’” The conditions for the contract were clearly stated and accepted by both men. It was narrated that Moses (PBUH) completed the longer term although it was his choice to stop after the eight years as agreed upon in the contract.

Before continuing with the story let us stop for minute to reflect on the different experiences that Moses (PBUH) went through. These experiences were part of his training to become a messenger of God. His responsibility was difficult, that is why his training took a long time and a number of experiences so that he would be ready to undertake the difficult task that would be entrusted to him. His task was difficult because he was sent to the worst tyrant on earth. He was sent to liberate a people who lived for a long time under persecution and humiliation and who lost their faith in the process. His task was not only to liberate his people but to retrain them and to reshape them into a new confident nation on the basis of a strong foundation of faith.

“Then, when Moses had fulfilled the term, and was travelling with his family, he saw in the distance a fire. He said to his family, ‘Wait, I see in the distance a fire; maybe I shall bring you some news, or a burning brand from the fire that you may warm yourselves.’” Moses (PBUH) completed his term according to the contract and embarked with his family on a trip to return back to Egypt. On his way, in the darkness of the desert and not knowing where he was, he saw a fire. He told his family to stay in their place while he would go to seek directions and bring back a burning brand of fire to give them warmth in this cold night. When he got there he heard a voice, “But when he came to the (fire), a voice was heard from the right bank of the valley at the blessed spot from the tree, ‘Moses, I, am God, the Lord of the Worlds.’” Moses (PBUH) heard the voice while he was standing alone in the vast desert; a voice that resonated in the universe around him. This was a blessed place; here is God talking to Moses (PBUH). The voice continued, “Throw down your staff.” He obeyed the command and threw his staff. The staff was no longer a staff but it turned into a serpent, “he saw it wiggling as it had been a demon.” This was a surprise which he was not prepared for, so he turned around and started running, “he turned to flee headlong, (and it was said to him).” But the voice reassured him, “Moses, draw near and fear not. You are of those who are secure.” God gave him an assurance of safety and security.

“Thrust your hand into the bosom of your robe it will come forth white without being harmed.” Moses (PBUH) obeyed the command. He put his hand inside the opening of his shirt then he took it out; he saw that the color of the skin on his hand became glittering white. His natural skin color was dark. But his hand felt healthy and there was nothing wrong with it. This was a sign for the bright white color of the truth. Once again, Moses (PBUH) was frightened, so God calmed him down, “draw in your arm close to you (to guard) from fear.” As if his hands were wings that he could use to cover his chest, and thus bring security to his heart similar to what a bird would do.

Having been shown the miracles and being reassured; it was the time to give him the undertaking which he was being prepared for since childhood, “Then these shall be two proofs from your Lord to Pharaoh and his chiefs. They are indeed transgressors.” This was a fulfillment of the promise that God made to his mother, “We shall bring him back to you and shall make him (one) of Our messengers.” But Moses (PBUH) recalled the circumstances surrounding his escape from Egypt, “He said, ‘My Lord, I killed one of them and I fear that they will kill me.’” It was not his unwillingness to accept the undertaking that made him say this, but it was his eagerness to fulfill his responsibility successfully. He also needed his brother’s assistance, “And my brother Aaron is more eloquent than me in speech. Therefore send him with me as a helper to confirm my words. I fear that they will reject me.” God accepted his request and provided further reassurance of safety, “He (God) said, ‘We will certainly strengthen your arm with your brother, and invest you both with authority, so they shall not be able to touch you.’” Not only God answered his request and reassured him regarding his and his brother’s safety but God also promised him victory, “With Our signs, you two as well as those who follow you will be triumphant.”

The narrative moves fast forward to describe the encounter between Moses (PBUH) and Pharaoh and his chiefs, “When Moses came to them with Our clear signs, they said, ‘This is nothing but invented magic.’” This is the same argument that Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) heard from the people of Quraish. It is a lame argument that is made to support falsehood against the truth. They claimed that the miracles that Moses (PBUH) showed them were merely the work of magic, although they had no real evidence to support their claim. The only evidence they had was that, “We never heard of this from our forefathers.” They did not provide a proof that Moses (PBUH) could refute logically, so he sought God’s judgment, “Moses said, ‘My Lord knows best who brings guidance from Him and whose end will be best in the Hereafter. Certainly, the wrongdoers will not succeed.’” It is a clear and honest answer but it is also a diplomatic answer that does not pose a direct accusation or threat. On the contrary to that, Pharaoh’s answer was rude and sarcastic, “Pharaoh said, ‘Chiefs, I know not of any deity for you but myself.’” This was an audacious statement from Pharaoh, “I know not of any deity for you but myself,” which was accepted readily by his court. His tyranny subdued them, they could not think for themselves. He made the ridiculous assertion and they accepted it without any argument. Then he continued in his sarcasm, “Therefore, Haman, light me a (kiln to bake bricks) out of clay, and build me a lofty tower, that I may mount up to the god of Moses. But I think he (Moses) is a liar.”

The narrative again jumps to the conclusion of the story, “And he was unjustly proud in the land, he and his hosts, and they deemed that they would not be brought back to Us.” Because they never believed that they will be returning to God, they became arrogant and rejected the warning. God seized them, “So We seized him and his hosts, and We cast them into the sea, see what was the end of the wrongdoers.” This was the end of the wrongdoers.

The narrative then jumps to a scene of the scenes of the Hereafter, “And we made them leaders who invite to the Fire; and on the Day of Resurrection they will not be helped.” They lost both the worldly life and the Hereafter. Not only they lost but they were also cursed, “And We made a curse to follow them in this world, and on the Day of Resurrection they will be among the hateful.” After being arrogant in the worldly life they will become ugly in the Hereafter. This brings us to the end of the Pharaoh’s story but the verses continue to discuss the fate of Prophet Moses (PBUH), “We did reveal to Moses the Scripture after We had destroyed the earlier generations, (to give) insight to people, and guidance and mercy, that they might remember.” It is an honored fate and great reward.

Verses 44 to 75:

44. And you (Muhammad) were not on the western side (of the Mount) when We decreed the command to Moses, and you were not among those present;
45. But We brought forth generations, who lived long lives. And you were not living among the people of Madyan reciting to them Our revelations, but We kept sending (messengers to people).
46. Nor were you at the side of (the Mountain of) Tur when we called (to Moses). Yet (you are sent) as mercy from your Lord, to give warning to a people to whom no warner had come before you; in order that they may be reminded.
47. Otherwise, if a disaster should afflict them because of that which their own hands have earned, they might say, “Our Lord, if only You had sent a messenger to us, that we might have followed Your revelations and been of the believers?”
48. But when the truth came to them from Ourselves, they said, "If only he was given the like of what Moses was given." Did they not reject what was formerly sent to Moses? They said, "Two kinds of magic that support each other." And they said, "Indeed, we disbelieve in both."
49. Say (Muhammad), “Then bring a Book from God, which is a better guide than either of them, that I may follow; if you are truthful.”
50. But if they do not respond to you, then know that they only follow their own whims and who is more astray than one who follows his own whims, devoid of guidance from God? God does not guide the wrongdoers.
51. We have delivered the word to them, in order that they may be reminded.
52. Those to whom We sent the Scripture before this, they do believe in this (revelation).
53. And when it is recited to them, they say, "We believe in it, it is the truth from our Lord. Indeed, we have submitted before this.”
54. These will be given their reward twice over, because they persevered and they used to repel evil with good, and spend of that which We have provided them,
55. And when they hear vain talk, they turn away from it and say, "To us our deeds, and to you yours; peace be with you; we do not seek the ignorant."
56. You (Muhammad) will not guide whom you love, but God guides whom He wills. And He is fully aware of those who are guided.

57. They say, "If we were to follow the guidance with you, we would be snatched away from our land." Have We not established for them a secure sanctuary, to which are brought the fruits of all kinds- a provision from Ourselves? But most of them do not know.
58. And how many a town, which exulted in its means of subsistence, have We destroyed; these are their abodes, they have not been dwelt in after them except a little, and We are the inheritors,
59. Nor was your Lord the one to destroy a population until He had sent to its centre a messenger, reciting to them Our revelations; nor are We going to destroy a population except when its members were wrongdoers.
60. And whatsoever you have been given is a comfort of the life of the world and an ornament thereof; and that which God has is better and more lasting. Will you not use reason?
61. Is he whom We have promised a fair promise which he will find (true) like him whom We have provided with the provisions of this world's life, then on the Day of Resurrection he shall be of those who are brought up (for punishment)?
62. On the day when He will call them and say, "Where are those whom you used to allege as My partners?"
63. Those against whom the sentence has become confirmed will say, "Our Lord, these are they whom we caused to err; we caused them to err as we ourselves did err; to You we declare ourselves to be disassociated (of them); they never worshiped us."
64. It will be said (to them), "Call upon your (so-called) partners (for help)." They will call upon them, but they will not respond to them; and they will see the torment (before them); (how they will wish) if only they had followed guidance.
65. That Day (God) will call to them, and say, "What was the answer you gave to the messengers?"
66. On that Day all news will seem obscure to them and they will not be able to question each other.
67. But whoever had repented, believed, and did good deeds maybe he will be among the successful.
68. Your Lord creates and chooses as He pleases. No one had any choice. Glory be to God. He is far above the partners they associate with Him.
69. And your Lord knows all that their hearts conceal and all that they reveal.
70. And He is God; there is no deity but He. All praise is due to Him, in this life and in the next. His is the Arbitration, and to Him shall you (all) be brought back.
71. Say, "Have you considered, if God were to make the night everlasting over you to the Day of Resurrection, what god is there other than God, who can give you light? Will you not then listen?"
72. Say, "Have you considered? If God were to make the day everlasting over you to the Day of Resurrection, what god is there other than God, who can give you a night in which you can rest? Will you not then see?"
73. It is out of His Mercy that He has made for you night and day, that you may rest therein, and that you may seek of his bounty; and in order that you may be grateful.
74. The Day that He will call on them, He will say, "Where are those whom you used to allege as My partners?"

75. And from each nation, We will draw a witness; and We shall say, "Produce your proof." They shall then know that God alone has the truth, and the (lies) which they invented will leave them in lurch. (28: 44 – 75)

A new theme is dealt with in the following verses. The theme revolves around the issue of the truth of the revelation. Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) was narrating to them events that happened long before he existed. The only way he would have known these details is through a divine revelation, "And you (Muhammad) were not on the western side (of the Mount) when We decreed the command to Moses, and you were not among those present." Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) was not present when Moses (PBUH) met with his Lord at the western side of the mount of Tur. This was the meeting during which Prophet Moses (PBUH) received the Tablets from God. This happened long before the time of Prophet Muhammad (PBUH), "But We brought forth generations, who lived long lives. And you were not living among the people of Madyan reciting to them Our revelations, but We kept sending (messengers to people). Nor were you at the side of (the Mountain of) Tur when we called (to Moses). Yet (you are sent) as mercy from your Lord, to give warning to a people to whom no warner had come before you; in order that they may be reminded." The only way that Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) would have known the details of these events is from the divine revelation that he received. This revelation came as a mercy for people so that they may be reminded.

"Otherwise, if a disaster should afflict them because of that which their own hands have earned, they might say, 'Our Lord, if only You had sent a messenger to us, that we might have followed Your revelations and been of the believers?'" This is what they would have said, had not God sent a messenger to warn them. But, when the messenger came to them, they found another excuse, "But when the truth came to them from Ourselves, they said, 'If only he was given the like of what Moses was given.' Did they not reject what was formerly sent to Moses? They said, 'Two kinds of magic that support each other.' And they said, 'Indeed, we disbelieve in both.'" They were not true to their word; they were simply making excuses to justify their disbelief.

But the Prophet (PBUH) was commanded to go along with them, "Say (Muhammad), 'Then bring a Book from God, which is a better guide than either of them, that I may follow; if you are truthful.' But if they do not respond to you, then know that they only follow their own whims and who is more astray than one who follows his own whims, devoid of guidance from God? God does not guide the wrongdoers." The Quran came with the clear truth. Those who rejected the Quran are simply following their whims and desires. The people are one of two kinds: those who are sincerely interested in the truth and those who follow their own whims. People in the first group will find their way to guidance and belief, but people in the second group will produce false arguments and will reject guidance. Those who follow their whims without seeking guidance from God are truly lost. They are wrongdoers and that is why God did not guide them.

The people who sought and found the truth are depicted in the following verses, “We have delivered the word to them, in order that they may be reminded. Those to whom We sent the Scripture before this, they do believe in this (revelation). And when it is recited to them, they say, ‘We believe in it, it is the truth from our Lord. Indeed, we have submitted before this.’ These will be given their reward twice over, because they persevered and they used to repel evil with good, and spend of that which We have provided them.” It has been narrated that these verses detail an actual event that occurred. A group of Christians met with Prophet Muhammad (PBUH). They discussed Islam with him and listened to him reciting the Quran. At the end of their meeting they declared their submission to God and they became Muslims. There are different narrations about where these Christians came from. One narration stated that they came from Ethiopia, but another narration stated that they came from Yemen. Either way, the point here is that the Quran mentioned this incident which the Arabs of Quraish were privy to. No one came out to deny the authenticity of the story. These people accepted the Quran because it agreed with their Scripture and they realized that it brought the truth from God. They will be rewarded double the reward for their steadfastness in the face of disbelief and the disparaging remarks and humiliation which were inflicted upon them by the idolaters of Quraish. Not only they exercised patience but they also, “repel evil with good.” And they spend in the way of God of that which He provided them with. These two attributes manifest their tolerance and their willingness to suppress their ego and desires. A third attribute that distinguishes these people is the control they exercised in distancing themselves from those who indulge in vain talk, “and when they hear vain talk, they turn away from it and say, ‘To us our deeds, and to you yours; peace be with you; we do not seek the ignorant.’” They do not waste their time in dealing with people who enjoy vain talk. They realize that faith places on them serious obligations. Their focus is to fulfil these obligations successfully.

Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) did not spend much effort in convincing the above mentioned group of Christians, who adopted Islam after they had listened to the Quran, while he tried very hard to convince some of the Arab idolaters but they were very determined to reject him. The following verse explains this phenomenon, “You (Muhammad) will not guide whom you love, but God guides whom He wills. And He is fully aware of those who are guided.” This verse was revealed to explain why the uncle of the Prophet (PBUH), Abu Taleb, insisted on rejecting his nephew’s call to Islam. Abu Taleb used to support and protect the Prophet (PBUH) against the persecution of Quraish. He endured the boycott that Quraish imposed on the clan of Bani Hashem as a punishment for supporting Muhammad (PBUH). Abu Taleb supported the Prophet (PBUH) for two reasons. The first is that Abu Taleb loved his nephew dearly. The second is that Abu Taleb believed in the tribal values which dictated that he should support his nephew, even though he did not accept his call. Abu Taleb died without accepting Islam, even though the Messenger (PBUH) asked him to submit to God before he died.

God kept the power to guide people to His religion to himself. Even the Messenger (PBUH) could not guide whom he wanted. The Messenger’s (PBUH) duty is only to deliver the message.

The following reveals the fears that the idolaters had; the fears which prevented them from accepting the call to Islam, “They say, ‘If we were to follow the guidance with you, we would be snatched away from our land.’” They submitted that the Messenger (PBUH) brought them guidance, but they were afraid that they would lose their power over the other tribes that lived nearby. They forgot that only God can offer them the true security. They forgot that no power on earth could harm them if they were under God’s protection. Guidance is the path to true power and real honor and dignity. God’s guidance provides a project for establishing the correct lifestyle on earth. It is a realistic lifestyle that provides happiness not only in this life but also in the Hereafter. This project aligns human activities to serve the purposes of people’s lives both in this world as well as in the Hereafter.

God refuted their false claims, “Have We not established for them a secure sanctuary, to which are brought the fruits of all kinds- a provision from Ourselves? But most of them do not know.” They forgot that the safety and security that they enjoyed were God’s gift. God sanctified this place since the time Prophet Abraham (PBUH). Most of them did not recognize who is the one who provides genuine safety and security. The real danger is to be destroyed by God in a way similar to what happened to peoples before them, “And how many a town, which exulted in its means of subsistence, have We destroyed; they have not been dwelt in after them except a little, and We are the inheritors.” The sure way to destruction is to show ingratitude towards God. Idolaters should be careful that their fate would be similar to those who were destroyed before. They knew where these people lived before and they saw the destruction that happened to their houses.

It is God’s law that He sends a messenger to the people before punishing them for their wrongdoing, “Nor was your Lord the one to destroy a population until He had sent to its centre a messenger, reciting to them Our revelations; nor are We going to destroy a population except when its members were wrongdoers.” The messenger would be sent to a central place to be accessible to all those who live around that place. Mecca was the central point to the lands of Arabia.

They should also remember that whatever was bestowed on them is a transient pleasure, that what is with God is the everlasting and will provide the true enjoyment, “And whatsoever you have been given is a comfort of the life of the world and an ornament thereof; and that which God has is better and more lasting. Will you not use reason?” The following verse makes a comparison between the transient pleasures of this life and the everlasting comfort of the Hereafter. Each one is free to choose, “Is he whom We have promised a fair promise which he will find (true) like him whom We have provided with the provisions of this world’s life, then on the Day of Resurrection he shall be of those who are brought up (for punishment)?”

The following verses describe some of the scenes on the Day of Resurrection, “On the Day when He will call them and say, ‘Where are those whom you used to allege as My partners?’” This is a rhetorical question posed as a rebuke for the disbelievers. God knows that those partners do not exist and He knows that the disbelievers will not be able to answer the question. The question will be posed in public to disgrace the disbelievers. The disbelievers will try to disassociate themselves from the crime, “Those against whom the sentence has become confirmed will say, ‘Our Lord, these are they whom we caused to err; we caused them to err as we ourselves did err; to You we declare ourselves to be disassociated (of them); they never worshiped us.’”

They will be asked to call upon those whom they took as partners with God, “It will be said (to them), ‘Call upon your (so-called) partners (for help).’ They will call upon them, but they will not respond to them; and they will see the torment (before them); (how they will wish) if only they had followed guidance.” It will become evident to them that there is no use of calling upon anyone for help. They will wish in vain that they had heeded the guidance before.

They will be further asked about their response to God’s messengers who came to them, “That Day (God) will call to them, and say, ‘What was the answer you gave to the messengers?’” They will be dumbfounded and unable to answer, “On that Day all news will seem obscure to them and they will not be able to question each other.” On the other hand, those who repented will get their reward, “But whoever had repented, believed, and did good deeds maybe he will be among the successful.”

All matters are in the hands of God. He created everything, He knows everything, and He is in control of everything, “Your Lord creates and chooses as He pleases. No one had any choice. Glory be to God. He is far above the partners they associate with Him.” God also knows what they reveal and what they conceal. God will decide the reward for each one. He will decide who will be guided and who will be misguided according to what they deserve, “And your Lord knows all that their hearts conceal and all that they reveal.” He is God, there is no other deity except Him, “And He is God. There is no deity but He. All praise is due to Him, in this life and in the next. His is the Arbitration, and to Him shall you (all) be brought back.” We praise Him for His decisions, His blessings, His wisdom, His justice, and His mercy. He is the only Arbitrator who decides the fate of each one of His servants. To Him we will all return.

Another theme is dealt with in the next few verses. The verses take us on a tour in the universe considering different cosmic phenomena, “Say, ‘Have you considered, if God were to make the night everlasting over you to the Day of Resurrection, what god is there other than God, who can give you light? Will you not then listen?’” Say, “Have you considered? If God were to make the day everlasting over you to the Day of Resurrection, what god is there other than God, who can give you a night in which you can rest? Will you not then see?” It is out of His Mercy that He has made for you night and day, that you may rest therein, and that you may seek of his bounty; and in order that you may be grateful.” People are used to the perpetual occurrence of the night and day. They rarely pay attention to the phenomenon. Few people observe in awe the scenes of sunrise and sunset. They never pay attention to the miracles associated with these cosmic phenomena. The Quran poses questions to alert people to these miracles so that they reflect on them. People yearn to the breaking daylight after the long hours of night in the winter months. Imagine if the night was to continue forever and there would be no daylight. What would people feel about that, provided that life is able to continue? People like to have a period of rest during the long hours of the day in the summer months. How would they feel if there was no night and the day continued forever, assuming that life can continue without nights? The night is usually a time for people to rest and rejuvenate. God determined the appropriate lengths of the day and the night so that life on earth continues and people would have time for rest and time for work. This is a blessing and a mercy from God for which we should be grateful.

The verses go back to the scenes on the Day of Resurrection, “The Day that He will call on them, He will say, ‘Where are those whom you used to allege as My partners?’” The same question that was posed earlier is reiterated here to emphasize its importance and to introduce the following verse, “And from each nation We will draw a witness, and We shall say, ‘Produce your proof.’ They shall then know that God alone has the truth, and the (lies) which they invented will leave them in lurch. The messenger that was sent to each nation will be brought forward to give his testimony and tell how his nation responded to his message. People will then be asked to produce an evidence to support the decisions which they implemented in response to the messenger who came to them, but they will have no evidence and they will know, “that God alone has the truth,” and they will lose track of those whom they worshipped beside God before.

Verses 76 to 84:

76. Certainly Qaroun (Korah) was of Moses' people, but he oppressed them; and We gave him so much treasure that the keys thereof would verily have been a burden for a troop of mighty men. When his own people said to him, “Exult not; God does not love the exultant;
77. But seek, with the (wealth) which God has bestowed on you, the Home of the Hereafter, do not neglect your share in this world. Do good as God has been good to you, and do not seek corruption in the land, God does not love the corruptors.”
78. He said, “I have been given it only on account of knowledge I possess.” Did he not know that God had destroyed, before him, generations which were superior to him in strength and greater in the amount (of riches) they had collected? Certainly, the guilty will not be called (immediately) to account for their sins.
79. So he came out before his people in the (pride of his worldly) glitter. Those whose aim is the life of this world said, “If only we had been given like what was given to Qaroun. Indeed, he is very fortunate.”
80. But those who had been given knowledge said, “Woe to you! The reward of God is better for those who believe and do good deeds, and only the perseverant will get it.”
81. Then We caused the earth to swallow him and his house; and he had no one to help him against God, nor could he defend himself.
82. And those who had coveted him the day before began to say on the morrow, “It is indeed God who gives what He wills, abundantly or sparingly, to whomever He pleases of His servants. Had it not been that God was gracious to us, He could have caused the earth to swallow us up. The disbelievers will never succeed.

83. That Home of the Hereafter We shall give to those who do not seek superiority on earth, nor corruption. The happy end is for those who are conscious of God.
84. Whoso brings a good deed, he will have better than the same; while those who do evil-deeds will be recompensed only according to what they did. (28: 76 – 84)

The following verses narrate the story of Qaroun, stating that he was from the people of Moses (PBUH); he was very rich; and he oppressed his people, “Certainly Qaroun (Korah) was of Moses' people, but he oppressed them; and We gave him so much treasure that the keys thereof would verily have been a burden for a troop of mighty men.” He was so rich that the keys to his treasures were so heavy to the extent that it was difficult for a group of strong men to carry them. His wealth made him a tyrant and he treated his people badly. The verse described his behavior in a general way and did not dwell on the details of this behavior. Some of his people tried to give him a sincere advice. They explained to him that God gave him this wealth to spend it in ways that please God, “When his own people said to him, ‘Exult not; God does not love the exultant; but seek, with the (wealth) which God has bestowed on you, the Home of the Hereafter, do not neglect your share in this world. Do good as God has been good to you, and do not seek corruption in the land, God does not love the corruptors.’” They pointed out that the divine project aims at striking a balance between the enjoyment of this life and the requirements of the Hereafter. God created good things on earth for humankind to enjoy and for life on earth to flourish. This is how the vicegerency of humankind can be achieved. However, one should not forget that every good activity in this life should lead to happiness in the Hereafter. This way a balance is struck between the spiritual life and the material life of the human being, allowing the human being to enjoy this life while keeping an eye on the Hereafter. Wealthy people should remember that wealth is a blessing from God so they should use it to do good to people, “Do good as God has been good to you.” The wealth should not be used to spread corruption and oppression on earth because certainly God does not love those who spread corruption on earth.

His answer embodied every meaning of corruption and arrogance, “He said, ‘I have been given it only on account of knowledge I possess.’” This is a statement that only an ignorant arrogant man would make. The answer to his statement came in the form of a threat, “Did he not know that God had destroyed, before him, generations which were superior to him in strength and greater in the amount (of riches) they had collected? Certainly, the guilty will not be called (immediately) to account for their sins.” God destroyed many a people who were mightier and wealthier than him. God is capable of destroying him as well.

The second scene of the story depicts Qaroun parading proudly in front of his people in his worldly glitter. Some of his people looked at him in awe and wished that they would be in his place, “So he came out before his people in the (pride of his worldly) glitter. Those whose aim is the life of this world said, ‘If only we had been given like what was given to Qaroun. Indeed, he is very fortunate.’” The same scene rekindled the flame of faith in the hearts of others who recognized that what they were given was much more precious than what was given to Qaroun.

They reminded their brothers who envied Qaraoun, “But those who had been given knowledge said, ‘Woe to you! The reward of God is better for those who believe and do good deeds, and only the perseverant will get it.’” God’s verdict came swiftly to settle the dispute between the two groups, “Then We caused the earth to swallow him and his house; and he had no one to help him against God, nor could he defend himself.” The great test was settled and those who were impressed by the worldly pleasures woke up and realized the ultimate truth, “And those who had coveted him the day before began to say on the morrow, ‘It is indeed God who gives what He wills, abundantly or sparingly, to whomever He pleases of His servants. Had it not been that God was gracious to us, He could have caused the earth to swallow us up. The disbelievers will never succeed.’” They stood there praising God that they did not share Qaroun his wealth and his destiny. They realized that wealth is not the true measure for God’s favor. God provides for some abundantly and for some sparingly for reasons that only He knows. Quaroun was tested with wealth; he failed the test; and he received his due punishment. The disbelievers will never succeed. It is true that Qaroun never expressed his disbelief but his actions caused him to join the ranks of the disbelievers. The following verse is an appropriate conclusion for the scene, “That Home of the Hereafter We shall give to those who do not seek superiority on earth, nor corruption. The good end is for those who are conscious of God.” In the Hereafter, people will be recompensed for their deeds according to God’s promise, “Whoso brings a good deed, he will have better than the same; while those who do evil-deeds will be recompensed only according to what they did.”

Verses 85 to 88:

- 85. Verily He Who prescribed the Quran for you, will bring you back home again. Say, “My Lord knows best who it is who brings true guidance, and who is in manifest error.”
- 86. And you did not expect that the Book would be sent to you except as a mercy from your Lord. Therefore, do not support in any way the disbelievers.
- 87. And let nothing keep you back from the revelations of God after they have been given to you; and invite to your Lord; and do not be one of those who associate partners with God.
- 88. And do not invoke any other god beside God. There is no god but He. Everything will perish except His Face. To Him belongs the Command, and to Him will you (all) be brought back. (28: 85 – 88)

In the following verses, God addresses the Messenger (PBUH) and the believers. These verses were revealed to the Messenger (PBUH) on the route to Medina after he escaped from Mecca, “Verily He Who prescribed the Quran for you, will bring you back home again.” The Quran has been revealed by God. He will give His Messenger (PBUH) victory at the time He had decreed. This was a promise to the Messenger (PBUH) and the Muslims that God will not abandon His Messenger (PBUH). God reassured His Messenger that one day, known only to God, God will bring the Messenger (PBUH) back to his home from which he was evicted. The Messenger (PBUH) was commanded to repeat that statement that Moses (PBUH) made when he was rejected by Pharaoh and his people, “Say, ‘My Lord knows best who it is who brings true guidance, and who is in manifest error.’” God will judge between people.

“And you did not expect that the Book would be sent to you except as a mercy from your Lord. Therefore, do not support, in any way, the disbelievers.” Muhammad (PBUH) never expected that he will be chosen to be a messenger of God, but God chose him and gave him the Quran as an act of mercy from Him. Therefore, never support the disbelievers because they will try to make you deviate away from the straight path, “And let nothing keep you back from the revelations of God after they have been given to you;” Call to the way of your Lord, “and invite to your Lord; and do not be one of those who associate partners with God.” The Sura ends by stressing and emphasizing the concept of the Oneness of God, “And do not invoke any other god beside God. There is no god but He. Everything will perish except His Face. To Him belongs the Command, and to Him will you (all) be brought back.” Everything will perish and vanish except God. His is the kingdom and the judgment and to Him all will return.

Sura 29: Al-‘Ankabut (The Spider)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 13:

1. Alif. Lam. Mim.
2. Do people think that they will be left (at ease) because they say, “We believe,” and will not be tested with affliction?
3. We tested those who were before them. Thus, God knows those who are sincere, and knows those who are liars.
4. Or do the evil-doers think that they will escape Us? Evil is that what they judge.
5. Whoever hopes to meet with God, God's appointed time is bound to come. He is the All-Hearing, the Omniscient.
6. And whosoever strives, strives only for himself. God is altogether Independent of (His) creatures.
7. Those who believe and do good deeds, We will certainly efface all their evil deeds, and We shall reward them according to the best of their deeds.
8. We have enjoined on the humankind to be kind to his parents, but if they (either of them) strive (to force) you to associate with Me (in worship) anything of which you have no knowledge, obey them not. You will (all) return to Me, and I will tell you all that you did.
9. And those who believe and do good deeds, We shall admit them into the ranks of the righteous.
10. Then, there are those people who say, “We believe in God”; but when they suffer affliction in (the cause of) God, they treat people's oppression as if it were the torment of God. And if help comes (to you) from your Lord, they are sure to say, "We have (always) been with you." Does not God know best all that is in the hearts of (His) creatures?
11. And God most certainly knows those who believe, and those who are hypocrites.
12. And the disbelievers say to those who believe, “Follow our path, and we will bear (the consequences) of your sins.” Never in the least will they bear their sins. In fact, they are liars.
13. They will bear their own burdens, and (other) burdens along with their own, and on the Day of Resurrection they will be called to account for their falsehoods. (29: 1 -13)

This Sura was revealed in Mecca. It has been narrated that the first eleven verses were revealed in Medina, because they refer to the issues of Jihad (strive) and the hypocrites. However, it was narrated that the eighth verse refers to the adoption of Islam by S’ad bin Abi Waqas (RA) and this certainly took place in Mecca. The verses refer to the need to strive against human weakness during times of affliction and adversity. Its reference to the hypocrites is in the context of exploring different types of human beings.

The Sura has one theme from the beginning to the end: the essence of faith and the tests that human beings are subjected to in life. Faith is not mere words to be uttered but it involves perseverance in times of adversity and hardships.

The Sura starts with three letters from the Alphabet to point out that this Book has been composed using the letters of the Alphabet, “Alif. Lam. Mim.” We have mentioned before that the Suras that start with these letters include a reference to the Quran either in the verses immediately following the first verse or later in the Sura as is the case with this Sura (verses 45, 47, and 48).

The following verse discusses the essence of faith and the trials that people will be subjected to test the strength of their faith, “Do people think that they will be left (at ease) because they say, ‘We believe,’ and will not be tested with affliction?” Faith is not mere words to be uttered but it is an endeavor that requires hard work and involves undertaking responsibilities. It requires striving and perseverance. All believers have to be tested, “We tested those who were before them. Thus, God knows those who are sincere, and knows those who are liars.” God knows beforehand what people will do when they are put to the test but God will not hold anyone accountable until they have committed the act. This is God’s mercy and God’s justice. It is out of God’s mercy, that He has decreed that He will not judge people according to His knowledge; He will judge people on the basis of their actions.

Faith is an undertaking that the believer pledges to fulfill. It is a covenant between the believer and God. Only those who are qualified and are able to assume the responsibility are allowed to carry this responsibility. It requires patience, perseverance, devotion, and hard work.

Trials take different forms. Believers may become victims to mistreatment or oppression because of their faith and find no helper or supporter. Friends and relatives of believers may be mistreated or oppressed because of their faith. Family and friends may appeal to the believers to spare them the difficult conditions by abandoning the struggle for their faith. Believers may find it difficult to suffer while disbelievers enjoy the pleasures and comfort of this life. Believers may find themselves isolated and abandoned in their own country. Believers may be tested when they see whole societies completely engrossed in the lowly worldly pleasures, with no place for God in their lives, yet they provide environments where human dignity is preserved and human beings are respected. The believer is a human being who is continuously tested by the temptation to satisfy lowly human lusts, the lust for sex, greed, power, or even the desire to feel secure and safe. These are elements of the everlasting battle between the believer and Satan.

The time for trials may be long. God does not want to torture the believers, nor for them to suffer unnecessarily, but trials are important tools for preparing the believers for their major undertaking: being God’s true vicegerents on earth. These trials are necessary to purify the souls and to strengthen the will of the believers. God promised that the truth will prevail at the end. No believer should doubt the fulfillment of God’s promise even if the waiting period for God’s victory became longer than expected. God knows best the best timing for His victory. The believers should understand that they were chosen by God for their mission. These trials are part of the training they need to help them accomplish their mission. The Messenger (PBUH) has been quoted to have said, “Prophets are subjected to the most sever trials in life, and the severity of the trials to which the believers are subjected to is commensurate with their degree of righteousness, (the more righteous is tested more).”

Those who oppress the believers and commit evil deeds will not escape God's punishment. If they really think that they can get away with their evil deeds, then they have truly made a bad judgment, "Or do the evil-doers think that they will escape Us? Evil is that what they judge." The message embodied in the earlier verses is that trials are part of the divine project to prepare the believers for their role in life. This verse embodies another message; it is also a component of the divine project that the evildoers get their punishment in due time. The third message is a message of comfort and security to the believers, "Whoever hopes to meet with God, God's appointed time is bound to come. He is the All-Hearing, Omniscient." The believers whose hearts yearn to God's mercy should be reassured of God's victory. He hears their prayers and knows their conditions. The fourth message is for the striving believers, reassuring them that they will reap the benefits of their hard work, "And whosoever strives, strives only for himself. God is altogether Independent of (His) creatures." The believers should be reassured of God's blessings which will be bestowed on them, "Those who believe and do good deeds, We will certainly efface out all their evil deeds, and We shall reward them according to the best of their deeds."

It was mentioned before that one of the types of trials that the believers may be subjected to is related to their family and friends. The following verse sets the limits on how far believers can go in accommodating their parents, "We have enjoined on the humankind to be kind to his parents, but if they (either of them) strive (to force) you to associate with Me (in worship) anything of which you have no knowledge, obey them not. You will (all) return to Me, and I will tell you all that you did." The parents are the most deserving of one's love, mercy, and respect. It is the duty of the person to take good care of his/her parents. However, when a choice has to be made between worshipping God and obeying one's parents, one should choose to obey God. Relationships based on faith are more important than blood relationships. Relationships based on faith represent the firmest ring. Even parents who associate partners with God deserve to be looked after and treated kindly. However, when it comes to the issue of associating partners with God, they should not be obeyed. At the end, everyone will return to God to find out what have they done. Those who believed and did good deeds will join the ranks of the righteous, "And those who believe and do good deeds, We shall admit them into the ranks of the righteous."

It has been narrated by Al-Tirmidhi that this verse dealt with a situation which S'ad bin Abi Waqass (RA) found himself in. When S'ad (RA) adopted Islam, his mother threatened to fast until he had relinquished his newly adopted religion and returned back to idolatry. Although S'ad (RA) loved his mother dearly, but he did not obey her and persisted on his faith. Eventually she came back to her senses and quit fasting. Faith claimed victory over blood relationship.

"Then there are those people who say, 'We believe in God'; but when they suffer affliction in (the cause of) God, they treat people's oppression as if it were the torment of God." The verse describes a kind of people who claim they are believers when times are good, but whenever they face the slightest persecution because of their faith they become terror-stricken. They think that their suffering is beyond their ability to persevere. However, the same people seem to forget their behavior at the time of adversity when help from God is received and the conditions of life became agreeable again, "And if help comes (to you) from your Lord, they are sure to say, 'We have (always) been with you. ' Does not God know best all that is in the hearts of (His) creatures?' These trials are part of the plan to discriminate between the true believers and the hypocrites, "And God most certainly knows those who believe, and those who are hypocrites."

The following verse establishes a fundamental principle: faith is a personal responsibility. People will be recompensed according to their own individual deeds. Every human being is accountable for his/her own deeds, "And the disbelievers say to those who believe, 'Follow our path, and we will bear (the consequences) of your sins.' Never in the least will they bear their sins. In fact, they are liars." No one is responsible for another's deeds. Those who disbelieved they carry the burden of their sins and the sin of leading others astray, "They will bear their own burdens, and (other) burdens along with their own, and on the Day of Resurrection they will be called to account for their falsehoods."

Verses 14 to 45:

14. And verily we sent Noah (as Our messenger) to his people, and he remained among them for a thousand years save fifty years; and the flood engulfed them, while they were wrongdoers.
15. And We saved him and those with him in the ship, and made it a sign for all peoples.
16. And (We sent) Abraham; and he said to his people, "Serve God and be conscious of Him; this is best for you, if you did but know.
17. You only worship idols besides God; and you invent falsehood. The things that you worship besides God have no power to give you sustenance. Seek sustenance from God, worship Him, and be grateful to Him. To Him will be your return."
18. And if you reject (the Message), so did generations before you; and the duty of the messenger is only to deliver the message clearly.
19. Do they not see how God originates creation, then repeats it? Verily that is easy for God.
20. Say, "Travel in the land and see how did God originated creation; so will God produce a later creation; for God has power over all things."
21. He torments whom He pleases, and He grants mercy to whom He pleases, and to Him you will be returned.
22. You cannot escape Him on earth or in heaven; and you have no protecting guardian beside God.
23. Those who disbelieve in the revelations of God and in (their) meeting with Him, have no hope of My mercy; and they will have painful torment.
24. But the answer of his people was only that they said, "Kill him, or burn him." Then God saved him from the fire. In this, there are indeed signs for people who believe.
25. He (Abraham) said, "You have chosen only idols instead of God. The affection between you is only in the life of the world. Then on the Day of Resurrection you will deny each other and curse each other, and your refuge will be the Fire, and you will have no helpers."
26. And Lut believed him, and said, "I am fleeing to my Lord, surely He is the Eminent, the Wise."

27. And We gave (Abraham) Isaac and Jacob, and ordained among his progeny Prophet-hood and the Scripture. We granted him his reward in this life; and in the Hereafter he will verily be among the righteous.
28. And (remember) Lut when he said to his people, "You commit lewdness, which none of the peoples has ever done before you."
29. How can you lust after men, you cut off the way, and you commit abominations in your meetings? But the answer of his people was only that they said, "Bring God's torment upon us if you are truthful."
30. He said, "My Lord, help me against the people who spread corruption."
31. When Our messengers came to Abraham with the good news, they said, "We are indeed going to destroy the people of this township, for truly they are wrongdoers."
32. He said, "But Lut is there." They said, "We are well aware who is there. We will certainly save him and his family, except his wife. She is of those who will remain behind."
33. And when Our messengers came to Lut, he was troubled on their account, for he could not protect them; but they said, "Fear not, nor grieve; we are to deliver you and your family, except your wife, who is of those who will remain behind."
34. We are about to bring down upon the people of this town a scourge from heaven, because they transgressed."
35. And verily We left behind a clear sign (from it) for people who understand.
36. To the people of Madyan (We sent) their brother Shu'aib. He said, "My people, worship God, and look forward to the Last Day, and do not spread corruption in the land."
37. But they rejected him, so the tremor overtook them, and they became motionless bodies in their homes.
38. And (the tribes of) 'Ad and Thamud. (Their fate) is clear to you from their (ruined and deserted) dwellings. Satan made their deeds seem fair to them and so debarred them from the path, though they were keen observers.
39. (Remember also) Qaroun, Pharaoh, and Haman. Moses came to them with clear signs, but they behaved arrogantly in the land; yet they could not escape (Our punishment).
40. Each one of them We seized for his crime. On some, We sent a violent tornado; others were caught by a (mighty) blast; some We caused the earth to swallow up; and some We drowned. It was not God who wronged them, but they wronged themselves.
41. The example of those who take protecting guardians other than God is that like the spider, who builds (to itself) a house; but truly the flimsiest of houses is the spider's house; if they but knew.
42. Verily God knows whatever they invoke besides Him. He is the Eminent, the Wise.
43. And such similitudes We coin for people, but only those who have knowledge understand them.
44. God created the heavens and the earth with truth. Therein is indeed a sign for the believers.
45. Recite what has been revealed to you of the Book, and establish regular prayer. Prayer prohibits indecencies and evil. And remembrance of God is greater. And God knows what you do. (29: 14 – 45)

The following verses describe the trials that different Prophets were subjected to. Starting with Noah (PBUH), “And verily we sent Noah (as Our messenger) to his people, and he remained among them for a thousand years save fifty years; and the flood engulfed them, while they were wrongdoers.” Noah (PBUH) spent nine hundred and fifty years of his life, calling people to the belief in the Oneness of God. Noah (PBUH) must have lived longer than the time he spent in calling his people to believe in God. Noah’s (PBUH) life seems to be longer than normal lives that we are accustomed to. However, we believe in the truthful account of the Quran. Maybe the earlier generations of humanity lived longer than we live these days. In spite of this long career only few people believed in Noah (PBUH) who tried hard to convince his people of the truth. Those who rejected him were drowned while those who believed in him were saved in the ship, “And We saved him and those with him in the ship, and made it a sign for all peoples.”

The second story is the story of Prophet Abraham (PBUH). Prophet Abraham’s (PBUH) methodology was well thought of. It started with a simple and clear invitation, “And (We sent) Abraham; and he said to his people, ‘Serve God and be conscious of Him;’” The second step was to stress that this call is beneficial to them, “this is best for you, if you did but know,” This might have been an incentive for them to show that they knew what was good for themselves and to accept his call. It was also the truth. The third step of his methodology was to show them the futility of their belief in idols made out of wood. He also pointed out that they have no evidence that these idols deserved to be worshipped, “You only worship idols besides God; and you invent falsehood.” He explained that the idols had no control over their sustenance, “The things that you worship besides God have no power to give you sustenance.” The fourth step in his strategy was to point out to them that it is God that they should seek their sustenance from, “Seek sustenance from God, worship Him, and be grateful to Him. To Him will be your return.” Finally, he pointed out that there was no escape for them and that they will return to God; if they reject faith then it would be their loss, “And if you reject (the Message), so did generations before you; and the duty of the messenger is only to deliver the message clearly.”

“Do they not see how God originates creation; then repeats it. Verily that is easy for God.” Those who disbelieve in God see every day how God starts the creation. They see it in the growing seeding; they see it in the laid egg; and they see it in the developing fetus. If all people came together to create life they would not be able to create life, only God creates life. He who starts the creation can repeat it. This is easy for God. The verse then invites people to walk in the land, “Say, ‘Travel in the land and see how did God originate creation; so will God produce a later creation; for God has power over all things.’” Traveling in the land opens the eyes to new facts that they have not seen before. When people stay in one place they get used to it and they do not pay attention to the beauty or the remarkable features of the scenes around them. Travel opens the eyes and the hearts to discover the remarkable things in life. God is capable of starting life and repeating the creation. He has power over everything. He can only say, “Be,” and it is.

He also has the power to punish whomsoever He wills and forgives whomsoever He wills, “He torments whom He pleases, and He grants Mercy to whom He pleases, and to Him you will be returned. You cannot escape Him on earth or in heaven; and you have no protecting guardian beside God.” Punishment and forgiveness are decreed by God’s will. He gave humankind the ability to choose between guidance and misguidance and He showed him the two paths of guidance and misguidance. Humankind was created with equal propensity to the two ways. God has decreed that He will help those who choose to follow the path of guidance. Those who refuse to follow the path of guidance have chosen to sever their ties with God and will end up on the path to falsehood. Every group will have earned their share of God's mercy or punishment. No one will be able to escape. There is no power on earth that will be able to provide protection against God.

Those who chose the path of misguidance have lost all hope in God's mercy, "Those who disbelieve in the revelations of God and in (their) meeting with Him, have no hope of My mercy; and they will have painful torment."

After this brief digression, the verses go back to the story of Abraham (PBUH). Their response to his call was, "But the answer of his people was only that they said, 'Kill him, or burn him.' Then God saved him from the fire. In this there are indeed signs for people who believe." He argued with them in a rational way and their answer was to use their power and might to silence them. Abraham (PBUH) stood as a single man, unarmed facing tyranny. But God saved him. This was in itself a miracle that should have convinced his people of his truthfulness, but they refused to heed the lesson. There were signs in this for the believers. The first sign is the fact that Abraham (PBUH) was not harmed by the fire. The second sign is the fact that his people with all their might were unable to inflict harm on him. The third sign is the fact that the people did not reflect on the scene of Abraham (PBUH) walking out of the fire unharmed. Their hearts were sealed, and they were not able to perceive the meaning of the miracle.

"He (Abraham) said, 'You have chosen only idols instead of God. The affection between you is only in the life of the world. Then on the Day of Resurrection you will deny each other and curse each other, and your refuge will be the Fire, and you will have no helpers.'" Prophet Abraham (PBUH) confronted them with the reality that they only worshiped these idols because of peer pressure. They were not really convinced that these idols deserve to be worshipped. They cared about each other more than they cared about finding the truth. But on the Day of Resurrection all these values will vanish. The ties of friendship among them will no longer exist; nor will they care about each other; on the contrary they will curse each other for what they have done to themselves. They will all end up in Hell and there will be no one to save them.

Only one person, in addition to his wife, believed in Abraham (PBUH), "And Lut believed him, and said, 'I am fleeing to my Lord, surely He is the Eminent, the Wise.'" Let us stop for a second to reflect on Lut's (PBUH) words, "I am fleeing to my Lord." He did not flee to save himself or to make a worldly gain, but he left his home land to reach for God. He migrated from his country to be able to freely and sincerely serve his Lord.

God compensated Abraham (PBUH) for the loss of his country, his people, and his family. God gave him a progeny that will carry God's message till the end of time. All God's prophets who came after Abraham (PBUH) were his progeny, "And We gave (Abraham) Isaac and Jacob, and ordained among his progeny Prophet-hood and the Scripture. We granted him his reward in this life; and in the Hereafter he will verily be among the righteous.” God bestowed his great bounty on the man who represents the epitome of submission to God.

The following verses tell the story of Prophet Lut (PBUH). Prophet Lut (PBUH) moved with Prophet Abraham (PBUH) to the valley of Jordan. Lut (PBUH) moved to live with a tribe that lived in the town of Sodom on the coast of the Dead Sea. Lut (PBUH) became a member of this tribe by virtue of marriage. Then homosexuality spread in the tribe. The Quran mentions that they were the first human beings to practice homosexuality, “And (remember) Lut when he said to his people, ‘You commit lewdness, which none of the peoples has ever done before you. How can you lust after men, you cut off the way, and you commit abominations in your meetings?’” Quran considers homosexuality to be a deviation from the initial natural disposition of human beings. The sexual desire between males and females is aligned with the requirement for the continuation of the human race. God created males and females to enjoy this relationship as an incentive for the continuation of the process of procreation. Lut’s (PBUH) people were also bandits. They assaulted people passing by and engaged in armed robbery. They performed evil deeds in public without shame. They had the audacity to respond to Lut’s (PBUH) advice with a challenge, “Bring God's torment upon us if you are truthful.”

Lut’s (PBUH) only recourse was to pray to God, “He said, ‘My Lord, help me against the people who spread corruption.’” God answered his prayer, “When Our messengers came to Abraham with the good news, they said, ‘We are indeed going to destroy the people of this township, for truly they are wrongdoers.’” The verse describes very briefly the encounter between Abraham (PBUH) and the angels. This same scene has been described in more details elsewhere. Prophet Abraham (PBUH) was concerned about the welfare of Lut’s (PBUH), so he reminded the angels, “He said, ‘But Lut is there.’” But the angels reassured him of Lut’s (PBUH) safety, “They said, ‘We are well aware who is there. We will certainly save him and his family, except his wife. She is of those who will remain behind.’” It was decided that Lut’s (PBUH) wife would be punished with the others because she did approve of their behavior.

The following verses describe the scene when the angels came to visit Lut (PBUH). They came in the form of young, handsome men. He was worried that his people would attack his guests, “And when Our messengers came to Lut, he was troubled on their account, for he could not protect them;” But they reassured him, revealed their identity to him, and told him the purpose of their visit, “but they said, ‘Fear not, nor grieve; we are to deliver you and your family, except your wife, who is of those who will remain behind. We are about to bring down upon the people of this town a scourge from heaven, because they transgressed.’” The verse describes the scene of destruction that has been inflicted on the town and its population except Lut (PBUH) and those who believed with him. The remains of the town were left as a sign for those who can understand, “And verily We left behind a clear sign for people who understand.”

The next story is the story of Prophet Shu’aib (PBUH), “To the people of Madyan (We sent) their brother Shu'aib. He said, ‘My people, worship God, and look forward to the Last Day, and do not spread corruption in the land.’” The verse confirms the oneness of the message and its essence, “Worship God, and look forward to the Last Day.” Serving God alone is the corner stone of the doctrine of Islam and looking forward to the Last Day is an incentive for them to become honest business people and to abandon fraudulent business practices. But they rejected the message and earned the decreed punishment, “But they rejected him, so the tremor overtook them, and they became motionless bodies in their homes.”

Then a brief reference to the punishment of ‘Ad and Thamud, “And (the tribes of) ‘Ad and Thamud. (Their fate) is clear to you from their (ruined and deserted) dwellings. Satan made their deeds seem fair to them and so debarred them from the path, though they were keen observers.” The dwellings of ‘Ad used to be in the southern part of the Arabian Peninsula near Hadhramout while Thamud used to live in the northern part of the peninsula. ‘Ad was destroyed by a wave of strong cold wind while Thamud was destroyed by the mighty blast. The yearly summer caravans going from Mecca to Syria in the north and the yearly winter caravans going from Mecca to Yemen in the south used to pass by the remains of their houses. The Arabs knew that these were the remains of the dwellings of ‘Ad and Thamud. Although ‘Ad and Thamud were bright, “keen observers,” and had many achievements; but Satan found a way to delude them and drive them away from the straight path.

The next reference was made to Qaroun, Pharaoh, and Haman, “(Remember also) Qaroun, Pharaoh, and Haman. Moses came to them with clear signs, but they behaved arrogantly in the land; yet they could not escape (Our punishment).” Qaroun was a very rich and knowledgeable person from the people of Moses (PBUH). He oppressed his people. He did not heed the advice which some of his people gave to him: do not behave arrogantly and do good. Pharaoh was a tyrant. He committed heinous crimes. He enslaved people and created divisions among them. Haman was Pharaoh’s minister who helped him in making and executing his evil plans. They rejected Moses’ (PBUH) message so they were doomed.

God seized all the tyrants who spread corruption in the land, “Each one of them We seized for his crime. On some, We sent a violent tornado; others were caught by a (mighty) blast; some We caused the earth to swallow up; and some We drowned. It was not God who wronged them, but they wronged themselves.”

The similitude between those tyrants and the spider is given, “The example of those who take protecting guardians other than God is that like the spider, who builds (to itself) a house; but truly the flimsiest of houses is the spider's house; if they but knew.” It is an amazing example which reflects the real truth. The example of the people who are impressed by the wealthy and powerful, thinking that they can help them, is like a spider seeking security in its nest. The spider’s nest is so flimsy it does not provide any security for the spider. Similarly, the rich and powerful in this life do not have real power and cannot provide any real support for the people who seek their help. People should realize that the only real support is the support of God. God knows the truth about the limitations of those who are being invoked beside Him, “Verily God knows whatever they invoke besides Him. He is the Eminent, the Wise.” God cites these similitudes to help those who understand become aware of the truth, “And such similitudes We coin for people, but only those who have knowledge understand them.”

The following verse is a reminder of the Creator of heavens and earth, “God created the heavens and the earth with truth. Therein is indeed a sign for the believers.” The believers’ hearts are open to sense the beauty and the miracle of the creation. This is followed by a reminder of connection between the truth of the creation and the Quran, “Recite what has been revealed to you of the Book, and establish regular prayer. Prayer prohibits indecencies and evil. And remembrance of God is greater. And God knows what you do.”

Verses 46 to 69:

46. And do not argue with the People of the Scripture except in the best manner, except those who are wrongdoers among them. And say, “We believe in that which has been revealed to us and that which has been revealed to you; our God and your God is One, and to Him we submit.”
47. And thus We have revealed to you the Book. Those to whom We gave the Scripture before will believe in it; and some of those believe in it. And none reject Our revelations except the disbelievers.
48. And you did not recite before it any book, nor did you transcribe one with your right hand; otherwise those who utter falsehood may have had a reason for doubt.
49. But it is clear revelations in the hearts of those who have been given knowledge, and none reject Our revelations except the wrongdoers.
50. And they say, “Why no signs were sent down on him from his Lord?” Say, “Indeed the signs are with God, and I am only a plain warner.”
51. Is it not enough for them that we have sent down to you the Book which is recited to them? Verily, in it is mercy and a reminder to those who believe.
52. Say (Muhammad), “God is sufficient as a witness between me and you. He knows whatever is in the heavens and the earth. And those who believe in falsehood and disbelieve in God, they are the losers.
53. They ask you to hasten on the torment. Had not a term been appointed, the torment would certainly have come to them; but it will certainly come to them suddenly, while they are unaware.
54. They ask you to hasten on the torment; but certainly Hell will encompass the disbelievers.
55. On the day when the torment shall cover them from above them and from below them, and it will be said, “Taste (the fruits) of what you used to do.”
56. My servants who believe, truly My earth is spacious. Therefore, worship Me alone.
57. Every soul shall have a taste of death. Then to Us you shall be brought back.
58. And those who believe and do good deeds, We shall house them in lofty dwellings in heaven, under which rivers will flow. They will remain there forever, an excellent reward for those who toil;
59. Those who persevere and put their trust in their Lord.
60. How many an animal who does not carry its provision, but God provides for it and for you. He is the All- Hearing, the Omniscient.

61. If indeed you ask them who has created the heavens and the earth and subjected the sun and the moon (to his Law), they will certainly reply, "God". How are they then deluded away (from the truth)?
62. God makes the provision wide for whom He wills of His servants, and straitens it for whom (He wills). Indeed, God is Cognizant of all things.
63. And if indeed you ask them who it is that sends down rain from the sky, and gives life therewith to the earth after its death, they will certainly reply, "God." Say, "Praise be to God." But most of them do not understand.
64. The life of this world is only diversion and amusement? But verily the home in the Hereafter is indeed the life, if they only knew.
65. And when they embark on a ship, they call on God, making their devotion sincerely (and exclusively) to Him; but when He has delivered them safely to land, behold, they associate others (with Him);
66. Let them disbelieve in that which We have given them, and let them take their enjoyment. But they will come to know.
67. Have they not seen that We have made a secure sanctuary, while people are being snatched away all around them? Do they then believe in falsehood and reject the blessings of God?
68. And who does greater wrong than he who invents a lie concerning God, or denies the truth when it comes to him? Is not there an abode in Hell for the disbelievers?
69. And those who strive in Our (cause), We will certainly guide them to our paths. Verily God is with those who do good. (29: 46 – 69)

“And do not argue with the People of the Scripture except in the best manner, except those who are wrongdoers among them. And say, ‘We believe in that which has been revealed to us and that which has been revealed to you; our God and your God is One, and to Him we submit.’”

The verse emphasizes that all the messengers of God starting with Noah (PBUH) and ending with Muhammad (PBUH) came with a single message. The message came from One God and had one objective: to guide all people to the path of God. The believers who received the message through different messengers belong to one brotherhood. The human race was divided over the centuries into two groups: those who believe in God and those who followed Satan and rejected faith. The statement that this verse reiterates is the single major truth that forms the foundation of Islam. The belief in the one single message brings the believers under one family. The relationships between the members of this family is stronger than blood, tribal, race, or national relationships. They all hold tight to the secure knot that binds them together in the belief in One God. Muslims are commanded to communicate the new message to the people of the Scripture in the best way they can; and to explain the rationale behind the revelation of the last stage in God’s message. Muslims are also commanded to explain the points of agreements between this stage of the message and the previous stages, saying, “our God and your God is One, and to Him we submit.” However, there are always those who wrong themselves and adamantly refuse to accept any argument.

“And thus We have revealed to you the Book. Those to whom We gave the Scripture before will believe in it; and some of those believe in it. And none reject Our revelations except the disbelievers.” The Book which was revealed to Muhammad (PBUH) followed the same pattern and the same method of revelation that the previous Scriptures followed. People will be divided in two groups, those who believe in it and those who will reject it. Those who reject the Book are indeed disbelievers. The signs that were given to them are clear and logical. Only those whose souls are covered will not be able to see these signs. The word, “disbelief” in Arabic means to cover. Thus, the disbelievers are those who cover their eyes and hearts so that their eyes cannot see the truth and their hearts cannot be touched by it.

“And you did not recite before it any book, nor did you transcribe one with your right hand; otherwise those who utter falsehood may have had a reason for doubt.” This verse refutes the claim of the idolaters of Mecca that Muhammad (PBUH) concocted this Quran. It is a naïve claim, nevertheless the Quran addresses it, explaining that they have known the Prophet (PBUH) all his life and they never have seen him write a book before. We label their claim as “naïve,” because even if the Prophet (PBUH) was known to have written books before the Quran, the Quran embodies the proof that it could not have been written by a human being. It is beyond the ability of a human being to compose such a text because, “But it is clear revelations in the hearts of those who have been given knowledge, and none reject Our revelations except the wrongdoers.” Those whom God bestowed knowledge upon can see the clear signs in the Quran, but those who do not see the signs are indeed wrongdoers.

“And they say, ‘Why no signs were sent down on him from his Lord?’ Say, ‘Indeed the signs are with God, and I am only a plain warner.’” The idolaters wanted the Prophet (PBUH) to perform physical miracles similar to the miracles that were performed by previous messengers. But physical miracles are only good for those who see them. But the Quran is the eternal miracle. It is the everlasting miracle for every generation to see, touch, and read. However, God’s miracles are performed at His command and according to His timing. The Prophet (PBUH) could not suggest to God which miracle to reveal and when He should reveal it. The Prophet’s (PBUH) only task is to warn people. The verse outlines the role and limitations of God’s messengers. Those who request physical miracles ignore the blessings of God embodied in the Quranic revelations, “Is it not enough for them that we have sent down to you the Book which is recited to them?” Their request only reflects their ingratitude for God’s blessings. But the hearts of those who believe are touched by God’s mercy. They appreciate God’s bounty and generosity which invite them to God’s presence. The Quran opens up for them new horizons of knowledge that fill their hearts with mercy and light, “Verily, in it is mercy and a reminder to those who believe.”

Those who are unable to open their hearts to the treasures of the Quran, “Say (Muhammad), ‘God is sufficient as a witness between me and you. He knows whatever is in the heavens and the earth. And those who believe in falsehood and disbelieve in God, they are the losers.’” God is the ultimate witness in this dispute and those who believe in falsehood are the losers. They are losers in this life and they will be losers in the Hereafter. They have lost themselves; they have lost guidance; and they have lost security. Faith is itself a gain for the believers. It provides security for the hearts knowing that God is their protector. It provides support for the believers to stay on the path and to persevere in face of adversity. These are the things that the disbelievers will lose.

“They ask you to hasten on the torment. Had not a term been appointed, the torment would certainly have come to them; but it will certainly come to them suddenly, while they are unaware. They ask you to hasten on the torment; but certainly Hell will encompass the disbelievers. On the day when the torment shall cover them from above them and from below them, and it will be said, ‘Taste (the fruits) of what you used to do.’” The Prophet (PBUH) warned the idolaters of Mecca, but they did not understand why the warning did not materialize. They challenged the Prophet (PBUH) to bring about this punishment which he promised. God may delay punishment because He wants to give the disbelievers time to confirm their guilt. He may delay the punishment because He wants to test the believers so that they persevere and mature; and those who fail the test can be eliminated. God may delay the punishment to give those who failed a second chance to join the ranks of the believers. But the disbelievers were oblivious to the divine will. They used to challenge the Prophet (PBUH) to hasten the punishment. But God had decreed a specific time for the promised punishment. They will get it when they least expect it. Not only they will be punished in this life but they will also be destined to Hell in the Hereafter. The torment in Hell will overwhelm them; it will come to them from all sides.

The narrative moves to another group of people: the believers, those who were persecuted and harassed by the disbelievers to force them to abandon their faith. God addresses them in an endearing way, commanding them to flee the persecution and to escape with their faith, “My servants who believe, truly My earth is spacious. Therefore, worship Me alone.” God calls the believers, “My servants,” so that they feel the honor of belonging to God. Then He tells them that, “My earth is spacious,” wherever they go they are travelling in God’s land. Here is a wide opportunity for you to escape from the persecution, be near God through your faith, and enjoy the bounty of God, which He placed in His wide land. Two fears are usually lurking in the minds of those who contemplate the migration away from their homeland. The first is the fear of loneliness and the second is the fear of the loss of the means of sustenance. The verse addresses these two fears. First, it assures the believers that they are God’s servants and He will not abandon them. Then, it tells them that God’s land is everywhere and He is the One who guarantees and controls the means of sustenance. Another fear that faced the believers who were contemplating to migrate from Mecca was the fear of being discovered and executed. God reassured them by stating the ultimate fact of life: death is inevitable. Everyone will die eventually and will return to God, “Every soul shall have a taste of death. Then to Us you shall be brought back.” Not only they will return to God, but they were also promised a great reward, “But those who believe and do good deeds, We shall house them in lofty dwellings in heaven, under which rivers will flow. They will remain there forever, an excellent reward for those who toil, those who persevere and put their trust in their Lord.”

The narrative returns again to address the fear of losing the means of sustenance, “How many an animal who does not carry its provision? But God provides for it and for you. He is the All-Hearing, the Omniscient.” God is He who provides for every one of His creatures. So there is no need to fear losing one’s means of sustenance.

The following verses point out to the contradiction in the logic of the idolaters of Mecca. They believe that God is the Creator. He created the universe, the heaven and the earth. They seek the help of God when they are facing a dire situation but in the mean time they associate partners with Him and they persecute the believers, “If indeed you ask them who has created the heavens and the earth and subjected the sun and the moon (to his Law), they will certainly reply, ‘God.’ How are they then deluded away (from the truth)? God makes the provision wide for whom He wills of His servants, and straitens it for whom (He wills). Indeed, God is Cognizant of all things.

And if indeed you ask them who it is that sends down rain from the sky, and gives life therewith to the earth after its death, they will certainly reply, ‘God.’ Say, ‘Praise be to God.’ But most of them do not understand.” These verses describe the doctrine of the religion that the Arabs believed in at that time. It was rooted in the belief of Oneness of God because it came initially from the message that Prophets Abraham (PBUH) and Ishmael (PBUH) brought to Arabia. But it was later distorted and corrupted by idolatry and associating partners with God. The Quran uses the cosmic signs of God as a proof for God’s Oneness and exhorts people to contemplate and reflect on these signs.

The life of this world is merely a diversion and amusement when you compare it with the Hereafter, “The life of this world is only diversion and amusement? But verily the home in the Hereafter is indeed the life, if they only knew.” One should not consider the life of this world as the ultimate abode. The real life is the life in the Hereafter. That does not mean that one should live an ascetic life in this world but a balance should be maintained between the enjoyment of this life and the work for the Hereafter. People should not live a hedonistic life enslaved by their lusts and desires.

Another evidence of their contradictory attitude is displayed by their behavior when facing dangers, “And when they embark on a ship, they call on God, making their devotion sincerely (and exclusively) to Him; but when He has delivered them safely to land, behold, they associate others (with Him).” They will realize the consequences of their deeds, “Let them disbelieve in that which We have given them, and let them take their enjoyment. But they will come to know.”

God then reminded them of the bounties that He bestowed on them, “Have they not seen that We have made a secure sanctuary, while people are being snatched away all around them? Do they then believe in falsehood and reject the blessings of God?” The people of Mecca used to live a secure and safe life while the tribes around them were engaged in fights and disputes. They did not appreciate God’s blessings and they used this secure and sacred place to worship idols, “And who does greater wrong than he who invents a lie concerning God, or denies the truth when it comes to him? Is not there a home in Hell for the disbelievers?”

The Sura ends by commending the believers and assuring them of God’s rewards, “And those who strive in Our (cause), We will certainly guide them to our paths. Verily God is with those who do good.”

Sura 30: Al-Rum (The Romans, The Byzantines)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 32:

1. Alif. Lam. Mim.
2. The Romans have been defeated
3. In a land close by, and they, after their defeat will be victorious
4. Within a few years. God's is the command in the former case and in the latter, and on that day the believers will rejoice
5. In the victory of God. He gives victory to whom He wills, and He is the Eminent, the Giver of Mercy.
6. It is God's promise. God never breaks His promise, but most of people do not know.
7. They know what is apparent of the worldly life, but they are heedless of the Hereafter.
8. Have they not pondered upon themselves? God did not create the heavens and the earth, and that which is between them, except with truth and for an appointed term. But truly many of the people do not believe that they will meet with their Lord.
9. Have they not travelled in the land and seen the nature of the consequence for those who were before them? They were stronger than them in power, and they dug the earth and built upon it more than they have built. Messengers of their own came to them with clear proofs. Certainly, God did not wrong them but they wronged themselves.
10. Then evil was the consequence for those who dealt in evil, because they denied the revelations of God and used to mock them.
11. It is God who begins the creation; then repeats it; then to Him you will be brought back.
12. On the Day that the Hour will take place the guilty will be struck dumb with despair.
13. They will have no intercessor among their "partners" and they will (themselves) reject their "partners".
14. On the Day that the Hour will take place, that Day people will be sorted out.
15. Then those who have believed and did good deeds will be happy in a garden.
16. And those who disbelieved and falsely denied our revelations and the meeting of the Hereafter, they will be brought to the torment.
17. So glorify God, when you retire at night and when you rise in the morning;
18. Praise is due to Him, in the heavens and on earth; and in the evening and at midday.
19. It is He who brings out the living from the dead, and brings out the dead from the living, and who gives life to the earth after it is dead; and thus shall you be brought out (from the dead).
20. And among His signs is that He created you from dust; and then you are human beings scattered (far and wide).
21. And among His signs is that He created for you mates from among yourselves, that you may dwell in tranquility with them, and He planted affection and mercy between you. Verily in that are signs for those who reflect.
22. And among His signs is the creation of the heavens and the earth, and the variations in your languages and your colors. Verily in that are signs for those who know.
23. And among His signs is your sleep by night and by day, and the quest that you (make for livelihood) out of His bounty. Verily in that are signs for those who listen.

24. And among His signs is that He shows you the lightning, that terrifies and inspires hope, and He sends down rain from the sky and with it gives life to the earth after its death. Verily in that are signs for those who understand.
25. And among His signs is that the heavens and earth stand by His command; then when He calls you, with a (single) call from the earth, you will immediately come forth.
26. To Him belongs every being that is in the heavens and on earth; all are devoutly obedient to Him.
27. It is He who begins the creation; then repeats it; and for Him it is easiest. His is the Sublime similitude in the heavens and the earth. He is the Eminent, the Wise.
28. He gives you an example from yourselves. Do you have, among those whom your right hands possess, partners in what We have provided for you so that you are equal therein (and) would fear them as you fear each other? Thus, we explain the verses in detail for a people who understand.
29. Yet the wrongdoers follow their own whims without knowledge. Who will guide those whom God leaves astray? And they will have no helpers.
30. So, as a man of pure faith, stand firm and true in your devotion to the religion. This is the initial natural disposition which God instilled in people. There is no altering of God's creation. That is the right religion, but most people do not know.
31. Turning towards Him in repentance, and be conscious of Him. Establish regular prayers, and do not be of those who associate partners with God.
32. Those who split up their religion and became sects, each party rejoicing in what it has.
(30: 1 – 32)

The first few verses of this Sura were revealed when the army of the Persian Empire defeated the Roman's army. The idolaters of Mecca saw in this military victory a victory of the ideology of idolatry over Christendom and the belief in God. They hoped that this victory would be a prelude for their victory over the Muslims. The first few verses of this Sura brought glad tidings to the believers in Mecca that the balance will soon tilt in favor of the Christian Romans and they will defeat the Persian idolaters.

The Sura started with the Alphabetical letters, "Alif. Lam. Mim." This emphasizes the fact that the Quran has been composed using the Alphabetical letters of the language that the Arabs have mastered. Yet they were unable to compose a similar book. Then the future is foretold, "The Romans have been defeated in a land close by, and they, after their defeat will be victorious within a few years." Ibn Jareer narrated on the authority of Ibn Mass'oud (RA) that the idolaters of Mecca supported the Persian Empire while the Muslims supported the Roman Empire. When the Persians defeated the Romans the idolaters of Mecca were elated; they boasted the supremacy of the Persian idolaters over the Roman Christian. When these verses were revealed some of the idolaters of Mecca challenged Abu Bakr (RA) into a bet that this prophecy will not take place. However, Abu Bakr (RA) won the bet when the Romans defeated the Persians after nine years. The word "few" meant a number less than ten for the Arabs.

One can glean two lessons from these verses. The first lesson is the way that non-believing groups, in spite of the differences in their ethnicity, language, and cultural traditions, form alliances against believing groups. The second lesson is the absolute trust of the Muslims in God's promise. This trust gave Abu Bakr (RA) the confidence to accept the challenge of the idolaters of Mecca. A third lesson is learnt from the subsequent verse, “God's is the command in the former case and in the latter,” which emphasizes the fact that all decisions belong to God. God controls all affairs. When God ordains victory for the Romans, the believers will rejoice, “and in that day the believers will rejoice in the victory of God. He gives victory to whom He wills, and He is the Eminent, the Giver of Mercy.”

God promised victory and God never breaks His promise, “It is God's promise. God never breaks His promise, but most of people do not know.” However, people's knowledge is limited. They may acquire a great deal of knowledge but it is limited to their experience in this worldly life, but they do not know much beyond this superficial knowledge, “They know what is apparent of the worldly life, but they are heedless of the Hereafter.”

The verses continue to explore the creation of God, “Have they not pondered upon themselves? God did not create the heavens and the earth, and that which is between them, except with truth and for an appointed term. But truly many of the people do not believe that they will meet with their Lord.” The nature of the human body and the cosmic phenomena around us all lead to the conclusion that they were created according to a very meticulous and accurate set of laws. This is the truth that supports the existence of the universe. Everything runs according to a prescribed law until a predetermined term has been reached.

Another rhetorical question is posed, “Have they not travelled in the land and seen the nature of the consequence for those who were before them? They were stronger than them in power, and they dug the earth and built upon it more than they have built. Messengers of their own came to them with clear proofs. Certainly, God did not wrong them but they wronged themselves.” This is a call to the disbelievers to ponder about previous nations. They had more power and they established civilization on earth but they rejected guidance which God sent to them through His messengers. What was their end? “Then evil was the consequence for those who dealt in evil, because they denied the revelations of God and used to mock them.” They met their doom as a result of what they had done. God did not wrong them but they wronged themselves. The verse invites people to travel and reflect on the history previous nations.

The following verses present another theme. The verses deal with the inevitability of resurrection after death, “It is God who begins the creation; then repeats it; then to Him you will be brought back.” It is a simple and clear truth. He who started the creation is able to repeat the same process again. On the Day of the Resurrection the fate of people will be determined, “On the Day that the Hour will take place, the guilty will be struck dumb with despair.” The guilty will be punished. They were heedless of the truth of the resurrection; and here they are with all ties, to their previous partners and those they thought will intercede on their behalf, severed, “No intercessor will they have among their 'partners' and they will (themselves) reject their 'partners'.” They will be separated from the believers, “On the Day that the Hour will take place, that Day people will be sorted out.” The believers will get their reward, “Then those who have believed and did good deeds will be happy in a garden.” While those who rejected God's guidance will be punished, “And those who disbelieved and falsely denied our revelations and the meeting of the Hereafter, they will be brought to the torment.”

The following verses brings us back to the world that we live in and to the cosmic phenomena, the miracles, and the secrets of the human soul, “So glorify God, when you retire at night and when you rise in the morning; praise is due to Him, in the heavens and on earth; and in the evening and at midday.” The command to glorify and praise God comes after the mention of the scenes of the Day of Resurrection, the happy ending of the believers in secure gardens, and the evil ending of the disbelievers. It is also an appropriate introduction to the verses reminding people of the miracles of the creation. Times and places for glorifying and praising God are mentioned. This covers all the dimensions of time and space and links the heart of the believer to God at all times and in all places.

“It is He who brings out the living from the dead, and brings out the dead from the living, and who gives life to the earth after it is dead; and thus shall you be brought out (from the dead).” The verse describes the perpetual processes of life and death which continuously occur everywhere. The narrative then describes the creation of the human being, “And among His signs is that He created you from dust; and then you are human beings scattered (far and wide).” The dust from which human beings were created is a dead material. Changing a dead substance into a living being is a miracle. It also points to the close relationship between humans and the earth they live on and are affected by the laws that control it. One should ponder the miracle of creation, appreciate the process of creation and glorify and praise God for His favors. Not only humans were created from dust but they were also created in pairs, “And among His signs is that He created for you mates from among yourselves, that you may dwell in tranquility with them, and He planted affection and mercy between you. Verily in that are signs for those who reflect.” God created humans in pairs and instilled in them the natural attraction to each other and the ability to harbor and express emotions towards each other. Each one of the spouses finds a safe haven with the other. Affection and compassion necessary for the development of new lives are instilled in the hearts of the spouses.

“And among His signs is the creation of the heavens and the earth, and the variations in your languages and your colors. Verily in that are signs for those who know.” The creation of heavens and earth has been mentioned in several verses of the Quran. We pass quickly by it, but it is a huge miracle that we need to reflect upon. How was this huge universe created? Human beings do not even know the extent of the universe with all these constellations and the colossal number of stars they include. Every star moves in its own orbit in perpetual well controlled motion, they never collide with each other. Another miracle is the diversity in the human race. People see these facts but do not reflect on it much, little they know.

“And among His signs is your sleep by night and by day, and the quest that you (make for livelihood) out of His bounty. Verily in that are signs for those who listen.” This verse points to the harmony between the cosmic phenomena and the needs of the human being. Human beings need a night to rest and a day to work which are provided by the meticulous design of the universe.

“And among His signs is that He shows you the lightning, that terrifies and inspires hope, and He sends down rain from the sky and with it gives life to the earth after its death. Verily in that are signs for those who understand.” Another miracle is the lightening. The verse does not dwell on the scientific description of the phenomenon but mentions its effect on the human beings. Lightening evokes feelings of fear and hope, fear of the harm that is caused by lightening and hope in the growth caused by rain. The verse refers to life and death in connection to earth as if it were a living creature and it is. It is part of the creation of God that glorifies and praises Him. In addition, the earth is the source of life for plants and vegetations and life that is brought about by the rain which comes from the sky.

“And among His signs is that the heavens and earth stand by His command; then when He calls you, with a (single) call from the earth, you will immediately come forth.” This is another miracle that can only happen by the command of God. Everything belongs to Him and all His creatures are devoutly obedient to Him, “To Him belongs every being that is in the heavens and on earth; all are devoutly obedient to Him.” We see many people who are not obedient to God but nevertheless they are controlled by God’s laws.

“It is He who begins the creation; then repeats it; and for Him it is most easy. His is the Sublime similitude in the heavens and the earth. He is the Eminent, the Wise.” God’s ability to start and repeat the creation has been mentioned before, but this verse adds that starting and repeating the creation is easy for God because He is unique, Eminent, and Wise.

“He gives you an example from yourselves. Do you have, among those whom your right hands possess, partners in what We have provided for you so that you are equal therein (and) would fear them as you fear each other? Thus we explain the verses in detail for a people who understand.” This example is given for those who used to associate partners with God, yet they refused to share their wealth with their servants or to consider them equal. They forgot that the wealth they had was not of their own creation but was a bounty from God. They used double standard. They ignored God’s right to be worshipped alone because He is the Creator and in the mean time they asked to have exclusive rights regarding their slaves. This corrupt logic is a product of following their whims and desires in making decisions rather than using rationale thinking, “Yet the wrongdoers follow their own whims without knowledge. Who will guide those whom God leaves astray? And they will have no helpers.”

“So, as a man of pure faith, stand firm and true in your devotion to the religion. This is the initial natural disposition which God instilled in people. There is no altering of God's creation. That is the right religion, but most people do not know.” Follow the straight path and be devout to God. Following the straight path will save people from following the crooked ways which are controlled by their whims and desires. Following the straight path is part of the initial natural disposition which God instilled in the psyche of the human being. Although this command was addressed to the Prophet (PBUH) but it was meant for all believers. The attributes of the believers are further detailed, “Turning towards Him in repentance, and be conscious of Him. Establish regular prayers, and do not be of those who associate partners with God.” The believers turn towards God in repentance, continuously worshipping and being conscious of Him, and they refrain from associating partners with Him. The disbelievers on the other hand divided themselves into sects, “Those who split up their religion and became sects, each party rejoicing in what it has.” Each sect is rejoicing in what they have. God’s religion is one and it is the only way that leads to Him.

Verses 33 to 60:

33. When adversity touches people, they call upon their Lord, turning back to Him in repentance. Then when He gives them a taste of mercy from Himself, some of them immediately associate partners with their Lord;
34. Showing ingratitude for the (favours) We have bestowed on them. Then enjoy yourselves, for soon you will know.
35. Or have We sent down an authority to them, which speaks of that which they associate with Him?
36. When We give people a taste of mercy, they rejoice in it; but when some evil afflicts them, because of what their (own) hands have sent forth, they are in despair.
37. Did they not see that God enlarges the provision and restricts it, to whomsoever He pleases? Verily in that are signs for those who believe.
38. So give the close relatives their due, as well as the needy and the wayfarer. That is best for those who seek the countenance of God, and it is they who will be successful.
39. That which you give in usury in order that it may increase within people's wealth does not increase in the sight of God; but that which you give in charity, seeking God's countenance, will increase manifold.
40. God is He who created you, then provided for you, then will cause you to die, and will give you life again. Is there any of those whom you associate with God who does any of that? Praised and Exalted Be He above what they associate (with Him).
41. Corruption has appeared on land and at sea because of (the evil) which people's hands have earned, that He may make them taste a part of that which they have done, in order that they may return.
42. Say, “Travel through the land and see what was the end of those before. Most of them associated partners with God.”
43. Stand firm and true in your devotion to the upright religion, before there comes from God a day which cannot be averted; on that day they shall become separated.
44. Those who disbelieved – they will bear the consequence of their disbelief. And those who did good deeds were preparing for themselves.
45. That He may reward those who believe and do good deeds, out of his bounty. Indeed, He does not like the disbelievers.
46. And among His signs is that He sends the winds, as heralds of glad tidings, giving you a taste of His mercy, so that the ships may sail at His command, and that you may seek of His bounty in order that you may be grateful.
47. We did indeed send, before you, messengers to their peoples, and they came to them with clear evidences; then We exacted revenge on those who were guilty, and it is incumbent on Us to support the believers.

48. God is He who sends the winds so that they raise clouds, and spreads them along the sky as pleases Him, and causes them to break and you see the rain down pouring from within them. And when He makes it to fall on whom He wills of His servants, they rejoice;
49. Although they were, before it was sent down upon them – before that, in despair.
50. So observe the effects of the mercy of God, how He gives life to the earth after its death. Certainly He will raise the dead to life; and He has power over all things.
51. And even if We send a wind and they see it to be yellow, they would after that certainly continue to disbelieve.
52. So verily you cannot make the dead to hear, nor can you make the deaf to hear the call, when they have turned to flee.
53. Nor can you guide the blind out of their error. You can make none to hear save those who believe in Our revelations and they have submitted.
54. God is He who created you weak then gave you, after weakness, strength, then made after strength weakness and grey hair. He creates what He wills. He is the Omniscient, the All-Powerful.
55. On the Day that the Hour (of Reckoning) will take place the guilty will swear that they had stayed but an hour. Thus, they were deluded.
56. But those endued with knowledge and faith will say, "Indeed you did stay, within God's book, to the Day of Resurrection, and this is the Day of Resurrection; but you did not know.
57. On that Day the excuses, which the wrongdoers will make, will not be of benefit to them; nor will they be allowed to make amends.
58. We have cited in this Quran for the people every sort of parable. But if you bring them any sign, the disbelievers are sure to say, "You are but a falsifier."
59. Thus, does God seal up the hearts of those who do not know.
60. So persevere. God's promise is the very truth, and let not those who do not have certitude discourage you. (30: 33 – 60)

“When adversity touches people, they call upon their Lord, turning back to Him in repentance. Then when He gives them a taste of mercy from Himself, some of them immediately associate partners with their Lord; showing ingratitude for the (favours) We have bestowed on them.” This verse describes the behavior of people who keep changing their minds because they adopted confused values. Their decisions are erratic; they fluctuate with their mood swings. When they face a difficulty, they remember God; but once the difficult time passes they forget God’s bounty and associate partners with Him. They do not subscribe to a constant faith which would guide them to a steady behavior. These people need to be reminded of their imprudence. Thus, a threat is issued, “Then enjoy yourselves, for soon you will know.” This is a frightful threat from God. Following the threat, a rhetorical question is posed expressing the renunciation of their shameful deeds, “Or have We sent down an authority to them, which speaks of that which they associate with Him?” The articles of faith can only be dictated by God. Did they then receive a revelation from God which decreed their corrupt faith?

This is followed by a verse which describes human behavior, “When We give people a taste of mercy, they rejoice in it; but when some evil afflicts them, because of what their (own) hands have sent forth, they are in despair.” The verse describes the case of people who are completely occupied with their own interests. They love to enjoy good things without bothering to wonder about the source of these good things. Because they do not think of God, they despair when they are faced with an affliction. Had they thought of God and remembered Him in good as well as bad times, they would have reached the conclusion that, “God enlarges the provision and restricts it, to whomsoever He pleases? Verily in that are signs for those who believe.” One should remember God during difficult and good times, because these are normal phases of human life decreed by God. The believer should not overly celebrate good times nor despairs in difficult times. These conditions should be accepted as part of human life.

Since God is the Provider, then it is His right to guide people to the best way to spend their money, “So give the close relatives their due, as well as the needy and the wayfarer. That is best for those who seek the countenance of God, and it is they who will be successful.” God the Provider, decided in His wisdom that certain categories of people are entitled to a portion of the provision that God bestows on His servants. The verse lists some of these categories: the close relatives, the needy, and the wayfarer. The poor-dues were not yet prescribed at the time when this verse was revealed. But this verse establishes the basic principle on which the financial theory of Islam has been established. God is the owner of all wealth; He assigns it to whomever He wills and He decreed that there are categories of people who are entitled to certain shares of this assignment. Spending the money according to God’s commands guarantees success in this life and in the Hereafter. Some people used to give gifts to rich people hoping that they will receive better gifts in return, “That which you give in usury in order that it may increase within people’s wealth does not increase in the sight of God.” Quran guided them to a better way to receive a better return on their investment, “but that which you give in charity, seeking God’s countenance, will increase manifold.” This is a guaranteed investment plan: donate money without expecting a return from people but get your return from God. He will give you multiples of the wealth you spent according to His command.

The following verses deal with the issue of associating partners with God from the point of view of earning one’s livelihood, “God is He who created you, then provided for you, then will cause you to die, and will give you life again.” The verse challenged the idolaters by stating that God is the Creator, He is the Provider, He puts them to death, and He is the one who will resurrect them. The Arabs did not dispute the fact that God is the Creator. They could not claim that the idols provided them with their livelihood, and they could not argue about the fact that it is God who puts them to death. However, many of them were doubtful of the resurrection. A rhetorical question was posed, “Is there any of those whom you associate with God who does any of that?” The answer was given immediately, “Praised and Exalted be He above what they associate (with Him).”

“Corruption has appeared on land and at sea because of (the evil) which people’s hands have earned, that He may make them taste a part of that which they have done, in order that they may return. Say, ‘Travel through the land and see what was the end of those before. Most of them associated partners with God.’” The spread of corruption is not a coincidence. It happens as a result of people’s behavior and attitudes. This is part of the divine project to alert people to the consequences of their actions, so that they may amend their behavior. The dire consequences for the spread of corruption can be easily seen from the remains of ancient cities and civilizations.

The road to success is then outlined, “Stand firm and true in your devotion to the upright religion, before there comes from God a day which cannot be averted; on that day they shall become separated.” This command was given earlier in connection with the people who follow their worldly desires. Here it comes in connection with the concept of associating partners with God and its effect on the outlook of people regarding earning their living. The two separate ways that the believers and the disbelievers go through and their consequences are explained, “Those who disbelieved – they will bear the consequence of their disbelief. And those who did good deeds were preparing for themselves.” The Arabic word for “preparing for themselves,” gives the impression of a process where a person exerts hard and consistent work which will result in a comfortable life at the end. This hard and consistent work makes them eligible to receive the bounty of God, “That He may reward those who believe and do good deeds, out of his bounty. Indeed, He does not like the disbelievers.”

The following verses describe some of the signs of God that people should reflect upon, “And among His signs is that He sends the winds, as heralds of glad tidings, giving you a taste of His mercy, so that the ships may sail at His command, and that you may seek of His bounty in order that you may be grateful.” The wind herald the coming of rain and rain causes the plants to grow. Wind also propel ships making trading easier. These are all bounties of God which require our gratitude. But people did not appreciate God’s mercy and rejected the messengers who were sent to guide them, “We did indeed send, before you, messengers to their peoples, and they came to them with clear evidences; then We exacted revenge on those who were guilty, and it is incumbent on Us to support the believers.” Glory be to God who promised to grant victory to the believers. Sometimes victory is delayed according to human measures but God has His own measure which is based on His total awareness and wisdom. The cycle of rain is then described, “God is He who sends the winds so that they raise clouds, and spreads them along the sky as pleases Him, and causes them to break and you see the rain down pouring from within them. And when He makes it to fall on whom He wills of His servants, they rejoice; although they were, before it was sent down upon them – before that, in despair.” The Arabs appreciated the importance of the rain because their livelihood was directly dependent on rain water. When rain is delayed their hearts would be filled with despair.

These phenomena are all signs of God’s mercy and power, “So observe the effects of the mercy of God, how He gives life to the earth after its death. Certainly He will raise the dead to life; and He has power over all things.” They are full of despair when the wind does not bring rain. In their despair they forget to remember God and instead they become entrenched in their disbelief, “And if We sent a wind and they see it to be yellow, they would after that certainly continue to disbelieve.”

“So verily you cannot make the dead to hear, nor can you make the deaf to hear the call, when they have turned to flee. Nor can you guide the blind out of their error. You can make none to hear save those who believe in Our revelations and they have submitted.” These verses were meant to comfort the Prophet (PBUH) and to assure him that it is their mistake not his that made them obstinate in their disbelief. He could not make the dead to hear. They were described as dead, deaf, and blind because they were unable to reflect and comprehend the truth around them.

“God is He who created you from weakness then gave you, after weakness, strength, then made after strength weakness and grey hair. He creates what He wills. He is the Omniscient, the All-Powerful.” God did not say created you weak but He said, “He created you from weakness,” as if weakness was the material that human beings were created from. This weakness has many dimensions. It is the physical weakness of the minute cell from which the fetus emanated; the weakness of the fetus as it develops; and the weakness of the baby when it is born and until the body reaches maturity. It is also the weakness of the material from which humankind was created. Humankind was created from mud. It is only the spirit of God which has been blown into him that differentiates him from other animals. Then it is the weakness of the human being in resisting the temptation of the physical desires and lusts. The spirit of God blown into him is the only force that supports him in resisting these lowly desires. Then God gave humankind the strength: the physical, the psychological, and the spiritual strength. Then comes the phase of decline when humankind loses all the strength of maturity and returns back to a weak state similar to the state of childhood. Every human being, given that he/she lives long enough, will experience these phases of development. No one can escape this progression of events. The lifetime story has been planned meticulously by God, “the Omniscient, the All-Powerful.”

Life then ends and later on people will be resurrected, “On the Day that the Hour (of Reckoning) will take place the guilty will swear that they had stayed but an hour. Thus, they were deluded.” The sense of time will be lost. The guilty will suffer a delusion similar to the one they suffered in their life when they were misguided. But the believers who were given knowledge will explain, “But those endowed with knowledge and faith will say, ‘Indeed you did stay, within God's book, to the Day of Resurrection, and this is the Day of Resurrection; but you did not know.’” Then the final conclusion is made, “On that Day the excuses, which the wrongdoers will make, will not be of benefit to them; nor will they be allowed to make amends.”

The narrative then turns to the scene of the idolaters in their obstinate disbelief, “We have cited in this Quran for the people every sort of parable. But if you bring them any sign, the disbelievers are sure to say, ‘You are but a falsifier.’ Thus does God seal up the hearts of those who do not know.” It is a big jump in space and time but it comes as a natural development in the narrative. This is the Quran addressing and challenging the idolaters and describing their adamant obstinacy in their misguidance. This brings us to the last punch line of the Sura, “So persevere. God's promise is the very truth, and let not those who do not have certitude discourage you.” Perseverance is the tool that will support the believers in their long and hard struggle against falsehood. The trust in God's promise will make the travel along this thorny road easy and will bring security and confidence to the hearts of the believers.

Sura 31: Luqman (Luqman)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 19:

1. Alif. Lam. Mim.
2. These are verses of the wise Book,
3. A guide and a mercy to the doers of good;
4. Those who establish regular prayer, and pay the poor-due and who have certitude in the Hereafter.
5. These are truly guided by their Lord and these are the successful.
6. But there are, among people those who take instead frivolous discourse to lead astray from God's path without knowledge, and to take it for a mockery; these shall suffer an abasing torment.
7. And when Our revelations are recited to him he turns away in arrogance as if he did not hear them, as if there were a deafness in his ears. So give him tidings of a painful torment.
8. For those who believe and do good deeds, there will be gardens of bliss,
9. Wherein they will abide. It is a promise of God in truth. He is the Eminent, the Wise.
10. He created the heavens without any supports that you can see; He set on the earth mountains standing firm, lest it should shake with you; and He scattered through it beasts of all kinds. We sent down rain from the sky, and produced on the earth every kind of noble kind, in pairs.
11. This is the creation of God. Now show me what those (you worship) beside Him have created. Indeed, the wrongdoers are in manifest error.
12. And verily We gave Luqman wisdom, saying, "Give thanks to God; whosoever gives thanks, he gives thanks for (the good of) his own soul. And whosoever is ungrateful, then surely God is Rich, Praised."
13. And (remember) when Luqman said to his son, when he was admonishing him, "My son, do not associate partners with God. Associating partners (with God) is a tremendous wrong."
14. And We have enjoined on humankind (to be good) to his parents. His mother bears him in weakness upon weakness, and his weaning is in two years. Give thanks to Me and to your parents. To Me is the final destination.
15. But if they endeavor to make you associate with Me that of which you have no knowledge, do not obey them; yet keep their company in this life with kindness, and follow the way of those who turn to me (in repentance). In the end you will return to Me, and I will tell you about all that you did.
16. "My son," (said Luqman), "Even if it were the weight of a mustard-seed and it were (hidden) in a rock, or (anywhere) in the heavens or on earth, God will bring it forth. God is Subtle, Totally-Aware.
17. My son, establish regular prayer, enjoin what is right, and forbid what is wrong; and persevere whatever may befall you. Indeed, these acts require resolve.

18. And do not turn your face away from people in contempt, nor walk proudly on earth. God does not love the arrogant, the boastful;
19. Be modest in your bearing and lower your voice. The most repulsive of all voices is the voice of the ass.” (31: 1 -19)

The Quran came to address the initial natural disposition of the human being in a way that is appropriate to that disposition. It is God who revealed the Quran and it is He who instilled this natural disposition in the human being. God instilled in the initial natural disposition of the human being the basic truth of the Oneness of God, the Creator. So, human beings should recognize this truth by instinct. It was essential that God should reveal the Quran to remind people with the basic truth because physical desires and worldly lusts may cloud the initial natural disposition instilled in people and prevents them from realizing the basic truth.

This Sura which was revealed in Mecca is a model of the Quranic style in addressing the human heart aiming at uncovering the basic truth that God had implanted in the psyche of the human being at the time of its creation. The focus of all the Suras of the Quran revealed in Mecca was the belief in the oneness of God the Creator. This concept was dealt with using different approaches in the various Suras of the Meccan Quran.

The Sura starts with three letter of the Arabic Alphabet, “Alif. Lam. Mim,” to emphasize the fact that the Quran was composed using letters of the Arabic Alphabet. The Quran is described as a Book of wisdom, “These are verses of the wise Book,” which is appropriate and in congruence with the theme of the Sura. In addition, such a description gives the impression that it is a living Book that means what it says and uses, full of wisdom, and it provides guidance and mercy, “A Guide and a Mercy to the doers of good.” The verse defines the doers of good, “Those who establish regular prayer, and pay the poor-due and who have certitude in the Hereafter.” They perform prayers in the best way they can and at the prescribed times. This way prayer provides a strong link between the heart of the believer and God, allowing the believer to enjoy the sweetness of being close to God. Paying the poor-due supports the believer’s soul in its struggle against the natural human tendency to be stingy. It provides the foundation for a society that looks after its members who are less fortunate and enhances the feeling of mutual responsibility among its members. The certainty of the inevitability of the Day of the Resurrection is the guarantee that the human heart will be ever vigilant in its struggle against temptation and will always remain conscious of God, in secret and in public. It helps the believer to reach the status of excellence. The Prophet (PBUH) has been quoted to have said, “Excellence is to serve God as if He were visible to you, because even if you are not able to see God, He most definitely sees you.” The Quran becomes a source of guidance and mercy for the doers of good, “These are truly guided by their Lord and these are the successful.” Those who are guided are indeed the successful ones because God will make their path to success clear and easy. They will be protected against any temptation to deviate from this straight path.

On the other hand, there are those who are not guided, “But there are, among people those who take instead frivolous discourse to lead astray from God's path without knowledge, and to take it for a mockery; these shall suffer an abasing torment. And when Our revelations are recited to him he turns away in arrogance as if he did not hear them, as if there were a deafness in his ears. So give him tidings of a painful torment.” The verses speak of people who spend their precious time and their wealth to compose false and baseless arguments to mislead people away from the straight path. These people do not base their arguments in wisdom or knowledge but they are motivated by their bad intentions. They simply want to lead people astray. They use mockery to attract people to their side. Those will suffer a humiliating torment. They behave arrogantly when they are reminded of God’s revelations; they turn away as if they were deaf. Quran responds to their mockery with a mockery of its own: they are given the tidings of painful torment.

The reward for the believers is detailed, “For those who believe and do good deeds, there will be gardens of bliss, wherein they will abide. It is a promise of God in truth. He is the Eminent, the Wise.” The Quran always links the reward to the belief and good deeds. Islam does not consider belief to be a truth that resides in the heart without practical consequences. Belief is the foundation for the actions, deeds, and behavior of the believer. Those who believed and their actions and deeds reflected their belief will have a great reward: infinite life in the gardens of bliss. This is God’s promise and God never breaks His promise. God’s promise is an expression of His bounty that He bestows on His servants. God does not need His servants because He is the Eminent, the Wise.

This tremendous universe is a witness of the Eminence and Wisdom of God. There is no doubt that God is the Creator of this amazing universe, “He created the heavens without any supports that you can see; He set on the earth mountains standing firm, lest it should shake with you; and He scattered through it beasts of all kinds. We sent down rain from the sky, and produced on the earth every kind of noble kind, in pairs.” We look at the sky and see the stars and the huge planets floating in space without any visible supports. This is an amazing scene. No one can see this scene without being filled with awe. The verse then moves from the huge universe to the tiny earth where we see the mountains. These mountains keep the earth well balanced. God’s creatures which live on earth represent one of the amazing miracles. The existence of life on earth is a secret that no one has been able to fathom till now, even in its most primitive and simple forms, let alone the huge intricate forms of life. Sending down rain from the sky is another cosmic phenomenon that we watch every day but we don’t stop and reflect upon it. The cycle of water in the universe and on earth is a well controlled phenomenon which is necessary for the maintenance of life on earth. Another miracle that the verse states is the fact that plants were created in pairs which has been proven as a scientific fact.

This is God’s creation, “This is the creation of God. Now show me what those (you worship) beside Him have created. Indeed the wrongdoers are in manifest error.” The verse poses a challenge to the disbelievers, a challenge that they were unable to meet. Hence they deserve the description, “Indeed the wrongdoers are in manifest error.”

The following verses deal with a new theme. Using a story telling style the Quran discusses the principles of expressing gratitude to God and the accountability of humankind, “And verily We gave Luqman wisdom, saying, ‘Give thanks to God; whosoever gives thanks, he gives thanks for (the good of) his own soul. And whosoever is ungrateful, then surely God is Rich, Praised.’ The verse indirectly exhorts the believers to follow Luqman’s suit and express their gratitude to God, stating that expressing gratitude to God is beneficial to the human being in the first place. This is followed by a statement of the belief in the Oneness of God, “And (remember) when Luqman said to his son, when he was admonishing him, ‘My son, do not associate partners with God. Associating partners (with God) is a tremendous wrong.’” This is a fair advice because a father is always interested in the welfare of his son. Luqman also describes associating partners with God as the worst kind of wrongdoing. This is the same message that Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) brought to his people.

The verses then address the relationship between the children and their parents, “And We have enjoined on humankind (to be good) to his parents. His mother bears him in weakness upon weakness, and his weaning is in two years. Give thanks to Me and to your parents. To Me is the final destination.” The Quran has repeatedly commanded the children to treat their parents with kindness, but it rarely reminded the parents of being kind to their children. The only cases that this was done was in the context of denouncing the pre-Islamic habit of infanticide. It shows that the kindness of parents towards their children is implanted in the initial natural disposition which God instilled in the human beings. There is no need to advice parents to be kind to their children because they work hard to raise their children. They willingly and happily sacrifice to bring up their children. It is the children who should express their gratitude to God first then to their parents. This is followed by a reminder that everyone will ultimately return to God to be accountable for their deeds. However, the relationship between the believers and God is more important than the relationship between the believers and their parents. So, if the parents try to sway the believer away from the straight path, then they should not be obeyed, “But if they endeavor to make you associate with Me that of which you have no knowledge, do not obey them.” But that does not mean that the believers would treat their parents unkindly, even in this case, “Yet keep their company in this life with kindness, and follow the way of those who turn to me (in repentance). In the end you will return to Me, and I will tell you about all that you did.”

The principle of accountability is dealt with in the next verse, “My son,” (said Luqman), “Even if it were the weight of a mustard-seed and it were (hidden) in a rock, or (anywhere) in the heavens or on earth, God will bring it forth. God is Subtle, Totally-Aware.” The verse illustrates the power of God and His vast knowledge. Even a tiny seed of mustard that is lodged somewhere in a rock which may be in heaven or on earth is accounted for in God’s knowledge. Then the advice continues, “My son, establish regular prayer, enjoin what is right, and forbid what is wrong; and persevere whatever may befall you. Indeed, these acts require resolve.” These are the planned steps: the belief in God, the consciousness of God, the confidence in His fairness, and the fear of His punishment; then comes the commands to enjoin what is good and forbid what is evil, to establish prayer, and to persevere when adversity strikes. These steps require great resolve. The advice continues, “And do not turn your face away from people in contempt, nor walk proudly on earth. God does not love the arrogant, the boastful; be modest in your bearing and lower your voice. The most repulsive of all voices is the voice of the ass.” The advice condemns boasting and behaving arrogantly and encourages walking and speaking with modesty and confidence.

Verses 20 to 34:

20. Do you not see that God has subjected to your (use) all things in the heavens and on earth, and has bestowed His, seen and unseen, bounties generously on you? Yet there are among people those who dispute about God, without knowledge and without guidance, and without a book to enlighten them.
21. When they are told to follow the revelation that God has sent down, they say, "We shall follow the ways that we found our fathers following." Even if Satan was inviting them to the torment of the (blazing) Fire?
22. And whoever submits himself wholly to God and he is a doer of good, he indeed has taken hold of the most trustworthy handhold. With God rests the outcome of all events.
23. And whosoever disbelieves let not his disbelief sadden you (Muhammad). To Us is their return, and We shall tell them what they did. God is aware of what is in the breasts (of people).
24. We grant them pleasure for a little while, then We will drive them to severe torment.
25. If you ask them, who it is that created the heavens and the earth? They will certainly say, "God". Say, "Praise be to God." But most of them do not know.
26. To God belong all things in heaven and earth. Verily God is the Rich, the Praised.
27. And if all the trees on earth were pens and the ocean (were ink), with seven oceans behind it to add to its (supply), yet the words of God would not be exhausted (in the writing). God is indeed Eminent, Wise.
28. And your creation and your resurrection are only as (the creation and the resurrection of) a single soul. God is All-Hearing, All-Seeing.
29. Do you not see that God merges the night into the day, and He merges the day into the night, and He has made the sun and the moon subservient (to you); each pursues its course till an appointed time; and that God is Totally-Aware of what you do?
30. That is because God is the (only) truth, and because whatever else they invoke besides Him is falsehood; and because God is the Most High, the Great.
31. Do you not see how the ships glide on the sea by God's Blessing, that He may show you of His signs? Most surely there are signs in this for every steadfast, grateful (heart).
32. When a wave covers them like the canopy, they call to God, offering Him sincere devotion. But when He has delivered them safely to land, there are among them those who follow a middle course. None reject Our revelations except those who are deceitful ungrateful.
33. People, be conscious of your Lord, and fear (the coming of) a day when a parent will not avail his/her child, nor a child will avail the parent. God's promise is the very truth. Let not the life of this world beguile you, nor let the deceiver beguile you, in regard to God.
34. Indeed, with God is knowledge of the Hour. He sends down the rain, and knows that what is in the wombs. No soul knows what it will earn tomorrow, and no soul knows in what land it will die. God is Omniscient, Totally-Aware. (31: 20 -34)

The following verses start a new theme, presenting a proof for the Oneness of God from the cosmic phenomena that are related directly to people's life on earth, "Do you not see that God has subjected to your (use) all things in the heavens and on earth, and has made His bounties flow to you in exceeding measure, (both) seen and unseen?” This argument has been repeated often in the Quran using different approaches to evoke the feelings of awe in the hearts of people. The presentation here focuses on the harmony between people’s life on earth and these phenomena. This harmony could not have been the result of a random sequence of events. God created the universe to provide an appropriate environment for the life of human beings on earth. The earth is a small planet in this vast universe and the human being is a tiny creature who lives on earth. It is a blessing from God who created this vast universe to cater for the needs of the life of this tiny creature who lives on this small planet. God bestowed on humankind qualities and traits which enable him to use the resources available in this vast universe. The bounties of God are unlimited. They include the creation of the human being, breathing into him of the spirit of God, and providing him with the energy, tools and ability to benefit from the resources that God made available to him. Yet there are people who do not see these bounties, “Yet there are among people those who dispute about God, without knowledge and without guidance, and without a book to enlighten them.” This is a strange response that reflects the ingratitude that some people express. Their only excuse is that they follow in the footsteps of their forefathers, “When they are told to follow the revelation that God has sent down, they say, ‘We shall follow the ways that we found our fathers following.’” They wanted to follow old rigid traditions without thinking or reflecting on what this means. Islam came to free them from the shackles of these old meaningless traditions. Islam brought them new values but they were obstinate in following old traditions, even though these traditions would lead them to Hellfire, “Even if Satan was inviting them to the torment of the (blazing) Fire?”

On the other hand, there are those who fully submit to God and do good deeds; those are the ones who hold tight to the trustworthy handhold, “And whoever submits himself wholly to God and he is a doer of good, he indeed has taken hold of the most trustworthy handhold. With God rests the outcome of all events.” This handhold is a strong link between the believer’s heart and his Lord. It provides trust in God and acceptance of His decrees. It fills the believer’s heart with security and tranquility. It supports the believers in facing the tests and trials of life. The trustworthy handhold is the handhold of Islam, the absolute submission to God, and the excellence in behavior.

The following verse was meant to comfort the Prophet (PBUH). It describes the end result of those who disbelieve, “And whosoever disbelieves let not his disbelief sadden you (Muhammad). To Us is their return, and We shall tell them what they did. God is aware of what is in the breasts (of people). We grant them pleasure for a little while, then We will drive them to severe torment.” They will be driven forcefully to severe torment from which they have no escape.

The initial natural disposition guides the human being to the truth of the creation, “If you ask them, who it is that created the heavens and the earth. They will certainly say, ‘God’. Say, ‘Praise be to God.’ But most of them do not know. To God belong all things in heaven and earth. Verily God is the Rich, the Praised.” Even though they rejected the message that Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) brought them, they could not but answer the question truthfully. They knew that God is the Creator. So praise God for the truth that He instilled in the initial natural disposition of the human being.

“And if all the trees on earth were pens and the ocean (were ink), with seven oceans behind it to add to its (supply), yet the words of God would not be exhausted (in the writing). God is indeed Eminent and Wise.” Had they been entrusted with writing down God’s words they would not have been able to exhaust God’s words even if they used all the trees in the world to make pens and an amount of ink that fills the oceans of the earth and seven like them. God is truly Eminent and Wise.

“And your creation and your resurrection are only as (the creation and the resurrection of) a single soul. God is All-Hearing, All-Seeing.” Whether God wants to create a single person or many, the process of creation is achieved by a single word, “Be.” The process of creation does not require any effort on the part of God, when He wills something it happens.

“Do you not see that God merges the night into the day, and He merges the day into the night, and He has made the sun and the moon subservient (to you); each pursues its course till an appointed time; and that God is Totally-Aware of what you do?” The alternating scenes of the day and the night are familiar yet they are wonderful scenes. It is a repetitive phenomenon that occurs regularly without any disturbance or change. Only God can create and maintain this system. This phenomenon is related to the cycles of the sun and the moon, another amazing phenomenon. These phenomena testify that, “God is the (only) truth, and because whatever else they invoke besides Him is falsehood; and because God is the Most High, the Great.” This universal cosmic system has been created and is maintained by the only truth, God. Everything in the universe is transient except God; He is the Everlasting and He is the Most High, the Great.

The following verses take us on a journey to discover the inner feelings of the human being when faced with danger, “Do you not see how the ships glide on the sea by God's Blessing, that He may show you of His signs? Most surely there are signs in this for every steadfast, grateful (heart). When a wave covers them like the canopy, they call to God, offering Him sincere devotion. But when He has delivered them safely to land, there are among them those who follow a middle course. None rejects Our revelations except those who are deceitful ungrateful.” God created the laws that allow ships to float on water and to navigate seas. Sea travelers should appreciate these signs of God. When they are faced with a dangerous situation, there is no one to call upon except God. But when He saves them, some of them are lukewarm in their service to God while others are outright ungrateful.

One should remember that the dangers in life are quite tiny when compared with the danger of coming unprepared to the Day of Judgment, “People, be conscious of your Lord, and fear (the coming of) a day when a parent will not avail his/her child, nor a child will avail the parent. God's promise is the very truth. Let not the life of this world beguile you, nor let the deceiver beguile you, in regard to God.” No one will be able to help another, all relationships will be useless, even a child-parent relationship. Nothing will benefit people except their deeds. So prepare for that day and let not the pleasures of this world deceive you and make you go astray.

The following verses illustrate the limited knowledge of the human being and the unlimited knowledge of God, “Indeed with God is knowledge of the Hour. He sends down the rain, and knows that what is in the wombs. No soul knows what it will earn tomorrow, and no soul knows in what land it will die. God is Omniscient, Totally-Aware.” No mortal has knowledge of when the Day of Judgment will happen. People should be always on the alert, expecting it to happen any time. Rain descends by the will of God according to the laws that God decreed. People could make predictions for rain fall but they cannot create the environmental conditions which are required for rain to fall. God is He who sends down rain because it is He who can create the environmental conditions needed for the rain to fall. Only God knows what are in the wombs. In addition, no one knows what he/she will earn tomorrow. This knowledge is not only about financial earnings but it also includes health, happiness, ease, or difficulty. And finally, no soul knows in which place it will die. No one is certain where he/she will die.

Sura 32: Al-Sajda (The Prostration)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 30:

1. Alif. Lam. Mim.
2. The revelation of the Book, there is no doubt in it, is from the Lord of the worlds.
3. Or do they say, "He has forged it"? It is the truth from your Lord that you may warn a people to whom no warner has come before you, in order that they may be guided.
4. It is God who created the heavens and the earth, and which is between them, in six days. Then He established Himself on the Throne. You do not have, besides Him, any protecting guardian or anyone to intercede on your behalf. Will you not then remember?
5. He manages (all) affairs from the heavens to the earth. Then it ascends to Him on a Day, the length of which will be a thousand years of your reckoning.
6. Such is He, the Knower of all things, unseen and seen, the Eminent, the Giver of Mercy.
7. He who perfected everything He created. And He began the creation of humankind from clay.
8. Then He made his progeny from an extract of insignificant fluid.
9. Then He fashioned him in due proportion, and breathed into him of His spirit. And He gave you (the faculties of) hearing and sight and minds, little thanks you give.
10. And they say, "When we are lost in the earth, shall we then be re-created?" In fact, they deny the meeting with their Lord.
11. Say, "The angel of death, put in charge of you, will take your souls. Then you shall be brought back to your Lord."
12. If only you could see when the guilty ones, bowing their heads before their Lord, (saying) "Our Lord, we have seen and we have heard, so send us back; we will do good deeds; for indeed we are now certain."
13. If We had so willed, We could have certainly given every soul its guidance, but the word from Me has come true, "I will fill Hell with jinn and people all together."
14. So taste (the evil of your deeds). Forasmuch as you forgot the meeting of this day of yours, We forget you. Taste the eternal torment for what you used to do.
15. Only those believe in Our revelations who, when they are reminded of them, fall down prostrate and celebrate the praise of their Lord, and they are not arrogant.
16. They forsake their beds to call upon their Lord in fear and hope, and they spend of that We have bestowed on them.
17. No soul knows what is kept hidden for them of joy, as a reward for what they used to do.
18. Is he who is a believer like him who is a transgressor? They are not equal.
19. For those who believe and do good deeds are Gardens of Refuge as hospitable homes, for what they used to do.
20. And as for those who transgressed, their refuge is the fire; whenever they desire to go forth from it they shall be brought back into it, and it will be said to them, "Taste the torment of the fire which you used to deny."

21. And indeed We will make them taste of the torment of this (life) prior to the supreme torment, that haply they may return.
22. And who does greater wrong than he who is reminded of the revelations of his Lord, then turns away from them. We shall exact revenge on the guilty.
23. We did indeed give Moses the Scripture. So do not be in doubt regarding his encounter. And We made it guidance to the Children of Israel.
24. And We appointed, from among them, leaders, giving guidance under Our command, so long as they persevered and continued to have certitude in Our revelations.
25. Verily, your Lord will judge between them on the Day of Resurrection concerning that wherein they used to differ.
26. Is it not a lesson for them (to observe) how many generations We destroyed before them, amid whose dwelling places they do walk? Therein verily are signs. Will they not then hear?
27. And do they not see that We do drive rain to barren land, and produce therewith crops, providing food for their cattle and themselves? Will they not then see?
28. They say, "When will this victory be, if you are telling the truth?"
29. Say, "On the day of the victory, the faith of those who disbelieve (and who then will believe) will not avail them, neither will they be reprieved."
30. So turn away from them, and wait; they too are waiting. (32: 1 – 30)

“Alif. Lam. Mim.” These letters of the Alphabet were known to the Arab and they excelled in using it to compose prose and poetry. However, they realized the vast difference between what they were able to compose and this Quran. There is no doubt that this Quran has been revealed by God, “The revelation of the Book, there is no doubt in it, is from the Lord of the worlds.” The statement of certainty was inserted in the middle of the sentence, between the noun and the predicate, because this is the main theme of the Sura. The idolaters of Mecca claimed that Muhammad (PBUH) was the one who composed the Quran. The Quran emphasizes that this claim is not true, “Or do they say, ‘He has forged it?’ It is the truth from your Lord that you may warn a people to whom no warner has come before you, in order that they may be guided.” It is the truth from your Lord. It is the truth because it confirms the truth implanted in the initial natural disposition of humankind, it enunciates the truth about the universe and its laws, it provides the believers with the means to live in harmony with the rest of the universe, and it is the truth that establishes justice and removes any form of injustice. It is the truth from your Lord not from you, Muhammad. You were given this truth to warn the Arabs whose generations after Prophet Ishmael (PBUH) did not receive any warning before you were sent to them, perhaps they may heed this warning.

The Arabs used to associate partners with God. This verse establishes the right of God to be worshipped alone, “It is God who created the heavens and the earth, and which is between them, in six days. Then He established Himself on the Throne. You do not have, besides Him, any protecting guardian or anyone to intercede on your behalf. Will you not then remember?” God created this vast universe in six time periods. Only God knows how long these periods were.

They may have been six phases or six stages of development but they are certainly not six days like our days. Then He established Himself on the Throne. This is a symbolic way to express God's exaltation above His creation. We have no idea about the nature of the Throne. This is a matter that only God knows. No one can protect us nor intercede on our behalf besides Him. This is a fact that people need to remember and heed.

God is the Most High and He also manages all the affairs and He will settle all the affairs on the Day of the Resurrection, "He manages (all) affairs from the heavens to the earth. Then it ascends to Him on a Day, the length of which will be a thousand years of your reckoning." He is, "the Knower of all things, unseen and seen, the Eminent, the Giver of Mercy." And He, "who perfected everything He created." God has perfected everything He created. Every creature was made to perform a specific function from the single cell to the human being to the planets floating in the sky. The universe was made in harmony. Not only the creation was made functional but was also made beautiful. Beauty in the creation was deliberate because perfection yields beauty.

A sign of His perfection is the creation of the human being, "And He began the creation of humankind from clay." It may be understood from the Arabic text that the human being was created in stages. However, there is information about the number or the extent of the stages of development. This is still the secret of life which no one has been able to discover. The development of creation which is referred to here is different from the development stipulated by Darwin's theory.

"Then He made his progeny from an extract of insignificant fluid." The fertilized egg is the first stage of development of the embryo. The process of the development of the embryo is summarized, "Then He fashioned him in due proportion, and breathed into him of His spirit. And He gave you (the faculties of) hearing and sight and minds, little thanks you give." It is tremendous process of development that only God is capable of completing. But not many people appreciate it. They even dispute the idea of resurrection, "And they say, 'When we are lost in the earth, shall we then be re-created?' In fact, they deny the meeting with their Lord." They dismissed the fact that God who created them is able to resurrect them again. But did they not begin initially from clay? How difficult it is for God to resurrect them from clay a second time? They only reject the idea of meeting with God. However, they will die and they will be resurrected, and they will be brought to God once more, "Say, 'The angel of death, put in charge of you, will take your souls. Then you shall be brought back to your Lord.'"

Having mentioned the Day of Resurrection, the following verse describes a scene of the scenes on that Day, "If only you could see when the guilty ones, bowing their heads before their Lord, (saying) 'Our Lord, we have seen and we have heard, so send us back; we will do good deeds; for indeed we are now certain.'" The verse describes the disbelievers bowing their heads in humiliation in front of God. They will admit their sin, regret their rejection of the truth, confess their certitude of the truth, and ask for another chance. Before stating their fate, God will declare the truth which controls the situation and decides the fate of people, "If We had so willed, We could have certainly given every soul its guidance, but the word from Me has come true, 'I will fill Hell with jinn and people all together. ” Had God willed He would have made one choice available to humankind: to follow the way of guidance similar to the angels. But God willed that humankind would be given the ability to choose between two roads: the road of guidance and the road of misguidance. God has decreed that He will fill the Hellfire of those who chose the road of misguidance. They have forgotten God and on that Day God will forget them. They will be punished according to their deeds, “So taste (the evil of your deeds). Forasmuch as you forgot the meeting of this day of yours, We forget you. Taste the eternal torment for what you used to do.”

Another scene is depicted, the scene of the believers. It is the scene of those who worship God in humility and devotion, they call upon their Lord with trembling hearts hoping in His mercy and fearing His punishment, “Only those believe in Our revelations who, when they are reminded of them, fall down prostrate and celebrate the praise of their Lord, and they are not arrogant.” It is a bright picture of the guided souls. Those who, when reminded of their Lord, fall prostrate. They spend the night praying, they perform the night prayer and the Dawn prayer and extra voluntary prayers in between. They prefer their Lord’s company over the night rest that their beds are offering, “They forsake their beds to call upon their Lord in fear and hope, and spend of that We have bestowed on them.” Not only they pray but they also spend in the sake of God of that which He had bestowed on them. Only God knows the reward that is hidden for them, “No soul knows what is kept hidden for them of joy, as a reward for what they used to do.”

The principle of justice is stated, “Is he who is a believer like him who is a transgressor? They are not equal.” Believers and disbelievers are not equal in many respects. Their nature, their emotions, and their behavior are different. Consequently, their reward will be different. People will be rewarded according to their deeds with absolute justice. Those who believe and do good deeds will be awarded, “Gardens of Refuge as hospitable homes, for what they used to do.” But the transgressor will end up in Hellfire, “And as for those who transgressed, their refuge is the fire; whenever they desire to go forth from it they shall be brought back into it, and it will be said to them, ‘Taste the torment of the fire which you used to deny.’” Not only they will be punished in the Hereafter but they will be tormented also in this life, “And indeed We will make them taste of the torment of this (life) prior to the supreme torment.” It is a sign of God’s mercy that He provides opportunities for people to learn and repent, “that haply they may return.” This is a chance for people to return back to the straight path. If they do, then they will be forgiven and will be spared the torment promised for the transgressors. However, if they persist on their ways of falsehood, then there is a dire warning for them, “And who does greater wrong than he who is reminded of the revelations of his Lord, then turns away from them. We shall exact revenge on the guilty.” This is a horrifying threat.

“We did indeed give Moses the Scripture. So do not be in doubt regarding his encounter. And We made it guidance to the Children of Israel. And We appointed, from among them, leaders, giving guidance under Our command, so long as they persevered and continued to have certitude in Our revelations. Verily your Lord will judge between them on the Day of Resurrection concerning that wherein they used to differ.” The verse refers briefly to Prophet Moses (PBUH). The phrase, “So do not be in doubt regarding his encounter,” refers to the oneness of the message that both Moses (PBUH) and Muhammad (PBUH) brought to people. This message is the truth. Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) is being assured that the message that he was sent with is the truth from God. It coincides with the message that Moses (PBUH) brought from God. This is the encounter between Moses (PBUH) and Muhammad (PBUH). The verse exhorts the Muslims to persevere in their struggle against falsehood as did the chosen people from the Children of Israel before. The verse hints to the reward that awaits them if they do persevere. God promised to appoint those who persevere as leaders to guide humanity to the straight path. God will settle the dispute between those who differed among them on the Day of Judgment.

The ruins of previous nations, who were destroyed and perished before, were still there to be seen by the Arabs so they may learn a lesson from it, “Is it not a lesson for them (to observe) how many generations We destroyed before them, amid whose dwelling places they do walk? Therein verily are signs.” These were the ruins of the tribes of ‘Ad and Thamud which the Arabs used to see when they travel on their caravans. The scenes of these ruins should have made them reflect on their destiny and should have reminded them to mend their ways and reach to God. They used to listen to the stories of these tribes being told, “Will they not then hear?” Will they not hear the warning?

From the story of death, ruins, and destruction to the story of life, and growth, “And do they not see that We do drive rain to barren land, and produce therewith crops, providing food for their cattle and themselves? Will they not then see?” God sends water on the barren land and it becomes green full of plants. This is a scene which opens the hearts to feel the mercy of God, to fill these hearts with hope, and to make them enjoy the beauty of the creation of God.

The conclusion of the Sura deals with the challenge that the disbelievers used to pose to the Prophet (PBUH) daring him to hasten the torment that he promised, “They say, ‘When will this victory be, if you are telling the truth?’” The Prophet (PBUH) was assured of God’s victory and was commanded to ignore them, “Say, ‘On the day of the victory, the faith of those who disbelieve (and who then will believe) will not avail them, neither will they be reprieved.’ So turn away from them, and wait; they too are waiting.”

Sura 33: Al- Ahzab (The Confederates)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 8:

1. Prophet, be conscious of God and do not obey the disbelievers and the hypocrites. God is Omniscient, Wise.
2. And follow that which is revealed to you from your Lord. God is Totally-Aware of what you do.
3. And put your trust in God, for God is sufficient as a Guardian.
4. God has not made for any man two hearts within him, nor has He made your wives whom you divorce by saying, "Be as my mother's back," your mothers, nor has He made your adopted sons your sons. These are only words you utter. God speaks the truth, and He guides people to the (right) Way.
5. Call them by (the names of) their fathers. That is more equitable in the sight of God. And if you do not know their fathers - then they are still your brothers in faith and those entrusted to you. And there is no blame on you for the mistakes that you make unintentionally, but (you will only be blamed for) that which your hearts do purposely, and God is All-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy.
6. The Prophet is closer to the believers than their own selves, and his wives are their mothers. Blood-relations among each other have closer personal ties, in the decree of God than (the brotherhood of) the believers and the emigrants. Nevertheless, you should be kind to your friends. This has been written in the Book.
7. And remember when We took from the prophets their covenant, as (We did) from you and from Noah, Abraham, Moses, and Jesus the son of Mary. We took from them a solemn covenant.
8. That He may ask the truthful about their truth. And He has prepared a painful torment for the disbelievers. (33: 1 – 8)

This Sura establishes certain etiquettes regarding the social life in the nascent Muslim society. It reveals some of the salient features of the Islamic way of life and its foundations. Islam is not a code of ethics, a book of admonitions, a collection of laws, nor sacred traditions. It is all of this; in addition, Islam is a way of life that is based on the absolute submission to God. Muslims submit to God's decrees and commands. Thus, the first verse in the Sura which organizes the society embodies the command to be conscious of God, "Prophet, be conscious of God," Consciousness of God is the only guarantee that a Muslim will fulfill God's commands. The second command forbade obeying the disbelievers and the hypocrites, "and do not obey the disbelievers and the hypocrites. God is Omniscient, Wise." The verse also indicates the great pressure that the disbelievers and the hypocrites of Medina did exert on the believers to abandon God's commands in favor of following the disbelievers' and the hypocrites' suggestions and directives. However, the rule remains a standing order valid at all times and in all places. The believers should not be impressed by the seemingly convincing knowledge that the disbelievers may have to the extent that they abandon God's command in favor of this seemingly new and convincing knowledge. God should remain the only source of knowledge for the believers, because He is Omniscient and Wise. Only He knows what is best for the believers.

The third command, “And follow that which is revealed to you from your Lord. God is Totally-Aware of what you do.” God is the only truthful source of commands that are worthy of following. The verse specifically refers to the revelation that came to Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) from his Lord. God is Totally-Aware of everything we do. The final command was to, “put your trust in God, for God is sufficient as a Guardian.” Do not worry whether the disbelievers and the hypocrites agree or disagree with what you do; do not worry about what they scheme; just put your trust in God and He will manage your affairs according to His knowledge and wisdom.

These are the tools that those who actively call to the path of God need: Consciousness of God, following God’s revelation, and putting one’s trust in God (keeping in mind not to obey the disbelievers and the hypocrites.) These commands are concluded by an unequivocal statement, “God has not made for any man two hearts within him,” Human beings were created each with a single heart. Therefore, human beings should follow one program, one set of standards, and one understanding of life. Otherwise people will be confused; and they will not be able to maintain a balanced life. This program is the divine project that God commanded that people should adopt as a way of life on earth.

Consequently, “nor has He made your wives whom you divorce by saying, ‘Be as my mother’s back,’ your mothers, nor has He made your adopted sons your sons. These are only words you utter. God speaks the truth; and He guides people to the (right) Way.” The verse refers to an abusive practice that the Arabs before Islam used to follow. According to this practice a man can declare his wife to be to him as his, “mother’s back.” These words render the wife unlawful for the man. However, the woman would not be considered divorced and would not be able to marry another man. Thus, the woman loses her status as a wife but would not be able to get a complete divorce from her husband. This Quranic verse abolished this abusive practice stating that these words do not have the power to change the true natural relationship between a man and his wife.

Another relationship which people cannot invent is the relationship between a man and his adopted son. Adoption does not change the lineage of a person. Men in Arabia before Islam used to adopt sons and treat them as if they were their biological sons. Adoption replaces the blood relationship. An adopted son assumed the family name of his adopting father and would have the same inheritance rights as the biological sons of the father. Islam abolished this practice and commanded that the lineage of people be respected, “Call them by (the names of) their fathers. That is more equitable in the sight of God.” This is the only guarantee against the confusion that would occur if these sons do not know their biological parents. It is also equitable to preserve the inheritance rights of the biological sons. But if these children do not know their biological parents then, “they are still your brothers in faith and those entrusted to you. And there is no blame on you for the mistakes that you make unintentionally, but (you will only be blamed for) that which your hearts do purposely, and God is All Forgiving, Giver of Mercy.” God does not hold people accountable if they make unintentional mistakes.

The next verses abolished the system of brotherhood which Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) established when the Muslims migrated from Mecca to Medina. The purpose of the system was to provide the necessary social and financial support for the migrants. The verse also states that the relationship between the believers and the Prophet (PBUH) supersedes any other relationship, “The Prophet is closer to the believers than their own selves, and his wives are their mothers. Blood-relations among each other have closer personal ties, in the decree of God than (the brotherhood of) the believers and the emigrants. Nevertheless, you should be kind to your friends. This has been written in the Book.” The Muslims who migrated from Mecca to Medina left behind their homes, their families, their belongings, their friends, and their memories. They preferred to flee with their newly adopted faith rather than enjoy life in their home town. They gave the true example of the unified Muslim personality which aspires to one value and one value only: the submission to God alone. The expression given in the verse, “God has not made for any man two hearts within him,” refers to this personality whose only aspiration is the total submission to God. A similar situation arose in Medina when families were split because some family members became Muslims; while others remained polytheists. The fledgling Muslim society was still in its early stages of development. It was more of a concept than a reality. The common faith became the only recognizable bond between the members of the Muslim society. This bond replaced all other known bonds at that time; including blood and tribal relationships. The Muslims of Medina welcomed their migrant brothers into their hearts, their homes, and shared with them their wealth. The number of migrants was far less than the number of the Muslims of Medina who were willing to host them. The Muslims of Medina competed with each other in hosting the migrants from Mecca. The Prophet (PBUH) established an institution of brotherhood between the Muslims from Mecca (Al-Muhajeroon) and the Muslims from Medina (Al-Ansar). This newly established brotherhood gave the same rights that the blood brotherhood gave; to the extent that those who became brothers according to this pact were allowed to inherit each other. Such a pact was essential in the early days of the Muslim society to help establish the Islamic state which would then have the laws that provide the support for its citizens. Having reached a reasonable stage of development, after the battle of Badr, the Quran revoked this arrangement. Only biological relationships define members of a family.

However, the relationship between the believers and the Prophet (PBUH) remained the strong relationship envisaged in the statement, “The Prophet is closer to the believers than their own selves, and his wives are their mothers.” The verse reiterated the status of the wives of the Prophet (PBUH) in the society. The closeness of the Prophet (PBUH) to the believers covers all aspects of life. Muslims should love the Prophet (PBUH) more than anything in the world, including themselves. They should obey his commands. In return, the Prophet (PBUH) is the guardian of all believers. If a Muslim dies while in debt, the Prophet (PBUH) had pledged to pay his debt and if a Muslim dies and leaves behind children with no financial support the Prophet (PBUH) had pledged to support his children. These laws have been established long ago in God’s Book, “This has been written in the Book.”

The following verses refer to other things that were written in the Book, “And remember when We took from the prophets their covenant, as (We did) from you and from Noah, Abraham, Moses, and Jesus the son of Mary. We took from them a solemn covenant. That He may ask the loyal of their loyalty. And He has prepared a painful torment for the disbelievers.” It the same covenant that God took from all His Messengers, starting with Noah (PBUH) and ending with Muhammad (PBUH). The verse started by emphasizing the universality of the covenant, “We took from the prophets their covenant.” Then it mentioned by name Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) followed by the four messengers who brought the major messages before Islam, “Noah, Abraham, Moses, and Jesus the son of Mary.” The Quran calls these messengers, “those who have resolve.” The verse reiterated the strength of the covenant.

Verses 9 to 27:

9. Believers, remember the blessings of God, (bestowed) on you, when armies came (to attack) you. We sent against them a great wind and armies (of angels) which you could not see. And God is All-Seeing of what you do.
10. When they came upon you from above you and from below you, and when the eyes grew wild and the hearts reached the throats, and you harbored doubts about God.
11. In that situation the believers were tried. They were shaken tremendously.
12. And when the hypocrites, and those in whose hearts is a disease, were saying, “God and His messenger promised us nothing but a delusion.”
13. And when a party of them said, “People of Yathrib, you will not be able to stand (against the enemy), therefore go back. And a party of them (even) sought permission of the Prophet, saying, “Our homes are exposed (to the enemy).” But they were not exposed, they only wanted to flee.
14. If the enemy had entered from all sides and they had been exhorted to treachery, they would have committed it, and would not have hesitated except a little.
15. And verily they had made a covenant with God before that they would not turn their backs (to the foe). An oath to God must be answered for.
16. Say, “Running away will not benefit you if you are running away from death or slaughter; and even if (you do escape), you will be given only a brief enjoyment.”
17. Say, “Who is it that can protect you from God if He intends harm for you or intends mercy for you.” They will not find for themselves besides God any protecting guardian or any helper.
18. Verily God knows those among you who hinder and those who say to their brothers, “Come along to us”, and they do not come to the battle to fight except for a little.
19. They begrudge you any help. And when the fear comes, then you (Muhammad) will see them looking at you with rolling eyes like one being overcome by death. Then, when the fear departs, they scald you with sharp tongues. They resent you any good. These have not believed. Therefore, God rendered their deeds fruitless. And that is easy for God.
20. They think that the confederates have not withdrawn; and if the confederates should come (again), they would wish they were in the desert (wandering) among the Bedouins, and seeking news about you (from a safe distance); and if they were in your midst, they would fight but little.
21. You have indeed an excellent example in the Messenger of God for any who looks to God and the Last Day, and remembers God much.
22. When the believers saw the confederate forces, they said, “This is what God and his Messenger had promised us, and God and His Messenger told us what was true.” And it only added to their faith and submission.

23. Of the believers are men who have been true to their covenant with God. Of them some have completed their vow (to the extreme), and some are still waiting' and they have never changed (their determination) in the least.
24. That God may reward the truthful for their truthfulness, and torment the hypocrites if that be His Will, or pardon them; God is All-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy.
25. And God repelled the disbelievers in their rage; they did not gain any advantage. God spared the believers the combat. And God is Strong, Eminent.
26. And He brought those of the People of the Scripture who supported them down from their strongholds, and cast panic into their hearts. Some you slew and you made captive some.
27. And He made you heirs of their lands, of their houses, of their goods, and of a land which you had not trodden (before). And God has power over all things. (33: 9 – 27)

This group of verses analyzes the events that accompanied the battle of the Trench. The battle of the Trench took place around the fifth year of Hijra. It was an extremely difficult experience for the Muslims. Before we discuss the text, we would like to explore briefly the events as they have been narrated in the books of Seerah. This way one may be able to realize the differences between the styles of the Quran and the people in narrating the same events.

Only a brief summary of the narration that Muhammad Ibn Ishaq has communicated is given here. A group of men representing the Jewish tribes of Bani Al Nadeer and Bani Wael went to the chiefs of the tribe of Quraish. They exhorted them to fight the Muslims in Medina. They promised that they would support them. The chiefs of Quraish asked if the Jews believe that Quraish's faith is better than Islam. The Jews answered affirmatively. This confirmation made the chiefs of Quraish happy. The chiefs of Quraish pledged to wage a war against the Muslims in Medina. In addition to Quraish, the Jewish people were able to recruit the tribes of Ghatffan, Bani Fazzarah, Bani Murrah, and Ashga'.

When the Prophet (PBUH) heard about this he commanded the Muslims to dig a trench around the city of Medina. Muslims worked hard with the Prophet (PBUH) to dig the trench however, the hypocrites dragged their feet in helping them. They would make excuses in order to abstain from participating in the hard work. Muslims who were dedicated took leave from the Messenger of God (PBUH) whenever they needed to run errands for their households, then came back to work hard seeking God's reward. Quraish and its allies arrived at the outskirts of Medina as the Muslims were just about to finish digging the trench. There were about ten thousand fighters in the forces of the Confederates. The Muslims camped behind the trench; there were about three thousand of them. In the meantime, Hayy bin Akhtab Al-Nadari, one of the people who enticed Quraish against the Muslims, went to K'ab bin Assad, the chief of Bani Quraizah, and convinced him to join the Confederates plot against the Muslims. K'ab then reneged on the agreement with the Messenger of God (PBUH). This put the Muslims in a very difficult position, because now they were besieged. It was a difficult time. The siege continued for almost a month. The Prophet (PBUH) wanted to break the siege by convincing the chiefs of the tribe of Ghatffan to break their agreement with the Confederates and in return they would get a share in the crops of Medina. The Prophet (PBUH) consulted the chiefs of the tribes of Al-Aws and Al-Khazraj, Sa'ad ibn Moaz (RA) and Sa'ad ibn Ubadah (RA). They asked the Prophet (PBUH) whether this was God's command. The Prophet (PBUH) told them that it was not God's command; it was his idea to break the siege because he felt that the situation is becoming very difficult for the people of Medina. They then both refused this solution. They indicated to the Prophet (PBUH) that the people of Medina are willing to fight to win a victory. God sent a very strong wind and His soldiers and planted fear in the hearts of the Confederates so they left.

One notices that the Quranic style in the narrative ignores irrelevant details like names of people and focuses instead on their characters and modes of behavior. The narrative ignores the minute details of the events and focuses on lessons and values to be gleaned from the events; such lessons and values that should continue to be a source of inspiration for Muslims one generation after another. The beauty of the Quranic narrative and its ability to present the event in a dynamic form makes it suitable for all times. It becomes an effective tool in teaching one generation after another.

The verses telling the story of the battle of the Trench start by reminding the believers of God's blessings. It is God who repelled the army of the Confederates. The following verse summarizes the whole story, "Believers, remember the blessings of God, (bestowed) on you, when armies came (to attack) you. We sent against them a great wind and armies (of angels) which you could not see. And God is All-Seeing of what you do." The subsequent verses give a detailed account of the events, "When they came upon you from above you and from below you, and when the eyes grew wild and the hearts reached the throats, and you harbored doubts about God. In that situation the believers were tried. They were shaken tremendously. And when the hypocrites, and those in whose hearts is a disease, were saying, 'God and His messenger promised us nothing but a delusion.' And when a party of them said, 'People of Yathrib, you will not be able to stand (against the enemy), therefore go back.' And a party of them (even) sought permission of the Prophet, saying, 'Our homes are exposed (to the enemy).' But they were not exposed, they only wanted to flee." The verses detail the panic that engulfed the Muslims. They were besieged from all sides. The verses describe the danger that surrounded the Muslims, "When they came upon you from above you and from below you." Then they describe the fear in the hearts of people, "when the eyes grew wild and the hearts reached the throats." Then they describe the mindset of people when they started to entertain doubts about God. The situation is summed in one sentence, "the believers were tried. They were shaken tremendously." The Muslims were not only worried about the armies of Quraish and its allies but they realized that their back was exposed. They expected the Jewish tribes to attack them at any minute from behind. The test uncovered the hypocrites and they started throwing doubts in the hearts of others and enticing them into abandoning the ranks of the Muslim army, "People of Yathrib, you will not be able to stand (against the enemy), therefore go back." They wanted to flee the battle asking the Prophet (PBUH) to excuse them saying, "Our homes are exposed (to the enemy)." But the Quran exposed them stating that their homes were not exposed, they simply wanted to flee.

Their mindset was described by the following verse which indicated their vulnerability and their readiness to defect from the ranks of the Muslims. They only needed the slightest push to turn them against the Muslims, "If the enemy had entered from all sides and they had been exhorted to treachery, they would have committed it, and would not have hesitated except a little." This is in spite of the fact that they were tested before and they made a solemn oath to God they will not falter again, "And verily they had made a covenant with God before that they would not turn their backs (to the foe). An oath to God must be answered for." This verse refers to the people of Bani Harethah who were about to fail the test before the battle of Uhud and they pledged a solemn pledge to God they would not renege on their pledge again but they forgot their pledge.

The Quran then reminded them of a basic fact: no one can escape death, “Say, ‘Running away will not benefit you if you are running away from death or slaughter; and even if (you do escape), you will be given only a brief enjoyment.’ Say, ‘Who is it that can protect you from God if He intends harm for you or intends mercy for you.’ They will not find for themselves besides God any protecting guardian or any helper.” God controls all events in the life of His creatures. Death is an inevitable fact of life. People will meet their death at prescribed times that no one can change. It is then more befitting for believers to submit to God, obey Him, and fulfill their covenant with Him.

The verses continue to reiterate the fact that God knew about those who were trying to frustrate the believers. They did not want to fight and they wanted the believers to join them, “Verily God knows those among you who hinder and those who say to their brothers, ‘Come along to us’, and they do not come to the battle to fight except for a little.” Not only they did not want to fight and prevented others from fighting, but they also were reluctant to offer support in any form whether financial or moral, “They begrudge you any help.” The signs of panic became obvious on their faces when they encountered a difficult situation, “And when the fear comes, then you (Muhammad) will see them looking at you with rolling eyes like one being overcome by death.” But when they feel secure they become vocal, “Then, when the fear departs, they scald you with sharp tongues.” They were stingy. They never offered any help, “They resent you any good.” These were all signs of disbelief, “These have not believed. Therefore, God rendered their deeds fruitless. And that is easy for God.” God will render their deeds worthless.

They thought that the Confederates were still there, so they trembled of fear and they refused to believe that the Confederates have gone already, “They think that the confederates have not withdrawn;” But if the Confederates come back then they wish they were not among the Medina dwellers, “and if the confederates should come (again), they would wish they were in the desert (wandering) among the Bedouins, and seeking news about you (from a safe distance); and if they were in your midst, they would fight but little.”

The theme changes to deal with the bright picture of the believers. The verses start with the bright picture of the Prophet (PBUH), “You have indeed an excellent example in the Messenger of God for any who looks to God and the Last Day, and remembers God much.” The Prophet (PBUH) gave the best example of a leader during the battle. He gave lessons in effective leadership that the believers should learn from and use him as their role model. The Prophet (PBUH) was working side by side with the believers, using his axe and hauling dust. He joined the believers in their simple songs that they used to sing to make the work easy for themselves. He was there to help when the task was difficult for the rest of them. Salman Al Farsi (RA) said, “I was digging the trench one day and I came across a very hard rock. I was not able to break it. The Prophet (PBUH) saw me and came to help. He raised his axe and struck the rock three times. Each time he struck the rock, a light came from the place at which the axe hit the rock.”

Then the hard rock was broken into pieces. I asked the Prophet (PBUH) about the light that I saw. He said, 'The first light showed me that God will give me control over Yemen, the second showed me that God will give me control over Syria and Maghreb, and the last light showed me that God will give me control over the orient.'"

The verses then describe the behavior of the confident believers in the face of danger, "When the believers saw the confederate forces, they said, 'This is what God and his Messenger had promised us, and God and His Messenger told us what was true.' And it only added to their faith and submission." These were ordinary human beings facing a severe test. The experience that they have been through shook them but they did not panic because they had a strong link with God. They were fully aware of the laws of God that manage the events of life. They were confident in the promise that God made of an eminent victory. They understood and believed in God's words, "Or do you think that you shall enter paradise without such trials as came to those who passed away before you? They encountered suffering and adversity, and were so shaken in spirit that even the Messenger and the believers with him cried, 'When will the help of God come?' Verily, the help of God is always near." (2:214) They have been tested and shaken so God's victory must be near. Therefore, their response was, "This is what God and his Messenger had promised us, and God and His Messenger told us what was true." They were ordinary human beings. There are limits for the endurance of human beings. They felt, they suffered, they feared, and they panicked. However, they held tight to the most trustworthy bond with God. This kept them safe and secure. The bond with God nurtured the hope in their hearts and prevented any feeling of despair to creep into their hearts. We too are human beings like them. We may have met difficult situations where we felt that we were being tested. We may have felt weak or became impatient. This is normal. There is no need to despair and think we have failed the test. But we then have to remember that we should hold tight to the most trustworthy bond with God, because this bond is the only assurance and the only security against failure. This bond will enable us to stand up, face the difficulty, and move forward. This bond is what shaped the first generation of Muslims and kept them true to their covenant with God, "Of the believers are men who have been true to their covenant with God. Of them some have completed their vow (to the extreme), and some are still waiting and they have never changed (their determination) in the least."

The following verse explains the rationale behind the tests to which the believers will be subjected to, "That God may reward the truthful for their truthfulness, and torment the hypocrites if that be His Will, or pardon them; God is All-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy." These trials are not random events. They follow a well devised plan that leads to predetermined outputs. They represent a magnificent expression of God's mercy, "God is All-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy."

Then came the final ending which the believers were waiting for, "And God repelled the disbelievers in their rage; they did not gain any advantage. God spared the believers the combat. And God is Strong, Eminent." God's punishment was not inflected only on the Confederates from Quraish, but it was also extended to the Jewish tribe which sided with them, "And He brought those of the People of the Scripture who supported them down from their strongholds, and cast panic into their hearts. Some you slew and you made captive some. And He made you heirs of their lands, of their houses, of their goods, and of a land which you had not trodden (before). And God has power over all things.”

It is appropriate to describe briefly the history of the Muslim- Jewish relationship in Medina. One of the first tasks that the Prophet (PBUH) completed upon his arrival to Medina was to conclude an agreement between the Muslims and Jews. One of the main stipulations of the agreement was that the Muslims will provide protection for the Jews and in return the Jews would not enter into alliances with the enemies of Muslims nor harm the Muslims in any way. But soon after that the Jewish tribes felt that the spread of the new religion will diminish their status in Medina. They always maintained a higher status over the polytheists by virtue of the fact that they were the followers of a monotheistic religion. They also felt threatened by the unification of the Arabs of Medina under the leadership of the Messenger of God (PBUH). Another fear that they entertained was the threat posed by the increasing number of Jews who chose to convert to Islam. They received a major blow when a prominent rabbi and scholar by the name of Abdullah bin Sallam chose to adopt Islam. This incident signaled the start of an undeclared war by the Jews on Muslims. Several incidents of treacherous behavior by the tribes resulted in their expulsion from Medina. The last incident was when Banu Quraizah entered in an alliance with the Confederates against the Muslims.

Verses 28 to 35:

28. Prophet, say to your wives, “If you desire this worldly life and its adornment, then come, I will make provision for you and I will give you a kindly release.
29. But if you seek God and His Messenger, and the home of the Hereafter, verily God has prepared for the doers of good among you an immense reward.
30. Wives of the Prophet, whosoever of you commits manifest indecency, she will get double the torment; and this is easy for God.
31. And whosoever of you remains obedient to God and His Messenger and does good, We shall give her reward twice over; and We have prepared for her an honorable provision.
32. Wives of the Prophet, you are not like any other women. If you remain conscious of God, then do not be soft in speech, lest he in whose heart is a disease should aspire (to you), but speak in an appropriate manner.
33. And stay in your homes. Do not display your finery as they used to do in the time of ignorance. Establish prayer, and pay the poor-due, and obey God and His Messenger. God only wishes to remove uncleanness far from you, people of the household, and cleanse you thoroughly.
34. And remember what is recited to you in your homes, of the revelations of God and His Wisdom. Indeed, God is Subtle, Totally-Aware.
35. For Muslim men and Muslim women, believing men and believing women, devout men and devout women, truthful men and truthful women, perseverant men and perseverant women, humble men and humble women, charitable men and charitable women, fasting men and fasting women, men and women who guard their chastity, and men and women who engage much in God's praise- God has prepared forgiveness and great reward. (33:

The following verses, except for the last verse, outline a framework for the code of conduct to be followed by the wives of the Prophet (PBUH). The last verse addresses all Muslims. Early in this Sura, the wives of the Prophet (PBUH) were given the title of, “the mothers of the believers.” This is a highly respected status which entailed certain responsibilities. The following verses outline some of these responsibilities, “Prophet, say to your wives, ‘If you desire this worldly life and its adornment, then come, I will make provision for you and I will give release kindly. But if you seek God and His Messenger, and the home of the Hereafter, verily God has prepared for the doers of good among you an immense reward.” It was the Prophet’s (PBUH) conscious choice to live an austere life. This did not change even after the state became wealthy. It has been said that a month would pass without having a fire lit in his house, a euphemism for not having a cooked meal. He used to give away his share of the spoils of war in charity. His faith did not compel him to do that but it was his choice. He did not ask anyone else of his companions to follow his example. He also pointed out that Islam does not prohibit reasonable enjoyment. However, his wives did not share this conviction. They had, as any normal human being would have, interest in a more comfortable life. They suggested that the Prophet (PBUH) should increase their monthly allowance so that they would be able to enjoy a more comfortable life. The Prophet (PBUH) was not pleased with their request. He wanted his wives to seek the reward of the Hereafter rather than to busy themselves with the pleasures of this life.

The Prophet (PBUH) was saddened by his wives’ request to the extent that he went into seclusion and did not want to meet any of his companions. One-day Abu Bakr (RA) came to the Prophet’s (PBUH) house, he found people sitting by the door because no one was given permission to see the Prophet (PBUH). He asked for permission but he was denied. He sat there waiting. Then Umar (RA) came and sought permission and likewise he was denied. Later both Abu Bakr (RA) and Umar (RA) were given permission. They came into the house and saw that the Prophet (PBUH) was in the company of his wives. The Prophet (PBUH) looked sad. Umar (RA) wanted to cheer him up so he said to the Prophet (PBUH), “If my wife came asking for more money, I would kill her.” The Prophet (PBUH) then laughed and said, “My wives are asking for a bigger allowance.” Abu Bakr (RA) and Umar (RA) wanted to rebuke and discipline their daughters ‘Aisha (RA) and Hafssah (RA) respectively, but the Prophet (PBUH) commanded them to leave his wives alone. The Prophet’s (PBUH) wives then said that they would not ask the Prophet (PBUH) for that which he does not have. The above mentioned verses were then revealed. The Prophet (PBUH) started with ‘Aisha (RA) and asked her to decide what she wanted. He asked her to consult with her parents, but she refused to consult with her parents, she said that she had reached a decision already: she had chosen the life with the Prophet (PBUH). ‘Aisha (RA) asked the Prophet (PBUH) not tell his other wives with her decision before he had heard their choices, but he said, “I was sent as a teacher, to treat people kindly, and not to treat them harshly. I will tell anyone of them if they asked about the choice you made.”

The Quran came to establish the true values that people should adopt in their lives. The behavior of the Prophet (PBUH) and his family should exemplify these values. The wives of the Prophet (PBUH) vowed not to request the Prophet (PBUH) for anything that was not within his means. However, the Quran came down to establish a much more basic principle for the Muslim society. This is the principle of valuing the reward of the Hereafter over the pleasure of this worldly life. The wives chose the nearness of God and His Messenger (PBUH) over the pleasures of this life.

This event clarifies in the Muslim mind the correct priorities of Islam. It removes any hesitation that may confuse the choice of Muslims when asked to choose between God and His Messenger (PBUH), on one side, and the pleasures of the worldly life on the other side. The event also helps us to understand the personalities of the Prophet (PBUH), his wives, and his companions. They were all human beings; they had feelings, emotions, and desires but they were able to purify these feelings and desires from their lowly aspects. They trained their feelings and desires to seek God's pleasures. The Prophet (PBUH) understood the natural inclinations in his wives' request. He was not happy about it but he refused to suppress it by force as Abu Bakr (RA) and Umar (RA) wanted to do. He wanted his wives to learn how to control their desires so he waited until the ultimate lesson came from God.

“Wives of the Prophet, whosoever of you commits manifest indecency, she will get double the torment; and this is easy for God. And whosoever of you remains obedient to God and His messenger and does good, We shall give her reward twice over; and We have prepared for her an honorable provision.” The wives of the Prophet (PBUH) were given an esteemed status. The status came with its responsibilities and with its reward. As “mothers of the believers,” they should be careful in dealing with people, “Wives of the Prophet, you are not like any other women. If you remain conscious of God, then do not be soft in speech, lest he in whose heart is a disease should aspire (to you), but speak in appropriate manner. And stay in your homes. Do not display your finery as they used to do in the time of ignorance. Establish prayer, and pay the poor-due, and obey God and His messenger. God only wishes to remove uncleanness far from you, people of the household, and cleanse you thoroughly. And remember what is recited to you in your homes, of the revelations of God and His Wisdom. Indeed, God is Subtle, Totally-Aware.” The status of women in the Arabian society at the time of the advent of Islam, like in many of the contemporaneous societies, was quite low. Women were treated as a tool for pleasure. The loose family structure and the chaos that shaped the sexual relations in the society contributed even more to the degradation of women. Islam came to change this and to raise the status of women. The relationship between the two sexes is a way to provide tranquility and affection between them. Islam provided rules to organize the society and to strengthen the family institution, hence the address to the wives of the Prophet (PBUH) regarding their personal behavior. These instructions were meant to purify the wives. So what are the steps that they should follow to achieve purity?

To start with, the Quran makes the wives aware of their distinct status among the believing women, “Wives of the Prophet, you are not like any other women, if you remain conscious of God,” The verse states that the supreme honor given to the wives of the Prophet (PBUH) is granted on the condition that they remain conscious of God. This honor was not granted only because of their relationship to the Prophet (PBUH) but because they have fulfilled the responsibility attached to that status. This is a distinguishing feature of Islam. There is no room for nepotism in Islam. The Prophet (PBUH) declared this principle when he addressed his clan saying, “I cannot protect you against God.”

Then it follows by outlining the proper etiquette for speaking with people, “do not be soft in speech, lest he in whose heart is a disease should aspire (to you), but speak in appropriate manner.” This verse was addressed to the wives of the Prophet (PBUH) who enjoyed a distinct status which would provide them immunity against any form of temptation or assault. However, this verse outlines the etiquette that should be followed by all believing women at all times and places. It is an etiquette which eliminates beyond doubt the chances for any form of temptation.

Then the verse provided a kind reminder for the wives, “And stay in your homes.” The Arabic word which has been translated here as “stay,” actually gives the connotation of stability. The verse was a reminder that they should consider the house as their base of operation. It is the norm to remain at home and the exception is to go outside to run errands. Islam made it obligatory on the husband to provide for his family, so that the wife can focus on providing a comfortable, stable, and safe environment for her children at home.

The following verse deals with the way women should be dressed when they go out, “Do not display your finery as they used to do in the time of ignorance.” The verse commands women to dress modestly; they should also look modest. It describes immodesty as a remnant of the time of ignorance to emphasize its bad consequences.

Then a command is issued to perform the acts of worship, “Establish prayer, and pay the poor-due, and obey God and His Messenger.” Rituals are a means for elevating the spirituality, purifying the heart, and strengthening the connection with God. Islam brings together the rituals, the behavior, the ethics, and the laws that govern life under the umbrella of faith. This serves to provide a consistent and harmonious way of life. Rituals also provide a basis and support for the behavior of the believer. The recipe described above is the recipe to achieve the prescribed goal, “God only wishes to remove uncleanness far from you, people of the household, and cleanse you thoroughly.”

The verse does not specify which household giving the impression that there is a single household that is worthy of these commands and this goal. The verse also refers to the special status that the wives of the Prophet (PBUH) had by stating that it is God’s desire that they would be cleansed and purified. The last part of the verse gives them an undertaking that they should fulfill, “And remember what is recited to you in your homes, of the revelations of God and His Wisdom.”

The verses continued to elaborate on the means to achieve cleanliness and purification for all the believers, “For Muslim men and Muslim women, believing men and believing women, devout men and devout women, truthful men and truthful women, perseverant men and perseverant women, humble men and humble women, charitable men and charitable women, fasting men and fasting women, men and women who guard their chastity, and men and women who engage much in God’s praise- God has prepared forgiveness and great reward.”

The word Muslim means the one who submits. A believer is a person who believes in the truthfulness of the faith. The two words are closely linked together. They are two faces for a single coin. Submission is the epitome of accepting the faith because true belief leads to submission. Devotion is the voluntary obedience that comes with submission and belief.

Devotion emanates from an inner feeling not from an external influence. Truthfulness is an intrinsic trait of Muslims. The Quran says, “It is those who do not believe in God’s revelations that forge falsehood.” (16: 105) Those who lie are not members of the nation of Islam. Perseverance is an essential trait for each Muslim, to be able to fight back the temptation and to fulfill the undertakings of faith. A Muslim should persevere in adversity and when calamities strike. Humility in religion softens the heart and is obtained through standing in awe in front of God. Those who give charity have been successful in purifying their inner self of greed and stinginess. Giving charity is an expression of gratitude to God and awareness of the collective responsibility of the members of the society. The verse implies that fasting is a trait which indicates that the reference here is to fasting which has become a habit for the believer. It teaches the believer self-discipline. Guarding one’s chastity is a testimony for the strong control over the person’s lowly desires. Remembrance of God is the link that connects the human being to God. It allows the heart to shine with the light of guidance and reminds the believer to hold tight to the most trustworthy link.

Those who enjoy these traits are promised a great reward, “God has prepared forgiveness and great reward.”

The verse intentionally mentions women and men side by side in this verse to highlight their equal worth in the sight of God.

Verses 36 to 48:

36. It is not fitting for a believer, man or woman, when a matter has been decided by God and His Messenger to have any option about their decision. Indeed, whoever disobeys God and His Messenger, he is indeed has gone far astray.
37. And when you said to him on whom God has conferred blessings and you have conferred blessings, “Keep your wife to yourself, and remain conscious of God.” And you concealed in your mind that which God was to bring to light, and you feared people whereas God has a better right that you should fear Him. So when Zayd had performed that necessary formality (of divorce) from her, We gave her to you in marriage, so that (henceforth) there may be no blame on the believers with respect to the wives of their adopted sons, when the latter have performed the necessary formality (of release) from them. The commandment of God must be fulfilled.
38. There is no reproach for the Prophet in that which God makes his due. That was God's way with those who have gone before; and the command of God is an absolute decree.
39. (It is the practice of those) who delivered the messages of God, and fear Him, and fear none but God. And sufficient is God as a Reckoner.
40. Muhammad is not the father of any of your men, but (he is) the Messenger of God, and the seal of the prophets. And God has full knowledge of all things.
41. Believers, remember God often,
42. And glorify Him morning and evening.
43. It is He who sends blessings on you, as do His angels, that He may bring you out from the depths of darkness into light. And He is ever Merciful to the believers.

44. Their salutation on the day they meet Him will be "Peace." And He has prepared for them a generous reward.
45. Prophet, truly We have sent you as a witness, a bearer of glad tidings, and a warner.
46. And as one who invites to God's (grace) by His leave, and as a lamp spreading light.
47. Give the glad tidings to the believers that they shall have from God a great bounty.
48. And do not obey (the behests) of the disbelievers and the hypocrites. Disregard their annoyances, and put your trust in God. God is sufficient as a Guardian. (33: 36 – 48)

"It is not fitting for a believer, man or woman, when a matter has been decided by God and His Messenger to have any option about their decision. Indeed, whoever disobeys God and His Messenger, he is indeed has gone far astray." It has been narrated that this verse was revealed to deal with circumstances surrounding the marriage of Zainab bint Jahsh (RA) to Zayd bin Harethah (RA). Zayd (RA) was the Prophet's (PBUH) slave. The Prophet (PBUH) set him free and adopted him to be his son. The Arabian society at that time looked down upon freed slaves and did not give them the same status as free people. The Prophet (PBUH) wanted to remove this stigma from the freed slaves so he requested his cousin Zainab bint Jahsh (RA) to marry Zayd (RA). Zainab (RA) did not want to marry Zayd (RA) but when this verse was revealed she obeyed the Prophet's request and agreed to be wedded to Zayd (RA). However, the verse stated a fundamental principle that the believers should pay heed to. The principle is that the believers have no choice but to obey the commands of God and His Messenger (PBUH). This is the meaning of true submission to God. God's choice for the believer is the most appropriate choice; He knows what is best for His servants. In the meantime, true submission to God does not mean we should not be active in our lives. Believers should work hard and try to exploit all the means under their control to achieve their goals. The early Muslims were able to achieve a remarkable balance between hard work and submission to God. This was one of the main ingredients of success that the early Muslims were able to achieve.

"And when you said to him on whom God has conferred blessings and you have conferred blessings, "Keep your wife to yourself, and remain conscious of God." And you concealed in your mind that which God was to bring to light, and you feared people whereas God has a better right that you should fear Him. So when Zayd had performed that necessary formality (of divorce) from her, We gave her to you in marriage, so that (henceforth) there may be no blame on the believers with respect to the wives of their adopted sons, when the latter have performed the necessary formality (of release) from them. The commandment of God must be fulfilled. There is no reproach for the Prophet in that which God makes his due. That was God's way with those who have gone before; and the command of God is an absolute decree. (It is the practice of those) who delivered the messages of God, and fear Him, and fear none but God. And sufficient is God as a Reckoner. Muhammad is not the father of any of your men, but (he is) the Messenger of God, and the seal of the prophets. And God has full knowledge of all things." The Quranic decree which nullified the system of adoption that was being practiced by the Arabs before Islam was mentioned earlier. However, this was an old tradition that was deeply entrenched in the psyche of the Arabs; its consequences could not be easily removed by a single verse. God gave His Messenger (PBUH) the responsibility to remove these consequences by marrying the divorcee of Zayd (RA) whom he adopted as a son before. God inspired His Messenger (PBUH) with the plan. Zayd will eventually divorce his wife and then the Prophet (PBUH) will marry her in order to remove the remnants of the old system of adoption. However, the Prophet (PBUH) felt awkward about telling Zayd (RA) about the plan; he knew that God will make it known sooner or later so he wanted to delay telling Zayd as much as he could. When Zayd (RA) came to complain about the difficulties that his marriage was facing; and he expressed his desire to end the marriage; the Prophet (PBUH) response was, “Keep your wife to yourself, and remain conscious of God.” God then revealed the verse, “And you concealed in your mind that which God was to bring to light, and you feared people whereas God has a better right that you should fear Him. So when Zayd had performed that necessary formality (of divorce) from her, We gave her to you in marriage, so that (henceforth) there may be no blame on the believers with respect to the wives of their adopted sons, when the latter have performed the necessary formality (of release) from them.” That was the command for the Prophet (PBUH) to marry his cousin, Zainab (RA). This was God’s decree and God’s decree is absolute. He made this decree so that, “There is no reproach for the Prophet in that which God makes his due.” This is God’s way which does not change, “That was God’s way with those who have gone before; and the command of God is an absolute decree.” It is the same way that was followed by those who were sent before Muhammad (PBUH), “(It is the practice of those) who delivered the messages of God, and fear Him, and fear none but God.” No messenger should worry about what the people will say. They should deliver God’s message as He wanted it to be delivered. God will hold them accountable, “And sufficient is God as a Reckoner.” Then the fact that Zayd (RA) should not be treated as the Prophet (PBUH) biological son is reiterated, “Muhammad is not the father of any of your men, but (he is) the Messenger of God, and the seal of the prophets. And God has full knowledge of all things.” God knows well what is best for people.

“Believers, remember God often,” This is a reminder for the believers to remember God often. Remembrance of God is not merely uttering words but it is a tool to connect the heart with God. Many traditions indicate that remembrance of God means establishing prayers. However, remembrance of God is a more comprehensive term than performing prayers. It encompasses every way that the servants of God use to keep their hearts connected to God. Times for remembrance are then mentioned, “And glorify Him morning and evening.” Then the verses remind the servants of God of the bounties He bestowed on them, “He it is who sends blessings on you, as do His angels, that He may bring you out from the depths of darkness into light. And He is ever Merciful to the believers.” They will be safe and secure when they meet Him and, “Their salutation on the day they meet Him will be, ‘Peace.’ And He has prepared for them a generous reward.”

The verses then describe the Prophet’s (PBUH) task, “Prophet, truly We have sent you as a witness, a bearer of glad tidings, and a warner.” The Prophet (PBUH) is a witness who will testify for the deeds of the believers. He was also asked to bring the believers glad tidings of the generous reward that awaits them; and to warn those who did not heed God’s guidance of the punishment that awaits them. He also has been given the responsibility to invite people to God’s path, “And as one who invites to God’s (grace) by His leave,” Because he was calling people to guidance he was, “a lamp spreading light.” The verses reiterate his duty to bring glad tidings to the believers, “Give the glad tidings to the believers that they shall have from God a great bounty,” as an expression of the bounty of God that He bestowed on the believers. This part of the Sura ends by reiterating the command that was issued to the Prophet (PBUH) early in the Sura, “And do not obey (the behests) of the disbelievers and the hypocrites. Disregard their annoyances, and put your trust in God. God is sufficient as a Guardian.”

Verses 49 to 62:

- 49. Believers, when you marry believing women, and then divorce them before you have touched them, there is no waiting period that you should reckon. So provide for them and release them honorably.*
- 50. Prophet, We have made lawful to you your wives to whom you have paid their dowers; and those whom your right hand possesses out of the prisoners of war whom God has assigned to you; and the daughters of your paternal uncles and aunts, and the daughters of your maternal uncles and aunts, who migrated (from Mecca) with you; and any believing woman who dedicates herself to the Prophet, if the Prophet wishes to wed her; this is only for you, and not for the believers (at large). We know what We ordained for them regarding their wives and the captives whom their right hands possess. This is that you may be free from blame, for God is All-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy.*
- 51. You can defer whom you will of them and receive whom you will, and whomsoever you desire of those whom you have set aside (temporarily), there is no blame for you (to receive her again); that is better; that they may be comforted and not grieve, and may all be pleased with what you give them. God knows what is in your hearts; and God is Omniscient, Forbearing.*
- 52. It is not lawful for you (to marry any more) women after this, nor to exchange them for (other) wives, even if their beauty were to please you, except any your right hand should possess. God is All-Observant over everything.*
- 53. Believers, do not enter the Prophet's houses, unless you have been granted permission for a meal; and do not wait for its preparation. And if you were invited then enter; and when you have taken your meal, disperse and do not linger for conversation. Such (behavior) used to annoy the Prophet and He would shy away from (asking) you (to leave), but God does not shy away from the truth. And when you ask (his wives), for anything you want, you should ask them from behind a screen. That is purer for your hearts and for their hearts. And it is not for you to cause annoyance to the Messenger of God, nor marry his wives after him, ever. That would be a grievous thing in the sight of God.*
- 54. Whether you reveal a thing or conceal it, verily God is Omniscient.*
- 55. There is no blame on them (if they appear) before their fathers or their sons, their brothers, or their brother's sons, or their sisters' sons, or their women, or the (slaves) whom their right hands possess. Women, be conscious of God; for God is ever Witness over all things.*
- 56. God and His angels send blessings on the Prophet. Believers, send your blessings on him, and salute him with the greeting of peace.*
- 57. Those who malign God and His Messenger, God has cursed them in the world and in the Hereafter, and prepared for them a humiliating torment.*
- 58. And those who malign the believing men and the believing women undeservedly, they bear the guilt of slander and manifest sin.*
- 59. Prophet, tell your wives and daughters, and the believing women, that they should cast their outer garments over their persons; so that they may be recognized and they would not be annoyed. God is All-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy.*

60. If the hypocrites, and those in whose hearts is a disease, and those who spread rumors in the city do not desist, We shall verily incite you against them, then they will be your neighbors in it only for a short while.
61. They will be cursed, wherever they were found, they will be seized and massacred completely.
62. That was the way of God in the case of those who passed away before. You will not find any change in God's way. (33: 49 – 62)

“Believers, when you marry believing women, and then divorce them before you have touched them, there is no waiting period that you should reckon. So provide for them and release them honorably.” This is a ruling which complements the ruling given in Surat Al-Baqarah (Chapter 2) regarding women who are divorced before the marriage has been consummated. In Surat Al-Baqarah it was stated that they deserve to keep half the wedding gift which was agreed upon in the marriage contract. If the wedding gift was not specified, then the husband should give an appropriate gift according to his means. The present verse states the ruling regarding the waiting period that the wife should wait for before she can get married to another man. The ruling is that there is no waiting period in case the marriage has not been consummated. Then the husbands should provide for them as was mentioned in Surat Al-Baqarah and they should release them honorably.

The following verse explains the special license given to the Prophet (PBUH) in regard to marriage. It specifies the women that the Prophet (PBUH) was allowed to wed, even if they were more than four wives, “Prophet, We have made lawful to you your wives to whom you have paid their dowers; and those whom your right hand possesses out of the prisoners of war whom God has assigned to you; and the daughters of your paternal uncles and aunts, and the daughters of your maternal uncles and aunts, who migrated (from Mecca) with you; and any believing woman who dedicates herself to the Prophet if the Prophet wishes to wed her; this is only for you, and not for the believers (at large). We know what We ordained for them regarding their wives and the captives whom their right hands possess. This is that you may be free from blame, for God is All-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy.” Those included the wives that he married according to the marriage rules of Islam, the slave girls which he received from the spoils of war, any of his paternal or maternal cousins who immigrated with him to Medina, and women who would give themselves to him without a marriage gift. There are contradictory narrations about whether the Prophet (PBUH) married any of those who had given themselves to him. The most probable narration indicates that he did not marry any of them but asked his companions to marry them.

At that time the Prophet (PBUH) had nine wives. There was a special circumstance regarding how he married each one. ‘Aisha and Hafsa (RA) were the daughters of the Prophet’s (PBUH) companions, Abu Bakr (RA) and Umar (RA). Um Habibah bint Abi Sufian (RA), Um Salamah (RA), Saudah bint Zom’ah (RA), and Zainab bint Khazimah (RA) were elderly women who had lost their husbands and the Prophet (PBUH) wanted to honor them. Zainab bint Jahsh (RA) whose marriage story was told earlier. Juwairiah bint Al-Hareth (RA) and Saffiyah bint Hayy (RA) were captives of war and the Prophet (PBUH) freed them and took them as wives to honor the two tribes that they belonged to. The verse came down to give the Prophet (PBUH) an exception after the number of allowable wives was limited to four wives in Surat Al-Nisaa (Chapter 4).

The Prophet (PBUH) was given the choice, “You can defer whom you will of them and receive whom you will, and whomsoever you desire of those whom you have set aside (temporarily), there is no blame for you (to receive her again); that is better; that they may be comforted and not grieve, and may all be pleased with what you give them. God knows what is in your hearts; and God is Omniscient, Forbearing.”

Then came down the decree that prohibited him to marry anyone else other than those who were married to him at that time, “It is not lawful for you (to marry any more) women after this, nor to exchange them for (other) wives, even if their beauty were to please you, except any your right hand should possess. God is All-Observant over everything.” ‘Aisha (RA) suggested that this prohibition was lifted before the death of the Prophet (PBUH) but he chose not to avail himself of the license given to him.

The following verse established the etiquette that the Muslims should follow when they visited the Prophet’s (PBUH) house; it also outlined the way they should treat the Prophet’s (PBUH) wives, “Believers, do not enter the Prophet’s houses, unless you have been granted permission for a meal; and do not wait for its preparation. And if you were invited then enter; and when you have taken your meal, disperse and do not linger for conversation. Such (behavior) used to annoy the Prophet and He would shy away from (asking) you (to leave), but God does not shy away from the truth. And when you ask (his wives), for anything you want, you should ask them from behind a screen. That is purer for your hearts and for their hearts. And it is not for you to cause annoyance to the Messenger of God, nor marry his wives after him, ever. That would be a grievous thing in the sight of God.” The Arabs before Islam were not accustomed to seeking permission before they enter a house. Some people used to go to the Prophet’s (PBUH) house and when they notice that there was a meal being cooked they would wait until the meal was done so that they share the meal, even if they were not invited. They also used to stay late after they have eaten to talk to the Prophet (PBUH). This used to annoy the Prophet (PBUH) but he did not want to hurt the people’s feelings. This verse came to set the rules for these visits. People should seek permission before they go into the Prophet’s (PBUH) house. If they find a meal being cooked they should not wait around for the meal to be done. If they were invited to the meal, then they should leave soon after they have finished their meal. If they want to ask one of the Prophet’s (PBUH) wives a question, the wife should answer the question while she is behind a screen. This is purer for the hearts of the believers and the hearts of the wives. In addition, the believers should not hurt the Prophet (PBUH) in any way; and they were not allowed to marry the Prophet’s (PBUH) wives after his death. Those who contemplated breaking these rules have committed a grievous sin, “That would be a grievous thing in the sight of God.” People should realize that they cannot hide anything from God, “Whether you reveal a thing or conceal it, verily God is Omniscient.”

Then the text details who can speak to the wives face to face, “There is no blame on them (if they appear) before their fathers or their sons, their brothers, or their brother's sons, or their sisters' sons, or their women, or the (slaves) whom their right hands possess. Women, be conscious of God; for God is ever Witness over all things.” These are the relatives who are allowed to see the wives of the Prophet (PBUH) without a veil. This verse was specific to the Prophet's (PBUH) wives but was later generalized to include all believing women in Surat Al-Noor (Chapter 24). The command is strengthened by the command to remain conscious of God and then reminding them that God is, “Witness over all things.”

The next verse outlines the special status that the Prophet (PBUH) had, “God and His angels send blessings on the Prophet. Believers, send your blessings on him, and salute him with the greeting of peace.” God's blessings are accrued when God praises His Messenger among the Higher Host. The blessing of the angels is accrued when they pray God for the Messenger (PBUH). God honors the believers by including them with Him and the angels in sending the blessings on the Prophet (PBUH). Then a warning is issued to those who try to hurt the Prophet (PBUH), “Those who malign God and His Messenger, God has cursed them in the world and in the Hereafter, and prepared for them a humiliating torment.” The verses continue to warn against hurting the believers, “And those who malign the believing men and the believing women undeservedly, they bear the guilt of slander and manifest sin.” This indicates that there were people in Medina at that time who were hurting the believers, scheming against them, and spreading rumors about them.

The Prophet (PBUH) was told to command his wives and the rest of the believing women to cover their bodies, their heads, and to close the opening of the dress at the chest, “Prophet, tell your wives and daughters, and the believing women, that they should cast their outer garments over their persons; so that they may be recognized and they would not be annoyed. God is All-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy.” This dress code was specific for Muslim women and would differentiate them from other women. This worked as a deterrent so that Muslim women would not be annoyed.

The following verses warned the hypocrites who were scheming against the believers. The warning promised a punishment for the hypocrites if they do not desist, “If the hypocrites, and those in whose hearts is a disease, and those who spread rumors in the city do not desist, We shall verily incite you against them, then they will be your neighbors in it only for a short while. They will be cursed, wherever they were found, they will be seized and massacred completely. That was the way of God in the case of those who passed away before. You will not find any change in God's way. (33: 49 – 62)

Verses 63 to 73:

63. People ask you about the Hour. Say, "God alone has knowledge of it." How could you know about it? Perhaps the Hour is near.

64. Verily God has cursed the disbelievers and prepared for them a blazing Fire.
65. Abiding therein forever and they will find no protecting guardian or a helper.
66. The Day that their faces will be turned upside down in the Fire; they will say, "If only we had obeyed God and obeyed the Messenger."
67. And they would say, "Lord, we obeyed our chiefs and our dignitaries, and they led us away from the path.
68. Lord, give them double torment and curse them with a very great curse."
69. Believers, do not be like those who maligned Moses, but God cleared him of the (calumnies) they had uttered; and he was well esteemed in God's sight.
70. Believers, be conscious of God, and (always) say words straight to the point.
71. He will make your conduct whole and sound and forgive you your sins. He that obeys God and His Messenger has already attained the highest achievement.
72. We did indeed offer the Trust to the heavens and the earth and the mountains; but they refused to undertake it, being afraid thereof; but humankind undertook it; he was indeed unjust and ignorant.
73. So God will torment the hypocritical men and the hypocritical women, and idolatrous men and idolatrous women. But God will pardon the believing men and the believing women, and God is All-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy. (33: 63 – 73)

"People ask you about the Hour. Say, 'God alone has knowledge of it.' How could you know about it? Perhaps the Hour is near." The Quran discussed extensively the coming of the Last Day and the horrifying scenes that will accompany it. It was natural that the Prophet (PBUH) would be often asked about when the Last Day will occur. The Hour is part of the unseen that only God knows about. God kept the time of the Hour hidden from people for a reason. Those who are conscious of God will endeavor to be always ready for it whenever it comes. Those who are heedless of God's guidance are simply deceiving themselves.

Since they were asking about the Hour, it is then appropriate to describe some of its scenes, "Verily God has cursed the disbelievers and prepared for them a blazing Fire. Abiding therein forever and they will find no protecting guardian or a helper." The disbelievers will remain in the blazing Fire for a long time; only God knows how long it will be. There will be neither a protector nor a helper. They will suffer in this blazing Fire, "The Day that their faces will be turned upside down in the Fire." They will regret missing the opportunity that was given to them in life, "they will say, 'If only we had obeyed God and obeyed the Messenger.' Then they will curse those who led them astray, "And they would say, 'Lord, we obeyed our chiefs and our dignitaries, and they led us away from the path. Lord, give them double torment and curse them with a very great curse.'"

It seems that the marriage of the Prophet (PBUH) to Zainab (RA), which was meant to change one of the well-established traditions of the pre Islamic Arabia, created a great deal of controversy. The hypocrites took advantage of the event to attack Islam by surreptitiously criticizing Islamic practices, maligning the Prophet (PBUH), and spreading sedition. It seems that some of the believers lent an ear to the rumors that the hypocrites were spreading. The following verse warned these believers not to engage in talks that malign the Prophet (PBUH),

“Believers, do not be like those who maligned Moses, but God cleared him of the (calumnies) they had uttered; and he was well esteemed in God's sight.” The verse does not give any detail about how Moses (PBUH) was maligned, but the main focus of the verse was to warn the believers not to fall in the trap that was set by the hypocrites to malign the Prophet (PBUH). The example of Moses (PBUH) was given to show that God will support His messengers and clear them from any false accusations. The verse then commanded the believers to be critical of what they hear, “Believers, be conscious of God, and (always) say words straight to the point.” They should think carefully of the words they utter; and only speak a good word that leads to a good deed. Those who heed this command will be rewarded, “He will make your conduct whole and sound and forgive you your sins. He that obeys God and His Messenger has already attained the highest achievement.” The reward will be the achievement of great success. Obeying God in itself is a great achievement. It puts the believer on the straight path which leads to the ultimate happiness in this life and in the Hereafter.

It is a great bounty from God that He considers the human weakness and the gravity of the responsibility that humankind pledged to undertake, “We did indeed offer the Trust to the heavens and the earth and the mountains; but they refused to undertake it, being afraid thereof; but humankind undertook it; he was indeed unjust and ignorant.” The tiny, weak creature has accepted the undertaking that the mighty heavens, earth, and mountains declined to undertake. It is a great responsibility and it is a great risk. That is why humankind is described as, “unjust and ignorant.” Humankind was given the determination and the awareness, and he accepted the challenge. This is the honor that God bestowed on humankind. Humankind will be tested and the reward will be given according to the deeds. However, God’s mercy is boundless because He is the All-Forgiving, the Giver of Mercy, “So God will torment the hypocritical men and the hypocritical women, and idolatrous men and idolatrous women. But God will pardon the believing men and the believing women, and God is All-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy.”

Sura 34: Saba (Sheba)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

This is a Meccan Sura. It deals with the fundamentals of the doctrine: the belief in the oneness of God, the belief in God's revelation, and the belief in the resurrection. In addition, it establishes some of the basic values which emanate from the doctrine, indicating that the belief in God and doing good deeds, and not wealth and children, are the ways for salvation. It also stresses the fact that none could provide protection against God's wrath.

Verses 1 to 9:

1. Praise be to God, to whom belong all things in the heavens and on earth; and praise be to Him in the Hereafter. He is the Wise, the Totally-Aware.
2. He knows that which goes into the earth and that which comes forth from it and that which descends from the heaven and that which ascends into it. He is the Giver of Mercy, the All-Forgiving.
3. The disbelievers say, "The Hour will never come upon us." Say, "Yes indeed, by my Lord, it will come upon you. (He is) the Knower of the unseen. Not an atom's weight or less than that or greater, escape His knowledge in the heavens or in the earth. All are in a clear Record.
4. That He may reward those who believe and do good deeds; those will have forgiveness and a generous provision.
5. But those who strive against Our revelations, seeking to undermine them, for them will be a torment of painful suffering.
6. And those who were given knowledge see that the (Revelation) sent down to you from your Lord is the truth, and that it guides to the path of the Eminent, the Praised.
7. The disbelievers say, "Shall we show you a man who will tell you that when you are all scattered to pieces in disintegration, that you shall (then be raised) in a new creation?"
8. Has he invented a falsehood against God, or is he mad?" Indeed, those who do not believe in the Hereafter are in torment and great error.
9. Did they not see that which is before them and that which is behind them of the sky and the earth? If We will, We can make the earth swallow them, or cause pieces of the sky to fall on them. In that surely is a sign for every servant who turns back to God in repentance. (34: 1 – 9)

The Sura starts by singing God's praise. God is praised even if His servants do not praise Him. The universe and all His creation sing His praise. To Him belongs everything in the heavens and the earth. None can claim a share in His kingdom, and this is the cornerstone of the belief in the Oneness of God, "Praise be to God, to whom belong all things in the heavens and on earth."

"Praise be to Him in the Hereafter." He is praised in the Hereafter, this is an intrinsic praise. Those who disbelieved in life will see the truth in the Hereafter and will sing His praise as well. He is Totally-Aware of everything, "He is the Wise, the Totally aware." He is the Wise who does everything wisely. He manages the affairs of this life as well as the Hereafter wisely, and He controls the universe wisely. His knowledge encompasses everything.

A glimpse of the extent of God's knowledge is then given, "He knows that which goes into the earth and that which comes forth from it and that which descends from the heaven and that which ascends into it." When a person stands in front of these few words, one sees a vast collection of things, movements, shapes, images, and meanings which are beyond our imagination. How many things come out from the earth in one moment? How many things go into it? How many things come down from the sky? And how many things go into the sky? Can we count the number of seeds, the worms, and the insects that go into the earth each second? It is only God the Giver of Mercy, the All-Forgiving who can encompass these things, "He is the Giver of Mercy, the All-Forgiving."

"The disbelievers say, 'The Hour will never come upon us.' Say, 'Yes indeed, by my Lord, it will come upon you. (He is) the Knower of the unseen.'" The disbelievers reject faith because they are unable to understand God's wisdom and to appreciate God's power. God has not created humankind in jest. They will be tested, some will do good deeds and some will do evil deeds. They will not receive their recompense immediately, but some or all of the reward and punishment will be deferred to the Hereafter. It is thus essential that there will be a Hereafter to fulfill God's promise. The disbelievers do not appreciate this and therefore they say, "The Hour will never come upon us." The response was immediate and unequivocal, "Yes indeed, by my Lord, it will come upon you." There is no doubt because the One who confirms the coming of the Hour is, "the Knower of the unseen." Then the extent of God's knowledge is described in a profound way, "Not an atom's weight or less than that or greater, escape His knowledge in the heavens or in the earth. All are in a clear Record." Nothing will escape His knowledge. The expression, "clear Record," may mean God's knowledge which encompasses everything.

We may comment on the expression, "an atom's weight or less than that or greater." It is only recently that we came to know that the atom is not the smallest body in the universes and there are bodies which are smaller than the atom. This certainly shows that the Quran could have not been written by a human being.

The Hour will definitely come so that, "He may reward those who believe and do good deeds; those will have forgiveness and a generous provision." There is a rationale behind the coming of the Hour. God will forgive the sins of those who believed and did good deeds; in addition He will award them a generous provision. But those who, "strive against Our revelations, seeking to undermine them," they will be held accountable for what they committed and, "for them will be a torment of painful suffering."

"And those who were given knowledge see that the (Revelation) sent down to you from your Lord is the truth, and that it guides to the path of the Eminent, the Praised." It has been reported that the term, "those who were given knowledge," refers to the people who were given the Scripture before. They recognized the truth of the Quran from the knowledge they were given in their Scripture. However, the verse apply to all those who were given knowledge at all times and in every place. Their knowledge should guide them to the truth. The Quran indeed provides guidance; the Quran “guides to the path of the Eminent, the Praised.” The path of the Eminent, the Praised is the path that God has chosen for people living on earth. It guides humankind to the correct perspective for his relationship with the rest of God’s creation and his role in this universe. It guides humankind to the correct way of thinking to discover the nature, the properties, and the laws of the universe so that people can live in harmony with the universe. It guides humankind to an optimum training program so that people can live together in peace and harmony. It guides people to the laws that best organize their lives on earth. This is the path that Quran leads to.

The disbelievers were astonished by the mere suggestion that human beings will be resurrected after death. They even joked about it, “The disbelievers say, ‘Shall we show you a man who will tell you that when you are all scattered to pieces in disintegration, that you shall (then be raised) in a new creation?’” They even wondered about why the Prophet (PBUH) mentioned it, “Has he invented a falsehood against God, or is he mad?” Had they reflected a little on their creation in the first place, they would not have found the notion of resurrection to be difficult to accept, but they were lost, “Indeed those who do not believe in the Hereafter are in torment and great error.” The verse may be referring to the torment in the Hereafter. But, it may also be referring to torment in this life. Those who are misguided suffer. Those who have no faith have no hope in God’s mercy or justice. People face trials and adverse situations in life and the only support one can get in facing these difficulties is through faith. The belief in the Hereafter is a bounty from God. God bestows this bounty only on those who deserve it, those who are devout, and those who strive hard to find the truth.

May be a reminder of a tremendous cosmic scene would evoke in the disbelievers the interest in finding the truth, “Did they not see that which is before them and that which is behind them of the sky and the earth? If We will, We can make the earth swallow them, or cause pieces of the sky to fall on them. In that surely is a sign for every servant who turns back to God in repentance.” These events occurred in the past to earlier generations; later generations must have read or heard about them. The verse reminds people that this could also happen to them. But only those whose hearts make them turn back to God in repentance will heed such warning.

Verses 10 to 21:

10. And We certainly bestowed on David from Our grace. We said, "Mountains and birds, echo his psalms of praise." And We made the iron pliable for him.
11. Saying, "Make coats of armor, and measure the links well; and do good deeds. I see everything you do."
12. And (We subjected) the wind for Solomon. Its outward journey was one month, and its return journey was one month; and We made a fountain of molten brass to flow for him; and some of the jinn worked under his control with the leave of his Lord, and if any of them deviated from our command, We made him taste the torment of the blazing Fire.

13. They made for him what he desired: sanctuaries, statues, basins as large as reservoirs, and (cooking) cauldrons fixed (in their places). "House of David, work in gratitude." A few of My servants are grateful.
14. Then, when We decreed death for him, nothing showed them the sign of his death except a little worm of the earth, which kept (slowly) gnawing away at his staff. And when he fell down, the jinn saw plainly that if they had known the unseen, they would not have remained in the humiliating torment.
15. There was indeed a sign for Sheba in their dwelling-place: two gardens on the right hand and the left hand. Eat of the provision of your Lord and give thanks to Him, a fair land and an All-Forgiving Lord.
16. But they turned away (from God), and We sent against them the flood from the dams, and We converted their two gardens into "gardens" producing bitter fruit, and tamarisks, and some few Lote-trees.
17. We punished them for their ingratitude. Do We punish except the ungrateful?
18. And We set, between them and the towns which We had blessed, towns easy to be seen, and We made the travel between them easy, (saying), "Travel in them safely both by night and day."
19. But they said, "Our Lord, lengthen the distances of our journeys." And they wronged themselves, so We made them history and We dispersed them all in scattered fragments. Verily in this are signs for each steadfast, grateful one.
20. And Satan indeed found his conjecture true concerning them, for they followed him, all save a group of the believers.
21. But he had no authority over them, except that We might discriminate between those who believe in the Hereafter from those who are in doubt concerning it. And your Lord is the All Preserver of all things. (34: 10 – 21)

"And We certainly bestowed on David from Our grace. We said, 'Mountains and birds, echo his psalms of praise.' And We made the iron pliable for him. Saying, 'Make coats of armor, and measure the links well; and do good deeds. I see everything you do.'" David (PBUH) was a servant who turned back often to God in repentance. God bestowed on him of His bounty, "Mountains and birds, echo his psalms of praise." It was narrated that David (PBUH) had an extremely beautiful voice. He used to praise God and sing his psalms. The verse indicates that God gave David (PBUH) such a pure spirit that he was able to communicate with other creatures of God and made the mountains and the birds join him in singing the praise of God. God also gave him the ability to fashion iron into shapes without taking recourse to the conventional methods for shaping iron. He used iron to make innovative armors. It is said that before this, the armors used to be made from solid steel plate which were very heavy and hampered the fighter's ability to maneuver his body. God inspired David (PBUH) to make the armor from closely connected links. The armors that David (PBUH) made were light in weight and allowed better movement for the fighters. This is what is implied by, "measure the links well." David (PBUH) was commanded to do good deeds and to remember that God sees everything.

God also bestowed His bounties on Solomon (PBUH), "And (We subjected) the wind for Solomon. Its outward journey was one month, and its return journey was one month." This was one of the miracles that God bestowed on Solomon (PBUH). However, there are no more authentic details given about it, except that the wind journey was to the Holy Land as was mentioned in Surat Al-Anbyaa (Chapter 21). Another miracle that was given to Solomon (PBUH) was, “and We made a fountain of molten brass to flow for him.” A third one was, “and some of the jinn worked under his control with the leave of his Lord, and if any of them deviated from our command, We made him taste the torment of the blazing Fire. They made for him what he desired: sanctuaries, statues, basins as large as reservoirs, and (cooking) cauldrons fixed (in their places).” Jinn is one of the creation of God. They cannot be seen and we have no knowledge of their nature. Some of them were subjugated to work for Prophet Solomon (PBUH). It is interesting to note that some of the Arab idolaters used to worship jinn. They will be treated the same way the jinn who deviate from God’s commands will be treated, “and if any of them deviated from our command, We made him taste the torment of the blazing Fire.” They used to work for Prophet Solomon (PBUH) making whatever he wanted them to make. This verse ends with a command to the House of David (PBUH), “House of David, work in gratitude.” God has bestowed all these bounties on them, so they should show their gratitude. But, “A few of My servants are grateful.”

The favors of God are limitless. How can a human being with a limited power thank God enough for His favors? “And if you should count the favor of God, you could not enumerate it.” (14: 34)

The following verse describes the scene of Solomon’s (PBUH) death. The jinn did not realize that he died and they continued working hard at the tasks that he commanded them to do until a worm ate his staff, “Then, when We decreed death for him, nothing showed them the sign of his death except a little worm of the earth, which kept (slowly) gnawing away at his staff. And when he fell down, the jinn saw plainly that if they had known the unseen, they would not have remained in the humiliating torment.” It was narrated that he was standing up leaning on his staff when he died. He remained in that position until a worm ate at his staff. The weakened staff gave way under Solomon’s (PBUH) weight, so he fell. The jinn did not realize that he was dead until he fell down and all this time they were working very hard performing the tasks that they were given. People who seek the jinn’s help in knowing the unseen should know that the jinn are incapable of helping them.

The previous verses narrated the story the House of David as an example of human beings who show their gratitude to God. The following verses give an example of human ingratitude, the story of the people of Sheba. The narration starts with a description of the favors which God bestowed on them, “There was indeed a sign for Sheba in their dwelling-place: two gardens on the right hand and the left hand. Eat of the provision of your Lord and give thanks to Him, a fair land and an All Forgiving Lord.” The people of Sheba used to live south of Yemen. Their land was fertile and they used to get an abundance of rain. They had the knowledge and skill to control their water resources. They established a natural water reservoir enclosed between two mountains and they erected a dam which can be opened and closed to allow the amount of water they need to pass through. This dam was known as the “Maarib’s Dam.” They had gardens bearing fruits and providing them with abundant food. The verse reminded them to eat of what God provided and be grateful to Him. But they were ungrateful and they were punished, “But they turned away (from God), and We sent against them the flood from the dams, and We converted their two gardens into "gardens" producing bitter fruit, and tamarisks, and some few Lote-trees." They were ungrateful and they refused to do good deeds and behave kindly, so God took away the favor that brought them His generous provision. God sent a tremendous flood that destroyed the dam and rendered the land barren. Instead of their fertile gardens the land produced only thorny trees. They were punished for their ingratitude, "We punished them for their ingratitude. Do We punish except the ungrateful?"

While they lost most of their food resources but they were still living in their homes. They had villages around them and the roads from Yemen to Mecca and Jerusalem were safe and populated routes. The travel was easy and safe, "And We set, between them and the towns which We had blessed, towns easy to be seen, and We made the travel between them easy, (saying), 'Travel in them safely both by night and day.'" They did not appreciate this blessing and asked God to change this. God accepted their prayer and destroyed them for their ingratitude, "But they said, 'Our Lord, lengthen the distances of our journeys.' And they wronged themselves so We made them history and We dispersed them all in scattered fragments. Verily in this are signs for each steadfast, grateful one."

The following verses present the rationale behind the divine plan and the lessons to be learnt from these stories, "And Satan indeed found his conjecture true concerning them, for they followed him, all save a group of the believers." In each community there are those who fall an easy prey to Satan's temptation. Satan has no power over them but it is they who choose to turn away from the truth and follow Satan. There is also another group of people whose strong faith will help them to resist Satan's temptation. Falling prey to Satan provides a mechanism to discriminate between the two groups so that each group gets its due recompense from God, "But he had no authority over them, except that We might discriminate between those who believe in the Hereafter from those who are in doubt concerning it. And your Lord is the All Preserver of all things."

Verses 22 to 27:

22. Say, "Call upon those whom you set beside God." They do not possess even the weight of an atom either in the heavens or in the earth, nor do they have any share in either, nor does He have an assistant among them.
23. No intercession can avail in His Presence, except for those for whom He has granted permission. Yet, when fear is banished from their hearts, they say, "What was it that your Lord said?" They say, "The Truth." And He is the Most High, the Great.
24. Say, "Who gives you sustenance from the heavens and the earth?" Say, "God. And indeed, we or you are either rightly guided or in manifest error."
25. Say, "You shall not be asked about our sins, nor shall we be asked about what you do."
26. Say, "Our Lord will gather us together and will in the end decide the matter between us with truth and justice. And He is the one to decide, the Omniscient."
27. Say, "Show me those whom you associated with Him as partners. By no means (can you); He is God, the Eminent, the Wise." (34: 22 – 27)

The following verse presents a challenge to the disbelievers, “Say, ‘Call upon those whom you set beside God.’ They do not possess even the weight of an atom either in the heavens or in the earth, nor do they have any share in either, nor does He have an assistant among them.” The challenge is posed to the disbelievers to call upon those whom they associate with God. Do they claim ownership of anything, even as minute as an atom, in the heavens or in the earth? Nor do they share in the ownership of either. God does not need any help from them. This seems to be an answer to those who claimed that the angels were God’s daughters. The disbelievers said that they worshiped idols because they will intercede on their behalf. This claim is refuted as well, “No intercession can avail in His Presence, except for those for whom He has granted permission.” No one will be able to intercede on their behalf except by God’s permission. The scene in which people will need the intercession is then depicted. It is a scene of a difficult day, fear will fill the hearts, “Yet, when fear is banished from their hearts, they say, ‘What was it that your Lord said?’ They say, ‘The Truth.’ And He is the Most High, the Great.” They will ask each other what did God say? It is not clear who will answer this question. It may be that they were able themselves to answer each other; or it may come from the angels. Either way, the answer is that God said the truth. This is the absolute and ever existing truth which comes only from God.

The question is asked, “Say, ‘Who gives you sustenance from the heavens and the earth?’” Say, ‘God. And indeed, we or you are either rightly guided or in manifest error.’” Provision is something that everyone recognizes. It is part of our lives. Provision comes from the sky in the form of rain, heat, light. Provision comes from the earth in the form of plants, animals, springs, minerals, and metals. This is what people are used to see but everyday a new type of provision is discovered. They could not argue about who provides. It is God who provides. The Prophet (PBUH) was commanded to tell the disbelievers that one of them is wrong and the other is right. It is a prudent way to engage them into thinking.

A fundamental principle regarding the personal responsibility of human beings is stated, “Say, ‘You shall not be asked about our sins, nor shall we be asked about what you do.’” This may have been a response to the disbelievers’ accusation that those who believed in Muhammad (PBUH) left the religion of their forefathers. Each one is responsible for his/her deeds. God will judge, “Say, ‘Our Lord will gather us together and will in the end decide the matter between us with truth and justice. And He is the one to decide, the Omniscient.’” God will gather the two groups and then He will judge between them.

The challenge is posed again, “Say, ‘Show me those whom you associated with Him as partners. By no means (can you); He is God, the Eminent, the Wise.’” The challenge which is posed in the form of a rhetorical question is meant to rebuke them for their folly. The response came swift and unequivocal: they will not be able to produce those whom they claimed to be partners of God. God has no partners. He is, “the Eminent, the Wise.”

Verses 28 to 42:

28. We indeed have sent you to all humankind, to give them glad tidings, and to warn them, but most people do not know.
29. They say, "When will this promise (fulfilled) if you are telling the truth?"
30. Say, "For you is the appointment of a Day (which) you cannot postpone nor hasten by an hour."
31. The disbelievers say, "We shall neither believe in this Book nor in (any) that (came) before it;" but if you could see, when the wrongdoers are brought before their Lord, how they cast the blame one to another; those who were oppressed (in the earth) will say to those who were arrogant, "If it were not for you, We would have been believers."
32. The arrogant ones will say to those who had been oppressed, "Was it we who kept you back from guidance after it had reached you? No, it was you who were guilty."
33. Those who had been oppressed will say to the arrogant ones, "No, it was your scheme which you schemed day and night. You ordered us to disbelieve in God and to associate partners with Him." They will confide (their) regret when they see the torment. We shall put yokes on the necks of the disbelievers. Why should they be rewarded for anything other than what they have done?
34. And We never sent a warner to a population, but to have the wealthy ones among them say, "We do not believe in that which you have been sent with."
35. They said, "We have more wealth and children, and we will not be tormented."
36. Say, "Verily my Lord expands and restricts the provision to whom He pleases, but most people do not know."
37. It is neither your wealth nor your children that will bring you nearer to Us, but it is (being one of) those who believe and do good deeds. They will be given twice the reward and they will be secure in their dwellings in the highest places.
38. Those who strive against Our revelations seeking to undermine them, they will be brought to the torment.
39. Say, "Verily my Lord expands and restricts the provision to whom He pleases, and He will replace whatever you spend. He is the best of the Providers."
40. On the day when He will gather them all together, and He will say to the angels, "Was it you that these people used to worship?"
41. They will say, "Glory be to You, You are our Guardian, not them. No, they worshipped the jinn; most of them were believers in them.
42. So on that day none of you will have the power to benefit or harm each other. We will say to the wrongdoers, "Taste the torment of Fire which you used to deny." (34: 28 – 42)

The following verse outlines the Prophet's (PBUH) task, "We indeed have sent you to all humankind, to give them glad tidings, and to warn them, but most people do not know." He was sent to all people. His duty is limited only to two tasks: to deliver the glad tidings and to warn. Most people do not understand the limits of the Prophet's (PBUH) function. They challenged the Prophet (PBUH) to bring about the promised punishment, "They say, 'When will this promise (fulfilled) if you are telling the truth?'" They did not understand the nature of the Prophet's (PBUH) role. His role is only to deliver the message. He could not bring about the threats that are mentioned in the message nor does he know when it will happen. So, the Prophet (PBUH) was commanded to respond, “Say, ‘For you is the appointment of a Day (which) you cannot postpone nor hasten by an hour.’” God has decreed an appointed time for each thing, and when it comes no one will be able to change it.

The disbelievers were stubborn in their rejection of the message, “The disbelievers say, ‘We shall neither believe in this Book nor in (any) that (came) before it.’” They insisted that they will not believe in the Quran nor will they believe in the previously revealed Scriptures which supported the Quran. This was what they said in their life. What if they can see what will happen to them on the Day of Judgment, “but if you could see, when the wrongdoers are brought before their Lord, how they cast the blame one to another; those who were oppressed (in the earth) will say to those who were arrogant, ‘If it were not for you, We would have been believers.’” On that Day they will exchange the blame among themselves. The followers will accuse their leaders who led them astray, but in the mean time, the leaders will lay the blame on their followers, “The arrogant ones will say to those who had been oppressed, ‘Was it we who kept you back from guidance after it had reached you? No, it was you who were guilty.’ Those who had been oppressed will say to the arrogant ones, ‘No, it was your scheme which you schemed day and night. You ordered us to disbelieve in God and to associate partners with Him.’” They will soon realize that they will gain nothing by blaming each other. They were all guilty and each will taste his/her share of the torment. This realization will fill their hearts with painful sorrow, “They will confide (their) regret when they see the torment.” They will be tied, “We shall put yokes on the necks of the disbelievers.” But did they expect that they would be recompensed any differently, “Why should they be rewarded for anything other than what they have done?” They were all wrongdoers. The arrogant were guilty of oppressing their followers and the followers were guilty when they followed those who led them astray blindly. They gave up their freedom, the ability to choose, and the integrity that God bestowed on them.

The response of the chiefs of Quraish to the Prophet (PBUH) when he called them to Islam was exactly the same response that each of God’s messengers received from the chiefs of his people, “And We never sent a warner to a population, but to have the wealthy ones among them say, ‘We do not believe in that which you have been sent with.’” The power and the wealth that the chiefs had spoiled them and corrupted their initial natural disposition which God placed in the psyche of each and every human being to guide them to the right path. They thought that their wealth and power will be reasons for exemption from God’s punishment, “They said, ‘We have more wealth and children, and we will not be tormented.’” The Quran then sets the record straight and corrects their misunderstanding. God’s provision is not a measure of God’s approval of a person’s action. Expanding or restricting provision follows God’s law, “Say, ‘Verily my Lord expands and restricts the provision to whom He pleases, but most people do not know.’” Some people may get deluded by this misunderstanding. They get confused when they see evil people enjoying great wealth while the believers who are doing good deeds are suffering from lack of provision. This verse explains that expanding or restricting provision follows God’s law. He distributes His provision as He wishes and according to His Wisdom, “It is neither your wealth nor your children that will bring you nearer to Us, but it is (being one of) those who believe and do good deeds. They will be given twice the reward and they will be secure in their dwellings in the highest places.” Expanding or restricting provision may be a test for people to see how they will behave. The test has to do with how one accepts the decreed provision and how one spends his/her provision. Those who spend their provision in the sake of God will be rewarded greatly. But those who challenged God's revelations will be brought to justice on the Day of Judgment, "Those who strive against Our revelations seeking to undermine them, they will be brought to the torment." The criterion for expanding and restricting provision is reiterated again, "Say, 'Verily my Lord expands and restricts the provision to whom He pleases, and He will replace whatever you spend. He is the best of the Providers.'" God promised to replace whatever is spent in His way.

"On the day when He will gather them all together, and He will say to the angels, 'Was it you that these people used to worship?'" On the Day of Judgment, the angels will be asked about those who worshipped them. The angels will express their innocence of the disbelievers, they will sing God's praise to emphasize their rejection of this evil deed, "They will say, 'Glory be to You, You are our Guardian, not them. No, they worshipped the jinn; most of them were believers in them.'" The fundamental truth is then expressed, "So on that day none of you will have the power to benefit or harm each other." No one will have the power to benefit or harm anyone else and the wrongdoers will be doomed, "We will say to the wrongdoers, 'Taste the torment of Fire which you used to deny.'"

Verses 43 to 54:

43. When Our clear revelations are recited to them, they say, "This is only a man who wishes to hinder you from the (worship) which your fathers practiced." And they say, "This is only an invented lie." Those who disbelieve say of the truth when it comes to them, "This is nothing but evident magic."
44. But We had not given them scriptures which they could study, nor did We send any warner to them before you.
45. And their predecessors rejected (the truth) - these people have not attained a tenth of what We had granted their predecessors yet they rejected My messengers, so how terrible was My disapproval?
46. Say, "I do admonish you on one point: that you do stand up before God in pairs, or individually and reflect. Your companion is not possessed. He only came to warn you before the advent of severe torment."
47. Say, "No reward do I ask of you. It is (all) in your interest. My reward is only due from God. He is Witness to all things."
48. Say, "Verily my Lord projects the truth. He has full knowledge of the unseen."
49. Say, "The Truth has arrived, and falsehood neither creates anything new, nor restores anything."
50. Say, "If I err, I only err to my own loss; but if I am guided, it is because of what my Lord inspires me. He is the All-Hearing, and He is (ever) near."
51. If you could only see when they are terrified with no escape, and they are seized from a nearby place.

52. And they will say, "We do believe (now) in the (Truth);" but how could they receive (Faith) from a distant place?
53. They rejected faith (entirely) before, and they made conjectures about the unseen from a distant place.
54. And they were barred from what they desire, as was done to people of their kind before. They were deep in doubt. (34: 43 – 54)

The true message which Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) brought posed a threat to the old traditions that the disbelievers were entrenched in. They tried to refute the clear and simple truth that the Quran embodied but their arguments were weak and shaky. All they could come up with is to say, "This is only a man who wishes to hinder you from the (worship) which your fathers practiced." This was not a convincing argument, so they added an accusation, "And they say, 'This is only an invented lie.'" But those who listened to the Quran were impressed with the way Quran addressed and evoked deep feelings in the hearts. So the disbelievers tried to counteract the effect of the Quran by saying, "This is nothing but evident magic." They launched a series of baseless accusations against the Quran. They tried very hard to deter people from listening and believing in it. The Quran exposed their ignorance and bias, "But We had not given them scriptures which they could study, nor did We send any warner to them before you." The Quran continued to remind them of the fate of those who rejected guidance before them. They had more power and wealth than them but could not escape God's punishment, "And their predecessors rejected (the truth) - these people have not attained a tenth of what We had granted their predecessors yet they rejected My messengers, so how terrible was My disapproval?"

The Prophet (PBUH) was commanded to extend a sincere invitation to the disbelievers, an invitation to examine the message with the sole intention of reaching the truth, "Say, 'I do admonish you on one point: that you do stand up before God in pairs, or individually and reflect. Your companion is not possessed. He only came to warn you before the advent of severe torment.'" He asked them to stand up in front of God, after they had freed their hearts of their biases, their desires, and their worldly interests. This was an invitation to rid themselves of the influence of their useless traditions and to examine the message in an objective way. The verse defines a methodology which if followed sincerely would lead directly to the straight path. It also reminded them that they have known the Prophet (PBUH) for a long time and they never suspected his sanity and wisdom before. They better heed what he told them because he came to warn them of the dire consequences of disobeying God.

After outlining a rationale approach for conducting their investigation, the Prophet (PBUH) reminded them that he did not expect any worldly compensation from them, adding sarcastically that they can keep whatever they thought he was after, "Say, 'No reward do I ask of you. It is (all) in your interest. My reward is only due from God. He is Witness to all things.'" God has given me the task and He will reward me. God is a Witness over everything.

"Say, 'Verily my Lord projects the truth. He has full knowledge of the unseen.'" This was the third message that Prophet (PBUH) delivered: what I brought you is the truth from God. Who could stand against God's truth? The truth came to erase the falsehood, "Say, 'The Truth has arrived, and falsehood neither creates anything new, nor restores anything.” Falsehood will be completely eliminated by the truth. It could no longer survive nor will it be resurrected again.

“Say, ‘If I err, I only err to my own loss; but if I am guided, it is because of what my Lord inspires me. He is the All-Hearing, and He is (ever) near.’” This is again a reminder of the individual responsibility for guidance. God is He who guides and He is All-Hearing and ever near.

The final verses describe dynamic scenes from the scenes of the Day of Judgment, “If you could only see when they are terrified with no escape, and they are seized from a nearby place. And they will say, ‘We do believe (now) in the (Truth);’ but how could they receive (Faith) from a distant place? They rejected faith (entirely) before, and they made conjectures about the unseen from a distant place. And they were barred from what they desire, as was done to people of their kind before. They were deep in doubt.” If only you could see them when they will be terrified by the horror of that Day, they will not be able to escape. They will then try to avoid the torment by declaring, “We do believe (now) in the (Truth),” but it will be too late. How could they believe now? They should have done that in their life on earth. They rejected faith before on the basis of conjectures, but now they are certain of the result of their deeds. So, their request will be denied.

Sura 35: Fatir (Orignator)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 3:

1. Praise be to God, the Creator of the heavens and the earth, who made the angels messengers having wings two, three and four. He increases in the creation what He wills. God is All-Powerful over everything.
2. Whatever God grants to people of mercy none can withhold it; and that which He withholds none can release thereafter. He is the Eminent, the Wise.
3. People, remember God's Blessing upon you. Is there any creator other than God who provides for you from the sky and the earth? There is no deity except Him. How can you be deluded? (35: 1 – 3)

This Sura was revealed in Mecca, its style is very much similar to the style of Surat Al-Ra'd (Chapter 13). Its words have harmonious sounds which send tremors in the heart to awaken it from its heedlessness. It induces the heart to reflect on the enormity of the creation and the signs of God in the universe.

The main theme of the Sura revolves around alerting the heart to the favors of God, so it starts appropriately with the praise of God, "Praise be to God. The statement of God's creative power follows, "the Creator of the heavens and the earth." It is He who is the sole Creator of the heavens and the earth. All of the planets that we observe in the sky and which we know very little about have been created by God.

The Sura discusses God's revelation and His messengers; the angels are among the messengers of God. The angels serve as communicators between the heaven and the earth, "Who made the angels messengers having wings two, three and four." This is the first statement in the Quran which describes the form of the angels. This description does not allow us to speculate about how the angels look like. This is part of the unseen. This is also emphasized in this verse by stating that God's creation is beyond our human imagination, "He increases in the creation what He wills. God is All-Powerful over everything."

Another form of God's unlimited power is explained in the following verse, "Whatever God grants to people of mercy none can withhold it; and that which He withholds none can release thereafter. He is the Eminent, the Wise." When people grasp the full meaning of this verse, they understand that there is only one power in this universe: the power of God. There is only one source for true mercy in this universe: God. God's mercy is limitless and is present in so many forms. People can see God's mercy in their own selves as well as in things that surround them. The mercy of God is reflected on the things that He allowed us to do as well as in the things that He prevented us from doing. One of the aspects of the mercy of God is its availability for God's servants. The hope, the expectation, and the realization of the mercy fill the heart with security and contentment. No one controls God's mercy except Him. This verse, if fully understood, changes the life of the human being and establishes new set of standards and values. The servant of God should not expect hope from any other than God and should not fear anyone else except Him.

The lessons learnt from the previous two verses are reiterated, “People, remember God's Blessing upon you.” It reminds people of the Oneness of the Creator and the Oneness of the Provider. A rhetorical question is posed to express the astonishment at those who do not understand these facts, “Is there any creator other than God who provides for you from the sky and the earth? There is no deity except Him. How can you be deluded?” The blessings of God are all around us. How can we forget?

Verses 4 to 8:

4. And if they reject you, messengers before you were also rejected. All matters are returned to God.
5. People, certainly the promise of God is true. Do not let this present life deceive you, nor let the deceiver deceive you about God.
6. Verily Satan is an enemy to you; so treat him as an enemy. He only invites his followers so that they may become companions of the blazing Fire.
7. Those who disbelieve, theirs will be an awful torment; and those who believe and do good deeds, theirs will be forgiveness and a great reward.
8. Is he, the evil of whose deeds is made attractive to him so that he deems it good (like a believer)? God verily sends whom He wills astray, and guides whom He wills; so let not your soul expire in sorrow over them. God knows what they do. (35: 4 – 8)

“And if they reject you, messengers before you were also rejected. All matters are returned to God.” In this verse, God comforts His Messenger (PBUH) by stating several facts. People rejection of God’s messengers is not a new phenomenon; previous messengers were rejected as well. All matters and affairs will return back to God. Only He will decide the consequences. Then a warning is addressed to all people, “People, certainly the promise of God is true. Do not let this present life deceive you, nor let the deceiver deceive you about God.” God’s promise is the truth. God never breaks His promise. So, let not the temptations of life deceive you. Satan is your enemy; he will always try to tempt you, “Verily Satan is an enemy to you; so treat him as an enemy. He only invites his followers so that they may become companions of the blazing Fire.” Make him your enemy. Those who follow Satan will end up in the blazing Fire. Can a sane person accept an invitation to Hell Fire? Consider the consequences of belonging to one of the two groups, “Those who disbelieve, theirs will be an awful torment; and those who believe and do good deeds, theirs will be forgiveness and a great reward.”

“Is he, the evil of whose deeds is made attractive to him so that he deems it good (like a believer)? God verily sends whom He wills astray, and guides whom He wills; so let not your soul expire in sorrow over them. God knows what they do.” The door to sin is opened by Satan who makes it seem right. People who think that they are always right and they never doubt the goodness of their decisions are an easy prey for Satan. Satan leads them to sin easily because they never stop to think about their actions and they do not accept any criticism. Those who follow Satan are bound to go astray and those who resist the temptation of Satan are bound to be guided. So, you (Muhammad) do not feel sorry for those who are not guided. It is not your task to make people guided. This is a matter that only God controls.

Verses 9 to 14:

9. It is God who sends forth the winds, so that they stir the clouds, and We drive them to a dead land, and revive the earth therewith after its death. Such is the resurrection.
10. Whoso desires eminence, all eminence belongs to God. To Him good words ascend, and the good deed lifts them up, and (as for) those who plan evil deeds, they shall have a severe torment; and their plan shall perish.
11. And God created you from dust; then from a sperm-drop; then He made you in pairs. And no female conceives or delivers except with His knowledge. And no aged person is granted (additional) years, nor is his life span shortened but it is in a record. Indeed, this is easy for God.
12. And the two seas are not alike – one is fresh, sweet, and good to drink from; and the other is bitter and salty. And from them both you eat fresh meat and extract ornaments that you wear. And you see the ship plowing through them that you may seek of His bounty, and that haply you may give thanks.
13. He merges the night into the day, and he merges the day into the night. And he subjected the sun and the moon: each one runs its course for an appointed term. This is God your Lord; to Him belong all the Sovereignty; and those whom you invoke instead of Him do not own so much as the white spot on a date-stone.
14. If you invoke them, they will not hear to your call, and if they were to hear, they cannot answer your (prayer). On the Day of Resurrection, they will reject your "partnership". And none can tell you (the truth) like the One who is Totally-Aware. (35: 9 -14)

“It is God who sends forth the winds, so that they stir the clouds, and We drive them to a dead land, and revive the earth therewith after its death. Such is the resurrection.” The scene of the clouds being formed by the action of the wind is one of the cosmic signs of God. God moves the clouds wherever He wills and causes the rain to come down to revive a barren land. This is an example of the resurrection that happens in front of our eyes on earth. It is a concrete example for people who reject the concept of resurrection to observe.

The narrative then moves to explain the meaning of dignity and eminence and relates it to the doing of good deeds, “Whoso desires eminence, all eminence belongs to God. To Him good words ascend, and the good deed lifts them up, and (as for) those who plan evil deeds, they shall have a severe torment; and their plan shall perish.” It may be that good life is the common factor in the two separate issues of land revival and good words and deeds. Land revival is necessary for people to have a good life and similarly good words and deeds are necessary for people to lead a good life. This has been alluded to before in Surat Abraham (Chapter 14, verses 24-26), where the analogy between a good word and a good tree was given. Both a good word and a good tree embody the meaning of the growth of good life.

The idolaters of Mecca fought to preserve their polytheistic tradition because they wanted to maintain their status among the Arabs. The verse tells them that they should seek dignity and eminence with God. It is only God that can grant dignity and eminence. Those whom God will dignify will never bow their heads to any of His creatures. This is true dignity. The way to dignity is through good words and good deeds. True dignity is an inner feeling that rests deeply in the hearts of the people. It raises people above their whims and desires. Following one's whims and desires usually opens the chances for being humiliated. Observing God and remaining conscious of Him helps people control their whims and desires. This is how good words and deeds are linked to eminence and dignity. Those who plot evil plots thinking that they can achieve eminence through their plots are doomed. Not only they will have a severe punishment but their plans will never succeed.

“And God created you from dust; then from a sperm-drop; then He made you in pairs.” The verse first mentions the first creation of humankind from dust then it refers to the first stage of pregnancy. Dust is a lifeless matter while the sperm-drop is full of life. The creation of humankind is a miracle and its secrets are not known yet. The development of a human being from a sperm-drop is also a mystery whose secrets are still hidden. From a sperm-drop cells grow and come together to form the different parts of the human body. Each body is unique in its characteristics. Two human beings then come together to repeat the whole process again. The miraculous creation of the human being is mentioned repeatedly in the Quran so that people may reflect on it. The verse then refers to the absolute and comprehensive knowledge of God. God knows His creation, “And no female conceives or delivers except with His knowledge.” This statement indicates that the word, “female,” means all types of females: human, animals, birds, and all other creatures of God. God's knowledge encompasses each and every living being as they are being created. Similarly, God knows how each one of His creatures will live, “And no aged person is granted (additional) years, nor is his life span shortened but it is in a record. Indeed, this is easy for God.” This tremendous amount of knowledge is in a record, a record that is easy for God to maintain.

The verses continue to describe another of the cosmic signs of God, “And the two seas are not alike – one is fresh, sweet, and good to drink from; and the other is bitter and salty. And from them both you eat fresh meat and extract ornaments that you wear. And you see the ship plowing through them that you may seek of His bounty, and that haply you may give thanks.” The divine will has created different types of water, some sweet and some salty. Both are of benefit and essential for the continuation of life on earth; from each we eat fish and we obtain stones that can be used in making jewelry. The ships go through them both carrying people and commodities. People should appreciate the blessings of God.

The perpetuity of the succession of night and day and the motion of the sun and moon is another of the cosmic signs of God, “He merges the night into the day, and he merges the day into the night. And he subjected the sun and the moon: each one runs its course for an appointed term.”

“This is God your Lord; to Him belong all the Sovereignty; and those whom you invoke instead of Him do not own so much as the white spot on a date-stone. If you invoke them, they will not hear to your call, and if they were to hear, they cannot answer your (prayer). On the Day of Resurrection, they will reject your "partnership". And none can tell you (the truth) like the One who is Totally-Aware.” It is God who sends the winds, created the clouds, brings the barren land to life, created you from dust, and created you into pairs. It is He who knows what each female carries and what she delivers. He knows how long each one will live. He created the two types of seas. He merges the day and the night, and He subjected the sun and the moon to run around, until a prescribed term has been reached. He is the Sovereign. Those whom you invoke beside Him do not know anything. They will not hear you when you call upon them; and if they hear you they will not respond to your call. On the Day of the Resurrection they will disown you. This is the truth because only He who is Totally-Aware of everything can tell you the truth.

Verses 15 to 26:

15. People, it is you that are in need of God. And God is the Rich, the Praised.
16. If He wills; He can get rid of you and bring (instead of you) a new creation.
17. And that is not difficult for God.
18. And no burdened soul can bear the burden of another, and if one heavily laden soul should cry for help, none of its load will be carried, even by a close relative. You warn only those who fear their Lord without seeing Him, and have established prayers. He who purifies his soul purifies his soul for his own benefit. To God is the final destination.
19. The blind and the seeing are not alike;
20. Nor are the darkness and the light;
21. Nor are the shade and the heat;
22. Nor are the living and the dead. God makes whom He wills to hear. You cannot make those who are in the graves to hear.
23. You are only a warner.
24. Verily We have sent you with the truth, as a bearer of glad tidings, and as a warner. And there was never a people to whom We did not send a warner.
25. And if they reject you, so did their predecessors, to whom came their messengers with clear signs, Scriptures, and the book of enlightenment.
26. Then I seized those who disbelieved, and how intense was My punishment. (35: 15 -26)

“People, it is you that are in need of God. And God is the Rich, the Praised.” People always need to be reminded of this fact. They need to be reminded that God does not need their devotion. They are the ones who need God. If God wills, He could replace them easily by a new creation, “If He wills, He can get rid of you and bring (instead of you) a new creation. And that is not difficult for God.” God has bestowed His favors on this minute creature, the human being. God created humankind, fashioned him, gave him the skills, prepared him, and made him a vicegerent on earth. God subjected the universe for the service of this minute creature. God sent His messengers to guide people to the straight path. All these favors should have been appreciated and gratitude should have been expressed.

The following verse states a fundamental principle: the personal responsibility of each individual, “And no burdened soul can bear the burden of another, and if one heavily laden soul should cry for help, none of its load will be carried, even by a close relative.” Each individual is responsible for his/her own deeds and actions. Each one will be held accountable for him/herself. No one will assume the responsibility of someone else. The fact that each individual is responsible for his/her actions enhances the feeling of self-accountability. Then the verse addresses the Prophet (PBUH), “You warn only those who fear their Lord without seeing Him, and have established prayers. He who purifies his soul purifies his soul for his own benefit. To God is the final destination.” Only those who are conscious of God will heed the warning. Those who chose to purify themselves will benefit from their actions.

In the sight of God, belief and disbelief are not equal; nor are truth and falsehood; nor goodness and evil are equal, “The blind and the seeing are not alike; nor are the darkness and the light; nor are the shade and the heat; nor are the living and the dead.” The analogy between disbelief, blindness, darkness, and heat is implied. Similarly, the analogy between belief, the ability to see, light, and shade is implied. Belief is a light that fills the heart, the body, and the senses. It is a light that illuminates the way and uncovers the truth. Belief gives the believer the ability to see the truth. A believer can see where he/she is heading. Belief is a shade under which the soul can find comfort from the heat. Belief gives the soul its life.

Disbelief on the other hand is blindness, darkness, heat, and death. It blinds the heart and the soul from seeing the truth. It is darkness because it extinguishes the light of belief. It fills the heart with the fire of doubt and leaves the soul in the misery of this fire. It is death because it severs the ties between the individual and the rest of humanity.

The Quran then comforted the Prophet (PBUH), “God makes whom He wills to hear. You cannot make those who are in the graves to hear. You are only a warner.” The Prophet (PBUH) was only a warner. He was a human being. He could not have made those who were dead, physically or spiritually, hear his warning. Only God can make whomsoever He wills hear.

“Verily We have sent you with the truth, as a bearer of glad tidings, and as a warner.” God sent Muhammad (PBUH) with the truth as all the other messengers who were sent before him. God did not neglect any one, each nation received their guidance, “And there was never a people to whom We did not send a warner.” But many messengers were rejected, “And if they reject you, so did their predecessors, to whom came their messengers with clear signs, Scriptures, and the book of enlightenment.” Messengers were sent with clear proofs; either books, miracles, or other signs but people did not heed the warning. God punished those who rejected the messengers before, “Then I seized those who disbelieved, and how intense was My punishment.”

Verses 27 to 38:

27. Have you not seen that God sends down rain from the sky? With it, We then bring out fruits of various colors. And in the mountains are tracts white and red, of various shades of color, and extremely black.
28. Likewise, people, moving creatures, and cattle, are of various colors. Indeed, those who have knowledge among His servants fear God the most. God is Eminent, All-Forgiving.
29. Those who recite the Book of God, establish regular prayer, and spend (in Charity) out of what We have provided for them, secretly and openly, hope for a trade that will never fail.
30. He will pay them their dues in full, and will give them (even) more out of His bounty. He is All-Forgiving, Grateful.
31. Indeed, what We have revealed to you of the Book is the Truth, confirming what was (revealed) before it. God is assuredly Totally-Aware and All-Seeing of His servants.
32. Then We bequeathed the Book on Our servants whom We have chosen; but some of them wronged themselves; some followed the middle course; and some are foremost, by God's leave, in good deeds. That is the great bounty.
33. Gardens of Eden will they enter. Therein will they be adorned with bracelets of gold and pearls; and their garments therein will be of silk.
34. And they will say, "Praise be to God, who has removed from us (all) sorrow. Our Lord is indeed All-Forgiving, Grateful.
35. Who has, out of His bounty, settled us in a home that will last; toil shall not touch us, nor shall fatigue afflict us therein.
36. But those who disbelieve, for them will be the fire of Hell, wherein they will never be finished off and die, nor will its torment be lightened for them. Thus, do We reward the ungrateful.
37. Therein will they scream, "Our Lord, let us out; we shall do good deeds, not like the (deeds) we used to do." Did We not give you a life long enough to heed the admonition? And the warner came to you. So taste the torment. There is no helper for the wrongdoers.
38. Verily, God knows (all) the hidden things of the heavens and the earth. Verily, He has full knowledge of all that is in the hearts. (35: 27 – 38)

"Have you not seen that God sends down rain from the sky? With it We then bring out fruits of various colors. And in the mountains are tracts white and red, of various shades of color, and extremely black." The verse takes us on a tour of the whole earth. It starts with rain coming down from the sky which produces plants and fruits with different colors. Each fruit is unique. Similarly, the mountains exhibit different colors. Then the different colors of people are mentioned, "Likewise, people." Not only people have different colors but also other creatures, "moving creatures and cattle are of various colors." The verse stresses the uniqueness of each creature, a fact that can be only appreciated by those who study such a phenomenon, "Indeed, those who have knowledge among His servants fear God the most. God is Eminent, All-Forgiving." The different colors mentioned in the verse are a sign of the miracle of the creation. They show the unlimited ability of God in creating unique creatures even among the same species. On the other hand, the verse is a testament of the deliberate beauty of the creation of God. It teaches us to look for and appreciate beauty in the creation.

“Those who recite the Book of God, establish regular prayer, and spend (in Charity) out of what We have provided for them, secretly and openly, hope for a trade that will never fail. He will pay them their dues in full, and will give them (even) more out of His bounty. He is All-Forgiving, Grateful.” Reciting the Book means reading and reflecting on the text. This should then be followed by acting according to the text. This meaning is confirmed by citing establishing prayers and spending in the way of God. Those who fulfill these steps have entered into a very profitable deal. They know that what God has is more than they will ever be spending. God will not only repay them their dues but will also multiply their reward many times because, He is All-Forgiving, Grateful. He will forgive their shortcomings and He will reward them as a sign of His gratitude. If God is showing His gratitude for the good performance of His servants, should we not show Him our gratitude for all the bounties that He bestowed on us?

“Indeed what We have revealed to you of the Book is the Truth, confirming what was (revealed) before it. God is assuredly Totally-Aware and All-Seeing of His servants.” The evidence of the truth in this Book is abundantly displayed by its verses. This Book presents the true nature of the universe in a written form. It confirms the previous revelations from God because they all embody the same single truth. This Book has been revealed by the Creator who knows what is good for His creatures.

“Then We bequeathed the Book on Our servants whom We have chosen; but some of them wronged themselves; some followed the middle course; and some are foremost, by God's leave, in good deeds. That is the great bounty.” The Book was given as a legacy to this nation. This is a great honor that God bestowed on this nation; and it is a great responsibility that they should undertake. The nation is divided into three categories.

Those who wronged themselves, they were mentioned first. It may be because they constitute the majority of people. The sins of the people in this group outweigh their good deeds. The second group is the middle group. The sins and good deeds of the people in this group balance each other. The third group consists of those people whose good deeds outweigh their sins. God will bestow His favor on the members of the three groups. They will all end up in paradise, even though in different categories, “Gardens of Eden will they enter. Therein will they be adorned with bracelets of gold and pearls; and their garments therein will be of silk. And they will say, ‘Praise be to God, who has removed from us (all) sorrow. Our Lord is indeed All-Forgiving, Grateful. Who has, out of His bounty, settled us in a home that will last; toil shall not touch us, nor shall fatigue afflict us therein.’” These are the material and spiritual pleasures that God will bestow on the members of the three groups. It involves physical comfort as well as security and contentment. No more sadness or worry will they suffer. These blessings are all out of the God's bounty.

But those who disbelieved will have a different ending, “But those who disbelieve, for them will be the fire of Hell, wherein they will never be finished off and die, nor will its torment be lightened for them. Thus, do We reward the ungrateful.” Their suffering will continue neither death nor mercy will save them from the torment. They will cry for help, “Therein will they scream, ‘Our Lord, let us out; we shall do good deeds, not like the (deeds) we used to do.’” Having realized their guilt, they will express their sorrow and they will ask for a second chance. But it will be too late, “Did We not give you a life long enough to heed the admonition? And the warner came to you. So taste the torment. There is no helper for the wrongdoers.”

This paragraph ends with a clear statement of God’s absolute knowledge, “Verily, God knows (all) the hidden things of the heavens and the earth. Verily, He has full knowledge of all that is in the hearts.”

Verses 39 to 45:

39. It is He who made you successors in the earth. Whoever disbelieves in God, his disbelief will be to his detriment. Their disbelief will only make them more detestable in the sight of their Lord, and will only add to their loss.
40. Say, “Have you seen those partners of yours whom you invoke besides God? Show Me what it is they have created in the earth. Or have they a share in the heavens? Or have We given them a scripture from which they can derive clear evidence?” Indeed, the wrongdoers promise each other nothing but delusions.
41. It is God who upholds the heavens and the earth, lest they fall apart; and if they should fall apart, there is none to hold them together except He. Verily He is the Forbearing, the All-Forgiving.
42. They swore their most binding oath by God that if a warner came to them, they would follow his guidance better than any other people. Yet when a warner came to them, it has only increased their aversion.
43. Behaving arrogantly in the land and plotting of evil, but the plotting of evil will harm only the authors thereof. Now, they should expect nothing but the way the former people were dealt with. You will find no change in God's way (of dealing); and you will not find a turning off in God's way (of dealing).
44. Did they not travel through the land, and see what the end of those before them was, although they were superior to them in strength? Nothing, in the heavens or on earth, frustrates God. He is the Omniscient, the All-Powerful.
45. If God were to punish people according to what they deserve, He would not leave on the back of the (earth) a single living creature. He gives them respite for a stated term whenever their term expires verily God is All-Seeing of His servants. (35: 39 – 45)

“It is He who made you successors in the earth. Whoever disbelieves in God, his disbelief will be to his detriment. Their disbelief will only make them more detestable in the sight of their Lord, and will only add to their loss.” We should learn a lesson from the succession of generations one after the other and the rise and fall of civilizations and states. Nothing will last forever. One day we will go and other people will succeed us. They will remember us as we remember those who have gone before us. We are going through life as if we are travelling on a trip except that at the end of this trip one has to stand to account for what he/she had done during the trip. We need to pay heed to the concept of accountability. The verse also highlights another important principle, the principle of the individual responsibility. No one will carry the burden of sin of another.

The narrative then moves to explore the concept of associating partners with God, “Say, ‘Have you seen those partners of yours whom you invoke besides God? Show Me what it is they have created in the earth. Or have they a share in the heavens? Or have We given them a scripture from which they can derive clear evidence?’ Indeed, the wrongdoers promise each other nothing but delusions.” The question is posed to those who associate partners with God: do you have a proof to support your claim? Can anyone claim that anyone other than God created a part of the earth? Or can anyone claim that he/she was created by anyone other than God? Can these partners claim that they own a part of heaven or earth? Can anyone claim that he received a book from God that supports their claims? They are only deluded.

“It is God who upholds the heavens and the earth, lest they fall apart; and if they should fall apart, there is none to hold them together except He. Verily He is the Forbearing, the All-Forgiving.” It is God who maintains the equilibrium of all these stars, comets, and galaxies that constitute the universe. They rotate in their orbits according to a precise plan. If this balance is disrupted, who else other than God can hold the components of the universe together?

God is Forbearing; He gave people respite to a pre-determined term. He is also All-Forgiving; He will forgive many of the sins people committed.

People pledge to obey God then they break their pledge, “They swore their most binding oath by God that if a warner came to them, they would follow his guidance better than any other people. Yet when a warner came to them, it has only increased their aversion.”

They behaved arrogantly in the land and plotted evil schemes. But evil schemes come around and afflict those who planned them in the first place, “Behaving arrogantly in the land and plotting of evil, but the plotting of evil will hem in only the authors thereof. Now they should expect nothing but the way the former people were dealt with? You will find no change in God's way (of dealing); and you will not find a turning off in God's way (of dealing).”

“Did they not travel through the land, and see what the end of those before them was, although they were superior to them in strength? Nothing, in the heavens or on earth, frustrates God. He is the Omniscient, the All-Powerful.” One should learn lessons from the history of previous civilizations. History shows that life follows a set of laws that do not change. These laws were created by God, the Omniscient, the All-Powerful.

God gives people respite; however, this delay in punishment will not change the fact that everyone will be held accountable, “If God were to punish people according to what they deserve, He would not leave on the back of the (earth) a single living creature. He gives them respite for a stated term whenever their term expires verily God is All-Seeing of His servants.” When the time comes people will be held accountable and they will be either rewarded or punished.

Sura 36: Ya-Seen (Ya-Seen)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 29:

1. Ya-Seen.
2. By the Quran, full of Wisdom,
3. You are indeed one of the messengers,
4. On a straight path.
5. A revelation from the Eminent, the Giver of Mercy,
6. In order that you may warn a people whose fathers were not warned, so they are unaware.
7. The verdict has been passed against the most of them, for they do not believe.
8. We have put yokes round their necks right up to their chins, so that their heads are forced up (and they cannot see).
9. And We have put a barrier in front of them and a barrier behind them, and further, We have covered them up; so that they cannot see.
10. It is the same for them, whether you warn them or you do not warn them - they will not believe.
11. You warn only those who follow the message and fear the Lord of Mercy while they do not see Him. Give them good tidings, of Forgiveness and a generous reward.
12. We shall certainly bring the dead back to life, and We record what they have put forth, and that which they leave behind, and We have recorded everything in a clear Register.
13. And cite for them the parable of the people of the city when the messengers came to them.
14. We (first) sent two messengers to them, they rejected them. Then We strengthened them with a third. They said, "Indeed, we have been sent to you."
15. The (people) said, "You are only mortals like us; and the Lord of Mercy did not send anything, you are only telling lies."
16. They said, "Our Lord knows that we have been sent to you.
17. And our duty is only to deliver the message clearly."
18. The (people) said, "We see an evil omen in you. If you do not desist, we will certainly stone you. And a painful torment indeed will be inflicted on you by us."
19. They said, "Your evil omen is within yourselves. Is it because you are reminded (of the truth)? Surely, you are a people who are given to excesses."
20. Then a man came running, from the farthest part of the city, saying, "My people, follow the messengers."
21. Follow those who do not ask you for a reward, and who are rightly guided.
22. Why should I not worship the One who created me? It is to Him that you will be returned.
23. How could I take beside Him any other gods, whose intercession will not help me and who would not be able to save me if the Lord of Mercy wishes to harm me?
24. I would indeed, if I were to do so, be in clear error.
25. I have believed in your Lord, so hear me."
26. It was said, "Enter Paradise." He said, "If only my people knew;
27. How my Lord has forgiven me and made me of the honored ones?"

28. And We did not send down against his people, after him, any hosts from heaven, nor do We ever send down.
29. It was no more than a single mighty blast, and they perished. (36: 1 – 29)

This Sura was revealed in Mecca. Its verses are short and they have a fast rhythm. The subject matter that the Sura deals with is the same as other Meccan Suras. The main objective of the Sura is to establish the fundamentals of the doctrine. The verses of the Sura discuss the truth of the revelation, the Oneness of God, and the concept of the resurrection.

“Ya-Seen. By the Quran, full of Wisdom.” God makes an oath by the two letters, “Ya-Seen,” and the Quran full of wisdom. Linking the Alphabetical letters and the Quran supports the view that the purpose of starting the Suras with some of the Arabic Alphabetical letters was to challenge the Arabs of Mecca to compose a book similar to the Quran which has been composed using the Alphabetical letters of the language that they spoke and they were familiar with. The verse also describes the Quran as a “wise book,” which implies that it is a living document that has an objective and a will. Although this is a metaphorical expression but it is very close to reality. This Quran has a spirit and it is a living document in the sense that it conducts a discourse with those whose spirits are pure and their hearts are open to receive the truth. It allows these hearts to understand the meaning and secrets of life. These hearts yearn to listen to the Quran, just like the Prophet (PBUH) used to yearn to listen to the Quran. The Quran is a book full of wisdom because it addresses people at the different levels of understanding in way appropriate for each of them. The Quran is a book full of wisdom because it approaches people in a wise way to prepare them to lead a life that follows the divine project.

Then the object of the oath is mentioned, “You are indeed one of the messengers.” God does not need to take an oath to support His word but it is an indication of the importance of the message which is being conveyed. The verse emphasized that Muhammad (PBUH) is a messenger of God. He was sent according to God’s tradition of sending messengers to guide people to God’s way. The nature of this message was also stated, “On a straight path.” The message is straight and does not suffer any crookedness. It is simple and does not involve any complex dialectical discourses. It portrays the truth in a straight forward way. The message is aligned with the universal laws, the laws of existence, and the nature of things and living creatures. Thus, allowing the human being to live in harmony with the universe and the other creations of God. It is a straight message because it leads to God, whoever follows it will not go astray. It is a divine revelation from God, “the Eminent, the Giver of Mercy.” The verse introduces some of God’s attributes; He is Eminent and He has the power to do anything He wills. But He is also the Giver of Mercy who showers His servants with mercy.

The objective of the revelation is to warn people, “In order that you may warn a people whose fathers were not warned, so they are unaware.” Being unaware is the most serious cause for the corruption of the hearts. The heart that is unaware is a heart which cannot perform its intended function. The heart’s functions are to receive, to interact, and to respond. A corrupt heart does not receive the signals of guidance and therefore it does not interact nor respond to them. The Arabs of Mecca at that time were the descendants of Prophet Ishmael (PBUH). Generations passed, since the time of Prophet Ishmael (PBUH), without receiving any guidance. This was the time to make them aware, “The verdict has been passed against the most of them, for they do not believe.” God has already decreed what will be their fate according to His knowledge and His wisdom. An image is painted for these people depicting their mental condition, “We have put yokes round their necks right up to their chins, so that their heads are forced up (and they cannot see). And We have put a barrier in front of them and a barrier behind them, and further, We have covered them up; so that they cannot see.” The verse describes their condition as if they were prevented by force from receiving guidance. Thus, the decree has been issued, “It is the same for them, whether you warn them or you do not warn them - they will not believe.” Their hearts were sealed in enclosures that prevented them from receiving guidance, so they will not listen to any warning. Warning does not create the hearts anew. Warning only awakens a living heart that is ready to receive guidance, “You warn only those who follow the message and fear the Lord of Mercy while they do not see Him. Give them good tidings, of Forgiveness and a generous reward.” The verse, most probably, refers to the Quran as the message. Those who worship God while they have not seen Him are given the glad tidings that God will forgive their sins and will give them a generous reward. These people not only read the Quran, but they also act according to it.

The inevitability of the resurrection after death and the meticulous accountability of all deeds are stressed, “We shall certainly bring the dead back to life, and We record what they have put forth, and that which they leave behind, and We have recorded everything in a clear Register.” The concept of resurrection has been the subject of great many arguments, examples of this will be mentioned later in this Sura. The verse also stresses the fact that all deeds will be recorded meticulously in the Register. The nearest interpretation for the word, “Register,” is that it refers to the limitless, most comprehensive body of knowledge that God has.

The same issues are dealt with in a story-telling style, “And cite for them the parable of the people of the city when the messengers came to them. We (first) sent two messengers to them, they rejected them. Then We strengthened them with a third. They said, ‘Indeed, we have been sent to you.’” The Quran does not give details of who were the people of the city and what city is the verse talking about. This is an indication that this information is irrelevant. Instead, the verse focuses on the lessons to be learnt. Two messengers were sent to a city. The people of the city rejected them. So, God sent a third messenger to support the other two and to emphasize that they were truly messengers of God. The people of the city offered a lame objection, “The (people) said, ‘You are only mortals like us; and the Lord of Mercy did not send anything, you are only telling lies.’” The objection that the messenger is a mortal is naïve. It also reflects the ignorance of the role of a messenger. The people may have expected that the messenger would come to them in the form of a mythical individual whose life is shrouded in mystery. They did not expect a simple mortal with no mystery surrounding him to be a messenger. The life of the messenger does not need to be wrapped in mystery. The only mystery that surrounds the messenger is their aptitude to receive the revelation. This is a characteristic that God created in those whom who chose to be messengers. The message is a divine project which outlines the way of life that people should lead. The messenger is a living example of how to lead a life that follows the divine project. It is therefore, necessary for the messenger to be a human being just like the people to whom the message is brought.

The messengers reiterated the objective of their mission, “They said, ‘Our Lord knows that we have been sent to you. And our duty is only to deliver the message clearly.’” God knows that they were messengers and that should have been sufficient. The task of the messenger is to deliver the message and they have delivered it. The disbelievers were not satisfied with this answer. They continued to badger the messengers, “The (people) said, ‘We see an evil omen in you. If you do not desist, we will certainly stone you. And a painful torment indeed will be inflicted on you by us.’” They did not only reject the message but they threatened and harassed the messengers. But the messengers stood their grounds, “They said, ‘Your evil omen is within yourselves.’” They tried to explain to their people that the concept of an evil omen is a myth. People are responsible for whatever happens to them, whether good or bad. It is a result of their intentions and their deeds. Then they rebuked them for their threat, “Is it because you are reminded (of the truth)? Surely, you are a people who are given to excesses.”

This story presents an example of the response, of those who have sealed hearts, to guidance. The verses continue to give another example of those whose hearts are open and ready to receive guidance, “Then a man came running, from the farthest part of the city, saying, ‘My people, follow the messengers. Follow those who do not ask you for a reward, and who are rightly guided.’” This is the response of a man who has a sound initial natural disposition which led him to recognize the truth and to believe in it. He tried to convince his people that they were rejecting the truth. He pointed out that these messenger were not seeking a material recompense for their work. Their only objective was to convey the message. Then he explained his logic in accepting the guidance that the messengers brought, “Why should I not worship the One who created me? It is to Him that you will be returned. How could I take beside Him any other gods, whose intercession will not help me and who would not be able to save me if the Lord of Mercy wishes to harm me? I would indeed, if I were to do so, be in clear error.” His immediate response was an expression of the natural attachment that links the heart of humankind to his Creator. This natural attachment was instilled in the initial natural disposition which God created in each and every human being. He then explained the logic behind his response. Who is worthy of his worship? Is it God who created him, or is it a deity that could not help him? He then came to the conclusion that if he ignored the reaction of the initial natural disposition or the logical analysis that lead to him to worship God alone, he would be indeed in clear error. He then announced his decision, “I have believed in your Lord, so hear me.”

One can deduce from the narrative that his people killed him, although this was not stated explicitly, but the narrative follows him in the Hereafter where he got his reward, “It was said, ‘Enter Paradise.’ He said, ‘If only my people knew; how my Lord has forgiven me and made me of the honored ones.’” When he found out what was hidden for him in paradise, he wished that his people would see the reward which he received so that they would know the truth. This was the fate of the believer. The fate of the disbelievers was easily decided and it did not take long for them to meet their doom, “And We did not send down against his people, after him, any hosts from heaven, nor do We ever send down. It was no more than a single mighty blast, and they perished.”

Verses 30 to 68:

30. How regretful for My Servants, whenever a messenger comes to them they ridicule him.
31. Did not they see how many generations We destroyed before them? None of whom will ever come back to them.
32. But each one of them all will be brought before Us.
33. A sign for them is the dead earth, We revive it, and produce grain from it, of which you do eat.
34. And We placed therein gardens of the date-palm and grapes, and We have caused springs of water to gush forth therein.
35. That they may eat of the fruits thereof, which their hands did not make. Will they not, then, give thanks?
36. Glory be to Him who created in pairs all things that the earth produces, as well as their own (human) kind and (other) things of which they have no knowledge.
37. And a sign for them is the night; We strip the daylight from it, so they are left in darkness;
38. And the sun runs its course to its stopping point. That is the decree of the Eminent, the Omniscient.
39. And We have determined phases for the moon, until it returns like an old date-stalk.
40. It is not permitted for the sun to catch up with the moon, nor can the night outstrip the day. They float each in an orbit.
41. And a sign for them is that We carried their seed in the loaded Ark.
42. And We have created for them the like of it, what they will ride on.
43. And if We will, We drown them, and there is no help for them, neither can they be saved;
44. Except as a mercy from Us and a provision for a time.
45. When it is said to them, "Beware of what lies before you, and what lies behind you, that you may receive mercy."
46. Never came a sign of the signs of their Lord to them, but they did turn away from it.
47. And when they are told, "Spend from that which God has provided for you." The disbelievers say to the believers, "Shall we feed those whom God, if He willed, would feed? You are deeply misguided."
48. And they say, "When will this promise be fulfilled, if you are truthful?"
49. They will only wait for a single blast. It will seize them while they are yet disputing among themselves.
50. They shall not be able to make a bequest, nor shall they return to their families.
51. And the trumpet is blown and they will hasten to their Lord from the graves.
52. They will say, "Woe to us. Who raised us up from our sleeping-place? This is what the Lord of Mercy promised and the messengers told the truth."
53. It will be no more than a single blast, when they will all be brought up before Us.
54. This day no soul is wronged in the least; nor will you be recompensed except according to what you used to do.
55. Verily the companions of the Garden shall, this day, have joy in all that they do.
56. They and their associates will be in groves of (cool) shade, reclining on couches.
57. They shall have fruits therein, and they shall have whatever they desire.
58. Peace, a word from a Merciful Lord.
59. And step aside today, you guilty ones.

60. “Did I not enjoin on you, children of Adam, that you should not worship Satan; for that he was to you an avowed enemy?”
61. And that you should worship Me. That is the straight path.
62. But he did lead astray a great multitude of you. Did you not use your reason?
63. So, this is Hell of which you were threatened.
64. Burn therein this day because you disbelieved.
65. This day We seal up their mouths, and their hands will speak out to Us and their feet will bear witness as to what they used to earn.
66. And had We willed, We verily could have quenched their eyesight so that they should struggle for the way. Then how could they have seen?
67. And had We willed, We verily could have fixed them in their place, making them powerless to go forward or turn back.
68. If We grant long life to any, We cause him to be reversed in nature. Will they not then use reason? (36: 30 -68)

“How regretful for My Servants, whenever a messenger comes to them they ridicule him.” Regret is a painful emotion which people experience when they face a difficult situation which they cannot deal with. The verse implies that one cannot but feel sorry for those people who ridicule God’s messenger. They were given a chance for salvation but they refused it. They have seen the fate of those who rejected their messengers before, but they did not learn the lesson, “Did not they see how many generations We destroyed before them? None of whom will ever come back to them.” They will be brought to account for their deeds, “But each one of them all will be brought before Us.”

“A sign for them is the dead earth, We revive it, and produce grain from it, of which you do eat. And We placed therein gardens of the date-palm and grapes, and We have caused springs of water to gush forth therein, that they may eat of the fruits thereof, which their hands did not make. Will they not, then, give thanks? Glory be to Him who created in pairs all things that the earth produces, as well as their own (human) kind and (other) things of which they have no knowledge.” Not only they rejected the messenger who came to them with guidance and did not reflect on the fate of previous nations that were destroyed, but they also do not reflect on the signs around them. One of the signs is how the plants are produced. When the barren land is watered, plants are produced. Life is a miracle beyond the power of mortals. Only God is able to bring about miracles. He is the one who created everything in pairs. The plants were created in pairs; human beings were created in pairs; and there are other creations, which we do not know about, that were also created in pairs.

Another of God’s sign is the perpetual motion of the day and the night, “And a sign for them is the night; We strip the daylight from it, so they are left in darkness; and the sun runs its course to its stopping point. That is the decree of the Eminent, the Omniscient.” The scene of the end of the day and the coming of the night is a daily scene, in most parts of the world. People see it every day, but it is an amazing scene that deserves to be reflected upon. The verse describes the scene of the sequence of day and night in a manner which agrees with the astronomical facts. It was thought previously that the sun is fixed in space. But later it was discovered that the sun moves in an orbit. The sun runs until its final destination is reached. The moon has phases that people are able to watch, “And We have determined phases for the moon, until it returns like an old date-stalk.” It is interesting to note the expression, “it returns like an old date-stalk.” The moon takes the shape of a crescent in the beginning and end of the lunar month. But while the crescent looks young and strong in the beginning of the month, it looks “old,” at the end of the month. The system has been created with a meticulous measure, “It is not permitted for the sun to catch up with the moon, nor can the night outstrip the day. They float each in an orbit.” Every planet moves in a well calculated orbit that does not change. These planets will continue to move in their orbits until the time that God has ordained.

“And a sign for them is that We carried their seed in the loaded Ark. And We have created for them the like of it, what they will ride on. And if We will, We drown them, and there is no help for them, neither can they be saved; except as a mercy from Us and a provision for a time.” It is interesting to note that the narrative changed from the scene of planets which float along their orbits to the scene of ships which float on the ocean. This is a miracle that the people see in front of their eyes. The Ark may be a reference to Noah’s (PBUH) Ark which was used to save Adam’s (PBUH) offspring at the time of the flood. God enabled people to understand the laws of floatation and navigation so they used similar ships in their travel. But these ships can easily capsize, if God wills it to capsize.

People see all these signs but they remain heedless, “When it is said to them, ‘Beware of what lies before you, and what lies behind you, that you may receive mercy.’ Never came a sign of the signs of their Lord to them, but they did turn away from it.” The universe is full of signs that deserve to be pondered upon and which when heeded, would alert people to the magnificence of the creation and the Power of the Creator. But the disbelievers turn away from guidance. If they were asked to feed the poor, they respond by saying, “Shall we feed those whom God, if He willed, would feed? You are deeply misguided.” This shows how ignorant they are of God’s laws which govern peoples’ lives. People do not create their provision but it is God who provide for them. It is God’s will that people would earn their provision through work. They farm, they manufacture, they build, and they trade. People differ in their skills and their abilities, so they also differ in their earning ability. In order that these differences do not cause disruption and chaos in society, it is the collective duty of the rich to look after the poor. This is the rationale behind the institution of the poor-dues in Islam.

The disbelievers not only rejected guidance but they challenged the messengers, “And they say, ‘When will this promise be fulfilled, if you are truthful?’” The time for God’s promise to be fulfilled has been fixed. It could not be changed according to peoples’ wish or request. They will get the answer to their question on the Day of Resurrection. The following verse describes the scene but does not address the issue of the time, “They will only wait for a single blast. It will seize them while they are yet disputing among themselves. They shall not be able to make a bequest, nor shall they return to their families.” A blast will overtake them suddenly and unexpectedly. Then the trumpet will be blown and they will be resurrected, “And the trumpet is blown and they will hasten to their Lord from the graves.” They will ask in astonishment, “They will say, ‘Woe to us. Who raised us up from our sleeping-place? This is what the Lord of Mercy promised and the messengers told the truth.’” Then the last blast will sound and they will be standing in rows waiting for the accountability, “It will be no more than a single blast, when they will all be brought up before Us.” On this Day everyone will be treated fairly and each person will receive their recompense, “This day no soul is wronged in the least; nor will you be recompensed except according to what you used to do.”

The narrative does not detail the process of accountability for the believers, but it describes the scene in paradise where the believers are enjoying their rewards, “Verily the companions of the Garden shall this day have joy in all that they do. They and their associates will be in groves of (cool) shade, reclining on couches. They shall have fruits therein, and they shall have whatever they desire. Peace, a word from a Merciful Lord.” They will be busy enjoying the blessings, reclining on couches feeling secure, and they will be honored by the word of peace from their Lord.

Then the process of the accountability through which the disbelievers will go through is described, “And step aside today, you guilty ones.” First, they will be told to step aside away from the believers. Then they will be rebuked for their behavior during their worldly life, “Did I not enjoin on you, children of Adam, that you should not worship Satan; for that he was to you an avowed enemy?” They will be addressed as, “children of Adam,” to remind them that they followed their enemy, Satan, who caused their father Adam (PBUH) to leave paradise before. They should have heeded the warning and worshipped God instead, “And that you should worship Me.” Worshipping God makes the person follow the straight path which leads to salvation, “That is the straight path.” Instead, they followed Satan who lead many generations astray, “But he did lead astray a great multitude of you. Did you not use your reason?” The painful punishment is then announced, “So, this is Hell of which you were threatened. Burn therein this day because you disbelieved.” The description of the scene continues, “This day We seal up their mouths, and their hands will speak out to Us and their feet will bear witness as to what they used to earn.” They will not be able to speak but their body parts will testify against them.

Two alternatives are then described; either one could have been inflicted on them had God willed, “And had We willed, We verily could have quenched their eyesight so that they should struggle for the way. Then how could they have seen? And had We willed, We verily could have fixed them in their place, making them powerless to go forward or turn back.”

Those who reach old age before they die, God will, “cause him to be reversed in nature. Will they not then use reason?”

Verses 69 to 83:

69. And We have not taught him (Muhammad) poetry, nor it is befitting for him. This is only a reminder and a clear Quran.
70. To warn whosoever is alive, and that the word may be fulfilled against the disbelievers.

71. Have they not seen how We have created for them of Our handiwork the cattle, so that they are their owners?
72. And that We have subjected them to their (use)? Some of them they have for riding, some for food?
73. And they have (other) benefits from them, and they get (milk) to drink. Will they not then be grateful?
74. Yet they take (for worship) gods besides God to help them.
75. They do not have the power to help them; even if they called a whole army together.
76. Do not let their talk distress you. Verily We know what they hide as well as what they disclose.
77. Does not humankind consider that We created him from a drop of fluid? Yet, he is an open opponent.
78. And he coined for Us a similitude, and has forgotten the fact of his creation, saying, "Who will revive these bones when they have rotted away?"
79. Say, "He will revive them Who produced them in the first instance, for He has full knowledge of all the creation.
80. He who has made for you fire (to burn) from the green tree, so that with it you kindle (fire).
81. Is not He who created the heavens and the earth able to create the like of them? Yes, and He is the Creator, the Omniscient.
82. His command, when He wills a thing, is only to say to it, "Be," and it is.
83. So glory be to Him in whose hands is the dominion of all things; and to Him you will all be brought back. (36: 69 – 83)

"And We have not taught him (Muhammad) poetry, nor is it befitting for him. This is only a reminder and a clear Quran." This verse addressed those who made the claim that the Prophet (PBUH) was a poet and he composed the Quran as poetry. The chiefs of Quraish knew that this was not true. They knew their language well and they were able to recognize that the Quran was not poetry but this was part of the propaganda war that they launched against Islam and the Prophet (PBUH). This strategy was directed towards ordinary Arabs who could not recognize the difference between Quran and poetry. The verse stated unequivocally that Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) was not taught to be a poet and he did not need to be a poet. He was the Messenger of God. Poetry expresses the emotions, the mood, and feelings of the poet. A prophet on the other hand conveys the message. The message is a divine revelation. It is not affected by the mood or the emotions of the messenger. Poetry is a human endeavor while the message is a divine revelation.

The Messenger's (PBUH) task was, "To warn whosoever is alive, and that the word may be fulfilled against the disbelievers." The Quran makes belief synonymous to life and disbelief synonymous to death. People whose hearts are open to receive guidance are alive while people whose hearts are sealed and are unable to receive guidance are dead.

The following verses approach the issue of the oneness of the Creator by exploring His blessings, "Have they not seen how We have created for them of Our handiwork the cattle, so that they are their owners? And that We have subjected them to their (use)? Some of them they have for riding, some for food? And they have (other) benefits from them, and they get (milk) to drink. Will they not then be grateful? Yet they take (for worship) gods besides God to help them. They do not have the power to help them; even if they called a whole army together. Do not let their talk distress you. Verily We know what they hide as well as what they disclose.” This group of verses starts with the question, “Have they not seen?” The signs of God that are cited in these verses are all visible signs that can be seen by people. People see the cattle that God created and which they can use for their food, their drink, and some of them use it for riding. Should they not be grateful? They even associate partners with God hoping that these partners would support and help them. But even if they enlisted the help of a whole army they would not get the support they were looking for. This group of verses closes with comforting words to the Prophet (PBUH), “Do not let their talk distress you.” God certainly knows all what they hide and all what they disclose.

The following group of verses deals with the concept of resurrection, “Does not humankind consider that We created him from a drop of fluid? Yet, he is an open opponent. And he coined for Us a similitude, and has forgotten the fact of his creation, saying, ‘Who will revive these bones when they have rotted away?’” The verse reminds humankind of his origin: a drop of fluid. It is a very fragile beginning. It is God’s power that made a fully developed human being out of a drop of fluid. Could not He, who created the human being in the first instance, bring him back to life again after death? “Say, ‘He will revive them Who produced them at the first instance, for He has full knowledge of all the creation.’”

An example of the limitless power of God is then given, “He who has made for you fire (to burn) from the green tree, so that with it you kindle (fire).” Who can imagine that a green tree can be used to generate fire? Another of the signs of God’s power, “Is not He who created the heavens and the earth able to create the like of them? Yes, and He is the Creator, the Omniscient.” He needs only say, “Be,” and it is, “His command, when He wills a thing, is only to say to it, “Be,” and it is.” He reigns supreme over the whole universe, “So glory be to Him in whose hands is the dominion of all things; and to Him you will all be brought back.” Glory be to Him; He is the absolute owner of everything.

Sura 37: Al-Saffat (The Ranged in Rows)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

This Sura was revealed in Mecca. Like the Sura before it, its verses are short and they have a fast rhythm. This Sura deals with the same subject matter of Meccan Suras. Its objective is to establish the fundamentals of the doctrine and emphasize the Oneness of God. However, this Sura deals with a specific form of myth that the Arabs before Islam believed in: the existence of a marriage relationship between God and the jinn. This myth claimed that the angels were the daughters of God as the result of this relationship.

The Sura has been divided into three sections. The first section deals with the myth of the relationship between God, jinn, and the angels. The second section gives examples from the history of nations which rejected God's messengers that came to them in the same way the Arabs rejected Prophet Muhammad (PBUH). The third section returns back to discrediting the myth about the jinn and the angels. At the end the verses reassures the sincere and devout servants of God of His support.

Verses 1 to 68:

1. By those who arrange themselves in rows,
2. And those who drive away with reproof,
3. And those who recite the reminder.
4. Verily, your God is One.
5. Lord of the heavens and of the earth and all that is between them, and Lord of every sunrise.
6. We have indeed adorned the lowest heaven with the ornament of the stars;
7. And guarded it against every rebellious devil.
8. They cannot eavesdrop on the Higher Assembly- they are pelted from every side.
9. Repelled, for they are under a perpetual torment;
10. Except for him who snatches a fragment, and there pursues him a piercing flame.
11. Then ask them (Muhammad), "Are they more difficult to create, or those whom we have created?" We created them of sticky clay.
12. Truly you wonder, while they ridicule,
13. And when they are reminded, they pay no heed,
14. And when they see a sign, they ridicule.
15. And they say, "This is nothing but evident sorcery.
16. When we die, and become dust and bones, shall we be raised up (again);
17. And our forefathers?"
18. Say, "Yes, and you will be humiliated."
19. It will be a single blast and they will begin to see.
20. They will say, "Woe to us! This is the Day of Judgment."
21. This is the Day of Judgment, which you used to deny.
22. Assemble the wrongdoers, together with the like of them, and what they used to worship,
23. Besides God, and lead them to the path of Hell.
24. But stop them, for they must be questioned.

25. What is the matter with you that you do not help each other?
26. In fact, on that day they will be submissive.
27. And they will turn to one another, and question one another.
28. They will say, "It was you who used to come to us from the right."
29. They say, "You yourselves were not believers.
30. We had no power over you, but you were transgressing people;
31. Now the Word of our Lord has been fulfilled against us. We are about to taste (the torment).
32. We led you astray, for truly we were ourselves astray."
33. This day they will (both) share in the torment.
34. That is how We deal with the guilty.
35. For when it was said to them, "There is no deity except God," they were arrogant;
36. And said, "Shall we forsake our gods for a mad poet?"
37. He has come with the Truth, and he confirmed (the Message of) the messengers (before him).
38. You shall indeed taste the painful torment.
39. And you will only be repaid according to what you have done.
40. But the sincere (and devoted) servants of God,
41. For them there is a known provision.
42. Fruits, and they will be honored,
43. In the Gardens of bliss,
44. On couches facing one another;
45. A cup from a gushing spring will be brought round for them,
46. White, delicious to the drinkers,
47. Causing no headache or intoxication.
48. And with them are those of modest gaze, with lovely eyes,
49. As if they were eggs carefully protected.
50. Then they will turn to one another and question one another.
51. One of them will say, "I had an intimate companion (on the earth),
52. Who used to say, 'Are you one of those who believe?
53. Can we, when we are dead and have become mere dust and bones - can we (then) verily be brought to account?'"
54. He will say, "Will you have a look?"
55. He looked down and saw him in the depth of Hell.
56. He said, "By God, you almost ruined me.
57. Had it not been for the Blessing of my Lord, I would certainly have been among those brought (to Hell).
58. Are we then not to die?
59. Except our former death, and that we shall not be tormented?
60. Verily this is the supreme triumph.
61. For the like of this let all strive, who wish to strive."
62. Is that a better accommodation or the tree of Zaqqum?
63. We have truly made it (as) a trial for the wrongdoers.
64. It is a tree that springs out of the bottom of Hell.
65. The shoots of its fruit-stalks are like the heads of devils.
66. Truly they will eat thereof and fill their bellies therewith.

67. Then on top of that they will have a drink of boiling water.
 68. Then they will return to Hell. (37: 1 - 68)

“By those who arrange themselves in rows, and those who drive away with reproof, and those who recite the reminder. Verily, your God is One. Lord of the heavens and of the earth and all that is between them, and Lord of every sunrise.” Those who arrange themselves in rows, who drive away with reproof, and who recite the reminders are three groups of angels. They were referred to using the tasks that they were given. The first task may be a reference to the angels who arrange themselves in rows in prayers or waiting for God’s commands to be issued. The second task may be a reference to the angels who rebuke and treat harshly the sinners at their time of death. The third task may be a reference to the angels who recite the Quran and sing God’s praise. An oath is being made using these angels to emphasize the concept of the Oneness of God. God then introduces Himself to His servants, “Lord of the heavens and of the earth and all that is between them, and Lord of every sunrise.” The heavens and the earth and everything in between are seen by the people. People should reflect on the signs that they see in the heavens and the earth, signs which testify to the existence of God. The expression, “Lord of every sunrise,” expresses a cosmic reality. As the earth rotates around the sun, sunrise changes every day. Each location on earth has its own sunrise. So as we live on earth we see many sunrises. The reflection on the signs of God in the universe fills the heart with awe of God.

“We have indeed adorned the lowest heaven with the ornament of the stars;” The verses refer to the jinn and to the miracle of the creation of heaven. One can see the ornaments of the stars. It indicates that the beauty of the creation was an intended plan of God. God wanted his creation to be beautiful, well proportioned, and meticulously arranged. The beauty that God embedded in His creation is part of the nature of the creation. God wanted His creation to look beautiful and to function perfectly. Some of the stars guard the heavens from the transgression of the jinn, “and guarded it against every rebellious devil. They cannot eavesdrop on the Higher Assembly- they are pelted from every side. Repelled, for they are under a perpetual torment; except for him who snatches a fragment, and there pursues him a piercing flame.” We do not know how these jinn eavesdrop, how they snatch the fragments, nor do we know how they are pelted. This knowledge is beyond our human ability. The important thing is that these jinn are prevented from getting into heaven. Had they had a relationship with God, they would not have been treated this way.

The Prophet (PBUH) was asked to pose a question to the disbelievers, “Then ask them (Muhammad), ‘Are they more difficult to create, or those whom we have created?’” If they believe that God created the heavens, the earth, the angels, and the jinn would it be difficult for God to create people? This was a rhetorical question. The answer follows directly, “We created them of sticky clay.” It is certainly not difficult to create them. The Prophet (PBUH) was wondering why they rejected the message. The answer was then given, “Truly you wonder, while they ridicule, and when they are reminded, they pay no heed, and when they see a sign, they ridicule. And they say, ‘This is nothing but evident sorcery. When we die, and become dust and bones, shall we be raised up (again); and our forefathers?’” They did not reflect on the signs of God’s power. They saw the signs in the universe and they saw the signs within themselves but they were heedless of their meanings. They simply rejected the concept of resurrection. The verse then confronted them with a blunt message, “Say, ‘Yes, and you will be humiliated.’” It will be only one blast, “It will be a single blast and they will begin to see. They will say, ‘Woe to us! This is the Day of Judgment.’” They will cry in anguish asking, “is this the Day of Judgment?” The answer will come with rebuke, yes indeed, “This is the Day of Judgment, which you used to deny.”

The narrative then changes from the third person to the first person addressing those who denied the Day of Judgment before, “Assemble the wrongdoers, together with the like of them, and what they used to worship, besides God, and lead them to the path of Hell.” Assemble the wrongdoers and those who were like them, and guide them to the path of Hell. They refused to be guided to the straight path in their life, so in the Hereafter they will have to settle with being guided to the path of Hell. They will be questioned, “But stop them, for they must be questioned.” The first question is, “What is the matter with you that you do not help each other?” Why are you not helping each other? When no answer is given, their situation will be described, “In fact, on that day they will be submissive.”

The narrative then continues to describe what the disbelievers will do, “And they will turn to one another, and question one another. They will say, ‘It was you who used to come to us from the right.’” The followers will accuse their leaders of misleading them by coming from the right. This is a metaphorical expression. Coming from the right means coming with power. The followers will say to the leaders you forced us to follow you. Then the leaders will respond, “They say, ‘You yourselves were not believers. We had no power over you, but you were transgressing people;’ You were not really believers in the first place, and moreover we did not have any power over you. You were misguided because you were transgressors. No, the Lord’s decree has been passed and we like you will get the torment that we deserve; “Now the Word of our Lord has been fulfilled against us. We are about to taste (the torment). We led you astray, for truly we were ourselves astray.”

The verdict will be issued, “This day they will (both) share in the torment. That is how We deal with the guilty.” The reason for the punishment will be given, “For when it was said to them, ‘There is no deity except God,’ they were scornful; and said, ‘Shall we forsake our gods for a mad poet?’” The answer to their claim will then be given, “He has come with the Truth, and he confirmed (the Message of) the messengers (before him). You shall indeed taste the painful torment. And you will only be repaid according to what you have done.”

But the sincere and devout servants of God will be saved from this punishment, “But the sincere (and devoted) servants of God, for them there is a known provision, fruits. And they will be honored, in the Gardens of delight, on couches facing one another; a cup from a gushing spring will be brought round for them, white, delicious to the drinkers, causing no headache or intoxication.” They will be in bliss. They will be given physical as well as spiritual pleasures. They were chosen by God and this is the highest rank of honor. They will be also honored at the High Assembly. They will be reclining on couches enjoying fruits and drinks with their spouse, “And with them are those of modest gaze, with lovely eyes, as if they were eggs carefully protected.”

They will reminisce about their previous life. One of them will remember a friend that he had in his lifetime, “Then they will turn to one another and question one another. One of them will say, ‘I had an intimate companion (on the earth), who used to say, ‘Are you one of those who believe? Can we, when we are dead and have become mere dust and bones - can we (then) verily be brought to account?’” His friend did not believe in the Day of Judgment. As he was recalling the conversation with his disbelieving friend, he thought to check upon him and find out what was his fate, “He will say, ‘Will you have a look?’ He looked down and saw him in the depth of Hell.” He looked and saw his disbelieving friend in the bottom of Hellfire. He then addressed him, “He said, ‘By God, you almost ruined me. Had it not been for the Blessing of my Lord, I would certainly have been among those brought (to Hell).’” The scene of his disbelieving friend in Hell reminds him of the great blessings of God that he is enjoying. He wanted to reassure himself of these blessings; he will ask “Are we then not to die except our former death, and that we shall not be tormented? Verily this is the supreme triumph.” Then a statement to awaken the hearts and to exhort people to strive for this achievement is made, “For the like of this let all strive, who wish to strive.”

Compare this to the fate that awaits the other group who rejected guidance, “Is that a better accommodation or the tree of Zaqqum? We have truly made it (as) a trial for the wrongdoers. It is a tree that springs out of the bottom of Hell. The shoots of its fruit-stalks are like the heads of devils.” Is the permanent bliss better or is it the tree of Zaqqum? It is a tree that springs from the bottom of Hell. Its fruits are like the heads of devils. People do not know what a devil’s head look like, but it must look awful. It must be horrible to look at so how about eating it? This tree was made a test to the disbelievers. When Abu Jahl bin Hisham heard about it, he ridiculed the idea of talking about a tree that grows inside fire. But it is not difficult to imagine a tree having the same characteristics of fire to be growing in Hell. The disbelievers will eat from it, “Truly they will eat thereof and fill their bellies therewith.” When their bellies are full and they ask for water, they will be given boiling water to quench their thirst, “Then on top of that they will have a drink of boiling water.” Then they will be returned back to their permanent dwellings in Hell, “Then they will return to Hell.”

Verses 69 to 148:

69. They indeed found their fathers astray.
70. They rushed along in their footsteps.
71. And verily most of the people of old went astray before them,
72. Even though We sent messengers to warn them.
73. Then see what was the end of those who were warned (but heeded not),
74. Except the sincere (and devoted) servants of God.
75. And Noah called upon Us, and We are the best of responders.
76. And We delivered him and his people from the great distress.
77. And We made his offspring the survivors.
78. And We left (this blessing) for him among the later generations.
79. Peace be upon Noah among all people.
80. Thus indeed do We reward the doers of good.

81. He was one of Our believing servants.
82. Then We drowned the others.
83. Verily among those who followed his way was Abraham.
84. When he came to his Lord with a sound heart.
85. When he said to his father and his people, "What is it that you worship?
86. Is it false gods beside God that you desire?
87. Then what is your idea about the Lord of the worlds?"
88. Then he looked up to the stars.
89. And he said, "I am indeed sick,"
90. So they turned away from him, and departed.
91. Then he turned to their gods and said, "Will you not eat (of the offerings before you)?
92. What is the matter with you that you don't speak?"
93. Then he turned towards them, striking with his right hand.
94. And (his people) came toward him in haste.
95. He said, "Do you worship that which you carved yourselves?
96. When God created you and what you do?"
97. They said, "Build for him a furnace, and throw him into the blazing fire."
98. They wanted to harm him, but We humiliated them.
99. He said, "I will go to my Lord. He will surely guide me.
100. My Lord, grant me a righteous (son)."
101. So We gave him the good news of a forbearing boy.
102. And when (his son) was old enough to share in his father's endeavors, (Abraham) said, "My dear son, I have seen in a dream that I must sacrifice you. What do you think?" He said, "My father, do that which you are commanded. God willing, you shall find me steadfast."
103. Then, when they both submitted (to God), and he had flung him down upon his face,
104. We called out to him, "Abraham;"
105. You have already fulfilled the vision" - thus indeed do We reward the doers of good.
106. That was verily a clear test.
107. And We ransomed him with a momentous sacrifice.
108. And We left (this blessing) for him among generations (to come) in later times.
109. Peace be on Abraham.

110. Thus indeed We reward the doers of good.
111. He was one of our believing servants.
112. And We gave him the good news of Isaac - a prophet - one of the righteous.
113. We blessed him and Isaac. And of their seed some are righteous and some clearly wronged themselves.
114. And certainly We conferred a favor on Moses and Aaron.
115. And We saved them and their people from the great distress;
116. And We supported them, so they became the victors.
117. And We gave them the clear Scripture.
118. And We guided them to the straight path.
119. And We left (this blessing) for them among generations (to come) in later times.
120. Peace be on Moses and Aaron.
121. Thus indeed We reward the doers of good.
122. They were two of Our believing servants.
123. Elias was most surely of the messengers.
124. When he said to his people, "Will you not be conscious of God?
125. Do you call upon Ba'l and forsake the Best of Creators?
126. God, your Lord and the Lord of your ancestors?"
127. But they rejected him, and they will certainly be brought forward.
128. Except the sincere and devoted servants of God.
129. And We left (this blessing) for him among generations (to come) in later times.
130. Peace be on Elias.

131. Thus indeed We reward the doers of good.
132. He was one of Our believing servants.
133. And Lut was most surely of the messengers.
134. We delivered him and his followers,
135. All Except an old woman among those who stayed behind;
136. Then We destroyed the others.
137. And most surely you pass by them in the morning,
138. And at night; Will you not then use reason?
139. Jonah was most surely of the messengers.
140. When he ran away to a ship completely laden;
141. And then he drew lots and was of those who were cast off.
142. The big fish swallowed him, and he had done acts worthy of blame.
143. And had he not been one of those who glorify (God)
144. He would certainly have remained inside the fish till the Day of Resurrection.
145. Then We cast him on a barren shore while he was sick;
146. And We caused a tree of gourd to grow above him;
147. And We sent him to a hundred thousand people or more.
148. And they believed, therefore We let them enjoy (life) for a while. (37: 69 – 148)

“They indeed found their fathers astray. They rushed along in their footsteps.” They hastened to follow in the footsteps of their forefathers, even though they knew that their forefathers went astray. They were warned but failed to heed the warning, “And verily most of the people of old went astray before them, even though We sent messengers to warn them. Then see what was the end of those who were warned (but heeded not), except the sincere (and devoted) servants of God.” So, see what was the fate of those who did not heed the warning? The consequences for those heedless people will be described in the following stories, which start with the story of Prophet Noah (PBUH).

“And Noah called upon Us, and We are the best of responders. And We delivered him and his people from the great distress; and We made his offspring the survivors. And We left (this blessing) for him among the later generations. Peace be upon Noah among all people. Thus indeed do we reward the doers of good. He was one of our believing servants. Then We drowned the others.” The verses describe how Noah (PBUH) called upon his Lord; and how his call was completely and comprehensively answered. God saved Noah (PBUH) and those who believed with him and He helped Noah’s (PBUH) progeny to establish a new life on earth. His legacy was kept for generations after he passed away as a reward for his good deeds. The sign of his good deeds and the reason for the good reward was his faith in God. Noah (PBUH) was, “one of our believing servants.” The disbelievers were punished, “Then We drowned the others.”

The story of Prophet Abraham (PBUH) followed the story of Prophet Noah (PBUH). First, the link between Abraham (PBUH) and Noah (PBUH) was established, “Verily among those who followed his way was Abraham.” Many years separated the two but they shared the same message. Abraham’s (PBUH) most important characteristic is then highlighted, “When he came to his Lord with a sound heart;” Abraham (PBUH) came to God with absolute submission and devotion. Abraham’s (PBUH) pure heart was shocked and dismayed at the behavior of his people, “When he said to his father and his people, ‘What is it that you worship?’ He felt angry when he saw them worshipping idols and expressed his anger in a question, “Is it false gods beside God that you desire?” How can anyone worship false gods instead of the Lord of the Worlds, “Then what is your idea about the Lord of the worlds?” How would you worship other gods beside God? What do you think will happen to you when you meet God?

The narrative moves forward to another scene, “Then he looked up to the stars. And he said, ‘I am indeed sick.’ So they turned away from him, and departed.” It was narrated that this happened on the day of one of their festivals. They used to go out for a picnic on that day. Prophet Abraham (PBUH) wanted to teach them a lesson so he declined to go out with them. When they left he went to the temple, “Then he turned to their gods and said, ‘Will you not eat (of the offerings before you)? What is the matter with you that you don’t speak?’” He saw that there was food in front of the idols, so he asked them why do not they eat. Naturally, no answer was forthcoming from the idols. So he continued in his sarcasm asking them why they do not speak. When no one spoke, “he turned towards them, striking with his right hand.” When his people came back from their picnic and saw what happened to their gods, they went to question Abraham (PBUH), “And (his people) came toward him in haste.” His answer to their questions was a simple and logical question, “He said, ‘Do you worship that which you carved yourselves? When God created you and what you do?’” How can you worship what you carve yourselves? The true God, who is the only One worthy of worship is their maker. They were so incensed, “They said, ‘Build for him a furnace, and throw him into the blazing fire.’” This was the only logic they knew: do not argue with him but burn him and silence him forever. But God supported him, “They wanted to harm him, but We humiliated them.” They failed because God protected His sincere servant.

The narrative now turns to Abraham (PBUH), “He said, ‘I will go to my Lord. He will surely guide me. My Lord, grant me a righteous (son).’” Abraham (PBUH) migrated towards God. This was a spiritual migration more than a geographical migration. Abraham (PBUH) forsake everything in his life, his father, his people, and his home and submitted himself fully to God. He was certain that God will guide him. He did not have children so, he asked God to give him a child. God responded favorably to his prayer, “So We gave him the good news of a forbearing boy.” This was his son, Ishmael (PBUH). One can imagine Abraham’s (PBUH) happiness when he was given the glad tidings telling him that he will be a father to a, “forbearing boy.”

Then we come to the unique situation that Abraham (PBUH) found himself in, “And when (his son) was old enough to share in his father’s endeavors, (Abraham) said, ‘My dear son, I have seen in a dream that I must sacrifice you. What do you think?’ He said, ‘My father, do that which you are commanded. God willing, you shall find me steadfast.’” How wonderful was the faith, the obedience, and the submission? Look at Abraham (PBUH), an old man who deserted his family and kin and migrated away from his homeland, yearning for a child and finally God gave him a forbearing boy. He was looking forward for the child to grow up and be his companion in life. When the child grew up and Abraham (PBUH) was about to start enjoying his son’s company, he saw a dream in which he was sacrificing his son. He knew that the dream was a sign from God for him to sacrifice his son. What could he do? It was not a clear command from God, neither was it a revelation from God, it was only a sign. But for Abraham (PBUH) that was enough. He did not hesitate. He submitted to God’s sign without even asking why? He was not annoyed nor was he afraid. He accepted Gods’ command willingly. He approached his son quietly telling him about the dream he saw. His words reflected his feeling of security in accepting God’s command. He wanted his son to think about this grave situation. He did not cheat nor force his son into accepting the sacrifice. He wanted his son to be his partner in the decision and in the reward that God will give to his obedient servants.

The son’s reaction was not much different from his father’s. The son not only accepted God’s command willingly submitting to the will of God but also showed his confidence in God’s wisdom. Like his father he felt secure and content with God’s decree. The Arabic word that has been translated here as, “My father,” is an endearing way of address. One can see that Ishmael’s response did not even reflect a shred of resentment towards his father. His words did not reflect any feeling of heroism, only an expression of the absolute trust in the will of God, “God willing, you shall find me steadfast.”

“Then, when they both submitted (to God), and he had flung him down upon his face,” They both submitted to the will of God and they proceeded to do what they were told to do. Their actions proved their faithfulness, the obedience and their submission. God Called, “We called out to him, ‘Abraham; You have already fulfilled the vision’ - thus indeed do We reward the doers of good. That was verily a clear test. And We ransomed him with a momentous sacrifice.” They fulfilled the command. Abraham (PBUH) has given the highest example of submission to God, even if it meant to sacrifice his son. God responded and ransomed Ishmael (PBUH) with a momentous sacrifice. God rewarded them for their submission. They were chosen for a very difficult test. God prepared their hearts and gave them the perseverance to accept and fulfill the command. So, they deserved the great reward.

Muslims celebrate these events every year. They sacrifice an animal to commemorate the story of Abraham (PBUH) and to learn the meaning of submission willingly to God. God does not want people to suffer. But people being tested to examine their willingness to submit to God's decrees. When the people show their truthfulness in submitting to God, He in turn will reward them as He rewarded their patriarch before. Abraham's (PBUH) legacy will be remembered till the end of time, "And We left (this blessing) for him among generations (to come) in later times." His lord will bestow His peace on him, "Peace be on Abraham." That is how God rewards the doers of good and the believing servants, "Thus indeed We reward the doers of good. He was one of our believing servants." God then gave another of His blessings, "And We gave him the good news of Isaac - a prophet - one of the righteous. We blessed him and Isaac. And of their seed some are righteous and some clearly wronged themselves." God did not only give him another son but also blessed that son and made him a prophet. Some of their progeny will be righteous and others will wrong themselves.

Moses (PBUH) and Aaron (PBUH) were from their righteous progeny, "And certainly We conferred a favor on Moses and Aaron; and We saved them and their people from the great distress; and We supported them, so they became the victors. And We gave them the clear Scripture. And We guided them to the straight path. And We left (this blessing) for them among generations (to come) in later times. Peace be on Moses and Aaron. Thus indeed We reward the doers of good. They were two of Our believing servants." This is a very brief summary of the story of Moses (PBUH) and Aaron (PBUH). It mentions that they were chosen by God. They were saved together with their people from the, "great distress." They were given victory over Pharaoh and his people, and they were given, "the clear Scripture." They were guided to the straight path and their memory will remain forever. They were greeted with the greeting of peace, a reward for the doers of good.

Another brief glimpse into the story of Prophet Elias (PBUH) is given, "Elias was most surely of the messengers. When he said to his people, 'Will you not be conscious of God? Do you call upon Ba'l and forsake the Best of Creators, God, your Lord and the Lord of your ancestors?' But they rejected him and they will certainly be brought forward; except the sincere and devoted servants of God. And We left (this blessing) for him among generations (to come) in later times. Peace be on Elias. Thus indeed We reward the doers of good. He was one of Our believing servants." Elias (PBUH) called his people to believe in the One God. He expressed his dismay that they left the worship of the, "Best Creator," to worship an idol. But they rejected him and they will be brought to receive their punishment. But the believers will be saved.

A brief glimpse into the story of Prophet Lut (PBUH) follows, "And Lut was most surely of the messengers. We delivered him and his followers, all except an old woman among those who stayed behind; then We destroyed the others. And most surely you pass by them in the morning, and at night; will you not then use reason?" The verses describe how Lut (PBUH) was chosen as a messenger, how he was saved, and how the disbelievers were destroyed. It also reminds the Arabs with the close by remains of his city, the remains that they pass by almost every day.

The last of these brief stories is the story of Prophet Jonah (PBUH), "Jonah was most surely of the messengers. When he ran away to a ship completely laden, and then he drew lots and was of those who were cast off. The big fish swallowed him, and he had done acts worthy of blame. And had he not been one of those who glorify (God) he would certainly have remained inside the fish till the Day of Resurrection. Then We cast him on a barren shore while he was sick; And We caused a tree of gourd to grow above him; And We sent him to a hundred thousand people or more. And they believed, therefore We let them enjoy (life) for a while.” The Quran did not mention where the people of Jonah (PBUH) used to live, but it is understood that they lived near the sea. The narrations mentioned that Prophet Jonah (PBUH) was angry at his people who rejected him. He warned them that they will be punished. In his anger, he left the city and went to the sea shore where he boarded a ship. The ship was tossed around by the waves. The people onboard thought that they have among them a person who committed a sin. They believed that the only way to save the ship was to find that person and threw him to the sea. They drew lots and the lots indicated that Jonah (PBUH) was the one to be thrown overboard. He was swallowed by the whale. He realized his sin, repented, and glorified God. God responded favorably to his prayer and he was saved. He was sent again to his people who became believers after he had left them.

Verses 149 to 182:

149. Now ask them (Muhammad), “Are the daughters for your Lord, while for them the sons?”
150. Or did We create the angels, females, while they were witnesses?
151. It is out of their falsehood that they say,
152. “God has begotten children.” Indeed, they are liars.
153. Has He chosen daughters in preference to sons?
154. What is the matter with you? How do you judge?
155. Will you not then reflect?
156. Or do you have a clear authority?
157. Then bring your book (of authority) if you are truthful.
158. And they have invented a relationship between Him and the jinn, whereas the jinn know well that they will be brought before (Him).
159. Glory be to God. (He is) far above the things they ascribe (to Him).
160. Except for the sincere and devoted servants of God.
161. Surely you and what you worship,
162. Cannot tempt (anyone) away from Him,
163. Except those who will burn in Hell.
164. And there is none of us but has an assigned place;
165. And we are verily arranged in rows;
166. And we are the glorifiers (of God).
167. And there were those who said,
168. “If only we had a scripture like previous people,
169. We would have certainly been sincere servants of God.”
170. Yet (now that it is come) they disbelieve therein; but they will come to know.
171. Our Word has been given to our servants, the messengers.
172. That they would certainly be victorious;

173. And that Our troops will certainly be victors.
 174. So turn you away from them for a little while,
 175. And watch them, for they will (soon) see.
 176. Do they wish to hasten Our torment?
 177. But when it descends into the open space before them, evil will be the morning for those who were warned.
 178. So turn you away from them for a little while,
 179. And watch, for they will (soon) see.
 180. Glory be to your Lord, the Lord of Eminence, far above what they describe;
 181. And peace on the messengers.
 182. And praise be to God, Lord of the Worlds. (37: 149 -182)

“Now ask them (Muhammad), ‘Are the daughters for your Lord, while for them the sons? Or did We create the angels, females, while they were witnesses?’ It is out of their falsehood that they say, ‘God has begotten children.’ Indeed, they are liars. Has He chosen daughters in preference to sons? What is the matter with you? How do you judge? Will you not then reflect?” The verses refute the myth that the Arabs used to believe in. The Arabs hated having daughters; they considered having daughters as a trial. They practiced infanticide against female babies. But they had the audacity to call the angels the daughters of God. So, Muhammad (PBUH) ask them how can they keep the sons for themselves and attribute the daughters to God? Or did God do that Himself? Then ask them about the origin of this myth. Did they witness the creation of the angels to know that they were created females? It is all a lie and they have no proof, otherwise they should bring that proof if they were truthful, “Or do you have a clear authority? Then bring your book (of authority) if you are truthful.”

What about the other myth? They claimed that the angels were the daughters of God born by the jinn. The jinn knew that they were created by God as the rest of His creation and on the Day of Judgment they will be held accountable for their deeds, “And they have invented a relationship between Him and the jinn, whereas the jinn know well that they will be brought before (Him).” God is far above what they ascribe to Him, “Glory be to God. (He is) far above the things they ascribe (to Him).” The believing jinn will escape the torment, “Except for the sincere and devoted servants of God.”

The Quran turns to the disbelieving Arabs, “Surely you and what you worship, cannot tempt (anyone) away from Him, except those who will burn in Hell.” The disbelievers along with what they worship have no power to tempt the believers. They will only tempt those who are already assigned to Hellfire.

The angels will then speak, “And there is none of us but has an assigned place; and we are verily arranged in rows; and we are the glorifiers (of God).” They know their places which were assigned to them and they perform the tasks which were prescribed for them.

The narrative turns back to the disbelievers reminding them of what they used to say. They envied the people of the Scripture. They said that had they been given a scripture like the people before them they would have certainly believed, “And there were those who said, ‘If only we had a scripture like previous people, We would have certainly been sincere servants of God.’” But when they received guidance they rejected it, “Yet (now that it is come) they disbelieve therein; but they will come to know.” So let them wait for the consequence of rejecting guidance.

“Our Word has been given to our servants, the messengers: that they would certainly be helped; and that Our troops will certainly be victors.” God’s promise was fulfilled. His religion was established and His Message crushed the falsehood. All attempts to erase the divine message failed. The messengers of God were certainly the victors. This promise is one of the norms that God created. He will support his devoted servants who call to His straight path. Victory may be delayed; it may take a different form than what people wanted but it will come in the form that God wants it to be.

“So turn you away from them for a little while, and watch them, for they will (soon) see. Do they wish to hasten Our torment? But when it descends into the open space before them, evil will be the morning for those who were warned. So turn you away from them for a little while, and watch, for they will (soon) see.” The Prophet (PBUH) was commanded to ignore them. The day will come when the promise of God will be fulfilled. Do they really wish to hasten the punishment? When it comes it will be their doom.

The Sura ends with glorifying God, greeting the messengers and singing the praise of God, “Glory be to your Lord, the Lord of Eminence, far above what they describe. And peace on the messengers; and praise be to God, Lord of the Worlds.”

Sura 38: Sad (The Letter Sad)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

This Sura was revealed in Mecca. It deals with the issues of the belief in the Oneness of God, the revelation that Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) received, and the accountability of people. The Sura has been divided into four parts. The first part introduces the three issues which the Sura deals with. The second part deals with the stories of Prophets David, Solomon, and Job (pbuh). The third part describes scenes of the Day of Judgment. Finally, the fourth part concludes the Sura with a statement made by Prophet Muhammad (PBUH).

Verses 1 to 16:

1. Sad. By the renowned Qur'an,
2. But those who disbelieve are in false pride and schism.
3. How many generations before them did We destroy? In the end they cried out when there was no longer time for escape.
4. So they wonder that a warner has come to them from among themselves; and the disbelievers say, "This is a lying magician.
5. Has he made all the gods One God? Indeed, this is an astounding thing.
6. And the notables among them went forth saying, "Go and persevere in worshiping your gods; this is most surely something planned.
7. We never heard (the like) of this in the former faith; this is nothing but a forgery.
8. Was the reminder sent down to him, out of all of us?" They are indeed in doubt as to My reminder. In fact, they have not yet tasted My torment.
9. Or do they possess the treasures of the mercy of your Lord, the Eminent, the Bestower?
10. Or do they possess the dominion of the heavens and the earth and all that is between them? Then let them ascend by ropes.
11. A defeated host are (all) the factions that are there.
12. The people of Noah before them rejected (their messenger) and (so did the tribe of) 'Ad, and Pharaoh the owner of the stakes.
13. And (the tribe of) Thamud, and the people of Lut, and the dwellers of the thicket; these were the parties.
14. Not one (of them) but rejected the messengers, therefore My punishment was justified.
15. These will only wait for a single cry, which will not be delayed.
16. They say, "Our Lord, hasten on for us our fate before the Day of Reckoning." (38: 1 – 16)

"Sad. By the renowned Qur'an." The first two verses are an oath by the letter Sad and the Quran. God created the letter Sad as one of the letters of the Alphabets. He created the throat that produces the letter. People knew the Alphabet but they were unable to use it to compose a book like the Quran. The Quran is a reminder but it is also a book that states laws, tells stories, and guides to moral and ethical behavior. But the reminder to reach for God is the corner stone of the Quran. As a matter of fact the laws, the stories, and the ethical behavior are parts of the reminder that reminds people to reach for God.

“But those who disbelieve are in false pride and schism.” It seems on the face of it that the narrative has been interrupted by jumping from the oath to a statement describing the reaction of the disbelievers. However, a consideration in depth of the verses reveals that the two are closely connected. God makes an oath by a great thing: the Quran, yet the disbelievers are completely oblivious to the majesty of the Quran. They rejected the Quran so, they will meet the same fate as those who rejected faith before, “How many generations before them did We destroy? In the end they cried out when there was no longer time for escape.”

“So they wonder that a warner has come to them from among themselves; and the disbelievers say, ‘This is a lying magician. Has he made all the gods One God? Indeed, this is an astounding thing.’” The false pride made them challenge the fact that Muhammad (PBUH) was chosen to receive the revelation. They disagreed with the idea of replacing the worship of many deities with the worship of One God. Why should they wonder that God would choose a mortal like them as His messenger? They were unable to comprehend the nature of the message and the messengers. God sent messengers to lead the life that other mortals like him should lead. A messenger should be able to feel like they feel, to appreciate their concerns, and to understand their culture and traditions. The chiefs of Quraish tried to explain the phenomenon of the revelation as magic so that ordinary people do not fall for it, “This is a lying magician.” They expressed their astonishment that the new religion would replace the worship of many idols with the worship of One God. In their resistance to the guidance that Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) brought they exhorted their people to hold tight to their old beliefs, “And the notables among them went forth saying, ‘Go and persevere in worshiping your gods; this is most surely this is something planned.’” It is the same tactics that tyrant leaders use to prevent the masses from getting involved in the discussions that may threaten their control. Tyrant leaders always deter the masses from ever finding the truth about the claims being made. To enforce their claim, they use a supporting argument: what Muhammad (PBUH) brought was an innovation, “We never heard (the like) of this in the former faith; this is nothing but a forgery.”

They continued to express their amazement that Muhammad (PBUH) would be chosen to receive the revelation, “Was the reminder sent down to him, out of all of us?” This simply reflected their envy of Prophet Muhammad (PBUH). They knew that the Quran is the truth but their envy made them stubborn in rejecting it. The Quran then threatened them, “They are indeed in doubt as to My reminder. In fact, they have not yet tasted My torment.” They should wait till they taste God’s torment, then we will see if they could express their amazement. The verses then continued to question their judgment, “Or do they possess the treasures of the mercy of your Lord, the Eminent, the Bestower?” Who are they to dispute God’s choice? Do they control God’s treasures of mercy? Or can they claim to be in possession of the dominion of heavens and earth, “Or do they possess the dominion of the heavens and the earth and all that is between them? Then let them ascend by ropes.” They will be defeated and will be rendered powerless, “A defeated host are (all) the factions that are there.”

The verses then recall examples of previous nations which rejected guidance and their well deserved fate, “The people of Noah before them rejected (their messenger) and (so did the tribe of) ‘Ad, and Pharaoh the owner of the stakes. And (the tribe of) Thamud, and the people of Lut, and the dwellers of the thicket; these were the parties. Not one (of them) but rejected the messengers, therefore My punishment was justified.”

There will be only one cry; it will come at a precise time that has been determined by God; and no one can change it, “These will only wait for a single cry, which will not be delayed.” Those who did not appreciate God’s mercy were impatient, “They say, ‘Our Lord, hasten on for us our fate before the Day of Reckoning.’”

Verses 17 to 48:

17. Persevere in enduring what they say, and remember Our servant David, the possessor of power; surely he was frequently returning (to God).
18. It was We that made the hills declare, in unison with him, Our praises, at nightfall and sunrise.
19. And the birds assembled; all were turning to Him.
20. We strengthened his kingdom, and gave him wisdom and sound judgment in speech.
21. Has the story of the two litigants reached you? They climbed over the wall of his private chamber.
22. When they entered upon David he was startled by them, they said, “Fear not; two litigants, of whom one has acted wrongfully towards the other, therefore decide between us with justice, and do not act unjustly, and guide us to the right way.
23. This man is my brother. He has ninety-nine ewes, and I have one ewe. Yet he said, “Entrust it to me, and he has prevailed against me in discourse.”
24. (David) said, "He has undoubtedly wronged you in demanding your ewe to be added to his (flock of) ewes. Truly many are the partners who wrong each other; except for those who believe and do good deeds, and how few are they?" And David realized that We were testing him. He asked forgiveness of his Lord, fell down prostrating, and repented.
25. So We forgave him this. He indeed had access to Our presence and a good place of return.
26. David, We did indeed make you a vicegerent on earth; so judge fairly between people; and do not follow your whims, for they will lead you away from the path of God. Those who wander astray from the path of God will have a grievous torment because they forgot the Day of Reckoning.
27. And We did not create the heaven and the earth and all that is in between in vain. That is what those who disbelieve think; and woe to those who disbelieve from the Fire.
28. Shall We treat those who believe and do good deeds as those who do mischief on earth? Or shall We treat those who are conscious of God as the wicked?
29. (This is a) Blessed Book which We have sent down to you, that they may ponder its verses, and for those of understanding to reflect upon.
30. And We bestowed on David, Solomon, most excellent the servant. He was ever turning in repentance (toward God).
31. When the beautiful horses were paraded before him in the evening.
32. And he said, "Verily, I have come to love the love of all that is good because I bear my Sustainer in mind," till they were taken out of sight behind the curtain.
33. “Bring them back to me;” so he began caressing (their) legs and necks.

34. And verily We tried Solomon, and set upon his throne a (mere) body. Then he did repent.
35. He said, "My Lord, forgive me, and grant me a kingdom which, such as shall not belong to any after me. You are the Bestower.
36. Then We subjected the wind to his power, to flow gently to his order, wherever he willed.
37. And the devils, every kind of builder and diver.
38. As also others fettered in chains.
39. (We said), "This is Our gift, therefore give freely or withhold without reckoning.
40. He indeed had access to Our presence and a good place of return.
41. And remember (Muhammad) Our servant Job, when he cried to his Lord (saying), "The devil afflicted me with distress and torment."
42. (And it was said to him), "Strike the ground with your foot. This (spring) is a cool bath and a refreshing drink.
43. And We restored his family to him, and doubled their number as a mercy from Us, and as a reminder to those who understand.
44. And (it was said to him) "Take in your hand a bundle and strike therewith; and do not break your oath." We found him perseverant, most excellent the servant. He was ever turning in repentance (toward God).
45. And remember Our servants, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, men of power and insight.
46. Verily We did choose them for an exclusive quality; remembrance of the home (of the Hereafter.)
47. They were, in Our sight, truly, of the company of the elect and the excellent.
48. And remember Ishmael and Elisha and Dhu'l-Kifl. All are of the chosen. (38: 17 – 48)

"Persevere in enduring what they say, and remember Our servant David, the possessor of power; surely he was frequently returning (to God)." The verse starts with a command which guided the Prophet (PBUH) to the path that all Prophets (PBUT) have trodden before him. It is the path of sacrifice, trial, and perseverance. Perseverance was the single most common trait that all the prophets had. All the prophets went through years of suffering and trials. They persevered to deliver the message which they were given and to fulfil the undertaking that was entrusted to them. They gave the perfect example for the ability of the spirit to overcome the material needs of the body. The verse describes Prophet David (PBUH) with two qualities: he was strong and he was repentant. In addition to the prophet-hood and the strength, God gave him heart that remembers God often and a beautiful voice, "It was We that made the hills declare, in unison with him, Our praises, at nightfall and sunrise. And the birds assembled; all were turning to Him." People may find it strange that the solid mountains sang the praise of God with David (PBUH) and the birds joined them in singing the praise of God. But there is nothing strange here. The mountains and the birds are part of the creation of God. All the creations of God are connected to Him. God gave David (PBUH) a soul that is pure and translucent which made him able to communicate with the rest of the creation of God whether solids or birds.

God gave David (PBUH) great power and wisdom and the firmness in making decisions, "We strengthened his kingdom, and gave him wisdom and sound judgment in speech." However, David (PBUH) was tested but God's hand was there to guide him through the test unscathed, "Has the story of the two litigants reached you? They climbed over the wall of his private chamber; When they entered upon David he was startled by them, they said, 'Fear not; two litigants, of whom one has acted wrongfully towards the other, therefore decide between us with justice, and do not act unjustly, and guide us to the right way.’”

David (PBUH) used to allocate a specific time for judging between people then he would go into his private chamber to worship God. His instructions were that no one should interrupt him while he was in his private chamber worshipping God. One day, while he was worshipping God in his private chamber two men climbed over the wall and jumped into his private chamber. He was startled. But they assured him that they only wanted him to settle a dispute that arose between them. One of them gave him his version of the dispute, “This man is my brother. He has ninety-nine ewes, and I have one ewe. Yet he said, ‘Entrust it to me, and he has prevailed against me in discourse.’” From this version of the story, it was clear that the complainant was wronged. David (PBUH) did not wait to listen to the second man’s side of the story but spontaneously announced his judgment, “(David) said, ‘He has undoubtedly wronged you in demanding your ewe to be added to his (flock of) ewes. Truly many are the partners who wrong each other; except for those who believe and do good deeds, and how few are they?’” It seems that at this point the two men disappeared and David (PBUH) realized that these were two angels that came to test him, “And David realized that We were testing him.” God gave him authority to judge justly between people and this was a test for his ability to perform his assigned task. A judge should listen to all litigants and give due consideration to the evidence before passing judgment. When David (PBUH) realized the nature of the test he sought God’s forgiveness, “He asked forgiveness of his Lord, fell down prostrating, and repented.” God forgave him, “So We forgave him this. He indeed had access to Our presence and a good place of return.”

Some scholars made different interpretations for these verses which we consider invalid. The nature and purpose of the test that David (PBUH) was subjected to is captured by the next verse, “David, We did indeed make you a vicegerent on earth; so judge fairly between people; and do not follow your whims, for they will lead you away from the path of God. Those who wander astray from the path of God will have a grievous torment because they forgot the Day of Reckoning.” God made him a vicegerent on earth and gave him the undertaking to judge justly between people. The command not to, “follow your desires,” meant that he should follow due process and do not act impulsively.

Before concluding the story of Prophet David (PBUH), a reminder is made of the fundamental truth upon which the whole universe is established, “And We did not create the heaven and the earth and all that is in between in vain. That is what those who disbelieve think; and woe to those who disbelieve from the Fire. Shall We treat those who believe and do good deeds as those who do mischief on earth? Shall We treat those who are conscious of God as the wicked? (This is a) Blessed Book which We have sent down to you, that they may ponder its verses, and for those of understanding to reflect upon.” These three verses explain this fundamental truth. The creation of the heavens and earth and what is in between was established on truth not falsehood. From this fundamental truth emanate all other truths: the truth that governs the rules of vicegerency on earth, the truth that govern the undertaking to judge among people, and the truth that govern the evaluation of peoples’ feelings and deeds. The believers who understand and reflect on the truth which this blessed Book brought, cannot be equated with those who are heedless of this truth. God’s law which was explained in the Quran is a part of the universal system that God created; it has to be followed to perfect the harmony of the whole system and to establish justice between people.

God bestowed His bounty on David (PBUH) after he was tested, “And We bestowed on David, Solomon, most excellent the servant. He was ever turning in repentance (toward God). When the beautiful horses were paraded before him in the evening. And he said, “Verily, I have come to love the love of all that is good because I bear my Sustainer in mind,” till they were taken out of sight behind the curtain. ‘Bring them back to me;’ so he began caressing (their) legs and necks. And verily We tried Solomon, and set upon his throne a (mere) body. Then he did repent.” These verses tell of a trial that Prophet Solomon (PBUH) was subjected to. We did not find authentic reliable interpretations of this trial. We therefore conclude that Prophet Solomon (PBUH) was subjected to trials like any other prophet. The purpose of these trials was to direct and guide him to the right path. Solomon (PBUH) repented and prayed God, “My Lord, forgive me, and grant me a kingdom which, such as shall not belong to any after me. You are the Bestower.” Solomon (PBUH) requested a kind of power that would be unique to him, and God gave him the power to control the wind and the jinn, “Then We subjected the wind to his power, to flow gently to his order, wherever he willed. And the devils, every kind of builder and diver. As also others fettered in chains.” This was God’s bounty which He bestowed on Solomon (PBUH) and gave him the authority to use it whichever way he wanted, “(We said), ‘This is Our gift, therefore give freely or withhold without reckoning.’” God also honored him and gave him a special status, “He indeed had access to Our presence and a good place of return.”

The following verses recount the story of the trials which Prophet Job (PBUH) went through, “And remember (Muhammad) Our servant Job, when he cried to his Lord (saying), ‘The devil afflicted me with distress and torment.’” The story of Prophet Job (PBUH) gives a supreme example for the trials and perseverance of the prophets and the bounty and blessings of God. This story is well known, however, it has been mixed with fiction. We find that the following account can be safely trusted. Prophet Job (PBUH) was a righteous servant of God. God subjected him to a trial and he persevered. It seems that the trial involved loss of wealth, family, and health. However, he accepted his fate and continued to be sincerely devoted to his Lord. Satan used to whisper to the few friends that remained loyal to him and to his wife. Satan put doubt in their hearts about Job’s (PBUH) devotion. Satan insinuated that had Job (PBUH) been truly devoted to God, God would have not subjected him to such severe trial. Job (PBUH) was greatly distressed by their doubts about him. When his wife expressed these doubts to him he was so angry that he made an oath that he would strike her 100 lashes, if he ever became healthy again. He prayed to God, expressing his annoyance of what Satan was doing to his wife. Job (PBUH) proved through his devotion that he successfully endured his trials. It was time for the bounty and reward. Healing came in the form of a spring that God gave him so that he can wash his body and to quench his thirst. The water removed his illness and he regained his health, “(And it was said to him), ‘Strike the ground with your foot. This (spring) is a cool bath and a refreshing drink.’”

God gave him his family back. We do not know how this was done but it is an expression of the bounty of God, and something to reflect upon for those who understand, “And We restored his family to him, and doubled their number as a mercy from Us, and as a reminder to those who understand.” God bestowed His mercy on him and his wife, who looked after him during his trial. God gave him a simple way to fulfill his oath. He was advised to bundle together a hundred thin sticks and strike his wife once, “And (it was said to him) ‘Take in your hand a bundle and strike therewith; and do not break your oath.’ We found him perseverant, most excellent the servant. He was ever turning in repentance (toward God).” So God rewarded his perseverant servant.

The previous three stories were mentioned in some detail. The following verses narrate very brief accounts of the trial of other prophets who persevered in their trials and God rewarded them for their perseverance. “And remember Our servants, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, men of power and insight.” We know that prophets Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, and also Ishmael (PBUT) came all before the time of Prophets David and Solomon (PBUT) but we do not know which time periods in history during which Job, Elisha and Dhu'l-Kifl (PBUT) lived. These last three prophets were mentioned very briefly in the Quran. The verse stated that Abraham, Isaac and Jacob (PBUT) possessed power and insight. This is a metaphorical expression for the fact that they used their strength to perform good deeds and that they had excellent understanding and wisdom. God bestowed on them the trait of being always able to remember the Hereafter and work for the life after death, “Verily We did choose them for an exclusive quality; remembrance of the home (of the Hereafter.)” They were also chosen by God to be in the company of the elect and excellent, “They were, in Our sight, truly, of the company of the elect and the excellent.” God also reminded His Messenger (PBUH) with other excellent prophets to benefit from their experience and to contemplate their example in having to endure the persecution of his own people, “And remember Ishmael and Elisha and Dhu'l-Kifl. All are of the chosen.”

Verses 49 to 64:

49. This is a reminder. And indeed those who are conscious of God will have a good place of return;
50. Gardens of Eden, with their doors wide-open for them,
51. Reclining therein, calling therein for abundant fruits and drink.
52. And with them are companions having modest gaze.
53. This is what you were promised for the Day of Reckoning.
54. Most surely this is Our sustenance; it will never be depleted.
55. All this; but the transgressors will have an evil place of return.
56. Hell, where they will burn, an evil resting-place.
57. Then they shall taste, a boiling dark, and murky fluid;
58. And similar torment of different kinds.
59. *Here is a crowd rushing blindly with you. (Those who are already in the Fire say),
“There is no welcome for them. They will burn in the Fire.”*
60. They will say, “Nor there is welcome for you. It was you who brought this upon us, an evil resting-place.”

61. They will say, "Our Lord, whoever brought this upon us give him double torment in the Fire."
62. And they will say, "What has happened to us that we do not see men whom we used to count among the wicked?"
63. Did we take them (wrongly) for a laughing-stock, or have our eyes missed them?"
64. That is indeed the truth: the feuding of the inhabitants of the Fire. (38: 49 – 64)

These verses describe scenes for events that will take place on the Day of Resurrection. Two opposite scenes are juxtaposed against each other. The first is the scene of those who were conscious of God, "This is a reminder. And indeed those who are conscious of God will have a good place of return; Gardens of Eden, with their doors wide-open for them, reclining therein, calling therein for abundant fruits and drink. And with them are companions having modest gaze. This is what you were promised for the Day of Reckoning. Most surely this is Our sustenance; it will never be depleted." They will enter through the open gates of the Gardens of Eden. In which they will be reclining comfortably, eating and drinking, enjoying the company of modest companions, and receiving God's limitless provision.

On the other hand, Hell will be the resting place for the transgressors. They will be drinking boiling murky fluid. They will receive other similar punishments, "All this; but the transgressors will have an evil place of return. Hell, where they will burn, an evil resting-place. Then they shall taste, a boiling dark, and murky fluid; and similar torment of different kinds."

Then the verses describe a third scene. The scene depicts a dialogue between two groups of the disbelievers who were friends in their lives but on the Day of Judgment they will be fighting against each other; each group will blame the other for meeting this fate, "Here is a crowd rushing blindly with you. (Those who are already in the Fire say), 'There is no welcome for them. They will burn in the Fire.' They will say, 'Nor there is welcome for you. It was you who brought this upon us, an evil resting-place.' They will say, 'Our Lord, whoever brought this upon us give him double torment in the Fire.'"

Then they will remember the believers whom they used to ridicule in the worldly life. They will wonder what happened to them, "And they will say, 'What has happened to us that we do not see men whom we used to count among the wicked? Did we take them (wrongly) for a laughing-stock, or have our eyes missed them?'" This is the promised end for the disbelievers, "That is indeed the truth: the feuding of the inhabitants of the Fire."

Verses 65 to 88:

65. Say (to them, Muhammad), "I am only a warner, and there is no deity except God, the One, the Dominator.
66. The Lord of the heavens and the earth, and all that is in between, the Eminent, Full of Forgiveness.
67. Say, "It is a great message;
68. Yet you are ignoring it.
69. I had no knowledge of the Highest Assembly when they disputed.
70. It is revealed to me only that I am a plain warner.

71. When your Lord said to the angels, "I am about to create a mortal out of clay,
72. And when I have fashioned him and breathed into him of My Spirit, then fall down before him prostrate."
73. The angels fell down prostrate, all of them,
74. But not Iblis. He was arrogant and he was one of the disbelievers.
75. (God) said, "Iblis, what prevented you from prostrating yourself to one whom I have created with My own hands? Are you arrogant? Or are you one of the high (and mighty) ones?"
76. (Iblis) said, "I am better than him, You created me from fire, and him You created from clay."
77. (God) said, "Then get you out from here; you are accursed.
78. And My curse shall be on you till the Day of Judgment."
79. (Iblis) said, "My Lord, give me then respite till the Day when the dead are raised."
80. (God) said, "You have been granted respite,
81. Till the Appointed Day."
82. (Iblis) said, "Then, by Your Eminence, I will tempt them all,
83. Except Your sincere servants among them."
84. He (God) said, "The truth is, and the truth I speak,
85. I will certainly fill Hell with you and those that follow you, everyone."
86. Say (Muhammad), "No reward do I ask of you for this (Quran), nor am I a pretender.
87. It is but a reminder to all people.
88. And you shall certainly know the truth of it after a while." (38: 65 – 88)

"Say (to them, Muhammad), 'I am only a warner, and there is no deity except God, the One, the Dominator. The Lord of the heavens and the earth, and all that is in between, the Eminent, Full of Forgiveness.'" This was a command to the Prophet (PBUH) to tell those who expressed their amazement by saying, "Has he made all the gods One God?" Tell them that this is the absolute truth, "there is no deity except God, the One, the Dominator." Tell them that you have no say in this: your only role is to warn people and admonish them. You have been sent to call people to God, "The Lord of the heavens and the earth, and all that is in between." He has no partner and they will find no one to help them other than Him. He is the Eminent, the All- Powerful, the Strong; but He is also Full of Forgiveness. He will forgive the sins of His servants, accept their repentance, and forgives those who will return back seeking His protection.

Tell them that the message you brought them is much more momentous than what they think, there is more to it than they perceive, "Say, 'It is a great message; yet you are ignoring it.'" It is the message of God. It is as momentous as the creation of heavens and earth. It is very much closely related to God's law that governs the universe. It represents a milestone in the history of humankind. It affected those who believed in it as well as those who did not believe. The Muslims today, like the Arabs at the time of the revelation, are not able to understand the true nature of this message and its relationship to the existence of this universe.

Muhammad's (PBUH) role on the other hand is limited to the delivery of the message, "I had no knowledge of the Highest Assembly when they disputed. It is revealed to me only that I am a plain warner.”

“When your Lord said to the angels, ‘I am about to create a mortal out of clay, and when I have fashioned him and breathed into him of My Spirit, then fall down before him prostrate.’” God created humankind from clay similar to others of God creations. However, there is a mystery regarding the creation of humankind. This is the mystery of life. The body was created from clay but God’s spirit changed that body into a human being. When the human being dies and the spirit leaves him, his body disintegrates back to the original elements from which that body was composed. We do not know much about the spirit that was breathed into humankind but we know its impact on him. One of the consequences of the spirit is that humankind is able to grow both mentally and spiritually. He has the ability to analyze the past and use the results of this analysis to understand and plan for the future. These traits are exclusively human traits. God did not bestow these traits on any creature other than humankind. God breathed of His spirit into humankind because God willed that humankind undertake the responsibility of being God’s vicegerent on earth. Humankind’s ability to grow mentally and spiritually is closely related to his closeness to God. The closer humankind is to God, the better he is equipped to grow and to break the barriers of knowledge.

All the angels obeyed God’s command, “The angels fell down prostrate, all of them.” How, where, and when did they do this? We do not know and these are matters of the unseen. However, the important thing is the moral of the story. It shows the high status that the human being acquired when he received the spirit of God. Iblis disobeyed. Was Iblis an angel? Apparently he was not. Had he been an angel he would not have disobeyed. Angels do not disobey God’s commands and they do what God tells them to do. The Quran also mentioned that he was created from fire and we know that angels were created from light. But it seems that he was in the company of the angels when this command was issued, “But not Iblis. He was arrogant and he was one of the disbelievers.” God rebuked Iblis for his disobedience, “(God) said, ‘Iblis, what prevented you from prostrating yourself to one whom I have created with My own hands? Are you arrogant? Or are you one of the high (and mighty) ones?’” Iblis’ response showed his envy of this being who was created from clay, “(Iblis) said, ‘I am better than him, You created me from fire, and him You created from clay.’” Then the divine decree was issued, “Then get you out from here; you are accursed. And My curse shall be on you till the Day of Judgment.”

Iblis’ envy changed into hatred towards this creature which made him an outcast. He decided to take revenge, “(Iblis) said, ‘My Lord, give me then respite till the Day when the dead are raised.’” God granted his request, “(God) said, ‘You have been granted respite, till the Appointed Day.’”

Iblis then uncovered his plan, “(Iblis) said, ‘Then, by Your Eminence, I will tempt them all, except Your sincere servants among them.’”

The truth was then announced, and God always says the truth, “(God) said, ‘The truth is, and the truth I speak, I will certainly fill Hell with you and those that follow you, everyone.’”

This was the start of the eternal fight between Satan and the children of Adam. The Children of Adam were warned of the animosity of Iblis; so they engage in this fight with full knowledge of their enemy. They have the freedom to choose which way to go. God by His grace; sent His messengers to keep warning people of the danger of Satan.

The Sura is concluded by a command to Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) to tell the disbelievers, that he did not expect any personal reward from them, “Say (Muhammad), ‘No reward do I ask of you for this (Quran), nor am I a pretender. It is but a reminder to all people. And you shall certainly know the truth of it after a while.’” It is a conclusion befitting the beginning of the Sura and the topics that it dealt with.

Sura 39: Al-Zumar (The Throngs)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

This Sura deals with the fundamental concept of the belief in the Oneness of God and that only He is worthy of worship. Hawwa is of the opinion that one of the main themes of this Sura is emphasizing that the Quran has been revealed by God. The first verse states the fact that the Quran has been revealed by God. Verses 2 and 41 restate again that the Quran is God's revelation. The Sura consists of an introduction and two sections. The introduction consists of one verse, verse 1. The first second section starts with verse number 2; while the second section starts with verse 41. The two themes are closely related. Only the One True God is worthy of being worship; and He revealed the Quran to guide people to the correct way to worship Him. If we consider the comprehensive meaning of worship as a way of life, then we can see the overlap of the two themes. The Sura is describing a way of life based on the premise of the Oneness of God.

Verses 1 to 7:

1. The revelation of the Book is from God, the Eminent, the Wise.
2. Verily it is We who have revealed the Book to you with the Truth; so worship God with sincere devotion.
3. Unquestionably for God is the pure religion. And those who take protecting guardians besides Him (saying), "We worship them only that they may bring us near to God." God will judge between them concerning that in which they differ. God does not guide him who is a liar, ungrateful.
4. Had God wished to have a son, He could have chosen whom He pleased out of those whom He created; but Glory be to Him; (He is above such things.) He is God, the Unique, the Dominator.
5. He created the heavens and the earth with the truth. He wraps the night around the day, and He wraps the day around the night, and He subjected the sun and the moon to run their courses for an appointed term. Is not He the Eminent, Full of Forgiveness?
6. He created you from a single being, then from that (being) He made its mate; and He brought down, for you, cattle - eight kinds in pairs. He creates you in the wombs of your mothers, creation after creation, in a threefold of darkness. That is God, your Lord. His is the Sovereignty. There is no God save Him. How then you are turned away?
7. If you disbelieve, truly God has no need of you; but He does not like His servants to be ungrateful. If you are grateful, He will be pleased with you. No bearer of a burden can bear the burden of another. In the end, you will all return to your Lord. He will then tell you the truth of all that you used to do. He knows well all that is in the hearts. (39: 1 – 7)

The Sura starts with a decisive statement, "The revelation of the Book is from God, the Eminent, the Wise." God is the Eminent. He is able to reveal the Book. He is Wise. He knows why the Book was revealed. The Book has been revealed with the truth, "Verily it is We who have revealed the Book to you with the Truth." The fundamental truth that the Book brought is the absolute Oneness of God. This is the fundamental truth on which everything in the universe has been established. This fundamental truth shapes everything that was created by God. Only He deserves to be worshipped alone, “so worship God with sincere devotion.” This command was issued to the Messenger of God (PBUH) who received the Book which included the message that he was responsible for communicating to all people. This Message is based on the fundamental truth: worship God alone with sincere devotion.

The belief in the Oneness of God is not a lip service but it is a way of life which starts with a belief in the heart and ends by shaping the way of life of individuals and communities. The heart that believes in the Oneness of God does not bow to anyone, does not seek help from anyone, nor does it depend on anyone, other than God. God is the only force in life of the believer. The heart of the believer believes in the oneness of the law that manages the whole universe. The believer accepts the divine project which God ordained to provide the best way of life for His servants. It is a way of life in harmony with the universe. God controls the whole creation.

The following verse states in an unequivocal terms the basis of the way of life, “Unquestionably for God is the pure religion.” Then indicates the dilemma which the disbelievers are facing, “And those who take protecting guardians besides Him (saying), ‘We worship them only that they may bring us near to God.’ God will judge between them concerning that in which they differ. God does not guide him who is a liar, ungrateful.” The disbelievers used to say that they believe that God is the Creator. But they associated partners with Him and they worshipped idols. These idols were statues of the angels which they claimed to be the daughters of God. They claimed that these idols were going to intercede on their behalf. But they were lying and God does not guide those who fabricate lies about Him. They lied when they claimed that the angels were God’s daughters and they lied when they claimed that God would accept their intercession.

These were absurd claims, “Had God wished to have a son, He could have chosen whom He pleased out of those whom He created.” God is high above all these absurd claims. Glory be to Him. He is above such things, “He is God, the Unique, the Dominator.”

Why would He have a son? He is the Creator and the Dominator of everything. He has dominion over everything in His Kingdom, “He created the heavens and the earth with the truth. He wraps the night around the day, and He wraps the day around the night, and He subjected the sun and the moon to run their courses for an appointed term. Is not He the Eminent, Full of Forgiveness?” It is not befitting God who created this universe alone to have a son or a partner. The way that the heavens and the earth were created attests to the Oneness of the Creator. Reading this verse, one cannot help but think of the shape of the earth. The expression, “He wraps the night around the day, and He wraps the day around the night,” implies clearly that the earth is spherical. The Arabic word which is used in the verse and which has been translated as “wrap,” actually describes the day and the night as if they were spheres wrapped over one another.

From this tour of the universe to the creation of humankind, “He created you from a single being, then from that (being) He made its mate; and He brought down for you cattle - eight kinds in pairs. He creates you in the wombs of your mothers, creation after creation, in a threefold of darkness. That is God, your Lord. His is the Sovereignty. There is no God save Him. How then you are turned away?" Humankind has been created with certain basic characteristics. These basic characteristics are common to all human beings that lived on earth since the advent of the human race. These characteristics distinguish the human beings from all other creatures.

The verse also refers to the stages of the development of the fetus in the womb. The verse mentions three levels of darkness. The first level of darkness is formed by the Placentia which surrounds the fetus. The Placentia itself is surrounded by the uterus which represents the second level of darkness and finally the uterus is enclosed in the mother's abdomen which represents the third level of darkness.

The evidence that supports the truth of the belief in the Oneness of God is abundant. However, there are those who still disbelieve. God is not in need for people to believe, "If you disbelieve, truly God has no need of you; but He does not like His servants to be ungrateful. If you are grateful, He will be pleased with you. No bearer of a burden can bear the burden of another. In the end, you will all return to your Lord. He will then tell you the truth of all that you used to do. He knows well all that is in the hearts."

Verses 8 to 10:

8. When adversity touches a human being, he calls upon his Lord, turning to Him in repentance; but when He bestows on him a blessing from Himself, he forgets Him whom he called upon before, and he sets up partners with God, thus misleading others from God's path. Say, "Enjoy your blasphemy for a little while. Indeed, you are of the companions of the Fire."
9. Is one who worships devoutly during the night prostrating himself or standing (in adoration), takes heed of the Hereafter, and hopes for the mercy of his Lord - (like one who does not)? Say, "Are those who know equal to those who do not know? But only people of understanding will pay heed."
10. Say, "My servants who believe, be conscious of your Lord. Those who do good in this world will have a good reward. Spacious is God's earth; those who persevere will truly receive a reward without measure." (39: 8 – 10)

"When adversity touches a human being, he calls upon his Lord, turning to Him in repentance; but when He bestows on him a blessing from Himself, he forgets Him whom he called upon before, and he sets up partners with God, thus misleading others from God's path." When a human being is afflicted with an adversity he returns back to his initial natural disposition. All the rust that has accumulated over the years and covered this initial natural disposition is removed when one faces harm. People turn back to their Creator at the time of need. But once the adversity has been removed and the need is replaced by affluence, then the rust creeps back on to cover the initial natural disposition. People forget their Creator and start associating partners with Him. There are many forms that these partners take. They include one's desires, ambitions, fears, wealth, children, and superiors. Some people practice unknowingly what is called hidden association of partners with God. The hidden form of associating partners with God leads the person to go astray. No partner should be associated with God, whether explicitly or implicitly. All types of enjoyment in this life can only last for a limited time, “Enjoy your blasphemy for a little while. Indeed, you are of the companions of the Fire.”

The ugly image described in the previous verse is juxtaposed against the beautiful image of those who continuously remember God. They remember God at the time of ease as well as at the time of adversity. They are always connected with God hoping for His mercy and fearing His punishment, “Is one who worships devoutly during the night prostrating himself or standing (in adoration), takes heed of the Hereafter, and hopes for the mercy of his Lord - (like one who does not)? Say, ‘Are those who know equal to those who do not know? But only people of understanding will pay heed.’” These are people who know God. True knowledge leads to the truth. True knowledge leads to the understanding of the facts of the creation of the universe. True knowledge leads to acquiring deep insight. This kind of knowledge can only be acquired through absolute devotion to God. Those who fear God and hope for His mercy are endowed with the tools to acquire true knowledge.

Having presented the two images, a command is issued to the believers to make good use of their short worldly life by remaining conscious of their Lord, “Say, ‘My servants who believe, be conscious of your Lord. Those who do good in this world will have a good reward. Spacious is God’s earth; those who persevere will truly receive a reward without measure.’”

Verses 11 to 20:

11. Say, “I am commanded to worship God with sincere devotion.
12. And I am commanded to be the first of those who submit.”
13. Say, “I fear, if I disobey my Lord, the torment of a grievous day.”
14. Say, “It is God I worship, with sincere devotion.
15. So worship what you will besides Him.” Say, “The losers will be those who lose themselves and their families on the Day of Resurrection. That indeed will be the clear loss.”
16. They shall have layers of fire above them, and layers below them. This is how God puts fear into His servants. My servants be conscious of Me.
17. Those who shun the worship of false gods and turn to God (in repentance), for them are glad tidings. So give My servants the glad tidings.
18. Those who listen to the Word, and follow the best (meaning) in it, those are the ones whom God has guided, and those are the ones endued with understanding.
19. What about the one against whom the decree of torment is justly due? Can you rescue the one who is in the Fire?
20. But those who remain conscious of their Lord, for them are lofty chambers above them lofty chambers, built (for them), beneath which rivers flow. (It is) a promise of God. God does not fail in His promise. (39: 11 – 20)

The Hereafter casts its shadows on this paragraph; the verses express the fear of its torment and the hope in its reward. The Messenger (PBUH) was commanded to declare his belief in the Oneness of God, “Say, ‘I am commanded to worship God with sincere devotion. And I am commanded to be the first of those who submit.’ Say, ‘I fear, if I disobey my Lord, the torment of a grievous day.’” This proclamation from the Messenger of God (PBUH) is of a great importance in defining the meaning of the Oneness of God. The Messenger (PBUH) is simply a servant of God; he stands side by side of all God’s servants. All God’s servants worship Him. The statement of declaring the Oneness of God is reiterated, “Say, ‘It is God I worship, with sincere devotion. So worship what you will besides Him.’ Say, ‘The losers will be those who lose themselves and their families on the Day of Resurrection. That indeed will be the clear loss.’” The Messenger (PBUH) worships God alone, if the disbelievers want to associate partners with God, let them do what they want because this will ultimately lead to their biggest loss. The consequences of disbelief is then described, “They shall have layers of fire above them, and layers below them. This is how God puts fear into His servants. My servants be conscious of Me.” This is a horrendous image, the image of fire surrounding people covering them from above and from underneath them. This may throw fear in the hearts of people so that they would try to avoid this fate.

On the other side stand those who attained salvation, “Those who shun the worship of false gods and turn to God (in repentance), for them are glad tidings. So give My servants the glad tidings. Those who listen to the Word, and follow the best (meaning) in it, those are the ones whom God has guided, and those are the ones endowed with understanding.” The verses describe the fate of those who shunned the worship of false gods in any form. The Arabic word which has been translated here as, “false gods” has the connotation of extreme tyranny. So it includes all forms of false gods. Those who shunned the worship of false gods will be given glad tidings. One of their traits was that they used to distill whatever they hear looking for the best advice; this is what they would follow. They were truly endowed with understanding. True understanding leads to salvation.

Those who used to worship false gods are doomed to Hell fire; no one can save them, “What about the one against whom the decree of torment is justly due? Can you rescue the one who is the Fire?” On the other hand, those who remained conscious of their Lord will receive great reward, “But those who remain conscious of their Lord, for them are lofty chambers above them lofty chambers, built (for them), beneath which rivers flow. (It is) a promise of God. God does not fail in His promise.”

Verses 21 to 29:

21. Do you not see that God sends down rain from the sky, and leads it through the earth to form springs? Then He produces with it crops of diverse hues; and afterward they wither and you see them turn yellow; then He makes them chaff. Indeed, in this is a reminder for those of understanding.
22. Is he whose heart God has opened for Islam, so that he follows a light from his Lord, (as he who disbelieves)? Then woe to those whose hearts are hardened against the remembrance of God; those are in plain error.
23. God has revealed the most beautiful speech in the form of a Book, consistent with itself, (yet) repeating (its teaching in various aspects); the skins of those who fear their Lord tremble thereat; then their skins and their hearts do soften to the celebration of God's praises. This is God's guidance. He guides whom He pleases with it, but those whom God leaves to go astray, will have none to guide them.

24. Is he then who will guard with his face against the severe torment on the Day of Resurrection (like the one who is secure from it)? And it will be said to the wrongdoers taste what you have earned.
25. Those before them (also) rejected (the revelation), and so the torment came to them from wherever they did not realize?
26. Thus God made them taste humiliation in the life of this world, and verily the torment of the Hereafter will be greater if they did but know.
27. We have put forth for people, in this Quran, every kind of parable, in order that they may receive admonition.
28. (It is) a Quran in Arabic, without any crookedness (therein); in order that they may become conscious of God.
29. God puts forth a parable: a man belonging to many partners at variance with each other, and a man belonging entirely to one master. Are those two equal in comparison? Praise be to God, but most of them do not know. (39: 21 -29)

The following verses draw the attention of people to a phenomenon that one sees often, “Do you not see that God sends down rain from the sky, and leads it through the earth to form springs? Then He produces with it crops of diverse hues; and afterward they wither and you see them turn yellow; then He makes them chaff. Indeed, in this is a reminder for those of understanding.” The formation of rain water that comes down, and flows either in rivers on the surface of the earth or as underground water which later forms springs, and causes different plants to grow are miracles. The formation of rain water is a miracle; without water life on earth could not be sustained. The growth of plants is a miracle; seeing the tiny seedling when it pierces the solid surface of the earth is an amazing scene. The verse describes the different stages through which a plant goes through; starting with a tiny seedling, then becoming a mature plant, and finally withering away. These are miracles that are worthy of the reflection of people who are endowed with understanding.

“Is he whose heart God has opened for Islam, so that he follows a light from his Lord, (as he who disbelieves)? Then woe to those whose hearts are hardened against the remembrance of God. Those are in plain error. God has revealed the most beautiful speech in the form of a Book, consistent with itself, (yet) repeating (its teaching in various aspects); the skins of those who fear their Lord tremble thereat; then their skins and their hearts do soften to the celebration of God's praises. This is God's guidance. He guides whom He pleases with it, but those whom God leaves to go astray, will have none to guide.” God causes water to descend from the sky so that plants can grow, similarly God causes the revelation to descend from the sky to give life to the hearts that are opened to it. When the hearts receive the revelation they move as if they were dead and became alive. The hearts are revived when they are touched by the revelation. But the revelation slides over the hard hearts in the same way rain slides over a hard rock; both will remain lifeless. Those who chose to go astray will try in vain to protect their faces from the fire on the Day of the Resurrection, “Is he then who will guard with his face against the severe torment on the Day of Resurrection (like the one who is secure from it)? And it will be said to the wrongdoers taste what you have earned.” This is a message to warn those who rejected Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) by alerting them to the fate of those who rejected guidance before, “Those before them (also) rejected (the revelation), and so the torment came to them from wherever they did not realize? Thus God made them taste humiliation in the life of this world, and verily the torment of the Hereafter will be greater if they did but know.”

“We have put forth for people, in this Quran, every kind of parable, in order that they may receive admonition. (It is) a Quran in Arabic, without any crookedness (therein); in order that they may become conscious of God. God puts forth a parable: a man belonging to many partners at variance with each other, and a man belonging entirely to one master. Are those two equal in comparison? Praise be to God, but most of them do not know.” God strikes parables for believing and disbelieving servants. The disbelieving servant is like a servant who has many masters. The masters are fighting among themselves. They issue contradictory commands to the servant. The servant is confused and does not know which command he should follow. On the other hand, the believing servant is like a servant who has only one master. His master gives him one set of commands. The commands are clear and consistent. He listens to the commands and obeys them. This parable exemplifies the difference between the two concepts of the belief in the Oneness of God and associating partners with God. The belief in the Oneness of God promotes stability and security while associating partners with God promotes confusion and instability.

Verses 30 to 35:

- 30. Certainly, you will die and they will die.*
- 31. Then you will dispute in the presence of your Lord on the Day of Resurrection.*
- 32. Who, then, has done more wrong than the one who utters a lie about God, and rejected the truth when it came to him; is there not an abode for the disbelievers in Hell?*
- 33. And he who brings the truth and confirms it - such are the God conscious.*
- 34. They shall have all that they wish for, in the presence of their Lord. That is the reward of the doers of good.*
- 35. God will absolve them of the worst of what they did, and will pay them for reward the best they used to do. (39: 30 – 35)*

“Certainly, you will die and they will die. Then you will dispute in the presence of your Lord on the Day of Resurrection.” Death is the ultimate end for each and every living creature. Only God remains eternal. Muhammad (PBUH) is like any mortal; he will also die. This fact reinforces the theme of the Oneness of God. But death is not an end in itself. Death is a door that leads to another life. On the Day of the Resurrection people will dispute among themselves. They will stand in front of God to listen to His verdict, “Who, then, has done more wrong than the one who utters a lie about God, and rejected the truth when it came to him; is there not an abode for the disbelievers in Hell?” This is a rhetorical question. There is no one who is more wrong than the one who claimed that God has daughters or partners; or rejected the truth that the messenger of God brought. Those are the disbelievers who will be destined to Hell.

God sent messengers to bring the truth to people, “And he who brings the truth and confirms it - such are the God conscious.” The God conscious will have a great reward from their Lord, “They shall have all that they wish for, in the presence of their Lord. That is the reward of the doers of good. God will absolve them of the worst of what they did, and will pay them for reward the best they used to do.” They will certainly get the reward that God promised them. He will reward them according to the best of their deeds.

Verses 36 to 52:

36. Is not God sufficient for his servant? But they try to frighten you with other (gods) besides Him. Those whom God leaves to go astray have no one to guide them.
37. And he whom God guides, there is none that can lead him astray. Is not God the Eminent, the Avenger?
38. If indeed you ask them who it is that created the heavens and the earth, they will say, "God". Say, "Consider those whom you invoke besides God - can they, if God wills harm for me - remove His harm? Or if He wills to bestow a mercy on me, can they stop His mercy? Say, "God is sufficient for me. In Him the trusting put their trust.
39. Say, "My people do whatever you can. I will do (my part); and soon you will know
40. Who will receive humiliating torment, and on whom will descend an everlasting torment.”
41. Verily, We have revealed the Book to you with the Truth for people. Whosoever follows the guidance does so for his own benefit, and whosoever strays away from it does so at his own peril. And you are not a guardian over them.
42. God takes the souls at the time of their death; and those who do not die (He takes them) during their sleep. He keeps those for which He has ordained death and releases the rest till an appointed term. In this are indeed signs for people who reflect.
43. Or have they taken other than God as intercessors? Say, "Even though they have no power whatsoever and no understanding?"
44. Say, "To God belongs exclusively (the right to grant) intercession. To Him belongs the dominion of the heavens and the earth. In the end, it is to Him that you shall be brought back."
45. And when God alone is mentioned, the hearts of those who do not believe in the Hereafter shrink with resentment, and when those (whom they worship) besides Him are mentioned, they rejoice.
46. Say, "God, Creator of the heavens and the earth, Knower of all that is unseen and the visible, it is You who will judge between Your servants in those matters about which they used to differ."
47. Even if the wrongdoers had all that there is on earth, and as much more, they would seek to ransom themselves therewith on the Day of Resurrection from the awful torment. And there will appear to them, from God, that which they never reckoned.
48. And the evils that they earned will appear to them, and that whereat they used to scoff will surround them.
49. Now, when adversity touches the human being, he calls on Us; but when We bestow a blessing from Ourselves on him, he says, "This has been given to me because of a certain knowledge (I have)" - this is only a trial, but most of them do not understand.
50. Those before them said it, yet (all) what they had earned did not avail them.

51. And the evil consequences of what they earned struck them; and the wrongdoers from among them will be struck by the evil consequences of what they earned, and they will not escape.
52. Did they not know that God enlarges the provision or restricts it for whomsoever He pleases? Indeed, in this are signs for those who believe. (39: 36 – 52)

“Is not God sufficient for his servant? But they try to frighten you with other (gods) besides Him. Those whom God leaves to go astray have no one to guide them. And he whom God guides, there is none that can lead him astray. Is not God the Eminent, the Avenger? If indeed you ask them who it is that created the heavens and the earth, they will say, ‘God’. Say, ‘Consider those whom you invoke besides God - can they, if God wills harm for me - remove His harm? Or if He wills to bestow a mercy on me, can they stop His mercy?’ Say, ‘God is sufficient for me. In Him the trusting put their trust.’ Say, ‘My people do whatever you can. I will do (my part); and soon you will know who will receive humiliating torment, and on whom will descend an everlasting torment.’” These four verses outline the logic behind the true faith- a simple, pure, and strong faith as that which existed in the heart of the Messenger of God (PBUH). This is the kind of faith that all believers should have in their hearts. God provides sufficient protection for His servants. They should not be frightened of any one. All others are creatures of God. How could one who is protected by God be frightened by a creature of God? God has the dominating power over everything He created. He will guide those who deserve to be guided and will leave those who do not deserve to be guided to go astray. He is the Eminent. These facts can be stated in another way, by questioning the disbelievers themselves. They knew that God is the Creator of heavens and earth. How can they believe that God is the Creator of heavens and earth and then claim that someone else has the power to provide benefit or inflict harm on any of God’s servants? Understanding this fact and believing in it will promote security and confidence in the believer’s heart. There will be no room for argument then. Each should do what he thinks is right and the ultimate verdict will be issued by God.

“Verily We have revealed the Book to you with the Truth for people.” The Book came with the truth. The Book brought a true divine project. The Book elucidated a set of laws that are based on the truth. These laws control the universe, the human beings and all God’s creations. The Messenger’s (PBUH) role is to deliver the message. It is up to the people to choose what will benefit or harm them, “Whosoever follows the guidance does so for his own benefit, and whosoever strays away from it does so at his own peril. And you are not a guardian over them.” God is the Guardian and He is the one who has control over people, “God takes the souls at the time of their death; and those who do not die (He takes them) during their sleep. He keeps those for which He has ordained death and releases the rest till an appointed term. In this are indeed signs for people who reflect.” How can they seek the help of those who will not be able to help them, “Or have they taken other than God as intercessors? Say, ‘Even though they have no power whatsoever and no understanding?’ Say, ‘To God belongs exclusively (the right to grant) intercession. To Him belongs the dominion of the heavens and the earth. In the end, it is to Him that you shall be brought back.’” There is no escape from God. He is the owner of the universe and to Him all the creatures will all return.

“And when God alone is mentioned, the hearts of those who do not believe in the Hereafter shrink with resentment, and when those (whom they worship) besides Him are mentioned, they rejoice.” This verse describes how the disbelievers of Mecca used to react when the Prophet (PBUH) talked to them about the belief in the Oneness of God. One can find contemporaneous people who would react in the same way. Our response would be simply to call upon God to judge, “God, Creator of the heavens and the earth, Knower of all that is unseen and the visible, it is You who will judge between Your servants in those matters about which they used to differ.”

The verses then describe the fate of the disbelievers, “Even if the wrongdoers had all that there is on earth, and as much more, they would seek to ransom themselves therewith on the Day of Resurrection from the awful torment. And there will appear to them, from God, that which they never reckoned. And the evils that they earned will appear to them and that whereat they used to scoff will surround them.” On the Day of Judgment, they will meet their doom. They will wish that they could ransom themselves, but it will be late. They will be surrounded by their evil deeds and they will realize that they could not escape this horrendous situation.

When they are afflicted by adversity, those who disbelieve remember God and pray for His help, but when the affliction has been removed they forget the blessings of God, “Now, when adversity touches the human being, he calls on Us; but when We bestow a blessing from Ourselves on him, he says, ‘This has been given to me because of a certain knowledge (I have)’ - this is only a trial, but most of them do not understand.” This example happens too often. Only those who possess sound initial natural dispositions that lead them to God, remember Him whether they are experiencing good or bad times. God tests people to see whether they are going to be grateful or ungrateful. Those who forget God’s blessings think that they earned their good fortune as a result of their own efforts. People before them made the same claim and they lost everything, “Those before them said it, yet (all) what they had earned did not avail them. And the evil consequences of what they earned struck them; and the wrongdoers from among them will be struck by the evil consequences of what they earned, and they will not escape. Did they not know that God enlarges the provision or restricts it for whomsoever He pleases? Indeed, in this are signs for those who believe.”

Verses 53 to 61:

53. Say, “My servants who have were given to excesses against themselves; do not despair of the mercy of God. Indeed, God forgives all sins. Indeed, He is All-Forgiving, the Giver of Mercy.”
54. And turn to your Lord (in repentance) and submit to Him, before the torment comes upon you, then you will not be helped.
55. And follow the best of what was revealed to you from your Lord, before the torment comes upon you suddenly while you are unaware.
56. Lest a soul should say, “How sorry I am, for having neglected my duty to God, and I was indeed among the scoffers;”
57. Or should say, “If only God had guided me, I would certainly have been among the God conscious.”

58. Or should say when it sees the torment, "If only I could have another chance, I might be among the doers of good."
59. (But now the answer will be), "My revelations came to you, but you rejected them and you were arrogant, and you were among the disbelievers."
60. On the Day of Resurrection, you will see the faces of those who told lies against God darkened. Is there not in Hell an abode for the arrogant?
61. And God will save those who were conscious of Him because of their achievement; evil shall not touch them, nor shall they grieve. (39: 53 – 61)

"Say, 'My servants who were given to excesses against themselves; do not despair of the mercy of God. Indeed, God forgives all sins. Indeed, He is All-Forgiving, the Giver of Mercy.'" God's mercy encompasses all sins. It offers an open door for God's forgiveness. This door is repentance. Therefore, "And turn to your Lord (in repentance) and submit to Him, before the torment comes upon you, then you will not be helped. And follow the best of what was revealed to you from your Lord, before the torment comes upon you suddenly while you are unaware." The verse calls those who have committed sins to come back to God and seek His forgiveness. There are no protocols, no intercessors, no barriers between God and His servants. They can call upon Him directly, expressing their remorse, submitting to His will, and asking for His forgiveness. The Quran provides the best revelation, so follow it before it is too late. When the opportunity is lost, there will be no use for regret, "Lest a soul should say, 'How sorry I am, for having neglected my duty to God, and I was indeed among the scoffers, or should say, 'If only God had guided me, I would certainly have been among the God conscious.' Or should say when it sees the torment, 'If only I could have another chance, I might be among the doers of good.'" The answer will be, "(But now the answer will be), 'My revelations came to you, but you rejected them and you were arrogant, and you were among the disbelievers.'"

The following verse describes the fate of those who told lies about God, "On the Day of Resurrection you will see the faces of those who told lies against God darkened. Is there not in Hell an abode for the arrogant?" But those who were conscious of God will be saved, "And God will save those who were conscious of Him because of their achievement; evil shall not touch them, nor shall they grieve."

Verses 62 to 75:

62. God is the Creator of all things, and He is the Guardian over all things.
63. To Him belong the keys of the heavens and the earth; and those who disbelieve in the revelations of God are the losers.
64. Say, "Do you then command me to worship others than God, you, ignorant ones?"
65. And it has been revealed to you and to those before you (saying), "If you associate a partner with God, all your deeds will be in vain and you will be indeed among the losers."
66. No, worship God alone, and be of those who give thanks.

67. And they did not esteem God as He has the right to be esteemed, when the whole earth shall be in His grip on the Day of Resurrection and the heavens rolled up in His right hand; glory be to Him and exalted He above what they associate (with Him).
68. The trumpet will be blown, and all that is in the heavens and on earth will fall dead except whom God wills. Then it will be blown a second time, and they will be standing and looking on.
69. And the earth will shine with the light of its Lord. The Record (of Deeds) will be placed (open), the prophets and the witnesses will be brought forward, and it is judged between them with the truth, and they are not wronged.
70. And each soul is paid in full for what it did. And He knows best what they do.
71. The disbelievers will be led to Hell in throngs, till when they reach it and its gates are opened, and its warders will say to them, "Did not messengers of your own come to you reciting to you the revelations of your Lord and warning you of the meeting of this Day of yours? They will say, "Yes, indeed. But the word of torment for disbelievers has been fulfilled."
72. It will be said (to them), "Enter the gates of Hell to abide therein forever. Evil is the abode of the arrogant."
73. And those who were conscious of their Lord will be led to the Garden in throngs, till they reach it and its gates are opened, and its warders will say to them, "Peace be on you. You are good, so enter you (the Garden of delight), to abide therein forever."
74. They will say, "Praise be to God, who has truly fulfilled His Promise to us, and has made us inherit the land, so we may settle in the Garden wherever we will. How excellent is the reward for the workers?"
75. And you will see the angels surrounding the Throne, singing the praise of their Lord. And it will be judged between them with the truth. And it is said, "Praise be to God, the Lord of the Worlds." (39: 62 – 75)

"God is the Creator of all things and He is the Guardian over all things." This is the fundamental truth that is pronounced by everything in the universe. No one can claim that he created anything. This universe did not exist on its own. God is the Creator of everything. He owns the heavens and earth. He controls them and manages their affairs, "To Him belong the keys of the heavens and the earth." Those who disbelieve lost the understanding that would make them live in harmony with the universe, "and those who disbelieve in the revelations of God are the losers." They lost the security in their life and lost the reward in the Hereafter.

In view of this, the Prophet (PBUH) was commanded to renounce the disbelievers' claim, "Say, 'Do you then command me to worship others than God, you, ignorant ones?'" A warning against associating partners with God is then issued to all humanity. In the front of those to whom the warning is issued are the messengers to emphasize the gravity of the situation, "And it has been revealed to you and to those before you (saying), 'If you associate a partner with God, all your deeds will be in vain and you will be indeed among the losers.'" Worship God alone and be grateful to Him, "No, worship God alone, and be of those who give thanks."

“And they did not esteem God as He has the right to be esteemed.” They associated partners with God, thus denying God the esteem that He rightfully deserves. On the Day of Resurrection, “whole earth shall be in His grip on the Day of Resurrection and the heavens rolled up in His right hand; glory be to Him and exalted He above what they associate (with Him).” The Quran provides these images to help people appreciate the power of God. However, the power of God is limitless and cannot be captured by human imagination.

The following verses describe some of the scenes of the Day of Resurrection, “The trumpet will be blown, and all that is in the heavens and on earth will fall dead except whom God wills. Then it will be blown a second time, and they will be standing and looking on.” The first blow will put everyone to death. Then the second blow will resurrect people. However, it is not known how long will be the time between the two blows. The scene is then described, “And the earth will shine with the light of its Lord. The Record (of Deeds) will be placed (open), the prophets and the witnesses will be brought forward, and it is judged between them with truth, and they are not wronged.” The Record will be opened, and the prophets will testify and the judgment will be passed. No one will suffer any injustice, “And each soul is paid in full for what it did. And He knows best of what they do.”

The disbelievers will be driven to Hell, “The disbelievers will be led to Hell in throngs till, when they reach it and its gates are opened, and its warders will say to them, ‘Did not messengers of your own come to you reciting to you the revelations of your Lord and warning you of the meeting of this Day of yours?’ They will say, ‘Yes, indeed. But the word of torment for disbelievers has been fulfilled.’” They will have no recourse but to submit, “It will be said (to them), ‘Enter the gates of Hell to abide therein forever. Evil is the abode of the arrogant.’”

On the other hand, the believers will be led to the Garden, “And those who were conscious of their Lord will be led to the Garden in throngs, till they reach it and its gates are opened, and its warders will say to them, ‘Peace be on you. You are good, so enter you (the Garden of delight), to abide therein forever.’” They will be warmly received and they will be praised. They will respond by singing the praise of God, “They will say, ‘Praise be to God, who has truly fulfilled His Promise to us, and has made us inherit the land, so we may settle in the Garden wherever we will. How excellent is the reward for the workers?’”

The final scene is the scene of submission to God expressing the fact of the Oneness of God, “And you will see the angels surrounding the Throne, singing the praise of their Lord. And it will be judged between them with the truth. And it is said, ‘Praise be to God, the Lord of the Worlds.’”

Sura 40: Ghafir (The Forgiver)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 20:

1. Ha, Mim.
2. The revelation of this Book is from God, the Eminent, the Omniscient;
3. Forgiver of sins and Acceptor of repentance, severe in punishment, infinite in bounty. There is no deity except Him. To Him is the ultimate return.
4. None argue concerning the revelations of God save those who disbelieve, so let not their turn of fortune in the land deceive you.
5. Before them the people of Noah rejected the truth, as did the confederates after them. Every community plotted against their prophet, to seize him, and argued falsely to refute the Truth. Then I seized them, and how (awful) was My punishment.
6. Thus was the word of your Lord concerning those who disbelieve fulfilled that they are companions of the Fire.
7. Those who carry the Throne (of God) and those around it, celebrate the praise of their Lord, believe in Him, and ask forgiveness for those who believe, "Our Lord, You have encompassed all things in mercy and knowledge, therefore forgive those who repented and followed Your way and save them from the torment of Hell.
8. Our Lord, admit them into the Gardens of Eden, which You promised them, and the righteous among their fathers, their spouses, and their offspring. Indeed, You are the Eminent, the Wise.
9. And protect them against (all) evil deeds; those whom You protect against evil deeds on that Day, on them You will have bestowed mercy indeed. That is indeed the supreme triumph."
10. Those who disbelieve will be informed (on that day), "Verily God's abhorrence is more terrible than your abhorrence one of another, when you were called to faith but you refused."
11. They will say, "Our Lord, twice You have made us lifeless, and twice You have given us life. Now we recognized our sins. Is there any way out (of this)?"
12. (The answer will be), "This is because, when God was invoked you rejected faith, but when partners were joined with Him, you believed. The Command is with God the Most High, the Great."
13. It is He who shows you His signs, and sends down provisions for you from the sky. But only those who turn to God will take heed.
14. So call upon God and dedicate your religion to Him alone, even though the disbelievers may resent it.
15. He is Exalted high in rank, the Lord of the Throne. He casts the Spirit of His command upon whomever He pleases of His servants; that it may warn of the Day of the Meeting.
16. The Day when they come forth, nothing of them being hidden from God. Whose is the Sovereignty this day? It is God's, the Unique, the Dominator.
17. Today each soul will be rewarded for whatever it has done; no injustice will be done. God is swift in reckoning.

18. Warn them of the ever-approaching Day, when the hearts choke the throats, (when) there will be no friend for the wrongdoers, nor any intercessor who will be obeyed.
19. He is aware of the stealthy glance and that which the breasts conceal.
20. And God will judge with truth, while whom they call upon besides Him cannot judge at all. Indeed, God is the All-Hearing, the All-Seeing. (40: 1 – 20)

The main theme of this Sura is the struggle between truth and falsehood, between faith and disbelief, between the Call and its rejection, and between the arrogance of people and the punishment of God. It is the first of seven Suras that all start with the Alphabetical letters, “Ha, Mim.” One of these Suras has the letters, “’Ain, Seen, Qaf,” following the first two letters. We have discussed before the rationale behind starting a Sura with these Alphabetical letters.

“The revelation of this Book is from God, the Eminent, the Omniscient; Forgiver of sins and Acceptor of repentance, severe in punishment, infinite in bounty. There is no deity except Him. To Him is the ultimate return.” The verse states a fact that has been often repeated in the Suras which were revealed in Mecca, the Book is a revelation from God. Then a number of God’s attributes are mentioned. These are His Eminence, His Omniscience, His Forgiveness, His Acceptance of repentance, His Severity in punishment, His Abundance of bounty and blessings, His Uniqueness, and to Him everything will ultimately return. These attributes are relevant to the theme of the Sura and they are closely related to the day to day life of God’s servants.

He is the Eminent. He is strong and able. He is invincible. He is the controller; no one can control Him.

He is the Omniscient. He manages the universe on the basis of His knowledge. Nothing is hidden from Him. He knows everything.

He is the Forgiver of sins. He forgives the sins of His servants; knowing who among His servants deserves forgiveness.

He is the Acceptor of repentance. He accepts the sinners who repent, opens His doors to them, and bestows His protection on them.

He is severe in punishment. He destroys the arrogant and punishes the stubborn who neither repent nor seek His forgiveness.

He is infinite in bounty. He favors His servants with unlimited bounty and multiplies their good deeds.

There is no deity except Him. He alone is God. He neither has a partner nor an associate. To Him is the ultimate return. No one will escape His meeting and no one can avoid being accountable to Him.

These attributes define clearly the relationship between God and His servants. Knowing these attributes, the servants come to know what to expect from their Creator; so they do what pleases Him and they avoid what angers Him.

“None argue concerning the revelations of God save those who disbelieve,” Only those who disbelieve in God argue and dispute about His revelations. God has decreed their fate. They will meet their fate no matter how powerful they are in this worldly life, “so let not their turn of fortune in the land deceive you.” Before them there were other nations who behaved similarly and their stories should be a lesson for the disbelievers of the day, “Before them the people of Noah rejected the truth, as did the confederates after them. Every community plotted against their prophet, to seize him, and argued falsely to refute the Truth. Then I seized them, and how (awful) was My punishment.” This story has happened often since the time of Noah (PBUH). God sends His Messenger and the tyrants reject him. Rather than engaging the messenger in a civilized debate, they take recourse to violence and they try to silence the messenger by force. Then God interferes, He saves the messenger and punishes the tyrants, “Then I seized them, and how (awful) was My punishment.” The tyrants are not only punished in this world, but they will also receive God’s punishment in the Hereafter, “Thus was the word of your Lord concerning those who disbelieve fulfilled that they are companions of the Fire.” This story presents a typical scenario for the struggle between faith and disbelief and between truth and falsehood, a scenario that was repeated often over the history of humanity. Falsehood may prevail for a while but the final victory is for the truth. This is a fact that those who take the responsibility for calling people to the word of God should know and understand. This should provide support for them in their struggle.

Another type of support for the believers who call to the word of God comes from the angels who pray God to forgive the believers and to support them in their struggle, “Those who carry the Throne (of God) and those around it, celebrate the praise of their Lord, believe in Him, and ask forgiveness for those who believe, ‘Our Lord, You have encompassed all things in mercy and knowledge, therefore forgive those who repented and followed Your way and save them from the torment of Hell. Our Lord, admit them into the Gardens of Eden, which You promised them, and the righteous among their fathers, their spouses, and their offspring. Indeed, You are the Eminent, the Wise. And protect them against (all) evil deeds; those whom You protect against evil deeds on that Day, on them You will have bestowed mercy indeed. That is indeed the supreme triumph.’” We do not know what is the Throne? Nor do we know how it looks like? We do not know how it is carried? These are all matters of the unseen which we should not speculate about. It is enough for us to believe that there are servants of God who, “celebrate the praise of their Lord, believe in Him,” and who pray God to support the believers among the mortals. The intent of the verse is to show the close relationship between the angels and the believers from among the human beings.

In their prayer, they ask God to bestow several things on the believers. They start their prayer respectfully by acknowledging that God’s mercy has encompassed everything. So the first thing they ask God for, is to extend His mercy to the believers. They follow that by asking God to forgive the believers. Their third prayer is for God to admit the believers, “into the Gardens of Eden.” The prayer continues to encompass the, “righteous among their fathers, their spouses, and their offspring.” This part of the prayer is concluded by a reference to God’s relevant attributes, “Indeed, You are the Eminent, the Wise.” The prayer continues to ask for God’s protection to be bestowed upon the believers. The prayer is concluded by stating the objective of the prayer, the achievement of, “the supreme triumph.”

While the angels are busy praying God for their believing brothers, we find the disbelievers in a contemptible situation, “Those who disbelieve will be informed (on that day), ‘Verily God's abhorrence is more terrible than your abhorrence one of another, when you were called to the faith but you refused.’” They realized that their leaders and friends who led them astray failed them and that the only refuge is with God, so they call upon God, “Our Lord, twice You have made us lifeless, and twice You have given us life. Now we recognized our sins. Is there any way out (of this)?” They will admit their sins and they will pray for forgiveness, but it will be too late now, “(The answer will be), ‘This is because, when God was invoked you rejected faith, but when partners were joined with Him, you believed. The Command is with God the Most High, the Great.’”

The verses turn to describe an attribute of God that is appropriate to the situation: commanding the believers to devote their worship to God alone, “It is He who shows you His signs, and sends down provisions for you from the sky. But only those who turn to God will take heed. So call upon God and dedicate your religion to Him alone, even though the disbelievers may resent it.” God's signs are abundant around us. He is the one who sends His provisions. One of God's provisions that descend on us is the rain. Water is the origin of life on this earth. People need it to drink and they use it to grow food. God's provisions go beyond rain. Only those who turn to God will remember these bounties. Believers should then devote their worship to God alone. Only He is worthy of worship, “He is Exalted high in rank, the Lord of the Throne. He casts the Spirit of His command upon whomever He pleases of His servants; that it may warn of the Day of the Meeting.” He sends His Message to whomsoever He wills. The Message, “Spirit,” brings life to people. The Message is revealed so that it warns people, “of the Day of the Meeting.”

On that day, all people, angels, and jinn will come together. People will have a chance to see what they have done in their lives. Nothing will be hidden on that day, “The Day when they come forth, nothing of them being hidden from God. Whose is the Sovereignty this day? It is God's, the Unique, the Dominator.” The arrogant will be humiliated and the proud will be humbled. The whole universe will witness and testify when they will be asked, “Whose is the Sovereignty this day?” and they will answer, “It is God's, the Unique, the Dominator.” It will then be stated, “Today each soul will be rewarded for whatever it has done; no injustice will be done. God is swift in reckoning.”

The verses turn to the Prophet (PBUH) commanding him to warn the disbelievers of Mecca, “Warn them of the ever-approaching Day, when the hearts choke the throats, (when) there will be no friend for the wrongdoers, nor any intercessor who will be obeyed. He is aware of the stealthy glance and that which the breasts conceal. And God will judge with truth, while whom they call upon besides Him cannot judge at all. Indeed, God is the All-Hearing, the All-Seeing.”

The Messenger (PBUH) was commanded to tell them that the Day of Resurrection is near. The verse paints a dynamic picture for that Day moving slowly towards them; people's hearts rising in their chests almost choking them out of fear. No one will be able to provide support or a word of comfort. They will not be able to conceal anything even the stealthy glance will be acknowledged. On that day, only God will be the judge and He will judge with the truth.

Verses 21 to 55:

21. Have they not travelled in the land and observed how those who disbelieved before them met their end? They were mightier than these in power and they left behind more impressive marks on earth. Yet God seized them for their sins, and they had no protector from God.
22. That was because their messengers kept bringing them clear signs but they disbelieved; so God seized them. He is Strong, severe in punishment.
23. And verily We sent Moses with Our revelations and a clear authority,
24. To Pharaoh, Haman, and Qaroun; but they called (him), "A lying sorcerer."
25. And when he brought them the truth from Us, they said, "Slay the sons of those who believe with him, and spare their women." But the plot of disbelievers can only go astray.
26. And Pharaoh said, "Let me kill Moses, and let him call upon his Lord. I fear that he will alter your religion or spread corruption in the land."
27. Moses said, "I have indeed sought refuge with my Lord and yours from every arrogant one who does not believe in the Day of Reckoning."
28. And a believing man from Pharaoh's folk, who hid his faith, said, "Would you kill a man because he says, 'My Lord is God,' and has brought you clear proofs from your Lord? If he is lying, then his lie is upon him; and if he is truthful, then some of that wherewith he threatens you will strike you. God does not guide him who is given to excesses, liar.
29. My People, yours is the dominion today, being uppermost in the land. But who would save us from the wrath of God should it reach us?" Pharaoh said, "I do not show you except what I see, and I do not guide you except to the path of prudence."
30. And he who believed said, "My people, I fear for you a fate like that of the confederates;
31. Something like the fate of the people of Noah, 'Ad, and Thamud, and those after them, and God does not desire injustice for (His) servants."
32. And, my people, "I fear for you the Day of calling out.
33. A day when you will turn to flee, having no defender from God. He whom God sends astray, for him there is no guide.
34. And verily Joseph brought you clear proofs, yet you remained in doubt of what he brought you till, when he died, you said, 'God will not send any messenger after him.' Thus God leaves to go astray he who is given to excesses, doubter.
35. Those who dispute God's revelations without any authority given to them, are doing something that is greatly hateful in the sight of God and in the sight of the believers. Thus does God seal upon the heart of every arrogant, tyrant."
36. Pharaoh said, "Haman, build for me a tower, that I may attain the means;
37. The means of (reaching) heavens, and that I may mount up to the god of Moses. But I think (Moses) is a liar." Thus was made alluring, in Pharaoh's eyes, the evil of his deeds, and he was hindered from the path; and the plot of Pharaoh led only to ruin.
38. And he who believed said, "My people, follow me. I will guide you to the right path.
39. My people, the life of this world is nothing but fleeting enjoyment. It is the Hereafter that is the home that will last.

40. Whoso does an ill-deed, he will be repaid the like thereof, while whoso does good deed, whether male or female, and is a believer, will enter the Garden, where they will be given provision without measure.
41. And my people, how is it that I call you to salvation while you call me to the Fire?
42. You call me to disbelieve in God, and to associate partners with Him of whom I have no knowledge; and I call you to the Eminent, the Full of Forgiveness.
43. Assuredly, that what you call me to has no say in this world or in the Hereafter, and we will return back to God, and those who are given to excesses are the inmates of the Fire.
44. And you will remember what I say to you. I entrust my cause to God. God is All-Seeing of the servants."
45. Then God saved him from the evils which they plotted, while a dreadful torment encompassed Pharaoh's folk.
46. The Fire; they will be brought before it mornings and evenings and on the Day the Hour comes, it will be said, "Admit Pharaoh's folk to the severest torment."
47. And when they dispute in the Fire, the weak will say to those who were arrogant, "We were your followers; will you therefore rid us of a portion of the Fire?"
48. Those who had been arrogant will say, "We are all in it. God has judged between the servants."
49. Those in the Fire will say to the keepers of Hell, "Ask your Lord to lessen our torment one day."
50. They will say, "Did not your messengers come to you with clear proofs?" They will say, "Yes". They will reply, "Then pray. But the prayer of the disbelievers is in vain."
51. We will, without doubt, help our messengers and those who believe, (both) in this world's life and on the Day when the witnesses will stand forth.
52. The Day when their excuses will not benefit the wrongdoers; and the curse will be upon them, and theirs will be the evil abode.
53. And We verily gave Moses the guidance, and We passed on the Scripture to the Children of Israel,
54. A guide and a reminder for people of understanding.
55. Persevere; God's promise is the truth. Ask forgiveness for your fault, and celebrate the praise of your Lord in the evening and in the morning. (40: 21 – 55)

The following verses reminded the disbelievers with the stories of previous nations. The verses directed them to travel, observe and understand the lesson, "Have they not travelled in the land and observed how those who disbelieved before them met their end? They were mightier than these in power and they left behind more impressive marks on earth. Yet God seized them for their sins, and they had no protector from God. That was because their messengers kept bringing them clear signs but they disbelieved; so God seized them. He is Strong, severe in punishment."

Then the story of Moses (PBUH) and Pharaoh is told, "And verily We sent Moses with Our revelations and a clear authority, To Pharaoh, Haman, and Qaroun; but they called (him), 'A lying sorcerer.'" This is a description of the first scene of the encounter between Moses (PBUH) and Pharaoh. When He brought them the truth, they had no logical argument against it so they took recourse to unfounded accusations, "they called (him), 'A lying sorcerer.'" When He continued to remind them of the truth, they took recourse to violence to silence him and his followers, “And when he brought them the truth from Us, they said, ‘Slay the sons of those who believe with him, and spare their women.’ But the plot of disbelievers can only go astray.”

Pharaoh suggested a way to get rid of this new religion, “And Pharaoh said, ‘Let me kill Moses, and let him call upon his Lord. I fear that he will alter your religion or spread corruption in the land.’” It seems from the way Pharaoh phrased his suggestion that there was some resistance to his suggestion. Someone might have suggested that killing Moses (PBUH) would not solve the problem. Killing him could make him a hero and a martyr. It is interesting to note what Pharaoh was afraid of, “I fear that he will alter your religion or spread corruption in the land.” This is the claim each and every tyrant makes to justify the persecution of the believers. Moses (PBUH), on the other hand, requested God’s help, “Moses said, ‘I have indeed sought refuge with my Lord and yours from every arrogant one who does not believe in the Day of Reckoning.’”

A man from Pharaoh’s associates, who secretly believed in Moses (PBUH), came out to defend Moses (PBUH). He tried to talk sense into Pharaoh and his advisors, “And a believing man from Pharaoh's folk, who hid his faith, said, ‘Would you kill a man because he says, ‘My Lord is God,’ and has brought you clear proofs from your Lord? If he is lying, then his lie is upon him; and if he is truthful, then some of that wherewith he threatens you will strike you. God does not guide him who is given to excesses, liar. My People, yours is the dominion today, being uppermost in the land. But who would save us from the wrath of God should it reach us?’” The man started by expressing his disgust at what they wanted to do to Moses (PBUH). They wanted to face Moses’ (PBUH) words of belief with brutal force. He told them about the evidence that Moses (PBUH) brought them which proved that he was telling the truth. The believer continued to argue, even if Moses (PBUH) were lying, he could only hurt himself. But if he was telling the truth and they did not heed his warning, then they would be destroyed by the wrath of God. He reminded his people that even though they had the power at that time, they should heed the warning. God’s wrath could destroy them anytime, “My People, yours is the dominion today, being uppermost in the land. But who would save us from the wrath of God should it reach us?”

However, Pharaoh used to think with the mind of a tyrant, “Pharaoh said, ‘I do not show you except what I see, and I do not guide you except to the path of prudence.’” The believer was not deterred by Pharaoh’s stubbornness. He continued to warn his people, “And he who believed said, ‘My people, I fear for you a fate like that of the confederates; something like the fate of the people of Noah, ‘Ad, and Thamud, and those after them, and God does not desire injustice for (His) servants;’ And, my people, ‘I fear for you the Day of calling out; a day when you will turn to flee, having no defender from God. He whom God sends astray, for him there is no guide.’” He continued to remind his people of the fate of those who came before them. He also reminded them of what they did to Joseph (PBUH), “And verily Joseph brought you clear proofs, yet you remained in doubt of what he brought you till, when he died, you said, ‘God will not send any messenger after him.’ Thus God leaves to go astray who is given to excesses, doubter.” This is the only place where Joseph’s (PBUH) mission in Egypt is mentioned in the Quran. We have known from Surat Joseph (Chapter 12) that Joseph (PBUH) reached a very powerful position in the Government of Egypt. He was in control of the stores of the land. Chapter 12 alludes also to the fact that Joseph (PBUH) sat on a throne. It could have been the throne of Egypt however; this is not confirmed. But even though Joseph (PBUH) was in such a powerful position, people still doubted him, and when he died they expressed their relief that they got rid of him. They thought that God would not send another messenger to them. The believing man continued to berate his people and to warn them not to dispute the revelations of God, “Those who dispute God’s revelations without any authority given to them, are doing something that is greatly hateful in the sight of God and in the sight of the believers. Thus does God seal upon the heart of every arrogant, tyrant.”

In spite of this tremendous effort on the part of the believing man, Pharaoh was adamant in embracing falsehood and rejecting the truth. He gave the impression that he wanted to verify what Moses (PBUH) was saying, so he adopted a new approach, “Pharaoh said, ‘Haman, build for me a tower, that I may attain the means; the means of (reaching) heavens, and that I may mount up to the god of Moses. But I think (Moses) is a liar.’ Thus was made alluring, in Pharaoh’s eyes, the evil of his deeds, and he was hindered from the path; and the plot of Pharaoh led only to ruin.” He asked his minister to build a tower for him so that he can climb up the tower in search of Moses’ (PBUH) God. It is unbelievable that he was serious in finding God. This must have been a trick to avoid having to refute the argument that the believing man made. However, Pharaoh’s scheme was doomed.

The believing man gave his people the last advice, “And he who believed said, ‘My people, follow me. I will guide you to the right path. My people, the life of this world is nothing but fleeting enjoyment. It is the Hereafter that is the home that will last. Whoso does an ill-deed, he will be repaid the like thereof, while whoso does good deed, whether male or female, and is a believer, will enter the Garden, where they will be given provision without measure. And my people, how is it that I call you to salvation while you call me to the Fire? You call me to disbelieve in God, and to associate partners with Him of whom I have no knowledge; and I call you to the Eminent, the Full of Forgiveness. Assuredly, that what you call me to has no say in this world or in the Hereafter, and we will return back to God, and those who are given to excesses are the inmates of the Fire. And you will remember what I say to you. I entrust my cause to God. God is All-Seeing of the servants.’” He told Pharaoh and his people that if they follow him he will guide them to the right path. This was a challenge to Pharaoh’s statement in which he declared that he has the exclusive right to define the right path for his people, “I do not show you except what I see, and I do not guide you except to the path of prudence.” The believing man explained to his people the basic fact that this life is a transient stage. It is the Hereafter that will last forever and they should work for it. The rule for accountability is stated, “Whoso does an ill-deed, he will be repaid the like thereof, while whoso does good deed, whether male or female, and is a believer, will enter the Garden, where they will be given provision without measure.” God, out of His mercy, promised to multiply the reward for those who do good deeds while limiting the punishment to the actual sins committed. He expressed his surprise at his people; he was calling them to salvation while they were actually calling him to be punished, “And my people, how is it that I call you to salvation while you call me to the Fire?” Strictly speaking they did not call him to the Fire but they called him to associate partners with God, but what is the difference between the two? Then he made his last argument, “Assuredly, that what you call me to has no say in this world or in the Hereafter, and we will return back to

God, and the extravagant are the inmates of the Fire.”

The narrative leaves out the details of the rest of the story of Pharaoh and goes directly to scenes that describe the fate of Pharaoh and his people in the Hereafter, “Then God saved him from the evils which they plotted, while a dreadful torment encompassed Pharaoh's folk. The Fire; they will be brought before it mornings and evenings and on the Day the Hour comes, it will be said, ‘Admit Pharaoh’s folk to the severest torment.’” The text suggests that the sentence, “The Fire; they will be brought before it mornings and evenings,” refers to a punishment before the Day of Judgment. It may be a reference to the torment in the grave, because it then followed by the statement, “and on the Day the Hour comes, it will be said, ‘Admit Pharaoh’s folk to the severest torment.’”

Then another scene is described, the scene of the dispute that will erupt between groups of people who were followers in their life and their leaders who led them astray, “And when they dispute in the Fire, the weak will say to those who were arrogant, ‘We were your followers; will you therefore rid us of a portion of the Fire?’” The followers and the leaders will be gathered together in Hell. God bestowed on them honor, free will, and dignity but they gave all that up and became followers without honor, free will, or dignity. The leaders will respond, “Those who had been arrogant will say, ‘We are all in it. God has judged between the servants.’”

The disbelievers will then turn to the keepers of Hell asking them to intercede on their behalf, “Those in the Fire will say to the keepers of Hell, ‘Ask your Lord to lessen our torment one day.’” The keepers of Hell know their limits; they will remind the disbelievers of the opportunities that they missed, “They will say, ‘Did not your messengers come to you with clear proofs?’ They will say, ‘Yes’. They will reply, ‘Then pray. But the prayer of the disbelievers is in vain.’”

This part of the narrative is concluded by an unequivocal statement from God, “We will, without doubt, help our messengers and those who believe, (both) in this world's life and on the Day when the witnesses will stand forth. The Day when their excuses will not benefit the wrongdoers; and the curse will be upon them, and theirs will be the evil abode. And We verily gave Moses the guidance, and We passed on the Scripture to the Children of Israel, a guide and a reminder for people of understanding. Persevere; God’s promise is the truth. Ask forgiveness for your fault, and celebrate the praise of your Lord in the evening and in the morning.” God will support His Messengers both in this life and in the Hereafter. It is understood that God’s victory is guaranteed in the Hereafter, but what about in the worldly life? In their lives some messengers were killed and some were expelled out of their homes. The believers were tortured, persecuted, and even executed. We need to put this promise in perspective. People’s standard judges the outcomes of events that take place in a limited piece of land, over a limited span of time; while we need to apply a comprehensive standard that judges the outcome of the events in the whole world over a long span of time. If we use that standard we conclude that God’s promise of support has been verified. When at the end faith scores the ultimate victory, we realize that this is the victory for all the believers.

Verses 56 to 77:

56. Those who dispute about the revelations of God without any authority bestowed on them, there is nothing in their breasts but (the quest of) greatness, which they shall never attain. So, seek refuge in God. He is indeed the All-Hearing, the All-Seeing.
57. Certainly the creation of the heavens and the earth is greater than the creation of the people, but most people do not know.
58. And the blind man and the seer are not equal, neither are those who believe and do good deeds and the evildoers. Little do you reflect?
59. The Hour will certainly come; there is no doubt about it. Yet most people do not believe.
60. And your Lord has said, "Call on Me and I will respond to you. Those who are too arrogant to worship Me will enter Hell, disgraced."
61. It is God who has made the night for you, that you may rest therein, and the day for seeing. God is bountiful to people, yet most people do not give thanks.
62. Such is God, your Lord; the Creator of everything; there is no deity but Him. How can you be deluded?
63. Thus are deluded those who rejected the revelations of God.
64. It is God who made for you the earth as a resting place, and the sky as a canopy, and has fashioned you and perfected your shapes, and provided you with good things. Such is God, your Lord. Then blessed be God, the Lord of the Worlds.
65. He is the Living One. There is no deity but Him. Call upon Him, devoting your religion to Him. Praise be to God, Lord of the Worlds.
66. Say (Muhammad), "I am forbidden to worship those whom you invoke besides God since there have come to me clear proofs from my Lord, and I am commanded to submit to the Lord of the Worlds.
67. It is He who has created you from dust then from a sperm-drop, then from a leech-like clot; then He brings you forth as a child; then lets you (grow and) reach your age of full strength; then lets you become old – though some of you will die sooner - and lets you reach an appointed term; in order that you may understand.
68. It is He who gives life and death; and when He ordains a thing, He only says to it, "Be," and it is.
69. Have you not seen those who dispute about God's revelations? How are they turned away?
70. Those who reject the Book and the (revelations) with which We sent our messengers, they will soon know.
71. When the yokes (shall be) round their necks, and the chains; and they shall be dragged.
72. In boiling water, then in the Fire they will be burned.
73. Then it will be said to them, "Where are the (deities) that you used to associate (in worship)
74. Besides God? They said, "They have failed us; but we were not praying to anything before." Thus does God send the disbelievers astray.
75. That was because you exulted in the land unjustly and because you behaved insolently.
76. Enter the gates of Hell, to dwell therein. Evil is the abode of the arrogant.
77. So persevere; for the promise of God is true: and whether We show you (in this life) a part of what We have promised them, or cause you to die, still to Us they will be returned. (40: 56 - 77)

This tiny human creature very often forgets how small in the scheme of things he is. He is dependent on his Creator. When the connection with his Creator is severed he becomes an easy prey to Satan who fills his mind with conceit and arrogance. He disputes about God's revelations. He claims that he disputes because he needs a convincing argument while in fact his dispute is rooted in his arrogance, "Those who dispute about the revelations of God without any authority bestowed on them, there is nothing in their breasts but (the quest of) greatness, which they shall never attain. So seek refuge in God. He is indeed the All-Hearing, the All-Seeing." Had the human being understood the nature of his existence in the context of the huge universe and the small role he was given to play in this life and had he realized that his duty is to excel in fulfilling his role, he would have felt content and secure. People should seek refuge in God of the arrogance that creeps into their hearts. God sees and hears and He will help those who seek His help.

The following helps humankind in understanding his role in the context of the whole universe, "Certainly the creation of the heavens and the earth is greater than the creation of the people, but most people do not know." Humankind should consider the vastness of the universe that we live in. Pride and arrogance will evaporate when humankind compares himself to this huge and complex universe. The only element that gives value to humankind is the divine breath that God breathed into him. Without this divine breath he would be nothing.

"And the blind man and the seer are not equal, neither are those who believe and do good deeds and the evildoers. Little do you reflect?" The one who is able to see can see, learn, and understand his limits; while the blind does not appreciate his limitations. He could overestimate his ability and may wander astray. Similarly, those who do good deeds do them because they see, understand, and appreciate; while those who do evil deeds do them because they are like the blind they do not see, understand, nor appreciate.

Those who dispute about the Hour should know that it will happen, "The Hour will certainly come; there is no doubt about it. Yet most people do not believe." People who do not believe that the Hour will come are the ones who dispute the revelations of God. God opens a door for them to reach peace and security by devoting themselves sincerely to God and ask Him for healing. He promised to respond favorably to those who ask Him, "And your Lord has said, 'Call on Me and I will respond to you.' Those who are too arrogant to worship me will enter Hell, disgraced." But those who are too arrogant to ask God, they will be doomed.

The following verses explore some of the bounties of God for which we should be grateful, "It is God who has made the night for you, that you may rest therein, and the day for seeing. God is bountiful to people, yet most people do not give thanks. Such is God, your Lord; the Creator of everything; there is no deity but Him. How can you be deluded? Thus are deluded those who rejected the revelations of God. It is God who made for you the earth as a resting place, and the sky as a canopy, and has fashioned you and perfected your shapes, and provided you with good things. Such is God, your Lord. Then blessed be God, the Lord of the Worlds.” The day and night are cosmic phenomena. The earth and heavens are cosmic planets. They are mentioned in the context of reminding people of God’s bounty alongside other bounties like the creation of humankind in the best fashion and the good provision that God has provided people with. The verses also refer to articles of the doctrine by reminding people of the Oneness God. This shows that all these issues are closely related. We need to reflect upon them in the wider context.

God created the universe in a way that allows the existence and progress of life on earth. He made the earth a habitable place for humankind and for other creatures. He created the night so that people can rest and created the day so that people can work and run their errands. God created the universe in well balanced equilibrium and delicately maintained that balance. This balance is necessary for the continuation of life on earth. These are closely related issues, they work in harmony. God who maintains this harmony deserves to be worshipped praised, “Then blessed be God, the Lord of the Worlds.”

God is ever living. He is the only one whose life is intrinsic. It is not acquired nor created. It has no beginning and no end, “He is the Living One. There is no deity but Him. Call upon Him, devoting your religion to Him. Praise be to God, Lord of the Worlds.”

The logical conclusion was then expressed in a command to the Prophet (PBUH), to devote himself completely to the worship of the One God, “Say (Muhammad), ‘I am forbidden to worship those whom you invoke besides God since there have come to me clear proofs from my Lord, and I am commanded to submit to the Lord of the Worlds.’” Then a list of the signs of the Majesty of God is given, “It is He who has created you from dust then from a sperm-drop, then from a leech-like clot; then He brings you forth as a child; then lets you (grow and) reach your age of full strength; then lets you become old – though some of you will die sooner - and lets you reach an appointed term; in order that you may understand. It is He who gives life and death; and when He ordains a thing, He only says to it, ‘Be,’ and it is.” People did not see how the creation of humankind started. But we know how life continues through mating and how the embryo is produced as a result of the combination of the sperm of a man and the egg of a woman. Human beings go through a standard cycle of life: childhood, youth, maturity and then old age. However, some people do not live to complete the whole cycle. God created life and death. When God wants to create something, all what He needs to do is to say, ‘Be,’ and it is.

It is surprising, in the light of these miracles, for some to continue in their dispute of God’s revelations, “Have you not seen those who dispute about God’s revelations? How are they turned away? Those who reject the Book and the (revelations) with which We sent our messengers, they will soon know. When the yokes (shall be) round their necks, and the chains; and they shall be dragged. In boiling water, then in the Fire they will be burned. Then it will be said to them, ‘Where are the (deities) that you used to associate (in worship), besides God?’ They said, ‘They have failed us; but we were not praying to anything before.’ Thus does God send the disbelievers astray. That was because you exulted in the land unjustly and because you behaved insolently. Enter the gates of Hell, to dwell therein. Evil is the abode of the arrogant.”

Those who disputed the revelations of God and rejected His Message will end up in Hell fire. They will be abandoned by their false deities. They will face a tremendous, humiliating torment.

The narrative then turns to the Prophet (PBUH) to reassure him and to support him in his mission. He is told to persevere but he was also told that he should focus on his role as a deliverer of the message, the end result is in the hands of God, “So persevere; for the promise of God is true: and whether We show you (in this life) a part of what We have promised them, or cause you to die, still to Us they will be returned.” It is natural that a human being yearns to seeing the fruits of his work. Also it is only human to wish to see how one’s enemies are being punished. God commands His Messenger (PBUH) to resist these human desires. Controlling these desires requires a special type of perseverance. This explains the command to the Prophet (PBUH) to persevere in this verse.

Verses 78 to 85:

78. Verily We sent messengers before you, among them those of whom We have told you, and some of whom We have not told you; and it was not given to any messenger that he should bring a sign except by God's leave, but when God's commandment comes just judgment will be passed between them; and there and then, the followers of falsehood will lose.
79. It is God who made cattle for you, that you may use some for riding and some for food;
80. And there are (other) benefits in them for you; that you may through them attain to any need (there may be) in your hearts; and on them and on ships you are carried.
81. And He shows you His signs: then which of the signs of God will you deny?
82. Have they not travelled in the land to see how the end of those before them was? They were more numerous than these and greater in strength, and made more impressive mark on the land, but what they earned did not avail them.
83. And when their messengers came to them with clear proofs, they exulted in the knowledge they had; but they were engulfed by the very punishment they mocked.
84. But when they saw Our punishment, they said, "We believe in God only and reject (all) that we used to associate (with Him).
85. But their professing the faith after they have seen Our punishment was not going to profit them. This is God's law which has indeed been ordained in regard to His servants, and there the unbelievers did lose. (40: 78 – 85)

God sent messengers before Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) the names of some of them were mentioned to the Prophet (PBUH) but some remained unknown, “Verily We sent messengers before you, among them those of whom We have told you, and some of whom We have not told you; and it was not given to any messenger that he should bring a sign except by God's leave, but when God's commandment comes just judgment will be passed between them; and there and then, the followers of falsehood will lose.” It is only human that we look for signs that give a concrete evidence of the truth. But the messenger’s role is to deliver the message. It is not his role to bring about miracles. Messengers are only mortals. It is God’s prerogative to send a sign whenever He wills.

Having said that, why do not those who want the Prophet (PBUH) to perform a miracle to prove his truthfulness reflect on the creation of God around them, “It is God who made cattle for you, that you may use some for riding and some for food; and there are (other) benefits in them for you; that you may through them attain to any need (there may be) in your hearts; and on them and on ships you are carried. And He shows you His signs: then which of the signs of God will you deny?” The creation of cattle is a miracle as much as the creation of humankind is a miracle. God not only created cattle but subjugated them to people for use in their daily life. Cattle provide humans with meat to eat and milk to drink and have other uses that people benefit from. Another sign of God are ships. Ships float on water and travel on sea by virtue of laws that God created. But there are those who still deny the signs of God and argue about His revelations.

“Have they not travelled in the land to see how the end of those before them was? They were more numerous than these and greater in strength, and made more impressive mark on the land, but what they earned did not avail them. And when their messengers came to them with clear proofs, they exulted in the knowledge they had; but they were engulfed by the very punishment they mocked. But when they saw Our punishment, they said, ‘We believe in God only and reject (all) that we used to associate (with Him).’ But their professing the faith after they have seen Our punishment was not going to profit them. This is God’s law which has indeed been ordained in regard to His servants, and there the disbelievers did lose.” Did they not learn from the history of previous nations who were mightier and more advanced than them? However, their power and their knowledge did not protect them from God’s punishment. They were very proud of their knowledge. Theirs was knowledge without faith which filled their hearts with arrogance and they mocked the messengers of God who came to guide them to the right path. Their arrogance led them to self-destruction. When they realized their bad end they regretted what they had done but it was too late and they lost.

Sura 41: Fussilat (Explained in Detail)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 36:

1. Ha, Mim.
2. A revelation from the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy.
3. A Book, whereof the verses are explained in detail; an Arabic Quran, for people who know.
4. Giving glad tidings and a warning. But most of them turn away so that they do not hear.
5. They say, "Our hearts are kept undercover from that to which you invite us, and in our ears there is a deafness, and between us and you there is a barrier so do (whatever you will); for we will indeed do (what we will)"
6. Say (Muhammad), "I am but a mortal like you. It has been revealed to me, that your God is One. So stand true to Him, and ask for His Forgiveness; and woe to those who associate partners with God.
7. Who do not give the poor-due, and who disbelieve in the Hereafter.
8. Those who believe and do good deeds, for them is a reward that will never fail."
9. Say, "Do you disbelieve in Him who created the earth in two days? And do you set up equals to Him? He is the Lord of the worlds.
10. He placed therein firm mountains rising above it, and blessed it and determined therein its sustenance in four days, alike for (all) who ask;
11. Then turned He to the heaven when it was smoke, and said to it and to the earth, "Come both of you, willingly or unwillingly." They said, "We come, willingly."
12. Then He formed them as seven heavens in two days and inspired in each heaven its mandate; and We decorated the lower heaven with lamps, and rendered it inviolable. That is the determination of the Eminent, the Omniscient.
13. But if they turn away, say you, "I have warned you of a thunderbolt like the one which overtook 'Aad and Thamud."
14. When their messengers came to them from before them and from behind them, saying, "Worship none but God." They said, "If our Lord had willed, He surely would have sent down angels, so we disbelieve in that which you have been sent with."
15. As for 'Aad, they were arrogant in the land without right, and they said, "Who is mightier than us in power?" Could they not see that God who created them, He was mightier than them in power? And they rejected Our revelations.
16. So We sent against them a raging wind in evil days, that We might give them a taste of the torment of humiliation in this life; but the torment of the Hereafter will be more humiliating still; and they will find no help.
17. As for Thamud, We gave them guidance, but they preferred blindness (of heart) over guidance; so the stunning torment of humiliation seized them, because of what they had earned.
18. But We delivered those who believed and were conscious of God.
19. On the day that the enemies of God will be gathered together to the Fire, they will be marched in ranks.

20. When they reach it, their hearing, their sight, and their skins will bear witness against them as to what they used to do.
21. They will say to their skins, "Why did you bear witness against us?" They will say, "God has given us the ability to speak as He has given the ability to speak to everything. He created you in the first instance, and to Him you will be brought back.
22. You did not seek to hide yourselves, lest your hearing, your sight, and your skins should bear witness against you. But you did think that God knew not many of the things that you used to do.
23. And this thought of yours which you did entertain concerning your Lord, has ruined you; and you find yourselves (this day) among the losers."
24. And though they may persevere, yet the Fire is still their abode; and if they ask for favor, they are not of those on whom favors can be bestowed.
25. And We have assigned them companions, who made alluring to them what was before them and what was behind them; and the sentence has come into effect on generations of jinn and people before them, who have passed away. They were ever losers.
26. The disbelievers say, "Do not listen to this Quran, and make noise (while it is being recited), perhaps you may prevail."
27. But verily We shall cause those who disbelieve to taste severe torment, and verily We shall recompense them according to the worst of what they used to do.
28. That is the recompense of God's enemies: The Fire. Therein is their immortal home, payment for their rejection of Our revelations.
29. And the disbelievers will say, "Our Lord, show us those, among jinn and people, who misled us; so that We shall place them underneath our feet, so that they become the lowest."
30. Those who say, "Our Lord is God," and continue on the straight path, the angels descend upon them, saying, "Fear not nor grieve, but hear good tidings of the paradise which you were promised.
31. We are your allies in this life and in the Hereafter; therein you shall have all that your souls shall desire; therein you shall have all that you ask for,"
32. A gift of welcome from the All-Forgiving, the Giver of Mercy."
33. Who is better in speech than one who calls to God, does good deeds, and says, "I am of those who submit to God"?"
34. The good deed and the evil deed are not alike. Repel the evil deed with one which is better, then he between you and him there was enmity (will become) as though he was a bosom friend.
35. And no one will be granted (such goodness) except those who persevere, and none is granted it except those who have the greatest good fortune.
36. And if a whisper from the devil reaches you then seek refuge in God. He is the All-Hearing, the Omniscient. (41: 1 – 36)

This Sura deals with the fundamental elements of the doctrine: The Oneness of God, the Hereafter, and the revelation. In addition, it outlines a methodology for calling people to the straight path and the characteristics of the caller. One of the main themes of the Sura, according to Hawwa, is explaining the way to become conscious of God. This is indicated by the two commands: To worship God alone and to abstain from associating partners with God.

The Sura starts with the two Alphabetical letters, "Ha, Mim." We discussed the significance of these letters earlier. The repetitive use of this style in starting different Suras is meant to emphasize the significance of this style. It is congruent with the style of Quran in repeating the facts that touch the human heart. This is an appropriate style to deal with the forgetful nature of the human heart. The second verse, "A revelation from the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy," can be combined with the first verse to form a sentence in which the first the two Alphabetical letters are the noun and the second verse is the predicate. Thus, the Quran which has been composed using the Arabic Alphabetical letters is a revelation from God. The reference to God, the author of the Book, using His merciful attributes is most appropriate since the Book was revealed as a mercy to the whole humanity. It is a mercy not only for the believers but for all human beings. It is a mercy not only for the human beings but also for all God's living creation.

"A Book, whereof the verses are explained in detail; an Arabic Quran, for people who know." One of the obvious characteristics of the Book is its ability to provide explanations that cater to people having different levels of intellect; living at different times and in different places; and having different needs. The verses of the Book have been detailed for people who are willing to learn. The objectives of the Quran are to give glad tidings and to warn people, "Giving glad tidings and a warning." It gives glad tidings to the believers who do good deeds and it warns the disbelievers who spread mischief. The glad tidings and the warning were explained in an explicit Arabic language. However, many turned away refusing to listen, "But most of them turn away so that they do not hear." The Arabs used to literally avoid listening to the Quran. They did not want to listen for fear of the effect that the Quran might have on their hearts. They tried to protect their hearts from the impact of the Quran, "They say, 'Our hearts are kept undercover from that to which you invite us, and in our ears there is a deafness, and between us and you there is a barrier so do (whatever you will); for us, we will do (what we will).'" They used to say to the Prophet (PBUH) that their hearts are covered, their ears are deaf, and there is a physical barrier between them and him, so leave us alone. He (PBUH) can do whatever he pleases and they will do whatever pleases them.

This was an example of the responses that the Prophet (PBUH) used to receive. However, he (PBUH) was commanded to persevere and to continue on his way to call people to Islam. He was commanded to emphasize that he (PBUH) was only a messenger. It is God who has the final say, "Say you, 'I am but a mortal like you. It has been revealed to me, that your God is One. So stand true to Him, and ask for His Forgiveness; and woe to those who associate partners with God.'" Perseverance is an essential quality of those who take the responsibility of calling people to God. They should endure the abuse and the hardship that they face. The verses continue to describe the disbelievers, "Who do not give the poor-due, and who disbelieve in the Hereafter." The mention of the poor-dues in this verse must have been in response to a specific event that we are not aware of, because although the concept of the poor-due (Zakat) was known at that time but it was not yet ordained as one of the prescribed rituals for Muslims. This verse was revealed in Mecca while the poor-due (Zakat) was ordained in Medina. Some scholars are of the opinion that Zakat in this verse refers to the spiritual purity gained by the belief in the Oneness of God.

The following verses explore some of the facts related to the creation of heavens and earth. The creation of earth is mentioned first, “Say, ‘Do you disbelieve in Him who created the earth in two days? And do you set up equals to Him? He is the Lord of the worlds. He placed therein firm mountains rising above it, and blessed it and determined therein its sustenance in four days, alike for (all) who ask;’” How dare they associate partners with the Lord of the worlds who created the earth in two days? The days mentioned in the verse refer to time periods that only God knows their length. The Arabic word which has been translated here as “mountains,” literally means stabilizers; from which we understand that the mountains were created to stabilize the earth. God blessed the earth and created the sustenance for the creatures who live on it.

“Then turned He to the heaven when it was smoke, and said to it and to the earth, ‘Come both of you, willingly or unwillingly.’ They said, ‘We come, willingly.’” This dialogue highlights the perfect control that God has over the universe. Everything in the universe expresses its willing obedience to God except the human being who sometimes has to obey unwillingly. The human being is a tiny part of this universe. He is controlled by the same laws that God created to control the universe. Life could be much easier and happier if we follow the law willingly. However, many choose not to follow the law willingly and the results are catastrophic.

God formed the heavens in two periods, “Then He formed them as seven heavens in two days and inspired in each heaven its mandate; and We decorated the lower heaven with lamps, and rendered it inviolable. That is the determination of the Eminent, the Omniscient.” We do not know exactly what is meant by the term “the lower heaven.” It could be a reference to the nearest galaxy to the earth. This lower heaven was also protected against the incursion of the devils. This is the determination of God, the Eminent, the Omniscient.

The consequence for turning away is then mentioned, “But if they turn away, say you, ‘I have warned you of a thunderbolt like the one which overtook ‘Ad and Thamud.’ When their messengers came to them from before them and from behind them, saying, ‘Worship none but God.’ They said, ‘If our Lord had willed, He surely would have sent down angels, so we disbelieve in that which you have been sent with.’ As for ‘Ad, they were arrogant in the land without right, and they said, ‘Who is mightier than us in power?’ Could they not see that God who created them, He was mightier than them in power? And they rejected Our revelations. So We sent against them a raging wind in evil days, that We might give them a taste of the torment of humiliation in this life; but the torment of the Hereafter will be more humiliating still; and they will find no help. As for Thamud, We gave them guidance, but they preferred blindness (of heart) over guidance; so the stunning torment of humiliation seized them, because of what they had earned. But We delivered those who believed and were conscious of God.” This dire warning which was issued to the idolaters of Mecca came as an appropriate response to their audacity and stubbornness in associating partners with God. The story behind this warning has been narrated by Ibn Ishaq.

One day the chiefs of Quraish were debating what to do in face of the increasing strength of Islam as the number of the Muslims grew larger. ‘Utba Ibn Rabee’a suggested that he would negotiate an agreement with Prophet Muhammad (PBUH). He then went to see the Prophet (PBUH). He said, “The son of my brother, we recognize your rank and status among us, but you brought this new religion which spread divisions among the members of the community. Let me offer you an agreement to resolve this situation.” The Prophet (PBUH) said, “I am listening.” ‘Utba said, “If it were wealth you are after, we could raise a huge amount of money to give you. If it were honor and status that you are after, we could make you a king over us. If the revelation that you say you receive is a hallucination spell that overcomes you, we could seek the best of doctors to treat you and we would spare no amount of money in order for you to get cured.” The Prophet (PBUH) said, “Now it is your turn to listen to me.” The Prophet (PBUH) recited this Sura while ‘Utba listened to him. When he finished, ‘Utba left and went back to his colleagues. When they saw him, they noticed that his demeanor has changed. He said to the chiefs of Quraish, “By God, I never heard anything like what I heard from Muhammad. It is not the words of a magician, a poet, or a soothsayer. My advice is to leave this man alone. I think his words will soon spread among the Arabs. The Arabs may reject his message and destroy him, this way you are saved of the trouble of dealing with him; but if they accept his message, honored him, and raised him to prominence you would have a share in the honor that he will receive.” His colleagues did not like his advice; they thought that he was bewitched by Muhammad’s (PBUH) recitation.

The following verses illustrate the power that God has over His creation. Human beings do not even have control over their own senses. Only God has absolute power, “On the day that the enemies of God will be gathered together to the Fire, they will be marched in ranks. When they reach it, their hearing, their sight, and their skins will bear witness against them as to what they used to do. They will say to their skins, ‘Why did you bear witness against us?’ They will say, ‘God has given us the ability to speak as He has given the ability to speak to everything. He created you in the first instance, and to Him you will be brought back. You did not seek to hide yourselves, lest your hearing, your sight, and your skins should bear witness against you. But you did think that God knew not many of the things that you used to do. And this thought of yours which you did entertain concerning your Lord, has ruined you; and you find yourselves (this day) among the losers.’” On the Day of Judgment, the enemies of God will be gathered in flocks. They will march to Hell fire. Their tongues will be tied but their senses of hearing, seeing, and feeling will speak. Their senses will bear witness to what they used to do. They committed sins in secret thinking that God was unaware of what they did, but here are their own senses bearing witness against them. What a horrible surprise will the disbelievers have? They will ask their skins why did they testify against them and the response will be, “God has given us the ability to speak as He has given the ability to speak to everything.” God will enable the skins to speak as He enabled the tongues to speak. He created you and to Him you will return. There is no escape from Him. Their skins will reiterate the facts that their minds rejected before.

“And though they may persevere, yet the Fire is still their abode; and if they ask for favor, they are not of those on whom favors can be bestowed.” Now it is too late, whether they resign themselves to accept the punishment or seek forgiveness, their destination is Hell fire.

The verses go back to their life on earth and explain how their rejection of faith brought them into the company of evil friends, “And We have assigned them companions, who made alluring to them what was before them and what was behind them; and the sentence has come into effect on generations of jinn and people before them, who have passed away. They were ever losers.” Having known the state of their corrupt hearts, God assigned to them evil companions who tempted them further in committing sins. They thought that they can arrogantly reject the belief in their Creator but they ended up losing everything.

One of the tactics of the chiefs of Quraish was to prohibit people from listening to the Quran, “The disbelievers say, ‘Do not listen to this Quran, and make noise (while it is being recited), perhaps you may prevail.’” They were afraid that people will be bewitched when they listen to the Quran. They even went further by asking people to distract the believers when they start reciting the Quran. These were desperate measures that they had to take recourse to, since they were unable to challenge the Quran on rational basis. God threatened them with severe punishment as a response to these tactics, “But verily We shall cause those who disbelieve to taste painful torment, and verily We shall recompense them according to the worst of what they used to do. That is the recompense of God's enemies: The Fire. Therein is their immortal home, payment for their rejection of Our revelations.” On the Day of Judgment, when they will see themselves in Hell fire, they will be angry at those who misled them before, “And the disbelievers will say, ‘Our Lord, show us those, among jinn and people, who misled us; so that We shall place them underneath our feet, so that they become the lowest.’”

The situation of the believers is contrasted against the situation of the disbelievers. God will command the angels to fill the hearts of the believers with harmony, peace, and security in their lifetime and bring them glad tidings of their admission to paradise, “Those who say, ‘Our Lord is God,’ and continue on the straight path, the angels descend upon them, saying, ‘Fear not nor grieve, but hear good tidings of the paradise which you were promised. We are your allies in this life and in the Hereafter; therein you shall have all that your souls shall desire; therein you shall have all that you ask for.’” On the Day of Judgment they will be given the gift of welcome to paradise because they remained on the straight path during their lifetime, “A gift of welcome from the All-Forgiving, the Giver of Mercy.” Remaining on the straight path is a challenging feat, thus it deserves great bounty from God.

This group of verses end with a directive to the Prophet (PBUH) outlining the attributes which a person who calls to God should have, “Who is better in speech than one who calls to God, does good deeds, and says, ‘I am of those who submit to God’?” Calling people to God is a difficult task. People rejection to such calls may be motivated by their fear of losing power, status, or wealth. They may be even simply stubborn. The task of calling people to God is the noblest task that anyone can undertake. The person who calls to God should do so in a nice way even if the people ridiculed or abused him, “The good deed and the evil deed are not alike. Repel the evil deed with one which is better, then he, between you and him there was enmity (will become) as though he was a bosom friend.” One should respond to a bad word with a good word. This tactic may even remove the enmity between people. This is a major undertaking. Those who are able to do so will be given a great reward, “And no one will be granted (such goodness) except those who persevere, and none is granted it except those who have the greatest good fortune.”

Ibn Katheer said, “’Ali ibn abi Talha quoted Ibn ‘Abbas’ interpretation of this verse. He said, ‘The verse commands the believers to persevere when they are angry, to be forbearing when they are insulted, and to forgive when they wronged. If they do so, then God will protect them from Satan. Those who wronged them will become their friends.’”

The Prophet (PBUH) gave the best example of this practice. He never became angry in response to personal abuse or insult. Anger is motivated by Satan, “And if a whisper from the devil reaches you then seek refuge in God. He is the All-Hearing, the Omniscient.” The response of the believer should be to seek refuge with God.

Verses 37 to 54:

37. Among His signs are the night and the day, and the sun and the moon. Do not prostrate to the sun or the moon, but prostrate to God, who created them, if it is Him you worship.
38. But if they are arrogant, those in the presence of your Lord do celebrate His praise by night and by day; and they are never tired.
39. And among His signs that you see the earth barren; but when We send down rain on it, it is stirred to life and grows. Truly, He who gives life to the (dead) earth can surely give life to (people) who are dead. He has power over all things.
40. Those who distort Our revelations are not hidden from Us. Which is better? he who is cast into the Fire or he that comes safe through, on the Day of Resurrection? Do what you will; verily He sees all that you do.
41. Those who disbelieved in the message when it came to them. And indeed it is an invincible Book.
42. No falsehood can approach it from before or behind it. It is sent down by the Wise, the Praised.
43. Nothing was said to you that was not said to the messengers before you. Indeed, your Lord is the owner of forgiveness, and owner of dire punishment.
44. Had We sent this as a Quran (in a language) other than Arabic, they would have said, “Why are not its verses explained in detail?” Is it a non-Arabic book and an Arab Messenger? Say, “It is a guide and a healing for those who believe; and for those who disbelieve, there is deafness in their ears, and blindness in their (eyes). It is as if they were being called from a distant place.”
45. We certainly gave Moses the Scripture but disputes arose therein. Had it not been for a decree that went forth before from your Lord, (their differences) would have been settled between them; but they are in hopeless doubt concerning it.
46. Whoever does good deeds, it benefits his own soul; whoever does evil deeds, it is against his own soul. Your Lord is never unjust to the servants.
47. To Him is referred the knowledge of the Hour (of Judgment). No date-fruit comes out of its sheath, nor does a female conceive except by His knowledge. And on the Day when He will call upon them, “Where are the partners you attributed to Me?” They will say, “We declare to You, none of us is a witness.”

48. And those whom they used to invoke before failed them; and they realized that there is no escape for them.
49. Humankind does not tire of asking for good, and if ill touches him, then he is despairing, hopeless.
50. When we give him a taste of mercy from Ourselves after some adversity has touched him, he is sure to say, "This is my own; and I do not expect the Hour will ever come, and if I am brought back to my Lord, I will surely be better off with Him - But We verily shall tell those who disbelieve (all) what they did, and We verily shall make them taste hard torment.
51. When We bestow blessings on humankind, he turns away, and gets himself remote on his side (instead of coming to Us); and when evil touches him, he makes lengthy supplications.
52. Say, "Do you see if the (Revelation) is (really) from God, and you reject it? Who is more astray than one who is in a prolonged schism?"
53. We will show them our signs in the horizons, and in their own souls, until it becomes manifest to them that this is the Truth. Is it not enough that your Lord does witness all things?
54. Are they still in doubt about the meeting with their Lord? Does not He encompass all things. (41: 37 – 54)

“Among His signs are the night and the day, and the sun and the moon. Do not prostrate to the sun or the moon, but prostrate to God, Who created them, if it is Him you worship.” These are apparent signs that can be seen by everyone. They are fascinating signs dearly cherished by the human heart even if the person is ignorant of its scientific significance. The Quran always tries to evoke the feelings that connect the humankind to these signs. However, some people took their fascination with these signs a step further. They started worshipping the sun and the moon and other cosmic planets. The verse’s objective is to rectify this transgression. It is telling these people that the Creator of these cosmic bodies is the one worthy of being worshipped. It does not matter if they persist, because God is being worshipped by His closest servants. The closest servants include the angels as well as others of His creatures, “But if they are arrogant, those in the presence of your Lord do celebrate His praise by night and by day; and they are never tired.”

Another of God’s signs is the earth, from which they were created and to which they will return. This is the earth which provides their sustenance. This earth stands in humility as it receives life from God, “And among His signs that you see the earth barren; but when We send down rain on it, it is stirred to life and grows. Truly, He who gives life to the (dead) earth can surely give life to (people) who are dead. He has power over all things.” The Arabic word which has been translated here as “barren,” has the connotation of standing in humility. One should stop here to reflect on the meaning of the expression that the earth is standing in humility. The term describes the state of complete calmness of the earth when it is dry. When water falls on the earth, its atoms vibrate and the soil grows as if it was expressing its gratitude and praying to God. The Creator who could to restore life to the dead earth can restore life to the dead human beings.

The verses then turn to rebuke and threaten those who ignore these signs and blaspheme God. God knows and sees all what they do. The threat of Hell fire is waiting for them, “Those who distort Our revelations are not hidden from Us. Which is better? he who is cast into the Fire or he that comes safe through, on the Day of Resurrection? Do what you will; verily He sees all that you do.”

The narrative turns to those who disbelieved in God’s revelation, “Those who disbelieved in the message when it came to them. And indeed it is an invincible Book.” The verse does not specify those who disbelieved nor does it spell out what will happen to them as if it is too disdainful to mention them explicitly. But the verse continues to praise the Book that they disbelieved in. This Book is invincible. Its integrity cannot be preached by falsehood because it is a revelation from the Wise, the Praised, “No falsehood can approach it from before or behind it. It is sent down by the Wise, the Praised.”

God sent one single message, it the same message that was received by all messengers. People’s response to the message was always the same. The message was received by rejection, “Nothing was said to you that was not said to the messengers before you. Indeed, your Lord is the owner of forgiveness, and owner of dire punishment.” These were comforting words to the Prophet (PBUH) telling him that he does not stand alone. He is a member of the big family of the messengers chosen by God to carry the responsibility of delivering His message to humankind. He was further comforted by the reminder that God is, “Indeed, your Lord is the owner of forgiveness, and owner of dire punishment.”

“Had We sent this as a Quran (in a language) other than Arabic, they would have said, ‘Why are not its verses explained in detail?’ Is it a non-Arabic book and an Arab Messenger?” Even though the Quran was written in the language of the Arabs, they chose to ignore it. Not only they prohibited people to listen to its recitation but they also commanded people to make noise while it was recited to distract anyone who wanted to listen. Had it been revealed in another language, they would have raised other objections. The crux of the matter is that this Quran brings healing to the souls of the believers. The disbelievers are deaf, they cannot hear the Quran being recited; and they are blind, they cannot see its signs, “Say, ‘It is a guide and a healing for those who believe; and for those who disbelieve, there is deafness in their ears, and blindness in their (eyes). It is as if they were being called from a distant place.’”

The verses make reference to the Scripture which has been revealed to Moses (PBUH) as an example of the divine Scriptures, “We certainly gave Moses the Scripture but disputes arose therein. Had it not been for a decree that went forth before from your Lord, (their differences) would have been settled between them; but they are in hopeless doubt concerning it.”

Then the golden rule is stated: the punishment and reward are congruent with the deed, “Whoever does good deeds, it benefits his own soul; whoever does evil deeds, it is against his own soul. Your Lord is never unjust to the servants.”

Only God knows when the Hour will take place, “To Him is referred the knowledge of the Hour (of Judgment). No date-fruit comes out of its sheath, nor does a female conceive except by His knowledge. And on the Day when He will call upon them, ‘Where are the partners you attributed to Me?’ They will say, ‘We declare to You, none of us is a witness.’” The Hour is part of the unseen, similarly the date-fruit in its sheath and the baby in its mother’s womb are part of the unseen.

“And those whom they used to invoke before failed them; and they realized that there is no escape for them. Humankind does not tire of asking for good, and if ill touches him, then he is despairing, hopeless. When we give him a taste of mercy from Ourselves after some adversity has touched him, he is sure to say, ‘This is my own; and I do not expect the Hour will ever come, and if I am brought back to my Lord, I will surely be better off with Him’ - But We verily shall tell those who disbelieve (all) what they did, and We verily shall make them taste hard torment.” Greed is a trait for those who are not guided. They always want more. But when they are touched by an affliction, they despair. Because they had severed their ties with God, they have no one to seek refuge with when a calamity strikes. However, when God bestows a bounty on them, they forget to show gratitude to God. They think they earned the bounty as a result of their efforts, “When We bestow blessings on humankind, he turns away, and gets himself remote on his side (instead of coming to Us); and when evil touches him, he makes lengthy supplications.”

“Say, ‘Do you see if the (Revelation) is (really) from God, and you reject it? Who is more astray than one who is in a prolonged schism?’” What will the disbelievers do when the truth that the Quran was God’s revelation, is revealed? They should have at least considered this possibility.

“Soon will We show them our signs in the horizons, and in their own souls, until it becomes manifest to them that this is the Truth. Is it not enough that your Lord does witness all things? Are they still in doubt about the meeting with their Lord? Does not He encompass all things.” This is a promise that God will show humankind some of His signs. These signs will reveal some of the unseen facts about the universe and about themselves. This promise was fulfilled to a great extent during the last fourteen centuries. Humankind gained a great deal of knowledge about the facts surrounding the nature of creation, the composition of the universe, the matter, and the earth. Many discoveries were made which revealed the laws that control the motion of the earth and the other planets. Studies of the human bodies led to discoveries about the nature and composition of the human body. More is known about the ailments that afflict the human body and how to cure them. More is being revealed about the human spirituality and human psyche. As time goes by, we will know more about the signs of God in the horizons and in ourselves.

Sura 42: Al-Shura (Consultation)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 24:

1. Ha-Mim
2. 'Ain. Sin. Qaf.
3. Thus does (He) send revelation to you as (He did) to those before you, God, the Eminent, the Wise.
4. To Him belongs all that is in the heavens and all that on earth; and He is the Most High, the Great.
5. The heavens are almost rent asunder from above and the angels celebrate the praise of their Lord, and pray for forgiveness for (all) beings on earth. Verily God is He, the All-Forgiving, the Giver of Mercy.
6. And those who take as protecting guardians others besides Him, God watches over them; and you are not a guardian over them.
7. Thus We revealed to you an Arabic Quran, that you may warn the Mother of the cities and those around it; and warn (them) of the Day of the Assembly, of which there is no doubt; (when) some will be in the Garden, and some in the blazing Fire.
8. If God had so willed, He could have made them a single people; but He admits whom He wills to His mercy; and the wrongdoers will have neither a protecting guardian nor a helper.
9. Or have they chosen protecting guardians besides Him? But God, He (alone) is the Protecting Guardian. He gives life to the dead, and He has power over all things.
10. And in whatsoever you differ, the verdict therein belongs to God. Such is my Lord, in whom I put my trust, and to whom I turn;
11. The Creator of the heavens and the earth. He made for you pairs of yourselves, and of the cattle also pairs, whereby He multiplies you. Nothing is like Him; and He is the All-Hearing, the All-Seeing.
12. To Him belong the keys of the heavens and the earth. He enlarges and restricts the sustenance to whom He wills; for He has full knowledge of everything.
13. He ordained for you that religion which He enjoined upon Noah, and that which We revealed to you (Muhammad), and that which We enjoined upon Abraham, Moses, and Jesus, saying, "Establish the religion, and be not divided therein." It seems dreadful for the idolaters, that which you are calling them to. God chooses for Himself whom He wills, and guides unto Himself him who turns (toward Him).
14. And they became divided only after knowledge reached them, through selfish envy between themselves. Had it not been for a word that went forth before, from your Lord, for an appointed term, the matter would have been settled between them. But truly those who have inherited the Scripture after them are in disquieting doubt concerning it.
15. So to that (religion) invite (Muhammad). And remain upright as you are commanded, and do not follow their whims, but say, "I believe in whatever Scripture God has sent down, and I am commanded to judge justly among you. God is our Lord and your Lord. For us are our deeds and for you are your deeds; no argument between us and you. God will bring us together, and to Him is the return."

16. But those who dispute concerning God after He has been accepted, futile is their dispute in the sight of their Lord. For them will be a severe torment.
17. It is God who has sent down the Book with the truth and the balance. How can you know? It may be that the Hour is near.
18. Those who do not believe therein seek to hasten it, while those who believe are fearful of it and know that it is the truth. Now most surely those who dispute obstinately concerning the Hour are in a great error.
19. God is Subtle with His servants. He provides for whom He wills. And He is the Strong, the Eminent.
20. Whoso desires the harvest of the Hereafter, We increase for him his harvest. And whoso desires the harvest of this world, We give him thereof, and he has no portion in the Hereafter.
21. Or have they partners (of God) who have made lawful for them in religion that which God did not allow? Were it not for a decisive word (gone forth already), it would have been judged between them. The wrongdoers will have a painful torment.
22. You will see the wrongdoers in fear on account of what they have earned, and (the burden of) that must fall on them. But those who believe and do righteous deeds will be in the flowering meadows of the Gardens. They will have what they wish from their Lord. This is the supreme blessing.
23. That is what God gives glad tidings of to His servants who believed and did righteous deeds. Say, "I ask you no reward for this except the love of those near of kin." And if any one earns any good, We shall add to its good for him; God is All-Forgiving, Grateful.
24. Or do they say, "He has invented a lie about God?" If God willed, He could have sealed your heart. And God will wipe out the lie and will establish the truth by His words. He is Aware of what is hidden in the breasts (of people). (42: 1 – 24)

The theme of this Sura, like the other Meccan Suras, is the doctrine. However, the discussion is focused on the truthfulness of the revelation and the Message. It could be said that this is the main theme of the Sura. Other topics are woven into the discussion; however, they are all connected somehow to the main theme. Some of these topics are the concept of the Oneness of God, the inevitability of the Hereafter, description of the scenes of the Hereafter, the attributes of the believers, the different levels of livelihood awarded to people and the response of humankind to afflictions and happy times. However, the truthfulness of the revelation and the Message remain the prominent themes that all these topics revolve around.

"Ha-Mim A'in. Sin. Qaf. Thus does (He) send revelation to you as (He did) to those before you, God, the Eminent, the Wise. To Him belongs all that is in the heavens and all that on earth; and He is the Most High, the Great. The heavens are almost rent asunder from above and the angels celebrate the praise of their Lord, and pray for forgiveness for (all) beings on earth. Verily God is He, the All-Forgiving, the Giver of Mercy. And those who take as protecting guardians others besides Him, God watches over them; and you are not a guardian over them." We have dealt with significance of the incursive Alphabetical letters that appear in the beginning of some Suras before. The Sura starts with a statement addressed to Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) about the revelation. He has been given a revelation similar to the revelations that were given to previous messengers of God. It consists of words and expressions which people are familiar with and whose meanings and significance can be understood by them, however they will not be able to compose similar text. The statement also determines in an unequivocal tone that God, the Eminent, the Wise is the source of all revelations. All the revelations received by God's messengers, over the span of the history of humanity, embody the same message. This establishes the authenticity of the message and the common bond that binds all the believers who believed in the different revelations at all times and in all places. God has the power to choose whomsoever He wills to be a recipient of His revelation and He does that wisely. He is the true owner of the kingdom of heavens and earth. People's ownership of things is a transient ownership but God's ownership is permanent and eternal. He is the Most High, the Great. Once these facts are understood, people should then realize that God is the only One worthy of being asked. No human being can give. God is the Giver.

The heaven consists of the huge constellations which we see above us as inhabitants of the earth. We truly, know very little about them. These huge constellations are almost rent asunder as a result of their fear of God and being in awe of Him. The angels continue to praise God. They recognize the shortcomings of people living on earth and they worry about God's wrath in response to this deviation, so they continually ask God to forgive the inhabitants of the earth. They have hope in God's mercy because He is the All-Forgiving the Giver of Mercy. The verses reiterate God's attributes: Eminence, Wisdom, Highness, Greatness, Forgiveness, and Mercy. The verses then absolve the Messenger of God (PBUH) of any responsibility of the sin of those who associate partners with God. The Prophet (PBUH) is told that he was not sent as a keeper over them. He was only sent to deliver the Message.

“Thus We revealed to you an Arabic Quran, that you may warn the Mother of the cities and those around it; and warn (them) of the Day of the Assembly, of which there is no doubt; (when) some will be in the Garden, and some in the blazing Fire.” God decided, in His wisdom, to reveal this Quran in the Arabic language and to send a messenger who lives in Mecca with His Message. God knows best where and to whom He sends His Message. The Message came to warn people to be ready for the Day of Assembly. On that Day it will be decided who will be destined to Hell fire and who will be the happy inhabitant of paradise. God could have made them all a single nation; but His will was to create humankind to carry the responsibility of being God's vicegerents on earth. Humankind had to be created with special attributes that enable him to carry this responsibility. One of these attributes is the ability to choose whether to be guided or to reject guidance, “If God had so willed, He could have made them a single people; but He admits whom He wills to His mercy; and the wrongdoers will have neither a protecting guardian nor a helper.” Those who reject guidance and choose to associate partners with God will have no protection, because God is the only protector and He has the power over all things, “Or have they chosen protecting guardians besides Him? But God, He (alone) is the Protecting Guardian. He gives life to the dead, and He has power over all things.”

“And in whatsoever you differ, the verdict therein belongs to God. Such is my Lord, in whom I put my trust, and to whom I turn.” Since the message was revealed by God, then He is the only One worthy of settling the disputes that may result. God has revealed His final decree in the Quran. The Prophet (PBUH) bears witness that, “Such is my Lord, in whom I put my trust, and to whom I turn.” Therefore, all the believers should turn to God to settle all disputes. This is comforting to the believers. They know who they should reach to, to settle the disputes and there should be no doubt or hesitation in accepting God's verdict. God is the only one worthy of settling the disputes because He is, "The Creator of the heavens and the earth." It is He who organized the lives of people and created them to be able to fit in the life on earth, "He made for you pairs of yourselves, and of the cattle also pairs, whereby He multiplies you. Nothing is like Him; and He is the All-Hearing, the All-Seeing." He is the Provider, He provides according to His wisdom and He knows everything, "To Him belong the keys of the heavens and the earth. He enlarges and restricts the sustenance to whom He wills; for He has full knowledge of everything."

The narrative then goes back to the main theme, the oneness of the revelation, "He ordained for you that religion which He enjoined upon Noah, and that which We revealed to you (Muhammad), and that which We enjoined upon Abraham, Moses, and Jesus, saying, 'Establish the religion, and be not divided therein.' It seems dreadful for the idolaters, that which you are calling them to. God chooses for Himself whom He wills, and guides unto Himself him who turns (toward Him)." This verse expands on the verse that came in the beginning of the Sura which stated the oneness of the revelation. The present verse enunciates this fact specifying the names of the previous messengers of God who received similar revelations. The revelation that was sent to Muhammad (PBUH) is similar to the revelation that was sent to Noah, Abraham, Moses, and Jesus (PBUT). They all brought the same Message from God. There is a bond that binds the followers of these messengers. They should not then fight among themselves but should be united. But the idolaters of Mecca, who used to claim that they were following the religion of Abraham (PBUH) did not accept the Message which Muhammad (PBUH) brought. They did not think that Muhammad (PBUH) is worthy of being a messenger of God, they wanted the message to be given to one of the elite in their city. They were also afraid of the effect of the new religion on their power and financial interests. God chooses whom He wills to be the recipient of His revelation.

The followers of the previous messengers became divided because they envied each other. They knew the truth but they chose to fight each other. They deserved to be punished right there and then, but God decided to give them a reprieve for an appointed term, "And they became divided only after knowledge reached them, through selfish envy between themselves. Had it not been for a word that went forth before, from your Lord, for an appointed term, the matter would have been settled between them. But truly those who have inherited the Scripture after them are in disquieting doubt concerning it."

God sent His Messenger, Muhammad (PBUH) and commanded him to remain upright on the straight path, "So to that (religion) invite (Muhammad). And remain upright as you are commanded, and do not follow their whims, but say, 'I believe in whatever scripture God has sent down, and I am commanded to judge justly among you. God is our Lord and your Lord. For us are our deeds and for you are your deeds; no argument between us and you. God will bring us together, and to Him is the return.'" This is the new leader who was sent to lead the whole humanity along the enlightened path, a straight path far from the whims and desires of those who are disputing with each other. The verse describes the characteristics of this Message. It is a message that came to unite all people together and to establish justice on earth. Those who continue to dispute after this, have nothing to support their argument, "But those who dispute concerning God after He has been accepted, futile is their dispute in the sight of their Lord. For them will be a severe torment.”

“It is God who has sent down the Book with the truth and the balance. How can you know? It may be that the Hour is near.” God brought down the Book with truth and He established justice. Justice will also be established on the Day of Judgment; and who knows, it may be soon. The believers believe in the inevitability of the Day of Judgment and they are fearful of it, but the disbelievers are heedless of its consequences, “Those who do not believe therein seek to hasten it, while those who believe are fearful of it and know that it is the truth. Now most surely those who dispute obstinately concerning the Hour are in a great error.”

God is Subtle in dealing with His servants, He bestows His provision on all His servants, because human beings are unable to provide for themselves, “God is Subtle with His servants. He provides for whom He wills. And He is the Strong, the Eminent.” However, He treats those whose goal is the harvest of the Hereafter differently from those whose goal is the harvest of this life, “Whoso desires the harvest of the Hereafter, We increase for him his harvest. And whoso desires the harvest of this world, We give him thereof, and he has no portion in the Hereafter.”

The narrative then goes back to the main theme, “Or have they partners (of God) who have made lawful for them in religion that which God did not allow? Were it not for a decisive word (gone forth already), it would have been judged between them. The wrongdoers will have a painful torment.” Who gave them permission to follow laws different from what God has decreed? No one has the right to do that. It is the exclusive right of God to legislate the laws that organize the lives of His servants. God decreed that those who dispute this fact will be reprieved till the Day of Judgment. On the Day of Judgment, “You will see the wrongdoers in fear on account of what they have earned, and (the burden of) that must fall on them. But those who believe and do righteous deeds will be in the flowering meadows of the Gardens. They will have what they wish from their Lord. This is the supreme blessing.”

The Messenger (PBUH) was then commanded to remind the believers, “That is what God gives glad tidings of to His servants who believed and did righteous deeds. Say, ‘I ask you no reward for this except the love of those near of kin.’ And if any one earns any good, We shall add to its good for him; God is All-Forgiving, Grateful.” The Messenger (PBUH) was not asking them to reward him for guiding them to the bliss in the Hereafter, but he felt obligated to bring them the glad tidings to fulfill his obligation dictated by the kin relationship between them and him.

“Or do they say, ‘He has invented a lie about God?’ If God willed, He could have sealed your heart. And God will wipe out the lie and will establish the truth by His words. He is Aware of what is hidden in the breasts (of people).” No one can fabricate a revelation and claim that it is from God. God could have sealed on Muhammad’s (PBUH) heart and prevented him from uttering such a fabrication.

Verses 25 to 53:

25. It is He who accepts repentance from His servants and pardons the evil deeds, and He knows all what you do.
26. And He answers those who believe and do good deeds, and gives them more out of His bounty; and the disbelievers shall have a severe torment.
27. If God were to enlarge the provision for His servants, they would indeed transgress all limits on earth; but He sends down in due measure as He pleases. He is Totally-Aware and All-seeing of His servants.
28. It is He who sends down rain after people have given up all hope, and spreads His Mercy. And He is the Protecting Guardian, the Praised.
29. And among His signs is the creation of the heavens and the earth, and the living creatures that He has scattered through them; and He has power to gather them together when He wills.
30. Whatever misfortune happens to you is because of the things that your hands have earned; and He pardons much.
31. You cannot escape (God) on earth, and beside God you have no protecting guardian or a helper.
32. And among His signs are the ships that sail smoothly on the sea like mountains.
33. If He pleases, He can cause the wind to become still so that they lie motionless on its back; most surely there are signs in this for every perseverant, grateful one.
34. Or He can destroy them because of the (evil) which (the people) have earned; but He pardons much.
35. And those who dispute Our revelations know they have no escape.
36. Whatever you have been given is but a passing comfort for the life of this world, but that which God has is better and more lasting for those who believe and put their trust in their Lord.
37. And those who avoid major sins and indecencies, and they forgive even when they are angry;
38. And those who respond to their Lord; establish prayer; and conduct their affairs by mutual consultation; and who spend out of what We have given them;
39. And those who, when they are wronged, they defend themselves.
40. The recompense for an ill-deed is a deed like it. But whosoever pardons and amends, he shall have his reward from God. Indeed, He does not love the wrongdoers.
41. But indeed if any do defend themselves after being wronged, for such, there is no blame against them.
42. The blame is only against those who wrong people and transgress beyond bounds through the land, defying rights; for such there will be painful torment.
43. And verily whoso perseveres and forgives, that is indeed a sign of real resolve.
44. He whom God leaves to go astray, there is no protecting guardian apart from Him. And you will see the wrongdoers, when they see the torment will say, "Is there any way of return?"

45. And you will see them exposed to (the Fire), made humble by disgrace, and looking with veiled eyes. And those who believe will say, "The (eternal) losers are they who lose themselves and their people on the Day of Resurrection." Truly, the wrongdoers will remain in perpetual torment?
46. And they will have no protecting guardians to help them besides God. He whom God sends astray, for him there is no way.
47. Answer the call of your Lord before there comes to you a Day from God which cannot be averted. You have no refuge on that Day, nor will you have any (power of) refusal.
48. If then they turn away, We did not send you as a keeper over them. Your duty is only to convey (the Message). And truly, when We give humankind a taste of mercy from Ourselves, he exults in it; but when evil strikes him, on account of the deeds which his hands have sent forth, truly then is humankind ungrateful.
49. To God belongs the dominion of the heavens and the earth. He creates what He wills. He bestows (children) females on whomsoever He wills and He bestows males on whomsoever He wills.
50. Or He bestows both males and females, and He makes barren whom He wills. He is Omniscient, All-Powerful.
51. It is not fitting for a human being that God should speak to him except by inspiration, or from behind a veil, or by sending a messenger to reveal, with God's permission, what God wills. He is Most High, Wise.
52. And thus have We, by Our command, sent a revelation to you. You did not know (before) what is the Book, or what is the faith. But We have made the (Quran) a light, with which We guide whomsoever We will from Our servants; and verily you do guide to the straight path.
53. The path of God, to whom belong whatever is in the heavens and whatever is on earth. All affairs will return back to God. (42: 25 - 53)

"It is He who accepts repentance from His servants and pardons the evil deeds, and He knows all what you do." This verse exhorts people to repent; telling them that God accepts repentance and forgives sins. They should take advantage of God's grace before it is too late, "And He answers those who believe and do good deeds, and gives them more out of His bounty; and the disbelievers shall have a severe torment."

God controls the provision of people. He sends down provision in a measured way because affluence tends to increase people's transgression, "If God were to enlarge the provision for His servants, they would indeed transgress all limits on earth; but He sends down in due measure as He pleases. He is Totally-Aware and All-seeing of His servants."

When drought threatens life on earth and people feel desperate, God sends down rain which is the source of life to revive the land by His grace, "It is He who sends down rain after people have given up all hope, and spreads His Mercy. And He is the Protecting Guardian, the Praised."

“And among His signs is the creation of the heavens and the earth, and the living creatures that He has scattered through them; and He has power to gather them together when He wills.” The creation of heavens and earth is one of God’s signs. No one can dispute its truthfulness. God scattered His creatures on the earth. Whatever, the human being earns is the fruit of his deeds, “Whatever misfortune happens to you is because of the things that your hands have earned; and He pardons much.” God bestows His mercy and pardons much of the sins people commit.

The previous verses talked about God’s power, compare that with humankind’s helplessness, “You cannot escape (God) on earth, and beside God you have no protecting friend or a helper.”

The ships sailing at sea smoothly are one of the signs of God. Who created the sea? Who created the characteristics of the sea for ships to be able to sail on it? Who created the wind that pushes the ships to move forward? All these are signs of God. God could make the wind to calm down and the ships will stop moving, “And among His signs are the ships that sail smoothly on the sea like mountains. If He pleases, He can cause the wind to become still so that they lie motionless on its back; most surely there are signs in this for every perseverant, grateful one. Or He can destroy them because of the (evil) which (the people) have earned; but He pardons much.” God bestows His mercy and forgives. Yet there are those who still dispute, “And those who dispute Our revelations know they have no refuge.”

The material comfort that people were given is a transient comfort, the real value is what will be given in the Hereafter. This is the provision that God is saving for those who believe. The following verses expand on the attributes of the believers, “Whatever you have been given is but a passing comfort for the life of this world, but that which God has is better and more lasting for those who believe and put their trust in their Lord; and those who avoid major sins and indecencies, and they forgive even when they are angry; and those who respond to their Lord; establish prayer; and conduct their affairs by mutual consultation; and who spend out of what We have given them; and those who, when they are wronged, they defend themselves. The recompense for an ill-deed is a deed like it. But whosoever pardons and amends, he shall have his reward from God. Indeed, He does not love the wrongdoers. But indeed if any do defend themselves after being wronged, for such, there is no blame against them. The blame is only against those who wrong people and transgress beyond bounds through the land, defying rights; for such there will be painful torment. And verily whoso perseveres and forgives, that is indeed a sign of real resolve.”

These are the attributes of the believers. It is interesting to note that these verses were revealed in Mecca, however it lists among the attributes of the believers that they, “conduct their affairs by mutual consultation.” In Mecca there was no Muslim state. This implies that the principle of consultation is more than a political system to be adopted by the state. It is an ingrained characteristic of any group of Muslims. When a group of Muslims form a state, it then becomes a natural component of the system of government. Another interesting attribute is that they defend themselves when they are wronged. However, while in Mecca, the Muslims were commanded to persevere and not to retaliate against those who persecuted them; a command which was later changed when they migrated to Medina. Again, this implies that part of the Muslim character is not to accept persecution and oppression. It becomes natural for Muslims to defend themselves against persecution. The command to persevere in Mecca was a tactical command issued to address a special circumstance.

The list of the attributes of Muslims is impressive: the belief in God, putting one's trust in God, avoiding major sins and indecencies, forgiveness when gripped by anger, responding to God's call, establishing prayers, spending out of God's bounty in His sake, defending oneself against oppression, pardoning and amending instead of retaliating, and perseverance. These are the characters of Muslims who realize that the pleasures of the life of this world are transient pleasures. The reward that God saved for those who enjoy these attributes is the eternal reward.

The verses juxtapose the horrible condition of the disbelievers in the Hereafter against the bliss in which the believers will revel in, "He whom God leaves to go astray, there is no protecting guardian apart from Him. And you will see the wrongdoers, when they see the torment will say, 'Is there any way of return?' And you will see them exposed to (the Fire), made humble by disgrace, and looking with veiled eyes." God's decree cannot be reversed. When God knows that a person deserves to be left to go astray, the decree will be issued that this person is a member of the nation that went astray. There will be no one to help or save that person. On the Day of Judgment when the disbelievers will see the punishment, they will cry, "Is there any way of return?" But it will be late, "And those who believe will say, 'The (eternal) losers are they who lose themselves and their people on the Day of Resurrection.' Truly, the wrongdoers will remain in perpetual torment? And they will have no protecting guardians to help them besides God. He whom God sends astray, for him there is no way."

A call will then be issued to those who rejected guidance to heed the warning before it is too late, "Answer the call of your Lord before there comes to you a Day from God which cannot be averted. You have no refuge on that Day, nor will you have any (power of) refusal." The task of the Messenger of God (PBUH) was explained, "If then they turn away, We did not send you as a keeper over them. Your duty is only to convey (the Message)."

Then the vulnerable nature of the human being is expounded, "And truly, when We give humankind a taste of mercy from Ourselves, he exults in it; but when evil strikes him, on account of the deeds which his hands have sent forth, truly then is humankind ungrateful." Why then they were adamant in their rejection of God's guidance, when God has the power over everything, "To God belongs the dominion of the heavens and the earth. He creates what He wills. He bestows (children) males on whomsoever He wills and He bestows females on whomsoever He wills. Or He bestows both males and females, and He makes barren whom He will. He is Omniscient, All-Powerful."

At the end of the Sura, the narrative turns again to the main theme of the Sura, the truthfulness of the message and the revelation. The following verses explain the way God communicates His revelation to His messengers, "It is not fitting for a human being that God should speak to him except by inspiration, or from behind a veil, or by sending a messenger to reveal, with God's permission, what God wills. He is Most High, Wise. And thus have We, by Our command, sent a revelation to you. You did not know (before) what is the Book, or what is the faith. But We have made the (Quran) a light, with which We guide whomsoever We will from Our servants; and verily you do guide to the straight path. The path of God, to whom belong whatever is in the heavens and whatever is on earth. All affairs will return back to God.”

The Prophet (PBUH) himself told us about the ways the revelation was communicated to him.

Sometimes the Prophet (PBUH) received an inspiration that he (PBUH) felt in his heart without seeing the Archangel Gabriel (PBUH). The Prophet (PBUH) has been quoted to have said, “The Holy Spirit inspired me that no soul will die until it has fulfilled its term on earth and gained the provision that has been decreed for it. So, when you seek something be conscious of God and do it in a decent way.”

Other times, the Archangel Gabriel (PBUH) came to the Prophet (PBUH) in a human form. The Archangel Gabriel (PBUH) then spoke to the Prophet (PBUH) and delivered God’s revelation to him.

Other times he would hear a noise like the ringing of a bell indicating the start of the delivery of the revelation. This was the most strenuous way for receiving the revelation.

Still a fourth way was when the Archangel Gabriel (PBUH) would come to the Prophet (PBUH) in his own angelic form, and he would deliver God’s revelation to the Prophet (PBUH).

These were the different ways through which the Messenger (PBUH) received the revelation. God is Most High, Wise. He sends his revelation from high above with wisdom to whomsoever He chooses.

Reading a verse dealing with the “revelation,” fills one with awe. One should wonder how can the revelation be communicated from the Immortal, Eternal to the tiny, mortal human soul? Prophet-hood is a magnificent feat and receiving the revelation is also a magnificent feat. But it is the blessing, the bounty, and the mercy of God that He willed that His guidance be revealed to humankind to guide them to the straight path.

The Prophet (PBUH), before receiving the revelation, never knew about the faith nor did he know about the Book; but God sent this revelation to him. God made this revelation a light to guide whomsoever He chooses to the straight path. This is the nature of the revelation; it is a guiding light. It guides to the straight path.

Sura 43: Al-Zukhruf (Ornaments)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

This Sura was revealed in Mecca except for verse 45. There is a difference of opinion among the scholars as to where was verse 45 revealed. Some said it was revealed during the trip of Israa and Mi'raj and others say that it was revealed in Medina. The Sura deals with the obstacles that faced the Islamic call and portrays the arguments which the disbelievers used to try to stem the progress of the call. It also describes the characteristics of the Quran.

Verses 1 to 25:

1. Ha. Mim.
2. By the Book that makes things clear.
3. We have made it a Quran in Arabic that you may be able to understand.
4. And verily, it is in the Mother of the Book, which We possess; it is indeed sublime, full of wisdom.
5. Shall We utterly ignore you and hold back the reminder from you because you are a transgressing people?
6. How many a prophet did We send to earlier people?
7. And never came a prophet to them but they mocked him.
8. We destroyed people more powerful than them (the disbelievers of Mecca) - and the example of the people of old has passed away.
9. If you were to ask them, "Who created the heavens and the earth?" They would surely reply, "They were created by (Him), the Eminent, the Omniscient."
10. It is He, who made the earth a resting place for you, and placed roads for you therein, that you may find your way;
11. And who sent down water from the sky in due measure, and We revived a dead land therewith; and likewise you will you be brought forth;
12. He who created all the pairs, and made for you ships and the cattle you ride on.
13. In order that you may sit firm on their backs, and when so seated, you may celebrate the blessing of your Lord, and say, "Glory to Him who has subjected these to our (use), for we could never have accomplished this (by ourselves);
14. And to our Lord, surely, we will return."
15. And they assign to Him a part of His servants; humankind is clearly ungrateful.
16. Or did He choose daughters from what He created, and honored He you with sons?
17. And if one of them is given news of what he attributes to the Lord of Mercy his countenance is darkened and he is full of inward rage.
18. Is then one brought up among trinkets, and unable to give a clear account in a dispute (to be associated with God)?
19. And they make the angels, who are the servants of the Lord of Mercy, females. Did they witness their creation? Their testimony will be recorded and they will be questioned.
20. And they say, "If the Lord of Mercy had willed, we should not have worshipped them." They have no knowledge whatsoever of that. They are merely guessing.
21. Or have We given them any scripture before (this Quran) so that they are holding fast to it?

22. No indeed, but they say, "We found our fathers following a certain religion, and we are guided by their footsteps."
23. And thus, We did not send before you any warner in a town, but those who led easy lives in it said, "Surely we found our fathers on a course, and surely we are following in their footsteps."
24. (And the warner) said, "Even though I bring you better guidance than that you found your fathers following?" They answered, "We disbelieve in what you bring."
25. We exacted revenge on them; see what was the end of those who rejected (Truth). (43: 1 – 25)

"Ha. Mim. By the Book that makes things clear, We have made it a Quran in Arabic that you may be able to understand." God takes an oath by the Alphabetical letters of the Arabic language, then another oath by the Book that He revealed, to emphasize the fact that the Book was revealed in Arabic so that it could be understood by the Arabs whom God has chosen to carry His Message to the rest of the world. This Book is a supreme Book. God describes it as a sublime Book full of wisdom, "And verily, it is in the Mother of the Book, which We possess, it is indeed sublime, full of wisdom." The Arabs should have appreciated the great blessing that God bestowed upon them by choosing their language to be the vehicle for the transmission of the Quran. Instead they ridiculed the Message and turned away from it. God then threatened them, "Shall We utterly ignore you and hold back the reminder from you because you are a transgressing people?" In addition to the threat, they were reminded with the fate of the people before them who ridiculed their messengers in the same way, "How many a prophet did We send to earlier people. And never came a prophet to them but they mocked him. We destroyed people more powerful than them (the disbelievers of Mecca) - and the example of the people of old has passed away."

What is astonishing about the behavior of the people of Mecca is that they did believe in God, the Creator. However, they did not translate this belief into its natural conclusion: the belief in the Oneness of God. They associated partners with Him; assigned to God daughters from among the angels; and worshipped these angels. The Quran tried to reason with them in a way that appeals to their initial natural disposition, "If you were to ask them, 'Who created the heavens and the earth?' They would surely reply, 'They were created by (Him), the Eminent, the Omniscient.'" The Quran takes the discussion further by portraying the attributes of God which supports His Oneness, "It is He who made the earth a resting place for you, and placed roads for you therein, that you may find your way; and who sent down water from the sky in due measure, and We revived a dead land therewith; and likewise you will you be brought forth." The verses reminded them of the wonders of the creation. God brings the water down in due measure to revive the land. Water is the source of life. God started life and He is able to resurrect people after their death as He is able to revive the land.

The fundamental rule underlying the creation, the concept of duality, is then stated, "He who created all the pairs, and made for you ships and the cattle you ride on. In order that you may sit firm on their backs, and when so seated, you may celebrate the blessing of your Lord, and say, 'Glory to Him who has subjected these to our (use), for we could never have accomplished this

(by ourselves); and to our Lord, surely, we will return.” The verses also remind humankind with the bounties that God bestowed on him, by making him vicegerent on earth. The verse teaches Muslims how to respond to God’s blessings using appropriate invocations. It also reminds them that these invocations are not merely a lip service but they are activities in which the words enunciated by the tongue are used to evoke feelings of gratitude in the hearts of the believers.

The narrative continues to deal with and refute the claims of the disbelievers about the relationship between the angels and God, “And they assign to Him a part of His servants; humankind is clearly ungrateful. Or did He choose daughters from what He created, and honored He you with sons?” The verse ridicules these false claims using simple logic. Why would the Creator choose the daughters and bestow sons on the disbelievers? Especially when they consider that having daughters is demeaning, “And if one of them is given news of what he attributes to Lord of Mercy his countenance is darkened and he is full of inward rage. Is then one brought up among trinkets, and unable to give a clear account in a dispute (to be associated with God)?”

They were then questioned about the basis of their claim, “And they make the angels, who are the servants of the Lord of Mercy, females. Did they witness their creation? Their testimony will be recorded and they will be questioned.” They will bear the dire consequences of making such false claims. But they made excuses, “And they say, ‘If the Lord of Mercy had willed, we should not have worshipped them.’ They have no knowledge whatsoever of that. They are merely guessing.” Were they given a book before this that supported their lame excuse? Not really, they followed blindly what their fathers were doing, “Or have We given them any scripture before (this Quran) so that they are holding fast to it? No indeed, but they say, ‘We found our fathers following a certain religion, and we are guided by their footsteps.’”

At the end of this discourse, the end of the previous nations which rejected the truth is portrayed, “And thus, We did not send before you any warner in a town, but those who led easy lives in it said, ‘Surely we found our fathers on a course, and surely we are following their footsteps.’ (And the warner) said, ‘Even though I bring you better guidance than that you found your fathers following?’ They answered, ‘We disbelieve in what you bring.’ We exacted revenge on them; see what was the end of those who rejected (Truth).” It is the same excuse that people who rejected the truth over the history made: we were simply following in the footsteps of our forefathers. Islam came to free the human intellect from the shackles of blind imitation, urging people to use their intellect to think logically and rationally.

Verses 26 to 56:

26. And when Abraham said to his father and his people, “I am innocent of what you worship.”
27. (I worship) only Him who created me, and He will certainly guide me.”

28. And he left it as a word to endure among his seed that they might return.
29. But I let these and their fathers enjoy life (only) till there came to them the truth and a messenger who makes things clear.
30. But when the truth came to them, they said, "This is sorcery, and we reject it."
31. And they say, "If only this Quran had been revealed to one of the great men of the two towns?"
32. Is it they who distribute the Mercy of your Lord? It is We who have apportioned their livelihood among them in the life of this world; and We raised some of them above others in rank, so that some may take others in their service. But the Mercy of your Lord is better than the (wealth) which they amass.
33. And were it not that (all) people would become one community (of disbelievers), We would have made for everyone that blasphemes against the Lord of Mercy, silver roofs for their houses and (silver) stairways on which to go up;
34. And for their houses doors (of silver) and couches whereon to recline;
35. And ornaments of gold. Yet all that would have been but a provision of the life of the world. And the Hereafter with your Lord will be for those who are conscious of Him.
36. And whoever is blinded from the remembrance of the Lord of Mercy, We appoint for him a devil, as an associate.
37. Such (devils) bar them from the path, but they think that they are being guided.
38. Till, when he comes to Us, he says (to his comrade), "If only were between me and you the distance of the east and the west - an evil comrade."
39. And it will not benefit you on that day, since you did wrong, that you will be partners in the torment.
40. Can you (Muhammad) make the deaf to hear, or can you guide the blind or him who is in evident error?
41. And if We take you away, We will surely exact revenge on them;
42. Otherwise We will show you that which We have promised them, for verily We have full power over them.
43. So hold fast to what has been revealed to you; verily you are on a straight path.
44. And indeed, it is a reminder for you and for your people; and soon you will be brought to account.
45. And ask our messengers whom We sent before you; did We appoint any deities other than the Lord of Mercy, to be worshipped?
46. And verily We sent Moses with Our revelations to Pharaoh and his chiefs, and he said, "I am a messenger of the Lord of the Worlds."
47. But when he came to them with Our signs, they laughed at them.
48. We showed them signs, one after another, each one was greater than the previous one. And We seized them with torment, in order that they might turn (to Us).
49. And they said, "Sorcerer, invoke your Lord for us, by virtue of His covenant with you, for we shall truly accept guidance."
50. But when We removed the torment from them, they broke their word.
51. And Pharaoh proclaimed among his people, saying, "My people, does not the dominion of Egypt belong to me and these rivers flowing underneath me? Do you not then see?"
52. Am I not better than this fellow, who is a contemptible wretch and can scarcely express himself clearly?

53. Why has he not been given any gold bracelets, and why did not the angels accompany him?"
54. Thus he made fools of his people, and they obeyed him. Truly they were transgressing people.
55. When at length they provoked Us, We exacted revenge on them, and We drowned them all.
56. And We made them a thing of the past, and an example for those who came after (them). (43: 26 – 56)

The Arabs used to claim that they were the progeny of Prophet Abraham (PBUH) and that they were the followers of his religion. The first claim is true but the second is false, because Abraham (PBUH) believed in the Oneness of God, he never associated partners with Him, “And when Abraham said to his father and his people, ‘I am innocent of what you worship. (I worship) only Him who created me, and He will certainly guide me.’” It is clear from these verses that Abraham’s (PBUH) people also believed in God but they associated partners with Him. Abraham’s (PBUH) religion was propagated by His seed, Moses, Jesus, and Muhammad (PBUT), who brought the three monotheistic religions to humanity, “And he left it as a word to endure among his seed that they might return.”

Then people forgot the true religion, nevertheless God decreed that they would be reprieved, and He sent them a messenger to remind them and to bring them back to the straight path, “But I let these and their fathers enjoy life (only) till there came to them the truth and a messenger who makes things clear.” However, when the messenger came to them they rejected him, “But when the truth came to them, they said, ‘This is sorcery, and we reject it.’” The Quran then uncovers their hypocrisy. They were afraid that the belief in the Oneness of God will destroy their power base. So, they rejected the Message. They questioned why did God choose Muhammad (PBUH)? Why did not God choose one of the chiefs to be His Messenger? This way the power structure would remain unchanged, “And they say, ‘If only this Quran had been revealed to one of the great men of the two towns?’”

They did not understand that it is God’s decision to choose whomsoever He wills to deliver His Message, “Is it they who distribute the Mercy of your Lord? It is We who have apportioned their livelihood among them in the life of this world; and We raised some of them above others in rank, so that some may take others in their service. But the Mercy of your Lord is better than the (wealth) which they amass.” God provides whatever He wills to whomsoever He chooses. Provision in life is not restricted to monetary earnings; but it also includes skills, talents, position in the societal hierarchy, and living conditions. Life is built on the fact that people are different. Diversity is God’s intended plan. People complement each other and this guarantees that life on earth will continue. God also bestows His mercy on those who deserve it.

The material gains in this life are so trivial. Had God wished, He could have given everything to the disbelievers; but that would have been a severe trial for the believers, “And were it not that (all) people would become one community (of disbelievers), We would have made for everyone that blasphemes against the Lord of Mercy, silver roofs for their houses and (silver) stairways on which to go up; and for their houses doors (of silver) and couches whereon to recline; and ornaments of gold. Yet all that would have been but a provision of the life of the world. And the Hereafter with your Lord will be for those who are conscious of Him.” All of these ornaments are transient pleasures; but the real permanent treasures are saved for the God conscious.

The verses continue to describe the condition of the disbelievers, “And whoever is blinded from the remembrance of the Lord of Mercy, We appoint for him a devil as an associate. Such (devils) bar them from the path, but they think that they are being guided.” Those who chose to become blinded and heedless of the remembrance of God will be assigned companions from among the devils. Their companions will do their best to keep them away from the straight path. They will keep them in the dark until, at the end they will realize that they were pursuing a mirage, “Till, when he comes to Us, he says (to his comrade), ‘If only were between me and you the distance of the east and the west - an evil comrade.’” He will wish that the distance between him and his associate was as long as the distance between the east and the west, “And it will not benefit you on that day, since you did wrong, that you will be partners in the torment.” But it will be too late. It will not be a consolation for him that they will be partners in the torment.

The verses now turn to provide comfort to the Prophet (PBUH). His people denied him and rejected the guidance that he brought them, but it is not his mistake, “Can you (Muhammad) make the deaf to hear, or can you guide the blind or him who is in evident error? And if We take you away, We will surely exact revenge on them, Otherwise We will show you that which We have promised them, for verily We have full power over them. So hold fast to what has been revealed to you; verily you are on a straight path. And indeed, it is a reminder for you and for your people; and soon you will be brought to account. And ask our messengers whom We sent before you; did We appoint any deities other than the Lord of Mercy, to be worshipped?” This type of address to the Prophet (PBUH) has been repeated often in the Quran. It provided comfort to the Prophet (PBUH) during his struggle against falsehood, defined for him the boundaries of his responsibility, and established the principle that everything is done according to the will of God.

The following verses move on to another theme, going back to Prophet Moses (PBUH), “And verily We sent Moses with Our revelations to Pharaoh and his chiefs, and he said, ‘I am a messenger of the Lord of the Worlds.’ But when he came to them with Our signs, they laughed at them.” The verse describes the first meeting between Moses (PBUH), after he was sent by God, and Pharaoh. The description is very brief. It highlights the main points: Moses (PBUH) told Pharaoh that he was sent as a messenger of God and showed him and his chiefs the signs that God sent him with but they rejected these signs and they laughed at them. Then the verses talk about the trials that God inflicted on Pharaoh and his people, “We showed them signs, one after another, each one was greater than the previous one. And We seized them with torment, in order that they might turn (to Us).” However, these miracles did not convince them. This verifies the earlier statement, “Can you (Muhammad) make the deaf to hear, or can you guide the blind or him who is in evident error.” Miracles cannot change a heart that has been sealed and whose owner does not want to be guided.

However, they appealed to Moses (PBUH) to pray His lord to save them from these trials promising him that they will be guided if God removes His wrath, “And they said, ‘Sorcerer, invoke your Lord for us, by virtue of His covenant with you, for we shall truly accept guidance.’” But they were not truthful in their promise, “But when We removed the torment from them, they broke their word.”

Pharaoh had the audacity to challenge the truth that Moses (PBUH) brought, “And Pharaoh proclaimed among his people, saying, ‘My people, does not the dominion of Egypt belong to me and these rivers flowing underneath me? Do you not then see? Am I not better than this fellow, who is a contemptible wretch and can scarcely express himself clearly? Why has he not been given any gold bracelets, and why did not the angels accompany him?’” He used his crooked logic, a logic that appeals to the superficial signs of power in this worldly life, to deceive his people and they listened to him like fools, “Thus he made fools of his people, and they obeyed him. Truly they were transgressing people.” They were really transgressing people because they believed Pharaoh’s crooked logic blindly. They deserved to be punished, “When at length they provoked Us, We exacted revenge on them, and We drowned them all. And We made them a thing of the past, and an example for those who came after (them). They were made an example for all those who came after them.

Verses 57 to 89:

57. When (Jesus) the son of Mary was cited as an example, your people raised a clamor.
58. And they said, “Are our gods better, or is he?” They raised their objection only to challenge you. They are a contentious people.
59. He was only a servant on whom We bestowed Our blessings; and We made him an example for the Children of Israel.
60. And had We willed We could have set among you angels to be successors on earth.
61. And indeed, he will be a sign (for the coming of) the Hour (of Judgment); therefore, have no doubt about it, and follow Me. This is a straight path.
62. Let not Satan bar you; for he is your avowed enemy.
63. When Jesus came with clear signs, he said, “I have come to you with wisdom, and in order to make clear to you some of the (points) on which you dispute. Therefore, be conscious of God and obey me.
64. God is my Lord and your Lord; so worship Him. This is the straight path.”
65. But the factions among them differed. Then woe to the wrongdoers from the torment of a painful day.
66. Are they only waiting for the Hour to come upon them suddenly, while they are unaware?
67. On that Day, the friends will be enemies of one another, except for the God conscious.
68. My servants, for you there is no fear on this Day, nor will you grieve;
69. (Being) among those who believed in Our revelations and submitted to Us.
70. Enter the Garden, you and your wives, rejoicing.
71. Dishes and goblets of gold will be brought round for them, and therein is all what the soul desire and the eyes find sweet. And you will abide therein eternally.
72. This is the Garden of which you are made heirs because of what you used to do.
73. You shall have therein abundance of fruit; from which you shall eat.

74. But the sinners will abide in the torment of Hell eternally.
75. From which there will be not relief, and they will despair therein.
76. We did not wrong them, but they were the wrongdoers.
77. They will cry, "Malik, let your Lord make an end of us." He will say, "Here you must remain."
78. Certainly We have brought you the truth, but most of you are averse to the truth.
79. Or did they devise a plan (among themselves)? We will also devise.
80. Or do they think that We do not hear their secrets and their private counsels? Indeed (We do), and Our messengers are by them, to record.
81. Say (Muhammad), "If the Lord of Mercy has a son, then, I shall be the first among the worshippers."
82. Glorified be the Lord of the heavens and the earth, the Lord of the Throne, from that which they ascribe (to Him).
83. So leave them to babble and play (with vanities) until they meet that Day of theirs, which they have been promised.
84. It is He who is God in the heaven and God on earth; and He is the Wise, the Omniscient.
85. And blessed is He to whom belongs the dominion of the heavens and the earth, and all in between them. With Him is the Knowledge of the Hour (of Judgment); and to Him shall you be brought back.
86. And those whom they invoke besides God have no power of intercession; only those who bear witness to the truth, and they know.
87. If you ask them, who created them, they will certainly say, God. How then are they deluded?
88. And he said, "My Lord, indeed these are a people who do not believe."
89. So turn away from them and say, "Peace," for they shall soon come to know. (43: 57 – 89)

"When (Jesus) the son of Mary was cited as an example, your people raised a clamor. And they said, 'Are our gods better, or is he?' They raised their objection only to challenge you. They were a contentious people." These verses describe the objections that the Arabs used to make in their argument with the Prophet (PBUH) and to challenge him. The Quran then turns to the claims that the Christians had about Jesus (PBUH). The verse states clearly that Jesus (PBUH) was not a god to be worshipped but he was a messenger that was chosen by God to deliver the Message to the Children of Israel, "He was only a servant on whom We bestowed Our blessings; and We made him an example for the Children of Israel." Had God willed, He would have created angels on earth. God is all Powerful, "And had We willed We could have set among you angels to be successors on earth."

The verses then remind people of the inevitability of Day of Judgment, "And indeed, he will be a sign (for the coming of) the Hour (of Judgment); therefore, have no doubt about it, and follow Me. This is a straight path. Let not Satan bar you; for he is your avowed enemy." Many prophetic traditions were narrated which stated that Jesus (PBUH) will descend back to earth before the Day of Judgment. Thus, the coming of Jesus (PBUH) will be a sign that the Day of Judgment is looming. The Quran keeps reminding people that Satan is their avowed enemy, and he will try very hard to turn them away from the straight path. They should be alert to the danger of Satan; and should protect themselves from falling a prey to him.

The following verses narrate what transpired between Jesus (PBUH) and his people, “When Jesus came with clear signs, he said, ‘I have come to you with wisdom, and in order to make clear to you some of the (points) on which you dispute. Therefore, be conscious of God and obey me. God is my Lord and your Lord; so worship Him. This is the straight path.’ But the factions among them differed. Then woe to the wrongdoers from the torment of a painful day.” Jesus (PBUH) brought them clear signs and brought them wisdom. But they were divided among themselves. He (PBUH) stated unequivocally that he was a messenger of God. God is his Lord and their Lord, who deserves to be worshipped.

“Are they only waiting for the Hour to come upon them suddenly, while they are unaware?” A very clear warning, the Hour may come suddenly while they are heedless. On that day everything will be different; the relationships that we are familiar with will change and friends will be no longer friends, “On that Day, the friends will be enemies of one another.” But those who remained God conscious they have nothing to fear, “except for the God conscious; My servants, for you there is no fear on this day, nor will you grieve; (Being) among those who believed in Our revelations and submitted to Us. Enter the Garden, you and your wives, rejoicing. Dishes and goblets of gold will be brought round for them, and therein is all what the soul desire and the eyes find sweet. And you will abide therein eternally. This is the Garden of which you are made heirs because of what you used to do. You shall have therein abundance of fruit; from which you shall eat.” Those who heeded the warning of the messenger, they became servants of God, and remained conscious of Him they will be admitted to the Garden where they will reside forever. They will rejoice therein and they will have what pleases the soul and the eyes.

However, the criminals will be taken to Hell where they will abide forever, “But the sinners will abide in the torment of Hell eternally. From which there will be not relief, and they will despair therein. We did not wrong them, but they were the wrongdoers. They will cry, ‘Malik, let your Lord make an end of us.’ He will say, ‘Here you must remain.’ Certainly We have brought you the truth, but most of you are averse to the truth. Or did they devise a plan (among themselves)? We will also devise. Or do they think that We do not hear their secrets and their private counsels? Indeed (We do), and Our messengers are by them, to record.” They will suffer the continuous torment that they were warned about. They will wish that God will finish them off. But they were given the truth in the life of the world and they chose to reject it. So, they deserve what they are getting in the Hereafter. Or did they think that they devised a plan to deceive God? But God knows their secrets and their scheming in the dark.

The verses then come back to the Prophet (PBUH) asking him to state that, “If the Lord of Mercy has a son, then, I shall be the first among the worshippers.” But God is high above what they ascribe to Him, “Glorified be the Lord of the heavens and the earth, the Lord of the Throne, from that which they ascribe (to Him).” So let them indulge in their vain talk, they will meet the Day which they were promised, “So leave them to babble and play (with vanities) until they meet that Day of theirs, which they have been promised.”

God is the Creator of everything and He has the knowledge of everything, “It is He who is God in the heaven and God on earth; and He is the Wise, the Omniscient. And blessed is He to whom belongs the dominion of the heavens and the earth, and all in between them. With Him is the Knowledge of the Hour (of Judgment); and to Him shall you be brought back.” He has no partners. Those whom they ascribe as partners to Him will not benefit them on the Day of Judgment, “And those whom they invoke besides God have no power of intercession; only those who bear witness to the truth, and they know.” How can they make these false claims while they know that God is the Creator, “If you ask them, who created them, they will certainly say, God. How then are they deluded?”

At the end of the Sura, God turns to His Messenger (PBUH) listening to him, “And he said, ‘My Lord, indeed these are a people who do not believe.’ God listened to His Messenger (PBUH) and directed him kindly to ignore the disbelievers, “So turn away from them and say, ‘Peace,’ for they shall soon come to know.”

Sura 44: Al-Dukhan (Smoke)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

This is a Meccan Sura. Its quick and strong rhythm is like a hammer that strikes the taught strings of the human heart. The main objective of the Sura is to evoke the sense of belief in the Oneness of God in the human psyche. It uses scenes from the Day of Judgment, stories of ancient nations, and citations of cosmic phenomena to achieve its goal.

Verses 1 to 59:

1. Ha. Mim.
2. By the Book that makes things clear;
3. We revealed it on a blessed night - We are ever warning;
4. Therein every wise command is made clear;
5. As a command from Our presence - We are ever sending;
6. Mercy from your Lord. He is the All-Hearing, the Omniscient.
7. The Lord of the heavens and the earth and all that is between them, if you have certitude.
8. There is no god but He. It is He who gives life and gives death; your Lord and the Lord of your forefathers.
9. Yet they are in doubt, playing.
10. Then you should watch for the day when the sky will produce visible smoke;
11. That will envelop the people. This will be a painful torment.
12. (They will say), "Our Lord, relieve us of the torment. Surely, we are believers."
13. How can there be a reminder for them, when a messenger making (the truth) clear had already come to them,
14. But they had turned away from him and said, "He was taught (by others), (he is) a madman."
15. We shall indeed remove the torment a little, (but) you will surely return (to disbelief).
16. On the day when We shall seize them with the greater seizure, (then) We shall exact revenge.
17. We did, before them, put the people of Pharaoh to trial. There came to them a noble messenger.
18. Saying, "Deliver the servants of God to me, surely I am a trustworthy messenger to you.
19. And do not be arrogant against God; for I come to you with a clear authority.
20. I have sought refuge in my Lord and your Lord, lest you stone me to death.
21. But if you do not believe in me, then leave me alone."
22. And (finally) he called to his Lord, (saying), "These are guilty people."
23. Then (his Lord commanded), "Take away My servants by night. You will be followed,
24. And leave the sea behind at rest, for they are a drowned host."
25. How many were the gardens and springs they left behind?
26. And corn-fields and noble buildings,
27. And pleasant things wherein they took delight?
28. Thus (was their end) and We made other people inherit (those things).
29. And neither heaven nor earth shed a tear over them; nor were they given a respite.
30. And We delivered the Children of Israel from the humiliating torment,

31. Inflicted by Pharaoh, for he was arrogant and given to excesses.
32. And We chose them, purposely, above (all) nations.
33. And gave them revelations in which there was a clear test.
34. These people say,
35. "There is nothing beyond our first death, and we shall not be raised again.
36. Then bring (back) our forefathers, if what you say is true."
37. Are they better, or the people of Tubba' and those before them? We destroyed them, for surely they were guilty.
38. And We did not create the heavens and the earth, and all that is between them, in jest.
39. We did not create them except with truth, but most of them do not know.
40. Assuredly the Day of Decision is the appointed term for all of them,
41. A Day when no friend can avail a friend, nor can they be helped,
42. Except him on whom God bestows mercy. He is the Eminent, the Giver of Mercy.
43. Verily the tree of Zaqqum,
44. Will be the food of the sinner.
45. Like molten brass; it will boil in their bellies,
46. Like the boiling of scalding water.
47. (And it will be said), "Take him and drag him to the midst of hell,
48. Then pour over his head the torment of boiling water,
49. (Saying), 'Taste this, you powerful, respected man!'"
50. This is what you disputed about.
51. Surely those who remained God conscious will be in a secure place,
52. Amid gardens and water springs,
53. Dressed in fine silk and in rich brocade, facing one another.
54. And We shall wed them to fair women with wide, lovely eyes.
55. There, they can call for every kind of fruit in peace and security;
56. They will not taste death therein, save the first death. And He has saved them from the torment of Hell,
57. As a bounty from your Lord. That is the supreme triumph.
58. Verily, We have made this (Quran) easy, in your tongue, in order that they may give heed.
59. So, wait then (Muhammad). They (too) are waiting. (44: 1 – 59)

The Sura starts with the two letters, "Ha. Mim." The second verse is an oath with, "By the Book that makes things clear." The oath by the letters is similar to the oath by the Book, because each letter represents one of the signs of God. He created the human being in such a way to understand these letters, to pronounce them, and to use them to gain knowledge. The oath emphasizes the fact that the Book was revealed in a blessed night, "We revealed it on a blessed night" This night is the night of Power. This is the night on which the revelation of the Book started. It is one of the nights of the month of Ramadan. It is a blessed night because it marks the beginning of the process of the revelation of the Quran, which came to guide humanity to the straight path. This path is aligned with the initial natural disposition of humankind. It leads to happiness in this life and in the Hereafter. The Quran also educates humankind about the rules that govern the universe.

The Quran came to communicate a warning to humankind, “We are ever warning;” because God knows the limitations of humankind and the need to remind him continuously. The night that witnessed the start of the process of the revelation of the Quran is a milestone in the history of humanity, “Therein every wise command is made clear;” The Quran made everything clear. This was all by God’s decree, “As a command from Our presence - We are ever sending;” The Quran is a major sign of God’s mercy, because it guides humankind to the way for salvation, “Mercy from your Lord. He is the All-Hearing, the Omniscient.” God is also, “The Lord of the heavens and the earth and all that is between them, if you have certitude. There is no god but He. It is He who gives life and gives death; your Lord and the Lord of your forefathers.”

The narrative turns to the disbelievers chastising them for their recklessness, “Yet they are in doubt, playing.” And a warning is issued, “Then you should watch for the day when the sky will produce visible smoke; That will envelop the people. This will be a painful torment. (They will say), ‘Our Lord, relieve us of the torment. Surely, we are believers.’ How can there be a reminder for them, when a messenger making (the truth) clear had already come to them, But they had turned away from him and said, ‘He was taught (by others), (he is) a madman.’ We shall indeed remove the torment a little, (but) you will surely return (to disbelief). On the day when We shall seize them with the greater seizure, (then) We shall exact revenge.” There are different interpretations of this verse. Does the verse refer to one of the scenes on the Day of Judgment? Or does the verse refer to an event that has already happened before? We chose the interpretation that this is a smoke that will occur on the Day of Judgment. This opinion has been supported by Ibn Abbas (RA). It is also more reasonable since the verses indicate that their request for forgiveness will not be accepted.

The following verses narrate one of the episodes of the story of Moses (PBUH) and Pharaoh, “We did, before them, put the people of Pharaoh to trial.” Trials can be administered with adversity as well as felicity. God tested Pharaoh and his people by giving them wealth and power. Then he sent them his messenger, “There came to them a noble messenger. Saying, ‘Deliver the servants of God to me, surely I am a trustworthy messenger to you. And do not be arrogant against God; for I come to you with a clear authority. I have sought refuge in my Lord and your Lord lest you stone me to death. But if you do not believe in me, then leave me alone.’” Moses (PBUH) came to ask them to submit to God, however, if they chose not to listen to him they should leave him alone. But in their arrogance they rejected his call and also moved to persecute him. His only recourse was to ask for God’s help, “And (finally) he called to his Lord, (saying), ‘These are guilty people.’” God commanded Moses (PBUH) to go forward with his people and leave Pharaoh and his people to receive the punishment that God decreed, “Then (his Lord commanded), ‘Take away My servants by night. You will be followed, and leave the sea behind at rest, for they are a drowned host.’” Then the verses detail the wealth that God gave them; the wealth which they lost because of their obstinacy, “How many were the gardens and springs they left behind, and corn-fields and noble buildings, and pleasant things wherein they took delight?” God bestowed this wealth on other people, “Thus (was their end) and We made other people inherit (those things).”

They were arrogant tyrants. They reveled in comfort and wealth; however, all of this vanished in a blink of an eye. No one felt sorry for them. Not even a drop of tears was spilled over their demise, “And neither heaven nor earth shed a tear over them; nor were they given a respite.” God saved the Children of Israel, “And We delivered the Children of Israel from the humiliating torment, inflicted by Pharaoh, for he was arrogant and given to excesses. And We chose them, purposely, above (all) nations. And gave them revelations in which there was a clear test.” Not only the Children of Israel were saved by God, but they were also chosen by Him. They were tested with trials.

The narrative then turns to the disbelieving Arabs, “These people say, ‘There is nothing beyond our first death, and we shall not be raised again. Then bring (back) our forefathers, if what you say is true.’” They declared that they did not believe in the resurrection after death. Their argument which they used to challenge the Prophet (PBUH) with was that, if this was true; then bring back our dead forefathers. They did not understand that God made this life a testing ground for people. People will be resurrected and will be held accountable for what they have done during their lives on earth. Those who did good will be rewarded and those who did evil will be punished. God then reminded them with other nations which were destroyed before them, “Are they better, or the people of Tubba’ and those before them? We destroyed them, for surely they were guilty.” The verse commanded them to reflect on the creation of the heavens and earth, “And We did not create the heavens and the earth, and all that is between them, in jest. We did not create them except with truth, but most of them do not know. Assuredly the Day of Decision is the appointed term for all of them, a Day when no friend can avail a friend, nor can they be helped, except him on whom God bestows mercy. He is the Eminent, the Giver of Mercy.” The connection between the resurrection after death and the creation of the heavens and earth is mentioned to underline the fact that there is a purpose behind the creation of this universe. This huge and highly complex universe has been created with great care and is managed in a very meticulous and accurate way. This indicates that there is a purpose behind this creation and it was not simply done as a game.

The verses then take us on a tour of the scenes of the Day of Judgment, “Verily the tree of Zaqqum will be the food of the sinner. Like molten brass; it will boil in their bellies, like the boiling of scalding water. (And it will be said), ‘Take him and drag him to the midst of hell, then pour over his head the torment of boiling water, (Saying), ‘Taste this, you powerful, respected man!’”” It is a horrible scene for the torment that will be administered to the sinners. They will be told, now you cannot dispute the veracity of this torment as you used to do in the worldly life, “This is what you disputed about.”

Contrast this with the reward for those who remained conscious of God, “Surely those who remained God conscious will be in a secure place, amid gardens and water springs, dressed in fine silk and in rich brocade, facing one another. And We shall wed them to fair women with wide, lovely eyes. There they can call for every kind of fruit in peace and security. They will not taste death therein, save the first death. And He has saved them from the torment of Hell, as a bounty from your Lord. That is the supreme triumph.” This is certainly the supreme triumph.

The Sura ends by reminding the disbelievers with the blessings of God embodied in the Quran and warning them of the consequences of rejecting this blessing, “Verily, We have made this (Quran) easy, in your tongue, in order that they may give heed. So, wait then (Muhammad). They (too) are waiting.”

Sura 45: Al-Jathiya (Kneeling Down)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

This Meccan Sura portrays the response of the idolaters of Mecca to the Islamic call. It shows how their arguments were subjective, irrational, and based on their whims and desires. The Sura refutes their arguments and tries to open their eyes to the truth.

Verses 1 to 23:

1. Ha. Mim.
2. The revelation of the Book is from God the Eminent, the Wise.
3. Verily in the heavens and the earth, are signs for those who believe.
4. And in your creation, and in the creatures which He scattered on earth, are signs for people who have certitude.
5. And in the alternation of night and day, and the fact that God sends down sustenance from the sky, and revives therewith the earth after its death, and in the management of the winds, are signs for those who use their reason.
6. These are the verses of God, which We recite to you in truth; then in what message will they believe after (rejecting) God and His revelations?
7. Woe to every sinful liar.
8. He hears the verses of God recited to him, yet is obstinate and arrogant, as if he had not heard them. Give him tidings of a painful torment.
9. And when he learns something of Our verses, he takes them in jest. For such there will be a humiliating torment.
10. Before them is Hell; and that which they have earned will not benefit them, nor will those whom they have chosen for protecting guardians beside God. Theirs will be horrendous torment.
11. This is guidance. And those who disbelieve the revelations of their Lord, for them there is an agonizing painful torment.
12. It is God who has subjected the sea to you, that ships may sail through it by His command, that you may seek of his bounty, and that you may be grateful.
13. And He has subjected to you, all that is in the heavens and on earth. In that are signs indeed for those who reflect.
14. Tell those who believe, to forgive those who do not look forward to the Days of God. It is for Him to recompense (for good or ill) each people according to what they have earned.
15. Whoso does good, it is for his soul, and whoso does wrong, it is against it. And afterward to your Lord you will be brought back.
16. And verily We gave the Children of Israel the Scripture, the Command, and the Prophethood; and provided them with good things and favored them above (all) peoples;
17. And gave them plain commandments. And they did not differ until after the knowledge came to them, out of mutual rivalry. Your Lord will judge between them on the Day of Resurrection concerning that wherein they differed.
18. Then We set you upon a pathway of faith, so follow it, and do not follow the whims of those who do not know.

19. They cannot help you against God, in any way. Indeed, the wrongdoers some of them are protecting guardians of others; and God is the Protecting Guardian of those who are conscious of Him.
20. These are clear evidences to people and a guidance and mercy to those who have certitude.
21. Or do those who commit ill-deeds think that We shall make them as those who believe and do good deeds, the same in life and death? Bad is their judgment.
22. God created the heavens and the earth with truth, so that every soul may be recompensed for what it has earned. And they will not be wronged.
23. Have you not seen him who takes his whims as his god? God has, knowing (him as such), left him to go astray, and sealed his hearing and his heart, and put a cover on his sight. Who, then, will guide him after God (has withdrawn Guidance)? Will you not then heed? (45: 1 – 23)

The Sura starts with the discursive letters of the Alphabet, “Ha. Mim.” The use of these familiar letters of the Alphabet in composing the Book is a sign that it has been revealed by God, the Eminent, the Wise, “The revelation of the Book is from God the Eminent, the Wise.” The verses direct their attention to the signs of God all around them, “Verily in the heavens and the earth, are signs for those who believe.” The signs of God are all around us, but only those who believe can perceive these signs. Faith opens the hearts to be sensitive to the magnificence of the creation of God. The signs are not only limited to one aspect of life, but they can be seen in all aspects of life. All God’s creatures portray His signs, “And in your creation, and in the creatures which He scattered on earth, are signs for people who have certitude.” The signs are also portrayed in the cosmic phenomena all around us, “And in the alternation of night and day, and the fact that God sends down sustenance from the sky, and revives therewith the earth after its death, and in the management of the winds, are signs for those who use their reason.”

“These are the verses of God, which We recite to you in truth; then in what message will they believe after (rejecting) God and His revelations?” No one can produce words that would be more convincing than God’s words.

A threat is posed to those who fabricate lies and commit sins, “Woe to every sinful liar;” those who are arrogant and obstinate in rejecting guidance, “He hears the verses of God recited to him, yet is obstinate and arrogant, as if he had not heard them. Give him tidings of a painful torment.” These people deserve only to be ridiculed and punished, so give them the glad tidings of a painful torment. They distort God’s verses and use it in jest, “And when he learns something of Our verses, he takes them in jest. For such there will be a humiliating torment. Before them is Hell; and that which they have earned will not benefit them, nor will those whom they have chosen for protecting guardians beside God. Theirs will be horrendous torment.” They will not escape Hell fire and nothing will benefit them. The truth about the Quran is then emphasized, “This is guidance. And those who disbelieve the revelations of their Lord, for them there is an agonizing painful torment.”

The narrative then moves to remind them of the cosmic signs around them, “It is God who has subjected the sea to you, that ships may sail through it by His command, that you may seek of his bounty, and that you may be grateful. And He has subjected to you, all that is in the heavens and on earth. In that are signs indeed for those who reflect.” The human being, this tiny creature, receives all this bounty from God. God subjects all that in the heavens and on earth to help him establish his life on earth. God guided humankind to be able to benefit from all these resources and discover the laws that govern them. Without God’s help humankind would not have been able to make these discoveries.

Having reminded the believers of God’s blessings which connects their hearts with the rest of the universe, the verses address them to evoke in their hearts emotions of forgiveness and magnanimity, “Tell those who believe, to forgive those who do not look forward to the Days of God. It is for Him to recompense (for good or ill) each people according to what they have earned. Whoso does good, it is for his soul, and whoso does wrong, it is against it. And afterward to your Lord you will be brought back,” a noble command to forgive from a position of strength not a position of weakness and to teach them to relegate everything to God. God will recompense everyone according to his deeds.

The narrative turns to the Children of Israel, how they were chosen to lead humanity and how they relinquished this responsibility by fighting together because of the mutual rivalry that divided them, “And verily We gave the Children of Israel the Scripture, the Command, and the Prophet-hood; and provided them with good things and favored them above (all) peoples; and gave them plain commandments. And they did not differ until after the knowledge came to them, out of mutual rivalry. Your Lord will judge between them on the Day of Resurrection concerning that wherein they differed.” They were given the Torah which embodied God’s law; they were given the command to rule, and they were given the prophet-hood. God bestowed on them great blessings. They were given clear criteria which differentiate between the right and wrong. However, because of their subjectivity, mutual envy, and wrongdoing they differed among themselves. God deprived them of the leadership He bestowed upon them before and gave it to a new Messenger and a new Message, “Then We set you upon a pathway of faith, so follow it, and do not follow the whims of those who do not know. They cannot help you against God, in any way. Indeed, the wrongdoers some of them are protecting guardians of others; and God is the Protecting Guardian of those who are conscious of Him.” The criterion is clear. On one side there is God’s law and on the other side, there are the whims of those who do not know. The Messenger (PBUH) is warned not to follow the whims of those who do not know. He should follow the message that embodied God’s law because therein is the guidance, “These are clear evidences to people and a guidance and mercy for people who have certitude.”

God will not treat the evil doers and the believers equally, “Or do those who commit ill-deeds think that We shall make them as those who believe and do good deeds, the same in life and death? Bad is their judgment.” Those who believe and do good deeds will receive their rewards from God, while the evil doers will be punished, but no one will be wronged, “God created the heavens and the earth with truth, so that every soul may be recompensed for what it has earned. And they will not be wronged.”

The verses then describe a human model, the model of those who follow their desires, whims, and urges. The people in this model submit to their whims instead of submitting to their Creator, “Have you not seen him who takes his whims as his god? God has, knowing (him as such), left him to go astray, and sealed his hearing and his heart, and put a cover on his sight. Who, then, will guide him after God (has withdrawn Guidance)? Will you not then heed?” These are those who followed their whims and refused to allow the light of guidance to shine on their hearts, so God sealed their senses and prevented the light of guidance to go through their ears, their eyes, and their hearts. How can they hope for guidance after that?

Verses 24 to 37:

24. And they say, “What is there but our life in this world? We shall die and we live, and nothing but time can destroy us;” when they have no knowledge whatsoever of that; they are only guessing.
25. And when Our clear revelations are recited to them their only argument is that they say, “Bring (back) our fathers then, if you are truthful.”
26. Say, “It is God who gives you life, then causes you to die; then He will gather you together for the Day of Judgment about which there is no doubt.” But most people do not know.
27. To God belongs the dominion of the heavens and the earth, and on the Day on which the Hour occurs, on that Day those who follow falsehood will lose everything.
28. And you will see every nation kneeling down. Every nation will be called to its Record, “This Day you shall be recompensed for all what you used to do.
29. This is Our Record speaks about you with truth. Surely, We have been recording everything you did.”
30. Then, as for those who believed and did good deeds, their Lord will admit them to His mercy. That is the evident triumph.
31. But as to those who disbelieved, (to them it will be said), “Were not Our verses recited to you, but you were arrogant, and you were guilty people?”
32. And when it was said that the promise of God was true, and that there is no doubt about the inevitability of the Hour, you used to say, ‘We do not know what is the Hour; we think it is only a conjecture, and we are not certain about it.’”
33. Then will appear to them the evil of what they did, and they will be completely encircled by that which they used to ridicule.
34. It will also be said, “This day We forget you as you forgot the meeting of this Day of yours. And your refuge is the Fire, and you have no helpers.
35. This is because you used to take the revelations of God in jest, and the life of the world deceived you.” This Day, therefore, they shall not be taken out thence, nor can they make amends.
36. Then praise be to God, Lord of the heavens and Lord of the earth, Lord of all the worlds.
37. And to Him belongs the supreme pride through the heavens and the earth; and He is the Eminent, the Wise. (45: 24 – 37)

The idolaters had a very superficial understanding of life. They never wondered about the beginning of life nor did they reflect on the its purpose, “And they say, ‘What is there but our life in this world? We shall die and we live, and nothing but time can destroy us;’ when they have no knowledge whatsoever of that; they are only guessing.” But even the logic they used was flawed. If people simply died because, “nothing but time can destroy us,” how can they explain the death of the children and healthy people? Time is not the only cause of death. In addition, they had no solid proof for this, they were only guessing. They were baffled by the revelation, so the only excuse for their rejection was to pose a challenge to the Messenger (PBUH), “And when Our clear revelations are recited to them their only argument is that they say, ‘Bring (back) our fathers then, if you are truthful.’” But God has His own plan. If they want a proof, then they should reflect on the question of life and death, “Say, ‘It is God who gives you life, then causes you to die; then He will gather you together for the Day of Judgment about which there is no doubt.’ But most people do not know. To God belongs the dominion of the heavens and the earth, and on the day on which the Hour occurs, on that day those who follow falsehood will lose everything.”

On the Day of Judgment, all nations will be gathered together and they will be seen kneeling down, “And you will see every nation kneeling down. Every nation will be called to its Record, ‘This Day you shall be recompensed for all what you used to do. This is Our Record speaks about you with truth. Surely, We have been recording everything you did.’” They will be given their records. All deeds have been recorded. People will be divided into two groups. The first group is the group of those who believed and did good deeds, “Then, as for those who believed and did good deeds, their Lord will admit them to His mercy. That is the evident triumph.” The second group is the group of those who disbelieved, “But as to those who disbelieved, (to them it will be said), ‘Were not Our verses recited to you, but you were arrogant, and you were guilty people? And when it was said that the promise of God was true, and that there is no doubt about the inevitability of the Hour, you used to say, ‘We do not know what is the Hour; we think it is only a conjecture, and we are not certain about it.’” On that Day, there will be no doubts. The truth will be obvious. Then they will see the consequences of what they did before, “Then will appear to them the evil of what they did, and they will be completely encircled by that which they used to ridicule.” They will be forgotten, just like they forgot this Day, “It will also be said, ‘This Day We forget you as you forgot the meeting of this Day of yours. And your refuge is the Fire, and you have no helpers. This, because you used to take the revelations of God in jest, and the life of the world deceived you.’ This Day, therefore, they shall not be taken out thence, nor can they make amends.”

The voices of the praise of God will then be heard, “Then praise be to God, Lord of the heavens and Lord of the earth, Lord of all the worlds. And to Him belongs the supreme pride through the heavens and the earth; and He is the Eminent, the Wise.”

Sura 46: Al-Ahqaf (The Dunes)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

This is a Meccan Sura. It deals mainly with topics which are part of the doctrine of Islam: the belief in the Oneness of God, the belief in the divine revelation, the belief in the Message, the belief in Muhammad (PBUH) as a messenger of God and that he received the Quran, and the belief in the resurrection and the accountability of people on the Day of Judgment. The doctrine provides the basic fundamentals upon which Islam was established. That is why the Quran stressed these fundamentals in all the Suras that were revealed in Mecca. The relationship between the fundamental beliefs and Islamic laws were expounded upon in the Suras of the Quran which were revealed in Medina.

Verses 1 to 14:

1. Ha. Mim.
2. The revelation of the Book is from God the Eminent, the Wise.
3. We did not create the heavens and the earth and all that in between them except in truth, and for an appointed term. But those who disbelieve turn away from what they are warned of.
4. Say, "Do you see what it is you invoke besides God? Show me what they have created on earth, or do they have a share in (the creation of) the heavens? Bring me a scripture (revealed) before this, or any remnant of knowledge (you may have), if you are truthful."
5. And who is more astray than he who invokes besides God those who will not answer him till the Day of Resurrection and they are heedless of their call?
6. And when the people are gathered together (on the Day of Resurrection), they will be their enemies, and they will be deniers of their worshipping (them).
7. And when Our clear revelations are recited to them, those who disbelieve say of the truth when it reaches them, "This is clear magic."
8. Or do they say, "He has fabricated it"? Say, "Had I fabricated it, you have no power to support me against God. He knows best what you say among yourselves concerning it. He suffices as a witness between me and you. And He is the All-Forgiving, the Giver of Mercy."
9. Say, "I am not different from the other messengers (of God), nor do I know what will be done to me or to you. I only follow that which is revealed to me, and I am only a plain warner."
10. Say, "Have you considered if it was from God, and you disbelieved in it while a witness from the Children of Israel has testified to something similar and believed while you were arrogant? Surely God does not guide the wrongdoers."
11. And those who disbelieve said of those who believe, "If it had been (any) good, they would not have preceded us in attaining it." And since they will not be guided by it, they say, "This is an ancient lie."
12. And before this, was the Scripture of Moses a guide and a mercy. And this Book confirms (it) in an Arabic tongue; to admonish the wrongdoers, and a glad tiding to the doers of good.

13. Verily those who said, "Our Lord is God," and remained firm (on the Path), on them shall be no fear, nor shall they grieve.
14. These are the dwellers of the garden, abiding therein, a reward for what they did. (46: 1 – 14)

"Ha. Mim. The Revelation of the Book is from God the Eminent, the Wise. We did not create the heavens and the earth and all that in between them except in truth, and for an appointed term. But those who disbelieve turn away from what they are warned of." These verses refer to the fact that the Quran has been composed using the letters of the Arabic Alphabets. However, the result is a Book that is different from any book a mortal can compose using the same letters of the Alphabet. An implicit reference is also made to the link between the written Book of God and God's Book that can be seen by looking at the universe. Both books are established on the truth. The revelation is a testimony of God's Eminence and Wisdom and the creation is a testimony of God's Power. However, the disbelievers are heedless of both Books.

It is really astounding how can the disbelievers ignore the magnificence of the recited Book and the seen Book? The Book that has been revealed to the Messenger of God (PBUH) emphasizes the facts that there is only One God and that He is the Creator of everything; the Book of the universe which can be seen manifested in the creation of heavens and earth testifies to the same fact. If there were other gods, what did they create? "Say, 'Do you see what it is you invoke besides God? Show me what they have created on earth, or do they have a share in (the creation of) the heavens?'" No one can claim that the objects that the disbelievers worshipped, whether idols, trees, jinn, or angels, did actually create anything on earth. No One can also claim that these objects could have participated in the creation of heaven. But if anyone has the audacity to make such a claim, then they should provide a proof for their claim, "Bring me a Scripture (revealed) before this, or any remnant of knowledge (you may have), if you are truthful."

The idolaters of Mecca used to worship idols, statues that represent the angels, and trees. Some even worshipped the angels or Satan. These objects would never respond to them if they called upon them, and on the Day of Judgment they will deny that they had any connection with those who worshipped them, "And who is more astray than he who invokes besides God those who will not answer him till the Day of Resurrection and they are heedless of their call? And when the people are gathered together (on the Day of Resurrection), they will be their enemies, and they will be deniers of their worshipping (them)."

The following verses discuss the idolaters' response to the revelation and refute their claim that it was fabricated, "And when Our clear revelations are recited to them, those who disbelieve say of the truth when it reaches them, 'This is clear magic.' Or do they say, 'He has fabricated it'? Say, 'Had I fabricated it, you have no power to support me against God. He knows best what you say among yourselves concerning it. He suffices as a witness between me and you. And He is the All-Forgiving, the Giver of Mercy.' The Prophet (PBUH) was told to respond to them with these questions, how could he have fabricated it? Why would he fabricate it? And what is the benefit that he would possibly gain by fabricating it? They should know that no one can protect the imposters from God's wrath. God knows what the disbelievers say and He is sufficient as a judge to judge between the disbelievers and the Messenger (PBUH).

The Prophet (PBUH) was commanded to explain to them that his task was to deliver the message just like all other messengers before him did, “Say, ‘I am not different from the other messengers (of God), nor do I know what will be done to me or to you. I only follow that which is revealed to me, and I am only a plain warner.’” The Prophet (PBUH) was the last messenger of God in a long chain of messengers sent by God to guide humanity. He had no supernatural powers, he did not know what will be done to him, nor did he know what will be done to them. He was only fulfilling his task as has been commanded by God. The Prophet (PBUH) then reminded them with the testimony of one of the scholars of the Children of Israel, “Say, ‘Have you considered if it was from God, and you disbelieved in it while a witness from the Children of Israel has testified to something similar and believed while you were arrogant? Surely God does not guide the wrongdoers.’” We do not know who that scholar was. There are narrations which indicate that this verse was revealed in Medina. These narrations link the verse to Abdul Allah ibn Salam (RA). However, it may have been someone else. The verse aimed at alerting them to be more cautious. They had no evidence that the Book was fabricated, what would then be their fate if the Book was a true divine revelation? However, if they insist on their disbelief, they should know that God does not guide the wrongdoers.

“And those who disbelieve said of those who believe, ‘If it had been (any) good, they would not have preceded us in attaining it.’ And since they will not be guided by it, they say, ‘This is an ancient lie.’” The chiefs of Mecca saw that Islam was adopted by people who were poor and some of them were slaves. Their arrogant nature put them in a state of denial. This religion could not have been good, because if it were good, we would have been the first to adopt it. This is a reflection of their irrationality in dealing with the situation. Having decided that it is not good, they tried to find a justification for their decision, so they decided that it must be a kind of sorcery.

Continuing with the issue of divine revelation, a reference is made to the Scripture that was revealed to Moses (PBUH) and the similarity between the two divine revelations, “And before this, was the Scripture of Moses a guide and a mercy. And this Book confirms (it) in an Arabic tongue; to admonish the wrongdoers, and a glad tiding to the doers of good.”

The verses then turn to the reward of the doers of good, “Verily those who said, ‘Our Lord is God,’ and remained firm (on the Path), on them shall be no fear, nor shall they grieve. These are the dwellers of the garden, abiding therein, a reward for what they did.” Those who said, “Our Lord is God,” did not merely pay lip service to the statement they uttered, nor did they believe in it as a mere thought in their hearts. They made the statement because they believed that it is the divine plan for a complete way of life. This statement shapes the thought of people, it should be reflected on their deeds, and it shapes all possible human relationships in the society.

Verses 15 to 20:

15. We have enjoined on humankind kindness to his parents. In pain did his mother bear him, and in pain did she give birth to him. The carrying of the (child) to his weaning is (a - period of) thirty months. Till when he attains full strength and reaches forty years, he says, "My Lord, enable me to be grateful for the blessings which You have bestowed on me and on my parents, and that I may do good which pleases You. And make my offspring righteous; surely I have repented to You, and surely I am of those who submit.*

16. These are from whom We shall accept the best of their deeds and overlook their evil deeds. (They shall be) among the dwellers of the Garden, a promise of truth, which was made to them (in this life).
  17. But (there is one) who says to his parents, "Fie on you, do you threaten me that I shall be brought forth (again) when generations before me have passed away? And they twain cry to God for help (and say), "Woe to you, believe. The promise of God is true. But he says, "This is nothing except ancient fables."
  18. These are the ones upon whom the word (i.e. the decree) has come into effect among nations of the jinn and humankind which have passed on before them. They are the losers.
  19. And for all there will be ranks from what they do, that He may pay them fully for their deeds; and they will not be wronged.
  20. And on the day when those who disbelieve are exposed to the Fire (it will be said), "You squandered your good things in the life of the world and sought comfort therein. Now this day you are rewarded with the humiliating torment because you were arrogant in the land without a right, and because you used to transgress. (46: 15 – 20)

God enjoined on the whole race of humankind to be kind to their parents. This is a command which has been addressed specifically to the human race. Members of this race should be kind to their parents. The word, "Ihsan," in Arabic which has been used in this verse to describe how a human being should treat his parents has a much wider scope than kindness. The word implies that parents should be treated in the best way possible. This is the parents' right decreed by the Creator of the human race. They deserve this right by virtue of being parents, "We have enjoined on humankind kindness to his parents." This command has been repeated in the Quran and in the tradition of the Messenger of God (PBUH). While there is no mention of a similar command issued to the parents, except in very special cases. The initial natural disposition of the parents takes care of such command. The parents are normally naturally disposed to sacrificing everything they have, even their own lives, to make their children happy.

Part of this sacrifice is mentioned here, "In pain did his mother bear him, and in pain did she give birth to him. The carrying of the (child) to his weaning is (a period of) thirty months." What can a son or a daughter repay their mother for such a sacrifice? The Prophet (PBUH) saw a man performing circumambulation around the Ka'ba, the man was carrying his mother on his back. The man asked the Prophet (PBUH), "Did I fulfill my obligation towards my mother?" The Prophet (PBUH) replied, "You did not even pay her for one exhalation that she made in pain."

The verse continues to describe the process of growing up of the child, "Till when he attains full strength and reaches forty years." The term full strength here is taken to mean forty years of age. The response of those who have been guided is given next, "he says, 'My Lord, enable me to be grateful for the blessings which You have bestowed on me and on my parents, and that I may do good which pleases You. And make my offspring righteous; surely I have repented to You, and surely I am of those who submit.’” These people ask God to grant them three things: to enable them to express their gratitude to Him; to enable them to do good deeds that please God; and to raise their children in a way that pleases God. God’s response is more generous, “These are from whom We shall accept the best of their deeds and overlook their evil deeds. (They shall be among the dwellers of the Garden, a promise of truth, which was made to them (in this life).” Their reward will be made on the basis of the best of their deeds; their sins will be forgiven; and their abode will be paradise.

On the other hand, there are those who reject guidance, who treat their parents harshly, “But (there is one) who says to his parents, ‘Fie on you, do you threaten me that I shall be brought forth (again) when generations before me have passed away?’ And they twain cry to God for help (and say), ‘Woe to you, believe. The promise of God is true. But he says, ‘This is nothing except ancient fables.’” Not only they treat their parents harshly, but they refuse their sincere advice and reject God’s guidance. Their recompense will be similar to their deeds, “These are the ones upon whom the word (i.e. the decree) has come into effect among nations of the jinn and humankind which have passed on before them. They are the losers.” No one will be wronged, and everyone will be recompensed according to their deeds, “And for all there will be ranks from what they do, that He may pay them fully for their deeds; and they will not be wronged.”

The next verse portrays a very brief and quick scene of the scenes of the Day of Judgment, “And on the day when those who disbelieve are exposed to the Fire (it will be said), ‘You squandered your good things in the life of the world and sought comfort therein. Now this day you are rewarded with the humiliating torment because you were arrogant in the land without a right, and because you used to transgress.’” They squandered the good things that God bestowed upon them during the worldly life. They did not invest in the Hereafter but spent all what they had in enjoying the transient pleasures of the worldly life. So, on that Day they will get nothing and they will suffer the humiliating torment that they were warned about.

Verses 21 to 28:

21. Mention the brother of A’ad when he warned his people at the dunes - but there have been warners before him and after him - “Worship none other than God. Truly, I fear for you the torment of a tremendous Day.”
22. They said, “Did you come in order to turn us away from our gods? Then bring upon us the (calamity) with which you are threatening us, if you are truthful.”
23. He said, “The knowledge (of when it will come) is only with God. I proclaim to you the mission on which I have been sent. But I see that you are a people in ignorance.”
24. Then, when they saw the cloud coming toward their valleys, they said, “This cloud will give us rain.” In fact, it is what you were asking to be hastened; a wind wherein is a painful torment.
25. It will destroy everything by the commandment of its Lord. And in the morning, nothing was found of them except their dwellings. Thus, do We reward the guilty people.

26. And We had firmly established them in (prosperity and) power which We have not given to you (Quraish) and We had endowed them with (faculties of) hearing, seeing, and intellect; but their (faculties of) hearing, seeing, and intellect did not benefit them at all because they rejected the revelations of God; and they were (completely) encircled by that which they used to mock at.
27. And verily We have destroyed townships round about you, and displayed (for them) Our revelations, that haply they might return.
28. Why then was no help forthcoming to them from those whom they worshipped as gods, besides God, as a means of access (to God)? They left them in the lurch; but that was their lie, and what they used to invent.” (46: 21 – 28)

“Mention the brother of A’ad when he warned his people at the dunes - but there have been warners before him and after him – ‘Worship none other than God. Truly, I fear for you the torment of a tremendous Day.’” The brother of A’ad is Prophet Hud (PBUH). The verse refers to him as, “the brother of A’ad,” to portray the close relationship between him and his people. It is a similar relationship that Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) had with his people who were at that time persecuting him. This is one of the stories which the Quran used to comfort the Messenger (PBUH) during the period of persecution which he received at the hands of his people. The story is also a reminder for the Arab idolaters of the inevitable fate of those who reject guidance. The people of A’ad were adamant in their rejection, “They said, ‘Did you come in order to turn us away from our gods? Then bring upon us the (calamity) with which you are threatening us, if you are truthful.’” However, Prophet Hud (PBUH) persevered and answered their challenge quietly, “He said, ‘The knowledge (of when it will come) is only with God. I proclaim to you the mission on which I have been sent. But I see that you are a people in ignorance.’” He told them that his task was only to warn them. Only God knows, when and how His wrath will descend on them.

It is narrated that they suffered a severe drought and the weather became hot, so when they saw the clouds moving towards their valley, they were joyful. They thought that at last they will be getting rain to ease their suffering. They did not realize that the clouds were not bringing them the comfort they were looking for, but they were bringing the destruction which they were promised, “Then, when they saw the cloud coming toward their valleys, they said, ‘This cloud will give us rain.’ In fact, it is what you were asking to be hastened; a wind wherein is a painful torment.”

The verse portrays the wind as a living creature that fulfills the commands of its Lord, “It will destroy everything by the commandment of its Lord. And in the morning, nothing was found of them except their dwellings. Thus, do We reward the guilty people.” They were completely destroyed. Only empty houses remained as a sign of a civilization that has once existed, but now only its traces remained.

The verses then reminded the idolaters that these people who were destroyed were given more power and wealth than the idolaters of Quraish ever had, “And We had firmly established them in (prosperity and) power which We have not given to you (Quraish) and We had endowed them with (faculties of) hearing, seeing, and intellect; but their (faculties of) hearing, seeing, and intellect did not benefit them at all because they rejected the revelations of God; and they were (completely) encircled by that which they used to mock at.” God gave them not only prosperity and power but senses that can see, hear, and think. But they did not use any of this for their benefit. The stories of the fate that the early disbelieving nations met were meant to bring the lessons of history to the attention of the idolaters, “And verily We have destroyed townships round about you, and displayed (for them) Our revelations, that haply they might return. Why then was no help forthcoming to them from those whom they worshipped as gods, besides God, as a means of access (to God)? They left them in the lurch; but that was their lie, and what they used to invent.” They should know that those whom they took as partners with God will never be able to help them.

Verses 29 to 35:

29. And remember when We turned towards you a company of jinn to listen to the Quran. They stood in the presence thereof, they said, "Listen in silence." When the (reading) was finished, they returned to their people to warn them.
30. They said, "Our people, We have heard a Book revealed after Moses, confirming what came before it. It guides to the truth and to a straight path.
31. Our people, hearken to the one who invites to God, and believe in Him. He (God) will forgive you your faults, and deliver you from a painful torment.”
32. And whoso does not respond to the one who calls to God he will not be able to escape in the earth, and he has no protecting guardians besides Him. Those are in clear error.
33. Have they not seen that God, who created the heavens and the earth, and never wearied with their creation, is able to give life to the dead? Verily He has power over all things.
34. And on the Day that the disbelievers will be brought in front of the Fire, (they will be asked,) "Is this not the truth?" they will say, "Yes, by our Lord." (One will say): "Then, taste you the torment for having disbelieved.”
35. Therefore, persevere, as did the messengers who had firm resolve; and be in no haste about the (disbelievers). On the Day that they see what they were promised, (it will be) as if they had not tarried more than an hour of the day. A clear message; shall any be destroyed save the transgressors? (46: 29 – 35)

The following verses relate an incident involving jinn; when God sent a group of jinn to listen to the Quran. The statement indicates the existence of creatures that are called jinn. They were able to listen to the Quran and understand its meaning. The statement indicates that jinn have the ability to choose between right and wrong and some of them are believers and some are disbelievers. The mention of this in the Quran is proof enough that all of this is true. This is part of the unseen.

“And remember when We turned towards you a company of jinn to listen to the Quran. They stood in the presence thereof, they said, ‘Listen in silence.’ When the (reading) was finished, they returned to their people to warn them.” This incident was planned to convey the message to the jinn. They recognized that the Quran embodies a message of guidance similar to that which was revealed to Prophet Moses (PBUH) before. They listened attentively then they went to their people to bring them the news, “They said, ‘Our people, We have heard a Book revealed after Moses, confirming what came before it. It guides to the truth and to a straight path. Our people, hearken to the one who invites to God, and believe in Him. He (God) will forgive you your faults, and deliver you from a painful torment.” Ibn Ishaq narrated that this was the end of what the group of jinn said to their people. However, the narrative indicates that the following verses are a continuation to their speech, “And whoso does not respond to the one who calls to God he will not be able to escape in the earth, and he has no protecting guardians besides Him. Those are in clear error. Have they not seen that God, who created the heavens and the earth, and never wearied with their creation, is able to give life to the dead? Verily He has power over all things.” These two verses seem to be a natural continuation of the speech of the group of jinn who listened to the Quran and went back to warn their people. The first verse stresses the punishment for those who disbelieve and the second verse cites the miracle of the creation as supporting evidence that the Quran is a divine revelation.

The narrative then turns to a scene of the scenes of the Day of Judgment, “And on the Day that the disbelievers will be brought in front of the Fire, (they will be asked,) ‘Is this not the truth?’ they will say, ‘Yes, by our Lord.’ (One will say), ‘Then, taste you the torment for having disbelieved.’” The verses are narrated in the form of a dialogue during which the disbelievers will be asked about their previous doubts and whether what they see is the truth. They will swear that it is the truth. It will be then said to them, then suffer the consequences of your disbelief.

The last verse carries a command to the Messenger of God (PBUH) to persevere. We know that the Messenger (PBUH) persevered the suffering and the persecution, however he needed the reminder of His Lord. The command was meant also to comfort him by reminding him of the experiences of the previous messengers, “Therefore persevere, as did the messengers who had firm resolve; and be in no haste about the (disbelievers).” He was told that soon the disbelievers will see the consequences of their deeds, “On the Day that they see what they were promised, (it will be) as if they had not tarried more than an hour of the day. A clear message; shall any be destroyed save the transgressors?” Time till the Day of Judgment will pass as if it were only one hour.

Sura 47: Muhammad (Muhammad)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

This Sura was revealed in Medina. It has another name, the Fighting. This is an appropriate name because the main topic of the Sura is fighting.

Verses 1 to 15:

1. Those who disbelieve and bar people from the way of God, He renders their actions vain.
2. But those who believe, do good deeds, and believe in the (Revelation) sent down to Muhammad - for it is the truth from their Lord - He will absolve them of their sins and improve their condition.
3. This is because those who reject God follow falsehood while those who believe follow the truth from their Lord. Thus, does God coin for people their lessons using similitudes.
4. Therefore, when you encounter the disbelievers (in fight), smite at their necks until, when you have thoroughly subdued them, then bind them firmly and either (confer) a favor afterwards or ransom (them) until the war lays down its burden. That (is the command). If it had been God's will, He could certainly have exacted retribution from them (Himself); but (He lets you fight) in order to test some of you by means of others. But those who are slain in the way of God - He will never let their deeds be wasted.
5. He will guide them and improve their condition;
6. And admit them to the Garden Which He has made known to them.
7. Believers, if you will support (the cause of) God, He will support you, and will make your foothold firm.
8. And those who disbelieve perdition is for them; and He will render their actions fruitless.
9. That is because they hate that which God has revealed; therefore, He made their actions fruitless.
10. Have they not travelled through the land to see the end of those who were before them? God wiped them out. And for the disbelievers there will be the like thereof.
11. That is because God is the Patron of those who believe, and because the disbelievers have no patron.
12. Verily God will admit those who believe and do good deeds, to gardens beneath which rivers flow; while those who reject God will enjoy (this world) and eat as cattle eat; and the Fire will be their abode.
13. And how many a township, stronger than your township (Muhammad) which has cast you out, have We destroyed and they had no helper.
14. Is then one who is on a clear (path) from his Lord like those for whom the evil that they do is beautified while they follow their own whims?
15. The parable of the Garden which the God conscious are promised; in it are rivers of water unpolluted; rivers of milk whose taste never changes; rivers of wine, a joy to those who drink; and rivers of honey pure and clear. In it there are for them all kinds of fruits and grace from their Lord. (Can those in such bliss) be compared to those who will dwell forever in the Fire. They will be given boiling water to drink, so that it tears their bowels? (47: 1 – 15)

The Sura starts with an attack on the disbelievers and a threat that all their deeds will be rendered useless, “Those who disbelieve and bar people from the way of God, He renders their actions vain.” They may have hoped that these actions will benefit them. These actions may have appeared on the surface as good deeds, but what is the use of a good deed that is not supported by faith? It is important that the intention behind the action would be also good. On the other hand, the believers will be rewarded, “But those who believe, do good deeds, and believe in the (Revelation) sent down to Muhammad - for it is the truth from their Lord - He will absolve them of their sins and improve their condition.” Those who believed, did good deeds, and believed in the Book that was revealed to Muhammad (PBUH), because they knew it is the truth from their Lord, those will be treated differently. Their sins will be forgiven and that will make them feel better. They will feel secure, comfortable, confident, content, and peaceful. This will make them lead much more comfortable and happy life. Why is this difference in treatment? Because, “those who reject God follow falsehood while those who believe follow the truth from their Lord. Thus does God coin for people their lessons using similitudes.” Falsehood has no roots to hold it down and everything based on it will be transient. The actions that were based on falsehood will fade away. But the truth is firmly rooted. Actions based on the truth will remain solidly intact. Since those who believe followed the truth that came from their Lord, then their deeds will be firmly rooted, God will forgive their sins and will improve their condition.

“Therefore, when you encounter the disbelievers (in fight), smite at their necks until, when you have thoroughly subdued them, then bind them firmly and either (confer) a favor afterwards or ransom (them) until the war lays down its burden.” This verse establishes the rules for the tactics to be followed in wars between Muslims and their enemies. First, they have to fight fiercely until the enemy is subdued; then take those who surrender captives. The captives can be either freed as a favor from the Muslims or they can be freed for a ransom.

“That (is the command). If it had been God's will, He could certainly have exacted retribution from them (Himself); but (He lets you fight) in order to test some of you by means of others.” The history shows that all those who disbelieved and barred people from the path were tyrants. They persecuted the Muslims and spread corruption in the land. God could have destroyed them without a fight, but God wanted to test the believers. This kind of test kindles the flame of gallantry in the believers and motivates them to fight those who are persecuting or attacking them. God wanted to educate the believers to become objective in their views and to rid them of all whims and vain desires. They are fighting to protect the principles that they believe in. They are not fighting for a worldly gain. Another objective of this test is to show that death is inevitable. There is no life that is worth to be lived in humility or under persecution. The test provides an opportunity to those who would rather die martyrs than live slaves. This is also a test to determine those who are worthy of leadership. The test uncovers those who are ready to sacrifice their lives for the sake of a worthy cause, those who rid themselves of any shred of selfishness, and those who are interested only in establishing a good life on earth. These were promised a great reward, “But those who are slain in the way of God - He will never let their deeds be wasted. He will guide them and improve their condition; and admit them to the Garden which He has made known to them.” The key word here is, “improve their condition.” This is a promise that God will look after those who die in His cause to purify their souls and to guide them. They will then be admitted to the paradise that they were promised.

The following verse motivates the believers to fight in the sake of God promising them God's support, "Believers, if you will support (the cause of) God, He will support you, and will make your foothold firm." For the believers to get God's support, they should have the sincere intention to fight only for God's cause. The pure intention to serve God's cause is the condition for gaining God's support whether to die as a martyr or to overcome God's enemy. Sometime the lack of faith or the lack of objectivity clouds the vision and this fact is lost. It has been narrated that Abu Musa (RA) asked the Messenger of God (PBUH), "Which fight can be considered to be in the sake of God: a person who fights motivated by his courage, a person who fights motivated by his gallantry, or a person who fights because he wants to show off?" The Messenger (PBUH) replied, "Only a person who fights so that God's word reign supreme over any other word, is considered to be fighting in the sake of God."

One notices that the verse indicates that God will grant victory to the believers then will make their foothold firm, "He will support you, and will make your foothold firm." This is a subtle indication that victory in battle is not the end of the fight between truth and falsehood. The believers need to be cautious because the fight between the truth and falsehood will never end; it will simply take other forms other than armed struggle.

On the other hand, those who disbelieve will meet their fate, "And those who disbelieve perdition is for them; and He will render their actions fruitless." They will be destroyed and their deeds will be rendered fruitless, "That is because they hate that which God has revealed, therefore He made their actions fruitless."

The disbelievers are then directed to reflect on the fate of those who were destroyed before, "Have they not travelled through the land to see the end of those who were before them? God wiped them out. And for the disbelievers there will be the like thereof." They were destroyed because they had no protection. They forfeited the protection of God; and there are no protectors besides Him, "That is because God is the Patron of those who believe, and because the disbelievers have no patron." God is sufficient for the believers as a protecting Patron. Even if the victory over falsehood is delayed, it is forthcoming.

"Verily God will admit those who believe and do good deeds, to gardens beneath which rivers flow; while those who reject God will enjoy (this world) and eat as cattle eat; and the Fire will be their abode." The believers may enjoy the pleasures of the life of this world, but they will get the real and permanent enjoyment in paradise. But those who disbelieve will only get their enjoyment in this life. The pleasures they will enjoy in the life of this world is an enjoyment of low quality; it a material enjoyment void of any high human value; so it is more like cattle's enjoyment of material things.

"And how many a township, stronger than your township (Muhammad) which has cast you out, have We destroyed and they had no helper." This verse was revealed to the Prophet (PBUH) during his trip when he migrated from Mecca to Medina. It brought comfort to the Prophet (PBUH) at this difficult time.

A comparison is then made between the conditions of the believers and the disbelievers, “Is then one who is on a clear (path) from his Lord like those for whom the evil that they do is beautified while they follow their own whims?” There is a basic difference between the two groups. The believers were able to see the truth in the guidance that they received from God and they followed it. The vision of the disbelievers, on the other hand, was overclouded by their whims and desires. They followed their whims and desires which led them astray. The difference between the two categories in the reward is then outlined, “The parable of the Garden which the God conscious are promised; in it are rivers of water unpolluted; rivers of milk whose taste never changes; rivers of wine, a joy to those who drink; and rivers of honey pure and clear. In it there are for them all kinds of fruits and grace from their Lord. (Can those in such bliss) be compared to those who will dwell forever in the Fire. They will be given boiling water to drink, so that it tears their bowels?”

Verses 16 to 31:

16. Among them are those who listen to you (Muhammad) and when they go forth from your presence they say to those who have been given knowledge, “What did he say just now?” Those whose hearts have been sealed by God, and they follow their own whims.
17. But those who are guided, He increases their guidance, and bestows on them their consciousness of Him.
18. Are they then only waiting for the Hour- that it should come upon them suddenly? But some of its signs have already come. But how, when it comes upon them, can they take their warning?
19. Know, therefore, that there is no god but God; and ask forgiveness for your sin and for the men and women who believe. God knows how you move about and knows your abode.
20. Those who believe say, “Why is not a sura sent down?” But when a sura of unequivocal meaning is revealed, and fighting is mentioned therein, you will see those in whose hearts is a disease looking at you with a look of one who is fainting at the approach of death. But more fitting for them –
21. To obey and say what is just, and when the matter is determined - if they are loyal to God it will be better for them.
22. Would you then, if you were given the command, to spread mischief in the land and sever your ties of kinship?
23. Those are whom God has cursed, so He has made them deaf and blinded their eyes.
24. Why do not they reflect on the Quran, or are there locks on the hearts?
25. Those who turned back as apostates after guidance was clearly shown to them, Satan has seduced them and gave them false hopes.
26. This is because they said to those who hate what God has revealed, “We will obey you in part of (this) matter;” but God knows their secrets.
27. Then how (will it be with them) when the angels cause them to die smiting their faces and their backs.
28. This is because they followed that which angered God, and they hated God's good pleasure; so He made their deeds useless.
29. Or do those, in whose hearts is a disease, think that God will not bring to light their entire rancor?

30. Had We so willed, We could have made them known to you, and you should have known them by their marks; but surely you will know them by the tone of their speech. And God knows all that you do.
31. And verily We shall try you till We know those of you who strive hard (for the cause of God) and the steadfast, and till We test your record. (47: 16 – 31)

“Among them are those who listen to you (Muhammad) and when they go forth from your presence they say to those who have been given knowledge, ‘What did he say just now?’ Those whose hearts have been sealed by God, and they follow their own whims.” The verse refers to the hypocrites who used to pretend that they were deeply interested in the Prophet’s (PBUH) speech then they turn around and subtly ridicule what he was saying. Compare this with what the believers were promised, “But those who are guided, He increases their guidance, and bestows on them their consciousness of Him.” They will be guided, their consciousness of God will increase, and they will be in awe of God. Juxtapose this against the condition of the hypocrites. They will be led astray, their hearts are sealed, and they will be heedless. The following verse expresses amazement at what the hypocrites were waiting for, “Are they then only waiting for the Hour- that it should come upon them suddenly? But some of its signs have already come. But how, when it comes upon them, can they take their warning?” When the Hour comes it will be too late for heeding the warning.

A command was issued to the Prophet (PBUH) and the believers to take the path leading to knowledge, remembrance of God, and seeking His forgiveness, “Know, therefore, that there is no god but God; and ask forgiveness for your sin and for the men and women who believe. God knows how you move about and knows your abode.” The believers should know the fundamental fact upon which Islam is based: the belief in the oneness of God. Then they should seek God’s forgiveness. Knowledge is the basis for action. Knowledge is like a tree and action is its fruits. A tree that does not yield fruits is useless. The address is directed to the Messenger (PBUH), knowing that his sins have been all forgiven to emphasize the fact that one of the objectives for asking God’s forgiveness is to express one’s gratitude to God. In addition, the verse is not only directed to the Messenger (PBUH) but to all the believers as well. The last sentence in the verse, “God knows how you move about and how you dwell in your homes,” reassures the believers of the nearness of God, His care, and His protection. It also alerts them to the fact they cannot hide any secret from God, because He knows everything.

“Those who believe say, ‘Why is not a sura sent down?’” This may have been an expression of yearning for another sura from the Quran that they loved. Or they may have been looking for an answer to a question that has been posed about fighting in the way of God. However, “But when a sura of unequivocal meaning is revealed, and fighting is mentioned therein, you will see those in whose hearts is a disease looking at you with a look of one who is fainting at the approach of death.” The verse continues to describe the reaction of the hypocrites to the revelation of God’s command to fight. The fear fills their heart, they become overwhelmed with panic, and they become on the verge of losing consciousness for fear of death. The recipe for salvation from such a despicable reaction is then prescribed, “But more fitting for them - to obey and say what is just, and when the matter is determined - if they are loyal to God it will be better for them.”

Trusting in God and obeying them is the prescription for salvation.

The verse then addresses the hypocrites directly, “Would you then, if you were given the command, to spread mischief in the land and sever your ties of kinship?” This was a warning in case their behavior led them to completely abandoning Islam and they became apostates. The consequences for such behavior are then expounded, “Those are whom God has cursed so He has made them deaf and blinded their eyes.” Those who continue on the path of hypocrisy will be deprived of God’s mercy, they will be cursed by Him, and they will be made deaf and blind. Why do not they reflect on the Quran? Or their intellect has been locked, it cannot think, “Why do not they reflect on the Quran, or are there locks on the hearts?”

“Those who turned back as apostates after guidance were clearly shown to them, Satan has seduced them and gave them false hopes. This is because they said to those who hate what God has revealed, ‘We will obey you in part of (this) matter;’ but God knows their secrets.” The verses uncover the reason behind turning away from Islam by some of the hypocrites. They aligned themselves with the enemy of Muslims. God knows all what they do, and they will be punished severely, “Then how (will it be with them) when the angels cause them to die smiting their faces and their backs.” They will receive this punishment because they made the wrong choice, “This is because they followed that which angered God, and they hated God's good pleasure; so He made their deeds useless.”

The threat is then posed to the hypocrites that God can very easily expose them, “Or does those, in whose hearts is a disease, think that God will not bring to light their entire rancor? Had We so willed, We could have made them known to you, and you should have known them by their marks; but surely you will know them by the tone of their speech. And God knows all that you do.”

God knows everything and He will test the believers to make known those who stand fast and are willing to strive in His way, “And verily We shall try you till We know those of you who strive hard (for the cause of God) and the steadfast, and till We test your record.”

Verses 32 to 38:

32. Those who disbelieved and barred people from the way of God and opposed the messenger after the guidance has been manifested to them, they will not hurt God, and He will make their actions fruitless.
33. Believers, obey God, and obey the Messenger, and do not invalidate your deeds.
34. Those who disbelieved and barred people from the path of God, then died rejecting God; God will not forgive them.
35. So do not falter and cry out for peace when you (will be) the uppermost, and God is with you, and He will not deprive you (of the reward of) your deeds.

36. The life of this world is but play and amusement; and if you believe and remain conscious of God, He will reward you, and will not ask you (to give up) your possessions.
37. If He were to ask you for all of them, and press you, you would covetously withhold, and He would expose your malice.
38. Here you are being invited to spend (of your substance) in the path of God; but among you are some who are niggardly. But any who are niggardly are so at the expense of their own souls. But God is free of all want, and it is you that are needy. If you turn back (from the path), He will substitute in your stead another people; then they would not be like you. (47: 32 – 38)

“Those who disbelieved and barred people from the way of God and opposed the Messenger after the guidance has been manifested to them, they will not hurt God, and He will make their actions fruitless.” God has decreed that the deeds of those who disbelieved, barred people from the straight path, and fought the Messenger (PBUH) - during his life by carrying arms against him or after his death by fighting his Message – after they have received guidance will be rendered fruitless. Needless to say that they cannot harm God in any way but they cannot inflict any harm on God’s Message or those who are carrying the responsibility of calling to His Message. If they succeed in harming those who call to God’s Message, it will only be for a limited time and for a wisdom which only God knows.

Then the believers were commanded to obey God, the Messenger (PBUH), “Believers, obey God, and obey the Messenger, and do not invalidate your deeds.” This command indicates that within the Muslim community at that time there were people who did not comply totally with this principle, so they needed a reminder. They were warned that this may result in invalidating their deeds. True Muslims were shocked by this warning and were extremely cautious; they took all precautions to make sure that they were not part of this group.

The consequences for those who disbelieve and fight the Messenger of God (PBUH) were then explained, “Those who disbelieved and barred people from the path of God, then died rejecting God; God will not forgive them.” They have the chance to repent in their life time, but once they die it will be too late. This verse applies to the believers as well. It is a reminder to stay on the straight path. The believers are also warned of certain behaviors, “So do not falter and cry out for peace when you (will be) the uppermost, and God is with you, and He will not deprive you (of the reward of) your deeds.” They should not tarry when the call to strive in the path of God was made. They should not lose confidence and try to avoid fighting in the path of God, when the fight was called for. They were defending the truth, so by the help of God, they will have the upper hand over their enemy sooner or later. The pleasures of life should not be a factor to soften their resolve because, “The life of this world is but play and amusement; and if you believe and remain conscious of God, He will reward you, and will not ask you (to give up) your possessions.” Life is a game for those who do not live according to God’s project. For those who live according to God’s project, life is a field that one sows to be harvested in the Hereafter. They try to fulfill the undertakings that God has prescribed for those whom He designated to be vicegerents on earth. Their reward will be with God who will not ask them to sacrifice their possessions because God knows the niggardly nature of humankind, “If He were to ask you for all of them, and press you, you would covetously withhold, and He would expose your malice. Here you are being invited to spend (of your substance) in the path of God; but among you are some who are niggardly. But any who are niggardly are so at the expense of their own souls. But God is free of all wants, and it is you that are needy. If you turn back (from the path), He will substitute in your stead another people; then they would not be like you.” These verses show that the requirements of the religion of Islam are tailored to suit the initial natural disposition, the abilities, and the aptitudes of humankind. God knows best His creatures. The verses urge the Muslims to be generous in spending voluntarily in the path of God. However, the believers should realize that God is independent of any need; all of their possessions were given to them as a blessing from God. Niggardliness is a bad policy because any wealth that is spent in the way of God will be rewarded in multitude. God also can easily replace those who turn away with people that are not like them.

Sura 48: Al-Fath (The Victory)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

This Sura was revealed in Medina in the sixth year of Hijra after the agreement of Hudaibiyah was concluded. The main theme of the Sura is the agreement of Hudaibiyah, the condition of the Muslims community, and the circumstances that surrounded this agreement. Let us first discuss the circumstances that lead to the agreement of Hudaibiyah. Quraish prevented the Muslims who migrated to Medina to come back to Mecca to visit the Holy Mosque to perform Umra. Quraish's decision flew in the face of the well-established Arabic traditions. These traditions established the right to visit the K'aba. No one was ever prevented to enter Mecca, if they wanted to visit the K'aba. On the sixth year after the migration to Medina, the Messenger of God (PBUH) saw in a dream that he was entering the K'aba accompanied by Muslims; some Muslims shaved their heads and others cut their hair short. The Messenger (PBUH) told his companions of his dream and they considered this a good omen. During the month of Zul-Quida the Messenger (PBUH) decided to perform Umra. He asked the Muslims in Medina as well as the desert Arabs residing around Median to join him. Many of the desert Arabs lagged behind and he started his trip to Mecca with the Muslims who joined him. The Messenger and his companions were dressed in the unsown cloth required to perform the rituals of Umra, declared his intention to perform Umra, and brought with him the animals that he and his companions will sacrifice in Mecca as a part of the rituals of Umra. There were about fourteen hundred Muslims who joined the Messenger (PBUH) with the intention to perform Umra. When they reached a place called Sa'fan, the Prophet (PBUH) was met by a man called Bishr ibn Sufian Al-Ka'bi, he said, "Messenger of God, Quraish heard about your intention to visit Mecca, and they decided to debar you from entering Mecca. They prepared an army which is waiting for you at a place called Zi-Towa and their cavalry under the leadership of Khaled ibn Al-Waleed is waiting at a place called Kira' Al-Ghamim. They will not allow you and your companions to proceed to Mecca." The Messenger of God (PBUH) said, "Why does Quraish want war with us? Why do not they let me talk to the other Arab tribes? If the tribes rejected me then that should please Quraish, but if they joined me then Quaraish can then chose whether they chose Islam or they can fight me at that time. Let Quraish know, that I will continue to strive to call people to Islam until I succeed or I perish."

The Messenger (PBUH) asked his companions if any of them knows a route to Mecca which can bypass the route stalked by Quraish's army. A man from the tribe of Aslam knew of such a route so he led the Messenger (PBUH) and his companions. It was a very difficult route but it lead to a flat valley. Upon entering the valley, the Messenger (PBUH) asked his companions to ask God for forgiveness. The Muslims continued to proceed toward Mecca. When they reached Hudaibiyah, the Messenger's (PBUH) camel sat down and refused to move. In the mean time, when the observers from Quraish army realized that the Messenger (PBUH) changed his route, they went back to the army to alert them. The companions of the Messenger (PBUH) thought that the camel did not want to move because it had a mind of its own. The Messenger (PBUH) explained to them that the camel sat there because this was a command from God. The Messenger of God (PBUH) told his companions that this is God's plan and that he will agree to any agreement that Quraish would suggest as long as it respects God's prohibitions.

The companions came to the Messenger (PBUH) complaining that they cannot find water. He gave one of them one of his arrows and told him to go and dig. They dug and found water.

A number of mediators went back and forth between the Muslims and Quraish. First came Badil ibn Warqaa from the tribe of Khoza'a. The tribe of Khoza'a were not Muslims but they were sympathetic to the Muslim cause. Then Quraish sent Mikriz ibn Hafs followed by Al-Hulaiss ibn Azzaban as mediators. The three men received the same message from the Messenger of God (PBUH): The Muslims did not come to fight Quraish; they only wanted to perform Umra. The three mediators were convinced of the truth of the message and tried to convince Quraish to let the Muslims perform Umra. However, the chiefs of Quraish were adamant not to allow the Muslims into Mecca.

The Prophet (PBUH) then sent a man from Khoza'a to talk to the chiefs of Quraish. They killed his camel and tried to kill him but he was able to escape. Quraish sent a group of about forty people to kidnap a couple of Muslims but they were captured by the Muslims, however the Prophet (PBUH) freed them as a token of the Muslims' good intention.

The Prophet (PBUH) then sent Uthman ibn A'ffan (RA) to negotiate with Quraish. Uthman (RA) was delayed in Mecca and a rumor started to circulate that he was killed by Quraish. When the Prophet (PBUH) received this news, he decided that fighting Quraish became inevitable. He asked the Muslims to give him their oath of allegiance to join him in the war against Quraish. All Muslims gave their oath except a person by the name of Al-Jadd ibn Qais. The oath of allegiance took place under a tree. However, it came to be known that the rumor of Uthman's (RA) killing was not true. Quraish then sent Suhail ibn A'mr to negotiate a treaty with the Prophet (PBUH). The Prophet (PBUH) negotiated the treaty of Hudaibiyah with Suhail; Ali ibn abi Taleb (RA) wrote down the conditions of the treaty. It was decided that the treaty would last for ten years. The treaty allowed the different Arab tribes to choose which side they wish to be allied with; as a result, the tribe of Khoza'a chose to be allied to the Muslims while the tribe of Banu Bakr chose Quraish as their allies. It was also agreed that the Muslims would not perform Umra this year, however, they can come back the following year they to perform Umra. Another condition was that Muslims should not accept any new reverts from Quraish while they would allow anyone who apostates to go back to Quraish. The Muslims were not pleased with these conditions. Even Umar ibn Al-Khatib (RA) was very angry. Umar (RA) later confessed that he continued to do good deeds asking God to forgive him for expressing his anger on that day.

While the conditions of the treaty were being written, Abu Gandal the son of Suhail came to the Prophet (PBUH) to announce that he became a Muslim; he wanted to join the Muslims but the Prophet (PBUH) refused to accept him because he felt that he was compelled to honor his agreement with Quraish.

The Prophet (PBUH) asked the Muslims to slaughter their sacrifice and to shave their heads as a sign of ending their state of Ihram (signifying the completion of the rituals of Umra). The Muslims were reluctant to oblige. The Prophet (PBUH) went into his tent complaining to his wife, Um Salamah (RA), about the reluctance of the Muslims to obey his orders. She advised him to go out, slaughter his sacrifice, and shave his head; which he did. When the Muslims saw the Prophet (PBUH) doing that they followed suit.

The present Sura was revealed to the Prophet (PBUH) while he was on the way back to Medina. When the Prophet (PBUH) recited the verse, “We have given you (Muhammad) a clear victory.” The Muslims asked, “Is this really a victory?” The Prophet (PBUH) said, “By God in whose hand is my soul, it is a true victory.”

Verses 1 to 17:

1. We have given you (Muhammad) a clear victory.
2. That God may forgive you your sins, that which is past and that which is to come; and may perfect His blessings on you; and may guide you on a straight path,
3. And that God may help you with a mighty victory.
4. It is He who sent down tranquility into the hearts of the believers, that they may add faith to their faith. To God belong the hosts of the heavens and the earth; and God is Omniscient, Wise.
5. That He may admit the believing men and women into Gardens underneath which rivers flow, to dwell therein forever, and absolve them of their sins; and that is, in the sight of God, the supreme triumph.
6. And that He may torment the hypocrites, men and women, and the idolaters, men and women, who entertain evil thoughts about God. Upon them is a misfortune of evil nature; the wrath of God is on them. He has cursed them and got Hell ready for them; and evil is it for a destination.
7. To God belong the hosts of the heavens and the earth; and God is Eminent, Wise.
8. We have truly sent you as a witness, as a bringer of glad tidings, and as a warner.
9. In order that you (people) may believe in God and His Messenger and that you may assist and honor Him, and celebrate His praise morning and evening.
10. Those who pledge allegiance to you (Muhammad), pledge allegiance only to God. The hand of God is above their hands. So whosoever breaks his oath breaks it only to his own detriment; while whosoever keeps his covenant with God, God will bestow on him immense reward.
11. The desert Arabs who lagged behind will say to you, "Our possessions and our households occupied us, so ask forgiveness for us." They say with their tongues that which is not in their hearts. Say, "Who can avail you anything against God, if He intended for you harm or He intended for you benefit?" God is Totally-Aware of what you do.
12. But, you thought that the Messenger and the believers will never return to their families; this seemed pleasing in your hearts, and you conceived an evil thought, for you are a worthless people.
13. And if any does not believe in God and His Messenger, We have prepared a blazing Fire for the disbelievers.
14. To God belongs the dominion of the heavens and the earth. He forgives whom He wills, and He punishes whom He wills. And God is All-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy.
15. Those who lagged behind will say to you, when you set forth to capture booty, "Let us follow you." They wish to change the verdict of God. Say (to them), "You shall not follow us. God has said this before.” Then they will say, “You are envious of us.” How little they understand?

16. Say to the desert Arabs who lagged behind, "You shall be summoned (to fight) against a people of great military might, you should fight them unless they surrender. Then if you show obedience, God will grant you a goodly reward, but if you turn back as you did before, He will punish you with a painful torment."

17. There is no blame for the blind, nor is there blame for the lame, nor is there blame for the sick (that they do not go forth to war). And whoso obeys God and His messenger, He will admit him to Gardens underneath which rivers flow; and whoso turns back, He will punish him with a painful torment. (48: 1 – 17)

“We have given you (Muhammad) a clear victory. That God may forgive you your sins, that which is past and that which is to come; and may perfect His blessings on you; and may guide you on a straight path. And that God may help you with a mighty victory.” The opening verse of the Sura outlines the divine blessings that God has bestowed on His Messenger (PBUH): clear victory, comprehensive forgiveness, perfect favor, firm guidance, and mighty victory. This is the reward for the complete submission to God and the absolute trust in Him which the Messenger (PBUH) exhibited. The Messenger (PBUH) relinquished his own personal will and followed God’s will which has been conveyed subtly through a dream. He stood firm against the great pressure exerted by his companions to fight and concluded the treaty in obedience to God’s command.

It was truly a great victory. During the two years that followed the conclusion of the treaty, the number of people who accepted Islam exceeded by far the number of Muslims that existed before the treaty. The number of Muslims who went out with the Messenger (PBUH) to perform Umra in the sixth year of Hijra was about fourteen hundred, two years later the number of Muslims who participated in the conquest of Mecca were about ten thousand people. Among the people who accepted Islam during these two years, were prominent leaders like Khaled ibn Al-Waleed (RA) and ‘Amr ibn Al-‘Aass (RA). The peace between the Muslims and Quraish allowed the Muslims to deal with their enemies, the Jewish tribe of Bani Khaiber. The allegiance that the Muslims pledged under the tree – the pledge of Al-Ridwan – represented another victory for the hearts that submitted to the will of God.

The Prophet (PBUH) and the Muslims were very pleased with this Sura, which outlined the great blessings that God bestowed on His Messenger (PBUH) and the believers who expressed their submission to God in a very practical way and at a very difficult time. God filled their hearts with tranquility, bestowed His forgiveness on them, and promised them great rewards in the Hereafter, “It is He who sent down tranquility into the hearts of the believers, that they may add faith to their faith. To God belong the hosts of the heavens and the earth; and God is Omniscient, Wise.” The tranquility and serenity that filled the hearts of the believers were important factors that moved the believers to submit and be content with God’s verdict. This was needed in view of the fact that the Muslims embarked on this trip full of hope that they will get to perform Umra with the Messenger of God (PBUH) but their hopes were dashed when Quraish debarred them from entering Mecca. The situation was further aggravated by the treaty that was concluded between the Messenger (PBUH) and Quraish. The Muslims did not like the conditions stipulated in the treaty. They felt that the conditions were favorable to Quraish; they were worried that this would be seen as a sign of weakness. God filled the hearts of the believers with the tranquility that made them submit to His will.

Then God reminded the believers, that he could have subdued Quraish for their sake, using His hosts, “To God belong the hosts of the heavens and the earth;” but the divine wisdom willed otherwise. So that, “He may admit the believing men and women into Gardens underneath which rivers flow, to dwell therein forever, and absolve them of their sins; and that is, in the sight of God, the supreme triumph.” God wanted to grant the believers the supreme triumph. On the other hand, He wanted the hypocrites and the idolaters to be punished, “And that He may torment the hypocrites, men and women, and the idolaters, men and women, who entertain evil thoughts about God. Upon them is a misfortune of evil nature; the wrath of God is on them. He has cursed them and got Hell ready for them; and evil is it for a destination.” Then the power of God is reiterated once more, “To God belong the hosts of the heavens and the earth; and God is Eminent, Wise.”

“We have truly sent you as a witness, as a bringer of glad tidings, and as a warner.” This verse emphasized the responsibility of the Messenger of God (PBUH). He was sent to be a witness over humankind that he had delivered the Message. He was sent to bring glad tidings to those who will accept the guidance and to warn those who will reject it. The believers are then told of their responsibility, “In order that you (people) may believe in God and His Messenger and that you may assist and honor Him, and celebrate His praise morning and evening.” They should believe in God and His Messenger (PBUH), support the divine project, revere God, and pray to Him during the day. These prayers will maintain the connection between their hearts and God. So, they will be always connected with God. This connection was made possible through the Messenger (PBUH); they made that connection when they pledged their allegiance to him. That is why when they swore allegiance to the Messenger (PBUH) they were actually pledging allegiance to God, “Those who pledge allegiance to you (Muhammad), pledge allegiance only to God. The hand of God is above their hands. So whosoever breaks his oath breaks it only to his own detriment; while whosoever keeps his covenant with God, God will bestow on him immense reward.”

“The desert Arabs who lagged behind will say to you, ‘Our possessions and our households occupied us, so ask forgiveness for us.’ They say with their tongues that which is not in their hearts. Say, ‘Who can avail you anything against God, if He intended for you harm or He intended for you benefit?’ God is Totally-Aware of what you do. But, you thought that the Messenger and the believers will never return to their families; this seemed pleasing in your hearts, and you conceived an evil thought, for you are a worthless people.” The verses did not only relate the story of those who lagged behind but they also offered a recipe for addressing the ills of the souls and the doubts that lingered in the hearts. The verses refer to the Arabs of the tribes of Ghifar, Muzainah, Ashga’, Aslam and others who resided around Medina and were reluctant to join the Prophet (PBUH) when he asked them to join him on his trip to Umra. Not only they had no excuse to lag behind, but they were also insincere in asking for forgiveness. They forgot that God is Totally-Aware of what they think and what they do. They forgot also that no one can protect them if God desired to punish them; nor that no one can prevent God’s blessings to reach them. Then they were given the true reason for their reluctance to join the Messenger (PBUH), “But, you thought that the Messenger and the believers will never return to their families; this seemed pleasing in your hearts, and you conceived an evil thought, for you are a worthless people.” They thought that the Messenger’s (PBUH) trip to Mecca to perform Umra was a suicidal mission. They did not understand how could the Messenger (PBUH) go to Mecca to perform Umra, knowing that he was expelled from Mecca and that there was a state of war between the Muslims and Quraish. They had great doubts that he and those who went with him would return safely from such a trip. They forgot that it was God’s command and that God promised to protect His Messenger and his companions. These evil thoughts which they harbored in their hearts made them lag behind. They thought that by lagging behind they would be safe but the criterion of salvation that God decreed is different from their material calculations, “And if any does not believe in God and His Messenger, We have prepared a blazing Fire for the disbelievers. And if any does not believe in God and His Messenger, We have prepared a blazing Fire for the disbelievers. To God belongs the dominion of the heavens and the earth. He forgives whom He wills, and He punishes whom He wills. And God is All-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy.”

The following verse brought the believers glad tidings of an imminent victory, “Those who lagged behind will say to you, when you set forth to capture booty, ‘Let us follow you.’ They wish to change the verdict of God. Say (to them), ‘You shall not follow us. God has said this before.’ Then they will say, ‘You are envious of us.’ How little they understand?” Most of the scholars believe that this verse points to the battle of Khaibar. That could be true but the verse could also be understood as a promise to the believers that they will be engaging in a battle which they will win. Those who lagged behind will then discover the truth of the situation. The Messenger (PBUH) was to reject their request. They declared that they were rejected only because the Muslims were envious of them, how little did they know?

However, they were given another chance, “Say to the desert Arabs who lagged behind, ‘You shall be summoned (to fight) against a people of great military might you should fight them unless they surrender. Then if you show obedience, God will grant you a goodly reward, but if you turn back as you did before, He will punish you with a painful torment.” It is not known exactly which battle the Quran is referring to, but the verse stated a principle in general. However, exemptions were granted to those who had real excuses, “There is no blame for the blind, nor is there blame for the lame, nor is there blame for the sick (that they do not go forth to war).” The reward for those who obey and the punishment for those who disobey were then enunciated, “And whoso obeys God and His messenger, He will admit him to Gardens underneath which rivers flow; and whoso turns back, He will punish him with a painful torment.”

Verses 18 to 29:

18. God was well pleased with the believers when they pledged allegiance to you under the tree, and He knew what was in their hearts, and He sent down tranquility on them, and has rewarded them with an imminent victory;
19. And abundant gains will they acquire; and God is Eminent, Wise.

20. God has promised you abundant gains that you shall acquire, and He has given you this in advance, and has restrained people's hands from you, that it may be a sign for the believers, and that He may guide you on a straight path.
21. And other (gains) which you have not been able to achieve, God has surely encompassed them, and God is All-Powerful.
22. And if those who disbelieve should fight you they will certainly turn (their) backs, then they would not find any protecting guardian or a helper.
23. This is the law of God which has taken course always. You will not find any change in the law of God.
24. And it is He who has restrained their hands from you and your hands from them in the midst of Mecca, after He had made you victors over them. God is All-Seeing of what you do.
25. They are the ones who disbelieved and debarred you from the inviolable Place of Worship, and debarred the offering from reaching its goal. And if it had not been for believing men and believing women, whom you did not know - lest you should tread them under foot and thus incur guilt for them unknowingly; that God might bring into His mercy whom He wills - If (the believers and the disbelievers) had been clearly separated We verily would had punished those of them who disbelieved with painful torment.
26. When those who disbelieve had set up in their hearts zealotry, the zealotry of the age of ignorance, then God sent down His tranquility upon His Messenger and upon the believers and imposed on them the word of God consciousness, for they were entitled to it and worthy of it. And God is Omniscient.
27. Truly God has fulfilled the vision of His Messenger. You shall enter the Sacred Mosque - if God wills - secure, heads shaved or hair cut short, and without fear. He knew what you knew not, and He granted, besides this, an imminent victory.
28. It is He who has sent His Messenger with guidance and the religion of truth, to proclaim it over all religions. And God suffices as a Witness.
29. Muhammad is the Messenger of God; and those who are with him are strong against the disbelievers, (but) compassionate amongst each other. You will see them bowing and prostrating themselves (in prayer), seeking bounty from God and (His) Good Pleasure. On their faces are their marks, (being) the traces of their prostration. This is their similitude in the Torah; and their similitude in the Gospel- like a seed which sends forth its blade, then makes it strong; it then becomes thick, and it stands on its own stem, (filling) the sowers with wonder and delight. As a result, it fills the disbelievers with rage at them. God has promised those among them who believe and do good deeds forgiveness and a great reward. (48: 18 – 29)

“God was well pleased with the believers when they swore allegiance to you under the tree, and He knew what was in their hearts, and He sent down tranquility on them, and has rewarded them with an imminent victory.” Reading this verse, one can try to imagine the scene described in this verse. This was a sacred moment in the life of humanity, when God revealed to His Messenger (PBUH) how He was pleased with the behavior of the believers who gave their oath of allegiance to the Prophet (PBUH). This must have been a momentous occasion for those who participated in this event. As a sign of His pleasure, He filled their hearts with tranquility and gave them the glad tidings of an imminent victory and abundant gains, “And abundant gains will they acquire;

and God is Eminent, Wise.”

Then the verses turned to address the believers themselves, “God has promised you abundant gains that you shall acquire, and He has given you this in advance, and has restrained people's hands from you, that it may be a sign for the believers, and that He may guide you on a straight path. And other (gains) which you have not been able to achieve, God has surely encompassed them, and God is All-Powerful.” This was good news for the believers. They heard it and were certain of its truthfulness. They lived afterwards to see the promise being fulfilled. The verse referring to a victory in advance was made to stress that the treaty of Hudaibiyah was a true victory. God blessed the believers and saved them the consequences of a fight on that occasion. This was a lesson to the believers which they only understood later on. God guided them to the straight path as a reward for their submission to the will of God.

A promise was then made for another victory, “And if those who disbelieve should fight you they will certainly turn (their) backs, then they would not find any protecting guardian or a helper.” This may have been a reference to the conquest of Mecca, which took place two years after the conclusion of the treaty of Hudaibiyah as a result of the actions of Quraish which nullified the treaty. It is God’s law that the believers will eventually win their battle against the disbelievers, “This is the law of God which has taken course always. You will not find any change in the law of God.” God’s law does not change.

The following verse refers to the incident which occurred before the agreement between Quraish and the believers. The disbelievers from Quraish sent a group of about forty men to kidnap Muslims, but the Muslims were able to capture them and the Prophet (PBUH) set them free as a token of good will, “And it is He who has restrained their hands from you and your hands from them in the midst of Mecca, after He had made you victors over them. God is All-Seeing of what you do.”

The following verses describe the enemy of the Muslims, “They are the ones who disbelieved and debarred you from the inviolable Place of Worship, and debarred the offering from reaching its goal. And if it had not been for believing men and believing women, whom you did not know - lest you should tread them under foot and thus incur guilt for them unknowingly; that God might bring into His mercy whom He wills - If (the believers and the disbelievers) had been clearly separated We verily would had punished those of them who disbelieved with painful torment.” They earned the description of the disbelievers because they debarred the Muslims from performing Umra even though they saw the animals that the Muslims brought for sacrifice as part of the rituals of Umra. This was considered a major offence both in the Arab traditions before Islam and in the Islamic tradition. The reasons for effecting this restraint on the believers was the presence of Muslims who were still living in Mecca and who did not declare their faith for fear of Quraish’s reprisal. In addition, the fact that Muslims did not fight at that time was an effective way for calling to Islam; many idolaters embraced Islam after Hudaibiyah.

The chiefs of Quraish broke a long standing Arabic tradition by debarring the Muslims from performing Umra. The decision to debar the Muslims from performing Umra was not done on principle but was motivated by subjective zealotry, “When those who disbelieve had set up in their hearts zealotry, the zealotry of the age of ignorance, then God sent down His tranquility upon His messenger and upon the believers and imposed on them the word of God consciousness, for they were entitled to it and worthy of it. And God is Omniscient.” Those who are controlled by their own whims and zealotry will never be able to get peace of mind. On the contrary, the believers received tranquility and guidance from their Lord because they deserved the status of those who remain conscious of God.

“Truly God has fulfilled the vision of His Messenger. You shall enter the Sacred Mosque - if God wills - secure, heads shaved or hair cut short, and without fear. He knew what you knew not, and He granted, besides this, an imminent victory.” God’s promise was fulfilled; the Muslims went back and performed Umra the following year. Then they were able to conquer Quraish after one more year. The verse reminded the believers that everything is controlled by God’s will.

“It is He who has sent His Messenger with guidance and the religion of truth, to proclaim it over all religions. And God suffices as a Witness.” The true religion prevailed not only in the Arab peninsula but all over the world.

The final verse paints a bright image of the companions of the Prophet (PBUH), “Muhammad is the Messenger of God; and those who are with him are strong against the disbelievers, (but) compassionate amongst each other. You will see them bowing and prostrating themselves (in prayer), seeking bounty from God and (His) Good Pleasure. On their faces are their marks, (being) the traces of their prostration. This is their similitude in the Torah; and their similitude in the Gospel- like a seed which sends forth its blade, then makes it strong; it then becomes thick, and it stands on its own stem, (filling) the sowers with wonder and delight. As a result, it fills the disbelievers with rage at them. God has promised those among them who believe and do good deeds forgiveness and a great reward.” The verse starts by emphasizing the fact which Quraish denied: Muhammad (PBUH) is certainly God’s Messenger. Then it goes on to describe the way the believers deal with each other on one side and the way they deal with the disbelievers on the other side. Then it describes their state of submission to their Lord. Then it delves into their hearts and describes their inner feelings, “Seeking bounty from God and (His) Good Pleasure.” The image given for the believers in this verse was not a new image. It was the same as the one given in the Torah and the Gospel. The believers are like a new plant that grows strong and straight, which pleases those who sow the seeds in the first place; but displeases the disbelievers. God promised them a great reward.

Sura 49: Al-Hujrat (The Private Apartments)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

This is a short but magnificent Sura. It states a number of the principles of the doctrine and the law, the facts of life, and the rules of etiquette and ethics. One can glean two main features from reading the Sura. The first feature is that it lays down the ethical rules that enable a society that strives to get closer to God and deserves to belong to God, to be established. This is a society whose members enjoy the purity of hearts, the cleanliness of feelings, and the chastity of senses. The second feature of the Sura is that it exhibits the unrelenting effort of the Quran to establish and train a community of believers which represents such a society.

Verses 1 to 18:

1. Believers, do not put yourselves forward before God and His Messenger; but be conscious of God; God is All-Hearing, Omniscient.
2. Believers, do not raise your voices above the voice of the Prophet, nor speak aloud to him, as you may speak aloud to one another, lest your deeds be rendered fruitless while you do not realize.
3. Those who lower their voices in the presence of the Messenger of God- God has tested their hearts for piety. Theirs will be forgiveness and immense reward.
4. Indeed, those who call out to you from behind the private apartments - most of them lack understanding.
5. And if they had been patient till you (could) come out to them, it would have been better for them; God is All-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy.
6. Believers, if a transgressing person comes to you with any news, ascertain the truth, lest you harm people unwittingly, and you would become regretful for what you have done.
7. And know that among you is God's Messenger. If he were to obey you in much of the matters, you would certainly be in trouble; but God has endeared the faith to you and has beautified it in your hearts, and has made disbelief and lewdness and rebellion hateful to you. Such are they who are the rightly guided.
8. (It is) a bounty and a blessing from God; and God is Omniscient, Wise.
9. And if two parties among the believers fall into a fight, make peace between them; but if one of them transgresses beyond bounds against the other, then fight you (all) against the one that transgresses until it complies with the command of God. And if it complies, then make peace between them with justice, and be fair. God loves those who are fair (and just).
10. The believers are but a single brotherhood. So make peace and reconciliation between your two (contending) brothers; and be conscious of God, that you may receive mercy.
11. Believers, let not some people among you ridicule other people; it may be that the (latter) are better than the (former). Nor let some women ridicule other women; it may be that the (latter) are better than the (former). Neither defame each other nor call each other by (offensive) nicknames. Wretched is the name of disobedience after (one had accepted) faith. And those who do not desist are (indeed) the wrongdoers.
12. Believers, avoid most of suspicion. Indeed, suspicion in some cases is a sin. And neither spy on nor backbite each other. Would any of you like to eat the flesh of his dead brother? You would abhor it. Remain conscious of God; God is Ever-Relenting, Giver of Mercy.

13. People, We created you from a single (pair) of a male and a female, and made you into nations and tribes, that you may know each other. Verily the most honored of you in the sight of God is (he who is) most conscious of God. Indeed, God is Omniscient, Totally-Aware.
14. The desert Arabs say, "We believe." Say, "You did not believe; but rather say 'We submit,' for faith has not yet entered into your hearts. Yet, if you obey God and His messenger, He will not withhold from you any of (the reward for) your deeds; God is all-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy."
15. The (true) believers are only those who believe in God and His messenger and do not entertain any doubt, but strive with their wealth and their lives for the cause of God. Those are the truthful ones.
16. Say (to them, Muhammad), "Are you going to teach God about your religion, when God knows all that is in the heavens and all that is in the earth, and God is Cognizant of all things."
17. They consider it a favor to you (Muhammad) that they have submitted. Say, "Do not deem your submission a favor to me; but God does confer a favor on you that He guided you to the faith if you are truthful.
18. Verily God knows the unseen of the heavens and the earth; and God is All-Seeing of all that you do." (49: 1 -18)

The Sura starts with an endearing call to the believers, "Believers, do not put yourselves forward before God and His Messenger; but be conscious of God; God is All-Hearing, Omniscient." Qatadah (RA) mentioned that some believers used to suggest topics which they thought the Quran should address. Ibn Abbas (RA) said that this verse admonished the believers not to disagree with the Quran or the prophetic tradition. This verse then outlined the etiquette for speaking to God and His Messenger (PBUH). It outlined and established the rules of receiving admonitions from God and His Messenger (PBUH). The adherence to this etiquette reflected the degree of God consciousness that a believer had. The believers were told not to suggest what should be revealed but accept the Quran as revealed.

The second rule of the etiquette of speaking to the Prophet (PBUH) was the given, "Believers, do not raise your voices above the voice of the Prophet, nor speak aloud to him, as you may speak aloud to one another, lest your deeds be rendered fruitless while you do not realize." The verse commanded the believers to address the Prophet (PBUH) respectfully. Speaking to the Prophet (PBUH) disrespectfully may cause their deeds to become worthless. The believers were quick to abide by these rules. It has been narrated that Thabet ibn Qais (RA) was known for his loud voice. When he heard this verse he thought he was doomed because he used to talk loudly in the presence of the Messenger (PBUH). He was so stressed and dismayed; he stayed home and refused to go to the Mosque. When the Messenger (PBUH) missed him, he asked the other companions about the whereabouts of Thabet (RA). They went to see Thabet (RA) and enquired about his absence, he told them that he was afraid the he was destined to Hell fire because he used to speak loudly in the presence of the Messenger (PBUH). The companions went back and told the Messenger (PBUH) of the reason that kept Thabet (RA) away from the Mosque. The Messenger (PBUH) told them to go back and reassure Thabet (RA) that this verse was not about him and that he has been destined to paradise.

The verses continued to praise those who speak softly in the presence of the Messenger (PBUH), “Those who lower their voices in the presence of the Messenger of God - God has tested their hearts for piety. Theirs will be forgiveness and immense reward.” God consciousness is a great gift from God. God bestows this gift on those whom are deemed well deserving.

The following verse narrates an event that occurred on the ninth year of Hijra, when a delegation from the tribe of Tameem came to announce their acceptance of Islam. They stood outside the Messenger’s private apartments and started calling him loudly, asking him to come out to meet them. This annoyed the Messenger (PBUH), “Indeed, those who call out to you from behind the private apartments - most of them lack understanding.” The verse accused them of being lacking in understanding. Then they were admonished to be more patient, “And if they had been patient till you (could) come out to them, it would have been better for them.” It would have been better for them to have had patience. However, they were given the opportunity to repent and ask for forgiveness, “God is All-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy.”

The Sura started by calling on the believers to understand clearly who their leader was. Then the verses established the etiquette of addressing the leader respectfully. These two principles paved the way for the commands that followed. The first of these commands was how to deal with news, especially when such news may cause harm to someone, “Believers, if a transgressing person comes to you with any news, ascertain the truth, lest you harm people unwittingly, and you would become regretful for what you have done.” News narrated by a transgressor is likely to be false. One should ascertain the veracity of such news before acting upon it. This verse refers to a specific incident. The Messenger of God (PBUH) sent Al-Waleed ibn ‘Uqbah (RA) to collect the poor-due from the tribe of Bani Al-Mustalq. When Al-Waleed approached their town he saw a gathering on the outskirts of the town. He thought that they were waiting to hurt him, so he went back to the Messenger (PBUH) telling him that the tribe of Bani Al-Mustalq were coming to fight the Messenger (PBUH). The Messenger (PBUH) sent Khaled ibn Al-Waleed (RA) to ascertain the veracity of the news which ‘Uqbah claimed. The Messenger (PBUH) advised Khaled (RA) to be careful in assessing the situation, he asked Khaled (RA) not to enter the town by night but to wait till the morning so he would have a good chance to assess the situation. Khaled (RA) came back with the good news that ‘Uqbah was mistaken in assessing the situation. However, the verse establishes a fundamental principle in ascertaining the facts before a rash reaction to a situation is embarked upon.

The believers were then reminded that the Messenger of God (PBUH) always acted according to God’s revelation. They should not pressure him to follow their opinions, “And know that among you is God’s Messenger. If he were to obey you in much of the matters, you would certainly be in trouble; but God has endeared the faith to you and has beautified it in your hearts, and has made disbelief and lewdness and rebellion hateful to you. Such are they who are the rightly guided. (It is) a bounty and a blessing from God; and God is Omniscient, Wise” The verse reminded them of the blessings that God has bestowed upon them. They should then submit to God and be satisfied with His decrees and accept His verdicts.

Another fundamental principle that the Sura established deals with how to settle disputes between two contending Muslim groups, “And if two parties among the believers fall into a fight, make peace between them; but if one of them transgresses beyond bounds against the other, then fight you (all) against the one that transgresses until it complies with the command of God. And if it complies, then make peace between them with justice, and be fair. God loves those who are fair (and just). The believers are but a single brotherhood. So make peace and reconciliation between your two (contending) brothers; and be conscious of God, that you may receive mercy.” This verse may have been revealed to deal with a specific event but it establishes a general principle. It stipulates that a disagreement may arise between two Muslim groups as a result of an injustice inflicted by one group on another. This disagreement may develop into full-fledged fight between the two groups. Muslims who do not belong to either group are obliged to mediate between the two groups to stop the war and establish peace. If one of the groups refused to come to peaceful terms and continued its transgression against the other group, then the other Muslims are obliged to fight the transgressors until they listen to the voice of reason and accept God’s rules. The verse establishes the principle that in settling these disputes Muslims should refer to God’s law and should practice equity and objectivity. During any conflict Muslims should remember that they share a single bond of brotherhood. They should always remain conscious of God. This is the way to gain God’s mercy.

Islam endeavors to establish a society that is guided by the Quran. It is a society that espouses high ethical standards. Each member of this society enjoys a secure dignified position. People are protected against any kind of slander, assault, or harassment, “Believers, let not some people among you ridicule other people; it may be that the (latter) are better than the (former). Nor let some women ridicule other women; it may be that the (latter) are better than the (former). Neither defame each other nor call each other by (offensive) nicknames. Wretched is the name of disobedience after (one had accepted) faith. And those who do not desist are (indeed) the wrongdoers.” People should understand that God’s standards in evaluating people are different from their human standards. It may be that God values someone that they consider of a lesser value than themselves. Believers should then refrain from defaming, ridiculing, or calling each other names. Having accepted faith, one should be cautious not to be rendered a disbeliever by his own actions.

“Believers, avoid most of suspicion. Indeed, suspicion in some cases is a sin. And neither spy on nor backbite each other. Would any of you like to eat the flesh of his dead brother? You would abhor it. Remain conscious of God; God is Ever-Relenting, Giver of Mercy.” This verse sets another level of protection for people living in an Islamic society. It sets the standard for dealing with doubts that may arise as a result of hearsay. Muslims should not harbor bad feelings towards their fellow Muslims on the basis of unsubstantiated information. The verse confirms the principle that people are innocent until proven guilty. Islam even goes beyond this rule to a higher standard. The Messenger of God (PBUH) has been quoted to have said, “A doubt is not acceptable reason to investigate.” Investigations should be done on the basis of concrete evidence, not on the basis of a probable cause. People should not spy on each other. Muslims have the right to lead a secure, peaceful, and protected life. Exposing the secrets of people is a sin. The Messenger (PBUH) has been quoted to have said, “Whoever protected the secret of a believer it is as if he was able to resurrect a victim of infanticide after its death.”

The verse continued to establish these high ethical standards that a Muslim society should espouse. It admonished against backbiting. It drew a parallel between a person who backbites and the person who commits the abhorrent action of eating the flesh of his brother alive. No decent human being would want to see himself in that position. The conclusion of the verse reminded people of the main thing that will guard them against all these evils: God consciousness. However, if one sins, then one should not despair because the door to repentance is always open, “God is Ever-Relenting, Giver of Mercy.”

“People, We created you from a single (pair) of a male and a female, and made you into nations and tribes, that you may know each other. Verily the most honored of you in the sight of God is (he who is) most conscious of God. Indeed, God is Omniscient, Totally-Aware.” This verse addresses all humankind. The Creator tells all people that they were all created from a single source. The whole human race came from one pair: a male and a female. They were then spread into different nations so that they can get to know each other; work, and collaborate with each other. The standard against which people should be evaluated is God consciousness. People should not be valued according to their race, language, color, or nationality. All people have equal worth in the sight of God. The only standard that determines their individual worth is the level of their God consciousness.

“The desert Arabs say, ‘We believe.’ Say, ‘You did not believe; but rather say “We submit,” for faith has not yet entered into your hearts. Yet, if you obey God and His messenger, He will not withhold from you any of (the reward for) your deeds; God is all-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy.’” It is narrated that this verse was revealed in reference to a tribe by the name of Bani Asad. They accepted Islam and bragged about it. They indicated that they did the Messenger (PBUH) a favor by accepting Islam. This verse was revealed to set the record straight; informing them that they were actually the recipients of God’s favor who guided them to Islam. They should express gratitude to God. God’s reward is available for those who obey God and do good deeds. The verses continue to list the traits of the true believers, “The (true) believers are only those who believe in God and His messenger and do not entertain any doubt, but strive with their wealth and their lives for the cause of God. Those are the truthful ones.” Faith constitutes full acceptance of God and His Messenger (PBUH) in the heart of a believer. Such acceptance is not marred in any way by a shred of doubt. Such acceptance renders the sacrifice of wealth and life in the way of God easy. People who enjoy these traits are the true believers, who are truthful in their covenant with God.

Going back to desert Arabs, the query is posed, “Say (to them, Muhammad), ‘Are you going to teach God about your religion, when God knows all that is in the heavens and all that is in the earth, and God is Cognizant of all things.’” Do they really think that God does not know what is in their hearts? God knows everything in the heaven and earth. God’s knowledge encompasses everything.

“They consider it a favor to you (Muhammad) that they have submitted. Say, ‘Do not deem your submission a favor to me; but God does confer a favor on you that He guided you to the faith if you are truthful.’” The fact that the desert Arabs thought they were doing the Messenger (PBUH) a favor by accepting Islam is an indication that they did not understand the meaning of true belief. They did not taste the sweetness of faith. They should be grateful to God that He bestowed His guidance on them. Faith is the most valuable bounty of God that a human being could be blessed with. Faith shapes the outlook of people and how they deal with life and its changing conditions. It is the light that guides people during their journey on earth from birth to death.

“Verily God knows the unseen of the heavens and the earth; and God is All-Seeing all that you do.” The final verse concludes the Sura with the fundamental fact that describes God’s encompassing knowledge.

Sura 50: Qaf (The letter Qaf)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 45:

1. Qaf. By the Glorious Quran.
2. But they wonder that there has come to them a warner from among themselves. So the disbelievers say, "This is an amazing thing.
3. When we are dead and have become dust (shall we be brought back again)? That would be a farfetched return."
4. We already know how much the earth takes of them, and with Us is a recording book.
5. But they denied the truth when it came to them; so they are in a confused state.
6. Have they not observed the sky above them, how We have constructed it and beautified it, and how there are no rifts therein?
7. And the earth have We spread it out, and set upon it mountains standing firm, and produced therein every kind of beautiful plant;
8. Giving insight and a reminder for every devotee turning (to God).
9. And We send down from the sky blessed water whereby We give growth to gardens and the grain of crops,
10. And lofty date-palms with ranged clusters,
11. Provision (made) for people; and by it We gave life to a dead land. This is how the dead will be resurrected.
12. The people of Noah denied (the truth) before them, and (so did) the dwellers at Ar-Rass and (the tribe of) Thamud,
13. And (the tribe of) A'ad, and Pharaoh, and the brethren of Lot;
14. And the companions of the thicket, and the people of Tubba'; every one denied their messengers; therefore, My threat was justly fulfilled.
15. Were We then weary with the first creation, that they should be in confused doubt about a new creation?
16. It was We who created humankind, and We know what his soul whispers to him; and We are nearer to him than (his) jugular vein.
17. When the two receivers receive (him), seated on the right hand and on the left;
18. Not a word does he utter but there is with him an observer ready.
19. And the stupor of death will bring truth (before his eyes). (It will be said,) "This is what you were trying to escape."
20. And the trumpet shall be blown. This is the threatened Day.
21. And every soul shall come, along with it a driver and a witness.
22. (It will be said,) "You were heedless of this; now We have removed your veil, and your sight will be sharp this Day."
23. And his companion will say, "Here is (his Record) ready with me."
24. (And it will be said,) "Do cast into Hell every ungrateful, rebellious one,
25. Hinderer of good, transgressor, and doubter;
26. Who set up another god beside God. Throw him into the severe torment."
27. His companion will say, "Our Lord, I did not make him transgress, but he was (himself) far astray."

28. He will say, "Do not dispute with each other in My presence. I had already in advance sent you warning.
29. The sentence that comes from Me cannot be changed, and I do not treat the servants unjustly."
30. On the day when We say to Hell, "Have you been filled? and it will say, "Are there any more to come?"
31. And the Garden will be brought near to those who are God conscious, not far away.
32. (And it will be said), "This is what you were promised. (It is) for every penitent and heedful one,
33. Who feared the Lord of Mercy in secret and comes with a contrite heart?
34. Enter it in peace; this is the Day of immortality."
35. They have therein what they desire, and there is more with Us.
36. But how many generations before them did We destroy, who were mightier than these in prowess so that they overran the lands. Had they any place of escape?
37. Verily in this is a message for any that has a heart and understanding or who gives ear and earnestly witnesses (the truth).
38. And verily We created the heavens and the earth, and all that is in between them, in six days, and no fatigue touched Us.
39. Therefore (Muhammad) persevere in enduring what they say, and glorify your Lord before the rising and before the setting of the sun;
40. And in the night-time glorify Him, and after the (prescribed) prostrations.
41. And listen on the Day when the Caller will call out from a place quiet near,
42. The Day when they will hear a (mighty) cry in truth. That is the Day of coming forth (from the graves).
43. Verily it is We who give life and death; and to Us is the final destination.
44. The Day when the earth will be rent asunder for them to hurry out. That will be an easy gathering for Us.
45. We know best what they say, and you (Muhammad) are not a tyrant over them; therefore, remind by the Quran whoever fears My threat. (50: 1 – 45)

The Sura starts with an oath made by God, "Qaf. By the Glorious Quran." The oath uses the letter Qaf which is a letter of the Arabic Alphabet and in the mean time it is the first letter of the word, Quran. The verses do not specify the subject of the oath. The oath is mentioned to alert the listener to a grave matter. The verses continue to address the attitude of the idolaters of Mecca towards the Messenger of God (PBUH), "But they wonder that there has come to them a warner from among themselves. So the disbelievers say, 'This is an amazing thing. When we are dead and have become dust (shall we be brought back again)? That would be a farfetched return.'" The idolaters expressed their astonishment that God sent a man from among them as a messenger. The fact that the Messenger (PBUH) told them that there will be resurrection after death was another source of their astonishment. The concept of resurrection is an integral part of the Islamic doctrine. Muslims are required to devote all their lives working for the sake of God. The reward for their deeds may not be given fully in their lifetime; it may be delayed till the Day of Judgment. Resurrection is essential so that the reward or punishment should be fulfilled. The principle of accountability has no sense if there were no resurrection. The idolater's attention was focused on one aspect of the problem, how can life return after the body has disintegrated and became dust? The Quran responds to this question, "We already know how much the earth takes of them, and with Us is a recording book.” God knows exactly where their bodies disintegrated into. A meticulous record is kept which keeps track of each and every atom of their bodies.

The Quran confronted them with the real problem, “But they denied the truth when it came to them; so they are in a confused state.” Their confusion is not the result of the difficulty of the resurrection. Their doubt has originated from the fact that they denied the truth. Those who deny the truth are always in a state of doubt. The Quran continued to bring to their attention the signs of God that surround them. These signs are miracles similar to the miracle of resurrection, “Have they not observed the sky above them, how We have constructed it and beautified it, and how there are no rifts therein? And the earth have We spread it out, and set upon it mountains standing firm, and produced therein every kind of beautiful plant.” These signs reflect the stability of the universe which has been created with the truth. These signs should lead the one who reflects to the straight path, “Giving insight and a reminder for every devotee turning (to God).” Reflecting on these signs connects one to the whole universe. The universe is the book of truth that can be seen and read in all languages. The divine project considers the scientific method a legitimate means to discover and explain the individual scientific universal phenomena. However, only through the divine project an integrated and consistent framework of these phenomena can be achieved. The framework not only integrates the phenomena together but it links them to the human heart. And when this framework is linked to the human heart, the abstract rules and laws are transformed into feelings and emotions that fills the heart with awe.

Another sign for those who reflect, “And We send down from the sky blessed water whereby We give growth to gardens and the grain of crops, and lofty date-palms with ranged clusters, provision (made) for people; and by it We gave life to a dead land. This is how the dead will be resurrected.” The water that comes down from the sky is a sign that brings life to the dead heart before it brings life to the dead land. Rain is a blessing from God. It descends on the land and produces all kinds of vegetations. These vegetations provide food for people, for which they should be grateful to God. The verses draw the parallel between the resurrections of people which is part of the unseen and the revival of the dead earth which people observe every day.

The following verses review very briefly and quickly the stories of the previous peoples who rejected guidance. The aim of the review is to emphasize the inevitable consequence of the rejection of guidance, “The people of Noah denied (the truth) before them, and (so did) the dwellers at Ar-Rass and (the tribe of) Thamud, and (the tribe of) A'ad, and Pharaoh, and the brethren of Lot; and the companions of the thicket, and the people of Tubba’; every one denied their messengers; therefore My threat was justly fulfilled.” The verses have two messages. The first is that God sent messengers to guide people to the straight path; all messengers were asked to deliver the same message. The second is that the consequence of rejecting guidance is doom.

The following rhetorical question is posed as an answer to the rejection of the idea of resurrection, “Were We then weary with the first creation, that they should be in confused doubt about a new creation?” God who created humankind in the first place will be able to recreate them again. The Creator knows everything about His creation, their composition, their thoughts, and their secrets, “It was We who created humankind, and We know what his soul whispers to him; and We are nearer to him than (his) jugular vein.” God is very close to the human being, closer even than his own veins. This expression is enough to fill the human heart with caution and awe. When humankind knows that he cannot keep a secret from God, even his own inner thoughts are exposed, one then should be careful not to utter a word or do a deed that displeases God. Not only that God knows everything, but also the deeds of each human being are recorded in a meticulous record, “When the two receivers receive (him), seated on the right hand and on the left, not a word does he utter but there is with him an observer ready.” We do not know how the recording is done and we are not going to speculate about it. The important thing is that it is being done and we should take that into consideration each time we speak or act during our lives before death overcomes us, “And the stupor of death will bring truth (before his eyes). (It will be said,) ‘This is what you were trying to escape.’” Every human being wishes that he can avoid death but death is inevitable. When it comes, it will bring the truth closer to us, and suddenly we will be able to realize the truth.

The verses then move from the scene of death to the scene of the Day of Resurrection, “And the trumpet shall be blown. This is the threatened Day. And every soul shall come, along with it a driver and a witness.” Each soul will be led by a driver and will be accompanied by a witness. The souls will then stand up for the reckoning. It will be said, “You were heedless of this; now We have removed your veil, and your sight will be sharp this Day. And his companion will say, ‘Here is (his Record) ready with me.’” The verses do not describe the details of the reckoning but move directly to the conclusion and the verdict that will be issued, “Do cast into Hell every ungrateful, rebellious one, hinderer of good, transgressor, and doubter, who set up another god beside God. Throw him into the severe torment.” We notice the long list of the bad attributes which the verse uses to describe the evildoers. This is a way to express God’s wrath for their transgression. The evil companion who was accused of seducing him will then try to absolve himself of the responsibility, “His companion will say, ‘Our Lord, I did not make him transgress, but he was (himself) far astray.’” But it is too late and the decree has been issued already, “He will say, ‘Do not dispute with each other in My presence. I had already in advance sent you warning. The sentence that comes from Me cannot be changed, and I do not treat the servants unjustly.’”

This Sura was composed in a style which uses a dialogue style. This style continues to describe the scenes of Hell, “On the day when We say to Hell, ‘Have you been filled?’ and it will say, ‘Are there any more to come?’” Juxtaposed with this is the scene of paradise, “And the Garden will be brought near to those who are God conscious, not far away. (And it will be said), ‘This is what you were promised. (It is) for every penitent and heedful one, who feared the Lord of Mercy in secret and comes with a contrite heart. Enter it in peace; this is the Day of immortality.’” Each word carries a sentiment of honor. They do not walk towards the garden but the garden will be brought to them. They will be welcomed with the blessings of peace and fulfillment. Good attributes will be bestowed on them. They will be blessed with everything they wish for and God will have more for them, “They have therein what they desire, and there is more with Us.”

Then the Sura is concluded again by the memory of those who lost their way and were punished, “But how many generations before them did We destroy, who were mightier than these in prowess so that they overran the lands. Had they any place of escape?” These memories should be sufficient to wake up people from their heedlessness, but only those who have hearts that yearns to the truth are able to heed the lesson. The other hearts are dead and are unable to witness the truth, “Verily in this is a message for any that has a heart and understanding or who gives ear and earnestly witnesses (the truth).”

Other lessons can be gleaned from the signs of God all around us, “And verily We created the heavens and the earth, and all that is in between them, in six days, and no fatigue touched Us.” The process of the first creation was easy for God. He never suffered any fatigue. Resurrecting people will be as easy.

The Messenger (PBUH) was then commanded to be patient and to remember God at certain times during the day. These are all times that are related to the cosmic phenomena of heavens and earth, “Therefore (Muhammad) persevere in enduring what they say, and glorify your Lord before the rising and before the setting of the sun; and in the night-time glorify Him, and after the (prescribed) prostrations.” Be patient, glorify God and prostrate yourself to Him but also wait for the big event, “And listen on the Day when the Caller will call out from a place quiet near, The Day when they will hear a (mighty) cry in truth. That is the Day of coming forth (from the graves).” On that Day the graves will open up and people will come out to the gathering. This is an easy task for God just as was the creation easy, “Verily it is We who give life and death; and to Us is the final destination; the Day when the earth will be rent asunder for them to hurry out. That will be an easy gathering for Us.” The Messenger (PBUH) was again comforted and his task was emphasized, “We know best what they say, and you (Muhammad) are not a tyrant over them; therefore, remind by the Quran whoever fears My threat.”

Sura 51: Al-Dhariyat (The Dispersers)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 24:

1. By the (Winds) that disperse.
2. And those that bear the burden (of the rain.)
3. And those that glide with ease.
4. And those who distribute (blessings) as commanded.
5. Verily, that which you are promised is true;
6. And verily the judgment must indeed come to pass.
7. By the sky with (its) numerous paths;
8. Most surely you are at variance with each other in what you say;
9. Through which are deluded (away from the truth) those who are deluded.
10. Accursed are the conjecturers;
11. Those who are heedless in ignorance.
12. They ask, "When will be the Day of Judgment?"
13. (It is) the day when they will be tormented at the Fire;
14. (And it will be said to them), "Taste your torment. This is what you sought to hasten."
15. Those who remain conscious of God shall be in gardens and fountains.
16. Taking that which their Lord gives them; for they were doers of good;
17. They used to sleep but little of the night,
18. And in the hour of early dawn, they used to pray for forgiveness;
19. And in their wealth, there was a share for the beggar and the deprived.
20. And on earth are signs for those who have certitude.
21. As also in your own selves; will you not then see?
22. And in the heaven is your sustenance, as (also) that which you are promised.
23. Then, by the Lord of the heaven and earth, this is the very truth, as much as the fact that you can speak intelligently to each other. (51: 1 -23)

This Sura has a special atmosphere. It starts with the mention of four of the forces of God. The expressions are somewhat vague which conveys the impression that there are more than meets the eye of these forces. The Sura starts with four oaths made by God, "By the (Winds) that disperse. And those that bear the burden (of the rain.) And those that glide with ease. And those who distribute (blessings) as commanded." These four words: the dispersers, the bearers, the gliders, and the distributors are not commonly used words; their meanings are not readily known to people. The oath seems to be implicitly referring to the forces of the unseen. It seems that the main objective of the Sura is to connect the human heart with the unseen. Several people from the earlier Muslim generations asked about the meanings of these verses. It has been narrated that Ali ibn Abi Taleb (RA) gave the following explanations: the dispersers refer to the wind; those that bear the burden refers to the clouds; those that glide with ease are the ships; and those who distribute (blessings) as commanded are the angels. The wind, the clouds, the ships, and the angels are tools created by God to perform certain tasks according to His command. The oath is meant to attract the attention of people to the importance of God's creation. People should also reflect on the function of each of these tools and how they affect their lives; especially their effect on the provision of people. Peoples' provision is one of the issues that the Sura deals with. So, what is the oath about, "Verily that which you are promised is true; and verily the judgment must indeed come to pass." God's promise will certainly be fulfilled. God promised to reward people according to their deeds. If they do not get their reward in this life, they will certainly receive it in the Hereafter. Similarly, the judgment will come to pass. One of the promises that God made is that He will provide for us and His promise will be fulfilled as well.

Then God makes an oath with the well-organized sky emphasizing that the idolaters were confused in what they say, "By the sky with (its) numerous paths; most surely you are at variance with each other in what you say; through which are deluded (away from the truth) those who are deluded." Confusion is a salient feature of falsehood, while truth is stable, firm, and well organized as the well-organized sky. They are deluded in their falsehood and they will be doomed on the Day of Judgment, "Accursed are the conjecturers; those who are heedless in ignorance. They ask, 'When will be the Day of Judgment?' (It is) the Day when they will be tormented at the Fire, (and it will be said to them), 'Taste your torment. This is what you sought to hasten.'" They were basing their decisions on conjecture which led them to heedlessness and ignorance. They were asking, "When will be the Day of Judgment?" not because they wanted to know but because they thought it is farfetched. The verse showed them a scene of the Day of Judgment as an answer to their question.

On the other hand, there is another scene for those who were secure in their faith. They spent their life serving God and seeking His forgiveness, "Those who remain conscious of God shall be in gardens and fountains. Taking that which their Lord gives them; for they were doers of good; they used to sleep but little of the night and in the hour of early dawn, they used to pray for forgiveness; and in their wealth, there was a share for the beggar and the deprived." They will be rewarded by a place in Paradise. They will receive God's bounty as a reward for what they used to do in the worldly life. They used to spend most of the night praying. They designated part of their wealth to the needy who ask and the needy who were too proud to ask. This was a voluntary charity but they made it a duty on themselves.

Then the verses direct the attention to the signs of God, "And on the earth are signs for those who have certitude. As also in your own selves; will you not then see." God's signs are all around us but they cannot be seen except by those who are secure in their faith, those who are able to reflect on the creation of God. The security in faith sets the heart alive and frees it to understand the secrets of the signs. Those who do not have secure faith see the same signs with their eyes but they do not touch their hearts. Their hearts remain dead unable to see or reflect. There are also signs within ourselves. The human body is one of the greatest signs of God. The human body has many systems that work in amazing ways that we still do not understand. The systems work together without conscious interference from us. What about the secrets of the soul and its hidden power? How can we see, understand, and remember? What about that amazing information retrieval system that we have?

The previous verses alluded to the signs of God in the universe, then the signs of God in the human body, and here it refers to the unseen and how the livelihood of people is part of this unseen decided by God, "And in heaven is your sustenance, as (also) that which you are promised.” The human being works hard and uses the material means to earn his livelihood, but that is not enough because the livelihood that the individual will be able to attain is decided by God. The believer understands the meaning of this message. It does not mean that we neglect the hard work and the pursuit of the material means for earning our livelihood; but we should realize that hard work and the pursuit of the material means is not sufficient to attain the objective. The ultimate decision regarding our attainment is made by God. God decrees the amount and type of provision to be granted to every living creature. This frees the heart from being obsessed by the material means and it allows the heart to fly high up in the sky seeking and understanding God’s signs. The human being has been created to stand firmly on earth but to try to reach to the sky with his heart and soul. The believer considers the material means for earning his livelihood to be signs that lead to the Creator of the means. This is certainly true, “Then, by the Lord of heaven and earth, this is the very truth, as much as the fact that you can speak intelligently to each other.”

Verses 24 to 60:

24. Has the story of Abraham's honored guests reached you (Muhammad)?
25. When they entered upon him and said, “Peace,” he answered, “Peace.” (and thought) These are people unknown (to me).
26. Then he turned quickly to his household and brought out a fat calf;
27. And placed it before them. He said, "Will you not eat?"
28. (When they did not eat), He became fearful of them. They said, "Fear not," and they gave him glad tidings of a son endowed with knowledge.
29. Then his wife came crying; she struck her face and said, “An old barren woman.”
30. They said, “Thus says your Lord; indeed, He is the Wise, the Omniscient.”
31. (Abraham) said, "Messengers, what you are here for?"
32. They said, "We have been sent to a guilty people;
33. That we may send upon them stones of clay,
34. Marked by your Lord for (the destruction of) those who were given to excesses.
35. Then We evacuated all the believers who were there,
36. But We found there only one house of those who submitted (to God).
37. And We left behind therein a sign for those who fear the painful torment.
38. And in Moses (was another sign). We sent him to Pharaoh, with clear authority.
39. But (Pharaoh) turned back with his chiefs, and said, "A sorcerer, or a mad man."
40. So We took him and his forces, and threw them into the sea; and his was the blame.
41. And in (the tribe of) ‘Ad (there is a sign) when we sent the destructive wind against them.
42. It spared nothing it came upon, but made it (all) as dust.
43. And in (the tribe of) Thamud (there is a sign) when it was told to them: enjoy yourselves for a while.
44. But they insolently defied the command of their Lord. So the thunderbolt overtook them while they gazed;
45. Then they could not even stand (on their feet), nor could they help themselves.
46. And the people of Noah before, surely they were a transgressing people.
47. We have built the heaven with might, and indeed, We are expanding it.
48. And the earth We have spread out, how gracious is the spreader.

49. And of everything We have created pairs; that you may be mindful.
50. Therefore, flee unto God; I am a plain warner to you from Him.
51. And do not take another deity with God; I am a plain warner to you from Him.
52. Similarly, no messenger came to the people before them, but they said (of him), "A sorcerer, or a mad man."
53. Is this the legacy they have transmitted, one to another? They are themselves a transgressing people.
54. So turn away from them, you are not to be blamed.
55. And continue to remind, for surely the reminder benefits the believers.
56. I have only created jinn and humankind to worship Me.
57. I seek no livelihood from them, nor do I ask that they should feed Me.
58. God is He who gives sustenance. God is indeed, the Provider, the Possessor of strength, the Firm.
59. Indeed, for the wrongdoers, their portion of torment like the portion of their fellows (of earlier generations). Then let them not ask Me to hasten (that portion).
60. And woe to those who disbelieve, from their day which they are promised. (51: 24 – 60)

The second part of this Sura deals with synopsis of the stories of Prophet Abraham (PBUH), Prophet Lot (PBUH), and Prophet Moses (PBUH), the tribes of ‘Ad and Thamud, and finally the people of Prophet Noah (PBUH). This section is closely connected with the previous section as well as the next section, “Has the story of Abraham's honored guests reached you (Muhammad)? When they entered upon him and said, ‘Peace,’ he answered, ‘Peace.’ (and thought) These are people unknown (to me). Then he turned quickly to his household and brought out a fat calf; and placed it before them. He said, ‘Will you not eat?’ (When they did not eat), He became fearful of them. They said, ‘Fear not,’ and they gave him glad tidings of a son endowed with knowledge. Then his wife came crying; she struck her face and said, ‘An old barren woman.’ They said, ‘Thus says your Lord; indeed, He is the Wise, the Omniscient.’”

This story refers to the signs of God in sending messengers to guide people to the straight path. The story starts with a question to the Prophet (PBUH), “did he hear about the story of Prophet Abraham (PBUH) and his honored guests?” Then it continues to illustrate the generosity of Prophet Abraham (PBUH). When the angels came to visit him, he went in a hurry to bring them food, before even knowing who they were or why they came. He came back with a fat calf. However, they did not eat and that made him apprehensive because that may have been a sign that they harbored an evil intention to harm him. But they immediately reassured him, telling him who they were and they gave him the glad tidings of a son. This would be Prophet Isaac (PBUH). When his wife heard this she was stunned by the surprise. How can she, an old barren woman, give birth? She forgot that they were angels so they reminded her of the unlimited power of God. He says, “Be,” and it is.

Abraham (PBUH) asked them what else they came to accomplish, “(Abraham) said, ‘Messengers, what you are here for?’” They told him about their mission to destroy the people of Prophet Lot (PBUH), “They said, ‘We have been sent to a guilty people; that we may send upon them stones of clay, Marked by your Lord for (the destruction of) the transgressors.’” They saved the believers, but it was only one household in the whole city which believed in the message brought by Prophet Lot (PBUH), “Then We evacuated all the believers who were there, but We found there only one house of those who submitted (to God). And We left behind therein a sign for those who fear the painful torment.”

Another sign of God, the story of Prophet Moses (PBUH), “And in Moses (was another sign). We sent him to Pharaoh, with clear authority. But (Pharaoh) turned back with his chiefs, and said, ‘A sorcerer, or a mad man.’” God sent Moses (PBUH) with strong evidence and clear proof to support the message that he brought Pharaoh. God also bestowed an air of reverence on Moses (PBUH). But Pharaoh turned away from him and he refused to listen to the truth. This shows that miracles alone cannot guide certain hearts to the truth. These are the sealed hearts that are not able to receive the truth. The story ends by narrating the fate of Pharaoh, “So We took him and his forces, and threw them into the sea; and his was the blame.” The verse indicates that the punishment was inflicted by God directly, which emphasizes the intended purpose of telling the story: God’s promises will certainly be fulfilled.

Yet another sign in the story of the tribe of ‘Ad, “And in (the tribe of) ‘Ad (there is a sign) when we sent the destructive wind against them. It spared nothing it came upon, but made it (all) as dust.” The Arabic word used to describe the wind is, “barren,” indicating that it was a wind that did not bring any rain but was mainly meant for destruction.

Then the story of the tribe of Thamud, “And in (the tribe of) Thamud (there is a sign) when it was told to them: enjoy yourselves for a while,” another sign of the signs of God. Followed by a reference to the people of Prophet Noah (PBUH), “But they insolently defied the command of their Lord. So the thunderbolt overtook them while they gazed; then they could not even stand (on their feet), nor could they help themselves. And the people of Noah before, surely they were a transgressing people.”

The verses then turned to the cosmic signs of God, “We have built the heaven with might, and indeed, We are expanding it. And the earth We have spread out, how gracious is the spreader.” The creation of the heavens needed a great amount of power. The verses also refer to the expanding nature of the universe. This may be also a reference to the expanding stores of provision that God has for people. Another sign is the land which God has spread for us, so that we travel through it with ease.

The following verse states an amazing principle, “And of everything We have created pairs; that you may be mindful.” This is a fact that was not known fourteen hundreds years ago. Then a warning was issued, “Therefore flee unto God; I am a plain warner to you from Him. And do not take another deity with God; I am a plain warner to you from Him.” The warning is repeated twice to emphasize the seriousness of the matter.

The stories of the prophets are then concluded by a comment, “Similarly, no messenger came to the people before them, but they said (of him), ‘A sorcerer, or a mad man.’ Is this the legacy they have transmitted, one to another? They are themselves a transgressing people. So turn away from them, you are not to be blamed. And continue to remind, for surely the reminder benefits the believers.” All those who rejected guidance belong to the same school. They all have the same response. Each group accused its prophet of being either a magician or a mad man. The Prophet (PBUH) was then comforted. God commanded him not to worry about those who denied him, but he was commanded to continue calling people to Islam and keep reminding them because reminding is beneficial for the believers.

The final conclusion of the Sura explains the meaning of fleeing unto God, “I have only created jinn and humankind to worship Me. I seek no livelihood from them, nor do I ask that they should feed Me. God is He who gives sustenance. God is indeed, the Provider, the Possessor of strength, the Firm.” This short verse states a major and fundamental truth, the jinn and the humans were created for a purpose. Everyone should fulfill the purpose for which he was created otherwise his life becomes useless. The purpose of the creation is to worship God. This shows that the concept of worship is a comprehensive concept that goes beyond performing the rituals. The concept of worship encompasses all the daily activities that God created us to perform. The purpose of life of humankind is to establish a flourishing life on earth. This involves the discovery and study of the available resources and using it to make earth a place for good life. The essence of worship should be manifested in two main beliefs that should reside deep in the heart of the believer:

1. The deep belief that God is the Lord to be worshipped. The relationship between God and humankind is a relationship between the Lord and His servant. The Lord is to be worshipped and the servant’s duty is to worship.
2. The complete dedication of every feeling, emotion, intention, or action to God. This dedication should be pure and free of any hypocrisy or showing off which may cast a doubt on the sincerity of the person.

When these two conditions are fulfilled then we will be able to truly flee unto God. We will be able to play the role that we have been created to perform. This will free us from all the shackles of doubts and insecurity. One of the consequences of this is that the value of human actions is not measured by the results they achieve but rather by the underlying motivation behind them. The reward is based on the actions themselves not on what they achieve. The believer is requested to work hard and use all the available material means however, he should believe that the results are in the hand of God. We should not worry about the results we should worry only about the effort which we spend in pursuing the goal. The Quran tries to inculcate these meanings in the heart of the believer. The emphasis of the human being on securing his sustenance is replaced by the emphasis of the need to please God by performing what he has been created to do, “Indeed for the wrongdoers, their portion of torment like the portion of their fellows (of earlier generations). Then let them not ask Me to hasten (that portion).”

A final warning is issued, “And woe to those who disbelieve, from their day which they are promised.”

Sura 52: Al-Tur (The Mountain)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 49:

1. By the mountain;
2. And a Book inscribed,
3. On fine parchment unrolled;
4. And the frequented House;
5. And the elevated ceiling;
6. And the swollen sea;
7. Most surely the torment of your Lord will come to pass;
8. There is none that can avert it.
9. On the Day when the heaven shall move from side to side,
10. And the mountains will move away,
11. Then woe that day to the deniers;
12. Who amuse themselves with idle talk.
13. That Day they will be thrust into the Fire of Hell forcefully,
14. (And it will be said to them), "This is the Fire which you were denying.
15. Is this magic, or do you not see?
16. Endure the heat thereof, it is the same whether you endure patiently or not; you shall be recompensed only (for) what you did."
17. Indeed, those who remained conscious of God will dwell in gardens and bliss,
18. Enjoying the (bliss) which their Lord has bestowed on them and their Lord shall deliver them from the torment of the Fire.
19. (And it will be said to them,) "Eat and drink in health (as a reward) for what you used to do."
20. They will recline (with ease) on ranged couches. And We will wed them to large-eyed beautiful ones.
21. And those who believe and whose offspring followed them in faith, We will unite them with their offspring. We will not deprive them any of the reward of what they have done. Each individual is responsible for his deeds.
22. And We will provide them with fruit and meat such as they desire.
23. There, they will pass, from hand to hand, a cup wherein is neither vanity nor cause of sin.
24. Round about them will serve, (devoted) to them, young male servants (handsome) as pearls well-guarded.
25. And some of them shall advance towards others questioning each other.
26. Saying, "When we were with our families, we were ever anxious;
27. But God has been gracious to us and has saved us from the torment of the intense Fire.
28. We used to pray to Him before. He is the Doer of Good, the Giver of Mercy.
29. Therefore, continue to remind, for by the Blessing of your Lord, you are neither a sorcerer, nor a madman.
30. Or do they say, "He is only a poet, we are waiting for a calamity to befall him."
31. Say (to them), "Wait, I too will wait along with you."
32. Do their minds command them to do this, or are they a transgressing people?

33. Or do they say, "He has forged it." Indeed, it is they who do not believe.
34. Let them then produce a statement like it, if they are truthful.
35. Were they created out of nothing, or were they themselves the creators?
36. Or did they create the heavens and the earth? Indeed, they have no certitude.
37. Or do they have the treasures of your Lord, or are they the controllers?
38. Or do they have a ladder, by which they can (climb up to heaven and) listen (to its secrets)? Then let (such a) listener of theirs produce a clear proof.
39. Or does He have only daughters and you have sons?
40. Or do you ask them for a reward, so that they are overburdened with debt?
41. Or do they have access to the unseen? Could they write it down?
42. Or are they planning a conspiracy (against you)? The conspiracy will befall the disbelievers.
43. Or do they have a deity other than God? Exalted is God far above the things they associate with Him.
44. Were they to see a piece of the sky falling (on them), they would (only) say, "A heap of clouds."
45. So leave them alone until they encounter that Day of theirs, wherein they will be thunderstruck.
46. The Day when their plotting will avail them nothing and no help shall be given them.
47. And verily, for the wrongdoers, there is another torment besides this; but most of them do not know.
48. So persevere (Muhammad) waiting for your Lord's decree, for surely you are in Our sight; and celebrate the praise of your Lord when you rise,
49. And glorify Him during the night, and at the setting of the stars. (52: 1 – 49)

"By the mountain; and a Book inscribed, on fine parchment unrolled; and the frequented House; and the elevated ceiling; and the swollen sea; most surely the torment of your Lord will come to pass; there is none that can avert it." The Sura is characterized with its short verses. The first verse consists of one word, and then the number of words in the verses increases gradually until it reaches twelve words. In the meantime, the rhyme of the verses is kept in a consistent manner. The mountain mentioned in the first verse is most probably the mountain on which Moses (PBUH) received the Tablets from God. The Book may be a reference to the Scripture that was given to Moses (PBUH). However, there is an opinion that the Book refers to the Protected Tablet. This seems appropriate, since the following verse refers to the Holy House of God (the most frequented House.) The House may also be a reference to the Ka'ba. The elevated canopy refers to the sky, this is consistent with the verse, "And we made the sky a protected ceiling." (21: 32) The Arabic word used to describe the sea in these verses could either mean a sea full of water (swollen sea) or it could also mean a sea on fire. God makes oaths using these signs of His creation to emphasize that His promise to punish those who denied the truth will indeed be fulfilled. No one can avert it. The next verses describe scenes from the Day of Judgment, "On the Day when the heaven shall move from side to side; and the mountains will move away." It is a horrendous scene, the sky will be shaking and the mountains will be moving. Then the threat is issued to those who denied the truth, "then woe that day to the deniers; who amuse themselves with idle talk. That Day they will be thrust into the Fire of Hell forcefully." This description applies to all those who rejected the truth based on conjectures. They had no rational arguments. All their arguments were based on idle talk.

The Quran provides a consistent and logical explanation for the existence of humankind and the creation of the universe. Rejecting the truth on the basis of irrational conjectures is useless. Islam provides a plan for the intellectual growth of people. It also raises their awareness of the universe around them. It provides logical answers to the questions that dwell in the minds of many people: “from where did I come? Why did I come? And where am I going?” The answers to these questions outline the Islamic understanding of the purpose of the creation. Humankind is not alone in this universe and there are millions of God’s creatures that inhabit the same universe which humankind inhabits. The life of a Muslim is a very busy life because he has a major purpose behind his existence and every minute of our time should be spent in fulfilling this purpose.

On the Day of Judgment, those who denied the truth will be forced into Hell fire. They will then be told that this is the Hell fire that they denied before. They will be ridiculed, “(and it will be said to them), ‘This is the Fire which you were denying. Is this magic, or do you not see?’” Then, the verdict will be delivered, “Endure the heat thereof, it is the same whether you endure patiently or not; you shall be recompensed only (for) what you did.”

The second image is an image which reflects comfort and happiness, “Indeed, those who remained conscious of God will dwell in gardens and bliss; enjoying the (bliss) which their Lord has bestowed on them and their Lord shall deliver them from the torment of the Fire.” Being saved of the torment of Hell fire is in itself a great achievement; but those who accepted the truth and remained conscious of their Lord will be given more. It will be said to them, “Eat and drink in health (as a reward) for what you used to do.” They will be reclining comfortably on couches and they will be paired, with beautiful mates, “They will recline (with ease) on ranged couches. And We will wed them to large-eyed beautiful ones.” In addition, their righteous offspring will join them, “And those who believe and whose offspring followed them in faith, We will unite them with their offspring. We will not deprive them any of the reward of what they have done. Each individual is responsible for his deeds.” The verses continue to describe the bliss that they will enjoy, “And We will provide them with fruit and meat such as they desire. There, they will pass, from hand to hand, a cup wherein is neither vanity nor cause of sin. Round about them will serve, (devoted) to them, young male servants (handsome) as pearls well-guarded.”

They will talk to each other, “And some of them shall advance towards others questioning each other. Saying, ‘When we were with our families, we were ever anxious; But God has been gracious to us and has saved us from the torment of the intense Fire. We used to pray to Him before. He is the Doer of Good, the Giver of Mercy.’” This is the secret of this bliss; they were cautious and avoided committing sins. They were not deluded by the transient security that they felt living among their families. They were always concerned about the Day of Reckoning. That is why they prayed God to save them of the torment of Hell fire; and by His Grace He accepted their prayer.

The Quran then addressed the Messenger (PBUH), “Therefore continue to remind, for by the Blessing of your Lord, you are neither a sorcerer, nor a madman.” The Messenger (PBUH) was commanded to continue to remind the idolaters even though they were insolent to him, sometimes calling him a sorcerer and sometimes they called him a madman. But God comforted

His Messenger (PBUH) by bestowing on him His grace. Some of the idolaters claimed that he was a poet, “Or do they say, ‘He is only a poet, we are waiting for a calamity to befall him.’” The Quran responded to them saying, “Say (to them), ‘Wait, I too will wait along with you.’” The verse told them to wait; very soon they will see the consequences of their insolence.

The chiefs of Quraish claimed to be wise people. The Quran addressed them sarcastically, “Do their minds command them to do this, or are they a transgressing people?” Is this the way wise people behave? Or is it their transgression that makes them behave foolishly?

They went far in their insolence claiming that the messenger (PBUH) fabricated the Quran. If this was true, why could not they fabricate one like it? “Or do they say, ‘He has forged it.’ Indeed, it is they who do not believe. Let them then produce a statement like it, if they are truthful.”

The Quran then questions them about how they were created, “Were they created out of nothing, or were they themselves the creators?” It is against logic that they were created from nothing; let alone claiming that they are the creators. The truth is that they and everyone else were created by God. Then the verses turn to the creation of the heavens and earth. Who created them? “Or did they create the heavens and the earth? Indeed, they have no certitude.” They used to say that God created everything; yet this saying never translated into a firm belief in their hearts. Who owns the treasures of heaven and earth? Do they own it themselves? Or do they have any control over it? “Or do they have the treasures of your Lord, or are they the controllers?” The Quran says that God is the owner of the treasures of heavens and earth and He is the sole controller of everything. Can they prove otherwise?

“Or do they have a ladder, by which they can (climb up to heaven and) listen (to its secrets)? Then let (such a) listener of theirs produce a clear proof.” Muhammad (PBUH) told them that he was receiving revelations from God. Do they have the means to reach to the heavens to ascertain that Muhammad (PBUH) was not receiving a revelation from God? The verses turn around to mock a statement that they used to make, “Or does He have only daughters and you have sons?”

The Messenger (PBUH) never asked them for a reward for the guidance that he offered them; yet they did not want to receive such guidance, “Or do you ask them for a reward, so that they are overburdened with debt?” The Quran confronted them with a question whose answer they should know, “Or do they have access to the unseen? Could they write it down?” They knew very well that they have no access to the unseen. They were only trying to conspire against the Messenger (PBUH); they were told that their conspiracy will turn back against them, “Or are they planning a conspiracy (against you)? The conspiracy will befall the disbelievers.” Then another challenge was posed, “Or do they have a deity other than God? Exalted is God far above the things they associate with Him.” Could their deity protect them against the wrath of God?

In their delusions they misinterpreted the wrath of God, “Were they to see a piece of the sky falling (on them), they would (only) say, ‘A heap of clouds.’”

The Sura is concluded by an address to the Messenger of God, “So leave them alone until they encounter that Day of theirs, wherein they will be thunderstruck.” The Messenger (PBUH) was told not to worry about them; they will see their doom on the Day of Judgment. On that Day, they will have no support or help to save them, “The Day when their plotting will avail them nothing and no help shall be given them. And verily, for the wrongdoers, there is another torment besides this; but most of them do not know.”

The Quran then addressed the Messenger (PBUH) in a very special way. First, he was asked to persevere; then he was given a great honor; the honor of being in the sight of God, “So persevere (Muhammad) waiting for your Lord's decree, for surely you are in Our sight;” This is a high rank that was not given to any human. Moses (PBUH) was told, “I have chosen you so listen to what is being revealed,” (20: 13), “And I bestowed upon you love from Me,” (20: 39) “I produced you for Myself.” (20: 41) all these indicate the high rank that was bestowed on Moses (PBUH) but Muhammad (PBUH) was given the highest honor of all, God told him, “you are in Our sight.” The Prophet (PBUH) was then told of the way to keep this precious link with God, “celebrate the praise of your Lord when you rise, and glorify Him during the night, and at the setting of the stars.”

Hawwa commented that the Sura cites two of the attributes of those who are God conscious: fear of God's punishment and recitation of supplication. The Sura also includes a command to the Messenger of God (PBUH) to persevere and glorify God. The Messenger of God (PBUH) was the role model for those who are calling people to Islam. Thus, a person who undertakes the duty of calling to Islam must persevere and seek God's help through celebrating the praise of God and glorifying Him often.

Sura 53: Al-Najm (The Star)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 62:

1. By the Star when it goes down,
2. Your companion has neither strayed, nor has he erred.
3. Nor does he speak of (his own) whims.
4. It is nothing but a revelation that is revealed,
5. It was taught to him by one of mighty powers,
6. One vigorous; and he rose to (his) true form;
7. When he was on the uppermost horizon;
8. Then he approached and came closer,
9. And was at a distance of but two bow-lengths or (even) nearer;
10. And He revealed to His servant that which He revealed.
11. The heart did not lie about what it saw.
12. Will you then dispute with him concerning what he saw?
13. For indeed he saw him at another descent,
14. Near the Lote-tree beyond which none may pass.
15. Near it is the Garden of refuge.
16. As there covered the Lote-tree what covered it.
17. (His) sight never swerved, nor did it exceed the limit.
18. Certainly he saw of the greatest signs of his Lord.
19. Have you considered Al- Lat and Al- Uzza,
20. And Manat, the third, the other one?
21. Are yours the males and His are the females?
22. This indeed is unfair division.
23. These are nothing but names which you have named, you and your fathers, for which God has sent down no authority (whatever). They follow nothing but conjecture and what their own souls desire; even though there has already come to them guidance from their Lord.
24. Or shall humankind have what he wishes?
25. But to God belong the Hereafter, and the first (life).
26. And how many angels are in the heavens whose intercession avails nothing save after God gives leave to whom He chooses and accepts.
27. Those who do not believe in the Hereafter name the angels with female names.
28. But they have no knowledge thereof. They follow nothing but conjecture; and conjecture avails nothing against the truth.
29. Therefore, turn away from whoever turns away from Our Message and desire nothing except the life of this world.
30. Such is their sum of knowledge. Your Lord knows best who strays from His path, and He knows best who follows guidance.
31. And to God belong whatsoever is in the heavens and whatsoever is in the earth, that He may reward those who do evil with that which they have done, and reward those who do good with goodness.

32. Those who avoid major sins and abominations - except minor offences - (for them) your Lord is vast in forgiveness. He knows you well (from the time) when He created you from the earth, and when you were fetuses in the bellies of your mothers. Therefore, do not claim yourselves to be virtuous. He knows best who is conscious of Him.
33. Did you see the one who turned away?
34. And gave a little, then held back.
35. Does he have knowledge of the unseen so that he can foresee?
36. Or has he not been informed of what is in the Scriptures of Moses?
37. And of Abraham who fulfilled his obligations?
38. That no bearer of burden shall bear the burden of another;
39. And that humankind can have nothing but what he strives for;
40. And that his effort will be seen.
41. Then he will be rewarded with the fullest reward.
42. And that to your Lord is the finality;
43. And that it is He who makes (one) laugh and weep,
44. And that it is He who causes death and gives life;
45. And that He created the two mates, the male and the female,
46. From a sperm drop when lodged (in its place);
47. And that He has ordained the second creation;
48. And that it is He who enriches and suffices;
49. And that He is the Lord of the Sirius;
50. And that it is He Who destroyed the (powerful) ancient (tribe of) 'Ad,
51. And (the tribe of) Thamud He did not spare;
52. And before them, the people of Noah, for that they were (all) most unjust and most insolent transgressors,
53. And He destroyed the overturned cities;
54. And covered them by that which He covered.
55. Then which of the favors of your Lord will you dispute about?
56. This is a warner, of the (series of) former warners.
57. The threatened Hour is near.
58. None beside God can disclose it.
59. Do you then wonder at this statement?
60. And you laugh and not weep,
61. while you amuse yourselves?
62. Rather prostrate yourselves before God and worship Him. (53: 1 – 62)

This Sura was revealed in Mecca and it deals with the same issues that the Meccan Suras dealt with: the fundamentals of the doctrine, the revelation, the Oneness of God, and the Hereafter. The Sura approaches the topics from a specific angle. The Sura builds an argument to support the veracity of the revelation, and to show the lame basis for the concept of polytheism.

The Sura starts with an oath, “By the Star when it goes down,” which takes us to the environment in which Muhammad (PBUH) lived when he was receiving the revelation. The bright star eventually sets which is very much in tandem with the movement of Gabriel (PBUH) when he appeared first at the highest horizon then drew near to deliver the revelation. The star may be Sirius which is mentioned later on in the Sura because of its importance to the Arabs. The oath also alluded to the fact that every star will eventually set. Stars are transient phenomena; they are not worthy of being worshipped. The oath affirmed the credibility of the Prophet (PBUH), “Your companion has neither strayed, nor has he erred. Nor does he speak of (his own) whims. It is nothing but a revelation that is revealed.” He did not go astray nor did he err. More importantly, he did not speak out of his own accord. He is the deliverer of a revelation. The revelation is the truth revealed by the Truth. The revelation was delivered to the Prophet (PBUH) by a strong messenger, Gabriel (PBUH). He appeared to the Prophet (PBUH) at the highest horizon, then he drew near to him and gave him the revelation from his Lord, “It was taught to him by one of mighty powers, one vigorous; and he rose to (his) true form; when he was on the uppermost horizon; then he approached and came closer, and was at a distance of but two bow-lengths or (even) nearer; and He revealed to His servant that which He revealed.” This is the undisputed truth, the Prophet (PBUH) saw Gabriel (PBUH) and received the revelation from him, “The heart did not lie about what it saw. Will you then dispute with him concerning what he saw?” Seeing by the heart is more certain than seeing by the eyes because the eye may be deceived by what it sees. The Prophet (PBUH) was certain of what he saw and certain of what he received.

This was not the only time Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) saw Gabriel (PBUH), “For indeed he saw him at another descent, near the Lote-tree beyond which none may pass. Near it, is the Garden of refuge. As there covered the Lote-tree what covered it. (His) sight never swerved, nor did it exceed the limit. Certainly he saw of the greatest signs of his Lord.” This was during the Israa and Mi’raj. During Israa and Mi’raj Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) saw Gabriel (PBUH) in the form in which he was created. The Garden of Abode may be a reference to the final destination for the trip of Mi’raj. This is where the Prophet (PBUH) and Gabriel (PBUH) parted company, when Muhammad (PBUH) continued his trip into heaven and Gabriel (PBUH) stayed behind. These are all matters of the unseen. The Prophet’s (PBUH) sight was not swerved nor did it exceed the limit. He (PBUH) did certainly see the greatest of the signs of God. The revelation delivered to Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) is a fact. The Prophet (PBUH) did not only see Gabriel (PBUH) and receive the revelation from him, but he also felt in his heart the certainty and truth of the revelation.

The previous paragraph explored the truth from God. The following verses juxtapose the truth of the revelation against the falsehood of polytheism, “Have you considered Al- Lat and Al- Uzza, and Manat, the third, the other one? Are yours the males and His are the females? This indeed is unfair division. These are nothing but names which you have named, you and your fathers, for which God has sent down no authority (whatever). They follow nothing but conjecture and what their own souls desire; even though there has already come to them guidance from their Lord.”

The verses refer to three of the idols which the Arabs used to worship. Al-Lat was a white rock covered with certain decorations. It was located in the city of Taif and was housed in a temple designated for it. It was the pride of the people of Taif. It is thought that its name is the feminine of the word God in Arabic. Al-Uzza on the other hand was a tree housed in a building and it was located at a place on the road between Mecca and Taif. This was worshiped by Quraish. It is thought that its name was derived from the feminine of the Arabic word for the eminent. The third idol, Manat was located on the road between Mecca and Medina. This was worshiped by the tribes of Medina. It is narrated that these idols were considered females and they represented angels. The idolatrous Arabs claimed that they were God’s daughters. The verses questioned the rationale behind worshipping these idols and then posed a rhetorical question which showed the absurdity of the assumption that these idols represented God's daughters. The Arabs used to prefer sons over daughters. So, how could they ascribe to God daughters and keep the sons for themselves. The truth is that these claims are all lies which were fabricated by them and their forefathers. There was nothing to support these conjectures. Now, that they received guidance they should rectify the situation.

"They follow nothing but conjecture and what their own souls desire; even though there has already come to them guidance from their Lord." These claims were not based on concrete evidence but they were motivated by human whims and desires. But matters of the doctrine should be based on evidence not on conjecture. Now, they have received guidance based on evidence, so they have no excuse not to follow it. However, since they are motivated by their whims and desires, there is no hope that they will follow the right path, "Or shall humankind have what he wishes?" But they should realize the truth, "But to God belong the Hereafter, and the first (life). And how many angels are in the heavens whose intercession avails nothing save after God gives leave to whom He chooses and accepts." To God belongs everything in heaven and on earth. The verses refute the claims made by idolaters Arabs that they only worship the angels because they will intercede on their behalf. These are unfounded claims. God decides everything.

Not only they made unfounded claims but they also invented myth based on conjectures. Conjectures cannot stand against the truth, "Those who do not believe in the Hereafter name the angels with female names. But they have no knowledge thereof. They follow nothing but conjecture; and conjecture avails nothing against the truth."

The Prophet (PBUH) was then commanded to ignore the disbelievers to show how unimportant they were, "Therefore turn away from whoever turns away from Our Message and desire nothing except the life of this world. Such is their sum of knowledge." The command was issued to the Messenger (PBUH) in the first place but it extends to all believers. They should also ignore those who do not believe in the Hereafter and are only interested in the pleasures of this life. God knows best who is guided and who has gone astray, "Your Lord knows best who strays from His path, and He knows best who follows guidance." Faith is a fundamental value in the life of people because it shapes the standards for life and ethics. No sound relationship can exist between the believers and the disbelievers because the two groups have different standards and norms. To God belongs the decision He will reward each group according to their deeds. Since God owns everything He is the One who decides the reward in the Hereafter, "And to God belong whatsoever is in the heavens and whatsoever is in the earth, that He may reward those who do evil with that which they have done, and reward those who do good with goodness." The traits of the doers of good are then detailed, "Those who avoid major sins and abominations - except minor offences - (for them) your Lord is vast in forgiveness." Several traditions were narrated to explain the meaning of minor offences. Abu Hurairah (RA) narrated that the Prophet (PBUH) said, "God has decreed that each human being would commit his share of adultery and it is certain that it will happen. Adultery may be committed by the eyes, by the tongue, by desires"

harbored by the soul. It may stop at that (these are considered minor offences) or it may progress to an actual adulterous act (that is considered a major sin.)”

There are also other narrations which indicate that when a person repents, his sins become minor offences. We argue that this opinion is more appropriate since the verse makes a reference to the vast forgiveness of God, “(for them) your Lord is vast in forgiveness.” God forgives those who commit sins then repent quickly and go back to the straight path and do not insist on pursuing the path of sin. This opinion is also supported by the verse, “And those who, having done something to be ashamed of, or wronged themselves, remember God, and ask for forgiveness for their sins - and who can forgive sins except God? - and they never persist knowingly in doing whatever wrong they may have done.” (2:135) God called them the God conscious and promised them forgiveness and a paradise the width of which is as large as the width of the heavens and earth.

God’s knowledge is encompassing. He knows people even before they were created from dust, “He knows you well (from the time) when He created you from the earth, and when you were fetuses in the bellies of your mothers. Therefore, do not claim yourselves to be virtuous. He knows best who is conscious of Him.” He knows what they do not know about themselves. He knows how they were created, their nature, and who they truly are. He knows their actions before they act and their thoughts before they think. So no one should claim being virtuous in front of God, because He knows everything about them.

“Did you see the one who turned away? And gave a little, then held back?” The verse describes the kind of people who would give a little charity while being able to give more. The fear of becoming poor prevents them from giving more. The verse may have been revealed in reference to a particular incident but it also applies to general behavior of human beings. It describes a common model of human behavior. It refers to those people who do not persevere in doing good deeds. The Quran berates these people for their lack of commitment, “Does he have knowledge of the unseen so that he can foresee?” No one is able to predict the future and find out what will happen to him. One can guarantee security by doing good and hoping in the forgiveness of God.

The Message that was revealed to Muhammad (PBUH) is the same message that was revealed to other prophets, “Or has he not been informed of what is in the Scriptures of Moses? And of Abraham who fulfilled his obligations?” The verse stresses Abraham’s (PBUH) absolute dedication and fulfillment of duty in juxtaposition to those who lack commitment. The Message established fundamental principles, “That no bearer of burden shall bear the burden of another; And that man can have nothing but what he strives for; and that his effort will be seen. Then he will be rewarded with the fullest reward.” Everyone is responsible for his own deeds. No one will carry the burden of another. Then God will reward people according to their deeds. No good deed will be wasted. The reward will be paid in full. The final destination is to God, “And that to your Lord is the finality.” There is no escape and there is no refuge except with God.

The following verses explore the power of God in all aspects of life, “And that it is He who makes (one) laugh and weep.” God gave the human being the ability to laugh and weep. No one knows how these complicated systems work. What are the physiological and psychological processes that produce laughter and crying? Different people laugh and cry at the same events. Even the same person may laugh today for something that made him cry yesterday.

“And that it is He who causes death and gives life.” God created life and death. These are familiar phenomena but no one knows their secrets. What is life? And what is death? Where does life come from and how does it vanish?

“And that He created the two mates, the male and the female, from a sperm drop when lodged (in its place).” This phenomenon happens every minute but we do not think about it. A sperm drop is the origin of life of a human being. How can a sperm drop develop into a human being? How can it become a male or a female? How are the characteristics of the human being obtained?

“And that He has ordained the second creation.” The second creation is part of the unseen. He who created humankind in the first place is able to recreate him again. The second creation is inevitable because without it there will be no accountability.

“And that it is He who enriches and suffices.” It is God who bestows His bounty on people. God’s bounty is limitless in quantity and in type. He is the Provider that people should ask. He gives whom He wishes what He wishes.

The following verses make a quick and brief reference to previous peoples who rejected the truth and were destroyed, “And that it is He Who destroyed the (powerful) ancient (tribe of) A’ad, and (the tribe of) Thamud He did not spare; and before them, the people of Noah, for that they were (all) most unjust and most insolent transgressors, and He destroyed the overturned cities; and covered them by that which He covered.”

“Then which of the favors of your Lord will you dispute about?” The destruction of these people was then a favor done to humanity because evil was destroyed, and signs were left behind to remind people of the fate of those who reject the truth.

Then a warning is issued, “This is a warner, of the (series of) former warners. The threatened Hour is near. None beside God can disclose it.” The Day of Judgment could be very close. The Prophet (PBUH) came to give you guidance and to lead you to salvation. Salvation is only achieved through God’s guidance.

“Do you then wonder at this statement? And you laugh and not weep, while you amuse yourselves?” This is a serious talk; people should pay heed to it. There is no time for laughter and amusement. There are great tasks to be achieved before it is too late. They should heed the command, “Rather prostrate yourselves before God and worship Him.”

It has been narrated that when the idolaters of Mecca heard this last verse they prostrated themselves together with the believers. They were still idolaters and they disputed the truth of the revelation and the Quran but nevertheless they prostrated themselves. This must have been an extraordinary event. Many stories are narrated about how the idolaters were moved by the Quran when it was recited to them. We have heard many stories about how idolaters were overwhelmed with emotions when they listened to the Quran. However, their arrogance and stubbornness prevented them from accepting Islam.

It has been narrated that ‘Utebbah ibn Abi Rabiyy’ah, one of the chiefs of Quraish was delegated by the rest of the chiefs to negotiate with Muhammad (PBUH). They were willing to give him what he wanted if he stops calling people to Islam. ‘Utebbah came to the Messenger (PBUH) and offered him money, status, and power. The Prophet (PBUH) asked him to listen first to the Quran and ‘Utebbah agreed. The Prophet (PBUH) started to recite Surat Fussilat (Chapter 41) until he reached the verse, “But if they turn away, then say, ‘I have warned you of a thunderbolt like the thunderbolt that struck ‘Ad and Thamud.’” (41: 13) At this point ‘Utebbah was visibly shaken and he begged the Prophet (PBUH) to stop. So it is clear that the Quran had an overwhelming effect on the disbelievers as on the believers.

Sura 54: Al-Qamar (The Moon)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 55:

1. The Hour has drawn near and the moon has split in two.
2. Yet when they see a sign they turn away and say, "Prolonged illusion."
3. They denied (the truth) and followed their own whims. Yet everything will come to what was decided for it.
4. There have already come to them information in which there is (enough) deterrence.
5. Extensive wisdom; but warnings do not avail (them).
6. So turn away from them (Muhammad). On the Day when the Caller will summon to a difficult thing;
7. With downcast eyes, they will come forth from the graves as if they were locusts spreading.
8. Hastening towards the Caller; the disbelievers will say, "This is a difficult day."
9. The people of Noah denied before them; they denied Our servant and said, "A madman;" and he was repulsed.
10. Then he called on his Lord, saying, "I have been overcome, so help (me)."
11. So We opened the gates of heaven, with pouring water.
12. And We caused the earth to gush forth with springs, so the waters met (and rose) to a measure already ordained.
13. And We carried him upon a thing of planks and nails.
14. She floats under our eyes (and care), a recompense for the one who had been rejected.
15. And verily We left it as a sign; but is there any who will remember?
16. Then see how (dreadful) was My torment after My warnings.
17. And We have indeed made the Quran easy to understand and remember. Then is there any who will remember?
18. (The tribe of) A'ad denied. Then how (dreadful) was My torment after My warnings.
19. Indeed, We sent against them a furious wind, on a Day of violent disaster,
20. Plucking out men as if they were roots of palm-trees torn up (from the ground).
21. Then see how (dreadful) was My torment and My warnings.
22. And We have indeed made the Quran easy to understand and remember. Then is there any who will remember?
23. (The tribe of) Thamud denied the warnings.
24. For they said, "Is it a mortal, alone among us, that we are to follow? Then indeed we should fall into error and madness."
25. Has the Message been sent to him, of all the people among us? He is an insolent liar.
26. (It was said), "Tomorrow they will know who the insolent liar is?"
27. Indeed, We will send the she-camel as a test for them; so watch them and persevere;
28. And tell them that, the water is to be divided between them. Every drinking will be witnessed.
29. But they called to their companion, and he took a sword in hand, and hamstrung (her).
30. Then see how (dreadful) was My torment after My warnings.
31. For We sent against them a single mighty blast, and they became like crushed hay.

32. And We have indeed made the Quran easy to understand and remember. Then is there any who will remember?
33. The people of Lot denied the warnings.
34. We sent a storm of stones upon them (all) save the family of Lot, whom We rescued in the last watch of the night,
35. As a Blessing from Us; thus, We reward him who gives thanks.
36. And he indeed did warn them of Our blow, but they disputed the warnings.
37. They even demanded him to deliver his guests to them. Then We blinded their eyes (and said), "Taste now My torment and My warnings."
38. Early on the morrow an enduring torment seized them.
39. So taste My torment and My warnings.
40. And We have indeed made the Quran easy to understand and remember. Then is there any who will remember?
41. And warnings were certainly sent to the people of Pharaoh.
42. The (people) rejected all Our signs; so We seized them – the seizure of an Eminent, Omnipotent.
43. Are your disbelievers better than those, or have you some immunity in the Scriptures?
44. Or do they say, "We are an alliance and we will be victorious?"
45. The hosts will all be routed and will turn and flee.
46. But the Hour (of doom) is their appointed time, and the Hour will be more wretched and more bitter (than their earthly failure).
47. Indeed, the guilty are in error and madness.
48. On the Day when they will be dragged into the Fire upon their faces (it is said to them), "Feel the touch of Hell."
49. Verily, We have created everything in due proportion and measure.
50. And Our commandment is but one (commandment), as the twinkling of an eye.
51. And verily We have destroyed your fellows; but is there any who remembers?
52. And everything they did is noted in their records.
53. Every matter, small and great, is on record.
54. The God conscious will dwell among gardens and rivers;
55. In the seat of honor in the presence of the Omnipotent Sovereign. (54: 1 – 55)

This Sura has dual purpose. The first, it launches a horrific attack on the disbelievers, those who defied the warnings. The second, purpose is to provide comfort and reassurance to the believers. The Sura is divided into different episodes, each one ends with a verse that shakes the human conscious to heed the warning, "Then see how (dreadful) was My punishment and My warnings. And We have indeed made the Quran easy to understand and remember. Then is there any who will remember?"

The Sura deals with the same issues dealt with in the Meccan Suras. It portrays scenes of the Day of Judgment and it also introduces very quickly and briefly synopsis from the stories of peoples who rejected guidance before. However, these stories are told in a different style. The stories are narrated through a series of horrific images of the destruction of the disbelievers. The Sura ends with the comforting scene of the God conscious having secure and honored seating in the presence of their Lord.

The Sura starts with the mention of a cosmic phenomenon that had been witnessed by the Arabs at that time together with a warning of the approaching Hour, “The Hour has drawn near and the moon has split in two.” It has been narrated that the idolaters of Mecca asked the Messenger of God (PBUH) for a sign to support his claim that he was a messenger of God, and the sign came twice in the form of a split moon. This phenomenon has been cited by a large number of scholars. In addition, the people of Mecca heard the description of the event of the split moon from the recitation of the Quran and no one of them denied its occurrence. However, I would like to comment on these narrations; specifically, the part of the narration which indicated that the phenomenon of the split moon was a miracle that occurred in response to the request of the idolaters of Mecca that the Prophet (PBUH) should come up with a miracle to support his claim. This reasoning contradicts the meaning conveyed by one of the verses of the Quran which indicates that Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) was not given a physical miracle like the physical miracles which were given to the messengers who came before him as mentioned in the following verse, “And nothing has prevented Us from sending signs except that the former peoples denied them.” (17: 59) Every time the idolaters requested a miracle from the Prophet (PBUH) he would decline and say, “Glory be to my Lord, was I ever but a human messenger?” (17: 93) So, the claim that the splitting of the moon was in response to the request of the pagans of Mecca does not seem to be valid. The Quran was meant to address the human intellect without taking recourse to physical miracles. We believe that there were physical miracles that occurred at the hands of the Prophet (PBUH) but the purpose of these miracles was to provide comfort, support, and security to the heart of the Prophet (PBUH) not as a means to convince people of the authenticity of the message.

The split moon is a miracle but the moon itself is a bigger miracle. The Quran came to connect the human heart to the universe and to invite it to reflect on God’s signs. These signs are continuously available for people to reflect upon while the split moon was a momentary miracle that was witnessed only by the group of people who lived in Arabia at that time.

However, the idolaters of Mecca did not heed the warning but continued in their stubborn heedlessness, “Yet when they see a sign they turn away and say, ‘Prolonged illusion.’ They denied (the truth) and followed their own whims. Yet everything will come to what was decided for it. There have already come to them information in which there is (enough) deterrence. Extensive wisdom; but warnings do not avail (them).” They turned away and said this was magic. That was also what they thought about the Quran, they said it is magic. However, they had no proof of these claims. Everything around them in the universe was firmly established in its place. They received enough information to bring them into the fold of the believers; information from the cosmic phenomena around them and from the history of peoples who lived before them.

The Prophet (PBUH) was then told to turn away from them, “So turn away from them (Muhammad). On the Day when the Caller will summon to a difficult thing; with downcast eyes, they will come forth from the graves as if they were locusts spreading. Hastening towards the Caller; the disbelievers will say, ‘This is a difficult day.’” The verses depict one of the horrific scenes of the scenes of the Day of Judgment. It will be a difficult day.

The Sura then proceeds to the narrations of the history of those who were destroyed before, “The people of Noah denied before them; they denied Our servant and said, ‘A madman;’ and he was repulsed.” Similar to the response that Prophet (PBUH) received from Quraish, the people of Noah (PBUH) denied his message and persecuted him. When he tried everything and failed to convince his people, he had to turn back to his Lord asking for help, “Then he called on his Lord, saying, ‘I have been overcome, so help (me).’” God responded, “So We opened the gates of heaven, with pouring water. And We caused the earth to gush forth with springs, so the waters met (and rose) to a measure already ordained.” This was a huge universal phenomenon, water coming from the sky and water gushing from the ground. The water coming down from the sky and the water gushing out from the ground met so that what has been ordained would take place. When the flood covered the land, Noah (PBUH) and the people who believed in him were carried on the ship; the ship that Noah (PBUH) built under the care of God and which sails by His grace and under His protection, “And We carried him upon a thing of planks and nails. She floats under our eyes (and care), a recompense for the one who had been rejected.” The verse does not mention the ship by name but it describes how it was constructed alluding to her value and magnificence. This was the reward for the one who was rejected. Then it was left as a sign for the following generations, hopefully they would remember, “And verily We left it as a sign; but is there any who will remember?” The story was followed by a question to awaken the heedless hearts, “Then see how (dreadful) was My torment and My warnings;” and a statement about the Quran, “And We have indeed made the Quran easy to understand and remember. Then is there any who will remember?”

“(The tribe of) A’ad denied. Then how (dreadful) was My torment and My warnings. Indeed, We sent against them a furious wind, on a Day of violent disaster, Plucking out men as if they were roots of palm-trees torn up (from the ground). Then see how (dreadful) was My torment and My warnings. And We have indeed made the Quran easy to understand and remember. Then is there any who will remember?” This is the second scene of the scenes of God’s punishment. God sent a very cold wind over them. The wind blew over them and left their bodies to like the empty trunks of palm-trees. It is a horrific scene. The wind is one of God’s forces. God controls the wind; it fulfills whatever mission it is commanded to fulfil.

The third scene depicts the story of the tribe of Thamud, “(The tribe of) Thamud denied the warnings. For they said, ‘Is it a mortal, alone among us, that we are to follow? Then indeed we should fall into error and madness.’ Has the Message been sent to him, of all the people among us? He is an insolent liar. (It was said), ‘Tomorrow they will know who the insolent liar is.’” They were too arrogant to accept the fact that one of them was sent by God to guide them. God chooses whomsoever He pleases to be His messenger. God knows best who is most qualified to fulfill the mission. The remarkable thing is that they thought that they would go astray if they followed their messenger. They were quite rude calling their messenger an insolent liar. The Quran said, “Tomorrow they will know who the insolent liar is.”

So God sent them the she-camel as a test and everyone stood waiting to see what will happen, “Indeed We will send the she-camel as a test for them; so watch them and persevere;” Their messenger was commanded to tell them the conditions for the test, “and tell them that the water is to be divided between them. Every drinking will be witnessed.” The water was divided between the tribe and the she-camel; one day the tribe can access the water and the next day would be allocated to the she-camel, only she would be able to drink on that day. But they did not like this arrangement and called upon one of the evil men of their tribe, “But they called to their companion, and he took a sword in hand, and hamstringed (her). Then see how (dreadful) was My torment and My warnings.” They failed the test so they were punished with a mighty blast that destroyed them, “For We sent against them a single mighty blast, and they became like crushed hay. And We have indeed made the Quran easy to understand and remember. Then is there any who will remember?” The Quran does not explain the nature of the blast. In Surat Fussilat (Chapter 41) it was called a thunderbolt. It seems that both the blast and the thunderbolt are the same. The blast made the people to look like crushed hay.

The next episode that is mentioned in this Sura is the story of the people of Lot (PBUH). This story was mentioned in greater detail in other places of the Quran, so the objective here is to attract the attention to the inevitable end of those who reject guidance, “The people of Lot denied the warnings. We sent a storm of stones upon them (all) save the family of Lot, whom We rescued in the last watch of the night, as a Blessing from Us; thus, We reward him who gives thanks.” The beginning and end of the story were given in the previous verses, then some more details were given, “And he indeed did warn them of Our blow, but they disputed the warnings. They even demanded him to deliver his guests to them. Then We blinded their eyes (and said), ‘Taste now My torment and My warnings.’” Lot (PBUH) warned them repeatedly but they did not heed his warning. They even had the audacity to demand that he should deliver his guests to them; not knowing that these guests were angels coming to destroy them. The destruction happened in the early morning, “Early on the morrow an enduring torment seized them. So taste My torment and My warnings. And We have indeed made the Quran easy to understand and remember. Then is there any who will remember?” The verse that was mentioned at the end of each of the previous episodes, “Then see how (dreadful) was My torment and My warnings;” was replaced in this episode by another verse, “So taste My torment and My warnings,” as if the scene was happening in front of our eyes. This is one of the special characteristics of the Quranic style.

The last story is the story of the people of Pharaoh, “And warnings were certainly sent to the people of Pharaoh. The (people) denied all Our signs; so We seized them – the seizure of an Eminent, Omnipotent.” The story was told very briefly. Only the beginning and end are mentioned. The verses emphasized two of God’s attributes, His Eminence and His unlimited power, an ending which is appropriate to the story of Pharaoh who was a tyrant and thought he was a deity for his people.

The verses turn around to address the idolaters of Mecca, “Are your disbelievers better than those, or have you some immunity in the Scriptures? Or do they say, ‘We are a host victorious?’ The hosts will all be routed and will turn and flee. But the Hour (of doom) is their appointed time, and the Hour will be more wretched and more bitter (than their earthly failure). Indeed, the guilty are in error and madness. On the day when they will be dragged into the Fire upon their faces (it is said to them), ‘Feel the touch of Hell.’” It is a threat of the punishment in this life as well as in the Hereafter. They have seen what happened to those who rejected guidance before them, what makes them think they will be able to escape God’s punishment? Do they think that they have a larger army, “We are an alliance and we will be victorious.” They will be defeated and they will turn back and flee; not only that, but the torment of the Hereafter is more severe. They will be dragged on their faces in Hell. It will be said to them, “Feel the touch of Hell.”

The narrative states the fundamental truth, “Verily, We have created everything in due proportion and measure. And Our commandment is but one (commandment), as the twinkling of an eye.” One single word or sign and God’s commandment will come to pass. God’s power defies the constraints of time and space. One commandment started the whole universe and one commandment can bring it to its end. One commandment creates, one commandment puts to death, and one commandment raises people to be gathered for the Day of Judgment and reckoning.

Then the Quran reminded them of the fate of previous peoples who rejected the truth, “And verily We have destroyed your fellows; but is there any who remembers? And everything they did is noted in their records. Every matter, small and great, is on record.” Everything is recorded.

Then a new page is turned. The secure and serene scene of those who are God conscious, “The God conscious will dwell among gardens and rivers, in the seat of honor in the presence of the Omnipotent Sovereign.” The image reflects an opposite image to that describing the disbelievers. This is the image of bliss and honor. The most important is the bliss of the hearts when they find themselves in the presence of God. They were conscious of Him in the worldly life and now they are secure in His presence in the Hereafter. The fear of God in the life of the world and the fear of God in the Hereafter are two irreconcilable emotions; they cannot co-exist in the heart of the human being.

Sura 55: Al-Rahman (The Lord of Mercy)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 78:

1. The Lord of Mercy;
2. It is He who has taught the Quran.
3. He created humankind.
4. He taught him clear expression.
5. The sun and the moon follow courses (exactly) computed;
6. And the stars and the trees - both prostrate.
7. And the sky He has uplifted; and He has set the balance;
8. In order that you may not transgress in the balance.
9. So establish weight with justice and do not fall short in the balance.
10. And the earth He set down for His creatures;
11. Therein are fruits and sheathed palm-trees,
12. Husked grain and scented plants.
13. Then which of the favors of your Lord would you deny?
14. He created humankind from clay like the potter's,
15. And He created jinn from smokeless fire.
16. Then which of the favors of your Lord would you deny?
17. (He is) Lord of the two risings and Lord of the two settings;
18. Then which of the favors of your Lord would you deny?
19. He merged the two seas, converging together;
20. Between them is a barrier which they do not transgress;
21. Then which of the favors of your Lord would you deny?
22. Out of them come Pearls and Coral.
23. Then which of the favors of your Lord would you deny?
24. And His are the ships sailing smoothly through the seas, lofty as mountains.
25. Then which of the favors of your Lord would you deny?
26. All that is on earth will perish.
27. Only the Face of your Lord, the Lord of Majesty and Generosity, will remain.
28. Then which of the favors of your Lord would you deny?
29. All that are in the heavens and the earth entreat Him. Every day He exercises power.
30. Then which of the favors of your Lord would you deny?
31. We will attend to both of you prominent beings.
32. Then which of the favors of your Lord would you deny?
33. Jinn and humankind, if you can penetrate the regions of the heavens and the earth, then penetrate (them). You will never penetrate them save with (Our) sanction.
34. Then which of the favors of your Lord would you deny?
35. There will be sent, against you both, heat of fire and flash of brass, and you will not escape.
36. Then which of the favors of your Lord would you deny?
37. When the sky is rent asunder, and it becomes rosy like red hide;
38. Then which of the favors of your Lord would you deny?

39. On that day neither humankind nor jinn will be questioned about his sin.
40. Then which of the favors of your Lord would you deny?
41. The guilty will be known by their marks, and will be taken by the forelocks and the feet.
42. Then which of the favors of your Lord would you deny?
43. This is the Hell which the guilty deny.
44. They will go circling round between it and fierce, boiling water.
45. Then which of the favors of your Lord would you deny?
46. But for those who feared the standing before their Lord there are two gardens.
47. Then which of the favors of your Lord would you deny?
48. With spreading branches.
49. Then which of the favors of your Lord would you deny?
50. Wherein are two flowing springs.
51. Then which of the favors of your Lord would you deny?
52. Wherein is every kind of fruit in pairs.
53. Then which of the favors of your Lord would you deny?
54. Reclining upon couches lined with silk brocade, the fruit of both the gardens shall be within reach.
55. Then which of the favors of your Lord would you deny?
56. Therein are those of modest gaze, whom neither human nor jinn will have touched before them.
57. Then which of the favors of your Lord would you deny?
58. Like rubies and coral.
59. Then which of the favors of your Lord would you deny?
60. Is there any reward for goodness but goodness?
61. Then which of the favors of your Lord would you deny?
62. And besides these two, there are two other gardens.
63. Then which of the favors of your Lord would you deny?
64. Dark-green in color.
65. Then which of the favors of your Lord would you deny?
66. Wherein are two gushing springs.
67. Then which of the favors of your Lord would you deny?
68. Wherein is fruit, the date-palm and pomegranate.
69. Then which of the favors of your Lord would you deny?
70. Wherein are good and beautiful women;
71. Then which of the favors of your Lord would you deny?
72. Fair ones, closely-guarded in pavilions;
73. Then which of the favors of your Lord would you deny?
74. Whom neither human nor jinn will have touched before them;
75. Then which of the favors of your Lord would you deny?
76. Reclining on green cushions and beautiful carpets;
77. Then which of the favors of your Lord would you deny?
78. Blessed be the name of your Lord, the Lord of Majesty and Generosity. (55: 1 -78)

This is a Meccan Sura. It has a very special style. It presents a general proclamation in the universal court. It enumerates the different signs of God which are reflected on the creation of the universe and humankind. It addresses the two prominent bodies: humankind and jinn challenging them to deny God's blessings and favors.

The Sura starts with a verse of one word, "The Lord of Mercy;" a beginning which sets the tone for the whole Sura; a call to each heart to listen; a call that attracts the attention of the whole universe to the proclamation of God. Then the proclamation follows, "It is He who has taught the Quran." The Quran is the greatest blessing of God. It is an expression of the mercy of God. It embodies the laws that organize the whole universe. It embodies the divine project which organizes the life of people on earth and provides them with a link to the rest of the universe. It provides them with the means to lead comfortable, safe, and secure life.

The Quran opens the eyes of people to see the beauty of the universe. The Quran teaches people the meaning of being vicegerents of God on earth. That is why the verse that deals with the teaching of the Quran precedes the verse that tells of the creation of humankind, "He created humankind. He taught him clear expression." God taught humankind to express himself and to communicate with other beings in the universe. This is a great blessing that we usually take for granted.

The following verses talk about the signs of God in the universe, "The sun and the moon follow courses (exactly) computed." The creation and the control of the universe are a testimony of the accurate planning and design of the universe. The universe is full of stars, many of which are much bigger than the sun. But the sun is the most important star for us, the inhabitants of the earth. The light and heat we get from the sun are essential for our continuous survival. The moon is also important to us. The gravitational attraction of the sun and the moon are accurately calculated to guarantee their equilibrium and stability. In this huge universe, in which there are millions of the stars, every star moves along its orbit with great precision.

The previous verse explained the precision of the creation and the next verse explains the relationship between the created and the Creator, "And the stars and the trees - both prostrate." The existence of the universe is contingent on the sound relationship between the created and the Creator. Every creature in this universe recognizes its Creator and submits to Him.

"And the sky He has uplifted; and He has set the balance; in order that you may not transgress in the balance. So establish weight with justice and do not fall short in the balance." The reference to the sky aims at attracting the attention of the heedless heart to contemplate the magnificence of God's creation. It motivates the human being to look high up and reflect on the huge universe that has millions of the stars moving around without colliding with each other. In addition to the majesty of the creation of the vast universe, a reference is made to the establishment of the balance; the balance that weighs with the truth. The balance that sets the standard for everything: people, events and other things. This balance guarantees the stability of life. The balance means that we should use objective judgment not whims and desires in our dealings. This is the balance that God embedded in the initial natural disposition of humankind and is included in the divine project as explained in the Quran. It is thus incumbent on us not to transgress this balance and to maintain justice and fairness in our dealings.

“And the earth He set down for His creatures. Therein are fruits and sheathed palm-trees, husked grain and scented plants.” Having lived on earth for a long time, humankind tends to take things for granted. We do not think of the power that made this earth habitable; the power that made it a secure place for us to live on. We are reminded every now and then of the precarious nature of this place when we suffer the occurrence of an earthquake or the eruption of a volcano. We do not realize that this earth, on which we live, rotates and moves in the universe with vast speeds. In the mean time the earth provides the appropriate soil for magnificent plants to grow and sustain our lives. Then which of these blessings would humankind and jinn dispute? “Then which of the favors of your Lord would you deny?”

God’s blessings in creating humankind and jinn are then explored, “He created humankind from clay like the potter’s, and He created jinn from smokeless fire. Then which of the favors of your Lord would you deny?” Having been created is a great blessing from God on both jinn and humankind. The creation and existence of both humankind and jinn are miracles beyond comprehension. Humankind was created from clay. We know from science that the elements that constitute the human body are the same elements that constitute the soil. However, scientific knowledge should not be used in interpreting the verses of the Quran. Quranic verses may be alluding to the scientific facts or they may mean something else. We would like to emphasize that we should not consider a single and limited scientific theory as the sole explanation of a Quranic verse. Scientific theories may be proven to be facts and may be proven wrong later on; very often their findings change with time. Scientific theories may be used in the context of providing probable explanations of the verses of the Quran. The creation of jinn from fire is beyond human comprehension, it is part of the unseen.

“(He is) Lord of the two risings and Lord of the two settings. Then which of the favors of your Lord would you deny?” The reference to the two risings and the two settings evokes in the heart the encompassing nature of God. Wherever one goes or looks, one can find God. The risings and settings could be a reference to the risings and settings of the sun and the moon. They could also be a reference to the different risings and settings of the sun in the winter and the summer; or the different risings and setting of the sun in the two hemispheres. What is more important is the significance of the mention of the two risings and the two settings. The verse urges the human being to consider the risings and settings as signs of God to reflect upon.

God created water on earth to be used by people, “He merged the two seas, converging together; between them is a barrier which they do not transgress. Then which of the favors of your Lord would you deny? Out of them come Pearls and Coral. Then which of the favors of your Lord would you deny? And His are the ships sailing smoothly through the seas, lofty as mountains; then which of the favors of your Lord would you deny?” One of the two seas is a salt water sea and the other is a fresh water one. The first represents all seas and oceans and the second represents all rivers. God allowed the rivers to converge on the seas but neither one transgresses upon each other. Their waters do not cross the natural barrier between the two. Although, most rivers end up flowing into seas, but the characteristics of the sea water do not change. The level of the river is usually higher than the level of the sea to which it is connected. So, sea water does not affect the characteristics of the fresh water in the river. Both have wonders of God's creation. Pearl and coral are harvested from them. Ships sail through rivers and seas. They look like mountains. God created the laws that keep them afloat and allow them to sail through water.

“All that is on earth will perish. Only the Face of your Lord, the Lord of Majesty and Generosity, will remain. Then which of the favors of your Lord would you deny?” Reading this verse, the sounds become quite and the senses become still. Everything will perish. Only God's Face will remain. So, which blessing would humankind and the jinn dispute?

“All that are in the heavens and the earth entreat Him. Every day He exercises power. Then which of the favors of your Lord would you deny?” Only God can answer those who ask Him, that is why everyone asks Him. He controls everything, He is the owner of everything and He is the provider.

The following verse embodies a horrific warning, “We will attend to both of you prominent beings. Then which of the favors of your Lord would you deny?” God the Lord of Majesty, the Mighty, the Strong, the Dominator, the Compeller, the Great, the Most High will attend to the reckoning of the two weak kinds of creatures: humankind and jinn. This is a horrific matter, beyond all imagination. There is nothing that can keep God busy; He does not need to take time off to attend to humankind and jinn. But it is a figure of speech which magnifies the impact of the warning. Could they dispute any of His favors?

Then a challenge is posed. Can jinn and humankind penetrate the heavens and earth, “Jinn and humankind, if you can penetrate the regions of the heavens and the earth, then penetrate (them). You will never penetrate them save with (Our) sanction. Then which of the favors of your Lord would you deny?” Only by God's permission can they penetrate the heavens and earth otherwise, “there will be sent, against you both, heat of fire and flash of brass, and you will not escape. Then which of the favors of your Lord would you deny?”

The rest of the Sura describes some of the scenes of the Day of Judgment, “When the sky is rent asunder, and it becomes rosy like red hide; then which of the favors of your Lord would you deny?” The scene of the sky as a red rose like a red hide refers to the catastrophic events which will happen on the Day of Judgment. Many of the verses in the Quran describe the destruction of the planets and the stars which will take place on the Day of Judgment. On that Day no one will be asked. The deeds of everyone will be known. The faces will reflect these deeds, those who did good, will have happy and bright faces but those who did evil will have miserable and darkened faces, “On that day neither humankind nor jinn will be questioned about his sin. Then which of the favors of your Lord would you deny?”

The criminals will be known by the marks on their faces. They will be taken by the forelocks and the feet and thrown into Hell fire, “The guilty will be known by their marks, and will be taken by the forelocks and the feet. Then which of the favors of your Lord would you deny?” It will be said, “This is the Hell which the guilty deny. They will go circling round between it and fierce, boiling water. Then which of the favors of your Lord would you deny?”

The other scene is the scene of bliss, “But for those who feared the standing before their Lord there are two gardens. Then which of the favors of your Lord would you deny?” This is the first time in the Quran that two gardens are mentioned. Most probably they are parts of the big garden that has been mentioned frequently in the Quran. The mention of two gardens may have a special significance. As we will see in Surat Al-Waqiah (Chapter 56), the companions of the garden are two groups: the group of those who will be brought closer to God, and the group who are called the people of the right. It may be that the two gardens mentioned in this verse are meant for those who have higher rank, the group of those who are brought closer to God. The two gardens which will be mentioned later on in this Sura may have been meant for the other group, the group of the people of the right.

The first two gardens have, “Spreading branches; two flowing springs, every kind of fruit in pairs.” And those who inhabit them will be, “reclining upon couches lined with silk brocade, the fruit of both the gardens shall be within reach. Therein are those of modest gaze, whom neither human nor jinn will have touched before them, like rubies and coral.” The fundamental standard is then set, “Is there any reward for goodness but goodness?”

The group of the people of the right will be admitted to two different gardens. These gardens are slightly lower in rank than the previous two, “and besides these two, there are two other gardens, dark-green in color. Wherein are two gushing springs.” Here it is mentioned that the water is gushing in pulses from the two springs while in the previous two gardens, water was flowing continuously from the two springs. But there will be fruits and other good things, “Wherein are fruits, the date-palm and pomegranate. Then which of the favors of your Lord would you deny? Wherein are good and beautiful women; then which of the favors of your Lord would you deny? Fair ones, closely-guarded in pavilions; then which of the favors of your Lord would you deny? Whom neither human nor jinn will have touched before them; then which of the favors of your Lord would you deny? Reclining on green cushions and beautiful carpets; then which of the favors of your Lord would you deny?”

The Sura explored the blessings of God on the universe, on His creatures, and in the Hereafter; it thus appropriate to conclude by glorifying God, the Everlasting, “Blessed be the name of your Lord, the Lord of Majesty and Generosity.”

Sura 56: AL-Waqi'ah (The Inevitable Event)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 56:

1. When the inevitable event occurs,
2. There is no denying that it will occur.
3. Abasing (some), exalting (others);
4. When the earth shall be shaken to its depths,
5. And the mountains shall be crumbled to powder,
6. Becoming a scattered dust;
7. And you shall be sorted out into three kinds:
8. Those on the right, what of those on the right?
9. And those on the left, what of those on the left?
10. And the foremost in the race, the foremost in the race,
11. Those are they who will be brought close (to God),
12. In gardens of bliss;
13. A numerous company of the former generations,
14. And a few of the later generations,
15. On lined couches,
16. Reclining on them, facing each other.
17. There will circulate among them immortal youths;
18. With cups, pitchers and a cup from a flowing spring;
19. Causing them neither headache, nor will they suffer intoxication;
20. And fruit that they prefer;
21. And flesh of fowl that they desire.
22. And (there will be) companions with beautiful, big, and lustrous eyes;
23. Like pearls well-guarded;
24. A reward for what they used to do.
25. They will not hear therein vain or sinful discourse,
26. Only the saying, "Peace, Peace."
27. And those on the right, what of those on the right?
28. (They will be) among Lote-trees without thorns,
29. And trees with flowers (or fruits) piled one above another,
30. And extended shade,
31. And water flowing continuously,
32. And fruits in abundance;
33. Whose season is not limited, nor (supply) forbidden
34. And raised couches.
35. We have created (their companions) in a (new) creation.
36. And made them virgins,
37. Loving, equals in age,
38. For those on the right;
39. A numerous company of the former generations,
40. And a numerous company of the later generations.

41. And those on the left, what of those on the left?
42. In scorching wind and scalding water,
43. And the shadow of black smoke,
44. Neither cool nor refreshing.
45. Indeed, they were, before that, indulging in affluence;
46. And used to persist in the awful sin.
47. And they used to say, "When we die and become dust and bones, will we indeed be raised up again?"
48. And also our forefathers?
49. Say, "Indeed, the former and later generations,
50. Will all be brought together to the tryst of an appointed day.
51. Then indeed you who have gone astray, the deniers,
52. You will surely eat of a tree of Zaqqum,
53. And will fill your bellies with it;
54. And drinking on top of it boiling water;
55. And you will drink the way thirsty camels drink.
56. This will be their welcome on the Day of Judgment. (56: 1 -56)

The inevitable event is the name of the Sura as well as its topic of discussion. The main issue that the Sura addresses is the concept of resurrection. The Sura opens up with a horrific statement that is appropriate to a scene of the scenes of the Day of Judgment, "When the inevitable event occurs, there is no denying that it will occur. Abasing (some), exalting (others); when the earth shall be shaken to its depths, and the mountains shall be crumbled to powder, becoming a scattered dust." The verses alludes to the events of the Day of Judgment without explicitly detailing what will happen giving the impression that it so horrific that it could not be mentioned explicitly. The verses emphasize the inevitability of the event. On that Day some people will be in high places while others will be debased. A description of the cosmic disruption on that Day then follows: the earth will be shaken and the mountains will be destroyed becoming dust scattered in the universe.

The following verses explain in more details the earlier statement about raising some people and debasing others. People are divided into three categories, "And you shall be sorted out into three kinds: those on the right, what of those on the right? And those on the left, what of those on the left? And the foremost in the race, the foremost in the race." The people of the first category are the people on the right, then the second category includes the people on the left. The people of the third category are the foremost in the race. No details are mentioned about the people of each category. However, the mention of each group is followed by a question: what about them? The verses build up the anticipation of the reader to know more about each category. Then the verses detail the rank of each group in front of God and what will they receive from Him. The verses start with those who are the foremost in the race, "Those are they who will be brought close (to God), In gardens of bliss; a numerous company of the former generations, and a few of the later generations, on lined couches, reclining on them, facing each other. There will circulate among them immortal youths; with cups, pitchers and a cup from a flowing spring; causing them neither headache, nor will they suffer intoxication; and fruits that they prefer; and flesh of fowl that they desire. And (there will be) companions with beautiful, big, and lustrous eyes; like pearls well- guarded; a reward for what they used to do. They will not hear therein vain or sinful discourse, only the saying, 'Peace, Peace.'" The verses start with the greatest bliss that this group will enjoy: the bliss of being close to God. The verses describe the composition of the group, "a numerous company of the former generations, and a few of the later generations." Then continue to describe the other bounties of God that they will enjoy. They will be reclining on couches feeling happy and secure. They will be served by young people who will serve them whatever they like of fruits, meat, and drinks. They will have beautiful companions, like well protected pearls. They will live in peace, security, and harmony.

The next group consists of the people on the right, "And those on the right, what of those on the right? (They will be) among Lote-trees without thorns, and trees with flowers (or fruits) piled one above another, and extended shade, and water flowing constantly, and fruits in abundance; whose season is not limited, nor (supply) forbidden, and raised couches. We have created (their companions) in a (new) creation, and made them virgins, loving, equals in age, for those on the right; a numerous company of the former generations, and a numerous company of the later generations." The previous verses describe the details of the bliss that the people on the right will enjoy. They will live in Gardens with thorn-free flowering trees, water will be flowing around them. They will enjoy the shade and the different types of fruits. They will be sitting on high couches and they will have beautiful companions. These companions will be virgins, loving, and of compatible age. Finally, the composition of the group is mentioned, "a numerous company of the former generations, and a numerous company of the later generations."

The third group is the group of those on the left, "And those on the left, what of those on the left? In scorching wind and scalding water; and the shadow of black smoke, neither cool nor refreshing. Indeed they were, before that, indulging in affluence; and used to persist in the awful sin." The scene is contrasted against the scene of those on the right. They will be in scorching wind drinking boiling water. This is their recompense. They used to enjoy affluent life. They were adamant in breaking the covenant that God took from humankind, the covenant that God instilled in the initial natural disposition of humankind. They used to deny the accountability on the Day of Judgment, "And they used to say, 'When we die and become dust and bones, will we indeed be raised up again? and also our forefathers.'" Their question will be answered, "Say, 'Indeed, the former and later generations, will all be brought together to the tryst of an appointed day.'" Certainly you will be raised, you and your forefathers and you will be held accountable, "Then indeed you who have gone astray, the deniers, you will surely eat of a tree of Zaqqum, and will fill your bellies with it; and drinking on top of it boiling water; and you will drink the way thirsty camels drink. This will be their welcome on the Day of Judgment." They will drink boiling water. Such water neither quenches their thirst, nor does it cool their insides. So, they will keep drinking in the same fashion that sick camels keep drinking.

Verses 57 to 96:

57. We have created you, so why do you not believe?

58. Have you seen that which you emit?

59. Is it you who create it, or are We the Creator?

60. We have decreed death to be your common lot, and We are not to be frustrated.

61. In order that We may bring in your place the likes of you and make you grow into what you do not know.
62. And you certainly know already the first creation; why then do you not remember?
63. Have you seen that which you sow?
64. Is it you who make it to grow, or are We the growers?
65. If We willed, We verily could make it chaff, then you would not cease to lament?
66. (Saying), "We are indeed left with debts;
67. Rather, we are deprived.
68. Have you considered the water which you drink?
69. Is it you who send it down from the raincloud, or are We the senders?
70. If We willed, We verily could make it bitter. Why then, you are not grateful?
71. Have you considered the fire which you ignite;
72. Was it you who produced its trees, or are We the producers?
73. We have made it a reminder and a provision for the travelers.
74. Therefore, glorify the name of your Lord, the Tremendous.
75. I swear by the positions of the stars.
76. That is verily a tremendous oath, if you only knew.
77. Most surely it is a noble Quran,
78. In a book that is well-protected.
79. None shall touch it except the purified ones;
80. A revelation from the Lord of the worlds.
81. Do you then hold this discourse in contempt?
82. And you have made it your livelihood that you should declare it false?
83. Then why when (the soul of the dying man) reaches the throat,
84. And you are, at that time, looking on;
85. But We are nearer to him than you, and yet you do not see.
86. Then why do you not, if you are exempt from (future) account,
87. Bring it back, if you are truthful?
88. If he was of those who are brought near to God,
89. Then (for him) happiness and bounty and a garden of bliss.
90. If he was of those on the right,
91. For him is the salutation, "Peace be to you," from those on the right.
92. And if he is one of the rejecters, the erring ones,
93. Then the welcome will be boiling water;
94. And burning in Hell-Fire.
95. Verily, this is the certain truth.
96. Therefore, glorify the name of your Lord, the Tremendous. (56: 57 – 96)

The following section of the Sura deals with the fundamentals of the doctrine. However, the emphasis is placed on the principles of the doctrine that are related to the resurrection. The verses exhibit the characteristics of the style of the Quran in addressing the initial natural disposition of humankind and how it explains the axioms of faith using simple but logical arguments. The Quran turns the familiar settings and the ordinary events in the lives of people into major cosmic phenomenon; through which divine laws are explained. Then these laws are used to form a universal and comprehensive doctrine that controls the whole universe. This doctrine becomes the divine project which organizes the lives of the believers and energizes their hearts and souls.

The way which the Quran uses in addressing the initial natural disposition of humankind provides the proof that the Quran is God's revelation. The methodology used in composing the Quran is exactly the same methodology used in the creation of the universe. Very simple and elementary components were combined together to create the highly complex universe. Similarly, the Quran uses simple and elementary observations which are familiar to people in building up the most sophisticated religious doctrine. Everyone lives on earth - whether he lives in a city, a village, or in a cave - has seen plants growing, babies being born, water flowing, and fires burning. These are the elements that the Quran uses to build up the doctrine. These elementary observations are also a witness of the most significant cosmic realities and divine secrets.

The verses in this section start with concept of the resurrection, "We have created you, so why do you not believe? Have you seen that which you emit? Is it you who create it, or are We the Creators?" People have been created and are continuously being created; no one can deny this fact. The role of the human being in the creation is simply for the male to place his sperm inside the womb of the female. God transforms this tiny drop of water into a fully fashioned human being. We do not know how does this happen, but it happens every day in front of our eyes. The end is not less miraculous than the beginning, "We have decreed death to be your common lot, and We are not to be frustrated. In order that We may bring in your place the likes of you and make you grow into what you do not know. And you certainly know already the first creation; why then do you not remember?" Every one dies. No one will escape death. However, we do not know how it happens. God is capable of replacing us with new people, if He wills.

The second example is the familiar scene of planting seeds, "Have you seen that which you sow? Is it you who make it to grow, or are We the growers? If We willed, We verily could make it chaff, then you would not cease to lament?" The seed which is sown by a human being, grows into a tree by the will of God. No one interferes in the process. You hear people say, "We planted." All what they did is sowing the seed. The miracle of the transformation of a tiny seed into a full blown plant is God's work. God is capable of destroying it, if He so willed. If the plant is destroyed somehow, they still do not recognize God's role. Instead, they lament, "(Saying), 'We are indeed left with debts; rather, we are deprived.'"

Another familiar scene in our daily life, "Have you considered the water which you drink? Is it you who send it down from the raincloud, or are We the senders? If We willed, We verily could make it bitter. Why then, you are not grateful?" Water plays a major role in the continuance of life on earth. What role does the human being play in making this water? It is God who sends down water from the sky. God could have very well made it bitter rather being fresh.

Still another familiar example, "Have you considered the fire which you ignite; Was it you who produced its trees, or are We the producers? We have made it a reminder and a provision for the travelers." The discovery of fire was a milestone in the history of humankind. But now we take it for granted. Human beings can light fires, but who created the tree that can be ignited to provide the fire? The fire we deal with in our daily life, is a reminder of the bigger fire of the Day of Judgment. Having presented these signs, it is appropriate to end this section by Glorifying God's name who created these miracles, "Therefore glorify the name of your Lord, the Tremendous."

The next section starts with an oath, an oath by the positions of the stars, "I swear by the positions of the stars; that is verily a tremendous oath, if you only knew; most surely it is a noble Quran, in a book that is well-protected. None shall touch it except the purified ones. A revelation from the Lord of the worlds." Those who lived at the time during which the Quran was being revealed did not know the significance of the positions of the stars. So, they were told that this is a tremendous oath. Today we know more about this. The scientists of astronomy tell us that the universe has billions of planets and stars. Each one has its own orbit and gravity. It is almost impossible for two stars to collide with each other because they were positioned in the universe with great accuracy and deliberations. This shows how tremendous this oath is. So what is the oath about? The oath emphasizes the authenticity of the Quran. It has not been written by a crazy person or a magician. It is a noble Quran; noble in itself, noble because it came from a noble source, and noble because of the noble directions it sets. This Book is also protected; only to be touched by those who are pure. The Quran could not be touched by Satan. This statement addressed the claim that the idolaters of Quraish made that the Quran is Satan's revelation to Prophet Muhammad (PBUH). This is re-emphasized by the statement, "A revelation from the Lord of the worlds."

The last section of the Sura depicts the scene of a person on death bed, "Do you then hold this discourse in contempt? And you have made it your livelihood that you should declare it false? Then why when (the soul of the dying man) reaches the throat, and you are, at that time, looking on, but We are nearer to him than you, and yet you do not see, then why do you not, if you are exempt from (future) account, bring it back, if you are truthful?" You deny the Quran and you are doubtful of the Hereafter and all what you are going to get from this life is the fact that you rejected the Quran. What will you do then, when a person is on death bed? A person is dying and you are watching helplessly unable to bring him back to life. But God is nearer to him than you. So, if you doubt the veracity of the Hereafter, why cannot you bring him back to life?

The following verses depict scenes of the end of members of each of the three categories mentioned earlier in the Sura, "Thus if he was of those who are brought near (to God), then (for him) happiness and bounty and a garden of bliss. And if he was of those on the right, (For him is the salutation), 'Peace be to you,' from those on the right. And if he is one of the rejecters, the erring ones, then the welcome will be boiling water; and burning in Hell-Fire." As the soul leaves the body it sees what is waiting for it. Those who are brought near to God will have happiness and bounty and a garden of bliss. Those who are on the right will be greeted by their companions with a greeting of peace. The ones on the left will reside in Hell fire. This is the certain truth so, "glorify the name of your Lord, the Tremendous."

Sura 57: Al-Hadid (The Iron)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 15:

1. All that is in the heavens and the earth glorifies God; and He is the Eminent, the Wise.
2. To Him belongs the dominion of the heavens and the earth. It is He who gives life and causes death; and He has power over all things.
3. He is the First and the Last, the Outward and the Inward; and He has full knowledge of all things.
4. It is He who created the heavens and the earth in six days, and then established Himself on the Throne (of Authority). He knows what enters into the earth and what emerges from it, what comes down from heaven and what ascends to it. And He is with you wherever you may be. And God is All-Seeing of all what you do.
5. To Him belongs the dominion of the heavens and the earth; and all the affairs are brought back to God.
6. He merges night into day, and He merges day into night; and He has full knowledge of the secrets of the hearts.
7. Believe in God and His Messenger, and spend out of that which He has made you its trustees; and those of you who believe and spend shall have a great reward.
8. Why you do not believe in God while the Messenger calls on you to believe in your Lord, and indeed He has made a covenant with you if you are believers.
9. It is He who sends down clear revelations to His servant that He may bring you out of darkness into light. God is the All- Pitying, the Giver of Mercy.
10. And why you do not spend in the cause of God? While to God belongs the inheritance of the heavens and the earth. Not equal among you are those who spent and fought, before the victory, (with those who did so later). Those are higher in rank than those who spent and fought afterwards. But to all has God promised a goodly (reward). And God is Totally-Aware of all that you do.
11. Who is he who will lend God a goodly loan? God will double it for him and he shall have a generous reward.
12. On the day when you (Muhammad) will see the believers, men and women, their light shining forth before them and on their right hands, (and will hear it said to them), "Glad news for you this day: Gardens underneath which rivers flow, wherein you are immortal." That is the supreme triumph.
13. On the day when the hypocrite men and the hypocrite women will say to those who believed, "Look at us that we may acquire some of your light. It will be said, "Go back and seek light." Then they will be separated by a wall that has a gate, the inner side of it contains mercy, while on the outer side there will be torment.
14. They will call them (saying), "Were we not with you?" They will say, "Yes, but you tempted one another, and hesitated, and doubted, and vain desires beguiled you till the ordinance of God came to pass; and the deceiver deceived you concerning God.
15. This day no ransom will be accepted from you or from the disbelievers. Your abode is the Fire. That is your patron, and evil is the destination. (57: 1 – 15)

This Sura presents a call to the Muslim nation to purify its faith and dedicate itself to the sake of God. The hearts, the thoughts, and the feelings should be fully dedicated to the cause of God. The Muslim nation is asked to spare neither wealth nor lives in its strive for the sake of God. This can only happen when the nation adopts the divine values and standards. This is the only way for the nation to be a Godly nation living on earth; a nation whose hearts truly recognize the truth of God so it can connect directly with Him.

It seems also that the Sura was dealing with issues related to the life of the Muslim community during the period between the fourth year after the migration from Mecca to Medina till after the time of the opening of Mecca. During this time a large number of people accepted Islam. These people did not have the understanding of Islam and the depth of faith that the early Muslims had. This group found it difficult to contribute financially to support the Muslim community as a whole.

In addition, there was also a group of opportunistic hypocrites who accepted Islam simply because they saw that Islam was gaining in strength and it was beneficial for them to adopt Islam. They wanted to enjoy the material benefits that the new faith may provide without being fully committed to its values.

The last group that the Sura alludes to is the Christians and Jews who were still living in the Arabian Peninsula.

The Sura starts with the opening statement that shakes the hearts, “All that is in the heavens and the earth glorifies God; and He is the Eminent, the Wise.” The whole universe glorifies God in unison. The praise of God is heard by each heart open to guidance. We have no way of knowing how does the universe glorify God, so we accept the statement as it is given without trying to explain its meaning because this is part of the unseen. The verses of the Quran are quite clear about the ability of God’s creation to glorify Him, “Do you not see that God is exalted by whoever is within the heavens and the earth and by the birds with wings spread? Each of them has known its means of prayer and exalting God.” (24: 41) “Do not you see that to God prostrates whoever is in the heavens and whoever is on the earth and the sun, the moon, the stars, the mountains, the trees, the moving creatures and many people?” (22: 18)

God is the owner of the heavens and earth, “To Him belongs the dominion of the heavens and the earth. It is He who gives life and causes death; and He has power over all things.” He is the sole controller of the universe. He gives life and causes death and He has infinite and absolute power over everything.

Nothing came before Him and nothing will outlast Him. There is nothing above Him and there is nothing behind Him. The attributes of being the First and the Last exhaust the entire time and the attributes of being the Outward and the Inward exhaust the entire space, “He is the First and the Last, the Outward and the Inward; and He has full knowledge of all things.” God is Omniscient, He knows everything. Once the heart recognizes and understands the implications of these realities, then that heart will not care about anything in the universe except God.

The following verse reminds us with the facts of the creation of the universe, “It is He who created the heavens and the earth in six days, and then established Himself on the Throne (of Authority). He knows what enters into the earth and what emerges from it, what comes down from heaven and what ascends to it. And He is with you wherever you may be. And God is All-Seeing of all what you do.” These facts address the human heart and remind it that the Creator who created it also created the whole universe. Humankind is an integral part of the creation of God. God created humankind to understand the universe and to live in harmony with it. Only God knows the true meaning of the six days, the throne, and how God knows everything including what the chests harbor. God’s knowledge encompassed everything. God is with us wherever we are. This is a true and literal statement; this is not an allegory. This fact has dual consequences. It is an amazing reality that God sees and knows everything we think of or do. It is also heartwarming to feel that we are always in the company of God. These two feelings are bound to keep us always cautious not do something that displeases God.

“To Him belongs the dominion of the heavens and the earth; and all the affairs are brought back to God.” The verse reminds the human being of the power of God, in addition it emphasizes that everything will ultimately be referred to God. There is no escape from God; this is another incentive for the hearts to remain sincere on the path of God.

Another cosmic phenomenon is mentioned, “He merges night into day, and He merges day into night; and He has full knowledge of the secrets of the hearts.” This is a perpetual phenomenon that motivates the hearts to reflect on the power of God. The phenomenon occurs in a subtle way, the same way that God has the full knowledge of everything including the secrets of the hearts.

“Believe in God and His Messenger, and spend out of that which He has made you its trustees; and those of you who believe and spend shall have a great reward. Why you do not believe in God while the Messenger calls on you to believe in your Lord, and indeed He has made a covenant with you if you are believers. It is He who sends down clear revelations to His servant that He may bring you out of darkness into light. God is the All-Pitying, the Giver of Mercy.” The verse calls on the believers to believe in God and His Messenger (PBUH). So, the call is for the believers to understand the true meaning and implications of the belief in God and His Messenger (PBUH) including the willingness to spend out of one’s wealth in the sake of God. The verse also reminds the believers that the wealth they have is in reality God’s wealth. God appointed people as trustees on the wealth He bestowed upon them. They should be ashamed if they decline the call to spend out of this wealth in the sake of God. And what prevented them from being true believers? These people saw the Prophet (PBUH) and talked to him. This was a great blessing. The Prophet (PBUH) was there reciting God’s verses to them and guiding them to the straight path. It has been reported by Al-Bukhari that, “The Prophet (PBUH) asked his companions, ‘Who among the believers are worthy of your praise?’ They said, ‘The angels.’ He said, ‘But why it would be difficult for the angels to believe while they are in the presence of their Lord?’ The companions said, ‘Then the prophets.’ The Prophet (PBUH) said, ‘But why it would be difficult for the prophets to believe while they receive the revelations from their Lord?’ They said, ‘Then we are worthy of the praise.’ The Prophet (PBUH) said, ‘But why it would be difficult for you to believe while I live among you? The believers who are truly worthy of praise are those who will come later on and all what they will get is a Book to read and they will believe in what the Book says.’”

The verses turn from the discussion of true belief to the discussion of the issue of spending in the way of God, “And why you do not spend in the cause of God? To God belongs the inheritance of the heavens and the earth.” To God belongs everything, the money they have belongs to God and they were only made trustees over that money. In the end, everything will go back to God.

Those who spent and fought when the Muslims were only a persecuted few, offered great sacrifices. They were only motivated by their true faith. They did not expect a worldly gain at that time because none was even probable, “Not equal among you are those who spent and fought, before the victory, (with those who did so later). Those are higher in rank than those who spent and fought afterwards. But to all has God promised a goodly (reward). And God is Totally-Aware of all that you do.” However, God promised to reward each one of them a generous reward. They all did good deeds and God is Totally-Aware of what everyone did.

The verses then offer another incentive for spending in the way of God, “Who is he who will lend God a goodly loan? God will double it for him and he shall have a generous reward.” This is very emotive call. Imagine yourself giving God a loan. Not only the repayment of the loan is guaranteed but also a generous reward is promised.

“On the Day when you (Muhammad) will see the believers, men and women, their light shining forth before them and on their right hands, (and will hear it said to them), ‘Glad news for you this Day: Gardens underneath which rivers flow, wherein you are immortal.’ That is the supreme triumph.” This is a scene that depicts each and every believer, man or woman, walking with a light preceding them and they will be greeted with welcoming remarks. Juxtaposed with this scene is the scene of the hypocrites, men and women, who will be walking in the dark, confused. They will feel neglected and humiliated, “On the Day when the hypocrite men and the hypocrite women will say to those who believed, ‘Look at us that we may acquire some of your light.’ It will be said, ‘Go back and seek light.’ Then they will be separated by a wall that has a gate, the inner side of it contains mercy, while on the outer side there will be torment.” They will want a light similar to the light given to the believers but they will be told in a sarcastic way, “Go back and seek light.” This statement may have meant the following: the believers gained this light through their work in the worldly life; so, if you want similar light you should go back to the worldly life, if you can, and do the work through which you can earn similar light. A wall then separates the two groups; the believers are on one side, while the hypocrites are on the other side of the wall.

From behind the wall, the hypocrites will call upon the believers, “They will call them (saying), ‘Were we not with you?’” The believers will respond to the hypocrites explaining what happened, “They will say, ‘Yes, but you tempted one another, and hesitated, and doubted, and vain desires beguiled you till the ordinance of God came to pass; and the deceiver deceived you concerning God; this day no ransom will be accepted from you or from the disbelievers. Your abode is the Fire.’ That is your patron, and evil is the destination.”

Verses 16 to 29:

16. Has not the time arrived for the believers to humble their hearts to the remembrance of God and the Truth which has been revealed, and that they should not become like those who were given the Scripture before, but long ages passed over them and their hearts grew hard? Many among them were transgressors.
17. Know that God gives life to the earth after its death. We have made clear Our revelations for you, that haply you may understand.
18. Indeed, those who give in charity, men and women, and lend God a goodly loan, it will be doubled for them, and theirs will be a noble reward.
19. And those who believe in God and His Messengers, they are the supporters of the truth. And the martyrs are with their Lord; they have their reward and their light; while as for those who disbelieve and deny Our revelations, they are the owners of the Hell-fire.
20. Know that the life of the world is only play, and idle talk, and pageantry, and boasting among you, and rivalry in respect of wealth and children; as the likeness of vegetation after rain, whereof the growth is pleasing to the tillers, but afterward it dries up and you see it turning yellow, then it becomes straw. And in the Hereafter there is grievous torment, and (also) forgiveness from God and His good pleasure, whereas the life of this world is but a matter of illusion.
21. Race one with another for forgiveness from your Lord and a garden its breadth is as the breadth of the heavens and the earth, which is in store for those who believe in God and His Messengers. Such is the bounty of God, which He bestows upon whom He wills, and God is the Possessor of immense bounty.
22. No misfortune befalls on the earth or on your own souls, but it is in a book before We bring it into existence; surely that is easy for God.
23. In order that you may not grieve for what has escaped you, nor exult over favors bestowed upon you. God does not love any vainglorious boaster;
24. Those who are stingy and who enjoin upon the people avarice. And whosoever turns away, God is the Rich, the Praised.
25. We verily sent Our Messengers with clear proofs, and revealed with them the Scripture and the balance, that humankind may maintain (their affairs) in justice; and We brought down iron, wherein is mighty power and (many) uses for humankind, and that God may know him who supports Him and His Messengers, though unseen; God is the Strong, the Eminent.
26. And We sent Noah and Abraham, and established prophet-hood and the Scripture in their progeny; and among them is he who is guided, but many of them became transgressors.
27. Then We sent following in their footsteps Our Messengers, and followed with Jesus the son of Mary, and gave him the Gospel. And We placed in the hearts of those who followed him compassion and Mercy. But the Monasticism which they invented for themselves, We did not prescribe for them except (that they did so) seeking the good pleasure of God; but they did not observe it with due observance. So We bestowed, on those among them who believed, their (due) reward, but many of them are transgressors.
28. Believers, be conscious of God and believe in His Messenger. He will give you twofold of His mercy and will appoint for you a light with which you shall walk, and will forgive you; God is All-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy.

29. So that the People of the Book may know that they have no power whatsoever over the Grace of God and that (His) Grace is (entirely) in His hand, to bestow it on whomsoever He wills. For God is the Possessor of immense grace. (57: 16 – 29)

“Has not the time arrived for the believers to humble their hearts to the remembrance of God and the Truth which has been revealed, and that they should not become like those were given the Scripture before, but long ages passed over them and their hearts grew hard? Many among them were transgressors. Know that God gives life to the earth after its death. We have made clear Our revelations for you, that haply you may understand.” This is a mild reproach for the believers’ hesitation in responding favorably to the call that they were chosen by the grace of God to receive. It is made clear that the reproach originated in God’s love of the believers and its objective is to motivate them to the full submission worthy of God. The reproach is then followed by an outline of the consequences of the procrastination in responding favorably to God’s call. The example of peoples who received scriptures before and procrastinated is given. Procrastination and hesitation generate a layer of rust that covers the heart and isolates it from connecting to God. The believers should be always cautious of this ailment. However, the door to God is always open. God revives the hearts as He revives the barren soil.

The narrative goes back to the reward awaiting those who spend in the way of God, “Indeed, those who give in charity, men and women, and lend God a goodly loan, it will be doubled for them, and theirs will be a noble reward.” The verse outlines the basis of the relationship between the poor and the rich. The rich are not doing the poor a favor by giving them charity. They are actually doing themselves a favor because they are given the status of those who are lending God money. This in itself is a status that many aspire to. In addition, not only the payment of their loan is guaranteed but they will also get a generous reward.

Another high status, that is achievable for those who work for it, is the status of the supporters of the truth, “And those who believe in God and His Messengers, they are the supporters of the truth.” It is a high ranking status but easy to attain. The way to earn this status is to believe in God and His Messengers. A third high ranking status is awarded to the martyrs who sacrifice their lives in God’s cause, “And the martyrs are with their Lord; they have their reward and their light.” They will be given a status that brings them closer to God. On the other side of these high ranking places we find the abasement which is waiting for the disbelievers, “as for those who disbelieve and deny Our revelations, they are the owners of Hell-fire.”

The following verses show how little is the sacrifice that the believers are asked to perform in the way of God, “Know that the life of the world is only play, and idle talk, and pageantry, and boasting among you, and rivalry in respect of wealth and children; as the likeness of vegetation after rain, whereof the growth is pleasing to the tillers, but afterward it dries up and you see it turning yellow, then it becomes straw. And in the Hereafter there is grievous torment, and (also) forgiveness from God and His good pleasure, whereas the life of this world is but a matter of illusion.” The life of this world is a fleeting opportunity; what one gets out of it is worthless in comparison with what one can get in the Hereafter. This life is only play, idle talk, pageantry, boasting, and rivalry. These are all fleeting pleasures. It is like a seed that is sown and grows into a beautiful plant, the plant gets old, turns yellow then it withers and becomes dust. The Hereafter, on the other hand is permanent. That is why the life of this world is merely an illusion.

Therefore, the believers should race in the true field, the field which leads to the Hereafter, “Race one with another for forgiveness from your Lord and a garden its breadth is as the breadth of the heavens and the earth, which is in store for those who believe in God and His Messengers. Such is the bounty of God, which He bestows upon whom He wills, and God is the Possessor of immense bounty.” The prize of this race is a paradise the width of which is as long as the heavens and earth. This is God’s bounty which He bestows on whomsoever He wills.

The true believers should recognize that the field of activities that they should be concerned with is far wider than the life of this world.

“No misfortune befalls on the earth nor in your own souls, but it is in a book before We bring it into existence; surely that is easy for God. In order that you may not grieve for what has escaped you, nor exult over favors bestowed upon you. God does not love any vainglorious boaster. Everything that happens in this universe is meticulously planned, nothing happens accidentally. All events that occurred since the beginning of the creation till the end of time have been recorded before the creation started. God’s knowledge is comprehensive and it is not bound by time or space. The real benefit of understanding this reality is the security and serenity that this understanding brings to the human heart. One should accept whatever happens whether good or bad, “In order that you may not grieve for what has escaped you, nor exult over favors bestowed upon you.” People grieve when they are afflicted and exult when they have good fortune. The verse tempers these extreme feelings. It is neither possible nor desirable for people to completely suppress their feelings but we are required to be moderate in expressing these feelings and to make these events a reason for becoming closer to God. Ekrimah (RA) has been quoted to have said, “Everyone experiences happiness and sadness but one should express happiness by being grateful to God and express sadness by being perseverant.” People who do not realize that the wealth they have is a bounty from God do not recognize the benefit of spending in the way of God, they become stingy and they motivate others to be stingy, “Who are stingy and who enjoin upon the people avarice. And whosoever turns away, God is the Rich, the Praised.”

The following verses conclude the Sura by exploring the history of guidance which was brought to humankind by a number of God’s Messengers, “We verily sent Our Messengers with clear proofs, and revealed with them the Scripture and the balance, that humankind may maintain (their affairs) in justice; and We brought down iron, wherein is mighty power and (many) uses for humankind, and that God may know him who supports Him and His Messengers, though unseen; God is the Strong, the Eminent. And We sent Noah and Abraham, and established prophet-hood and the Scripture in their progeny; and among them is he who is guided, but many of them became transgressors. Then We sent following in their footsteps Our Messengers, and followed with Jesus the son of Mary, and gave him the Gospel. And We placed in the hearts of those who followed him compassion and Mercy. But the monasticism which they invented for themselves, We did not prescribe for them except (that they did so) seeking the good pleasure of God; but they did not observe it with due observance. So We bestowed, on those among them who believed, their (due) reward, but many of them are transgressors.” God sent humankind one Message. It came down through many messengers. The Message included the balance that maintains people’s life. The balance provides the standards, the norms, and the values that guarantee a balanced way of life for all people. It establishes justice and fairness. God sent down iron for humankind’s use. The word “sent down” used here points to the power of God in creating whatever He wills. The verses also point to the family of prophets which started with Noah (PBUH) and included many other prophets from the progeny of Noah (PBUH) and Abraham (PBUH). However, there were others in the progeny of these prophets who were transgressors. Then God sent Jesus (PBUH). Those who followed him were given a remarkable gift, “And We placed in the hearts of those who followed him compassion and Mercy.” Some of them chose voluntarily to espouse monasticism, “We did not prescribe for them except (that they did so) seeking the good pleasure of God; but that they did not observe it with due observance.” As time progressed they were not able to fulfill its traditions sincerely and became transgressors.

A final call was issued to the believers, “Believers, be conscious of God and believe in His Messenger. He will give you twofold of His mercy and will appoint for you a light with which you shall walk, and will forgive you; God is All-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy. So that the People of the Book may know that they have no power whatsoever over the Grace of God and that (His) Grace is (entirely) in His hand, to bestow it on whomsoever He wills. For God is of the Possessor of immense grace.” This is a reminder to the believers to pursue the true meaning of faith to receive double the mercy from God, to earn the light that will illuminate their way, and to gain God’s forgiveness. God’s bounty is immense and it is not exclusive for a group over others. God bestows His grace on whosoever He wills.

Sura 58: Al-Mujadila (She who Disputes)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 22:

1. God has indeed heard the statement of the woman who pleads with you concerning her husband and complains to God. And God hears your dialogue. God is All-Hearing, All-Seeing.
2. Those of you who legally estrange their wives (saying to them you are like the back of my mother -Zihar) they are not their mothers. None can be their mothers except those who gave birth to them. And they indeed utter an ill word and a lie. And God is Effacer of Sins, Giver of Mercy.
3. Those of you who estrange their wives by equating them with their mothers, then wish to go back on the words they uttered, (the penalty) in this case (is) the freeing of a slave before they touch one another. This is what you commanded to do; and God is Totally-Aware of what you do.
4. But whoever does not have the means, let him fast for two successive months before they touch each other; as for him who is not able, let him feed sixty needy persons; that is in order that you may have faith in God and His Messenger, and these are God's limits, and the disbelievers shall have a painful torment.
5. Those who controvert God and His Messenger will be abased as those before them were abased; and We have sent down clear verses, and for the disbelievers is an abasing torment.
6. On the day that God will raise them all up and inform them of what they did. God has kept account of it while they forgot it. And God is Witness over all things.
7. Do you not see that God knows (all) that is in the heavens and on earth? There is not a secret consultation between three, but He makes the fourth among them; nor between five but He makes the sixth; nor between fewer nor more, but He is in their midst, wherever they may be. Then, on the Day of Resurrection, He will inform them of what they did. God knows all things.
8. Do you not see those who were forbidden from engaging in secret counsels yet they revert to that which they were forbidden (to do)? And they hold secret counsels among themselves to commit sin, aggression, and disobedience to the Messenger. And when they come to you they greet you with a greeting which God does not use to greet you, and say within themselves, "Why does not God torment us for what we say?" Hell will suffice for them; in which they will burn; a wretched destination.
9. Believers, when you hold secret confabulations, do not do it for committing sin, aggression, and disobedience to the Messenger; but do it for righteousness and piety; and be conscious of God, to Whom you shall be gathered.
10. Secret confabulations are only (inspired) by Satan, in order that he may cause grief to the believers; but he cannot harm them in the least, except as God permits; and in God let the believers put their trust.
11. Believers, when you are told to make room in the assemblies, (spread out and) make room; God will make (ample) room for you. And when you are told to rise up, rise up.

- God will raise up those of you who believe and who have knowledge to higher ranks. And God is Totally-Aware of what you do.*
12. Believers, when you consult the Messenger in private, spend something in charity before your private consultation. That is better and purer for you. But if you do not have the means, then God is All-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy.
  13. Were you reluctant to give in charity before your consultation? So when you do not do it and God has accepted your repentance, then establish prayer and pay the poor-dues and obey God and His Messenger; and God is Totally-Aware of what you do.
  14. Do you not see those who befriend people with whom God is angry? They are neither of you nor of them, and they swear a false oath knowingly.
  15. God has prepared for them a severe torment. Evil indeed are their deeds.
  16. They made their oaths to serve as a cover and they averted people from the path of God; therefore, they shall have humiliating torment.
  17. Their wealth and their children will avail them nothing against God. Such are the rightful owners of the Fire. They will abide therein forever.
  18. On the day when God will raise them up all together, they will swear to Him as they (now) swear to you, and they will fancy that they have some standing. They are indeed liars.
  19. Satan has overcome them, so he made them forget the remembrance of God. They are the party of Satan. Indeed, those of the party of Satan are the losers.
  20. Those who controvert God and His messenger, they will be among the most abased.
  21. God has decreed that, "It is I and My messengers who must prevail." God is Strong, Eminent.
  22. You will not find any people who believe in God and the Last Day loving those who controvert God and His Messenger, even though they may be their fathers or their sons, or their brothers, or their kindred. For such He has written faith in their hearts, and strengthened them with a spirit from Himself. And He will admit them to Gardens beneath which rivers flow, to dwell therein (forever). God will be well pleased with them, and they with Him. They are the party of God. Indeed, those in the party of God are the successful? (58: 1 – 22)

This Sura and most of the Suras in this part of the Quran narrate some of the events that occurred during the early years of the formation of the Muslim community in Medina. The Suras include directions, guidelines, and commands which played a major role in training the fledgling society to play the role which God assigned them to perform on this earth. This nation was trained to lead an Islamic way of life and to become a model for such a way of life for the whole world. It is a humongous role that requires a long and arduous training program.

The Sura starts with an amazing example of the connection between heaven and earth. The example shows the way the Quran dealt with matters of everyday life to rectify people's crooked behavior and mistakes, "God has indeed heard the statement of the woman who pleads with you concerning her husband and complains to God. And God hears your dialogue. God is All-Hearing, All-Seeing." This is an example which shows how heaven interfered to resolve a dispute that engulfed a simple poor family and to render God's verdict. God heard the voice of the woman who was arguing with the Prophet (PBUH) and complaining to God; while 'Aisha (RA), who was sitting in the adjacent room at the time, was not able to hear what the woman was saying. The verses paint an image which fills the heart with the feelings of God's nearness, mercy, and kindness.

The dispute which is the subject of this Sura is about an old tradition that the Arabs used to practice before Islam. It is an unfair and abusive tradition. Up until the occurrence of this incident, there was no Islamic ruling regarding this tradition. Before Islam when a man got very angry at his wife, he would say to her, "You are like the back of my mother." Once he uttered these words the wife becomes legally estranged from her husband, however, she would not be considered divorced. So, the wife lives in a state of limbo. Normal marital relationship between the couple becomes forbidden but in the mean time she was not considered a divorcee. She cannot lead the life of a married woman nor can she leave her husband and remarry again. This was one of the kinds of abuse which women suffered before Islam. Khawlah bint Tha'labah (RA) was married to Awas ibn Al-Samet (RA). Awas (RA) grew old and became impatient and irritant. One day, he became angry with his wife and said to her, "You are like the back of my mother." He then went to meet with his friends, came after a while, and wanted to have sex with his wife. She pushed him away. She said, "I would not have sex with you until God and His Messenger (PBUH) settle this matter between us." He tried hard to get to her but she was able to push him away and she went to ask the Prophet (PBUH) for God's verdict regarding this situation. She complained to the Prophet (PBUH) about what her husband had done. At that time there was no rule in Islam regarding this situation. The Prophet (PBUH) said, "Khawlah, your husband is an elderly person so be conscious of God regarding him." The argument continued until the verses outlining the penalty for committing this sin has been revealed.

"Those of you who legally estrange their wives (saying to them you are like the back of my mother -Zihar) they are not their mothers. None can be their mothers except those who gave birth to them. And they indeed utter an ill word and a lie. And God is Effacer of Sins, Giver of Mercy." This verse deals with the root of the problem. Words uttered by an angry husband do not change the reality which God created: the wife cannot become a mother simply by uttering these words. A mother is the one who gave birth to the person. These are evil words. God will forgive the sins that were committed before this verdict has been issued.

The process for redressing the wrong committed is then outlined, "Those of you who legally estrange their wives by equating them with their mothers, then wish to go back on the words they uttered, (the penalty) in this case (is) the freeing of a slave before they touch one another. This is what you commanded to do; and God is Totally-Aware of what you do." The first act of expiation is to free a slave. God made acts of expiation for sins an element in the scheme of freeing those who were enslaved. Acts of expiation is a way to remind people to abstain from committing this wrong. Another incentive for abstaining from sin is to remember that God is Totally-Aware of what we do. However, for those who do not have the means to free a slave then, "let him fast for two successive months before they touch each other; as for him who is not able, let him feed sixty needy persons; that is in order that you may have faith in God and His Messenger, and these are God's limits, and the disbelievers shall have a painful torment." Applying God's commands and injunctions in matters of daily life is an expression of the submission to God and the obedience of His Messenger (PBUH). Those who transgress the boundaries set by God's commands are considered among the disbelievers. They will suffer a painful punishment.

Ending the previous verse by the statement, “and the disbelievers shall have a painful torment,” leads to the following verse which mentions those who controvert God and His Messenger (PBUH), “Those who controvert God and His messenger will be abased as those before them were abased; and We have sent down clear verses, and for the disbelievers is humiliating torment.” Those who controvert God and His Messenger (PBUH) will be abased exactly as people from the previous generations who committed the same sin were abased. God has explained this in clear verses revealed to His Prophet (PBUH). This was their punishment in this life and in the Hereafter, they will be accountable for what they did, “On the day that God will raise them all up and inform them of what they did. God has kept account of it while they forgot it. And God is Witness over all things.” They may have forgotten what they did, but it will be all kept in record.

“Do you not see that God knows (all) that is in the heavens and on earth? There is not a secret confabulation between three, but He makes the fourth among them; nor between five but He makes the sixth; nor between fewer nor more, but He is in their midst, wherever they may be. Then, on the Day of Resurrection, He will inform them of what they did. God knows all things.” The verse reiterates the comprehensiveness and universality of God's knowledge. Not only He knows what is in the heavens and what is on earth, but He also knows what is in the hearts of people. The statement touches the hearts of the believers. Its implications make the hearts tremble. It evokes the warm and secure feelings of being always in the presence of God. On the other hand, it warns that God knows all what is being said in secret. Nothing can be hidden from God. God knows everything.

“Do you not see those who were forbidden from engaging in secret counsels, yet they revert to that which they were forbidden (to do)? And they hold secret counsels among themselves to commit sin, aggression, and disobedience to the Messenger. And when they come to you they greet you with a greeting which God does not use to greet you, and say within themselves, “Why does not God torment us for what we say?” Hell will suffice for them; in which they will burn; a wretched destination.” The verse shows that the Messenger's (PBUH) plan in dealing with the hypocrites was to advise them to abide by goodness and righteousness in their behavior. However, they continued to conspire with some of the Jewish tribes against the Muslims. They even would greet the Prophet (PBUH) with a twisted tongue in a subtle way to denigrate the Prophet (PBUH). They were saying to themselves that had Muhammad (PBUH) been a true prophet, God would have punished them for their abuse. The verse reiterated God's knowledge of everything to send a message to the hypocrites that God is aware of their conspiracy. God has decreed that their destination will be Hell fire.

It seems that there were some Muslims who did not yet fully embrace the Islamic behavior and they used to get together to have secret confabulations. The following verse rebuked them for doing this, “Believers, when you hold secret confabulations, do not do it for committing sin, aggression, and disobedience to the Messenger; but do it for righteousness and piety; and be conscious of God, to Whom you shall be gathered.” The verse still addressed these Muslims with the endearing term, “Believers,” to teach them the proper etiquette of dealing with matters that need to be discussed. Their aim should be to hold these discussions in an atmosphere which is conducive to righteousness and piety. They should remember that they will be accountable to God.

Secret confabulation is motivated by Satan and creates suspicion and doubt. This is Satan’s way to create animosity and disunity among Muslims, however Satan cannot harm anybody except by the leave of God, “Secret counsels are only (inspired) by Satan, in order that he may cause grief to the believers; but he cannot harm them in the least, except as God permits; and in God let the believers put their trust.” The Prophet (PBUH) has been quoted to have said, “If you were a group of three people then no two of you should hold secret counsel leaving the third person out of the conversation.” This is the proper etiquette. However, sometimes it would be beneficial to hold secret consultations, if holding such consultation in public would cause harm to certain people.

Another lesson in the etiquette of general meetings is given, “Believers, when you are told to make room in the assemblies, (spread out and) make room; God will make (ample) room for you. And when you are told to rise up, rise up. God will raise up those of you who believe and who have knowledge to higher ranks. And God is Totally-Aware of what you do.” The verse exhorts Muslims to welcome those who come late to the meeting and to make room for them so they can sit and participate in the meeting. God promises those who make room for their brothers a greater reward from Himself. Those who obey the Prophet (PBUH) when he commands them to leave are promised a greater reward, “God will raise up those of you who believe and who have knowledge to higher ranks.” The lesson is that faith teaches tolerance and knowledge teaches obedience.

“Believers, when you consult the Messenger in private, spend something in charity before your private consultation. That is better and purer for you. But if you do not have the means, then God is All-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy.” It was narrated that Imam Ali (RA) practiced this command. He used to pay a charity each time he wanted to consult with the Prophet (PBUH). However, some Muslims found this practice onerous. So, the verse came to remove this obligation, “Were you reluctant to give in charity before your consultation? So when you do not do it and God has accepted your repentance, then establish prayer and pay the poor-due and obey God and His Messenger; and God is Totally-Aware of what you do.” These verses provide lessons that teach the Muslims the proper etiquette.

The narrative turns to the hypocrites to warn them not to conspire with the Jewish tribes, “Do you not see those who befriend people with whom God is angry? They are neither of you nor of them, and they swear a false oath knowingly.” The strong condemnation of the hypocrites gives an indication of the grave danger they posed to the Muslim community in Medina. They superficially accepted Islam as a cover for their surreptitious activities to harm Muslims. But they will get their proper punishment, “God has prepared for them a severe torment. Evil indeed are their deeds. They made their oaths to serve as a cover and they averted people from the path of God; therefore, they shall have humiliating torment. Their wealth and their children will avail them nothing against God. Such are the rightful owners of the Fire. They will abide therein forever.” They will be humiliated on the Day of Judgment. They will swear to God, but God knows that they are liars, “On the day when God will raise them up all together, they will swear to Him as they (now) swear to you, and they will fancy that they have some standing. They are indeed liars.” Satan has overcome them and they became under his control, therefore they lost everything, “Satan has overcome them, so he made them forget the remembrance of God. They are the party of Satan. Indeed, those of the party of Satan are the losers.”

The hypocrites thought the support of the Jewish tribes will strengthen their status in Medina. They forgot that it is God who provides the true and genuine support, “Those who controvert God and His messenger, they will be among the most abased. God has decreed that, ‘It is I and My messengers who must prevail.’ God is Strong, Eminent.” This is the ultimate truth that will prevail; God and His Messengers must prevail. The believers may suffer and may be persecuted but ultimately they will be victors.

The following verse states a fundamental truth: only the love of God and His Messenger (PBUH) should fill the heart of a believer, “You will not find any people who believe in God and the Last Day loving those who controvert God and His Messenger, even though they may be their fathers or their sons, or their brothers, or their kindred. For such He has written faith in their hearts, and strengthened them with a spirit from Himself. And He will admit them to Gardens beneath which rivers flow, to dwell therein (forever). God will be well pleased with them, and they with Him. They are the party of God. Indeed, those in the party of God are the successful.” A believing heart cannot entertain two kinds of love at the same time. One cannot love God and in the meantime love those who oppose God. It is one or the other; even if those who oppose God were, “their fathers or their sons, or their brothers, or their kindred.” God has established faith in the hearts of those who love God and His Messenger (PBUH). He will be pleased with them and they will be pleased with Him. They are the members of the party of God. They are the successful ones.

Sura59: Al-Hashr (The Gathering)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 24:

1. All that is in the heavens and all that is in the earth glorifies God, and He is the Eminent, the Wise.
2. It is He who evicted those who disbelieved from among the People of the Scripture from their homes at the first gathering (of the forces). You did not think that they would get out. And they thought that their fortresses would protect them from God. But the (wrath of) God came to them from where they had not expected, and He cast terror into their hearts, so that they destroyed their dwellings by their own hands and the hands of the believers so learn a lesson, O you who have eyes.
3. And had it not been that God had decreed that they should be evicted, He would certainly have tormented them in this world; and in the Hereafter they shall (certainly) have the torment of the Fire.
4. That is because they opposed God and His Messenger; and if any one opposes God, verily God is severe in punishment.
5. Whatsoever palm-trees you cut down or leave standing on their roots, it was by God's leave, in order that He might confound the transgressors.
6. And that which God gave as spoil to His Messenger from them, you spurred neither a horse nor a camel, but God gives authority to His messengers against whom He pleases, and God has power over all things.
7. What God has bestowed on His Messenger (and taken away) from the people of the townships, it belongs to God, to His Messenger, and to kindred and orphans and the needy and the wayfarer; in order that it may not circulate perpetually among the wealthy among you. And whatsoever the Messenger gives you, take it; and whatsoever he forbids, abstain (from it). And remain conscious of God. God is severe in punishment.
8. (It is) for the poor migrants who have been driven out from their homes and their belongings, who seek bounty from God and help God and His Messenger. These are the truthful.
9. But those who before them, had homes (in Medina) and had adopted the faith – show their affection to those who migrated to them, and entertain no desire in their hearts for things given to the (latter), but give them preference over themselves, even though poverty was their (own lot). And those who are saved from the covetousness of their own souls; these are the successful.
10. And those who came after them say, "Our Lord, forgive us, and our brethren who came before us into the faith, and do not leave in our hearts rancor against those who have believed. Our Lord, You are indeed All-Pitying, Giver of Mercy."
11. Have you not seen the hypocrites say to their disbelieving brethren among the People of the Scripture? "If you are evicted, we too will go out with you, and we will never obey any one against you; and if you are attacked (in fight) we will help you." But God is witness that they are indeed liars.

12. If they are evicted, they will never go out with them; and if they are attacked (in fight), they will never help them; and if they do help them, they will turn their backs; and then they would not have been victorious.
13. Fear of you is more intense in their hearts than the fear of God. This is because they are people who do not understand.
14. They will not fight against you in a body save in fortified villages or from behind walls. Their enmity among themselves is very great. You think of them as a whole whereas their hearts are diverse. That is because they are a people who cannot reason.
15. Like those who shortly preceded them, they have tasted the evil result of their conduct; and (in the Hereafter there is) for them a painful torment.
16. Like Satan, when he says to the human being, "Disbelieve in God," but when he disbelieves in God, (Satan) says, "I disown you; I do fear God, the Lord of the Worlds."
17. And the consequence for both will be that they are in the Fire, therein abiding. This is the reward for the wrongdoers.
18. Believers, be conscious of God and let every soul look to what it has put forth for tomorrow. And remain conscious of God. God is Totally-Aware of what you do.
19. And do not be like those who forgot God; and He made them forget their own souls. Such are the transgressors.
20. Not equal are the companions of the fire and the companions of paradise. The companions of paradise, they are the successful.
21. Had We sent down this Quran on a mountain, verily, you would have seen it humble itself and rent asunder for fear of God. We cite these parables for the people that they may reflect.
22. He is God, there is no god other than Him; the Knower of the unseen and the seen. He is the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy.
23. He is God is, there is no god other than Him; the King, the Holy, the Flawless (the Source of Peace), the Faithful, the Guardian, the Eminent, the Compeller, the Supreme in Pride. Glorified He above all that they ascribe as partners (to Him).
24. He is God, the Creator, the Producer, the Fashioner. To Him belong the most beautiful names. Whatever is in the heavens and on earth glorifies Him, and He is the Eminent, the Wise. (59: 1 – 24)

This Sura was revealed during the fourth year of Hijra. It describes the events that led to the eviction of the Jewish tribe of Bani Al-Nadeer from Medina. It also describes the impact that these events had on the organization of the Muslim community. The narrative is delivered in the special style of Quran. We will first summarize the events that lead to the revelation of this Sura then we will discuss its interpretation.

The events of this story occurred in the beginning of the fourth year of Hijra just after the Muslims fought the idolaters of Mecca in the battle of Uhud. The story began when a Muslim man killed by mistake two non Muslim men. According to the traditions of the time, the Muslims had to pay the victims' tribe a ransom. The treaty that was agreed upon between the Muslims and the Jews when the Prophet (PBUH) migrated to Medina included an article which required the Muslims and the Jews to help each other in the payment of such ransoms. Since the Muslims were short of money at that time, the Prophet (PBUH) headed a delegation of ten of his companions to request the help of the tribe of Bani Al-Nadeer in paying the ransom. The Prophet (PBUH) and his companions were well received and the chiefs of Bani Al-Nadeer promised to help out. They requested the Prophet (PBUH) to wait until they have deliberated the matter with each other. However, their secret deliberations were not about offering the help that the Muslims requested but were about how to assassinate the Prophet (PBUH). Some of them thought that this is a golden opportunity to murder the Prophet (PBUH) and thus break up the Muslims. The Prophet (PBUH) was sitting on the ground with his back to the wall of a house. The idea of sending one of them to the roof of the house to throw a rock on the Prophet (PBUH) fomented in their heads. However, the Prophet (PBUH) received a revelation which alerted him to the conspiracy being conceived by the chiefs of the tribe of Bani Al-Nadeer. The Prophet (PBUH) stood up suddenly and left his companions without telling anyone where he was going and went back to Medina, thus foiling their conspiracy. The companions of the Prophet (PBUH) waited for some time for the Prophet (PBUH) to return but then realized that he had gone to Medina so they left and went back to Medina. War was the inevitable consequence for renegeing on the treaty. The Prophet (PBUH) led a Muslim army which struck a siege around the dwellings of the tribe of Bani Al-Nadeer. The Prophet (PBUH) gave them the choice either to abandon their dwellings and leave Medina taking with them their wealth and whatever they can carry of their property and belongings or stay and fight. The hypocrites of Medina under the leadership of Abd- Allah ibn Saloul urged the tribe of Bani Al-Nadeer not to leave and promised to support them in their fight. However, this was an empty promise. The siege continued for twenty six days, during which the Muslims burned down some of the palm trees which belonged to Bani Al-Nadeer but were outside their fortifications. The tribe of Bani Al- Nadeer eventually capitulated and accepted the terms that the Prophet (PBUH) offered them and they left their dwellings. Some of them settled in Khaiber and others moved to Syria. On their way out, the people of Bani Al-Nadeer destroyed the property and belongings which they could not carry with them rather than leave it intact for the Muslims to enjoy.

The Sura starts with glorifying God, “All that is in the heavens and all that is in the earth glorifies God, and He is the Eminent, the Wise.” The verse states the fact that everything in the universe glorifies God. God is the Eminent, the Wise. He has the power to destroy His enemy and support His servants.

Then the verses narrate the events of the story, “It is He who evicted those who disbelieved from among the People of the Scripture from their homes at the first gathering (of the forces). You did not think that they would get out. And they thought that their fortresses would protect them from God. But the (wrath of) God came to them from where they had not expected, and He cast terror into their hearts, so that they destroyed their dwellings by their own hands and the hands of the believers so learn a lesson, O you who have eyes.” The verse states clearly that God evicted those who disbelieved from among the People of the Scripture. The way the statement is composed emphasizes that this was an explicit act of God. Neither the Muslims, nor Banu Al-Nadir thought that this would happen. The fortifications that Banu Al-Nadir built around their dwellings were invincible. However, the threat came from within not from without, “But the (wrath of) God came to them from where they had not expected, and He cast terror into their hearts.” They were mainly concerned with strengthening their fortresses and never thought that fear would overwhelm their hearts. But God cast fear in their hearts and they simply gave in.

God does what He wills and no one can escape the wrath of God. They cherished their dwellings, but God made them destroy the property that they loved with their own hands. Those who can see should take a lesson from this.

They deserved to be punished, so even if God had decided not to evict them, they would have been punished in a different way; and in the Hereafter they will get the torment of fire, “And had it not been that God had decreed that they should be evicted, He would certainly have tormented them in this world; and in the Hereafter they shall (certainly) have the torment of the Fire.” They deserved this punishment because they opposed God and His Messenger (PBUH) and violated their covenant with God, “That is because they opposed God and His Messenger; and if any one opposes God, verily God is severe in punishment.”

It should be noted that the tribe of Banu Al-Nadeer is described in this Sura as, “those who disbelieved from among the People of the Scripture.” They disbelieved in God’s Message which was sent through Prophet Muhammad (PBUH). The Scripture that was revealed to them and which they believed in foretold the coming of a Messenger from God. They have been expected the Messenger to come. But, when the Messenger came they rejected him. So, they broke their covenant with God and became disbelievers.

The verses continue to explain to the Muslims the rationale behind the actions they were commanded to undertake, “Whatsoever palm-trees you cut down or leave standing on their roots, it was by God's leave, in order that He might confound the transgressors.” The Muslims were commanded not to cut a tree except for a reason, so when they were commanded to cut down some of the palm trees that belonged to Bani Al-Nadeer they had doubts in their hearts about the legality of such action. This verse was revealed to reassure them that what they were commanded to do was in fulfillment of God’s will. God decides what tree to cut and what tree to spare. Banu Al-Nadeer felt sad for the trees that were cut because they saw their wealth being destroyed and they were also sad for the trees that were spared because they left them behind for the Muslims to benefit from.

The following verses describe the model that Muslims should follow in distributing the spoils of war, “And that which God gave as spoil to His Messenger from them, you spurred neither a horse nor a camel, but God gives authority to His Messengers against whom He pleases, and God has power over all things.” The first rule deals with the spoils that they gained without engaging in actual combat. The Muslims did not use a horse or a camel to gain these spoils. These spoils were to be distributed according to a scheme different from the scheme that was used to distribute the spoils gained as a result of active combat, “What God has bestowed on His Messenger (and taken away) from the people of the townships, it belongs to God to His Messenger and to kindred and orphans and the needy and the wayfarer; in order that it may not circulate perpetually among the wealthy among you. And whatsoever the Messenger gives you, take it; and whatsoever he forbids, abstain (from it). And remain conscious of God. God is severe in punishment.” The Messenger of God (PBUH) was given the authority to distribute the spoils among the mentioned categories as he saw fit. The term “kindred” mentioned in the verse refers to the Messenger’s (PBUH) family. Members of the Messenger’s (PBUH) family were not eligible to receive charity whether obligatory (poor-dues) or voluntary. The Messenger (PBUH) was not also allowed to leave an estate to be distributed among his poor relatives. For these reasons, they were given a share in the spoils obtained without combat. The verse also sends a message that whatever happens, happens according to the will of God. God creates the reasons to achieve the results, “God gives authority to His messengers against whom He pleases.”

The verses also explain the rationale for the scheme described for the division of the spoils, “in order that it may not circulate perpetually among the wealthy among you.” This is one of the fundamental principles on which the economic system in Islam has been founded. Islam allows and respects the right of people to own property and wealth, however there are also mechanisms that prevent the wealth from being perpetually circulating among the rich while the poor are continuously deprived.

The second fundamental principle that these verses establish is that the Quran and the Prophet’s (PBUH) tradition are the sources for the laws which govern the Muslim society, “And whatsoever the messenger gives you, take it; and whatsoever he forbids, abstain (from it).” Islamic Jurisprudence is derived from the Quran and the tradition of the Prophet (PBUH). This principle takes away the people’s right to enact laws that contradict the Quran or the Prophetic tradition. However, if there are no rules dictated by the Quran or the Prophetic tradition regarding a specific problem, then the people are allowed to introduce whatever law they see fit as long as it does not contradict the basic principles of Islam. People are warned not to deviate from these principles, otherwise they would be subjected to God’s wrath, “And remain conscious of God. God is severe in punishment.”

The verses continued to mention in detail those who were eligible to receive a share from these spoils, “(It is) for the poor migrants who have been driven out from their homes and their belongings, who seek bounty from God and help God and His messenger. These are the truthful.” The verse depicts the actual sad conditions of the migrants. They were oppressed in Mecca and chose to migrate from Mecca to Medina fleeing from oppression. Their only crime for being oppressed was that they said, “God is our Lord.” They left their property, their wealth, and their homes in Mecca and went out seeking God’s pleasure. Although they were weak and poor they pledged to support God and His Messenger. They were the true believers. They professed the word of faith and were true in their undertaking.

The above verse described the first group of people who constituted the Muslim society. A second group is described in the following verse, “But those who before them, had homes (in Medina) and had adopted the faith – show their affection to those who migrated to them, and entertain no desire in their hearts for things given to the (latter), but give them preference over themselves, even though poverty was their (own lot). And those saved from the covetousness of their own souls; these are the successful.” This is a brief description of the supporters (the people of Medina.) It highlights the main characteristics of the members of this group. They established the faith of Islam in Medina before the migrants from Mecca came to them. Although, many of them were poor but they welcomed their brethren from Mecca and were very generous in helping them to settle in Medina. They even gave them preference over themselves.

The verse ends by stating one of the basic principles, “And those who are saved from the covetousness of their own souls; these are the successful.”

Then came the third group, “And those who came after them say, ‘Our Lord, forgive us, and our brethren who came before us into the faith, and do not leave in our hearts rancor against those who have believed. Our Lord, You are indeed All-Pitying, Giver of Mercy.’” The verse depicts the main characteristics of the subsequent generations of Muslims. These are the characteristics that the members of the Muslim nation should enjoy at all times and in all places. Although this group did not exist at the time of the revelation of these verses, but God knew the characteristics of the true Muslim generations. They will express their love to the earlier generations by asking God to forgive them. This shows how the Muslim nation consists of strongly connected groups of people living at different times and in different places. The verse refers to the strong feeling of brotherhood that permeates the Muslim nation.

The narrative then goes back to the events that surrounded the eviction of Bani Al-Nadeer, “Have you not seen the hypocrites say to their disbelieving brethren among the People of the Scripture? “If you are evicted, we too will go out with you, and we will never obey any one against you; and if you are attacked (in fight) we will help you.” But God is witness that they are indeed liars. If they are evicted, they will never go out with them; and if they are attacked (in fight), they will never help them; and if they do help them, they will turn their backs; and then they would not have been victorious. Fear of you is more intense in their hearts than the fear of God. This is because they are people who do not understand. They will not fight against you in a body save in fortified villages or from behind walls. Their enmity among themselves is very great. You think of them as a whole whereas their hearts are diverse. That is because they are a people who cannot reason.” The verses describe the behavior of the hypocrites during the events that led to the expulsion of the tribe of Bani Al-Nadeer from Medina. They urged them to stand their grounds and promised them support, but they let them down. The verses stress the close relationship between the two groups, “Have you not seen the hypocrites say to their disbelieving brethren among the People of the Scripture?” The verse reiterates the promise that the hypocrites made, however it states that God knew they were liars. The Quran then reveals the secrets of the disbelievers and the hypocrites, “Fear of you is more intense in their hearts than the fear of God.” They feared the believers more than they feared God. Had they feared God, they would not have been afraid of any of His creation. Fear of God and fear of His creation do not occupy the heart of a human being at the same time. God is the Eminent; all the forces in the universe are under His control. They did not have the courage to fight the believers face to face; they would only fight them from behind fortifications. The Quran then points to one of the main differences between the believers on one side and the hypocrites and the disbelievers on the other side. The believers were bonded together with the bond of brotherhood in faith while the hypocrites and the disbelievers had no such bond. A superficial look at them may show that they were united but the reality is that, “Their enmity among themselves is very great. You think of them as a whole whereas their hearts are diverse.” They would be able to overcome the believers only if the bond of brotherhood that binds the believers together is broken and they are no longer united. The Quran states these characteristics to reassure the believers and to motivate them to stay united and not to fear their enemy.

This episode with the tribe of Bani Al-Nadeer was not the first confrontation between the Muslims and the other tribes that lived in Medina. The Quran refers to one of these confrontations which happened between the Muslims and the tribe of Bani Quanoquaa, “Like those who shortly preceded them, they have tasted the evil result of their conduct; and (in the Hereafter there is) for them a painful torment.” This confrontation happened after the Muslims had won the battle of Badr. Banu Quanoquaa had hoped that the idolaters of Mecca would humiliate the Muslims in the battle of Badr, but when the Muslims won they felt bad and feared that this victory may strengthen the Muslim position in Medina. They started harassing and challenging the Muslims. The Muslims laid a siege around their dwellings and eventually they were allowed to leave Medina with whatever they can carry of their property and wealth.

The verses draw a parallel between the roles of the hypocrites and Satan in seducing human beings and then letting them down, “Like Satan, when he says to the human being, ‘Disbelieve in God,’ but when he disbelieves in God, (Satan) says, ‘I disown you; I do fear God, the Lord of the Worlds.’ And the consequence for both will be that they are in the Fire, therein abiding. This is the reward for the wrongdoers.” The parable’s objective is to generalize the lesson learnt from the events of this story. This is one of the facets of the style of Quran. It uses a concrete example as the basis for establishing a general principle.

The narrative turn into an address to the believers, “Believers, be conscious of God and let every soul look to what it has put forth for tomorrow. And remain conscious of God. God is Totally-Aware of what you do.” God consciousness is a state of the heart that cannot be described in words. It is a state that evokes in the heart the continuous feeling of God’s observance. This feeling is a combination of fear, shame, and embarrassment that arises when a person commits a deed that may displease God, knowing that God is ever observing. The verses then alert the person to remember the passage of time. The verse reminds the believers that they should prepare for the future. Have they prepared themselves for the day when they will stand in front of God to account for their deeds? The command of remaining conscious of God is then repeated with the reminder that God is Totally Aware of what we do.

A warning is then issued, “And do not be like those who forgot God; and He made them forget their own souls. Such are the transgressors. Not equal are the companions of the Fire and the companions of paradise. The companions of paradise, they are the successful.” Those who forget God lose the divine guidance and walk aimlessly in this vast life. In doing so one loses one of the most important characteristics of the human nature which elevates him above the material life. One then forgets to work for the Hereafter. Those are the true transgressors. Their path leads to Hell fire but the believers’ path leads to paradise. Those are the successful.

The following verse impacts the heart and shakes it as it visualizes the scene when a solid mountain is crushed under the heavy weight of the Quran, “Had We sent down this Quran on a mountain, verily, you would have seen it humble itself and rent asunder for fear of God. We cite these parables for the people that they may reflect.”

The following verses glorify God by reciting His beautiful names. They are like a concert in which the whole universe participates. Each one of these names has its own effect on the universe and on the lives of people. These names evoke in the hearts the practical implications that accompany each name.

“He is God, there is no god other than Him;” a statement of the belief in the uniqueness and oneness of God. He is the sole Creator and only He is worthy of being worshiped.

“The Knower of the unseen and the seen,” Only He knows what is visible and what is invisible. One should be aware that nothing can be hidden from God. He knows everything we do, whether we do it surreptitiously or in the open.

“He is the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy,” this is an attribute which evokes a feeling of serenity and security. The hope overcomes the fear. God does not pursue His servants to punish them but He wants them to be guided and He helps them to achieve felicity.

“He is God is, there is no god other than Him;” The statement of the belief in the oneness and uniqueness of God is reiterated because it is the basis of all other attributes.

“The King,” He is the only sovereign and He is the only master that deserves to be obeyed.

“The Holy,” This is an attribute from which emanates absolute purity and holiness. It falls on the human heart to cleanse, purify, and make it fit for glorifying God.

“The Flawless (the Source of Peace),” This is the attribute that generates peace, safety and security in the whole universe and in the heart of the believer.

“The Faithful,” God is the giver of faith. This attribute provides the incentive to the believer to follow the path of faith.

“The Guardian,” God is the Guardian and the controller over everything.

He is “the Eminent, the Compeller, the Supreme in Pride.” These are the attributes which describe the supremacy and power of God. No one else share these attributes with Him, “Glorified He above all that they ascribe as partners (to Him).”

He is God, “the Creator, the Producer, the Fashioner. To Him belong the most beautiful names. Whatever is in the heavens and on earth glorifies Him, and He is the Eminent, the Wise.”

Sura 60: Al-Mumtahina (The Woman Tested)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 13:

1. Believers, do not take My enemies and yours as protecting guardians, offering them friendship, even though they disbelieve in the truth that has come to you, and have driven out the Messenger and yourselves because you believe in God your Lord; if you have come out to strive in My way and to seek My good pleasure. Do you show them friendship secretly, when I know what you conceal and what you reveal? And whosoever does it among you he verily has strayed from the right path.
2. If they have the upper hand on you, they will be your foes, and will stretch out their hands and their tongues toward you with evil (intent), and they long for you to disbelieve.
3. Your ties of kindred and your children will avail you nothing; on the Day of Resurrection He will decide between you, and God is All-Seeing of what you do.
4. You have an excellent example in Abraham and those with him, when they said to their people, "We disown you and whatever you worship besides God; we have rejected you, and there has arisen, between us and you, enmity and hatred forever, unless you believe in God alone." Save that which Abraham promised his father (when he said), "I will ask forgiveness for you, though I cannot protect you from God." They prayed, "Our Lord, we put our trust in You, and to You we turn repentant, and to You is our final destination.
5. Our Lord, do not make us a prey for the disbelievers, but forgive us, our Lord, for You are the Eminent, the Wise."
6. There was indeed in them an excellent example for you to follow, for those whose hope is in God and in the Last Day. But if any turns away, truly God is the Self-Sufficient, the Praised.
7. It may be that God will instill affection between you and those whom you (now) hold as enemies. For God has power (over all things); And God is All-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy.
8. God does not forbid you, with regard to those who did not fight you because of your faith nor drove you out of your homes, from dealing kindly and justly with them. God loves those who are just.
9. God only forbids you, with regard to those who fought you because of your faith, drove you out of your homes, and supported (others) in driving you out from your homes, that you make them your friends. Whosoever befriends them, these are the wrongdoers.
10. Believers, when believing women come to you as emigrants, test them. God knows their faith best. Then, if you know them to be true believers, do not send them back to the disbelievers. They are not lawful for them (the disbelievers), nor are they (the disbelievers) lawful for them. And give them (the disbelievers) that which they have spent (upon them). And it is no sin for you to marry such women when you have given them their dues. And hold not to the ties of disbelieving women; and ask for (the return of) that which you have spent; and let them (the disbelievers) ask for that which they have spent. That is the judgment of God. He judges between you. God is Omniscient, Wise.
11. And if any of your wives deserts you to the disbelievers, and afterward you have your turn (of triumph), then give to those whose wives have deserted them the like of that which they have spent, and be conscious of God in whom you believe.

12. Prophet, when believing women come to you to take the oath of allegiance that they will not ascribe a partner to God, and will neither steal nor commit adultery nor kill their children, nor produce any lie that they have devised between their hands and feet, nor disobey you in what is right, then accept their allegiance and ask God to forgive them; God is All-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy.
13. Believers, do not befriend people with whom God is angry; they despaired of the Hereafter, just as the disbelievers are in despair about those are (buried) in the graves. (60: 1 – 13)

This Sura provides another lesson in the series of divine lessons which were used to teach the Muslim community in Medina the characters that Muslims should acquire. It is important for Muslims to have these characters if they were to show the world a live example of the Islamic way of life.

The Sura starts with the endearing address, “Believers.” God is calling upon the believers to educate them how to deal in an appropriate way with those who chose to be the enemies of God. God tells the believers that these people are His enemies as well as theirs. This way of addressing the believers makes them feel that God is on their side, “Believers, do not take My enemies and yours as protecting guardians, offering them friendship.” The basic reason that they have become God’s, as well as, their enemies is that they disbelieved in the truth that had come to the believers. In addition, they expelled the Messenger (PBUH) as well as the believers from their homes simply because they believed in the truth, “even though they disbelieve in the truth that has come to you, and have driven out the Messenger and yourselves because you believe in God your Lord;” The reason for the enmity between you and them is that they rejected your faith, how can then the believers take the disbelievers as friends? If the believers really migrated to, “strive in My way and to seek My good pleasure,” then there is no place for the friendship between the believers and the disbelievers. The believer’s heart has no room for the love of both God and the disbelievers.

God then issued a warning for those who may entertain affection towards the disbelievers, “Do you show them friendship secretly, when I know what you conceal and what you reveal?” God knows what they reveal and what they conceal. Those who befriend the disbelievers are issued a dire warning, “And whosoever does it among you he verily has strayed from the right path.”

The reasons for this warning are then revealed, “If they have the upper hand on you, they will be your foes, and will stretch out their hands and their tongues toward you with evil (intent), and they long for you to disbelieve.” The disbelievers will never be true friends to the believers. They will always persecute and assault them if they can. They will always wish that the disbelievers revert back to disbelief. For the believers, relinquishing the faith of Islam is worse than any harm that can be inflicted upon them by their enemy.

The believers at that time still had family members and even children who did not believe. The Quran tells them that they will not be of benefit for them on the Day of Judgment, “Your ties of kindred and your children will avail you nothing on the Day of Resurrection. He will decide between you; and God sees what you do.” The believers and disbelievers will be in separate camps on the Day of Judgment. The kin relationships have been severed between the believers and the disbelievers. The believers were reminded that God sees everything.

The following verses remind the believers at all times with the beginning of this nation; the nation that believes in the Oneness of God. It is a single nation that extends over the history of humanity, a nation of believers that disown all relationships except the relationship of faith. It is the nation that emanated from the first patriarch, Prophet Abraham (PBUH). He gave the Muslim nation the true example not only in believing in the uniqueness and Oneness of God but also in the best behavior, “You have an excellent example in Abraham and those with him, when they said to their people, ‘We disown you and whatever you worship besides God; we have rejected you, and there has arisen, between us and you, enmity and hatred for ever, unless you believe in God alone.’ Save that which Abraham promised his father (when he said), ‘I will ask forgiveness for you, though I cannot protect you from God.’ They prayed, ‘Our Lord, we put our trust in You, and to You we turn repentant, and to You is our final destination. Our Lord, do not make us a prey for the disbelievers, but forgive us, our Lord, for You are the Eminent, the Wise.” These verses remind the believers that they belong to a nation that has a long history. Many generations before them lived in similar circumstances; they, strived in the way of God as they are striving and suffered oppression as they are suffering. Prophet Abraham (PBUH) and those who followed him experienced similar circumstances to those which the migrants from Mecca were experiencing. What did they do? They said to their people, “We disown you and whatever you worship besides God; we have rejected you, and there has arisen, between us and you, enmity and hatred for ever, unless you believe in God alone.” They severed all ties except the ties that were established on the basis of the shared faith. Prophet Abraham (PBUH) was still hoping that his father would join the nation of the believers, so he promised to ask God to forgive him, however he made it clear that it is God’s decision, “though I cannot protect you from God.” The Quran explains in a different Sura that when Prophet Abraham (PBUH) became certain that his father will not believe he applied the same rule and he disowned his father, “But when it became apparent to him (Abraham) that he (his father) was an enemy of God, he disowned him.” (9:114)

The invocation of Prophet Abraham (PBUH) and his followers, “Our Lord, we put our trust in You, and to You we turn repentant, and to You is our final destination. Our Lord, do not make us a prey for the disbelievers, but forgive us, our Lord, for You are the Eminent, the Wise,” reflect the absolute submission which is one of the major traits that Prophet Abraham (PBUH) had. The invocation carries a message to the believers to follow in Abraham’s (PBUH) footsteps and to submit to God.

The lesson that the believers should learn about emulating Prophet Abraham (PBUH) and his followers is reiterated, “There was indeed in them an excellent example for you to follow, for those whose hope is in God and in the Last Day. But if any turns away truly God is the Self-Sufficient, the Praised.” The lesson was also emphasized by reminding the believers that this is the path for those who have hope in God and the Last Day. God is Self sufficient and Independent. He does not need those who dissociate themselves from the caravan of the believers.

The following verse brings hope to the believers that their enemies may become believers and it establishes a basic principle that govern the relationships between the Muslim state and other non Muslims states. Muslims should maintain amicable and peaceful relationships with non aggressive states. As long as they are not being attacked by others, Muslims should treat others with kindness and justice, “It may be that God will instill affection between you and those whom you (now) hold as enemies. For God has power (over all things); and God is All-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy.” Islam is a religion of peace and love. It is a system under which people can live as brothers and sisters. The verse goes beyond this. Muslims should treat their enemies fairly and kindly; who knows, maybe they will become believers? This promise was later realized when the tribe of Quraish became Muslims, “God does not forbid you, with regard to those who did not fight you because of your faith nor drove you out of your homes, from dealing kindly and justly with them. God loves those who are just. God only forbids you, with regard to those who fought you because of your faith, drove you out of your homes, and supported (others) in driving you out from your homes, that you make them your friends. Whosoever befriends them, these are the wrongdoers.”

“Believers, when believing women come to you as emigrants, test them. God knows their faith best. Then, if you know them to be true believers, do not send them back to the disbelievers. They are not lawful for them (the disbelievers), nor are they (the disbelievers) lawful for them. And give them (the disbelievers) that which they have spent (upon them). And it is no sin for you to marry such women when you have given them their dues. And hold not to the ties of disbelieving women; and ask for (the return of) that which you have spent; and let them (the disbelievers) ask for that which they have spent. That is the judgment of God. He judges between you. God is Omniscient, Wise. And if any of your wives deserts you to the disbelievers, and afterward you have your turn (of triumph), then give to those whose wives have deserted them the like of that which they have spent, and be conscious of God in Whom you believe.”

These two verses were revealed after the conclusion of the agreement of Hudaibiyah. Some Muslim women from Mecca came to the Prophet (PBUH) asking to join the Muslims in Medina. The chiefs of Quraish objected to this thinking that this contravenes the agreement. The verses came down to settle the dispute. The verses forbade the Muslims to deliver the Muslim women who wanted to migrate to Medina back to the disbelievers. The verses also established a process to determine who is eligible for this refugee status. The Muslims have to ascertain the basis for the claim of the refugee, “Believers, when believing women come to you as emigrants, test them. God knows their faith best.” The test would only examine the face value of the claim, but only God knows the truth of their claim. The rationale for not returning the women refugees to the disbelievers is explained, “. They are not lawful for them (the disbelievers), nor are they (the disbelievers) lawful for them.” However, the disbelieving husbands should be treated equitably and should not be cheated out of what gifts they gave their wives, “give them (the disbelievers) that which they have spent (upon them).” These women were then considered divorcees and they can remarry according to the Islamic rules, “And it is no sin for you to marry such women when you have given them their dues.” This is God’s rule. God knows best.

The verses also prohibited Muslim men to remain wedded to disbelieving women, “And hold not to the ties of disbelieving women.” If the disbelievers refused to pay back a Muslim husband the amount of money he paid as a wedding gift, then it is the duty of the Muslim government to compensate the husband for his loss.

The text for the pledge which these women would make was then given, “Prophet, when believing women come to you to take the oath of allegiance that they will not ascribe a partner to God, and will neither steal, nor commit adultery, nor kill their children, nor produce any lie that they have devised between their hands and feet, nor disobey you in what is right, then accept their allegiance and ask God to forgive them; God is All-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy.” The pledge embodied all the basic principles on which the Muslim society is established.

The Sura is then concluded by a command to the believers, “Believers, do not befriend people with whom God is angry; they despaired of the Hereafter, just as the disbelievers are in despair about those (buried) in graves.” The believers should not take as protective patrons those whom God considers enemies. These people have no hope in the Hereafter because they do not believe in the resurrection after death. Their hope in the Hereafter is similar to the hope of the disbelievers in the resurrection of their dead people.

Sura 61: Al-Saff (The Ranks)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 14:

1. All that is in the heavens and all that is in the earth glorify God, and He is the Eminent, the Wise.
2. Believers, why do you say that which you do not do?
3. It is most hateful in the sight of God that you say that which you do not do.
4. God loves those who fight in His way in ranks, as if they were a solid structure.
5. And remember, when Moses said to his people, "My people, why do you hurt me, although you know that I am the messenger of God (sent) to you?" And when they swerved, God let their hearts swerve. God does not guide those who are transgressors.
6. And remember, when Jesus, the son of Mary said, "Children of Israel, I am the messenger of God (sent) to you, confirming the Torah (which came) before me, and giving glad tidings of a messenger to come after me, whose name shall be Ahmad." But when he came to them with clear signs, they said, "This is obvious magic."
7. Who is a greater wrongdoer than one who invents a lie against God, when he is summoned to submit to God? And God does not guide the wrongdoers.
8. Their intention is to extinguish God's light (by blowing) with their mouths. But God will perfect His light, even though the disbelievers are averse to it.
9. It is He who has sent His Messenger with guidance and the religion of truth, that he may proclaim it over all religion, even though the idolaters may be averse to it.
10. Believers, shall I lead you to a bargain that will save you from a painful torment?
11. Believe in God and His Messenger, and strive (your utmost) in the cause of God, with your possessions and yourselves. That will be best for you, if you but knew.
12. He will forgive you your sins, and admit you into Gardens beneath which rivers flow, and into beautiful mansions in Gardens of Eternity. That is indeed the supreme achievement.
13. And another (favor will He bestow) which you love, help from God and a speedy victory. So give the glad tidings to the believers.
14. Believers, be the supporters of God; as Jesus the son of Mary said to the disciples, "Who will be my supporters for God?" The disciples said, "We are God's supporters." And a party of the Children of Israel believed, while a party disbelieved. Then We strengthened those who believed against their foe, and they became the uppermost. (61: 1 – 14)

This Sura has two basic objectives which are apparent from the narrative. The first objective is to establish in the psyche of the believers that Islam is the final form of the divine project which God sent down to guide the human race. The verses refer to the Message that was revealed to Prophet Moses (PBUH) and show how did the Children of Israel abdicated their duties. Then Jesus (PBUH) was sent to continue Moses' (PBUH) work and to state that another Messenger will follow to complete God's divine project.

The second objective which emanates from the first objective is to outline the responsibility of the believers in establishing this religion on earth. The believers should be sincere in striving in the cause of God with their possessions and persons.

The whole universe glorifies God announcing that Islam came to establish the divine project in its final form. Muslims are entrusted with establishing this religion which professes the Oneness of God, “All that is in the heavens and all that is in the earth glorify God, and He is the Eminent, the Wise.”

The believers were rebuked for what some of them committed; they committed something that God hates. How can they not practice what they preach, “Believers, why do you say that which you do not do? It is most hateful in the sight of God that you say that which you do not do.” Ibn Jareer mentioned that these verses were revealed as a message of rebuke to the believers who said they would fight in the cause of God, but when fighting was ordained they declined to fight. The verses state that God hates such behavior. The Quran usually uses an incident or an event as a platform to launch a general principle. The principle is that the believers should not say what they do not do because God hates those who do not practice what they preach.

The verses then continue to address fighting in the cause of God, “God loves those who fight in His way in ranks, as if they were a solid structure.” The believers should fight as a solid unit in the cause of God.

The following verses deal with the stages of revelation of the divine project. First, came Moses (PBUH), “And remember, when Moses said to his people, ‘My people, why do you hurt me, although you know that I am the messenger of God (sent) to you?’ And when they swerved, God let their hearts swerve. God does not guide those who are transgressors.” He was then followed by Jesus (PBUH), “And remember, when Jesus, the son of Mary said, ‘Children of Israel, I am the messenger of God (sent) to you, confirming the Torah (which came) before me, and giving glad tidings of a messenger to come after me, whose name shall be Ahmad.’ But when he came to them with clear signs, they said, ‘This is obvious magic.’” The Children of Israel treated Prophet Moses (PBUH), who saved them from the persecution of Pharaoh and his chiefs, badly. The Quran told many stories about the difficult experience that Prophet Moses (PBUH) had with the Children of Israel. In this verse Prophet Moses (PBUH) rebukes them mildly, “My people, why do you hurt me.” However, they were adamant in their transgression so God let their hearts swerve. They were no longer qualified to carry the responsibility of establishing God’s religion on earth. Then Jesus (PBUH) came to continue Moses’ (PBUH) task and to bring the glad tidings of another prophet who will bring about the last phase of a complete and comprehensive project that addresses the intellect of the mature humanity.

These verses show how the different stages of the same religion were revealed to guide the human race to the straight path. Each stage came in a different form suitable for the needs and abilities of the human race at the time of its revelation. The verse mentions the good news that Jesus (PBUH) brought to the Children of Israel about the expected Messenger. The truth of the statement was accepted by many of their scholars e.g. Abdul Allah ibn Salam. It is historically known that the Jews were expecting a Messenger from God, but they had hoped that it would be one of them. So, they refused to accept the new religion since the Messenger was not a Jew. They fought Islam and the Muslims in different ways, “Who is a greater wrongdoer than one who invents a lie against God, when he is summoned to submit to God? And God does not guide the wrongdoers.”

They tried in vain to extinguish God’s light, “Their intention is to extinguish God's light (by blowing) with their mouths. But God will perfect His light, even though the disbelievers are averse to it.” The verse establishes a fact and paints an image of desperation. It is a fact that they fought the message with their words claiming that it was clear magic. Their words expressed their desperate effort to extinguish the light that Islam brought. However, God fulfilled His promise and Islam was soon established.

God sent His messenger to establish the religion of truth, “It is He who has sent His Messenger with guidance and the religion of truth, that he may proclaim it over all religion, even though the idolaters may be averse to it.” The religion was established in more than one way. The content of the religion were established in its original form and did not suffer the mutilation that happened to all other religions; and it was established when it spread to all parts of the world.

The following verse addresses the believers with the endearing term, “Believers.” Then it guides them to a very profitable bargain, “shall I lead you to a bargain that will save you from a painful torment?” The question whips up their curiosity; then it provides the answer, “Believe in God and His Messenger, and strive (your utmost) in the cause of God, with your possessions and yourselves. That will be best for you, if you but knew.” They have already fulfilled the first part of their end of the bargain, they believed in God and His Messenger. So they need to fulfill the second part, to “strive (your utmost) in the cause of God, with your possessions and yourselves.” The Quran then outlines God’s end of the bargain, “He will forgive you your sins, and admit you into Gardens beneath which rivers flow, and into beautiful mansions in Gardens of Eternity. That is indeed the supreme achievement. And another (favor will He bestow,) which you love, help from God and a speedy victory. So give the glad tidings to the believers.” They will be granted forgiveness, mansions in the Gardens of Eden, and speedy victory. What else would they desire? This is indeed the supreme achievement.

The Sura is concluded by a command which raises the rank of the believers. They will become God’s supporters. What an honor? “Believers, be the supporters of God; as Jesus the son of Mary said to the disciples, ‘Who will be my supporters for God?’ The disciples said, ‘We are God's supporters.’ And a party of the Children of Israel believed, while a party disbelieved. Then We strengthened those who believed against their foe, and they became the uppermost.” The verse’s objective is to make a point not to narrate a story. The point is made that when the disciples of Jesus (PBUH) supported God and His Messenger, Jesus (PBUH), God gave them victory over their enemy. There are two possible interpretations for this verse. The first interpretation is that those who believed in Jesus (PBUH) are all Christians. God made them dominant over the Jews. The second interpretation is that those who believed in Jesus (PBUH) are those who believed in him as a prophet not as a son of God. They became dominant by the clarity and strength of their argument which supports the oneness of God.

The lesson to be learnt from the verse is that God supports those who support His cause. God will make them victors and they will overcome their enemies.

Surat 62: Al-Jumu'ah (The day of the Congregation)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 11:

1. All that is in the heavens and all that is in the earth glorify God, the King, the Holy, the Eminent, the Wise.
2. It is He who has sent among the unlettered a messenger from among themselves, to recite to them His verses, to purify them, and to teach them the Book and the wisdom, although they were before certainly in clear error.
3. And others from among them who have not yet joined them; and He is the Eminent, the Wise.
4. That is the bounty of God; which He gives to whom He wills. God is of tremendous bounty.
5. The similitude of those who were charged with the Torah, yet they did not apply it, is as the ass carrying books. Wretched is the likeness of people who deny the revelations of God. And God does not guide the wrongdoers.
6. Say (Prophet), "You who follow the Jewish faith, if you claim that you are favored by God, to the exclusion of (other) people, then express your desire for death, if you are truthful."
7. But they will never express their desire (for death), because of the (deeds) their hands have sent on before them. And God knows well the wrongdoers.
8. Say, "The death from which you flee will certainly overtake you. Then you will be sent back to the One who knows the unseen and the seen; and He will tell you all the things that you did."
9. Believers, when the call is proclaimed to prayer on Friday, hasten earnestly to the remembrance of God, and leave off business. That is best for you if you but knew.
10. And when the prayer is finished, then you may disperse through the land, and seek of the bounty of God; and celebrate the praises of God often that you may succeed.
11. But when they see some bargain or some entertainment, they disperse headlong to it, and leave you standing. Say, "That which God has is better than entertainment and merchandise, and God is the best of Providers." (62: 1 -11)

This Sura was revealed after Surat Al-Saf (Sura 61). The two Suras deal with the same issue. However, this Sura uses different approach and style in dealing with this issue. The issue which is dealt with in this Sura is the concepts that Islam is the last phase in the divine project and that Muslims are entrusted with the establishment of this religion on earth. The Sura aims at inculcating these concepts in the psyche of Muslims. To prepare the Muslims for such undertaking the Sura tries to instill certain characters that are required to build the Muslim personality. The Sura addresses the natural desires of greed and money making endeavors which may distract Muslims from their principal undertaking. It recounts a specific incident which happened on a Friday, when someone announced the arrival of a long awaited for caravan while the Prophet (PBUH) was giving the sermon that preceded the Friday congregational prayer. Many of the Muslims left the Mosque and ran to be among the first to receive the goods that the caravan brought. Only about twelve people remained to listen to the sermon among them were Abu Bakr (RA) and Umar (RA). Such incident shows the enormity of the effort that was spent in changing the character of the early Muslims to turn them into the unique models that were worthy of carrying the undertakings that were requested of them.

The Sura starts with the statement that the whole universe glorifies God, “All that is in the heavens and all that is in the earth glorify God, the King, the Holy, the Eminent, the Wise.” He is the King who owns everything; He is the only provider. He is the Holy; He is high above everything. He is the Eminent; the Wise.

“It is He who has sent among the unlettered a messenger from among themselves, to recite to them His verses, to purify them, and to teach them the Book and the wisdom, although they were before certainly in clear error.” God has blessed the Arabs by sending them a messenger from among themselves to purify them. The Messenger (PBUH) taught them how to purify their conscious, their deeds and behavior, their married lives, and their social lives. He also purified their creed and beliefs. He taught them the Book and the wisdom so that they would be able to differentiate between right and wrong. Before that, they were in clear error. This error has been explained by Jaffer ibn Abi Taleb (RA) when he addressed the king of Abyssinia. He said, “O’ King, before Islam we were ignorant. We used to worship idols, eat dead animals, commit indecencies, break the ties of kin, hurt our neighbors, and the strong would persecute the weak. Then God sent us a Messenger from among ourselves. We knew his family, his truthfulness, his honesty, and we trusted his integrity. He called us to worship God alone; he commanded us to tell the truth, fulfill the trust, join the kin, and to be good to our neighbors. He commanded us to abstain from indecencies, give a false testimony, kill each other, slander decent women, and cheat orphans out of their possessions. He commanded us to worship God, not to associate partners with Him, pray, fast, and pay poor dues.” God chose the nation residing in the Arabian Peninsula to carry the responsibility of establishing the religion on earth. He knew that they can carry the responsibility so He sent His messenger to recite the words of God to them and to teach them the Book and the wisdom. They will be joined by the rest of Muslims to the end of time, “And others from among them who have not yet joined them; and He is the Eminent, the Wise.”

“That is the bounty of God; which He gives to whom He wills. God is of tremendous bounty.” It is a great bounty from God to be chosen to carry that undertaking.

“The similitude of those who were charged with the Torah, yet they did not apply it, is as the ass carrying books. Wretched is the likeness of people who deny the revelations of God. And God does not guide the wrongdoers.” The Children of Israel were given the responsibility of following the Torah and they were entrusted with establishing its doctrine and law but they did not fulfill their trust. Fulfillment of the trust starts with understanding and ends with behaving accordingly. But they neither understood it nor did they work according to it. Their example is like an ass carrying books. The ass will not benefit from the books it is carrying and it will only suffer from carryings its weight.

This example is not restricted to the Jews who did not act according to the Torah but it applies to any one who did not fulfill the trust that God has entrusted him with. This includes Muslims who were entrusted with the religion of Islam and they neither understood its tents nor did they act according to its teachings.

The Jews claimed, as they claim now, that they are the chosen people. The Quran asked the Prophet (PBUH) to challenge them, “Say (Prophet), ‘You who follow the Jewish faith, if you claim that you are favored by God, to the exclusion of (other) people, then express your desire for death, if you are truthful.’” In this form of the challenge, the two groups would stand face to face and each group would pray to God to destroy the lying group. The Jews refused to accept the challenge, as was predicted by the Quran, “But they will never express their desire (for death), because of the (deeds) their hands have sent on before them. And God knows well the wrongdoers.” And if they were truly certain of being the chosen people, why would they be afraid of death? If they were the chosen people, death will be the door to receive the bounty of God which He promised those who believe in Him. But they should realize that no one can escape death, “Say, ‘The death from which you flee will certainly overtake you. Then you will be sent back to the One who knows the unseen and the seen; and He will tell you all the things that you did.’”

The Sura then concludes with commands regarding Friday prayer especially after the incident which was mentioned earlier, “Believers, when the call is proclaimed to prayer on Friday, hasten earnestly to the remembrance of God, and leave off business. That is best for you if you but knew. And when the prayer is finished, then you may disperse through the land, and seek of the bounty of God; and celebrate the praises of God often that you may succeed. But when they see some bargain or some entertainment, they disperse headlong to it, and leave you standing. Say, ‘That which God has is better than entertainment and merchandise, and God is the best of Providers.’” The first verse in this group of verses commands the believers to abandon all regular activities once the call to the prayer is proclaimed. When they hear the call to the prayer, people should hasten to the Mosque. This is better than engaging in business deals or other activities which they hope will bring them profit. There is greater profit that can be gained by connecting with God. Once the prayer has been completed then they can resume their normal activities. These two verses outline the balance that Islam brings to the life of human beings. It is a balance between the spiritual needs and the material needs of the human being. The last verse address the incident that occurred when the Muslims left the Prophet (pbuh) while he was giving his sermon and hurried to the caravan seeking worldly gains. The verse emphasizes that God has much more better things for them than what they had hoped to gain from the caravan.

Sura 63: Al-Munafiqun (The Hypocrites)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 11:

1. When the hypocrites come to you, they say, "We bear witness that you are indeed the Messenger of God." God knows that you are indeed His Messenger, and God bears witness that the hypocrites are indeed liars.
2. They made their faith a pretext so that they may turn people from the way of God. Verily evil is that which they do.
3. That is because they believed, then they disbelieved, therefore their hearts are sealed so that they do not understand.
4. And when you look at them, their figures please you; and when they speak, you listen to their talk. They are as (worthless as hollow) pieces of timber propped up, (unable to stand on their own). They think that every cry is against them. They are the enemies; so beware of them. May God destroy them? How perverted are they?
5. And when it is said to them, "Come, the Messenger of God will pray for your forgiveness," they turn their heads aside and you see them turning away their faces in arrogance.
6. It is all the same whether you ask forgiveness for them or do not ask forgiveness for them; God will not forgive them. God does not guide the transgressors.
7. They are the ones who say, "Do not spend on those who are with God's Messenger that they may disperse. And to God belong the treasures of the heavens and the earth, but the hypocrites do not understand.
8. They say, "If we return to Medina, surely the more honorable will expel therefrom the more humble." But honor belongs to God and His Messenger, and to the believers; but the hypocrites do not know.
9. Believers, let not your wealth nor your children distract you from the remembrance of God. Those who do so, they are the losers.
10. And spend out of what We have given you before death comes to one of you, so that he would say, "My Lord, if only You delay me for a brief term so I would give charity and be of the righteous?"
11. But never will God delay a soul when its time has come; and God is well aware of what you do. (63: 1 – 11)

The name of this Sura suggests its subject matter. This is not the only Sura that dealt with the problem of hypocrisy. The topic of hypocrisy and the problems caused by hypocrites appear in most of the Suras that were revealed in Medina. However, this Sura deals only with these topics. The Sura castigates the hypocrites and exposes their mean characters. It concludes by a command to the believers to relinquish any character that may be remotely related to hypocrisy. The phenomenon of hypocrisy appeared after the migration to Medina and continued in one form or another until the death of the Prophet (PBUH).

The Sura starts by exposing their deceptive attitude towards the believers. They disguised their animosity to Islam and Muslims under a pretense that they have adopted Islam, "When the hypocrites come to you, they say, "We bear witness that you are indeed the Messenger of God." God knows that you are indeed His Messenger, and God bears witness that the hypocrites are indeed liars. They made their faith a pretext so that they may turn people from the way of God. Verily evil is that which they do." They used to come to the Messenger of God (PBUH) pretending they have adopted Islam while deep in their hearts they harbored ill feelings towards Islam and Muslims. The verse is very accurate in its statement. First, it ascertains the fact that the Prophet (PBUH) is God's Messenger, "God knows that you are indeed His Messenger." Then it exposes their malice, "God bears witness that the hypocrites are indeed liars." They would take an oath to support their claim that they have become Muslims whenever they need to, but only to use it as a means to debar people from the straight path, "They made their faith a pretext so that they may turn people from the way of God." They did experience faith but recanted, "That is because they believed, then they disbelieved, therefore their hearts are sealed so that they do not understand." A person who tastes the sweetness of faith then recants is indeed a person whose heart has been sealed and indeed has no understanding.

The verse then describes them in a sarcastic way. Their looks are pleasing to the eye but their inner selves hold nothing except cowardice and treachery. They are figures but not people. Just like a statue that cannot stand on its own and it has to be propped up, "And when you look at them, their figures please you; and when they speak, you listen to their talk. They are as (worthless as hollow) pieces of timber propped up, (unable to stand on their own). They think that every cry is against them. They are the enemies; so beware of them. May God destroy them? How perverted are they?" They were always weary of being exposed and apprehensive of any criticism. The Quran warned the Messenger (PBUH) against them, "They are the enemies; so beware of them." They were a fifth column who wanted to attack the Muslims from within. The verse however, did not command the Messenger (PBUH) to fight them. Instead, the verse curses them, "May God destroy them." This curse is a decree from God that is destined to happen.

"And when it is said to them, 'Come, the Messenger of God will pray for your forgiveness,' they turn their heads aside and you see them turning away their faces in arrogance. It is all the same whether you ask forgiveness for them or do not ask forgiveness for them; God will not forgive them. God does not guide the transgressors. They are the ones who say, 'Do not spend on those who are with God's Messenger that they may disperse. And to God belong the treasures of the heavens and the earth, but the hypocrites do not understand. They say, 'If we return to Medina, surely the more honorable will expel therefrom the more humble.' But honor belongs to God and His Messenger, and to the believers; but the hypocrites do not know." It has been narrated that these verses describe an event that occurred on the way back from the battle of Bani Al-Mustalaq. Two men, one from the tribe of Khazraj and the other from the tribe of Bani Ghofar fought together about who would drink first. The first person called upon the Ansar (people from Medina) to support him and the other called upon the Muhajereen (people from Mecca) to support him. Abd Allah ibn Saloul became angry when he saw that scene. He attacked the migrants in the presence of a group of his friends, lamented how they were crowding the people of Medina, and threatened to expel them from Medina when they return back, "If we return to Medina, surely the more honorable will expel therefrom the more humble." A young man by the name of Zaid ibn Arqam (RA) was among those who listened to Ibn Saloul's talk. He went to the Messenger (PBUH) and told him what Ibn Saloul had said. Umar (RA) was present and suggested to the Prophet (PBUH) to send someone to kill Ibn Saloul but the Prophet (PBUH) declined to do that. The Messenger (PBUH) decided that the best course of action is to distract people from the conflict so he commanded the army to start moving. When Ibn Saloul realized that Zaid (RA) told the Messenger about what he said, he went to the Messenger (PBUH) and took an oath that he did not say that.

One of the companions of the Prophet (PBUH) from Medina by the name of Osaid ibn Hudair (RA) asked the Prophet (PBUH) about the reason that the army was commanded to move on before they had their rest. The Prophet (PBUH) told him about what Ibn Saloul said and the potential for a fight between the people from Mecca and the people from Medina. Osaid (RA) said, “Prophet of God, you will - God willing – expel him from Medina.” Osaid (RA) then explained the reason for Ibn Saloul anger. Just before the Prophet (PBUH) migrated to Medina, the people of Medina were about to appoint Ibn Saloul their king. When the people of Medina accepted Islam and the Prophet (PBUH) migrated to Medina, the plans for appointing Ibn Saloul a king fell through. That is why he held a grudge against the Prophet (PBUH). The Prophet (PBUH) marched with the army to a place where they camped again. The men were so tired, they fell asleep right away. Thus, the potential fight was avoided.

The son of Abd Allah ibn Saloul heard about the conflict and his father’s behavior. He stood at the gate of Medina with a sword in his hand. When his father showed up he stopped him and told him that he would not allow him to enter until he gets permission from the Messenger (PBUH). The Prophet (PBUH) rode at the rear of the army so when he reached the gate of Medina he gave Ibn Saloul the permission to enter Medina.

The Sura shows how the Prophet (PBUH) dealt with the hypocrites. Although the Prophet (PBUH) knew them by name but he did not expose them and tried hard to reform them. The Prophet (PBUH), just before he died, told only one companion - Huzaifah ibn Al-Yaman (RA) - the names of the hypocrites and he asked him not to divulge these to anyone. Umar (RA) was very apprehensive that he would be one of them and kept asking Huzaifah (RA). Huzaifah (RA) only assured him that he is not one of the hypocrites. Umar (RA) used to watch Huzaifah’s (RA) behavior during funerals of the companions of the Prophet (PBUH). He would only participate in the funeral prayer if he saw Huzaifah (RA) participating. The lesson to be learnt from this is that people should only judge the actions not the people. Only God knows what the hearts of people harbor. People should only judge what they can see.

The verses describe the arrogance of the hypocrites and tell the Prophet (PBUH) that God has decreed that the hypocrites will not be forgiven. The verses also expose the strategy of the hypocrites to persecute and harass the believers whenever they are able to. They forgot that God owns the treasures of heavens and earth and only He can bless people with honor and dignity.

Then a command is issued to the believers, “Believers, let not your wealth nor your children distract you from the remembrance of God. Those who do so, they are the losers. And spend out of what We have given you before death comes to one of you, so that he would say, ‘My Lord, if only You delay me for a brief term so I would give charity and be of the righteous?’ But never will God delay a soul when its time has come; and God is well aware of what you do.” Wealth and progeny are sources for distractions. God gave people the wealth and the family to support them in achieving the task that they were created for. The hearts should always be connected with God. The wealth has been given by God and should be spent the way that pleases Him. One should spend in the sake of God before it is too late. Everyone is destined to death and when the time comes no one can delay it.

Sura 64: Al-Taghabun (Loss and Gain)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 18:

1. All that is in the heavens and all that is in the earth glorify God; all sovereignty belongs to Him and all praise belongs to Him, and He has power over all things.
2. It is He who has created you; and of you are some who are disbelievers, and some who are believers. And God is All-Seeing of what you do.
3. He created the heavens and the earth with truth, and He shaped you and perfected your shapes, and to Him is the final destination.
4. He knows what is in the heavens and earth; and He knows what you conceal and what you reveal. God knows well the secrets of the hearts.
5. Has not the story of those who disbelieved before, reached you? So they tasted the bad consequences of their conduct, and they will have a painful torment.
6. That was because their messengers came to them with clear signs, but they said, "Shall we take guidance from mere mortals?" So they disbelieved and turned away. But God had no need for them. God is Rich and Praised.
7. The disbelievers claimed that they will not be resurrected. Say, "By my Lord, you shall surely be resurrected, then you shall be told of all that you did. And that is easy for God."
8. You should therefore, believe in God and His Messenger, and in the light which we have sent down. And God is Totally-Aware of what you do.
9. The day when He shall gather you to the Day of Gathering; that will be a day of loss and gain. And whoso believes in God and does good, He will absolve him of his evil deeds and admit him to gardens beneath which rivers flow, to abide therein forever; that is the great achievement.
10. But those who disbelieved and belied Our verses, they will be companions of the fire, to dwell therein forever; what a wretched destination.
11. No calamity befalls save by God's leave. And whosoever believes in God, He guides his heart. And God is Omniscient.
12. So obey God, and obey His Messenger: but if you turn back, the duty of Our Messenger is only to convey (the Message) plainly.
13. God, there is no god but He. Let the believers put their trust in God.
14. Believers, truly, among your wives and your children are (some that are) enemies to you; so beware of them. But if you pardon, forbear, and forgive, verily God is All-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy.
15. Your wealth and your children are only a temptation, whereas God has with Him an immense reward.
16. So remain conscious of God as much as you can; listen and obey and spend in charity for the benefit of your own souls; and those who are saved from the covetousness of their own souls they are the successful.
17. If you lend God a goodly loan, He will double it for you and will forgive you, for God is Grateful, Forbearing.
18. The Knower of the unseen and the seen, the Eminent, the Wise. (64: 1 -18)

This Sura, with the exception of the last few verses, sounds like a Meccan Sura. The first few verses aim at establishing the fundamentals of the doctrine and creating an Islamic understanding in the hearts of people using the same style used in the Meccan Suras. However, the last few verses exhort the believers to spend out of their wealth in charity in a style similar to that used in the Suras revealed in Medina. There are conflicting opinions about the time of revelation of this Sura. Some say it was revealed in Mecca and others say it was revealed in Medina. The most probable opinion of the scholars indicates that it was revealed in Medina. In addition, the Suras that were revealed in Medina sometimes addressed issues related to the doctrine as well.

“All that is in the heavens and all that is in the earth glorify God; all sovereignty belongs to Him and all praise belongs to Him, and He has power over all things.” Everything in the heavens and on the earth glorify their Lord. The heart and soul of the universe believe in God. God owns everything in existence. All God’s creatures celebrate His praise. God has absolute power over everything. The image that this verse paints is an image that reflects the essence of the belief in God. In the middle of this believing universe which glorifies and praises God, we find humankind standing alone in a unique situation: some are believers and others are disbelievers. God chose to give humankind the propensity of being a believer or a disbeliever. God gave humankind the responsibility to choose and the tools that enable him to make the right choice. God sees everything. He observes people’s behavior, He sees what they do, and He knows their intentions and inclinations, “It is He who has created you; and of you are some who are disbelievers, and some who are believers. And God is All-Seeing of what you do.”

The following verse states the original truth that God has instilled in this universe, “He created the heavens and the earth with truth, and He shaped you and perfected your shapes, and to Him is the final destination.” The truth is an integral part of the universe; it is the foundation upon which the universe was created. God created humankind in the best form. Humankind should show gratitude for the bounty of God who honored humankind and blessed him with a good form. Not only humankind was blessed with a good figure but also with a sound psyche. A study of the human body would reveal this immediately. The final destination of everything is to God.

Then a statement about the comprehensive nature of the divine knowledge is made, “He knows what is in the heavens and earth; and He knows what you conceal and what you reveal. God knows well the secrets of the hearts.” Such a reality evokes in the humankind the feelings that connect him to his Lord. These three verses inform humankind of the truth about his own existence, the truth about the existence of the whole universe, his connection to his Creator, the proper etiquette in dealing with God; and command him to remain always conscious of God.

The following verse addressed the idolaters, “Has not the story of those who disbelieved before, reached you? So they tasted the bad consequences of their conduct, and they will have a painful punishment. That was because their messengers came to them with clear signs, but they said, ‘Shall we take guidance from mere mortals?’ So they disbelieved and turned away. But God had no need for them. God is Rich and Praised,” reminding them of the evil consequences that awaits those who disbelieve in God. They deserved this punishment because they refused to believe that a mortal like them can be a messenger of God. It was a ridiculous objection. Since the messenger’s duty is to provide a living example of the message. Their arrogance and ignorance barred them from accepting guidance and they chose to disbelief in the message and to reject the messenger. They did not understand that God does not need their belief. This should have been a lesson to the idolaters of Mecca who were following in the footsteps of those who rejected faith before them.

“The disbelievers claimed that they will not be resurrected. Say, ‘By my Lord, you shall surely be resurrected, then you shall be told of all that you did. And that is easy for God.’ You should therefore, believe in God and His Messenger, and in the light which we have sent down. And God is Totally-Aware of what you do.” The idolaters made the false claim that they will not be resurrected. The verse commands the Prophet (PBUH) to refute this claim by making an oath, “By my Lord, you shall surely be resurrected, then you shall be told of all that you did.” This is easy for God. He knows everything. And He has the power to do anything. They were then called to believe in God, His Messenger, and the light that was sent with His Messenger. This faith that God revealed in the Quran is a light that guides people. It is light because it came from God and God is the light of the heavens and earth. It is also light because it illuminates the heart and leads it to the truth.

God will gather you to the Day of Gathering, when all people will be gathered together. On that Day the believers will gain while the disbelievers will lose. That is why it is called the Day of loss and gain, “The day when He shall gather you to the Day of gathering; that will be a day of loss and gain.” The gain and loss are detailed, “And whoso believes in God and does good, He will absolve him of his evil deeds and admit him to gardens beneath which rivers flow, to abide therein forever; that is the great achievement. But those who disbelieved and belied Our verses, they will be companions of the fire, to dwell therein forever; what a wretched destination.”

A fundamental principle is then stated, “No calamity befalls save by God's leave. And whosoever believes in God, He guides his heart. And God is Omniscient.” It is appropriate to state this principle here as a part of the truth of faith. Faith would not be complete without believing in this principle. Faith would not be complete without the belief that everything is in the hand of God. The believers should be content with what happens to them. This has been corroborated by the tradition, “I am amazed at the condition of the believer. God always gives him what is good. When he faces a hardship he perseveres – this is good for him- and when he is blessed by a bounty from God he is grateful –this is also good for him. No one else gets this except a believer.” In addition God's guides the heart of the believer to accepting what God has decreed for him.

The call to faith is followed by a call to be obedient, “So obey God, and obey His Messenger: but if you turn back, the duty of Our Messenger is only to convey (the Message) plainly. God, there is no god but He. Let the believers put their trust in God.” The verse outlines the task of the messenger; his responsibility is to convey the message in a clear way. The believers should put their trust in God.

The following verse admonishes the believers not to be distracted away from the remembrance of God, “Believers, truly, among your wives and your children are (some that are) enemies to you; so beware of them. But if you pardon, forbear, and forgive, verily God is All-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy.” This verse reflects one of the realities of life when taking care of the family may hamper the efforts of people to strive in the cause of God. Striving in the cause of God may expose the person and his family to hardships. Some families may not accept such hardships so they try to prevent the person from striving in God's cause. The same meaning is emphasized in a different way by alerting the believers that wealth and children are sources of temptation, "Your wealth and your children are only a temptation, whereas God has with Him an immense reward." One should focus on the immense reward that God has.

The believers are then called upon to be conscious of God as much as they can, "So remain conscious of God as much as you can; listen and obey." God's mercy is reflected in asking the believers to do only things which are within their power, "as much as you can." The verses continue to urge the believers to spend in the cause of God, "and spend in charity for the benefit of your own souls; and those who are saved from the covetousness of their own souls they are the successful." Whatever they are spending is for their own benefit. Success can only be achieved when one is saved of the covetousness of one's own soul.

Spending in the cause of God is like giving God a good loan. This is a very profitable bargain, God will double it, in addition, He will grant the believer His forgiveness, "If you lend God a goodly loan, He will double it for you and will forgive you, for God is Grateful, Forbearing. The Knower of the unseen and the seen, the Eminent, the Wise."

God teaches us how to overcome our weaknesses and how to look up to God to try to emulate Him within our limited capacity. He calls Himself, "Grateful, Forbearing." These are traits that we should endeavor to emulate.

Sura 65: Al-Talaq (Divorce)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 12:

1. Prophet, when any of you intend to divorce women, do so at a time when their prescribed waiting period can properly start, and count (accurately), their prescribed periods. And be conscious of God your Lord. Do not evict them from their houses, nor shall they (themselves) leave, except in case they are guilty of some open lewdness. These are limits set by God; whoever transgresses the limits of God, has indeed wronged himself. You never know, God may afterward bring about a new situation.
2. Then, when they have reached their appointed term, take them back in kindness or part from them in kindness, and call to witness two just men among you, and keep your testimony upright for God. Whoso believes in God and the Last Day is exhorted to heed this. God will find a way out for he who remains conscious of Him.
3. And will provide for him from where he does not expect. And whosoever puts his trust in God, He will suffice him. God brings His command to pass. God has set a measure for everything.
4. As for those of your women who have reached menopause, if you have any doubts, their term shall be three months – and also for those who have not yet menstruated. As for those who are pregnant, their period shall be till they have delivered. And whosoever remains conscious of God, He will make his course easy for him.
5. This is God's command, which He has sent down to you; and whoever remains conscious of God, God will absolve him of his sinful deeds and will magnify his reward.
6. Lodge them where you dwell, according to your means, and do not harass them in order to oppress them. And if they are pregnant, then spend on them till they give birth. Then, if they breast feed for you, then give them their due payment and consult together in kindness; but if you make difficulties for one another, then let some other woman breast feed for him.
7. Let the man of means spend according to his means; and the man whose resources are restricted, let him spend according to what God has given him. God does not burden any person beyond what He has given him. After a difficulty, God will soon bring relief.
8. And how many a community revolted against the ordinance of its Lord and His messengers, and We called it to a stern account and punished it with dire torment.
9. Then they tasted the bad consequences of their conduct, and the end of their conduct was perdition.
10. God has prepared for them a severe torment (in the Hereafter). Therefore, people of understanding who have believed be conscious of God. God has indeed sent down to you a reminder.

11. A messenger who recites to you the revelations of God, clear and distinct, that He may bring those who believe and do good deeds from darkness into light. And whosoever believeth in God and does good deeds, He will bring him into gardens underneath which rivers flow, therein to abide forever. God has given him excellent provision.
12. God is He who created seven heavens and of the earth the like thereof. The commandment comes down among them slowly, that you may know that God has power over everything, and that God has indeed encompassed all things in knowledge. (65: 1-12)

In this Sura, rules to be followed during the process of divorce are explained. Some of the rules governing divorce were mentioned in Surat Al-Baqarah (Chapter 2). This Sura also outlines the rights of the divorcees.

“Prophet, when any of you intend to divorce women, do so at a time when their prescribed waiting period can properly start, and count (accurately), their prescribed periods. And be conscious of God your Lord. Do not evict them from their houses, nor shall they (themselves) leave, except in case they are guilty of some open lewdness. These are limits set by God; whoever transgresses the limits of God, has indeed wronged himself. You never know, God may afterward bring about a new situation.” To emphasize the gravity of the matter the command was directed to the Prophet (PBUH), but it also applies to all Muslims. The verse indicates that a man cannot divorce his wife during her monthly period. It has been narrated that the Umar (RA) told the Prophet (PBUH) that his son Ibn Umar (RA) divorced his wife while she was menstruating. The Prophet (PBUH) was angry and he commanded Umar (RA) to tell his son to bring her back until she becomes clean. They should wait until she has had her period another time and becomes clean again. If he still wanted a divorce, then he should not touch her before he could have the divorce. This is the meaning of the waiting period. This is an attempt to give a chance for people to think things over; it may be that they change their minds. The parties should keep account of the waiting period so that the woman would not be treated unjustly. During this waiting period women should remain in their homes. Men should not evict them and they should not leave the houses unless it has been proven that the woman has committed an open lewdness. During this period the woman would still live in the house however, there will be no intimate relationship between the couple. The ruling provides an opportunity for the parties to deal with their differences. However, in case a gross and open indecency has occurred then the woman should leave the house. Her presence in the house after such incident will produce an acrimonious atmosphere and will cause the differences to escalate not to abate.

These are the limits set by God. He who transgresses these limits has indeed wronged himself. This is a very stern warning for those who transgress. However, who knows, the situation may change and the couple may be able to reconcile their differences. This is the rationale behind the requirement that the woman should stay at home during the waiting period.

“Then, when they have reached their appointed term, take them back in kindness or part from them in kindness, and call to witness two just men among you, and keep your testimony upright for God. Whoso believes in God and the Last Day is exhorted to heed this. God will find a way out for he who remains conscious of Him.” This is the second stage in the divorce process. If the husband changed his mind before the waiting period has ended, then they can go back and resume their married life together. But once the waiting period has ended then the divorce has taken place. If he changed his mind after that, they can only go back to resume their married life together with a new marriage contract. Whether they go back to resume their married life according to the above mentioned conditions or they continue with the divorce procedure they should do that amicably. In both cases, the decision should be witnessed by two just men so that the decision would be publicly known. This testimony is for God; He is a witness on the transaction. The believers are exhorted to abide by these rules. God will find a way out of the difficulty that faces those who remain conscious of Him. God will also provide for them from wherever they do not expect. This promise provides an incentive to the believers to abide by the rules decreed for the divorce process. It is difficult to ensure the application of the rules decreed by God without exercising God consciousness, “And will provide for him from where he does not expect. And whosoever puts his trust in God, He will suffice him. God brings His command to pass. God has set a measure for everything.” God has set a measure for everything; what happens, when it happens, where it happens, and how it happens? Everything that happens in this universe is well planned. The rules governing the divorce process are part of this well planned universe and should be observed meticulously.

“As for those of your women who have reached menopause, if you have any doubts, their term shall be three months – and also for those who have not yet menstruated. As for those who are pregnant, their period shall be till they have delivered. And whosoever remains conscious of God, He will make his course easy for him. This is God’s command, which He has sent down to you; and whoever remains conscious of God, God will absolve him of his sinful deeds and will magnify his reward.” These verses determine the length of the waiting period for the women who have reached menopause and those who have not yet menstruated. Their waiting period is three months. Delivery signals the end of the waiting period for those who are pregnant. Then the verses bring a promise for those who remain conscious of God; God will make their course easy for them. Ease of life is a great blessing from God and it is the ultimate goal for any one. The verses again remind people that these are God’s commands revealed specifically for the believers so that they obey them. Two more promises are made; those who remain God conscious are promised a wide forgiveness for their previous sins and a great reward from God. It is a general statement and a generous offer. Mentioning these promises in connection with the divorce process is an incentive for people to be conscious of God during the whole process.

“Lodge them where you dwell, according to your means, and do not harass them in order to oppress them. And if they are pregnant, then spend on them till they give birth. Then, if they breast feed for you, then give them their due payment and consult together in kindness; but if you make difficulties for one another, then let some other woman breast feed for him.” This is the last rule regarding the dwelling of the divorcees and their financial rights. A man should lodge his divorcee in a home of the same class as the home that he himself lives in, with the caveat that it should be within his means. Men should not lodge their divorcees during the waiting period in inferior dwellings, nor are they allowed to harass them. Although men should provide for their divorcees during the waiting period according to their means but the provisions for the pregnant women are specifically mentioned; indicating that the provision has to continue until delivery has taken place.

Breast feeding is not an obligation on the mother and she should be amply remunerated if she chose to breast feed her baby. They should maintain an amicable atmosphere, otherwise someone else should breast feed the baby. The parents were commanded to consult together regarding the affairs of the baby. The child has been entrusted to their care; they should not let the conflict between them affect the interest of the child.

Men are required to spend according to their means. God does not burden a soul beyond its capacity. He is the Provider so both the man and the woman should be considerate in their requirements, “Let the man of means spend according to his means; and the man whose resources are restricted, let him spend according to what God has given him. God does not burden any person beyond what He has given him.” Another ray of hope is shown, “After a difficulty, God will soon bring relief.” God has the ultimate power in bringing relief, so people should remain conscious of Him.

The Sura concludes with a lesson from the history of those who committed tyranny against God and His messengers in the past. They neither listened nor did they obey. The verses remind the people of the consequence of tyranny against God. They also remind the believers of the blessings that God bestowed on them in His revelation by detailing the rules that should govern their lives and allows them to lead a decent life, “And how many a community revolted against the ordinance of its Lord and His messengers, and We called it to a stern account and punished it with dire torment.” A dire punishment awaits those who revolt against God and His messengers. This is God’s rule that does not change. The consequences are then detailed, “Then they tasted the bad consequences of their conduct, and the end of their conduct was perdition. God has prepared for them a severe torment (in the Hereafter).” Let us stop for a moment and reflect on this warning. Every nation that revolted against God and His messenger was seized and punishment a painful punishment. This warning is mentioned here after the divorce process has been described. This implies that there is a connection between the two. One may conclude that divorce is not a private matter between two individuals, but it is a matter that concerns the whole society. The Muslim nation as a whole is responsible for upholding God’s command regarding divorce. A nation that does not abide by the rules decreed by God is a nation that has revolted against God. God's commands were decreed to organize the way of life of people. A nation that does not apply these commands is warned by a dire punishment. The nations that were punished in the past received its punishment in this life, but there is more severe punishment that awaits them in the Hereafter.

An address is directed to the people of understanding, those whose understanding guided them to believe in God, "Therefore, people of understanding who have believed be conscious of God. God has indeed sent down to you a reminder." God has brought down a reminder. This reminder is being recited to you by His Messenger, "A messenger who recites to you the revelations of God, clear and distinct, that He may bring those who believe and do good deeds from darkness into light. And whosoever believeth in God and does good deeds, He will bring him into gardens underneath which rivers flow, therein to abide forever. God has given him excellent provision." This reminder was passed to them through the Messenger (PBUH), however the contents of the revelation were delivered intact and did not suffer any distortion through the process of transmission by the Messenger (PBUH). The verse may also imply that the person of the Messenger (PBUH) has been transformed into a form of the remembrance of God. The Messenger (PBUH) was a living example of the revelation. It has been narrated that Aisha (RA) described the Prophet (PBUH) by saying, "His character was the Quran." This reminder brings the blessings of the light, guidance, righteousness, a great reward in the Hereafter, in addition a promise of excellent provision. God is the Provider. He will provide in this life as well as in the Hereafter. The provision in the Hereafter is the best of provision.

"God is He who created seven heavens and of the earth the like thereof. The commandment comes down among them slowly, that you may know that God has power over everything, and that God has indeed encompassed all things in knowledge." We have no way of knowing what is meant by the seven heavens and the seven earths. There is no need to dwell on conjectures regarding these verses. We focus here on the impact of such verses on the process of belief. God decrees His commands from high above to be obeyed. We can glean two lessons from this verse. The first is that God is Omniscient. His knowledge has encompassed everything. He is the one who decrees the rules and set the limits. He knows that these are the best rules to deal with the conflict between a husband and a wife. The second lesson is that the only guarantee that not only the letter but also the spirit of the rules would be implemented is for people to be conscious of God.

Sura 66: Al-Tahrim (Prohibition)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 12:

1. Prophet, why do you forbid (yourself of) that which God has made lawful to you, seeking to please your wives. And God is All-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy.
2. God has already ordained for you, the dissolution of your oaths. And God is your Patron, and He is Omniscient, Wise.
3. When the Prophet disclosed a matter in confidence to one of his wives, and she then divulged it (to another), and God made it known to him, he confirmed part thereof and ignored a part. Then when he told her thereof, she said, "Who told you this?" He said, "The Omniscient, the Totally-Aware told me."
4. Would you two turn in repentance to God, for your hearts have swerved; but if you back up each other against him, truly God is his Patron, and Gabriel, and the righteous among the believers - and furthermore, the angels will back (him) up.
5. It may happen that his Lord, if he divorces you, will give him in your stead wives better than you, submissive (to God), believing, pious, penitent, devout, inclined to fasting, widows and virgins.
6. Believers, protect yourselves and your families from a Fire whose fuel is people and stones, over which are (appointed) angels stern (and) severe; they do not disobey God's in what He commands them and they do what they are commanded."
7. Disbelievers, do not make any excuses today. You are only being requited for that which you did."
8. Believers, turn to God in sincere repentance. It may be that your Lord will absolve you of your sinful deeds and admit you into gardens underneath which rivers flow, on the day when God will not abase the Prophet and those who believe with him. Their light will proceed before them and on their right hands; they will say, "Our Lord, perfect our light for us, and forgive us. You have the power to do everything."
9. Prophet, strive hard against the disbelievers and the hypocrites, and be firm against them. Their refuge is Hell, a wretched destination.
10. God sets forth, an example of the disbelievers, the wife of Noah and the wife of Lut. They were under two of our righteous servants, but they betrayed them and they (the husbands) availed them nothing against God and it was said (to them), "Enter the Fire along with those who are entering."
11. And God sets forth, an example of the believers, the wife of Pharaoh. She said, "My Lord, build for me, in nearness to You, a mansion in the Garden, and save me from Pharaoh and his doings, and save me from the wrongdoers."
12. And Mary the daughter of Imran, who guarded her chastity; and We breathed into her of Our spirit; and she testified to the truth of the words of her Lord and of His Books, and was one of the devout (servants). (66: 1 - 12)

This Sura portrays some of the scenes of the daily life of the Prophet (PBUH) in connection with his wives. It describes some of the dynamics of the interaction between the Prophet (PBUH) and his wives. The incident that the Sura alludes to, must have happened after the wedding of the Prophet (PBUH) to Zainab bint Jahsh (RA).

“Prophet, why do you forbid (yourself of) that which God has made lawful to you, seeking to please your wives. And God is All-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy. God has already ordained for you, the dissolution of your oaths. And God is your Patron, and He is Omniscient, Wise. When the Prophet disclosed a matter in confidence to one of his wives, and she then divulged it (to another), and God made it known to him, he confirmed part thereof and repudiated a part. Then when he told her thereof, she said, “Who told you this?” He said, “The Omniscient, the Totally-Aware told me.” Would you two turn in repentance to God, for your hearts have swerved; but if you back up each other against him, truly God is his Patron, and Gabriel, and righteous among the believers - and furthermore, the angels will back (him) up. It may happen that his Lord, if he divorces you, will give him in your stead wives better than you, submissive (to God), believing, pious, penitent, devout, inclined to fasting, widows and virgins.” It was narrated that the Prophet’s (PBUH) wife Zainab bin Jahsh (RA) used to offer the Prophet (PBUH) honey when he visited her. Aisha (RA) and Hafsa (RA) became jealous and schemed together. They agreed that one of them who would be visited by the Prophet (PBUH) would make a casual remark about the Prophet’s (PBUH) smell. She would say casually that the Prophet (PBUH) smelled as if he ate Maghafeer (A kind of gum that has a delicious taste but has a bad smell.) When the Prophet (PBUH) heard this comment he said, “No, I did not eat Maghafeer. But I ate honey from Zainab bint Jahsh. I will not do that again, but this is between you and me. So do not tell anybody.” The Quran blamed the Prophet (PBUH) for vowing not to eat honey, which is a lawful food. “Prophet, why do you forbid (yourself of) that which God has made lawful to you, seeking to please your wives.”

The wife of the Prophet (PBUH) who told him that he smelled like Maghafeer told her partner in the conspiracy about the Prophet’s (PBUH) response. The Prophet (PBUH) was apprised of the matter by God. So, he mentioned it briefly to his wife who was surprised. How could the Prophet (PBUH) know about this conspiracy? She asked him, “Who told you this?” and he answered, “The Omniscient, the Totally-Aware told me.” As a result of this episode and because of other interactions between the wives of the Prophet (PBUH), he decided to go into seclusion and stay away from his wives for a period of one month. He was even on the verge of divorcing them. Then these verses were revealed. These verses calmed and comforted the Prophet (PBUH) and he resumed his marital life with his wives.

The Sura starts with a verse that mildly and kindly rebuked the Prophet (PBUH), “Prophet, why do you forbid (yourself of) that which God has made lawful to you, seeking to please your wives. And God is All-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy. God has already ordained for you, the dissolution of your oaths. And God is your Patron, and He is Omniscient, Wise.” The verse states a fundamental principle. It is not reasonable to deprive oneself of the benefit of something that God has decreed to be lawful just to please someone else. However, God is All-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy. God provided a solution for breaking vows which do not achieve a good end. When someone vows to abstain from doing a good thing, then it is better to dissolve one’s commitment to that vow. The way to dissolve one’s commitment to this kind of oath has been described. God is your Patron; He helps you in the time of difficulty and He is Omniscient, Wise. He knows what is best for you. So do not make lawful what He has forbidden and do not forbid that which He made lawful.

The verses then continue to allude to the story without details, “When the Prophet disclosed a matter in confidence to one of his wives and she then divulged it (to another),” The verse refers to an amazing time in the history; a time when the communication lines were open between heaven and earth. God told the Prophet (PBUH) what transpired and the Prophet (PBUH) made his wife aware that he knew what she and her partner in the conspiracy are up to, “and God made it known to him, he confirmed part thereof and ignored a part. Then when he told her thereof, she said, “Who told you this?” He said, “The Omniscient, the Totally-Aware told me.” The Quran then addressed the two wives, “Would you two turn in repentance to God, for your hearts have swerved; but if you back up each other against him, truly God is his Patron, and Gabriel, and the righteous among the believers - and furthermore, the angels will back (him) up.” They have been called upon to repent sincerely to God. The conflict must have taken its toll on the Prophet (PBUH). God comforted him by pronouncing not only His support but the support of Gabriel, the angels and the righteous from among the believers. Then the choices that God had made available for His Messenger (PBUH) were announced, “It may happen that his Lord, if he divorces you, will give him in your stead wives better than you, submissive (to God), believing, pious, penitent, devout, inclined to fasting, widows and virgins.” These are the desired traits in the Prophet’s (PBUH) wives. So, they should strive to acquire them. It is also a warning against engaging in such conspiracies. These verses achieved the desired result and the Prophet’s (PBUH) marital life continued smoothly afterwards.

“Believers, protect yourselves and your families from a Fire whose fuel is people and stones, over which are (appointed) angels stern (and) severe; they do not disobey God’s in what He commands them and they do what they are commanded.” The believer has a great responsibility towards his family. He should not only protect himself but also protect his family of the punishment of the Fire. It is a huge and fearful fire that uses stones as fuel and it is managed by stern and fierce angels who obey God’s commands. On that day the disbelievers will try to make excuses, but it will be said to them, “Do not make any excuses today. You are only being requited for that which you did.”

But how can one save himself and his family from this fire, “Believers, turn to God in sincere repentance. It may be that your Lord will absolve you of your sinful deeds and admit you into gardens underneath which rivers flow, on the day when God will not abase the Prophet and those who believe with him. Their light will proceed before them and on their right hands; they will say, ‘Our Lord, perfect our light for us, and forgive us. You have the power to do everything.’” The road to salvation is a sincere repentance that starts with regretting the sins that have been committed and ends by doing good deeds and obeying God. This will lead not only to forgiveness of sins but also to be blessed by the acquisition of light from God. On that day the believers will pray God, “Our Lord, perfect our light for us, and forgive us. You have the power to do everything.”

The lesson we glean from these verses is that the believer is responsible for guiding his family as well as guiding himself. Islam is a religion of the family. The family is the building block of the society. The building blocks have to be strong for the building to be strong. So, if we want to build a strong society we have to start by building strong families. Building a strong family is not the responsibility of the father alone but it is a shared responsibility between the father and the mother. The Quran has been revealed for both men and women in the society and they should work together to build generations of believers.

The Prophet (PBUH) was commanded to take suitable measures to protect the Muslim society, “Prophet, strive hard against the disbelievers and the hypocrites, and be firm against them. Their refuge is Hell, a wretched destination.” This statement has great significance. The Muslims need to take suitable measures to protect the society from those who attack it from within and from without. The disbelievers are the external enemy and the hypocrites are the internal enemy. They should be dealt with harshly by the believers in this life and God will punish them in the Hereafter.

The last part of this Sura deals with examples of disbelieving women who were closely associated with prophets and believing women who were closely associated with disbelievers, “God sets forth, an example of the disbelievers, the wife of Noah and the wife of Lut. They were under two of our righteous servants, but they betrayed them and they (the husbands) availed them nothing against God and it was said (to them), ‘Enter the Fire along with those who are entering.’ And God sets forth, an example of the believers, the wife of Pharaoh. She said, ‘My Lord, build for me, in nearness to You a mansion in the Garden, and save me from Pharaoh and his doings, and save me from the wrongdoers.’” The wives of Prophets Noah (PBUH) and Lut (PBUH) did not believe in the message that their husbands brought and followed those who rejected their guidance. The wife of Pharaoh was a believing woman. The message that the verses convey is that belief is an individual responsibility. A prophet will not be able to defend his closest family member in front of God if they choose to disbelieve. On the other hand, the wife of Pharaoh chose to believe even though she was living in the midst of a disbelieving environment. She disowned Pharaoh and his evil deeds. She gave the highest example of sacrificing all the pleasures of life for the sake of her faith.

Another example of piety and devotion is given by Mary the daughter of Imran, “And Mary the daughter of Imran, who guarded her chastity; and We breathed into her of Our spirit; and she testified to the truth of the words of her Lord and of His Books, and was one of the devout (servants).” Mary was a pure and chaste woman. She believed in the truthfulness of God words and His books.

The mention of the wife of Pharaoh in conjunction with Mary shows the high rank that God has bestowed on her. These are two excellent role models for all believing women.

Sura 67: Al-Mulk (The Sovereignty)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

1. Blessed is He in whose hand is the sovereignty, and He has power over all things.
2. He who created death and life, that He may test which of you is best in deed; and He is the Eminent, the All-Forgiving;
3. He who created the seven heavens one above another. You will not see a flaw in what the Lord of Mercy creates. So look again, can you see any rifts?
4. Then look again and yet again, your sight will return to you weak and exhausted.
5. And we have adorned the lowest heaven with lamps, and We have made such (lamps) (as) missiles to drive away the devils, and have prepared for them the torment of the blazing fire.
6. And for those who disbelieve in their Lord there is the torment of Hell; wretched is the destination.
7. When they are flung therein they hear its roaring as it boils up, as it would burst with rage.
8. Whenever a host is flung therein the wardens thereof ask them, "Did not a warner come to you?"
9. They will say, "Yes indeed; a warner came to us, but we rejected him and said, 'God never sent down any (Message); you are only in a great error.'"
10. They will say, "Had we listened or reasoned, we should not be among the companions of the blazing fire."
11. They will then confess their sins; but far will be (forgiveness) from the companions of the blazing fire.
12. As for those who fear their Lord in secret, for them is forgiveness and a great reward.
13. And whether you hide your word or proclaim it, He certainly has (full) knowledge, of the secrets of the hearts.
14. Should He not know what He created? and He is the Subtle, the Totally-Aware.
15. It is He who made the earth manageable for you, so walk through its tracts and enjoy the sustenance which He provides; and to Him is the Resurrection.
16. Do you feel secure that He who is in heaven will not cause you to be swallowed up by the earth when it shakes?
17. Or do you feel secure that He who is in heaven will not send against you a violent tornado to pelt you with stones? Then you would know how (severe) was My warning?
18. And verily those before them denied, and how (terrible) was My wrath?
19. Do they not see the birds above them, spreading their wings and folding them in? None can uphold them except the Lord of Mercy. Indeed, He sees everything.
20. Or who is there that can help you, (even as) an army, besides the Lord of Mercy? The disbelievers are only in delusion.
21. Or who is there that can provide for you if He were to withhold His provision? No, they obstinately persist in insolence and aversion.
22. Is he who walks falling on his face better guided, or one who walks upright on a straight path?
23. Say, "It is He who created you, and endowed you with hearing, sight, and understanding; little is it that you give thanks."

24. Say, "It is He who has multiplied you through the earth, and to Him shall you be gathered together."
25. They ask, "When will this promise be (fulfilled), if you are telling the truth?"
26. Say, "The knowledge is with God only, and I am only a plain warner."
27. And when they see it close at hand, the disbelievers' faces will be gloomy; and it will be said, "This is (the promise fulfilled), which you were calling for."
28. Say, "If God were to destroy me and those with me, or if He bestows His Mercy on us, who can protect the disbelievers from a painful torment?"
29. Say, "He is the Lord of Mercy, We have believed in Him, and in Him we put our trust. And you will soon know who it is that is in clear error."
30. Say, "Have you thought: if (all) your water was to disappear into the earth, who could then bring you flowing water?" (67: 1 – 30)

This is the first Sura of Part 29. All the Suras in this Part have been revealed in Mecca. Some of the verses in this Part were among the very first verses that have been revealed e.g. the opening verses in Surat Al-Muzzammil (Chapter 73), and Surat Al-Muddathir (Chapter 74). The verses of the Quran that have been revealed in Mecca were mainly concerned with establishing the doctrine and formulating an understanding of the universe and its relationship to its Creator. They also dealt with introducing the attributes of the Creator in a way that fills the hearts of people with awe of God. These feelings drive people to connect with their Creator.

This Sura delves into the worlds of God's creations e.g. jinn and birds. It also deals with the Hereafter and its keepers. It states the absolute sovereignty of God and His limitless power over everything. It describes the perfection of the creation of God.

"Blessed is He in whose hand is the sovereignty, and He has power over all things." This opening which expresses the praise of God, indicates the limitless blessings of God which He bestows on His dominion. He is the Sovereign and the Controller of the universe and His power is limitless. He created death and life. Death indicates the two states of death. The first is before one has been born and the second is after life has ended; and life means life in this world and life in the Hereafter. Describing the state before birth as a state of death justifies the mention of death before life in the verse. All these states are created by God because He wanted to test humankind. The creation was done according to a deliberate plan to uncover the knowledge that God already has about people's behavior and reward people for what they have actually done not according to God's knowledge. God is Eminent and All-Forgiving. These are attributes which fill the heart of the believer with security and serenity. God is Mighty and Overwhelming but He is also All-Forgiving and Tolerant, "He who created death and life, that He may test which of you is best in deed; and He is the Eminent, the All-Forgiving."

The true image of God which Islam portrays is the image of a God who wants people to understand the purpose of their existence and to live up to the honor that God bestowed on them. This is the honor which they received when God breathed in them of His spirit. This honor made them better than many of God's creations. If people achieve this end then they will receive God's mercy, support, and forgiveness. Signs of these facts can be seen in the universe, "He who created the seven heavens one above another. You will not see a flaw in what the Lord of Mercy creates. So look again, can you see any rifts?" God's creation is perfect. It is a testimony to the limitless power of God. The question is repeated again, "Look again and yet again, your sight will return to you weak and exhausted." You will not find any flaw. The challenge posed in these verses is meant to motivate people to observe and reflect on God's creation. People should reflect on the marvels of the creation of God. The heart of the believer is tuned to the subtle responses of the universe.

"And we have adorned the lowest heaven with lamps," What is meant by the, "lowest heaven?" Maybe it is the sky that the people living on earth see with their naked eyes. The Quran attracts the attention to the beauty of the sky and the beauty of the whole universe. This is the best way to understand and discover the beauty of the Creator. The discovery of the beauty of the creation is the easiest and most realistic way to discover the beauty of the Creator. These lamps which are used to adorn the heaven have another function, "and We have made such (lamps) (as) missiles to drive away the devils, and have prepared for them the torment of the blazing fire." The devils are part of the unseen. We believe that they exist but we do not know anything about them except what we read about them in the Quran. These devils are pelted in this life; in the Hereafter they will receive the punishment of the blazing fire. The disbelievers will also be punished, "And for those who disbelieve in their Lord there is the torment of Hell; wretched is the destination." The details of Hell are then described, "When they are flung therein they hear its roaring as it boils up, as it would burst with rage. Whenever a host is flung therein the wardens thereof ask them, 'Did not a warner come to you?' They will say, 'Yes indeed; a warner came to us, but we rejected him and said, 'God never sent down any (Message); you are only in a great error.' They will say, 'Had we listened or reasoned, we should not be among the companions of the blazing fire.' They will then confess their sins; but far will be (forgiveness) from the companions of the blazing fire." The verses paint an image of Hell as if it were a living creature that feels and reacts. Such images lead to the conclusion that all the creatures of God believe in their Creator and praise Him. These creatures express their amazement that humankind does not heed the message of guidance sent to him. The dialogue between the keepers of Hell and the disbelievers reflects the regret that the disbelievers will experience when they are faced by the reality on the Day of Judgment.

The happy image of the believers on the Day of Judgment is juxtaposed against the horrible image of the disbelievers, "As for those who fear their Lord in secret, for them is forgiveness and a great reward." They did not see their Lord but they believed in Him. They also knew that God sees them whether they are in public or alone. Their behavior does not change either way. They then deserve the great reward that God has kept for them.

The theme of the previous verse continues in the following verse, "And whether you hide your word or proclaim it, He certainly has (full) knowledge, of the secrets of the hearts. Should He not know what He created? and He is the Subtle, the Totally-Aware." God knows what people do in the open and what they hide in their hearts. No one can escape this fact and nobody can hide from God. When people understand this fact and when it rests deep in their psyche they will be able to fulfill the undertaking that they have been entrusted with; the undertaking of conveying the doctrine, establishing justice, being sincere in their relationship with God. Their outward behavior will be a reflection for their inner feelings.

The narrative moves to another aspect of the creation of God, “It is He who made the earth manageable for you, so walk through its tracts and enjoy the sustenance which He provides; and to Him is the Resurrection.” One should reflect on the word, “manageable.” The early scholars understood that this word means that God has made it easy for us to travel whether we travel on foot, travel using a vehicle, or travel using an animal. It also meant that it was easy to cultivate and to grow plants. But when we look at the meaning of “manageable,” in terms of describing a vehicle then we can think of other interpretations. Consider the earth as a moving platform it rotates around itself, it rotates around the sun, and the solar system itself moves. These motions occur at phenomenal speeds however, while we are living normally, performing our daily chores without being affected by any of these motions. We are standing up or walking upright on earth as if the earth was a standing still platform. In this sense the earth becomes a “manageable” platform.

Each of the three motions of the earth serves a purpose. The rotation of the earth around itself produces the night and the day. If the earth was standing still, we would either have a night that would continue forever or a day that would continue forever. In the earlier case everything on the surface of the earth would freeze up and in the latter case everything on the surface of the earth would burn. The rotation of the earth around the sun produces the different seasons. Life as we know it would not have continued if we have only one season year around. The purpose of the third motion is not yet known.

God made the earth manageable by assigning a gravitational force that keeps people attached to its surface while it is moving around. God surrounded the earth with an atmosphere that allows people to move on its surface easily.

God made the earth manageable by covering it with a layer of soil that can be used to grow plants. God made the earth manageable by surrounding it with an atmosphere that allows life to continue on its surface.

There are many other things that one can think of that attach significant meanings to the word “manageable.”

Suddenly, while they are feeling secure and enjoying easy living on the earth that has been made manageable to them, the earth starts shaking under their feet and they are being pelted by stones carried by tornados, “Do you feel secure that He who is in heaven will not cause you to be swallowed up by the earth when it shakes? Or do you feel secure that He who is in heaven will not send against you a violent tornado to pelt you with stones? Then you would know how (severe) was My warning? And verily those before them denied, and how (terrible) was My wrath?” This is a reminder that the manageable earth can turn suddenly into a wild beast. Earthquakes, tornados, and hurricanes destroy, kill, and burn. People stand helpless in front of these natural catastrophes. Only God controls these natural phenomena.

The narrative's theme turns from the warning mode to the reflection mode, asking people to pay attention to common scenes that they see every day, "Do they not see the birds above them, spreading their wings and folding them in? None can uphold them except the Lord of Mercy. Indeed He sees everything." Many of the miracles that we see around us lose its novelty by time. People need to reflect on the simple phenomena like birds flying. These miracles happen by the command of the Lord of Mercy who sees everything.

"Or who is there that can help you, (even as) an army, besides the Lord of Mercy? The disbelievers are only in delusion." Who can protect you from God's wrath? Even the biggest armies could not protect people who disbelieve. Who would provide for you if God withheld His sustenance, "Or who is there that can provide for you if He were to withhold His provision? No, they obstinately persist in insolence and aversion." God controls the sustenance of people. Who can provide for people if God prevented the rain from coming down, caused the air to be polluted, or caused the basic elements needed for production to be depleted? But people do not understand these facts and they continue in their insolence and aversion.

The Quran then provides a comparison between those who are guided and those who went astray, "Is he who walks falling on his face better guided, or one who walks upright on a straight path?" Those who are deprived from God's guidance and have gone astray will never be happy; they will always be confused and lost. On the other hand, those who are guided will join the caravan of faith walking upright along a straight and easy path.

The verses then remind humankind of their Creator, and the blessings that God bestowed on them, "Say, 'It is He who created you, and endowed you with hearing, sight, and understanding; little is it that you give thanks.'"

"Say, 'It is He who has multiplied you through the earth, and to Him shall you be gathered together.'" God multiplied people and scattered them on the earth to go through the experience of life and to be tested. God will gather them on the Day of Judgment to account for what they did during their lifetime.

But they are in doubt of the Day of Judgment, "They ask, 'When will this promise be (fulfilled), if you are telling the truth?'" The task of the Prophet (PBUH) is to convey the clear warning; only God knows when the Day of Judgment will be. But we are certain that it will happen, "Say, 'The knowledge is with God only, and I am but a plain warner.'" When it happens they will face it with gloomy faces, "And when they see it close at hand, the disbelievers' faces will be gloomy; and it will be said, 'This is (the promise fulfilled), which you were calling for.'"

The idolaters thought that if they stay patient long enough, the Prophet (PBUH) and the believers will be annihilated. They can then go back to the old daily life routine. The Prophet (PBUH) challenged them; even if we die all of us, who will protect you? "Say, 'If God were to destroy me and those with me, or if He bestows His Mercy on us, who can protect the disbelievers from a painful torment?'" The verse does not confront them with their disbelief but alludes to the torment that awaits the disbelievers.

The disbelievers have no protector; but God is the protector of the believers, “Say, ‘He is the Lord of Mercy, We have believed in Him, and in Him we put our trust. And you will soon know who it is that is in clear error.’” The believers are closely connected to God, the Lord of Mercy, and in Him they have put their trust. The idolaters will soon know who is guided and who has gone astray.

The Sura is then concluded with a final warning, “Say, ‘Have you thought: If (all) your water were to disappear into the earth, who then could bring you flowing water?’”

Sura 68: Al-Qalam (The Pen)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 52:

1. Nun. By the pen and that which they write.
2. By the Blessing of your Lord, you are not mad.
3. And most surely you will have a never-ending reward.
4. And you are of a great moral character.
5. And you will see and they will see
6. Which of you is afflicted with madness.
7. Indeed, your Lord knows best who has strayed from His path; and He knows best those who are guided.
8. Therefore, do not obey the rejecters.
9. They wish that you would compromise, that they may compromise.
10. Do not yield to any contemptible swearer,
11. A slanderer, going about with calumnies,
12. Hinderer of good, transgressor, and sinful;
13. Cruel, and above all of this, an imposter;
14. Because he is a possessor of wealth and children.
15. When Our revelations are recited to him, he says, "Mere fables of former people."
16. We shall brand him on the nose.
17. Indeed, We have tried them as We tried the people of the garden, when they vowed that they would harvest its fruits the next morning,
18. And made no allowance (for the will of God);
19. Then there came on the (garden) a visitation from your Lord, (which swept away) all around, while they were asleep.
20. So the (garden) became, by the morning, like a dark and desolate spot, (whose fruits had been gathered).
21. As the morning broke they called out, one to another,
22. Saying, "Go early to your field if you are you going to harvest (the fruits)."
23. So they went off, saying one to another in low tones,
24. "No needy man shall enter it today."
25. And in the morning they went, bent on their purpose.
26. But when they saw the (garden), they said, "We have surely lost our way.
27. No, indeed we have been deprived."
28. The best among them said, "I said to you, 'Why you do not glorify (God)?'"
29. They said, "Glory to our Lord. Verily we have been wrongdoers."
30. Then they turned, one against another, in reproach.
31. They said, "Alas for us, we have indeed transgressed.
32. It may be that our Lord will give us in exchange a better (garden) than this; for we do turn to Him (in repentance.)"
33. Such was the torment. And verily the torment of the Hereafter is greater if they did but know.
34. Verily, for those who remain conscious of God are Gardens of bliss with their Lord.

35. Shall We then treat those who submit as the guilty?
36. What is the matter with you? How do you judge?
37. Or do you have a Scripture, from which you learn,
38. That you shall indeed have all that you choose?
39. Or do you have a covenant on oath from Us, reaching to the Day of Judgment, that you shall have whatever you shall demand?
40. Ask them, which of them will vouch for that?
41. Or do they have other gods? Then let them bring their other gods if they are truthful.
42. On the day when the shin will be exposed, and they will be invited to prostrate, but they will be unable.
43. Their eyes will be downcast; ignominy will cover them. And they used to be invited to prostration while they were sound.
44. Leave Me (to deal) with those who reject this statement. We shall lead them on by steps from where they do not know.
45. I will grant them respite, truly My plan is firm.
46. Or do you ask them for a reward, so that they are burdened with debt?
47. Or do they have (knowledge) of the unseen, so they can write it down?
48. So persevere waiting for the command of your Lord, and be not like the companion of the fish, when he cried out in agony.
49. Had not the Blessing from his Lord reached him, he would indeed have been cast off on the naked shore, in disgrace.
50. But his Lord chose him and placed him among the righteous.
51. And indeed, those who disbelieve would almost smite you with their eyes when they hear the reminder, and they say, "Most surely he is mad."
52. But it is only a reminder to the worlds. (68: 1 – 52)

We cannot ascertain the time of revelation of this Sura. In the chronological order of revelation, it has been narrated that this Sura occupies the second place after Surat Al-‘Alaq (Chapter 96). However, based on the topic discussed in the Sura we tend to believe that it has been revealed after the Prophet (PBUH) started to call openly to Islam which only happened after a period of three years from the start of the revelation. Some narrations indicated that verses 17 to 33 and 42 to 50 were revealed in Medina, but we think that this farfetched. We believe that the whole Sura was revealed in Mecca. It should be noted that the first few verses and the last few verses deal with one issue: the insolent response of the idolaters of Mecca to the call of Islam.

Hawwa points out some similarities between this Sura and other Suras in the Quran. Each one of the three Suras Sad, Qaf, and Nun starts with one letter: Sad, Qaf, and Nun, respectively. The three Suras also have similar ending. The last verse in the three Suras refers to the Qur’an as a reminder. Surat Sad ends by the verse, “It is but a reminder to all people. And you shall certainly know the truth of it after a while.” Surat Qaf ends with verse, “therefore remind by the Quran whoever fears My threat.” Surat Nub ends with verse, “But it is only a reminder to the worlds.” However, the main theme of each Sura is different.

“Nun. By the pen and that which they write,” God makes an oath with the letter “Nun,” the pen, and writing. It is clear that the three are closely related. The oath emphasizes the importance of these tools in learning. This oath was made at a time when the Arabs were mostly illiterate, few of them were able to read and write, to prepare this nation for the role that God wanted it to play. The oath emphasizes two facts, “by the Blessing of your Lord, you are not mad.” It emphasizes the fact that Muhammad (PBUH) has been blessed by the grace of his Lord and he is not a mad man as the idolaters claimed. The tone of the address is endearing, “your Lord.” It is amazing how these people could make such a claim about the Prophet (PBUH). They have known him all his life. They used to admire his wisdom, his honesty, and his integrity. They called him, “The honest, the trustworthy.”

God not only promised him a perpetual reward, “And most surely you will have a never-ending reward,” but He bestowed on him the greatest honor, “And you are of a great moral character.” This was a rank bestowed on Muhammad (PBUH) alone. No one else earned this highest honor. The verse also emphasizes the importance of moral characters for humankind. Ethical behavior is an integral and clear component of Islam. The Prophet (PBUH) has been quoted to have said, “I was sent to perfect the ethical behavior.”

God then reassured His Messenger (PBUH) about the future of the message, “And you will see and they will see, which of you is afflicted with madness. Indeed, your Lord knows best who has strayed from His path; and He knows best those who are guided.” These verses warn the idolaters and reassure the believers and the Prophet (PBUH). The verses promise to expose the reality regarding the claim of the disbelievers, because God knows everything.

The following verses expose the tactics of the idolaters in fighting the Prophet (PBUH), “Therefore do not obey the rejecters. They wish that you would compromise, that they may compromise.” They wanted to reach a compromise with the Prophet (PBUH). No believer can compromise regarding his faith. One cannot pick and choose the components of the doctrine. The doctrine has to be accepted as a whole. There are several narrations which described the details of the deals that the idolaters offered the Prophet (PBUH) which would make Islam acceptable to them. However, the Prophet (PBUH) stood firm and never compromised the faith. He did not accept any of these compromises. Even when he and the believers were besieged in Mecca and persecuted by the idolaters, they remained steadfast in their position. Several stories have been narrated about the different strategies which were adopted by the idolaters of Quraish to force the Prophet (PBUH) to compromise. Sometimes they threatened to kill him and sometimes they promised him honor and wealth. When the Prophet’s (PBUH) uncle Abu Taleb tried to mediate between him and the chiefs of Quraish, the Prophet (PBUH) has been quoted to have said, “My uncle, even if they were able to place the sun in my right hand and the moon in my left hand so that I stop calling people to Islam, I would not do it.” His uncle was so impressed with the sincerity and steadfastness of his nephew, he told the Prophet (PBUH) to continue on his path and continued to offer his protection to the Prophet (PBUH).

The Prophet (PBUH) was then commanded not to listen to the rejecters, “Do not yield to any contemptible swearer, a slanderer, going about with calumnies, hinderer of good, transgressor, and sinful; cruel, and above all of this, an imposter; because he is a possessor of wealth and children. When Our revelations are recited to him, he says, 'Mere fables of former people.' We shall brand him on the nose." It has been narrated that these verses refer to Al-Waleed ibn Al-Mughirah, one of the chiefs of Quraish. He was aggressively opposing the Prophet (PBUH) and barring people from listening to him. The verses attach to him several bad characters. The verses describe him as a liar, he frequently used oaths in his speech to convince people because he knew that people did not trust him. He was a slanderer. He used to go around spreading calumnies. He was a hinderer of good deeds, an aggressor, sinful, cruel and imposter. God gave him wealth and children but he was ungrateful and he rejected the revelations of God when they were recited to him. God promised to punish him severely.

The following verses relate a story, which seems to be familiar to the Arabs at that time. The story is about the consequences of showing ingratitude to God, "Indeed, We have tried them as We tried the people of the garden, when they vowed that they would harvest its fruits the next morning, And made no allowance (for the will of God); then there came on the (garden) a visitation from your Lord, (which swept away) all around, while they were asleep. So the (garden) became, by the morning, like a dark and desolate spot, (whose fruits had been gathered). As the morning broke they called out, one to another saying, "Go early to your field if you are you going to harvest (the fruits)." So they went off, saying one to another in low tones, "No needy man shall enter it today." And in the morning they went, bent on their purpose. But when they saw the (garden), they said, "We have surely lost our way. No, indeed we have been deprived." The best among them said, "I said to you, 'Why you do not glorify (God)?'" They said, "Glory to our Lord. Verily we have been wrongdoers." Then they turned, one against another, in reproach. They said, "Alas for us, we have indeed transgressed. It may be that our Lord will give us in exchange a better (garden) than this; for we do turn to Him (in repentance.)"

Such was the torment. And verily the torment of the Hereafter is greater if they did but know."

The verses tell the story of a group of young men who inherited a garden. Their father used to give some of its harvest in charity to poor people. When he died the children decided to keep all the harvest for themselves. They decided to go very early in the morning to harvest the fruits before any poor person would approach them for a charity. They decided not to give any of the harvest in charity as was the habit of their father. God destroyed their plants while they were asleep at night. They woke up early in the morning and went surreptitiously to harvest the garden. When they reached the location of their garden, they found a barren land in its stead. Their first reaction was that they must have made a mistake and went to a different place. But they soon realized that this was the wreckage of their garden after it has been destroyed. One of them, who seems to be the wisest among them reminded them of something he had told them when they were planning to cut off the poor. He said, "I said to you, 'Why you do not glorify (God)?'" They suddenly realized their fault. They responded, "Glory to our Lord. Verily we have been wrongdoers." They started blaming each other. Then they confessed their sin and asked for forgiveness. This was their punishment in this life, but the torment in the Hereafter is more severe. This was the message sent to the idolaters of Mecca. They were being tested as others were tested before them. On the other hand, those who are conscious of God will be rewarded generously, "Verily, for those who remain conscious of God are Gardens of bliss with their Lord."

The Quran addressed the disbelievers directly, “Shall We then treat those who submit as the guilty? What is the matter with you? How do you judge? Or do you have a Scripture, from which you learn, that you shall indeed have all that you choose? Or do you have a covenant on oath from Us, reaching to the Day of Judgment, that you shall have whatever you shall demand? Ask them, which of them will vouch for that? Or do they have other gods? Then let them bring their other gods if they are truthful.” A rhetorical question was posed to the idolaters, “Is it reasonable that the believers and the disbelievers would be treated similarly?” If that is what they expected, then another question follows: what is the basis for your expectations? The Quran then mocked the idolaters. Did they base their expectations on a scripture that they received before? Or is it their whims that dictated such an expectation? Did they have a covenant with God that guaranteed these expectations? Or do they have other gods? Let them bring their gods if such gods did exist.

Then a warning of what they will see on the Day of Judgment was issued, “On the day when the shin will be exposed, and they will be invited to prostrate, but they will be unable. Their eyes will be downcast, ignominy will cover them. And they used to be invited to prostration while they were sound.” The expression, “the shin will be exposed,” is a figure of speech which is used to denote a difficult time that will be encountered. This is the difficult time that they will encounter on the Day of Judgment. On that day they will be asked to prostrate but they will be unable to prostrate. They will be humiliated and they will be reminded that this is the punishment which they earned because they rejected guidance to which they were invited during their lifetime.

The warning is repeated, “Leave Me (to deal) with those who reject this statement.” Who can withstand God’s punishment? God has a plan for those who rejected guidance, “We shall lead them on by steps from where they do not know. I will grant them respite, truly My plan is firm.” More rhetorical questions were posed. Were they asked to pay for guidance? “Or do you ask them for a reward, so that they are burdened with debt?” Or did they know something of the unseen, so that they were not afraid of God’s punishment? “Or do they have (knowledge) of the unseen, so they can write it down?”

The verses reassure the Prophet (PBUH) and the believers that they should not be worried about the fight with the disbelievers. God manages the battle between the truth and the falsehood. The disbelievers are fighting God and He will take care of them. These verses were revealed in the early days of Islam when Muslims were few and weak to establish the principle that the disbelievers’ fight is with God. The believers may have a role to play but it is a limited role and its objective is to test the perseverance of the believers.

A command to the Prophet (PBUH) to persevere was then issued, “So persevere waiting for the command of your Lord, and be not like the companion of the fish, when he cried out in agony. Had not the Blessing from his Lord reached him, he would indeed have been cast off on the naked shore, in disgrace. But his Lord chose him and placed him among the righteous.” These verses allude to the story of Prophet Jonah (Yunus; PBUH) which has been mentioned in Surat As-Saffat (Chapter 37). Reciting the story here is part of the necessary preparation for Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) to enable him to complete his mission. Prophet Jonah (PBUH) was sent by God to a town to guide its people to the straight path. They did not respond to his call quickly enough and he became impatient. He left the town and boarded a ship. The weather turned rough and the sailors needed to lighten the ship's load. They decided to take lots to find out who can be thrown overboard to lighten the ship's load. When the lot was cast, it happened to be Prophet's Jonah (PBUH) turn. He was thrown overboard and a whale swallowed him. When he was in the belly of the whale he prayed God saying, "There is no deity but You, glory be to You, I have been indeed a wrongdoer." God saved him and commanded the whale to spit him alive. God then chose him and made him one of the righteous. This was a lesson in perseverance given to Prophet Muhammad (PBUH).

The Sura is concluded with an image of the rage which engulfed the disbelievers as they were being invited to Islam. When they looked at the Prophet (PBUH), their looks were full of hate and anger it could have made him slip and fall. Their words were not less harsh than their looks, "And indeed, those who disbelieve would almost smite you with their eyes when they hear the reminder, and they say, 'Most surely he is mad.'"

But This Quran is only a reminder, "But it is only a reminder to the worlds." One should reflect on the wording, "a reminder to the worlds." The Message from its first day was intended for the whole world. It was not meant to be a local message and later evolved. It was meant to be a universal message since its inception.

Sura 69: Al-Haqqah (The Reality)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 52:

1. The Reality.
2. What is the Reality?
3. And what will make you realize what the Reality is?
4. (The tribes of) Thamud and A'ad denied the Striking Calamity.
5. As for Thamud, they were destroyed by the overwhelming blast.
6. And as for A'ad, they were destroyed by a fierce roaring wind;
7. He made it rage against them seven nights and eight days in succession; so that you could see the people lying dead as if they were hollow trunks of palm-trees.
8. Do you see any remnant of them?
9. And Pharaoh, and those before him, and the Overturned Cities, committed habitual sin.
10. And they disobeyed the messenger of their Lord, therefore He seized them with a tightening grip.
11. When the waters overflowed, We carried you on the ship;
12. That We might make it a reminder for you, and that attentive ears may take heed.
13. And when the trumpet is blown with a single blast;
14. And the earth with the mountains shall be lifted up and crushed with a single blow,
15. On that day will the Event befall.
16. And the sky will be rent asunder, for it will that Day be flimsy,
17. And the angels will be on its sides, and eight will, that Day, bear the Throne of your Lord above them.
18. On that day you will be exposed; not a secret of you will be hidden.
19. Then, as for him who is given his record in his right hand, he will say, "Here, read my book.
20. Surely I knew that I should have to meet my reckoning."
21. And he will be in a life of bliss,
22. In a high garden,
23. The fruits of which are near at hand.
24. (And it will be said), "Eat and drink at ease for what you did beforehand in the days gone by."
25. But as for him who is given his record in his left hand, he will say, "I wish I had not been given my book.
26. And never knew what my account was.
27. If only it was the end.
28. My wealth availed me nothing.
29. My power has vanished from me."
30. (It will be said), "Take him and put a chain on him,
31. And burn him in Hellfire.
32. Further, make him march in a chain, the length of which is seventy cubits.
33. He used not to believe in God, the Great;
34. Nor did he advocate feeding of the poor.

35. Therefore, today he has no true friend here,
36. Nor any food except scum,
37. Which none but the sinners eat.
38. Indeed, I swear by what you see,
39. And what you do not see,
40. That this is verily the speech of a noble messenger;
41. And it is not the speech of a poet - little it is you believe;
42. Nor it is the speech of a soothsayer - little it is you take heed.
43. It is a revelation from the Lord of the worlds.
44. And if he had fabricated against Us some sayings,
45. We assuredly would have taken him by the right hand,
46. And then severed his life-artery.
47. And not one of you could have restrained Us from him.
48. But verily this is a Message for the God conscious.
49. And We certainly know that there are among you those who reject (it).
50. And it surely a source of grieve for the disbelievers.
51. But verily it is the truth of assured certainty;
52. S fo glorify the name of your Lord, the Great. (69: 1 – 52)

This is a great and horrifying Sura. Upon hearing it being recited, one cannot control oneself not to shudder. Each verse of the Sura is like a hammer that strikes the psyche of the individual creating a horrifying feeling. The Sura instills in the psyche of the person one message: one should take this religion and its doctrine very seriously. One should not take this Message lightly because it is greater than the Messenger (PBUH) and greater than the whole human race. It is the truth, the truth of assured certainty from the Lord of the worlds.

The Sura starts with the mention of the Day of Resurrection, “The Reality. What is the Reality? And what will make you realize what the Reality is?” The word used to describe the Day of Resurrection is “the reality.” The reality is the truth of the matter, it is the judgment that has been decreed, and it is what will certainly happen. All these meanings are plausible explanation for the title of the Sura and the word used to start the Sura. The question was asked but no answer was given because it is beyond human understanding.

The subsequent verses speak of those who rejected guidance, “(The tribes of) Thamud and A'ad denied the Striking Calamity.” The expression “Striking Calamity,” is another name for the Day of Resurrection. The Striking Calamity is a calamity that strikes the hearts with terrifying fear and strikes the universe with destruction. Thamud and A’ad were punished because they denied the Day of Judgment, “As for Thamud, they were destroyed by the overwhelming blast.” The tribe of Thamud used to live in the area between Hijaz and Syria. They were destroyed by an overwhelming blast. The blast that seized the tribe of Thamud was sudden and the destruction happened very quickly. While the tribe of A’ad suffered for a number of days, “And as for A'ad, they were destroyed by a fierce roaring wind, He made it rage against them, seven nights and eight days in succession; so that you could see the people lying dead as if they were hollow trunks of palm-trees. Do you see any remnant of them?” They were destroyed by a very cold wind which raged for seven nights and eight days. It left them dead like hollow trunks of palm-trees.

The verses then refer briefly to peoples who rejected guidance earlier and met similar ends, “And Pharaoh, and those before him, and the Overturned Cities, committed habitual sin. And they disobeyed the messenger of their Lord, therefore He seized them with a tightening grip.” The verse refers to Pharaoh of Egypt at the time of Moses (PBUH) and to the people of Lut (PBUH). They all sinned regularly and furthermore they disobeyed the messengers who were sent to them. The verse refers to the different messengers as one, because they all came with the same message.

Then a reference is made to the flood, the drowning of Noah’s (PBUH) people who disbelieved, and the rescuing of the believers on the ship, “When the waters rose, We carried you on the ship; that We might make it a reminder for you, and that attentive ears may take heed.” The scene of the flood with a ship being tossed by huge waves fits appropriately in the overall theme of the Sura; even the words used in the description all rhyme nicely. These stories should be a reminder for anyone who may take heed.

These terrifying images described limited catastrophes in comparison with the big one, the Day of Judgment. First the trumpet will be blown, “And when the trumpet is blown with a single blast.” Then this earth, on which we live and dwell securely, will be lifted up together with its huge mountains and then crushed completely, “And the earth with the mountains shall be lifted up and crushed with a single blow.” This is the big event that the Sura is talking about, “On that day will the Event befall.” The “Event” is another name to the Day of Judgment. It is a unique event that will certainly happen. That is why it is only referred to by the name “the Event.” The sky will be split asunder, “And the sky will be rent asunder, for it will that Day be flimsy.”

The subsequent verses describe a different scene; a majestic serene scene, where the angels appear carrying the Throne of the Lord, “And the angels will be on its sides, and eight will, that Day, bear the Throne of your Lord above them.” Then the reckoning process will start. All secrets will be exposed, “On that day you will be exposed; not a secret of you will be hidden.” Nothing will be hidden. Everything will be exposed: bodies, souls, consciences, and deeds.

The scene continues to describe the fate of the different groups of people, “Then, as for him who is given his record in his right hand, he will say, ‘Here, read my book. Surely I knew that I should have to meet my reckoning.’” The expression, “given the record in his right hand,” may also be taken literally, or it could be taken figuratively; since in Arabic the right hand is a symbol of goodness; and the left hand and behind the back are symbols of evil. The scene describes the state of those who attained salvation. They will be overwhelmed with happiness, they will cry out, “Here, read my book.” They feared standing up for the reckoning, but they found that they were spared that severe situation, “I knew that I should have to meet my reckoning.”

Ibn ‘Umar (RA) narrated that he heard the Messenger of God (PBUH) say, “On the Day of Judgment, the servant is brought in front of his Lord; he will confess all his sins. Then, God will say, 'I did not expose these sins in your life time, and today I forgive you these sins.' Then the servant will be given his book in his right hand. The witnesses will testify against the disbelievers and the hypocrites saying, 'These are ones who fabricated a lie against their Lord.' And they will be cursed." The reward for the servants who attained salvation is then described, "And he will be in a life of bliss, in a high garden, the fruits of which are near at hand. (And it will be said), 'Eat and drink at ease for what you did beforehand in the days gone by.'"

On the other hand, those who are given their books in their left hand will realize that there is no escape from the punishment, they will lament their situation, "But as for him who is given his record in his left hand, he will say, 'I wish I had not been given my book. And never knew what my account was. If only it was the end. My wealth availed me nothing. My power has vanished from me.'" They will express their regret and reiterate the fact that neither wealth nor power availed them anything. The command is then issued, "(It will be said), 'Take him and put a chain on him, and burn him in Hellfire. Further, make him march in a chain, the length of which is seventy cubits.'" It is a horrifying scene. The reasons for their predicament are pronounced, "He used not to believe in God, the Great; nor did he advocate feeding of the poor." Their hearts were devoid of the belief in God and had no feelings of mercy towards the needy. These hearts deserve nothing but Hellfire. The rest of the punishment is outlined, "Therefore, today he has no true friend here nor any food except scum, which none but sinners eat."

The subsequent verses deal with another theme. They ascertain the truthfulness of the Message, "Indeed, I swear by what you see, and what you do not see, that this is verily the speech of a noble messenger; and it is not the speech of a poet - little it is you believe; nor it is the speech of a soothsayer - little it is you take heed. It is a revelation from the Lord of the worlds." An oath with what you see and what you do not see takes the imagination beyond what we see; indicating the vastness of the universe beyond that which is visible. The idolaters used to accuse the Prophet (PBUH) one time that he was a poet and another that he was a soothsayer. Their accusations were based on their realization of the miraculous nature of the Quran. But the style and content of the Quran are completely different from poetry and magic. The Quran in addition to its linguistic excellence embodies a complete and comprehensive way of life. It is a divine project different from any of the literary works composed by humans. It is God's message that was transmitted by a noble messenger. They only made these claims because they did not believe and they did not take heed.

Then a dire threat is issued against anyone who would contemplate fabricating a lie against God, "And if he had fabricated against Us some sayings, We assuredly would have taken him by the right hand, and then severed his life-artery, and not one of you could have restrained Us from him." This statement ascertains beyond any doubt the truthfulness of the Prophet (PBUH). God has indicated His punishment for those who fabricate a lie against Him; and since this punishment was not exercised against the Prophet (PBUH) then he must be truthful in what he says.

The Sura concludes by outlining the nature of the revelation, "But verily this is a Message for the God conscious. And We certainly know that there are among you those that reject (it). And it surely a source of grieve for the disbelievers. But verily it is the truth of assured certainty." This Quran reminds the hearts of the God conscious who take heed. The facts that the Quran brought are instilled deep in their psyche. The Quran merely exposes these facts and brings it to the conscious mind. But the disbelievers reject this guidance to their own detriment. But it is certainly the truth of the assured certainty. Therefore, "Glorify the name of your Lord, the Great."

Sura 70: Al-Ma'arij (The Ways of Ascent)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 44:

1. A questioner asked about the imminent torment,
2. For the disbelievers, which none can repel,
3. From God, Lord of the Ways of Ascent.
4. The angels and the Spirit ascend to Him in a Day the measure of which is fifty thousand years.
5. But persevere (Muhammad) graciously.
6. They see that (Day) indeed as a far-off (event).
7. But We see it (quite) near.
8. The Day when the sky will be like molten brass,
9. And the mountains will be like wool,
10. And no close friend will ask his close friend.
11. Though they will be put in sight of each other, the criminal wishes he would be able to redeem himself from the torment of that Day by (sacrificing) his children,
12. And his spouse, and his brother,
13. And his kindred who sheltered him,
14. And everyone on earth, if that would deliver him.
15. By no means, it is the raging fire.
16. It strips away the skin;
17. Inviting him who turned his back and fled,
18. And hoarded (wealth) and withheld it.
19. Truly humankind was created very impatient.
20. Fretful when evil touches him.
21. And niggardly when good reaches him;
22. Except those who pray
23. And who remain constant at their prayer.
24. And in whose wealth there is a fixed portion,
25. For the beggar and the destitute;
26. And those who believe in the Day of Judgment.
27. And those who fear the torment of their Lord;
28. Indeed, the torment of their Lord is not that from which one is safe;
29. And those who guard their chastity,
30. Except with their wives, and those whom their right hands possess, for they are not to be blamed.
31. But those who trespass beyond this are transgressors;
32. And those who keep their pledges and their covenant;
33. And those who are upright in their testimonies;
34. And those who are attentive in their prayer.
35. These will dwell in gardens, honored.
36. But what is the matter with those who disbelieve that they hasten on around you,
37. From the right and from the left, in crowds?

38. Does every man of them long to enter the Garden of Bliss?
39. By no means, We have created them from what they know.
40. I swear by the Lord of every sunrise and every sunset that We are certainly able,
41. To replace them by better than them. And we are not to be overcome.
42. So leave them to wallow in vain talk, until they encounter that Day of theirs which they have been promised;
43. The Day when they will emerge from the tombs in a rush, as though they were hurrying towards a target.
44. Their eyes lowered in dejection, ignominy covering them. This is the Day which they were promised. (70: 1 – 44)

This is an episode in the slow healing process which the Quran used to deal with the ailments which afflicted the human soul in the age of ignorance. It was one of the battles which were part of the long struggle by the Quran to change the hearts of people and to remove the rust that accumulated on them during the long ages of ignorance. The main issue that the sura deals with is the inevitability of the Hereafter and the torment that the disbelievers should expect.

The concept of the Hereafter was one of the most difficult concepts for the idolaters of Mecca to grasp and accept. Their reaction to the concept, when it was mentioned to them, was a mixture of amazement, denial, and resistance. They challenged the Prophet (pbuh) to bring about the Day of Judgment or to tell them when it will happen. The sura cites one of these challenges. Someone came to the Prophet (pbuh) and asked him about the Hereafter, “A questioner asked about the imminent torment, for the disbelievers.” The verses continued to emphasize the inevitability of the torment in the Hereafter. Such torment will be inescapable and it will be inflicted by the Lord of the Ways of Ascent, “none can repel, from God, Lord of the Ways of Ascent.”

“The angels and the Spirit ascend to Him in a Day the measure of which is fifty thousand years.” The Day of Judgment will be a long day. On that Day the angels and Gabriel (pbuh) will ascend. The objective of highlighting the ascension of the angels and Gabriel (pbuh) is to draw the attention to the importance of that day. The way the angels ascend, the duties that they perform, or where will they be ascending are all parts of the unseen. The length of the day mentioned in the verse could be the literal length; or it could be a figure of speech to highlight the facts mentioned in the following verses, “But persevere (Muhammad) graciously. They see that (Day) indeed as a far-off (event). But We see it (quite) near.” Gracious perseverance is the kind of perseverance that a confident person who accepts God’s decrees with content should exercise.

The following verses describe some of the characteristics of this day, “The Day when the sky will be like molten brass, and the mountains will be like wool.” This indicates that on this Day there will be cosmic changes that will change the characteristics of the universe as we know it.

“And no close friend will ask his close friend, though they will be put in sight of each other, the criminal wishes he would be able to redeem himself from the torment of that Day by (sacrificing) his children, and his spouse, and his brother, and his kindred who sheltered him, and everyone on earth, if that would deliver him.” Everyone will be busy with his own affairs. No one will care about the other. The criminal will wish if he could sacrifice anyone to redeem himself.

But he will not be able to do so, and he will have to meet his doom, “By no means, it is the raging fire.” It is a very terrifying scene indeed. This fire will, “strip away the skin.” It is a live fire that will invite him who, “turned his back and fled, and hoarded (wealth) and withheld it.” The emphasis in this sura, as well as in the previous sura, on helping the needy and avoiding niggardliness indicates that the prevalent atmosphere in Mecca at that time was an atmosphere where people were competing together to amass wealth. The rich were concerned with getting more wealth and the poor were forgotten. No one was concerned about the poor and the needy. Social injustice and exploitation of the poor were the dominant features of the society. The Quran continued the fight to change this.

The few following verses focus on the nature of the human being, “Truly humankind was created very impatient; fretful when evil touches him; and niggardly when good reaches him.” The Quran paints a very accurate image of the human being when his heart becomes devoid of faith. Such a person will be anxious and impatient. He will be fretful when an affliction touches him. Sadness will overwhelm him and he will see no end for the adversity that afflicted him. He will think that his suffering will continue forever. He has no support to rely upon. He does not understand the dynamics of the provision and how it is controlled by God. Similarly, when he is blessed by bounties, he thinks that he earned these bounties as a result of his own work. He does not show gratitude for the Provider. He will hoard the wealth which God gave him for fear of losing it if he spends some of it in helping the poor. He is unhappy whether he is in a state of affliction or in a state of affluence.

The believers are saved of this destiny, “except those who pray.” They are secure in their faith, safe in their reliance on God. The believers persevere when they are afflicted; and they show gratitude when they are blessed. The traits of those believers are then listed. They are, “constant at their prayer.” Prayer is one of the pillars of Islam; it is a sign of faith, and it is a medium for communication with God. It is an expression of the ultimate submission to God. The constancy in prayer indicates the continuous connection between the believer and God. They assign a portion of their wealth to help those who ask and those who are needy, “and in whose wealth there is a fixed portion, for the beggar and the destitute.” Most probably this refers to the poor-dues (Zakat). Or it may refer to the general concept of charity. These people have dedicated part of their money over and beyond the prescribed obligatory poor-dues to combat the niggardliness of their souls and to express their gratitude for the blessings of God.

They, “believe in the Day of Judgment.” This trait is directly related to the main subject of the sura. In the meantime, it describes one of the essential traits of the believer; believing in the Day of Judgment is an integral component of faith. It has a direct impact on the life style of people. A person who believes in the Day of Judgment considers the Hereafter as an extension to this life, while the person who rejects the Day of Judgment focuses only on this life. These two will adopt different life styles. The former will base his calculations on the gain and loss in the two lives, while the latter will only be concerned about the gain and loss in this life.

Another level of faith that goes beyond believing in the Day of Judgment is the fear of displeasing God, “and those who fear the torment of their Lord. Indeed, the torment of their Lord is not that from which one is safe.” That implies that the person measures everything he does using one standard; the standard of pleasing God.

They, “guard their chastity, except with their wives, and those whom their right hands possess, for they are not to be blamed. But those who trespass beyond this are transgressors.” This guarantees the moral purity of the individual and the community. Islam wants to build communities based on moral purity and ethical cleanliness. Such communities require that intimate relationships between the sexes are conducted within an acceptable framework and not left to uncontrolled desires and whims. These relationships should not be considered as means for the satisfaction of animal urges only. The verse mentions marriage as an institution within which these relations can be practiced. A reference is made also to relationships with slave girls. At the time of advent of Islam, slavery was a well-established institution in the world. However, Islam abolished all ways of acquiring slaves except for those obtained as captives of war. This was dictated by the necessity to treat others the way they would treat Muslims.

They, “keep their pledges and their covenant.” This is one of the most important ethical characteristics of Muslims. The most important covenant that a believer should keep is the covenant with God. Islam emphasized the importance of keeping covenants and honoring pledges. Keeping covenants and honoring pledges is the only way to build a safe and secure community. Islam attached the trait of breaking covenants and dishonoring pledges to the hypocrites and the disbelievers.

They, “upright in their testimonies.” Testimonies are an important tool in the Islamic judicial system. That is why it is an important trait for the believer.

The traits of the believers started with the trait of establishing the prayer and ends with the trait of being attentive in the prayer, “and those who are attentive in their prayer.” This includes performing the prayers on time and being careful in fulfilling the prayer in the proper form and content.

The reward for the believers who have acquired these traits is then enunciated, “These will dwell in gardens, honored.”

The narrative then turns to explore one of the scenes in Mecca. The scene describes those who used to go to listen to the Prophet (pbuh) without having the true intention of following guidance, “But what is the matter with those who disbelieve that they hasten on around you, from the right and from the left, in crowds?” The verse alludes to their curiosity about what the Prophet (pbuh) was saying and it questioned their intention. Did they think that this curiosity is sufficient for them to attain salvation? “Does every man of them long to enter the Garden of Bliss?” A definite answer was then given, “By no means, We have created them from what they know.” They were created from a drop of a sperm like everyone else. So, they should not expect to be treated differently. They should remember that God can replace them any time He pleases, “I swear by the Lord of every sunrise and every sunset that We are certainly able, to replace them by better than them. And we are not to be overcome.”

So let them, “wallow in vain talk, until they encounter that Day of theirs which they have been promised. The Day when they will emerge from the tombs in a rush, as though they were hurrying towards a target. Their eyes lowered in dejection, ignominy covering them. This is the Day which they were promised.” The verses carry a dire warning for the disbelievers. They describe their situation on the Day of Resurrection, when they will get what they were promised.

Sura 71: Nuh (Noah)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 28:

1. We sent Noah to his people (with the command), "Warn your people before there comes to them a painful torment."
2. He said, "My people, I am a plain warner to you.
3. Serve God, be conscious of Him, and obey me.
4. He will forgive your sins and grant you a reprieve to an appointed term; surely the term of God when it comes is not postponed; if you only knew."
5. He said, "My Lord, I have called my people night and day;
6. But my call only added to their flight;
7. And every time I called them, that you might forgive them, they have (only) thrust their fingers into their ears, covered themselves up with their garments, grown obstinate, and given themselves up to arrogance.
8. And I have called them openly;
9. I called them publicly and I appealed to them in private.
10. Saying, 'Ask forgiveness from your Lord; for He is All-Forgiving;
11. He will send rain to you in abundance;
12. And will increase you in wealth and sons; and provide for you gardens and rivers.
13. What is the matter with you, that you do not appreciate God's majesty?
14. Seeing that it is He who created you in stages?
15. Do not you see how God has created the seven heavens one above another.
16. And He set the moon in their midst a light, and made the sun a lamp?
17. And God has made you grow out of the earth as a growth;
18. And in the end He will return you into the (earth), and raise you forth (again at the Resurrection)?
19. And God has made the earth for you as a wide expanse
20. That you may go about therein in spacious roads.'"
21. Noah said, "My Lord, they have disobeyed me, and followed one whose wealth and children increase him in nothing but ruin;
22. And they have devised a tremendous plot.
23. And they have said (to each other), 'Do not abandon your gods. Do not abandon Wadd nor Suwa', neither Yaguth nor Ya'uq, nor Nasr;'
24. They have already misled many; and do not increase the wrongdoers except in going astray."
25. Because of their sins they were drowned, and were made to enter the Fire. And they found no helpers besides of God.
26. And Noah, said, "My Lord, do not leave on the earth a single one of the disbelievers.
27. If You leave them they will mislead Your servants, and they will beget none but wicked ungrateful ones.
28. My Lord, forgive me, my parents, all the believers who enter my house, and (all) believing men and believing women. And increase the wrongdoers in perdition." (71: 1 -

This Sura was revealed in Mecca.

This Sura narrates the experience that Prophet Noah (PBUH) had with his people. The Sura presents an example of obstinate and arrogant people who follow their leaders blindly. They refuse to think or benefit from the guidance offered to them.

Another dimension of the narrative is the divine mercy which opens the doors to guidance to humankind. This dimension is reflected in the fact that God sent many Messengers to guide people to the straight path. A third dimension of the narrative is the description of the struggle which the Messengers' of God had to go through to deliver God's Message to people, their hard work, patience, and persistence. They did not gain a personal benefit nor did they aspire to a material reward in the life of this world for their hard work.

The Sura starts with a statement about the source of the Message, "We sent Noah to his people," God sent the Messengers with the Message. God is the Creator. He instilled in humankind the initial natural disposition to discover and worship God. When the people swerved away from God's path He sent the Messengers with the Message to guide people to the straight path. Noah (PBUH) was the first Messenger to come after Adam (PBUH). The Quran does not mention that Adam (PBUH) was given a Message. However, he was the teacher who taught his children and grandchildren the principles of submission to God. They may have strayed away from the straight path after his death, so God sent Noah (PBUH) to bring people back to the straight path and to the belief in the Oneness of God.

The verses then continue to outline Noah's (PBUH) task, "Warn your people before there comes to them a painful torment." Noah (PBUH) was sent to warn his people of the consequences of practicing idolatry. So, Noah (PBUH) started to fulfill the undertaking that he was entrusted with, "He said, 'My people, I am a plain warner to you.'" He started with a clear statement of the task that he was sent to accomplish, "Serve God, be conscious of Him, and obey me. He will forgive your sins and grant you a reprieve to an appointed term; surely the term of God when it comes is not postponed; if you only knew." He called them to worship God alone, to be conscious of Him, and to obey the Messenger that came to them with the Message. These are the basic principles of the Message brought by all God's Messengers.

Serving God alone is a way of life. It is based on understanding the nature of Godliness and the nature of being human. This understanding delineates the correct relationship between the creature and the Creator. This relationship controls and shapes the way of life of people on earth. The commitment to live according to this way of life is only guaranteed by being always conscious of God. Obeying the Messenger is essential because he is the medium through which the details of the way of life are conveyed. People who are committed to this way of life are rewarded by God. God promised to forgive their sins and to delay their reckoning to a specific predetermined Day. This means that they will not be punished in the life of this world for their sins. However, the predetermined Day will certainly come, and no one can change it. Some scholars indicated that the predetermined day means the time of death.

Noah (PBUH) tried hard to fulfill his task, “He said, ‘My Lord, I have called my people night and day; but my call only added to their flight; and every time I called them, that you might forgive them, they have (only) thrust their fingers into their ears, covered themselves up with their garments, grown obstinate, and given themselves up to arrogance.’” These verses summarize Noah’s struggle to fulfill his commitment and outline the results of his persisting efforts. His people did not respond favorably to his call; every time he called them they turned away and fled. They were fleeing from God, the source of their existence and their life; the source of the blessings and bounties; the source of guidance and light. When they could not flee, they put their fingers in their ears so that they would not listen to Noah’s (PBUH) call. Noah (PBUH) adopted different strategies in calling his people, “And I have called them openly; I called them publicly and I appealed to them in private.” He also tried to use different approaches to call them to guidance. He warned them and he detailed to them the benefits that they will gain in this life and in the Hereafter. He described the great rewards that await those who ask God for forgiveness; God will, “send rain to you in abundance; and will increase you in wealth and sons; and provide for you gardens and rivers.” The verse emphasizes the direct relationship between asking for forgiveness and the provisions that God bestows on His servants. This message was repeated in many places in the Quran, e.g. “And if only they had upheld the Torah, the Gospel, and what has been revealed to them from their Lord, they would have consumed (provision from above them and from beneath their feet.” (5: 66) “And if only the people of the cities had believed and were conscious of God, We would have bestowed upon them blessings from the heaven and the earth.” (7: 96) “Seek forgiveness of your Lord and repent to Him, He will let you enjoy a good provision for a specified term and give every doer of good his reward.” (11: 3) This is a basic principle based on God’s promise. The history of human civilization supports this principle as well. The rule applies to nations not to individuals. Every nation that established its way of life on God’s law, sought sincerely God’s forgiveness, and remained conscious of God was rewarded by God’s blessings and bounties. Such nations were not only able to establish safe and secure environment for their people but they also enjoyed God’s support.

Sometimes we see a nation whose laws are not based on God’s law and its people are not conscious of God but it enjoys abundance in provisions and material possessions. Such nation is being tested by God. God tests nations and people sometimes by granting them abundant provision and sometimes by making them face adverse conditions.

Noah (PBUH) tried to reason with his people by directing their attention to the signs of God, “What is the matter with you, that you do not appreciate God’s greatness? Seeing that it is He who created you in stages?” The stages that Noah’s (PBUH) mentioned must have been a reference to a phenomenon that they were aware of at that time. These stages could very well be the stages of the development of the embryo. This is the opinion of most of the scholars. It is easy to imagine that this is something they have been aware of, because they must have seen incomplete embryos delivered. Then he continued to ask them to reflect on the cosmic signs that they would see around them, “Do not you see how God has created the seven heavens one above another, and He set the moon in their midst a light, and made the sun a lamp?”

Noah (PBUH) pointed to the fact that humankind was created from the earth, will go back to the earth, and then will be resurrected, “And God has made you grow out of the earth as a growth; and in the end He will return you into the (earth), and raise you forth (again at the Resurrection)?” Finally, Noah (PBUH) mentioned the blessings of God in making life easy on this earth, “and God has made the earth for you as a wide expanse, that you may go about therein in spacious roads.”

The verses refer to a connection between the beginning of human life and plant life, both grew out of the earth. This connection has been mentioned in other Suras in the Quran as well. This is an interesting point that deserves to be contemplated. It indicates that the primary elements which constitute both humans and plants came from the earth. Their lives continue because both humans and plants feed on elements that are provided by the earth.

Noah (PBUH) used different strategies and various approaches to reach the hearts of his people to call them to his Lord. He persevered and persisted for a long time, nine hundred and fifty years. But finally, he went back to God to report his work and to complain about the response of his people, “Noah said, ‘My Lord, they have disobeyed me, and followed one whose wealth and children increase him in nothing but ruin; and they have devised a tremendous plot. And they have said (to each other), ‘Do not abandon your gods. Do not abandon Wadd nor Suwa’, neither Yaguth nor Ya’uq, nor Nasr;’” After his long struggle to guide them, they left him and followed their chiefs who had the wealth and the power; wealth and power that only bring loss to their owners. These chiefs plotted against Prophet Noah (PBUH). They warned their people not to abandon the idols they were worshipping. Noah’s response was to ask God to punish them, “They have already misled many; and do not increase the wrongdoers except in going astray.”

They were punished right there and then, “Because of their sins they were drowned, and were made to enter the Fire. And they found no helpers besides of God.” They were drowned then they were admitted to Hellfire. Their wealth, their leaders, and their idols did not avail them anything. They did not find any supporter besides God.

Noah (PBUH) continued his prayer, “And Noah, said, ‘My Lord, do not leave on the earth a single one of the disbelievers. If You leave them they will mislead Your servants, and they will beget none but wicked ungrateful ones.’” Noah (PBUH) realized that a drastic measure was needed to cleanse the earth from the transgression of the wrongdoers. Sometimes this would be the only viable solution. The wrongdoing must have been so entrenched in the land that no other solution would have been possible to enable those who wanted to worship God alone to survive. Then Noah (PBUH) prayed God to forgive him, “My Lord, forgive me.” This is a proper prophetic etiquette. He did not forget that he was a human being and human beings do err and they have shortcomings. Noah (PBUH) knew that he can be admitted to paradise only by the grace of God. Then he prayed God to forgive his parents, the believers who enter his house and all the believers in general, “my parents, all who the believers who enter my house, and (all) believing men and believing women.” These prayers express Noah’s (PBUH) kindness towards his parents and his fellow believers. These prayers express the power of faith which binds all the believers with the bond of brotherhood. His final prayer expressed his hate of the disbelievers, “And increase the wrongdoers in perdition.”

Sura 72: Al-Jinn (The Jinn)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 28:

1. Say, "It has been revealed to me that a company of jinn listened in. They said, 'We have really heard a wonderful Quran.
2. It guides to righteousness, so we believed in it and we will never associate anyone with our Lord.
3. And exalted is the glory of our Lord. He has taken neither a wife nor a son.
4. There were some foolish ones among us, who used to utter extravagant lies against God.
5. But we had thought that humankind and jinn would not speak a lie against God.
6. And indeed some of humankind used to invoke the protection of individuals of the jinn, so that they increased them in wrongdoing.
7. And indeed they thought, even as you thought, that God would not resurrect anyone.
8. And we probed the heaven but had found it filled with strong guards and meteors.
9. We used, indeed, to sit there in (hidden) stations, to (steal) a hearing; but any who listens now will find a flame waiting for him.
10. And we do not know whether ill is intended to those on earth, or whether their Lord intends guidance for them.
11. And among us there are righteous ones and among us there are far from that. We are sects having different ways.
12. But we think that we cannot escape from God in the earth, nor can we escape by flight.
13. And as for us, since we have listened to the guidance, we have accepted it; and any who believes in his Lord should neither fear loss nor oppression.
14. And there are among us some who have submitted (to God) and there are among us some who are wrongdoers. And whoso has submitted (to God), such have taken the right path purposefully.
15. And as for the unjust, they are firewood for Hell."
16. If they had remained straight on the path, We would have given them to drink of water in abundance.
17. That We may test them thereby, and whoso turns away from the remembrance of his Lord; He will thrust him into ever-growing torment.
18. And the places of worship are only for God, so do not call upon anyone along with God.
19. And when the slave of God stood up in prayer to Him, they crowded on him, almost stifling.
20. Say (unto them, Muhammad), "I pray to God only, and I do not associate partners with Him."
21. Say, "It is not in my power to cause you harm, nor to benefit you."
22. Say, "No one can protect me from God, nor can I find any refuge except with Him.
23. I only deliver (what I receive) from God and His messages;" and whoever disobeys God and His Messenger surely he shall have the fire of Hell to abide therein forever.
24. Till (the day) when they shall see that which they were promised; then they will know (for certain) who is weaker in allies and fewer in number.

25. Say (Muhammad, to the disbelievers), "I do not know whether that which you are promised is near, or if my Lord has set a distant term for it.
26. He (alone) knows the unseen, He does not make any one acquainted with His secret,
27. Except a messenger whom He has chosen; and then He makes a guard to go before him and a guard behind him.
28. That He may know that they have (truly) brought and delivered the Messages of their Lord; and He encompasses what is with them and He records the number of all things.
(72: 1 – 28)

This Sura is a unique musical piece that has a strong rhythm and clear resonance. However, the music is overshadowed by a touch of sadness, especially towards the end of the Sura when the verses talk about the Messenger (PBUH). It evokes feelings of love and kindness towards the Messenger (PBUH) who suffered greatly in the course of delivering the message.

The Sura carries a testimony from a different world, the world of jinn. The idolaters of Mecca claimed that Muhammad (PBUH) was getting his revelations from the jinn. In this Sura, the jinn testify that the first time they heard about the Quran was when they listened to Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) reciting it.

The Sura also corrects many of the misunderstandings about the world of jinn. The idolaters believed in the supernatural powers of the jinn. They also believed that the jinn know the unseen. Some of the idolaters worshipped the jinn as well.

It has been narrated by Ibn Abbas (RA) that he said, "The Messenger of God (PBUH) never recited the Quran to the jinn and he never saw them." The event that the first few verses of the Sura is talking about has been reported by Al-Bukhari as follows: "The Messenger of God (PBUH) and a group of his companions were heading towards the market place of Okaz. In the meantime, some of the jinn came to their people saying that they were prevented from listening to what was happening in heaven. Their people said that this would not have happened unless some major event was happening. They decided to investigate. A group of jinn went along the same route that the Messenger (PBUH) took. They found him praying Fajr with his companions, so they listened to him reciting the Quran. They went back to their people telling them about what they heard."

"Say, 'It has been revealed to me that a company of jinn listened in. They said, "We have really heard a wonderful Quran. It guides to righteousness, so we believed in it and we will never associate anyone with our Lord. And exalted is the glory of our Lord. He has taken neither a wife nor a son. There were some foolish ones among us, who used to utter extravagant lies against God; but we had thought that humankind and jinn would not speak a lie against God." This opening indicates that the Messenger of God (PBUH) came to know about the jinn who listened to the Quran through a revelation from God. This may have been the first time that a group of jinn listened to the Quran, but it could have been one of many times. These verses also indicate that the jinn were surprised when they heard the Quran. This was something new to them. They were overwhelmed by the experience. They believed in the Quran and they returned back to their people carrying the glad tidings of this new revelation. Their first reaction was to describe the Quran as a wonderful Quran. They realized that it guides to righteousness. The word righteousness has many dimensions. These include guidance, truth, maturity, straight forwardness, and knowledge. Righteousness is a state of the self which guides to goodness and straight forwardness.

Their reaction, after the effect of the surprise was worn out, was to believe in the Quran. This is a natural reaction to those who listen to the Quran, understand its nature, and realize the truth that it embodies. They also realized that believing in the Quran means the belief in the oneness of God, “will never associate anyone with our Lord. And exalted is the glory of our Lord. He has taken neither a wife nor a son.” The Arabs believed in a myth which claimed that the angels are the daughters of God. The jinn in this Sura refute this myth. The believing jinn described those who believed in this myth as foolish, “There were some foolish ones among us, who used to utter extravagant lies against God; but we had thought that humankind and jinn would not speak a lie against God.”

“And indeed some of humankind used to invoke the protection of individuals of the jinn, so that they increased them in wrongdoing.” This verse refers to the old belief that jinn have superpowers and they can benefit and harm people. Satan is ever waiting to enter into the hearts of people, except those who hold tight to the rope of God. Those who open their hearts to Satan will only go deeper in their wrongdoing.

“And indeed they thought, even as you thought, that God would not resurrect anyone.” This is continuation of the discussion between the group of jinn, who listened to the Quran, and their people. Those who sought the help of jinn, as well as the jinn themselves, thought that God will not send a messenger. The verse could also mean that they thought that there will be no resurrection and no accountability. Both assumptions are wrong. God created humankind with equal propensity to good as well as to evil. The jinn also shared these qualities with humankind. God, out of His mercy, sent messengers to guide people to the straight path. In the Hereafter both humankind and jinn will be held accountable for their deeds.

“And we probed the heaven but had found it filled with strong guards and meteors. We used, indeed, to sit there in (hidden) stations, to (steal) a hearing; but any who listens now will find a flame waiting for him.” These verses indicate that the jinn tried to find out what was happening in heaven to use it against humankind. The verse indicates that their ability to probe heaven has been revoked. There were guards that sent meteors on whoever attempted to approach heaven. The guards, the meteors, and the jinn are all matters of the unseen which we will not dwell on.

The jinn reiterated their inability to discover the unseen, “And we do not know whether ill is intended to those on earth, or whether their Lord intends guidance for them.” They also described the nature of their creation. This allows us to understand that God gave them the propensity for good as well as for evil, “And among us there are righteous ones and among us there are far from that. We are sects having different ways.” They believed in God and in His unlimited power, “But we think that we cannot escape from God in the earth, nor can we escape by flight.” And they reiterated their belief in God, “And as for us, since we have listened to the guidance, we have accepted it; and any who believes in his Lord should neither fear loss nor oppression.” Those who believe in God also believe in His justice and in His power. God will protect the believers and will not treat them unjustly.

Some jinn, like humankind, are righteous and some are transgressors, “And there are among us some who have submitted (to God) and there are among us some who are wrongdoers. And whoso has submitted (to God), such have taken the right path purposefully.” Some intentionally believed in God and chose to submit to Him. But others chose not to believe, they will get their punishment in the Hereafter, “And as for the unjust, they are firewood for Hell.”

The previous account quoted the jinn speaking to each other, the following verses continue to quote the dialogue of the jinn in an indirect approach, “If they had remained straight on the path, We would have given them to drink of water in abundance. That We may test them thereby, and whoso turns away from the remembrance of his Lord; He will thrust him into ever-growing torment.” The jinn said to each other that had humankind remained on the straight path, God would have given them great provision. This statement indicates several facts.

The first fact is that there is a direct relationship between the behavior of a nation and the provision that God bestows on this nation. If the nation as a whole is guided and follows the straight path God will provide for its people in abundance. The verse refers to one of the essential resources which is necessary for survival: water. God will provide water in abundance for nations which follow guidance.

The second fact is the concept of trials. God may test people by subjecting them to adverse conditions and may test others by granting affluence. These tests are meant to show the reaction of people to the state they find themselves in. Will people who were tested with adversity exercise perseverance? Will people who were tested with affluence show gratitude?

The third fact is the fact that affluence may lead people to turn away from the remembrance of God. Those who take that route will be punished severely.

The following verse could be a continuation of the jinn’s words, or it may be statement made by God, “And the places of worship are only for God, so do not call upon anyone along with God.” Places of worship should be dedicated solely to the remembrance of God. These are places in which absolute submission to God should be expressed.

“And when the slave of God stood up in prayer to Him, they crowded on him, almost stifling.” If the verse was a continuation of the jinn’s speech, then it could be referring to the idolaters of Quraish who used to assemble around the Prophet (PBUH) while he was praying expressing their astonishment at what he was doing. However, this could be a statement made by God describing the state of the jinn when they were listening to Prophet (PBUH) reciting Quran. God knows best.

The following verses address the Prophet (PBUH), “Say (to them, Muhammad), ‘I pray to God only, and I do not associate partners with Him.’” This is a statement expressing the essence of the belief in the Oneness of God. This is a belief that both jinn and humankind should subscribe to.

“Say, ‘It is not in my power to cause you harm, nor to benefit you.’” The Prophet (PBUH) is commanded to refute any doubt that he has special powers. All power belongs to God alone. He is the one who decrees whatever happens. The Prophet (PBUH) continued by saying, “No one can protect me from God, nor can I find any refuge except with Him. I only deliver (what I receive) from God and His Messages.” The Prophet (PBUH) makes the unequivocal declaration: only God can provide protection, no one else can provide protection, not even the Prophet (PBUH) himself. The task of the Prophet (PBUH) is only to deliver the Message. Whoever disobeys God has to contend with the terrifying consequence, “whoever disobeys God and His Messenger surely he shall have the fire of Hell to abide therein forever.” Those who depend on their power and think that they can escape God’s punishment should wait and see, “Till (the day) when they shall see that which they were promised; then they will know (for certain) who is weaker in allies and fewer in number.”

Then the Prophet (PBUH) was commanded to reiterate that he was only a deliverer of the Message and had no knowledge of the unseen, “Say (Muhammad, to the disbelievers), ‘I do not know whether that which you are promised is near, or if my Lord has set a distant term for it. He (alone) knows the unseen, He does not make any one acquainted with His secret, except a messenger whom He has chosen; and then He makes a guard to go before him and a guard behind him. That He may know that they have (truly) brought and delivered the Messages of their Lord; and He encompasses what is with them and He records the number of all things.’” No one is privy to the knowledge of the unseen except by the will of God. Only, if God wishes to allow one of His Messengers to know something of the unseen, then the Messenger will acquire that knowledge. The Messengers who are given knowledge of the unseen are protected and observed until they fulfill the undertaking that they were entrusted with. God’s knowledge encompassed everything and He records the number of all things.

Sura 73: Al-Muzzammil (The Enwrapped One)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 20:

1. You wrapped up in your garments.
2. Keep vigil the night long praying, except a little,
3. Half of it, or a little less.
4. Or a little more; and recite the Quran in slow, measured rhythmic tones.
5. We shall send down to you a heavy Message.
6. Indeed, the vigil of the night is (a time) when impression is more keen and speech more certain.
7. Surely you have during the day a long occupation.
8. So remember the name of your Lord and devote yourself with a complete devotion.
9. (He is) Lord of the east and the west; there is no god but He. Take Him therefore as your Guardian.
10. And persevere in enduring what they say, and ignore them graciously.
11. And leave Me (alone to deal with) the deniers, lords of ease and comfort (in this life); and give them a brief respite.
12. With Us are shackles, and a burning fire,
13. And a food that chokes, and a painful torment;
14. On the day when the earth and the mountains will shake, and the mountains become heaps of sand.
15. We have sent to you a messenger as a witness against you, as We sent to Pharaoh a messenger.
16. Pharaoh disobeyed the messenger; so We seized him with a ruinous seizure.
17. Then how shall you, if you disbelieve, guard yourselves against a Day that will make children turn children grey,
18. The heaven shall rend asunder thereby; His promise is ever brought to fulfillment.
19. Indeed, this is a reminder. Let him who wills, then, choose a way to his Lord.
20. Your Lord knows that you keep vigil sometimes nearly two-thirds of the night, or (sometimes) half or a third thereof, as do a party of those with you. God determines the extent of the night and the day. He knows that you do not count, and turns to you in mercy. Recite, then, of the Quran that which is easy for you. He knows that there are sick people among you, while others travel in the land in search of God's bounty, and others are fighting for the cause of God. So recite of it that which is easy (for you), and establish prayers and pay the poor-dues, and lend God a goodly loan. Whatsoever good you send before you for your souls, you will find it with God, better and greater in the recompense. And seek forgiveness of God. God is All-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy. (73: 1 – 20)

It has been narrated that the Chiefs of Quraish had a meeting to plot against the Prophet (PBUH). When the Prophet (PBUH) heard about this meeting he was stressed out and he wrapped himself in his clothes and went to bed. The first part of the Sura was then revealed to him. Verse twenty was revealed a year later. This verse came to lessen the burden of performing night prayer for the Prophet (PBUH) and the believers who used to pray all night until their feet would become swollen. Another narration indicated that this Sura was revealed on the second encounter between Gabriel (PBUH) and the Prophet (PBUH). The Prophet (PBUH) was terrified of the meeting so he went home hurriedly and asked his wife to wrap his garment around him. Either way, the Sura came to tell the Prophet (PBUH) that the time of comfort has ended and that there is hard work ahead of him, “You wrapped up in your garments. Keep vigil the night long praying, except a little,” This was a divine command, commanding the Prophet (PBUH) to stand up and keep vigil during the night praying. Praying by night was part of the training program that aimed at preparing the Prophet (PBUH) for the heavy task that was entrusted to him. Keeping vigil during the night praying to God and reciting Quran, “Half of it, or a little less, or a little more; and recite the Quran in slow, measured rhythmic tones,” was meant to prepare the Prophet (PBUH) for his task.

Authentic narrations indicated that the Prophet (PBUH) never prayed more than eleven rakaa during his night vigil. However, the eleven rakaa would consume two thirds of the night. It has been narrated that Sa'id ibn Hesham (RA) asked 'Aisha (RA) about the character of the Prophet (PBUH) she said, “His character was as the Quran prescribed.” He asked her, “Tell me about how he performed his night vigil?” She said, “Did you not read Surat Al-Muzzammil?” He said, “Yes.” She said, “The first few verses of this Sura revealed God's command of the prescribed night prayers for the believers. The Prophet (PBUH) prayed all night for a period of twelve months until the last verse of the Sura was revealed. The verse changed the status of the night vigil in prayer from a compulsory prayer to a voluntary one.” Ibn Hesham (RA) then asked about how the Prophet (PBUH) performed the night prayers. She said that the Prophet (PBUH) used to wake up during the night. He would pray eight rakaa continuously, then he sits, remembers God, and make invocations; then he stands up and continue with the ninth rakaa. Then he would pray two rakaa after that. These are eleven rakaa. When he became older, he would pray seven and two. Once the Prophet (PBUH) started to pray a voluntary prayer, it would become his habit to do it regularly afterwards.

Praying during the night while people are asleep; opening one's heart to connect with God and receive His light. Enjoying the company of God all alone were parts of the training program that the Prophet (PBUH) received to prepare him for the hard task ahead of him, “We shall send down to you a heavy Message. Indeed, the vigil of the night is (a time) when impression is more keen and speech more certain.” During the night people are asleep, the atmosphere is quite, and there are no distractions. This is an appropriate environment for the enjoyment of night prayer. During the day people engage in different activities that preoccupy them, “Surely you have during the day a long occupation.” Nevertheless, one should always remember God, “So remember the name of your Lord and devote yourself with a complete devotion.” Remembrance of God should not be a mere lip service. Remembrance of God is a joint task for the heart and the tongue. Prayer and reciting Quran are two types of the activities of the remembrance of God. These acts require complete devotion.

One should devote his worship to the Lord of everything, “(He is) Lord of the east and the west; there is no god but He. Take Him therefore as your Guardian.” He is the Guardian in whom one should put his trust.

The Prophet (PBUH) was then commanded to persevere, “And persevere in enduring what they say, and ignore them graciously.” This verse must have been revealed after the call to Islam was made public, when the chiefs of Quraish started persecuting the Prophet (PBUH) and the believers. The command to persevere came next to the command to pray and remember God. These two actions are always connected together in preparing people for the heavy tasks of the call to Islam. Patience is a very important trait for God’s Messengers as well as for the believers in general. The Prophet (PBUH) was simply commanded to ignore the abusers graciously. He should not be angered by the abuse, nor should he attempt to retaliate or blame the abusers. This would certainly require a great deal of perseverance and prayers.

“And leave Me (alone to deal with) the deniers, lords of ease and comfort (in this life); and give them a brief respite.” God is capable of dealing with the deniers, especially those who are wealthy and arrogant. God is giving them a short respite, after this short respite they will get the appropriate recompense, “With Us are shackles, and a burning fire, and a food that chokes, and a painful torment.” This will happen on a horrific day, “On the day when the earth and the mountains will shake, and the mountains become heaps of sand.”

A reminder of what happened to Pharaoh was then given, “We have sent to you a Messenger as a witness against you, as We sent to Pharaoh a Messenger. Pharaoh disobeyed the Messenger; so We seized him with a ruinous seizure.” A rhetorical question was then posed to the deniers, if this is what happened before, how are you going to protect yourselves? How will you protect yourselves “against a Day that will make children turn children grey? The heaven shall rend asunder thereby; His promise is ever brought to fulfillment?” A horrible image is painted for the Day of Judgment; and God’s promise will be fulfilled.

Seeing this horrible picture, a way for salvation is then described, “Indeed, this is a reminder. Let him who wills, then, choose a way to his Lord.”

The following single verse brings ease and comfort to the hearts of the Prophet (PBUH) and the believers. After toiling for a full year, standing up in prayer the whole night they received the command that made life easier for them; praying by night was no longer mandatory, it was made voluntary, “Your Lord knows that you keep vigil sometimes nearly two-thirds of the night, or (sometimes) half or a third thereof, as do a party of those with you. God determines the extent of the night and the day. He knows that you do not count, and turns to you in mercy. Recite, then, of the Quran that which is easy for you. He knows that there are sick people among you, while others travel in the land in search of God's bounty, and others are fighting for the cause of God. So recite of it that which is easy (for you), and establish prayers and pay the poor-dues, and lend God a goodly loan. Whatsoever good you send before you for your souls, you will find it with God, better and greater in the recompense. And seek forgiveness of God. God is All-Forgiving, Giver of Mercy.”

Sura 74: Al-Muddathir (The Cloaked One)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 56:

1. You, wrapped up in your cloak
2. Arise and deliver and warn,
3. And your Lord magnify,
4. And your garments purify,
5. And all abomination shun,
6. And do not confer a favor to acquire more.
7. Persevere in your Lord's cause.
8. And when the trumpet sounds;
9. Certainly, that day will be a difficult day,
10. Not easy for the disbelievers.
11. Leave Me alone, (to deal) with the (creature) whom I created alone.
12. Then gave him vast wealth,
13. And sons dwelling in his presence,
14. And made (life) smooth for him.
15. Yet he desires that I should give more.
16. By no means, he has been stubbornly hostile to Our revelations.
17. Soon I will impose a spiraling torment on him.
18. He thought and he plotted;
19. And woe to him, how he plotted.
20. Woe to him; how he plotted.
21. Then he looked around.
22. Then he frowned and he scowled.
23. Then he turned back and was haughty.
24. Then said he, "This is nothing but magic from the past.
25. This is nothing but the speech of a mortal."
26. I will cast him into Hellfire.
27. And what will explain to you what the Hellfire is?
28. It leaves nothing; it spares nothing.
29. It scorches the mortal.
30. Over it are nineteen.
31. We have appointed only angels to be wardens of the Fire, and We made their number to be a trial for those who disbelieve; that those to whom the Scripture has been given may have certainty, and that the believers may increase in faith; and that those to whom the Scripture has been given and the believers may not doubt; and that those in whose hearts there is disease, and the disbelievers, may say, "What does God mean by this similitude?" Thus, God sends astray whom He wills, and guides whom He wills. None knows the hosts of your Lord save Him. This is nothing else than a reminder to mortals.
32. I swear by the moon,
33. And by the night as it retreats,

34. And by the dawn as it shines,
35. This is but one of the greatest,
36. A warning to humankind,
37. To him among you who wishes to go forward or remain behind.
38. Every soul will be (held) in pledge for its deeds;
39. Except the companions of the right hand.
40. (They will be) in gardens; they will ask each other,
41. Concerning the guilty,
42. “What led you into Hellfire?”
43. They will say, “We were not of those who prayed;
44. Nor did we feed the poor;
45. And we used to enter into vain discourses with those who enter into vain discourses.
46. And we used to deny the Day of Judgment,
47. Till the Inevitable came to us.”
48. So the intercession of intercessors shall not avail them.
49. Then what is the matter with them that they turn away from admonition?
50. As if they were frightened asses,
51. Fleeing from a lion.
52. Each one of them desires that he should be given pages spread out.
53. By no means, they do not fear the Hereafter.
54. This is surely an admonition;
55. So whoever pleases may heed it.
56. And they will not heed unless God wills (it). He is the Lord who should be heeded and He is the Lord of forgiveness. (74: 1 – 56)

There are different narrations about the time of revelation of this Sura. One narration states that it was revealed subsequent to the revelation of Surat Al-‘Alaq (Chapter 96) but another narration indicates that it was revealed just after the proclamation of Islam had become public.

It seems from the narrative that the first seven verses of the Sura were revealed in the early days of the Message, because they set the stage for the public proclamation of the Message. These verses provided the psychological preparation that the Prophet (PBUH) needed to be able to convey the Message to Quraish. The remaining verses would have been revealed after the Message had become public because they describe the stubbornness of Quraish in resisting the call of the Prophet (PBUH) and the harassment and persecution that the Muslims received at the hands of the idolaters.

“You, wrapped up in your cloak, arise and deliver and warn.” This was a divine command for the Prophet (PBUH) to fulfill the undertaking that has been entrusted to him: to warn humankind, to awaken them, to rid them of the evil in this life, and to grant them salvation from the torment in the Hereafter. Then the command was issued to the Prophet (PBUH), “And your Lord magnify.” God alone deserves to be magnified. Then, “And your garments purify.” Purifying ones garments is a figure of speech in the Arabic language. It means the purification of the heart, behavior, and deeds. It is the purification of the psyche to become suitable for receiving the revelation. It is necessary for the person who is calling to the Message to be morally pure in order to be able to ask others to rid themselves from the impurity of their sins.

“And all abomination shun.” The prophet (PBUH) has been known to have shunned all abomination even before he was given the responsibility of conveying the Message. His sound initial natural disposition protected him from indulging in any of the bad habits that were prevalent in the Arabic society at that time. The command then means that the Prophet (PBUH) should declare that all abominations are forbidden by Islam. Muslims should shun all these abominations.

“And do not confer a favor to acquire more.” This was a command issued to the Prophet (PBUH) to be altruistic in his endeavors. The Prophet (PBUH) should be prepared to make many and great sacrifices and it was not fitting for him to expect a worldly reward for these sacrifices. The final command was a command to persevere in pursuing his mission, “Persevere in your Lord’s cause.” The message to the Prophet (PBUH) was that the battle which he was about to embark on will be long and severe. It will require perseverance, steadfastness, and patience to see it through.

A general warning was issued to the deniers, “And when the trumpet sounds, certainly, that day will be a difficult day, not easy for the disbelievers.” The coming of the Day of Judgment will be announced by a trumpet that will hammer the ears. This day will a difficult day for the disbelievers.

A warning was then directed to a single individual from among the disbelievers. This individual had a major role in leading the resistance against Islam. The warning was a dire one and the verses paint a humiliating picture for that individual, “Leave Me alone, (to deal) with the (creature) whom I created alone. Then gave him vast wealth, and sons dwelling in his presence, and made (life) smooth for him. Yet he desires that I should give more. By no means, he has been stubbornly hostile to Our revelations. Soon I will impose a spiraling torment on him. He thought and he plotted; and woe to him, how he plotted. Woe to him; how he plotted. Then he looked around. Then he frowned and he scowled. Then he turned back and was haughty. Then said he, ‘This is nothing but magic from the past; this is nothing but the speech of a mortal.’ I will cast him into Hellfire.”

There are several narrations which indicate that the verses refer to Al-Waleed ibn Al-Mughirah Al-Makhzoumi. This man came to the Prophet (PBUH) and listened to him reciting the Quran. It seemed that Al-Waleed was touched by the Quran. Abu Jahl ibn Hesham, one of the chiefs of Quraish, came to know about this and was afraid that Al-Waleed would accept Islam. Abu Jahl was a wicked, scheming man. He wanted to embarrass Al-Waleed. So he pledged, in the name of Quraish, a great sum of money to Al-Waleed; if the latter promised not to go again to listen to the recitation of the Quran. Al-Waleed expressed his indignation saying, “Quraish knows that I am one of the richest among them.” Abu Jahl then told him that he should express publicly his rejection of what Muhammad (PBUH) was saying. Al-Waleed thought about it; he wondered what to say about the Quran. He said “What could I say about the Quran? I am most familiar with poetry and the jinn inspired poetry. The Quran is different from the poetry that we know.”

The Quran is sweat. It is superior to all other known forms of expression.” Abu Jahl was annoyed and told Al-Waleed your people will not accept you unless you make your rejection of the Quran public. Al-Waleed wanted some time to think about this. Then he came back saying, “This is magic received from old magicians.”

The Prophet (PBUH) was told to leave this individual alone, God promised to deal with him directly. The verses mentioned above start by describing the bounty that God bestowed on this individual in spite of his expressed ingratitude. He was obstinate in his hostility. As a result, God promised to subject him to an escalating process of torment. The verses then describe the struggle of the individual to find something wrong with the Quran. He tried very hard but he could not find anything wrong with it, so he decided to make up something. He decided that it is magic. There was no logic behind his conclusion; his arrogance barred him from accepting the truth. As a result, he will be admitted to Hell. But what is this Hell, “And what will explain to you what the Hellfire is?” It is beyond human comprehension, “It leaves nothing; it spares nothing. It scorches the mortal.”

God appointed nineteen angels to guard it, “Over it are nineteen.” Who are these nineteen? “We have appointed only angels to be wardens of the Fire, and We made their number to be a trial for those who disbelieve; that those to whom the Scripture has been given may have certainty, and that the believers may increase in faith; and that those to whom the Scripture has been given and the believers may not doubt; and that those in whose hearts there is disease, and the disbelievers, may say, “What does God mean by this similitude?” Thus, God sends astray whom He wills, and guides whom He wills. None knows the hosts of your Lord save Him. This is nothing else than a reminder unto mortals.” They are angels. They do what they are told. The verse mentions that this number was given as a trial for the disbelievers. The idolaters of Mecca were always argumentative. However, this is a matter of the unseen and we have no way of knowing the meaning of this number except that which we understand from the Quran. The people of the Scripture must have had something in the Scripture that corroborates the story mentioned here. It was mentioned that was meant to make them certain about the truthfulness of the Quran. The believers’ hearts are always open to receive more assurances from the Quran. On the other hand, those who doubt and the hypocrites will always find a reason for doubt. God guides whomsoever He wills and lets whomsoever He wills to go astray. Only God knows His hosts, because they are part of the unseen.

“I swear by the moon, and by the night as it retreats, and by the dawn as it shines, this is but one of the greatest, a warning to humankind.” This is an oath by some of the signs of God in the universe. It evokes many feelings in the hearts of the believers. The oath was made to emphasize the gravity of the responsibility and to warn those who are heedless.

“To him among you who wishes to go forward or remain behind. Every soul will be (held) in pledge for its deeds.” Every soul is responsible for its own deeds. People are held accountable for what they advance for themselves. The believers will be given their rewards, “Except the companions of the right hand. (They will be) in gardens; they will ask each other, concerning the guilty.” They will be given the right to question the criminals, “What led you into Hellfire?” The criminals will confess their crimes, “We were not of those who prayed; nor did we feed the poor; and we used to enter into vain discourses with those who enter into vain discourses. And we used to deny the Day of Judgment.” The disbelievers did not pray. This means they did not believe. The verse highlights the importance of prayer by referring to it as the symbol of faith. Prayer is a hallmark for the believers. The second crime is that they did not care for the poor and the needy. Feeding the poor is an act of worship. They approached the concept of faith in jest; they were not serious about it. The most important crime was that they did not believe in the Day of Judgment. This upsets all standards and values. Those who disbelieve in the Day of Judgment lose the goal that humankind should endeavor to achieve. Their lives become confused and chaotic until they die, “Till the Inevitable came unto us.” There is no chance for intercession after death, “So the intercession of intercessors shall not avail them.”

The following verses paint a scene describing the attitude of the disbelievers towards guidance. Their similitude in turning away from guidance is like wild asses fleeing an approaching lion, “Then what is the matter with them that they turn away from admonition? As if they were frightened asses, fleeing from a lion.” This is their image: frightened asses fleeing a lion.

Not only their outward appearance will be humiliated but also their psyche will be confused, “Each one of them desires that he should be given pages spread out.” Their obstinate hostility was motivated by their jealousy. Why was not each one of them chosen to be a messenger and to receive a scripture? Another reason for their hostility was that they really did not believe in the Hereafter, “By no means, they do not fear the Hereafter.” This motivated them to turn their backs to guidance.

The Sura then concludes by a reminder, “This is surely an admonition; so whoever pleases may heed it. And they will not heed unless God wills (it). He is the Lord who should be heeded and He is the Lord of forgiveness.” The Quran is only an admonition. Those who wish to heed the admonition will be guided, and those who refuse to heed it will be left to go astray. Ultimately, it is God who will decide who will be guided and who will be left to go astray. He has the power and He controls everything. Indeed, He is the Lord who deserves to be heeded and He is the Lord of forgiveness.

Sura 75: Al-Qiyama (The Resurrection)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 40:

1. I swear by the Day of Resurrection;
2. I swear by the self-reproaching soul.
3. Does humankind think that We cannot assemble his bones?
4. Yes, verily; We are able to reshape his very fingertips.
5. But humankind wants to deny what is ahead of him.
6. He asks, "When is the Day of Resurrection?"
7. So when the vision is dazzled,
8. And the moon is eclipsed,
9. And the sun and the moon are brought together;
10. On that day humankind will cry, "Where is the escape?"
11. By no means, there is no refuge.
12. With your Lord alone shall on that day be the final destination.
13. On that Day humankind will be informed of what he sent before and (what he) kept back.
14. Humankind will be a witness against himself,
15. Despite the excuses he will present.
16. Do not move your tongue with it to hasten with it.
17. It is upon Us to put it together and to recite it.
18. And when We recite it, follow its recitation.
19. It is for Us to explain it (and make it clear).
20. But you love the fleeting life,
21. And you disregard the Hereafter.
22. That Day some faces will be bright,
23. Looking towards their Lord;
24. And some faces, that Day, will be gloomy,
25. Knowing that a great calamity will befall them.
26. When it comes up to the throat,
27. And it is said, "Who is the healer?"
28. And he knows that it is (the time of) parting.
29. And when the legs are entwined together,
30. To your Lord on that Day shall be the drive;
31. For he neither accepted, nor prayed.
32. But he denied and turned back,
33. Then went he to his family, full of pride.
34. Woe to you, and woe.
35. Again, woe to you, and woe.
36. Does humankind think that he will be left aimless?
37. Was he not a drop of sperm emitted?
38. Then he became a leech-like clot; then God fashioned (him) in due proportion.
39. And made of him a pair, the male and the female.
40. Is not He able to give life to the dead? (75: 1 – 40)

The short Sura amasses a huge amount of facts, emotions, images, and scenes that overwhelm the heart. The Sura starts with an oath, “I swear by the Day of Resurrection; I swear by the self-reproaching soul.” God takes an oath by the Day of Resurrection and by the self-reproaching soul. The nature of the self-reproaching soul needs to be explored. Different scholars had different interpretations for the term, “self-reproaching soul.” However, we chose the explanation provided by Al-Hassan Al-Basri. He said, “The believer always reproaches himself for everything he does; what he says and what he eats. But the transgressor does not care about what he does.” The self-reproaching soul is a soul which continuously examines its deeds and expresses its regret for the sins it committed. It is a soul which is always in state of alert, afraid of succumbing to human weaknesses.

The idolaters of Quraish always had a problem with the concept of resurrection. This verse addressed their doubts, “Does humankind think that We cannot assemble his bones? Yes, verily; We are able to reshape his very fingertips.” Not only God is able to bring their bones back together but He is also able to reshape their finger tips so that they get back their original finger prints. This is a figure of speech which indicates that God is capable of resurrecting humans and shaping them in a form which preserves all their minute physical details.

The idolaters denied the concept of the resurrection because they were transgressors; they resisted any force that tried to restrain their desires and whims, “But humankind wants to deny what is ahead of him.” The way they asked, “When is the Day of Resurrection?” indicates that they thought it was not going to happen. The response to their question was a quick and an unequivocal illustration of scenes for the events which take place on that Day, “So when the vision is dazzled, and the moon is eclipsed, and the sun and the moon are brought together, on that day humankind will cry, ‘Where is the escape?’ By no means, there is no refuge. With your Lord alone shall on that Day be the final destination.” Three phenomena will take place on the Day of Resurrection: the eyes will be dazed, the moon will be eclipsed, and the moon and the sun will be brought together. The astronomical system will be disrupted. The people will panic. They will look for an escape, but there will be no escape. Safety and security can only be found with God. On that Day, the people will be presented with their accounts of deeds. Each one will testify against his/her own self, “On that day humankind will be informed of what he sent before and (what he) kept back. Humankind will be a witness against himself. Despite the excuses he will present.”

The following four verses were addressed to the Prophet (PBUH) giving him instructions regarding how to receive the revelations, “Do not move your tongue with it to hasten with it. It is upon Us to put it together and to recite it. And when We recite it, follow its recitation. It is for Us to explain it (and make it clear).” In the beginning of his mission, the Prophet (PBUH) was worried that he will not be able to retain the Quran in his memory, as Gabriel (PBUH) was reciting it. God told him that he should not worry. God will make sure that he remembers the verses which Gabriel (PBUH) will recite to him. In addition, God promised to explain the meanings of its verses, so that the Prophet (PBUH) will understand what the verses mean.

The verses continue to describe the scenes of the Day of Resurrection, “But you love the fleeting life, and you disregard the Hereafter. That Day some faces will be bright, looking towards their Lord; and some faces, that day, will be gloomy, knowing that a great calamity will befall them.” The verses reprimand the people for their love of the worldly life, ignoring the life of the Hereafter. The worldly life is only a fleeting life while the life of the Hereafter is the eternal life. On the Day of Resurrection there will be two groups of people. The group that worked for the Hereafter; their faces will be bright as they look towards their Lord. The people who preferred the fleeting life over the eternal life will have gloomy faces. They will be expecting a great calamity to befall them.

The narrative turns to another scene, the scene of a dying person, “When it comes up to the throat; and it is said, “Who is the healer?” And he knows that it is (the time of) parting; and when the legs are entwined together, to your Lord on that day shall be the drive.” When the soul reaches the throat, these will be the last moments of life. Those around the dying person will be trying to save him, “Who is the healer?” But there will be no healer. And when every method to save him has been tried and failed then he will be taken to the inevitable end. His deeds are then listed, “For he neither accepted, nor prayed. But he denied and turned back, Then went he to his family, full of pride. Woe to you, and woe. Again, woe to you, and woe.” It has been narrated that these verses referred to ‘Amr ibn Hesham (Abu Jahl). He used to assault the Prophet (PBUH) verbally and then go back to his family walking in arrogance. The verses mocked him and warned him of an evil ending.

Do people think that God created them in vain, “Does humankind think that he will be left aimless? Was he not a drop of sperm emitted? Then he became a leech-like clot; then God fashioned (him) in due proportion; and made of him a pair, the male and the female.” God created people to pursue certain objectives in life. This life is a period for humankind to be tested. Everyone will be held accountable for his/her deeds on the Day of Judgment. God created humankind from a drop of sperm. The verses then describe the stages of the development of the embryo. Finally, a well fashioned creature is born, sometimes it is a male and sometimes it is a female. Glory be to the Creator who created in the first instance. Is not He able to repeat the process again, “Is not He able to give life to the dead?”

Sura 76: Al-Insan (Humankind)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 31:

1. Has there come upon humankind a period of time when he was nothing to be mentioned?
2. Indeed, We created humankind from a mixture of fluids to test him; and We made him hearing, seeing.
3. We have shown him the way, whether he be grateful or disbelieving.
4. We have prepared for the disbelievers chains and shackles and a burning fire.
5. The righteous shall drink of a cup whose mixture is camphor;
6. A fountain where the servants of God drink, making it gush forth abundantly.
7. They fulfill (their) vows, and they fear a day whose evil will be wide-spreading.
8. And they feed, for the love of God, the indigent, the orphan, and the captive,
9. (saying), "We feed you for the sake of God alone; no reward do we desire from you, nor thanks.
10. We dread from our Lord a frowning grim day."
11. But God will guard them from the evil of that day, and will shed over them a light of beauty and (blissful) joy.
12. And because they were perseverant, He will reward them with a garden and (garments of) silk.
13. Reclining in the (garden) on raised couches, they will see neither the sun's (excessive heat) nor excessive cold.
14. And the shades of the (garden) will come low over them, and its fruits shall be made near (to them), being easy to reach.
15. Goblets of silver are brought round for them, and beakers of glass;
16. Crystal-clear, made of silver: they will determine the measure thereof (according to their wishes).
17. And they will be given to drink there of a cup (of wine) mixed with ginger.
18. A fountain there, called Salsabil.
19. And round about them will (serve) youths of perpetual (freshness); when you see them, you would think them scattered pearls.
20. And when you look, you will see therein bliss and a great kingdom.
21. Upon them will be green garments of fine silk and heavy brocade, and they will be adorned with bracelets of silver; and their Lord will give them to drink a pure drink.
22. (And it will be said to them), "This is a reward for you. Your striving shall be recompensed.
23. It is We who have sent down the Quran to you in stages.
24. Therefore, persevere waiting for the command of your Lord, and do not obey of them any guilty one or disbeliever.
25. Remember the name of your Lord at morning and evening.
26. And worship Him (a part) of the night. And glorify Him through the long night.
27. Indeed, these (disbelievers) love the fleeting life, and put behind them (the remembrance of) a grievous day.

28. We created them and made firm their make, and when We Please, We can replace them entirely with others of their kind.
29. This is an admonition, whosoever wills let him take a (straight) path to his Lord.
30. But you will not, except as God wills; for God is Omniscient and Wise.
31. He will admit to His Mercy whom He wills; but He has prepared a painful torment for the wrongdoers. (76: 1- 31)

Most of the scholars are of the opinion that this Sura was revealed in Mecca. However, there are opinions that the Sura was revealed in Medina after Surat al-Rahman. The style of the Sura, the description of the bliss in paradise, the torment that awaits the disbelievers and the command to the Prophet (PBUH) to persevere are all signs that support the opinion that it was revealed in Mecca. The Sura is a sequel to Surat al-Qiyama. Surat al-Qiyama describes the horrendous conditions which the disbelievers will face on the Day of Judgment. In this Sura, the felicity and bliss that the believers will enjoy on the Day of Judgment are described.

Hawwa mentioned that the Sura has different names, of these we mention al-Dahr (Time), al-Abrar (the righteous), and al-Amshaj (Mixture).

The Sura starts with a rhetorical question, “Has there come upon humankind a period of time when he nothing to be mentioned?” The objective of the verse is to remind humankind of the origin of his creation; so that he may reflect on this fact and express his gratitude to the Creator who brought him to this world.

“Indeed, We created humankind from a mixture of fluids to test him; and We made him hearing, seeing.” The mixture of fluids may be a reference to the mixture of the male’s sperm and the female’s egg. Or it may mean the genes that exist in the fertilized egg. God created humankind to be tested. God gave humankind the ability to hear and to see so that he can learn and respond. Then God showed him the way to choose, “We have shown him the way, whether he be grateful or disbelieving.” The verses indicate that gratitude is synonymous to belief, because believers are always grateful.

The following verse describes the torment that awaits the disbelievers, “We have prepared for the disbelievers chains and shackles and a burning fire.” Then the narrative moves quickly to describe the bliss that the believers will enjoy, “The righteous shall drink of a cup whose mixture is camphor; a fountain where the servants of God drink, making it gush forth abundantly.” God calls the believers in one place righteous and in another the servants of God. These are all ways for endearment and honoring them. The narrative then moves to introduce the righteous, “They fulfill (their) vows, and they fear a day whose evil will be wide-spreading. And they feed, for the love of God, the indigent, the orphan, and the captive, (saying), ‘We feed you for the sake of God alone; no reward do we desire from you, nor thanks. We dread from our Lord a frowning grim day.’” They fulfill their vows. They take their promises seriously and they fulfill whatever they promised to do. They fear the evil of the Day of Judgment which will afflict the disbelievers, so they endeavor to perform their duties. They feed the needy, the orphan and the captive. They are willing to share their food with those who are in need. But they are not interested in a worldly reward. They do these acts of charity because they want to express their gratitude to God; hoping that these acts will save them from the torment of the gloomy day. The Prophet (PBUH) has been quoted to have said, “Protect yourself from Hell-fire even with half a date.” Feeding the needy has dual purpose. It trains the believers to be altruistic and it also satisfies the need of the poor. God responded to them and not only saved them from the torment of that day but also gave them beauty and happiness, “But God will guard them from the evil of that day, and will shed over them a light of beauty and (blissful) joy.”

The verses continue to describe the details of their reward, “And because they were perseverant, He will reward them with a garden and (garments of) silk. Reclining in the (garden) on raised couches, they will see neither the sun's (excessive heat) nor excessive cold. And the shades of the (garden) will come low over them, and its fruits shall be made near (to them), being easy to reach. Goblets of silver are brought round for them, and beakers of glass, crystal-clear, made of silver: they will determine the measure thereof (according to their wishes). And they will be given to drink there of a cup (of wine) mixed with ginger; a fountain there, called Salsabil. And round about them will (serve) youths of perpetual (freshness); when you see them, you would think them scattered pearls.”

The scene is summarized in one verse, “And when you look, you will see therein bliss and a great kingdom.” But then the details of the kingdom are expounded, “Upon them will be green garments of fine silk and heavy brocade, and they will be adorned with bracelets of silver; and their Lord will give them to drink a pure drink. (And it will be said to them), ‘This is a reward for you. Your striving shall be recompensed.’”

The idolaters of Mecca did not resist the call to Islam only because they wanted to preserve the religion of their forefathers but also because they were afraid of the effect that Islam will have on their economic, political, and social lives. The chiefs of Quraish stood to lose a great deal of power, status, and wealth had they accepted Islam.

The Quran was revealed in stages to provide a continuous source of support to the Prophet (PBUH) during his long struggle to establish the religion of God, “It is We who have sent down the Quran to you in stages.” The verse stresses the fact that the Quran was revealed by God; and indicates that it was not revealed all at once but was revealed in stages. One of the objectives behind the gradual revelation is to provide a continuous support for the Prophet (PBUH). Then the Prophet's (PBUH) role is explained, “Therefore persevere waiting for the command of your Lord, and do not obey of them any guilty one or disbeliever.” There is no compromise between the truth and falsehood. So, the believers have to continue their struggle and to persevere. However, patience requires an arduous training program. The program is detailed, “Remember the name of your Lord at morning and evening. And worship Him (a part) of the night. And glorify Him through the long night.”

The disbelievers were heedless. They loved the pleasures of this transient world and were not aware of the disastrous result that awaited them, “Indeed, these (disbelievers) love the fleeting life, and put behind them (the remembrance of) a grievous day.”

God created these people in the first place; if He wills He can always replace them with others, “We created them and made firm their make, and when We please, We can replace them entirely with others of their kind.”

The Sura ends by opening a door to the mercy of God, reminding them of the opportunity that they have, “This is an admonition, whosoever wills let him take a (straight) path to his Lord.”

However, only by God’s mercy they can be guided, “But you will not, except as God wills; for God is Omniscient and Wise.” God has absolute power to guide whomsoever He wills and to let whomsoever He wills go astray, “He will admit to His Mercy whom He wills; but He has prepared a painful torment for the wrongdoers.”

Sura 77: Al-Mursalat (Those Sent Forth)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 50:

1. By those sent forth one after another;
2. Which blow violently;
3. And scatter (things) far and wide.
4. Then separate them, one from another;
5. And those who bring down the reminder,
6. To excuse or to warn.
7. Surely that which you are promised will befall.
8. When the stars become dim;
9. When the heaven is rent asunder;
10. When the mountains are blown away;
11. And when the Messengers' time has come.
12. For what day was it postponed?
13. For the Day of Judgment.
14. And what will explain to you what the Day of Judgment is?
15. Woe on that Day to the deniers.
16. Did We not destroy the former people?
17. Then caused the latter people to follow after?
18. Thus, We deal with the guilty.
19. Woe on that Day to the deniers.
20. Did We not create you from a base fluid?
21. Then We placed it in a secure resting place;
22. For a known term.
23. We determine; how excellent We determine?
24. Woe on that Day to the deniers.
25. Did We not make the earth a home?
26. For the living and the dead.
27. And We made therein firm and lofty mountains; and provided for you sweet water to drink?
28. Woe on that Day to the deniers.
29. (It will be said,) "Go to that which you used to deny."
30. Go to a shadow having three columns;
31. Offering no shade, and is of no use against the flame.
32. Indeed, it throws about sparks like castles;
33. As if they were yellow camels.
34. Woe on that Day to the deniers.
35. That Day they will not speak;
36. Nor will they be given permission to apologize.
37. Woe on that Day to the deniers.
38. This is the Day of Judgment. We have gathered you with the former people.
39. If you have a plot, then use it against Me.

40. Woe on that Day to the deniers.
41. The righteous will be amidst shades and fountains,
42. And fruits as they desire.
43. (It will be said) Eat and drink to your heart's content for what you used to do.
44. This is how We reward the doers of good.
45. Woe on that Day to the deniers.
46. Eat and enjoy yourselves for a little while, surely you are guilty.
47. Woe on that Day to the deniers.
48. And when it was said to them, "Bow down in prayer," they do not bow down.
49. Woe on that Day to the deniers.
50. In what message, after this, will they believe? (77: 1 -50)

This Sura has very stern features, violent scenes and severe rhythm. The verses are like whips of fire. They are like sharp arrows carrying a series of queries, threats, and warnings directed to the heart. The Sura presents scenes from both this life and the Hereafter. The main argument of the Sura is about the inevitability of the Day of Judgment. It uses a similar style to that used in Surat Al-Rahman (Chapter 55). The verse, "Woe on that Day to the deniers," is repeated at the end of each scene to maximize the impact of the scene on the psyche.

"By those sent forth one after another; which blow violently; and scatter (things) far and wide; then separate them, one from another. And those who bring down the reminder, to excuse or to warn, surely that which you are promised will befall." The Sura starts with this strong oath which emphasizes the inevitability of the Day of Judgment. The issue has been dealt with in many places of the Quran to address the denial of the idolaters of Mecca and because the belief in the Day of Judgment is an integral part of the doctrine of Islam. The oath is made with matters of the unseen. The words used in the oath are ambiguous which seem to convey the message that the unseen is beyond people's knowledge.

It has been narrated that the reference in these verses is to the angels, while there are other narrations which indicate that the reference is to the wind.

The verses then describe some of the terrifying scenes of the Day of Judgment, "When the stars become dim; when the heaven is rent asunder; when the mountains are blown away; and when the Messengers' time has come. For what day was it postponed? for the Day of Judgment. And what will explain to you what the Day of Judgment is? Woe on that Day to the deniers." These scenes were also mentioned in other places of the Quran. They all refer to the chaos that will occur on the Day of Judgment. All the cosmic phenomena that we are familiar with will be disturbed. This is the Day of Judgment, the Day which was appointed for the reckoning. This will be a terrifying day for those who denied the Message.

Some of the scenes from the history of humanity are then given, "Did We not destroy the former people? Then caused the latter people to follow after? Thus We deal with the guilty. Woe on that Day to the deniers."

Then the miracle of creation is reiterated, “Did We not create you from a base fluid? Then We placed it in a secure resting place, for a known term, We determine; how excellent We determine? Woe on that Day to the deniers.” God has determined everything according to a meticulous plan.

The verses take us on a tour of the earth, “Did We not make the earth a home? For the living and the dead, and We made therein firm and lofty mountains; and provided for you sweet water to drink? Woe on that Day to the deniers.” Did We not make the earth a home for people, during their lives and after their death? Did We not establish these huge firm mountains? These are matters that need power, planning and wisdom. How can they still deny?

The verses move to the scenes of the Day of Judgment, “(It will be said,) ‘Go to that which you used to deny. Go to a shadow having three columns, offering no shade, and is of no use against the flame. Indeed, it throws about sparks like castles. As if they were yellow camels.’ Woe on that Day to the deniers.” Go and seek that which you have denied before, you will see it in front of your eyes. It is the shadow of the smoke of the fire of Hell. Its flames are composed of three tongues. It is a shadow that does not provide shade, nor does it protect from the heat of the flame. It throws huge sparks like houses built of stone; one follows the other as if they were running camels.

“That Day they will not speak. Nor will they be given permission to apologize. Woe on that Day to the deniers.” On that Day they will neither be permitted to speak, nor will they be allowed to make excuses for their sins. As if it is said to them, you have been gathered today to receive the judgment for your deeds not to make excuses, “This is the Day of Judgment. We have gathered you with the former people. If you have a plot, then use it against Me. Woe on that Day to the deniers.” If you can still plot and scheme then bring it about your schemes.

The narrative turns to the side of the righteous, “The righteous will be amidst shades and fountains; and fruits as they desire. (It will be said) Eat and drink to your heart's content for what you used to do. This is how We reward the doers of good. Woe on that Day to the deniers.” They will enjoy food and drink and gardens with shade and springs. This is the reward for the good deeds that they used to do.

The narrative turned to address the guilty in this life, “Eat and enjoy yourselves for a little while, surely you are guilty. Woe on that Day to the deniers.” They can eat and drink in this fleeting life but it will only be temporary. The scenes of the Hereafter and the worldly life alternate as well as the address to the believers and the deniers. The juxtaposition of the two states brings forward the contradiction between them.

“And when it was said to them, “Bow down in prayer,” they do not bow down. Woe on that Day to the deniers. In what message, after this, will they believe?”

Sura 78: Al-Naba (The Announcement)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

1. Of what do they ask one another?
2. About the great announcement;
3. About which they differ?
4. Verily, they will soon find out.
5. Most certainly, they will find out.
6. Did We not make the earth comfortably stretched?
7. And the mountains pegs?
8. And We created you in pairs,
9. And made your sleep for rest,
10. And made the night a cover?
11. And made the day for seeking livelihood?
12. And We built over you the seven strong (heavens)?
13. And We placed a blazing lamp?
14. And do We not send down from the clouds water in abundance?
15. That We may produce therewith grain and plant?
16. And luxuriant gardens?
17. Indeed, the Day of Judgment has an appointed time.
18. On that Day the trumpet shall be blown and you will come in hosts,
19. And the heavens shall be opened as if there were doors,
20. And the mountains will be set in motion and become a mirage.
21. Truly, Hell is lying in ambush;
22. For the transgressors a place of destination.
23. They will dwell therein for ages.
24. Nothing cool shall they taste therein nor any drink,
25. Except a boiling fluid, dark, and murky.
26. A fitting recompense (for them).
27. Surely they did not expect the reckoning,
28. And they denied our revelations,
29. And We have recorded everything in a book,
30. "So taste (the fruits of your deeds); for no increase shall We grant you, except in torment."
31. Verily, the God conscious will triumph;
32. Gardens and vineyards,
33. And nubile women of equal age;
34. And a full cup.
35. They will neither hear therein vain speech nor lying;
36. A reward from your Lord, a fitting gift;
37. (From) the Lord of the heavens and the earth, and all that is in between, the Lord of Mercy. They will have no authority from Him to speak.
38. On that Day the Spirit and the angels will stand forth in ranks, none shall speak except any who is permitted by the Lord of Mercy and who will say what is right.

39. That is the Day of Truth. Therefore, whoso wills let him take a (straight) return to his Lord.
40. Verily, We have warned you of a torment near at hand, the Day when humankind will see what his hands have sent forth, and the disbeliever will say, "Woe to me, I wish I were mere dust."

This Sura is the first Sura in Part 30, of the Qur'an. All the Suras in this part were revealed in Mecca except Surat Al-Bayyinah (Chapter 98) and Surat Al-Nasr (Chapter 110). All these Suras are short in length. They have short verses and quick rhythm. The verses are like hammers that hammer the psyche of the human being with the same message over and over again: wake up, see where you are going, and reflect on what you are doing; there is a God, there will be reckoning, there will be a Day of Judgment, and there will be Paradise and Hell. The verses of this part in general are very impressive from the linguistic point of view and they use expressions and images which are very eloquent. Very often figures of speech are used instead of explicit expressions.

Hawwa states that the Sura consists of four parts. The first five verses serve as an introduction; it is followed by two sections. The first section consists of eleven verses, and the second consists of twenty-three verses. Verse 40 represents the closure of the Sura.

In the introduction, a question is posed. Verse 40 gives an answer to the question posed in the introduction. The first section, verses 6 to 16, describes signs of the power of God. All these signs can be seen by humankind during their lives on earth. But, the second section, verses 17 to 39, describes the signs of the Day of Judgement. These are matters of the unseen.

The main theme of the Sura is the inevitability of the Day of Judgement. The Sura explores the signs of the power of God and warns of the consequences of disbelief. The argument could be: God the Creator, who has the power to create all these signs which can be seen by people in their lives, has the power to resurrect people after death and hold them accountable.

"Of what do they ask one another? about the great announcement, about which they differ?" The Sura starts with a rhetorical question, "Of what do they ask one another?" The answer is then given, "about the great announcement, about which they differ?" The verses renounce the idolaters' doubt about the inevitability of the Day of Judgment. They express the astonishment that such a question should be asked. The repudiation of the way the idolaters think is then followed by a warning, "Verily, they will soon find out. Most certainly, they will find out." The repetition of the statement magnifies the impact of the warning.

Al-Razi states that there are three interpretations for the term, "the great announcement." The first is that it means the Day of Judgement. This is the agreed upon interpretation. The second is that it means the Qur'an, and the third, it means the prophet-hood of Prophet Muhammad (PBUH). Hawwa is in favor of the second interpretation. He connects between the ending of Surat al-Mursalat and the beginning of Surat al-Naba. Surat al-Mursalat ends with the verse, "In what message, after this, will they believe," which refers to the Qur'an; and Surat al-Naba' starts with the mention of the, "Great announcement." He also refers to the statement, "about which they differ,” saying that the disbelievers did not differ about the Day of Judgment. They rejected the concept of the resurrection. But, they differed about the nature of the Qur’an.

The first section of the Sura after the introduction, takes us on a tour of the universe citing signs of God that move the heart, “Did We not make the earth a cradle? And the mountains pegs? And We created you in pairs, and made your sleep for rest, and made the night a cover? And made the day for seeking livelihood? And We built over you the seven strong (heavens)? And We placed a blazing lamp? And do We not send down from the clouds water in abundance? That We may produce therewith grain and plant? And luxuriant gardens?” The word that has been translated as “cradle” could mean that the earth was made easy for people to travel. This may be the first impression that one gets from the verse and that would be the elementary and simple meaning that one gleans from it. But the word cradle in Arabic has a much deeper meaning. The more knowledge we gain about the earth the deeper becomes the understanding of the meaning of this word. God made this earth a cradle for the life of the human race. It provides all what is needed for the maintenance and progress of human life. It may also suggest that the life of the human being on earth is only the tome of infancy of the human life. The Hereafter is the place for the mature life.

The mountains were made as pegs. The mountains do look like huge pegs. They look like the pegs which are used to hold the tent down so that it does not fall or fly with the wind. Similarly, the mountains were created to give the earth its well-balanced equilibrium.

The verses refer to another phenomenon; the fact that we were created in pairs. This was essential for the continuation of human life as we know it. But what makes a male, male? And what makes the female, female? It is the divine power that articulated the creation.

God gave us time for rest and time for work. Both are needed for the continuation of human life. People need sleep to rest their bodies and remove the stress that accumulated during the day. They wake up the next day ready for resuming another day of work and various activities.

God created seven strong heavens. The specific meaning of this is still unknown. The verse indicates the firm construction of these heavens, meaning they are built with strength enough to keep them from disintegrating.

God created the sun. It gives us light and heat which are necessary for the continuation of life on earth. Describing the sun as “Siraj Wahaj,” is a very accurate description; because the word in Arabic means a source of both light and heat. God sends down the rain to provide the necessary water for plants to grow.

The narrative then moves to talk about the Day of Judgment, “Indeed the Day of Judgment has an appointed time. On that Day the trumpet shall be blown and you will come in hosts, and the heavens shall be opened as if there were doors, and the mountains will be set in motion and become a mirage.” People were not created in vain. There is a purpose for the creation of people. God who created people for a purpose does not leave them to wander around aimlessly. God appointed a Day for Judgment. On that Day the universe as we have known it, will no longer exist. The trumpet will be blown to announce the beginning of that Day. People will be gathered together. Can you imagine all the people from the beginning of life on earth till the last day gathered together in one place? This is a tremendous scene. The heavens will be opened as if it has gates. The mountains will be moved as if it were a mirage.

The narrative continues to describe the final abode that will be waiting for the tyrants, “Truly Hell is lying in ambush, for the transgressors a place of destination. They will dwell therein for ages. Nothing cool will they taste therein nor any drink, except a boiling fluid, dark, murky; a fitting recompense (for them). Surely they did not expect the reckoning, and they denied our revelations. And We have recorded everything in a book. ‘So taste (the fruits of your deeds); for no increase shall We grant you, except in torment.’”

Hell was created to be the dwelling place for the tyrants and the transgressors. It is as if they went on a trip to the earth for a short while and then they will come back to settle in it. Their drinks are only boiling and murky fluids. This is a fitting recompense for what they did during their journey on earth. They denied God’s verses and rejected the concept of accountability.

But the God conscious will be triumphant, “Verily the God conscious will triumph; Gardens and vineyards, and nubile women of equal age; and a full cup. They will neither hear therein vain speech nor lying; a reward from your Lord, a fitting gift.” These are images of physical pleasures which are used to symbolize the pleasures that await the God conscious. These are images which can be understood and appreciated by human beings. Their true meaning is beyond our understanding. In addition to the physical pleasures there will also be spiritual pleasures, “They will neither hear therein vain speech nor lying.” This is a fitting reward from their Lord.

Another scene from the scenes of the Day of Judgment is described. The scene of Gabriel (PBUH) standing with the angels in front of God, “(From) the Lord of the heavens and the earth, and all that is in between; the Lord of Mercy. They will have no authority from Him to speak. On that Day the Spirit and the angels will stand forth in ranks, none shall speak except any who is permitted by the Lord of Mercy and who will say what is right.” No one will speak except by permission, and when he speaks, he will speak the truth.

A cry of warning is then issued, “That is the Day of Truth. Therefore, whoso wills let him take a (straight) return to his Lord. Verily, We have warned you of a torment near at hand, the Day when humankind will see what his hands have sent forth, and the disbeliever will say, ‘Woe to me, I wish I were mere dust.’” This is the strong shock which may bring those who are still in doubt of the inevitability of the great event to their senses. They better believe before it is too late.

Sura 79: Al-Nazi'at (The Snatchers)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 46:

1. By those who snatch violently;
2. And those who remove gently;
3. And those who glide smoothly;
4. And those who overtake swiftly;
5. Then those who regulate the affairs.
6. The day on which the quaking one shall quake,
7. There will follow it the subsequent one;
8. On that day hearts will beat painfully;
9. While eyes will be downcast.
10. They say, "Will we indeed be returned to (our) former state?
11. Even after we have become rotten bones?"
12. They say, "This is indeed a losing proposition."
13. But it will be only a single cry,
14. And they will be awake.
15. Has the story of Moses reached you?
16. When his Lord called upon him in the Holy valley, Tuwa,
17. "Go to Pharaoh for he has indeed transgressed all bounds;
18. And say to him, 'Do you want to purify yourself?
19. And I guide you to your Lord, so that you should fear Him?'"
20. And he showed him the tremendous sign.
21. But he denied and disobeyed,
22. Then he turned away in haste,
23. Then he gathered and proclaimed.
24. He said, "I am your lord, most high."
25. So God seized him (and made him) an example for the Hereafter and for the former life.
26. In this is indeed a lesson for him who fears.
27. Are you more difficult to create, or is the heaven that He built?
28. He raised its height, then He perfected it.
29. And He made its night dark, and He brought out its bright morning.
30. And after that He spread the earth,
31. And produced from it its water and its pasture.
32. And the mountains, He made them firm;
33. A provision for you and for your cattle.
34. But when the overwhelming calamity comes,
35. The day when man will remember (all) that he endeavored;
36. And Hell will be made visible to him who sees.
37. Then as for him who transgressed,
38. And preferred the life of this world,
39. Hell will be his refuge.

40. But as for him who feared to stand before his Lord and restrained his soul from following its whims,
41. The Garden will be his refuge.
42. They ask you about the Hour, "When will be its appointed time?"
43. How can you tell?
44. Only your Lord knows its time.
45. You are only a warner for those who fear it.
46. The day they see it, (It will be) as if they had tarried but a single evening, or (at most till) the following morning.

Hawwa indicates that the first fourteen verses of the Sura serve as an introduction. There are two main sections that follow. The first is comprised of the verses 15 to 26; and the second is comprised of the verses 27 to 41. The closure is given in verses 41 to 46.

Ibn Abbas (RA) indicated that it was revealed after Surat al-Naba. Its introduction sounds like a detailed explanation of the last verse in Surat al-Naba.

The main objective of this Sura is to remind the human heart of the Hereafter and its enormity. It stresses the fact that the Hereafter is an integral part of God's plan for humankind who were created to live on earth, die, and then resurrected to account for their deeds.

"By those who snatch violently; and those who remove gently; and those who glide smoothly; and those who overtake swiftly; then those who regulate the affairs." One of the interpretations of these verses is that they refer to the angels who remove the souls violently, they move energetically and swiftly, they glide in the higher spheres, they hasten to obedience, and they perform all the commands of God. Another interpretation indicated that these verses refer to the stars. A third interpretation mentioned that the first four verses refer to the stars and the last one refers to the angels.

Whatever interpretation we consider, the verses were meant to awaken the heedless and to alert them to the inevitability of the enormous event, the event that is described in the following verses, "The day on which the quaking one shall quake there will follow it the subsequent one. On that day hearts will beat painfully; while eyes will be downcast." The quaking refers to the shaking earth. It was mentioned that the "subsequent one" refers to the sky, which will be rent asunder. It was also mentioned that these two verses refer to the first and second blasts on the Day of Judgment. Either way they will cause the hearts to tremble and to beat painfully; the eyes will be downcast. People will rise from their graves and they will ask, "Will we indeed be returned to (our) former state? even after we have become rotten bones?" They will ask will we return back to our first life? They will realize that they are going to a different life. Those who disbelieved in the Hereafter will then express their disappointment, "This is indeed a losing proposition." Only one blast will sound and they will find themselves awake on the land of the assembly, "But it will be only a single cry, and they will be awake." These are all matters of the unseen which we will not try to delve into its details.

The following verses relate briefly the encounter between Moses (PBUH) and Pharaoh. The verses start by a question to the Prophet (PBUH), “Has the story of Moses reached you?” This is a rhetorical question which is used to introduce the story, “When his Lord called upon him in the Holy valley, Tuwa.” This must have been a majestic moment: God addresses one of His servants. This is part of the divine mysteries; how does God communicate with His creatures. Then the story continues, God commanded Moses (PBUH) to go to Pharaoh, “Go to Pharaoh for he has indeed transgressed all bounds.” Transgression and tyranny are unacceptable. They spread corruption in the land. God does not love tyranny, transgression, or corruption. So, God chose one of His servants to stop Pharaoh’s tyranny.

God taught Moses (PBUH) how to approach this tyrant, “Say to him, ‘Do you want to purify yourself? and I guide you to your Lord, so that you should fear Him?’” The first step that Moses (PBUH) was commanded to take was to invite Pharaoh to purify himself from the sin of transgression so that he would know the way to his Lord. Upon knowing his Lord, Pharaoh would become awed with his Lord and would abstain from displeasing Him. The verses move quickly from the scene of communicating God’s command to Moses (PBUH) to the end of the story. The scene of the confrontation between Moses (PBUH) and Pharaoh has been omitted, only the final result is outlined, “And he showed him the tremendous sign. But he denied and disobeyed.” Pharaoh denied and disobeyed.

The next scene in the story is the scene that demonstrates Pharaoh’s stubbornness and his obstinate refusal to follow the guidance, “Then he turned away in haste. Then he gathered and proclaimed. He said, ‘I am your lord, most high.’” He gathered his people and the magicians and displayed his arrogance and ignorance. The people listened to him either out of ignorance or out of fear. God seized him and made him an example so that people would learn the lesson, “So God seized him (and made him) an example for the Hereafter and for the former life. In this is indeed a lesson for him who fears.”

The narrative then addressed the idolaters of Mecca, “Are you more difficult to create, or is the heaven that He built? He raised its height, then He perfected it.” It is a question that has one possible answer. The One who created the heaven and perfected it is the most powerful; He is able to resurrect you after death. He made its night dark and its day bright. “And after that He spread the earth, and produced from it its water and its pasture. And the mountains, He made them firm; a provision for you and for your cattle.” He spread the earth so that people can use it for travel and to grow crops. He made the mountains firm to stabilize the earth. God produced water from springs so that people can live, plant, and raise cattle.

Raising the heaven, making its night dark and its day bright; spreading the earth, producing its water and its pasture are all signs of the divine power. These are all signs that are apparent to all human beings at any place and at all times.

The narrative moves to the Day of Judgment, “But when the overwhelming calamity comes, the day when man will remember (all) that he endeavored, and Hell will be made visible to him who sees, then as for him who transgressed, and preferred the life of this world, Hell will be his abode. But as for him who feared to stand before his Lord and restrained his soul from following its whims, the Garden will be his refuge.” The life of this world is a transient pleasure. Only God knows how long it will continue. When it ends, the overwhelming calamity will strike. On that day people will remember what they have done during their lives. They will see Hell in front of their eyes. Those who transgressed will find their abode in Hell. But those who controlled their desires and whims because they knew they will be accountable for what they do will end up in paradise.

“They ask you about the Hour, ‘When will be its appointed time?’” This is the question that the idolaters of Mecca used to ask the Prophet (PBUH). The answer is, “How can you tell?” It is an answer which indicates how tremendous the Hour will be. Only God knows when it will happen, “Only your Lord knows its time. You are only a warner for those who fear it. The day they see it, (It will be) as if they had tarried but a single evening, or (at most till) the following morn.”

Sura 80: 'Abasa (He Frowned)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 42:

1. He frowned and turned away,
2. When the blind man came to him.
3. But how do you know? Perhaps he might be purified;
4. Or he might receive admonition, and the reminder might benefit him?
5. But for him who was indifferent,
6. You gave him your attention;
7. Though it is no blame to you if he does not purify himself.
8. And as to him who comes to you striving hard,
9. And he fears,
10. From him you were distracted.
11. By no means! Indeed, it is an admonition.
12. Therefore, let whoso wills remember it.
13. (It is recorded) on honored sheets,
14. Exalted, purified,
15. (Written) by the hands of scribes,
16. Noble and righteous.
17. Woe to man! How ungrateful is he?
18. From what thing did He create him?
19. From a sperm-drop, He created him, and then fashioned him in due proportions;
20. Then He made the path easy for him;
21. Then He put him to death, and buried him.
22. Then, when it is His will, He will raise him up (again).
23. By no means has he fulfilled what God has commanded him.
24. Then let man look at his food;
25. How We pour water down in abundance,
26. And We split the soil open,
27. And produce therein grain,
28. And grapes and green fodder,
29. And olives and palm-trees,
30. And thick gardens,
31. And fruits and fodder,
32. Provision for you and your cattle.
33. But when the Deafening Blast comes;
34. On the day man will flee from his brother,
35. And from his mother and his father,
36. And from his wife and his children.
37. Each one of them, that Day, will have enough concern (of his own) to make him indifferent to the others.
38. Some faces that Day will be beaming,
39. Laughing, rejoicing.

40. And other faces that Day will be dust-stained,
 41. Blackness will cover them.
 42. Those are the disbelievers, the wicked.

This Sura was revealed in Mecca. It comes after Surat al-Nazi'at. Hawwa points to the similarities between the two Suras. The last sections in the two Suras talk about the Day of Resurrection. These sections start with, "But when the overwhelming calamity comes," in al-Nazi'at and, "But when the Deafening Blast comes," in 'Abasa. The two Suras have verses which point to the power of God in creating suitable conditions on earth which enable human life to continue; the plants, the fruits, and the fodder. Hawwa also points to the theme started with the verse, "You are only a warner for those who fear it," in Surat al-Nazi'at which is picked up in the beginning of Surat 'Abasa, "Though it is no blame to you if he does not purify himself. And as to him who comes to you striving hard, and he fears."

The Sura is divided into four sections. The first section is comprised of the first ten verses. This section describes the interaction between the Prophet (PBUH) and Ibn Um Maktoum (RA). This event was used to establish one of the fundamental principles in Islam: people are not to be judged according to their material status but rather according to their level of God consciousness. The second section is comprised of the following six verses. It talks about the Qur'an as a reminder and a source of guidance for those who seek guidance. The third section is comprised of the following sixteen verses. It restates the principle that human life on earth is only transient. It reminds the human being of the simple miracles that enable human life to continue on earth. Finally, the last section, which is comprised of verses thirty-three to the end, describes some of the events of the Day of Judgment.

"He frowned and turned away, when the blind man came to him. But how do you know? Perhaps he might be purified. Or he might receive admonition, and the reminder might benefit him? But for him who was indifferent, you gave him your attention; though it is no blame to you if he does not purify himself. And as to him who comes to you striving hard, and he fears, from him you were distracted. By no means! Indeed, it is an admonition. Therefore let whoso wills remember it. (It is recorded) on honored sheets, exalted, purified, (written) by the hands of scribes, noble and righteous." This directive which was issued to the Prophet (PBUH) is a very serious issue; more serious than it would seem on the surface. A fundamental principle which establishes the worth of human beings. The relationships between people in any social setting are governed by many social, political, economical factors. These relationships are colored by the way society attaches status to individuals. It is customary, even in the so called classless societies, to classify people according to their social, political, and economical worth. Islam came to abolish these standards; a new standard was established, "The most noble of you in the sight of God is the most conscious of God." (49: 13)

The incident referred to in these verses was used by the Qur'an as a platform to emphasize this fundamental principle. People should be classified according to God's standard not according to people's standard. One day, the Prophet (PBUH) was busy talking to some of the chiefs of Quraish about Islam. The Prophet (PBUH) sensed that the chiefs may be interested in knowing more about Islam. He was hoping that if they adopt Islam, many of their followers would follow suit. Ibn Um Maktoum (RA) – a blind poor man- came to the Prophet (PBUH) to ask him about Islam. The chiefs of Quraish were resisting Islam and persecuting Muslims. Not only they prevented their followers to accept Islam but they also barred people from other cities to approach the Prophet (PBUH) to know about Islam. The Prophet (PBUH) was hoping to change this situation by convincing them to accept Islam. Ibn Um Maktoum (RA) came to the Prophet (PBUH) while he was busy talking to the chiefs of Quraish and wanted to learn from the Prophet (PBUH). The Prophet (PBUH) was not happy with the interruption of his critical discussion with the chiefs of Quraish, so he turned away from him. However, Ibn Um Maktoum (RA) was persistent in his request. The Prophet (PBUH) frowned and ignored Ibn Um Maktoum (RA). These verses were then revealed to settle this issue. The Qur'an came to reprimand the Prophet (PBUH) for his behavior with Ibn Um Maktoum (RA).

The Sura starts by stating what the Prophet (PBUH) did, “He frowned and turned away, when the blind man came to him.” The speech was coined in the third person, to make it sound like a mild rebuke to the Prophet (PBUH). Then the verses continue to present the reprimand, “But how do you know? Perhaps he might be purified. Or he might receive admonition, and the reminder might benefit him?” The Qur'an told the Prophet (PBUH) that he does not know who will benefit more from the guidance. Then the tone of the reprimand was heightened a little bit more, “But for him who was indifferent, you gave him your attention; though it is no blame to you if he does not purify himself. And as to him who comes to you striving hard, and he fears, from him you were distracted.” You gave your attention to the one who was indifferent and you ignored the one who was sincere in his interest; although you are not responsible for guiding the one who is not interested.

The level of reprimand was then raised another notch, “By no means!” This should not have happened because this religion is simply a reminder, “Indeed, it is an admonition. Therefore let whoso wills remember it. (It is recorded) on honored sheets, exalted, purified, (written) by the hands of scribes, noble and righteous.”

This was the standard that God established for people in this religion. This standard was established while the call to Islam was still in the early formative years, when Islam was new and Muslims were weak and persecuted. After this incident, the Prophet (PBUH) used to greet Ibn Um Maktoum (RA) warmly; and he would say to him whenever he met him, “Welcome to the man who was the cause for my Lord's reprimand.”

“Woe to man! How ungrateful is he?” The verse indicates the horrible deed that humankind commits when he refuses to accept guidance and shows ingratitude to God who created him. Had he reflected on the way he was created, he would have expressed his gratitude to his Creator. But why does he behave arrogantly any way, did he forget how he was created, “From what thing did He create him?” He was created from a tiny little insignificant thing, “From a sperm-drop, He created him, and then fashioned him in due proportions.” God fashioned him in the best form. Then God made life easy for him; He made the way to guidance available to him; and He equipped him with the necessary tools and knowledge for the continuation of his life, “Then He made the path easy for him.” And when he completes his role on earth, God will put him to death, “Then He put him to death, and buried him.” God honored humankind and made the earth, from which he was created, his final resting place rather than leaving his body to be preyed upon by wild animals. At the time that God has decreed, he will be resurrected to face his accountability, “Then, when it is His will, He will raise him up (again).” Humankind was created for a purpose and he will be accountable for his deeds.

“By no means has he fulfilled what God has commanded him.” The different generations of the human race since the beginning till the end did not and will not fulfill God’s commands. Humankind has great shortcomings. He never fulfills his duty. He did not remember the story of his creation nor did he express enough gratitude to his Creator. He did not spend his life on earth preparing for the Day of Reckoning. In addition, most people turned away from guidance and behaved arrogantly.

The Sura then asks humankind to reflect on his food, “Then let man look at his food. How We pour water down in abundance, and We split the soil open, and produce therein grain, and grapes and green fodder, and olives and palm-trees, and thick gardens, and fruits and fodder, provision for you and your cattle.” These verses describe the process of producing the food which allows humankind to survive. He should reflect on it. Does he have any control over this process? The Creator who created humankind is the one who miraculously developed this process.

“We pour water down in abundance.” Everyone knows about rain. We know now more about the water cycle and the role that rain plays in this cycle. Water coming from the sky is the first step in producing food. The second stage is, “We split the soil open.” Water goes through the soil and then the slender plant comes out through the heavy soil by the power of God and reaches out for air and sun to grow. These facts are seen and can be appreciated by every human being regardless of their level of education or knowledge. The third stage is the production of all types of edible things, “grain, and grapes and green fodder, and olives and palm-trees, and thick gardens, and fruits and fodder, provision for you and your cattle.” This is the story of the production of food. It has been created by God who created humankind. It is a miraculous process especially when we look at how the same pieces of land, irrigated by the same water produce different types of plants. All the characteristics of the plant have been preserved in the tiny seed that produces the plant. God has created this as a provision for humankind and their cattle.

“But when the Deafening Blast comes; on the day man will flee from his brother, and from his mother and his father, and from his wife and his children. Each one of them, that Day, will have enough concern (of his own) to make him indifferent to the others. Some faces that Day will be beaming, laughing, rejoicing. And other faces that Day will be dust-stained, blackness will cover them; those are the disbelievers, the wicked.” Then the end of life and its enjoyments come to conclude the different stages of human life on earth, which have been planned meticulously and deliberately. The conclusion of the Sura fits nicely with its beginning. It explains the way the two - the one who came striving hard and he fears; and the one who was indifferent and turned away from guidance - will be evaluated using the divine standard. The deafening blast will split the air and pierces the ears to introduce the horrific scene that will follow. Everyone is for himself/herself. No one cares for anyone else even if they were his/her brother, mother, father, spouse, or son. The strong relationships that existed between these people are severed by the blast. It is psychological horror that will keep people apart from each other.

The verses then describe the conditions of the two groups. The believers will come having bright faces, happy, and joyful. But the disbelievers who rejected guidance and transgressed, they will have blackened faces covered with dust.

Sura 81: Al-Takweer (Shrouding in Darkness)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 29:

1. When the sun is shrouded in darkness;
2. And when the stars are dispersed;
3. And when the mountains are set in motion;
4. And when the pregnant she-camels are abandoned;
5. And when the wild beasts are herded together;
6. And when the seas boil over;
7. And when the souls are paired;
8. And when the female infant, buried alive, is questioned,
9. For what crime she was killed;
10. And when the scrolls are laid open;
11. And when the sky is torn away;
12. And when the Hell is kindled up;
13. And when the Garden is brought near;
14. (Then) shall each soul know what it has put forward.
15. I swear by the planets that recede;
16. Those that run (their course) and disappear;
17. And the night as it departs;
18. And the dawn as it breathes;
19. This is indeed the speech of a noble Messenger;
20. Endued with power, and is held in honor by the Lord of the Throne,
21. One (to be) obeyed, and trustworthy.
22. And your companion is not mad.
23. And without doubt he saw him on the clear horizon.
24. He does not withhold knowledge of the unseen.
25. Nor is it the utterance of the cursed Satan.
26. Where will you go?
27. It is nothing but a reminder for all people,
28. For him among you who wishes to go straight.
29. But you will only wish to do so by the will of God, the Lord of the Worlds.

This Sura may be divided into two parts. Each part deals with a fundamental principle of the principles of the doctrine of Islam. The first principle deals with the characteristics of the Day of Resurrection and the cosmic cataclysm that will accompany it. This cataclysm will engulf the sun, the stars, the mountains, the seas, the earth, the sky, the cattle, the wild beasts, as well as the human beings. The second principle deals with the essence of the revelation, the angel who brought it down, the Prophet who received it, the people who are being addressed by it, and the Divine will that created them and sent them this revelation.

“When the sun is shrouded in darkness; and when the stars are dispersed; and when the mountains are set in motion; and when the pregnant she-camels are abandoned; and when the wild beasts are herded together; and when the seas boil over; and when the souls are paired; and when the female infant, buried alive, is questioned for what crime she was killed; and when the scrolls are laid open; and when the sky is torn away; and when the Hell is kindled up; and when the Garden is brought near; (then) shall each soul know what it has put forward.” This is the scene of the cataclysm that will occur. It will change the whole universe as we know it. This cataclysm will engulf the planets, the animals both domestic and wild, and the human beings. All secrets will be uncovered and each human being will stand up to account for his/her deeds. These cosmic changes indicate that the well balanced, meticulously controlled universe will be destroyed and its parts will be scattered. This is what the Sura is trying to instill in the psyche of the human being: abandon these fleeting appearances and get connected to the eternal truth that will never change, God is the absolute truth, the Eternal.

We have no way of knowing the true nature of the phenomena described in these verses. They are part of the unseen. But they are signs of the great upheaval that the universe will suffer. When all these signs occur then each soul will be held accountable.

The second part of the Sura starts with an oath by the beautiful cosmic scenes, “I swear by the planets that recede; those that run (their course) and disappear; and the night as it departs; and the dawn as it breathes.” The oath is by the planets that move in their orbits, the night when it becomes dark, and the morning as it breathes. These are beautiful scenes that are being described using extremely elegant expressions that bring the scenes to life. Even the morning is described as if it were a living creature that breathes.

What is the oath about? It is about the truthfulness of the revelation, “This is indeed the speech of a noble Messenger; endued with power, and is held in honor by the Lord of the Throne, one (to be) obeyed, and trustworthy.” This Qur’an and this description of the Day of Judgment are the speech of a noble messenger, Gabriel (PBUH). He was chosen to deliver the Message. The verses then list the attributes of this Messenger. He is strong and is deemed noble by his Lord. He is being obeyed among the higher host and he is trustworthy. These attributes indicate the nobility of the Message, its enormity, and its majesty. They also indicate the amount of care that God bestowed on humankind when He chose a Messenger with these attributes to convey His Message to humankind.

“And your companion is not mad. And without doubt he saw him on the clear horizon. He does not withhold knowledge of the unseen. Nor is it the utterance of the cursed Satan. Where will you go? It is nothing but a reminder for all people, for him among you who wishes to go straight. But you will only wish to do so by the will of God, the Lord of the Worlds.” The pagans of Mecca claimed that the Prophet (PBUH), whom they knew very well, was mad. Those who were impressed by the language of the Qur’an thought that it must have been the speech of a devil. They ignored the only logical explanation, that this Qur’an is God’s revelation. So the verses emphasize that the Prophet (PBUH) was not mad, and that he did truly see Gabriel (PBUH) at the horizon. The Prophet (PBUH) is to be trusted about what he says about the unseen. Finally, it is not the speech of a cursed devil, but it is a reminder for the people. It is a reminder that reminds people of the truth of their creation and the truth of the universe around them. It is a universal Message to all people. The verses also remind them that the door to guidance is open for those who desire to be guided. However, it is all contingent on the will of God. People should understand that their will is not independent from the will of God, but it is part of the Divine will. Everything that exists in the universe existed because of the Divine will and it is controlled by that will. God gives people the freedom to choose as part of His will.

Sura 82: Al-Infitar (The Cleaving Asunder)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 19:

1. When the sky is cleft asunder;
2. And when the planets are scattered;
3. And when the seas are exploded;
4. And when the graves are overturned;
5. Each soul will know what it has sent before (it) and what it has left behind.
6. Humankind, what has lured you away from your Lord, the Generous?
7. Who created you, then fashioned you, then proportioned you?
8. He puts you together in whatever form He wills.
9. But you do reject the religion.
10. And, indeed, there are guardians over you;
11. Noble recorders.
12. They know all that you do.
13. Indeed, the righteous will be in bliss;
14. And the wicked - will be in Hell,
15. They will burn therein on the Day of Judgment,
16. And they will not be able to keep away from it.
17. And what will explain to you what the Day of Judgment is?
18. Again, what will explain to you what the Day of Judgment is?
19. A day on which no soul has power at all for any (other) soul. The (absolute) command on that day is God's.

This short Sura describes the cosmic cataclysm which was described in Surat At-Takweer (Chapter 81). But this Sura uses a different style and a different approach. Its verses have a quite rhythm that touches the human heart in a special way, a way of mild reprimand that embodies a threat. It describes the cataclysm scenes briefly without going into details. It can be divided into four parts. The first part deals with the sky being cleft asunder, the scattering of the planets, the explosion of the seas, and the overturning of the graves. All of these scenes accompany the realization of each soul of what it did. The second part introduces a touch of reprimand that embodies a threat. The third part explains the reason behind humankind ingratitude. The last part warns of the enormity of the Day of Judgment.

“When the sky is cleft asunder; when the planets are scattered; when the seas are exploded; and when the graves are overturned; each soul will know what it has sent before (it) and what it has left behind.” The cleaving asunder of the sky has been mentioned in several places in the Qur’an. It is one of the facts of the Day of Judgment; however we do not know how it will happen. It is part of the cosmic cataclysm that will happen on the Day of Judgment. The verses then refer to the scattering of the planets, the explosion of the seas, and the overturning of the graves. As these scenes are happening, each soul will realize the truth about what it did during its life on earth and what it missed. It could be understood that the verse may be referring to the things that each soul enjoyed during its lifetime and the things that each soul prepared for the Hereafter.

“Humankind, what has lured you away from your Lord, the Generous? Who created you, then fashioned you, then proportioned you? He puts you together in whatever form He wills.” A mild reprimand is then issued to humankind. God blessed you with the human nature. He looked after you and educated you. Why have you been lured away from His path and did not fulfill your duties to Him? He is your Generous Lord who bestowed on you all these blessings. The verses then detail some of God’s blessings. He created humankind in a perfect form. Only God is able to perfect the form of humankind. However, humankind response to the kindness and grace of God is ingratitude. Humankind is addressed directly by God to evoke in him the feelings of recognition of God’s blessings and to direct him to reflect on these bounties that God bestowed on him.

The verses uncover the reason behind humankind’s ingratitude and shortcomings, “But you do reject the religion. Indeed, there are guardians over you; noble recorders. They know all that you do. The righteous will be in bliss. And the wicked - they will be in the Hell, they will burn therein on the Day of Judgment, and they will not be able to keep away from it.” You reject the concepts of accountability and judgment. This is the reason behind humankind’s arrogance and shortcomings. The heart that rejects the concepts of accountability and judgment cannot seek God’s guidance. The spirituality of the heart may attain high levels of transparency so that the heart becomes full of the love of God; for these hearts, obedience becomes a natural reaction. These hearts obey God because they love Him not because they fear His torment or they hope for His reward. However, you should remember that there are angels who have been assigned to each human being. These angels will observe and record the deeds of each and every human being. These angels are noble. One should be ashamed of doing something wrong knowing that he is being observed by these noble angels. The reward for the righteous and the punishment for wicked are then outlined. The righteous will be destined to the Garden while the wicked will be destined to Hell. They cannot escape it.

The nature of the Day of Judgment is then reiterated, “And what will explain to you what the Day of Judgment is? Again, what will explain to you what the Day of Judgment is? a day on which no soul has power at all for any (other) soul. The (absolute) command on that day is God’s.” Repeating the rhetorical question amplifies its psychological effect. On that Day, no one will have any power, everyone will be completely helpless. God will have the absolute power. God has the absolute power in this life as well as in the Hereafter. On the Day of Judgment, this fact will become glaringly known to the heedless who did not realize it in their worldly life.

Sura 83: Al-Mutaffifin (The Defrauders)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 36:

1. Woe to the defrauders;
2. Those who, when they have to receive a measure from people, they take it in full;
3. But when they give a measure or weight to people, they give less than what is due.
4. Do they think that they will not be raised again?
5. To a mighty Day,
6. The Day when (all) humankind will stand before the Lord of the Worlds?
7. No, indeed! The record of the wicked will be in Sijjin.
8. And what will explain to you what Sijjin is?
9. A written record.
10. Woe, that Day, to the deniers;
11. Those who deny the Day of Judgment.
12. And none can deny it except a transgressor, sinner.
13. Who, when Our revelation is recited to him, says, "Ancient fables."
14. Verily, their hearts are covered by rust because of what they used to earn.
15. Verily, that Day they will be debarred from their Lord.
16. Then they will burn in Hell,
17. And it will be said (to them), "This is what you used to deny."
18. Surely the record of the righteous shall be in the 'Iliyin.
19. And what will explain to you what 'Iliyun is?
20. A written record.
21. Those who are drawn near (to God) shall witness it.
22. Truly the righteous will be in Bliss;
23. On couches, gazing.
24. You will recognize on their faces the radiance of bliss.
25. They will be given to drink pure wine, sealed,
26. Whose seal is musk - this is what the competitors should compete for.
27. And mixed with water of Tasnim,
28. A fountain from which those drawn near (to God) drink.
29. Surely, the guilty used to laugh at those who believed.
30. And whenever they passed by them, they used to wink at each other;
31. And when they returned to their own people, they would return jesting;
32. And whenever they saw them, they would say, "These people have gone astray."
33. But they were not sent as keepers over them.
34. But on this Day the believers will laugh at the disbelievers;
35. On high couches, gazing.
36. Have the disbelievers been paid back for what they did?

There is a difference in opinion among the scholars about the place of revelation of this Sura. Some, like Ibn Mas'oud (RA) and al-Dahhak, believe that it was revealed in Mecca. While, al-Hassan and 'Ikrimah (RA) are of the opinion that it was revealed in Medina.

Al-Souti made an insightful comment on the fact that Surat al-Mutaffifin is preceded by Surat al-Infitar and is followed by Surat al-Inshiqaq. He said that Surat al-Infitar focuses on the events which will occur early on the Day of Judgment, while Surat al-Inshiqaq focuses on the events which will occur late on the Day of Judgment (the actual passing of the judgments). In between, comes Surat al-Mutaffifin which refers to the long duration of events in between the beginning and end of the Day, “The Day when (all) humankind will stand before the Lord of the Worlds.”

Hawwa suggests that the Sura consists of four well defined sections. The first section is comprised of the first six verses. This section describes the characteristics of the defrauders. The second section is comprised of the verses 7 to 17. This section describes the characteristics of the transgressors. The third section is comprised of the verses 18 to 28. The third section describes the characteristics of the righteous. The final section is comprised of the verses 29 to 36. This section describes the promised reward that the righteous will get and the promised punishment that the transgressors will get.

This Sura deals with one of the ills which was prevalent in the society at the time of the advent of Islam. Powerful business people forced their crooked ways of conducting business on helpless people. Islam sought to correct this injustice by inculcating high ethical values in the hearts of people. The Sura aimed at awakening the hearts and evoking the feelings so that people would accept the changes in the values which have been brought by the Divine Message.

The Sura starts with a dire threat to the defrauders outlining the punishment they will receive on the Day of Judgment. It describes the bad behavior of the disbelievers who went astray and were mocking the believers. It ends by a description of the rewards that will be given to the believers.

“Woe to the defrauders; those who, when they have to receive a measure from people, they take it in full; but when they give a measure or weight to people, give less than what is due. Do they think that they will not be raised again? to a mighty Day,” The Sura starts with a declaration of war on the defrauders. It is the same whether this was a decree that the defrauders will be destroyed or a mere invocation asking for their destruction. An invocation made by God is a decree. The verses explain what is meant by the term “defrauders.” These are the people who receive their share in full but they do not give people their due share. The verses express an amazement that these people subscribe to such an evil practice, “Do they think that they will not be raised again? to a mighty Day. The Day when (all) humankind will stand before the Lord of the Worlds?”

Considering the opinion that the Sura was revealed in Mecca, it is interesting that a Meccan Sura would deal with the issue of defrauding. The Meccan Suras usually dealt with the fundamental principles of the doctrine e.g. the belief in the oneness of God, the Divine will, the revelation, and the Hereafter. They also tried to relate ethical principles to the doctrine. But it was not usual to discuss a specific ethical problem, especially those related to normal daily life dealings. The discussion of these issues appeared later in the Suras of the Qur’an which were revealed in Medina, which dealt with the organization of the Muslim society in general. So it is interesting to find a Meccan Sura dealing with such topic. One may deduce several indicators from this.

Defrauding people of their due share must have been prevalent in the Meccan society at that time. It was practiced mainly by the rich traders. These rich traders monopolized the caravan trade between Mecca and Yemen in the winter and Mecca and Syria in the summer. They also established and controlled big markets, like the market of ‘Okaz which was held every year during the season of pilgrimage. The verses used the term “the defrauders” in reference to these rich traders who had the power to oppress the helpless people and treat them unfairly. This shows that Islam is a comprehensive religion. It encompasses all aspects of life. It aims at establishing a way of life based on ethical practices and sound moral values. These verses pronounce Islam’s disapproval of the social injustices that were part and parcel of the society at that time. This is remarkable since this was done at a time when the religion of Islam was still a fledgling call. A call that did not have yet the power to control the social life of people. Islam made the call to awaken the masses and to alert them to the injustice that they have been subjected to; it was not the opium of the masses.

This also explains the reason that the chiefs of Quraish resisted adamantly the call to Islam. They realized that Islam is not a mere belief that rests deep in the heart, or a testament of faith to be pronounced by the tongue but it is a Divine project that will destroy all the unfair practices on which their society was established. This project does not accept compromise nor does it allow the amalgamation between the Divine and the earthly values. Only tyrants and oppressors would object to the values that the Islamic project aims at establishing. They know that the Islamic project threatens their interests, their bad behavior, and the power that they usurped.

Those who pledged allegiance to the Prophet (PBUH) also realized this. When the chiefs of the tribes of Aws and Khazraj came to pledge allegiance to the Prophet (PBUH), Al-Abass ibn Nadlah Al-Ansari said to them, “Are you fully aware of the meaning of this pledge?” They said, “Yes.” He said, “You are pledging to fight with him against all people, red or black. If you think that you will renege on your pledge if your wealth is lost or your nobility are killed, then do not give him your pledge now, because this would be something that you would be ashamed of in this life and in the Hereafter. But if you think that you will fulfill your pledge even if your wealth is lost or your nobility are killed, then go ahead with your pledge. This pledge is the best thing for you in this life and in the Hereafter.” They said, “We will fulfill our pledge to him even if our wealth is lost or our nobility are killed.” They asked the Messenger of God (PBUH), “What do we get out of this?” He said, “Paradise.” So they made the pledge.

“Surely the record of the wicked will be in Sijjin. And what will explain to you what Sijjin is? a written record.” In the earlier verses they were called defrauders but in these verses they are called wicked. The wicked people are those who transgress all limits. Their deeds will be recorded. However, this record is part of the unseen. This record is kept in Sijjin. The enormity of Sijjin is then expressed by the rhetorical question, “And what will explain to you what Sijjin is?” Naming the place of the record assures the addressee of its existence, even if the place is unknown to the addressee. The record will be kept intact until the Day of Judgment. Who are the wicked? “Woe, that Day, to the deniers, those who deny the Day of Judgment. and none can deny it except a transgressor, sinner. Who, when Our revelation is recited to him, says, ‘Ancient fables.’” Their transgression and wickedness lead them to deny the inevitability of the Day of Judgment. Their denial was caused by the rust that covered their hearts and prevented them from seeing the truth. Their hearts died because the rust covered it and prevented the light of guidance to shine on them, “No indeed; their hearts are covered by rust because of what they used to earn.”

“Verily, that Day they will be debarred from their Lord. Then they will burn in Hell, and it will be said (to them), ‘This is what you used to deny.’” The sins covered their hearts and prevented them from connecting with their Lord in the life of this world so it is logical that they will not be able to connect with God in the Hereafter. They will be deprived of the pleasure of looking at God’s face. Thus they will lose the greatest joy that anyone can experience; the joy will only be experienced by those whose souls became pure and transparent, there will be no barrier between them and their Lord. The wicked will suffer the deprivation of looking at God’s face which is itself a great punishment. They will be admitted to Hell, and will be reminded that they used to deny it during their life on earth.

The situation of the wicked is then juxtaposed against the situation of the righteous, “Surely the record of the righteous shall be in the ‘Iliyin. And what will explain to you what ‘Illiyun is? a written record, those who are drawn near (to God) shall witness it. Truly the righteous will be in bliss; on couches, gazing. You will recognize on their faces the radiance of bliss. They will be given to drink pure wine, sealed, whose seal is musk - this is what the competitors should compete for; and mixed with water of Tasnim, a fountain from which those drawn near (to God) drink.” The verses start with the Arabic word, “Kalla” which indicates severe reproach and a command to the wicked to desist. Then the verse emphasize firmly that the written record of the righteous is in ‘Iliyin. This word has the connotation of highness and elevation, which indicates that the word Sijjin has the connotation of lowliness and abasement. The effect is also magnified by the use of a rhetorical question, “what will explain to you what ‘Illiyun is?” The righteous will be honored by the fact that the angels will witness their record. The righteous situation is then described. They will be in bliss sitting comfortably on couches. They look wherever they wish. Their eyes will not be down cast nor will they suffer any hardship that will prevent them from enjoying their surroundings. Their faces will be radiant and they will be drinking a pure drink. Their drink will be mixed with a fluid coming from a fountain from which only those who are drawn near to God drink. This is something worthy of competing for. Compare that with the fact that the wicked were competing for trivial pleasures of the fleeting world.

It is amazing that competition in matters of the Hereafter elevates the souls of all competitors while competition in matters of the worldly life debases the souls of all competitors. Competing for matters of the Hereafter purifies the earth and makes a better place for living while competing for the pleasures of worldly life turns the earth into a swamp in which worms eat each other.

“Surely the guilty used to laugh at those who believed; and whenever they passed by them, they used to wink at each other; and when they returned to their own people, they would return jesting; and whenever they saw them, they would say, ‘These people have gone astray.’ But they were not sent as keepers over them. But on this Day the believers will laugh at the disbelievers; on high couches, gazing. Have the disbelievers been paid back for what they did?” The images that the Qur’an portrays for the ridicule that the believers suffered at the hands of the criminals are taken directly from scenes that used to occur in Mecca. But one can see these images repeated at different times, and different places. The nature of the wicked criminals is the same at all times and in all places.

The criminals used to laugh at the believers who may have been poor, weak, or unable to defend themselves. Part of this ridicule was expressed by winking to each other. Having enjoyed ridiculing the believers, the criminals would then go back to their families happy and content. They even had the audacity to call the believers, "those who have gone astray." The Qur'an dismisses this by simply stating that they were not sent as keepers over the believers. On the Day of Judgment the situation will change. On one hand, the wicked are deprived of the pleasure of looking at their Lord; while the believers are enjoying the bliss, they are free to look around as they wish, and they drink a sealed pure drink. Today is the turn for the believers to laugh at the disbelievers and ask, "Did the disbelievers get what they deserve?"

Sura 84: Al-Inshiqaq (The Splitting Asunder)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 25:

1. When the sky is split asunder,
2. Obeying its Lord as it rightly must.
3. And when the earth is extended out,
4. And casts forth what is within it and becomes empty,
5. Obeying its Lord as it rightly must.
6. Humankind, you are verily ever toiling towards your Lord until you meet Him.
7. Then he who is given his record in his right hand,
8. He will receive an easy reckoning;
9. And he will return to his people, rejoicing.
10. But he who is given his record behind his back,
11. He will cry for perdition,
12. And he will burn in a blazing fire.
13. Indeed, he used to live among his people rejoicing.
14. Surely he thought that he would never return.
15. Indeed, he will. His Lord was watching.
16. I swear by the twilight,
17. And the night and what it covers;
18. And the moon as it grows full;
19. You will surely travel from stage to stage.
20. What is the matter with them; that they do not believe?
21. And when the Qur'an is recited to them, they do not prostrate,
22. But the disbelievers are in denial;
23. But God has full knowledge of what they hide.
24. So give them tidings of a painful torment,
25. Except to those who believe and do righteous deeds; for them is a reward that will never fail.

The Sura starts with some of the scenes of the cosmic cataclysm which were detailed in Surat Al-Naba (Chapter 78), Surat Al-Takweer (Chapter 81), and Surat Al-Infitar (Chapter 82), respectively. But in this Sura the exposition has a special mood, the mood of submission to God, the submission of the sky and the earth in obedience and humility. The Sura then addresses humankind. The third part of the Sura describes cosmic scenes that everyone observes every day. The last part of the Sura poses a question expressing an amazement at the people who refuse to believe.

“When the sky is split asunder, obeying its Lord as it rightly must. And when the earth is extended out, and casts forth what is within it and becomes empty, obeying its Lord as it rightly must.” The rupture of the sky has been dealt with in previous Suras. What is new is the total submission of the sky to its Lord, expressing the right of God to Whom everyone should submit.

Another new expression is the extension of the earth. It may mean the extension of its area or its form as a result of the cosmic cataclysm. The expression indicates that this phenomenon is caused by an external agent. But the following verses describe the earth as if it were a living thing that casts forth what it has inside it and becomes empty. The earth will also be obedient to its Lord. The verses paint an image for the sky and the earth as if they were living creatures who listen, obey, and submit.

Then the verses address humankind, “Humankind, you are verily ever toiling towards your Lord until you meet Him.” Humankind, who has been created by his Lord in a perfect way and whom God blessed with a nature that makes him unique in this universe, will toil on earth till the end; when he will return to his Lord. To Him everything will return. Humankind can choose what is fitting according to the characteristics that God bestowed on him. He could be one of those who are given their records in their right hands. Those will receive easy reckoning and will return to their family rejoicing. The one who is given his record in his right hand will be happy and content. He believed and did good deeds, so God will be pleased with him. He will not be called to account. ‘Aisha (RA) said that the Messenger of God (PBUH) said, “The one who is called to account will be tormented.” She said, “Did not God say, ‘His reckoning will light.’” The Messenger (PBUH) said, “This does not refer to the reckoning, it refers to the presentation of the record. Whoever is called to account will be tormented.”

The one who is given his record in his right hand will present his record and will be saved, and he will go back to his people rejoicing. But, he who is given his record behind his back will cry for perdition, “But he who is given his record behind his back, he will cry for perdition, and he will burn in a blazing fire.” The Qur’an usually mentions the expression “given the record in the left hand” to describe the method by which the disbelievers will receive their records. However, in this Sura a new expression is used, “given the book behind the back.” That may mean he is given his record in the left hand behind his back. However, we do not really know anything about the record and how it will be given. But the important thing is that he who attained salvation will be given his record in his right hand and he who will be punished will be given his record behind his back. This poor wretched who spent all his life toiling after sin, falsehood, and disobedience will realize his end and will face his destiny. He will realize that he will continue toiling without end. He will cry for perdition. He used to live rejoicing among his people thinking that there will be no accountability, “Indeed, he used to live among his people rejoicing. Surely he thought that he would never return.” But God was watching him, “Indeed, he will. His Lord was watching.”

The narrative then turns to scenes from the universe that we live in, “I swear by the twilight, and the night and what it covers; and the moon as it grows full; you will surely travel from stage to stage.” The twilight is a time for quiet reflection after sunset when the soul absorbs the beauty around it and the heart feels the sadness of parting ways. It is time when one feels the awesome approach of the night and the fear which is associated with darkness. The expression “the night and what it covers,” is a brief ambiguous expression that can be interpreted in so many ways. However, it paints a scene engulfed in serenity. Then one sees the magnificent view of the moon as it attains its full form. “You will surely travel from stage to stage;” you will suffer the change from one state to another according to the predetermined plan. The change from one state to another is expressed in the form of travel to magnify the hardship that people suffer during the process of change.

Then a question is posed, “What is the matter with them; that they do not believe?” Yes, why do not they believe? They have seen all the signs of God all around them and they still do not believe. The Qur’an is beautiful, it evokes so many emotions when it is recited, but the disbelievers are heedless, “And when the Qur’an is recited to them, they do not prostrate.”

Then the reason for their heedlessness is explained, “But the disbelievers are in denial; but God has full knowledge of what they hide, so give them tidings of a painful torment.” Except those who believed and did good deeds, “Except to those who believe and do righteous deeds; for them is a reward that will never fail.” The exception mentioned in the last verse is a form of expression in Arabic called “unrelated exception.” The exception here does not mean that the believers were originally included in the group which received the bad tidings then they were taken out of the group. The style serves to draw the attention to what follows, “for them is a reward that will never fail.” They will be given a perpetual and eternal reward in the Hereafter.

Sura 85: Al-Buruj (The Constellations)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 22:

1. By the sky, with its constellations;
2. And the promised Day;
3. And the witness, and the witnessed;
4. Damned were the makers of the ditch,
5. The fuel-fed fire,
6. When they sat by it,
7. And were themselves the witnesses of what they did to the believers.
8. Their only grievance against them was that they believed in God, the Eminent, the Praised;
9. To Him belongs the dominion of the heavens and the earth. And God is Witness over all things.
10. Those who persecute the believers, men and women, and do not turn in repentance will have the torment of Hell. And they will have the torment of the burning Fire.
11. For those who believe and do righteous deeds will be Gardens, beneath which rivers flow. That is the great triumph.
12. Truly, the punishment of your Lord is severe.
13. It is He who originates and reproduces,
14. And He is the All-Forgiving, the Most Loving;
15. The Glorious Lord of the Throne,
16. Doer of what He wills.
17. Has the story of the hosts reached you?
18. Of Pharaoh and Thamud?
19. And yet the disbelievers persist in denial.
20. But God is encompassing over them.
21. It is a glorious Qur'an,
22. In a guarded tablet.

This short Sura displays the basic principles of the doctrine. These are principles that emit far reaching lights. The main subject of this Sura is the story of the people of the ditch. A group of believers, before the time of Islam - it was said that they were Christians who believed in the Oneness of God – were being persecuted by their enemies. These enemies were oppressing tyrants. They tried to force them to relinquish their faith, but the believers persevered. The oppressors dug a ditch in the ground and they lit a huge fire inside the ditch. The believers were killed when the oppressors threw them in the ditch. The whole town was gathered to witness the incident. The Sura thus presents an admonition to the people and a support for the believers.

The Sura consists of two sections. The first section is comprised of the first eleven verses. This section narrates the story of the people of the ditch. The section ends with two verses; the first outlines the punishment for the oppressors and the second details the reward for the believers. The second section is comprised of the verses from 12 to 22. The section reminds people of the power of God and admonishes them to believe before it is too late. This section represents an admonition for people and a promise of God's support for the believers.

The Sura begins with an oath, “By the sky, with its constellations. And the promised Day; and the witness, and the witnessed.” The Arabic word for constellations may actually mean the huge constellations in the sky alternatively it could mean the positions that the planets take as they move around in their orbits. The promised day is the Day of Judgment. On that day the deeds will be presented and they will be witnessed by everyone who will then be witnesses.

The narrative then moves to describe briefly the incident, “Damned were the makers of the ditch, the fuel-fed fire, when they sat by it, and were themselves the witnesses of what they did to the believers. Their only grievance against them was that they believed in God, the Eminent, the Praised. To Him belongs the dominion of the heavens and the earth. And God is Witness over all things.” The Sura starts by cursing the oppressors. They have committed a heinous crime. They dug the ditch and lit a huge fire inside it. They were sitting watching as the believers were thrown into the fire. The only crime that the believers committed was that they believed in God. They believed in God, the Eminent the Praised. He has the power to do whatever He wills and He deserves to be praised in all situations and conditions. He is a witness to what the believers suffered. The incident shows an example of the perseverance of the believers. They were willing to sacrifice their lives for their faith.

This incident is not the first, nor will it be the last incident of persecution to be committed against the believers. The believers will always be subject to persecution and oppression. Unless the oppressors repent to God they will be punished in the same way, “Those who persecute the believers, men and women, and do not turn in repentance, will have the torment of Hell. And they will have the torment of the burning Fire.”

The believers will be rewarded, “For those who believe and do righteous deeds, will be Gardens; beneath which rivers flow. That is the great triumph.”

“Truly, the punishment of your Lord is severe.” It is appropriate to mention God's punishment here to send a message to the oppressors that their power is negligible in comparison with God's power. It is He who originates and reproduces, “It is He who originates and reproduces.” The processes of originating and reproducing do not refer to the first creation and the resurrection only but they also refer to the ever continuous processes of originating and reproducing.

God is, “the All-Forgiving, the Most Loving.” He accepts the repentance of people. His grace is limitless. The servants would give anything for a word of encouragement from their human masters. Compare this to a word of encouragement from the, “Glorious Lord of the Throne.” Who does what He wills, “Doer of what He wills.” There is no comparison. What is more valuable than the love of God which He bestows on one of His servants?

“Has the story of the hosts reached you? of Pharaoh and Thamud?” These are long stories which have been narrated in details elsewhere. But here their mention is simply a reminder of their fates. What happened to them is an example of how the Divine will was turned into action. God destroyed Pharaoh and his army and saved the Children of Israel. God established the Children of Israel in the land for a period of time to perform His will. God willed that the people of Saleh (PBUH) be completely destroyed and that Saleh (PBUH) and those who believed with him to be saved.

“And yet the disbelievers persist in denial. But God is encompassing them.” The disbelievers are always in denial. They are heedless of God’s power and knowledge.

This is a glorious Qur’an, “It is a glorious Qur’an, in a guarded tablet.” The Qur’an has been kept in the Guarded Tablet.

Sura 86: Al-Tariq (The Night Comer)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 17:

1. By the heaven and the night comer;
2. And what will explain to you what the morning star is?
3. The piercing star.
4. No human soul but has a guardian over it.
5. So let humankind consider from what he is created.
6. He is created from a gushing fluid.
7. That is issued from between the loins and the ribs.
8. Certainly God is able to bring him back.
9. On the day when hidden thoughts shall be made manifest,
10. Then he will not have might or a helper.
11. By the sky which returns,
12. And the earth which splits open.
13. Most surely it is a decisive word,
14. And it is no joke.
15. They plot and scheme.
16. And I plot and scheme.
17. So give a respite to the disbelievers, a brief respite.

We mentioned in the beginning of this part that its suras hammer the psyche of the person with severe and strong blows. They try to awaken people who are deep asleep. These blows send one message, “Wake up, look, think, and reflect. There is only one God. He controls everything. There will be a test, there will be accountability, and there will be either a severe punishment or a tremendous bliss.” This Sura exemplifies these characteristics. It displays scenes of the piercing star, the gushing fluid, the sky that returns and the earth that splits open. There is a number of lessons that one gleans from this Sura. They are: each soul is under close observation, humankind will have no might nor helpers on the Day of Judgment, and the Qur’an is a decisive word not a joke.

“By the heaven and the night comer; and what will explain to you what the night comer is? The piercing star. No human soul but has a guardian over it.” These verses include a cosmic scene and a principle of faith. It starts with an oath by the sky and the morning star, then it poses a rhetorical question. This a familiar feature of the Qur’anic style. The night comer is a piercing star. It pierces the darkness by its light. The verse does not specify a particular star. This ambiguity is a way of generalization; as if it says, “By the sky and all its piercing starts.” Every soul is being closely observed.

The Divine project is then referred to by the request to reflect on how people were created, “So let humankind consider from what he is created. He is created from a gushing fluid. That is issued from between the loins and the ribs.” This process was not known to people until the mid eighteenth hundreds. It is a huge leap between the beginning and the end, between the gushing fluid that comes out between the loins and the ribs and the mature human being with his highly complex physical, psychological and mental systems. This process shows that there is a major power which causes this transformation from the simple fluid to the complex human.

“Certainly God is able to bring him back. On the day when hidden thoughts shall be made manifest, then he will not have might or a helper.” God created him and took care of him; God is able to bring him back to life after death. This will happen on the Day when all what is hidden will be uncovered. On that Day, humankind will have no power nor will he have a helper.

“By the sky which returns, and the earth which splits open. Most surely it is a decisive word, and it is no joke.” This is another oath to ascertain that the Qur’an is a decisive word. The sky keeps returning the rain water, and the earth splits open so that the plants can come out. These are images of life. The water comes down from the sky and the plant pierces the ground to grow.

The verses then turn to address the Prophet (PBUH) and the few believers who were with him at that time, “They plot and scheme. And I plot and scheme. So give a respite to the disbelievers, a brief respite.” The verse reassures the Prophet (PBUH) and the few who believed with him. The disbelievers’ plots are in vain. God has control over every thing.

Sura 87: Al-A'la (The Most High)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 19:

1. Glorify the name of your Lord Most-High,
2. Who created in due proportion;
3. He who measures and guides;
4. He who produces the pasture,
5. And then turns it into black debris.
6. We will make you recite (Muhammad) so that you do not forget;
7. Except what God wills. He knows what is manifest and what is hidden.
8. And We will ease your way to the state of ease.
9. Therefore, remind, if the reminder should benefit.
10. He who fears will be reminded.
11. But it will be avoided by those most unfortunate ones,
12. Who will enter the great Fire,
13. Then therein he shall neither live nor die.
14. He will be successful who purifies himself,
15. And glorifies the name of his Lord and prays.
16. But you prefer the life of this world;
17. Although the Hereafter is better and more lasting.
18. This is in the former Scriptures,
19. The Scriptures of Abraham and Moses.

This Sura has been revealed in Mecca. It has been reported by Imam Ahmed that Imam Ali (RA) narrated that the Messenger of God (PBUH) loved this Sura. Imam Muslim reported that the Messenger used to recite this Sura in the prayers on Fridays and Eid. It is most fitting that the Messenger (PBUH) should love this Sura because it transforms the whole universe to a temple in which God is glorified. The Sura gave the Messenger of God (PBUH) glad tidings of God's guarantee that the Messenger (PBUH) will not forget the Qur'an that is recited to him and will ease his way to the easy state. The Sura summarizes the fundamental principles of faith: the belief in the oneness of God, the affirmation of the truth of the revelation, and the inevitability of the accountability in the Hereafter.

“Glorify the name of your Lord Most High, who created in due proportion; He who measures and guides; He who produces the pasture, and then turns it into black debris.” The opening of the Sura sends a universal call to glorify God which turns the whole universe into a temple in which God is glorified. In this temple the unique attributes of God are exhibited. God's glorification does not only mean uttering the words which glorify God but also implies the remembrance and understanding of God's unique attributes.

The main attribute of God that emerges from these verses is the attribute of God as the Lord. The Lord is the Educator and the Sheppard; two attributes which reflect God's kindness. The attribute Most High opens wide horizons for reflections and contemplations. The command in the verse is directed to the Messenger (PBUH) first then to the believers. Every time the Prophet (PBUH) would recite this verse he would say, “Glory be to my Lord Most High.” When this verse was revealed the Prophet (PBUH) commanded the believers saying, “Recite this while you are prostrating in the prayer.” God created everything and perfected it. God assigned to each one of His creatures its mission and prepared it to accomplish that mission. One can see this fact clearly in all the creations of God.

God produced all plants and made each one of them to benefit some of His creatures. This verse is more encompassing than just the pasture for cattle. It encompasses all the plants that God made to feed each and every creature that God created. Plants start first having green color then they shrivel and become darker in color. In either case it could be useful as a food for some creatures. The mention of the plants alludes to the fact that each sowing has a harvest and each life has an end, which fits with the verses, “But you prefer the life of this world; although the Hereafter is better and more lasting.” The life of this world is like a pasture and it will eventually shrivel but the Hereafter is the eternal life.

God gave His Messenger (PBUH) this great glad tidings, “We will make you recite (Muhammad) so that you do not forget; except what God wills. He knows what is manifest and what is hidden. And We will ease your way to the state of ease.” The glad tidings started by the removal of the responsibility for memorizing the Qur’an off the shoulders of the Prophet (PBUH). He only needs to recite, and God will ensure that the Qur’an is committed to the Prophet’s memory. It is also a glad tidings to the Muslims because it reassures them that the Qur’an has been protected by God. In this verse as well as in any other place in the Qur’an where a firm promise or a perpetual law is mentioned, a reference is made to the will of God, “except what God wills.” Everything is controlled by the will of God. God knows everything and therefore decides when the exception should take place.

The second piece of glad tidings is, “And We will ease your way to the state of ease.” It is a glad tidings for the Prophet (PBUH) and to the Muslims as well. The verse confirms the essence of the religion of Islam. It came to harmonize the life of the human being with the whole universe. The two words in Arabic which have been translated as, “And We will ease your way to the state of ease.” Embodiment of one of the fundamental facts of the doctrine of Islam and the universe. It connects the disposition of the Messenger (PBUH) with the essence of the Message and the reality of the universe. God created the universe with ease and made it move forward with ease until it reaches its end with ease.

When God eases someone’s way to the state of ease, he will live his life with ease moving in harmony with the whole universe approaching God. He will experience ease in all aspects of his life. ‘Aisha (RA) said that whenever the Prophet (PBUH) had the chance to choose between two things, he always chose the easier of the two. The sayings of the Prophet (PBUH) which urges ease, tolerance, and gentleness in handling all affairs are countless. Even in naming names he would choose the easy names. These things show that he was truly created in a state of ease. The Prophet (PBUH) was created this way so that he would be able to convey the Message to the world in an easy way, so that ease would be one of the characteristics of this Message.

The Qur'an describes the Prophet (PBUH) saying, "We have not sent you except as a mercy to the worlds." (21: 107) "Those who follow the Messenger, the unlettered prophet, whom they find written in what they have of the Torah and the Gospel, who enjoins upon them what is right and prohibits them from what is wrong and makes lawful for them what is good and forbids them from what is evil and relieves them of their burden and the shackles which were upon them." (7: 157) Thus, indicating that the Prophet (PBUH) was sent to make things easy for people. The easy nature of the Message was also described, "We have certainly made the Qur'an easy for remembrance, so is there any who will remember?" (54: 22) "God does not intend to make difficulty for you, but He intends to purify you." (5: 6) "On no soul does God place a burden greater than it can bear" (2: 286) The message of Islam came to make life easy for people not to make it difficult. Thus, the essence of the Message connects with the disposition of the Messenger in promoting ease.

The Prophet (PBUH) was then commanded, "Therefore remind, if the reminder should benefit." The reminder is always of benefit to someone. There will always be someone who would listen and benefit from the reminder. So this was the task of the Prophet (PBUH). He should remind, but it is up to the people to benefit from the reminder, "He who fears will be reminded. But it will be avoided by those most unfortunate ones, who will enter the great Fire, then therein he shall neither live nor die. He will be successful who purifies himself, and glorifies the name of his Lord and prays." Those who have hearts looking for guidance and fear the wrath of their Lord will benefit from the reminder. But the wretched will turn away from the reminder. He will not listen and will not benefit. His end will be in Hell. He will be wretched because death will not relieve him of the torment, and life will be full of agony. On the other side we find the successful who purified himself; who remembered the name of his Lord, and prayed.

The reason for unhappiness is then given, "But you prefer the life of this world, although the Hereafter is better and more lasting." Preferring the life of this world over the Hereafter is the source of all evils because it turns people away from the remembrance of God.

The Sura is concluded by referring to the authenticity and continuity of the Message, "This is in the former Scriptures, the Scriptures of Abraham and Moses." The verses of this Sura stated the fundamentals of the Message which have been mentioned in the early Scriptures of Abraham (PBUH) and Moses (PBUH). This indicates that there is only one truth and one Message both came from a single source, your Lord Most High, who created in due proportion.

Sura 88: Al-Ghashiya (The Overwhelming Event)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 26:

1. Has the story of the overwhelming event reached you?
2. On that Day some faces will be downcast,
3. Toiling, weary,
4. Scorched by burning fire,
5. Given to drink from a boiling spring,
6. No food will there be for them except thorns,
7. Which will neither nourish nor satisfy hunger.
8. On that Day other faces will be radiant,
9. Pleased with their endeavor,
10. In a lofty Garden,
11. Where they will hear no vain talk,
12. Wherein is a flowing spring,
13. Wherein are raised couches,
14. And goblets set at hand.
15. And cushions set in a row,
16. And carpets spread out.
17. Do they not look at the camels, how they are created?
18. And at the sky, how it is raised high?
19. And at the mountains, how they are firmly fixed?
20. And at the earth, how it is spread out?
21. Therefore, remind them, you are only a reminder.
22. You are not a controller over them.
23. But if any turns away and disbelieves;
24. God will punish him with the greatest torment.
25. Surely to Us is their return,
26. And upon Us rests their reckoning.

This Sura has been revealed in Mecca. Hawwa suggests that the Sura is composed of two sections. The first section is comprised of the first sixteen verses; and the second section is comprised of verses seventeen to twenty-six. The first section describes the torment that the disbelievers should expect on the Day of Judgment; and the bliss that the believers will enjoy on that Day. The second section, discusses the signs of the power of God and it also clarifies the role of the Prophet (PBUH).

This Sura has a deep calm rhythm that induces people to think, reflect, and hope. It also evokes feelings of fear and apprehension of the reckoning on the Day of Reckoning. It takes the human heart on two tours; one around the Hereafter, its vast universe and its impressive scenes; the other is around the signs of God in the vast universe exposed to everyone to see. At the end it reminds people with the limitless power of God and the inevitability of the reckoning.

“Has the story of the overwhelming event reached you?” The Sura starts with this rhetorical question to bring the hearts back to God, to remind them with His signs, and to remind them of the inevitability of the reckoning. The Day of Judgment is given a new description, the overwhelming event. This is the calamity that will overwhelm the people with its horror. The question is addressed in the first place to the Prophet (PBUH) but it is also addressed to anyone who recites the Qur’an or listens to it being recited.

“On that Day some faces will be downcast, toiling, weary, scorched by burning fire, given to drink from a boiling spring, no food will there be for them except thorns, which will neither nourish nor satisfy hunger.” The Sura starts with the description of the scenes of torment, which is more fitting to the title. On that Day, some faces will look humiliated and exhausted. They worked hard but they only ended with a great loss. They worked hard for the benefit of the worldly life and did not work for the sake of God. They did not achieve happiness in the worldly life and they lost the reward in the Hereafter. They will be burnt in Hell, drinking boiling water and eating thorns or fruits from a tree that grows in Hell. It is obvious that we have no way of perceiving the nature of the torment in the Hereafter. However, these descriptions give us an idea that the torment in the Hereafter is beyond our imagination. It is a torment that combines humiliation, weakness, disappointment, and sorts of physical agony.

On the other side, we find a description of the bliss, “On that Day other faces will be radiant, pleased with their endeavor, in a lofty Garden, where they will hear no vain talk, wherein is a flowing spring, wherein are raised couches, and goblets set at hand, and cushions set in a row, and carpets spread out.” Here are faces which are radiant with the light of bliss, pleased with their endeavors, and enjoying what they received. They will be in a lofty garden, lofty in its place and lofty in its rank. They will not listen to vain talk. They will have a flowing spring. They will be resting on high couches, drinking from goblets within easy reach. They will be reclining on cushions. These are all signs of affluence and comfort that people are familiar with. They are only mentioned to give the people a taste of the pleasures of paradise.

“Do they not look at the camels, how they are created? And at the sky, how it is raised high? And at the mountains, how they are firmly fixed? And at the earth, how it is spread out?” These four short verses cite examples of the environment that the Arabs were familiar with. In addition, they describe some of the examples of God’s creation. The verses invite people to reflect on the miracle behind each of these creations.

The Sura concludes by an address to the Prophet (PBUH) defining his mission, “Therefore, remind them, you are only a reminder. You are not a controller over them.” The Prophet’s (PBUH) task was to remind. He should remind people of the Hereafter using God’s signs in the universe. The Prophet (PBUH) was not sent as a controller or keeper over people. He could not control the hearts of people. Only God can control people’s hearts. God will punish those who will turn away, “But if any turns away and disbelieves; God will punish him with the greatest torment. Surely to Us is their return, and upon Us rests their reckoning.” Certainly they will all return to God and He will reward each one appropriately.

Religion cannot be enforced by authority, power, or force. Religion is a personal choice. That choice will be judged by God on the Day of Judgement.

Sura 89: Al-Fajr (The Dawn)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 30:

1. By the Dawn,
2. And the ten nights,
3. And the even and the odd,
4. And the night as it departs,
5. Is there, in this, an oath for a rational man?
6. Have you considered how did your Lord deal with (the tribe of) A'ad,
7. Of the (city of) Iram, with lofty pillars,
8. The like of which was not created in the land;
9. And with the (tribe of) Thamud, who carved rocks in the valley;
10. And with Pharaoh, the owner of the stakes?
11. They all transgressed all bounds in the land,
12. And spread corruption therein.
13. Therefore, did your Lord pour on them a scourge of torment.
14. Your Lord is ever watchful.
15. As for humankind, when his Lord tries him, then treats him with honor and makes him lead an easy life, he says, "My Lord has honored me."
16. But when He tries him, restricting his subsistence for him, then he says, "My Lord has humiliated me."
17. No indeed, you do not honor orphans,
18. Nor do you urge one another to feed the poor,
19. And you devour inheritance with greed,
20. And you love wealth with inordinate love.
21. No indeed, when the earth is pounded and crushed,
22. And your Lord comes, and the angels, rank upon rank,
23. And Hell, that Day, is brought near, on that Day will humankind remember, but how will that remembrance profit him?
24. He will say, "Would that I had sent forth (good deeds) for (this) my life?"
25. For, on that Day, no one will torment as He torments,
26. And no one will bind as He binds.
27. But as for you, tranquil soul,
28. Return to your Lord, well-pleased (with him), well-pleasing,
29. So enter among My servants,
30. And enter into My garden.

This Sura has been revealed in Mecca. Hawwa suggests that the Sura consists of three sections. The first section is comprised of the first fourteen verses. It provides a warning and admonition for people. The second section is comprised of verses fifteen to twenty. This section describes some of the traits of humankind; and their attitudes towards affluence and adversity. The third section is comprised of verses twenty-one to thirty. The section describes very briefly the punishment for the disbelievers and the reward for the believers.

“By the Dawn, and the ten nights, and the even and the odd, and the night as it departs, is there in this an oath for a rational man?” The Sura starts with an oath using gentle and familiar scenes. Dawn is the beginning of the daily life, a time for ease, happiness, and friendship. There are several narrations about the meaning of the ten nights. It may be a reference to the first ten nights of the month of Zul-Hijja, the first ten nights of the month of Muharram, or the last ten nights of the month of Ramadan. The fact that the Sura did not specify which ten nights were meant makes the mystery more effective and intriguing. Only God knows which ten nights are referred to in this verse; but God has chosen these nights and attached special significance to them. The even and the odd refer to the prayer; this brings the spirit of worship to the scene. Then the night that departs as if it were a living creature. These are not mere words but they are like the soft breeze that massages the conscious to evoke in it feelings of appreciation of the beauty of nature. These oaths lead to a rhetorical question, “Is there, in this, an oath for a rational man?” This oath should be convincing to anyone who is able to think.

“Have you considered how did your Lord deal with (the tribe of) A'ad, of the (city of) Iram, with lofty pillars, the like of which was not created in the land; and with the (tribe of) Thamud, who carved rocks in the valley; and with Pharaoh, the owner of the stakes? They all transgressed all bounds in the land, and spread corruption therein. Therefore, did your Lord pour on them a scourge of torment. Your Lord is ever watchful.” This style which uses a questioning format is more effective in attracting the attention. The questions were posed to the Prophet (PBUH) initially, but they are also addressed to everyone. Using the term, “Your Lord,” is a form of endearment, which was meant to reassure the Muslims who were being persecuted in Mecca at the time.

The verses brought together the stories of the tyrants who were known in the old history. The verses outlined, how God destroyed them all when they transgressed and spread corruption in the land. God is ever watching. He sees people, holds them accountable, and rewards or punishes according to accurate standards that do not err nor inflect injustice on any one.

“As for humankind, when his Lord tries him, then treats him with honor and makes him lead an easy life, he says, ‘My Lord has honored me.’ But when He tries him, restricting his subsistence for him, then he says, ‘My Lord has humiliated me.’” This is the human perception of how God treats people. The humankind does not have the proper understanding of the rationale behind God’s trials. He thinks that his provision is closely related to his status in the sight of God. If he gets a bigger provision, he thinks that this is a sign that God has chosen him. But when his provision is restricted, he thinks that he is being punished. He is mistaken on both counts. Restricting the provision is a test in perseverance. Enlarging the provision is a test in expressing gratitude. A person whose heart is devoid of belief does not understand the rationale behind restricting or enlarging the provision. But people whose hearts are full of faith they understand the rationale. They try to cope with the trials in either case, because they understand that trials, whether by affluence or adversity, are amply rewarded by God. They feel secure in both cases because they know that whatever they are facing, has been decreed by God.

“No indeed, you do not honor orphans, nor do you urge one another to feed the poor, and you devour inheritance with greed, and you love wealth with inordinate love.” No, it is not as you think that the condition of provision is related to one’s status in the sight of God. But you do not endeavor to do the things that please God. You do not honor the orphan nor do you urge each other to feed the needy. You devour inheritance and you love wealth passionately. These bad characters were prevalent in the Meccan society before Islam. The verses condemned such behavior and urged people to rid themselves of these vices.

“No indeed, when the earth is pounded and crushed, and your Lord comes, and the angels, rank upon rank, and Hell, that Day, is brought near, on that Day will humankind remember, but how will that remembrance profit him? He will say, ‘Would that I had sent forth (good deeds) for (this) my life?’ For, that Day, no one will torment as He torments, and no one will bind as He binds.” These verses describe scenes from the Day of Judgment as a warning. The earth will be pounded and crushed as part of the cataclysm that will accompany the Day of Judgment. The coming of God and the angels is part of the unseen. But it fills the heart with awe and fear. The same can be said about bringing Hell near. On that Day the heedless will regret the lost opportunity, but it will be too late.

In the midst of this horrific scenes, there will be tranquil and secure souls. These are the souls of those who were referred to in Surat al-Ghashiya, “On that Day other faces will be radiant”. They will be addressed by the Divine host, “But as for you tranquil soul, return to your Lord, well-pleased (with him), well-pleasing, so enter among My servants, and enter into My garden.” The verse describes a scene of serenity, mercy, and security.

Sura 90: Al-Balad (The City)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 20:

1. I swear by this city,
2. And you are a resident of this city;
3. And the father and what he fathered.
4. Verily We have created humankind for toil and struggle.
5. Does he think that no one has power over him?
6. He will say, "I have wasted much wealth."
7. Does he think that no one sees him?
8. Did We not give him two eyes?
9. And a tongue, and a pair of lips?
10. And We showed him the two ways?
11. But he would not attempt the uphill road,
12. And what will explain to you what the uphill road is?
13. (It is) freeing a slave;
14. Or giving food on a day of hunger,
15. To an orphan near of kin,
16. Or to a poor man in misery,
17. Then he will be of those who believe, and enjoin perseverance, and enjoin deeds of kindness and compassion.
18. These are the people of the right hand.
19. But those who disbelieve in Our revelations, their place will be on the left hand.
20. And the Fire will be closed on them.

The Sura starts with an oath which emphasizes the holiness of the city of Mecca. God honored His Prophet (PBUH) and made him a resident of this Holy city. The Sacred House is also honored by having the Prophet (PBUH) as a resident in this city. The oath that God makes by the Holy city and the one residing in it amplifies the greatness and the sacredness of the city. This exposes the ugliness of the behavior of the disbelievers in treating the Prophet (PBUH) and the Muslims. The disbelievers claimed that they were the protectors of the Sacred House, but their behavior desecrated the sanctity of the House. They persecuted the Prophet (PBUH) and those who believed with him. The oath by the father and what he fathered is a reference to Prophet Abraham (PBUH) and his son Prophet Ishmael (PBUH). However, the oath can be also a reference to the general process of the propagation of the human race, "I swear by this city. And you are a resident of this city; and the father and what he fathered."

The oath is made to emphasize a fundamental fact in the life of human beings, "Verily We have created humankind for toil and struggle." A life of struggle starts as soon as the first cell is established in the fetus. It tries to establish for itself, by the grace of God, the appropriate conditions for survival and growth. Then it goes through the difficult process of birth; once a person is born a life of struggle starts. Each stage of growth presents new challenges and new difficulties. A mature person struggles hard to earn his living. Some struggle with their muscles, some with their thoughts, and some with their souls. Some struggle in the way of God and some struggle to satisfy their lusts and desires. Struggle is the nature of life. Those who struggle in the worldly life and go on to face a harder struggle in the Hereafter are the losers. The successful are those who struggle trying to reach God in the worldly life so that when they meet their Lord they will be qualified for a life of comfort in the Hereafter.

The verses challenge some of the claims that humankind makes and which are reflected on his behavior, “Does he think that no one has power over him? He will say, ‘I have wasted much wealth.’ Does he think that no one sees him?” This humankind, who has been created to struggle, forgets his nature and becomes deluded with the power, ability and wealth that his Creator bestows on him. He behaves as if he will not be held accountable for what he does. He thinks that no one can overpower him so he commits transgressions, oppression, and fraud. He amasses wealth and commits sins with impunity. When he is asked to give the poor he declines saying, “I have wasted much wealth.” Does he not realize that he is being watched?

God bestowed on him great bounties, “Did We not give him two eyes, and a tongue, and a pair of lips? And We showed him the two ways?” Humankind becomes deluded with the power he has. He forgets that this power is one of the blessings that God bestowed on him. He is stingy, although his wealth has been bestowed on him by God. God gave him the senses with which he is able to live, and God gave him the ability to differentiate between right and wrong.

This verse uncovers different aspects of human nature. It also establishes the ground for the Islamic Psychological Theory, which we will discuss later in Surat As-Shams (Chapter 91). All these blessings that God bestowed on human kind: eyes that see the signs of God in the universe, a tongue and two lips with which he expresses his thoughts and feelings, and the ability to differentiate between right and wrong; all these blessings did not push him to conquer the obstacle that bars him from entering paradise. This obstacle is the uphill road to paradise, “But he would not attempt the uphill road, and what will explain to you what the uphill road is? (It is) freeing a slave; or giving food on a day of hunger, to an orphan near of kin, or to a poor man in misery, then he will be of those who believe, and enjoin perseverance, and enjoin deeds of kindness and compassion. These are the people of the right hand.” This is the obstacle that prevents humankind from entering paradise. The verse exhorts humankind to overcome this obstacle. Then it details the ways to overcome this obstacle: freeing a slave, feeding a needy person or an orphan, believing in God, and enjoining patience and compassionate and merciful deeds.

This verse was revealed in Mecca when Islam was surrounded by its enemies, having no state power to enforce its rules. Slavery was a well-established institution in the world. Slaves were treated harshly. When slaves like ‘Amar ibn Yaser (RA) and his family, Belal ibn Rabah (RA), and Suhaib (RA) and others became Muslims, they were tortured by their masters. Buying their freedom was the only practical way of saving them from this torture. Abu Bakr (RA) was one of the first Muslims to buy Muslim slaves their freedom.

Another way that helps humankind overcomes the obstacle to paradise is to feed an orphan relative or a needy person on a day when food is scarce. Freeing slaves and feeding the poor were actions of high priority in Mecca at that time. Then the verse mentions the belief in God, enjoining perseverance, and enjoining compassionate deeds. These deeds should all go together hand in hand. These verses reflect the importance of the social collective duties of the members of the community. Islam promotes the unity of the community. Islam provides the blue prints for way of life for a community and for a nation; however, it also stresses the personal responsibility of their individuals. Those who are able to overcome the obstacle are the companions of the right hand. The disbelievers are the companions of the left hand. They will be locked up in Hell fire. “But those who disbelieve Our revelations, their place will be on the left hand; and the Fire will be closed on them.”

Sura 91: Al-Shams (The Sun)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 15:

1. By the sun and its brightness,
2. And the moon as it follows it,
3. And the day as it displays it,
4. And the night as it conceals it,
5. And the sky and He who built it,
6. And the earth and He who spread it,
7. And a soul and He who perfected it,
8. And inspired it to differentiate between what is wrong for it and (what is) right for it.
9. He is indeed successful who purifies it,
10. And he is indeed a failure who corrupts it.
11. (The tribe of) Thamud denied (the truth) because of their rebellious pride,
12. When the wicked man among them was deputed.
13. And the Messenger of God said to them, "It is the she-camel of God, so let her drink."
14. But they denied him, and they hamstrung her, so God doomed them for their sin and leveled it.
15. And He does not fear its consequence.

The Sura has been revealed in Mecca. It consists of two sections. The first section is comprised of the first ten verses. The section attracts the attention to some of the physical phenomena of the universe. These are signs of the power of God. The section ends with a statement about who will be successful and who will be a failure. The second section is comprised of the verses eleven to the end. This section narrates briefly the story of the tribe of Thamud.

"By the sun and its brightness, and the moon as it follows it, and the day as it displays it, and the night as it conceals it, and the sky and He who built it, and the earth and He who spread it."

God makes an oath by cosmic scenes; His creatures; and the soul and its perfection and inspiration. The oath bestows on these creatures high status and directs the heart to reflect upon them. The oath starts with the sun and its brightness, then the moon as it follows after the sun, the day as it makes things clear, the night as it covers the earth, the sky and He who built, and the earth and He who spread it. The fact that God is making an oath using these creatures of His elevates these creatures to a high status. The oath evokes in the human being the sense to appreciate the signs of God and to reflect upon them.

The verses then discuss an important fact regarding the human soul, "and a soul and He who perfected it, and inspired it to differentiate between what is wrong for it and (what is) right for it. He is indeed successful who purifies it. And he is indeed a failure who corrupts it." These verses in addition to the verses, "And We showed him the two ways? " (90: 10) and "Indeed, We guided him to the way, be he grateful or be he ungrateful." (76: 3) establish the Psychological theory of Islam. Humankind has a dual nature and a dual propensity. Because of the fact that his body was created from mud and then God breathed into him of His spirit, he has equal propensity to goodness and evil; and to guidance and going astray. Humankind has the ability to differentiate between what is right and what is wrong. He also has the ability to motivate himself to do what is right as well as doing what is wrong. This ability to differentiate and to guide oneself is expressed by the verse, “and a soul and He who perfected it, and inspired it to differentiate between what is wrong for it and (what is) right for it.” This ability is instilled in the initial natural disposition of humankind. God sent His Message to unleash this ability and to strengthen it.

In addition to the ability instilled in the initial natural disposition to differentiate between right and wrong, humankind has a built in conscious decision making mechanism. The decisions made by this mechanism are the decisions that humankind will be held accountable for. The person who uses this mechanism to purify himself and to do good deeds will be successful while those who use the mechanism to commit sins will be losers. The consequence of giving humankind this conscious decision making mechanism is that humankind is held accountable for his deeds. It is a mercy of God that he sent the Message to guide humankind to the right path and to help him make the right decisions.

An example of making the wrong decision is then given, “(The tribe of) Thamud denied (the truth) because of their rebellious pride, When the wicked man among them was deputed, and the Messenger of God said, “It is the she-camel of God, so let her drink.” But they denied him, and they hamstrung her, so God doomed them for their sin and leveled it. And He does not fear its consequence.” The story of the tribe of Thamud was narrated in several places in the Qur’an. It is mentioned here to highlight the fact that the decision that the tribe of Thamud made to deny its Prophet was only caused by its tyranny. Tyranny motivated the wicked among them to hamstring the she-camel. Their Prophet warned them but they did not heed the warning. They hamstrung the she-camel and God punished them.

Sura 92: Al-Lail (The Night)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 21:

1. By the night as it enshrouds,
2. And the day as it shines,
3. And He who created the male and the female,
4. Indeed, your endeavors are diverse.
5. As for him who gives and is conscious of God,
6. And believes in goodness,
7. Surely, We will ease his way to the state of ease.
8. But as for him who hoards and deems himself independent,
9. And denies goodness;
10. Surely, We will ease his way into adversity.
11. His wealth will not profit him when he perishes.
12. Verily, it is upon Us to guide,
13. And verily, to Us (belong) the Hereafter and the first (life).
14. Therefore, I warn you of a flaming Fire,
15. In which only the most wretched will burn,
16. He who denied and turned away.
17. But those most devoted to God will avoid it,
18. He who spends his wealth for self-purification,
19. Seeking no favor in return,
20. Only seeking the countenance of his Lord Most High;
21. And he will be well-pleased.

The Sura consists of two sections. The first section is comprised of the first eleven verses; and the second section is comprised of the verses twelve to the end.

“By the night as it enshrouds, and the day as it shines, and He who created the male and the female.” God makes an oath using the two signs: the night and the day; mentioning their inherent characteristics. The night covers, and the day shines. The day and night are two opposites. Another couple of opposite characteristics are the male and female. The night and day are two comprehensive phenomena. They affect the human heart. The cyclical rotation of the day and night drives the human being to reflect on the universe and its mysteries; raising the questions of who controls these changes and who controls the universe?

The oath emphasizes that the people have different endeavors in life. These endeavors differ in their nature, they differ in what motivate them, and they differ in their end results. Consequently, people will be rewarded differently, depending on their different endeavors, “Indeed, your endeavors are diverse. As for him who gives and is conscious of God and believes in goodness, surely, We will ease his way to the state of ease. But as for him who hoards and deems himself independent, and denies goodness; surely, We will ease his way into adversity. His wealth will not profit him when he perishes.” People can generally be classified into two categories. Those who give and are conscious of God, and believe in goodness; and those who hoard and deem themselves independent, and deny goodness. These two categories have different endeavors in life. They will be rewarded differently. God will ease the way of the first category to achieve a state of ease while He will ease the way into adversity for the second category. The lives of the members of the first group will run smoothly, they will be secure, content, and successful. They will join the easy way that has been awarded to the Messenger of God. All their affairs will be processed easily. Members of the second group will find everything difficult. Each step they make will take them away from guidance. Their wealth which they hoarded and refused to spend in the way of God will not benefit them.

The destiny of each group in the Hereafter is outlined, “Verily it is upon Us to guide, and verily to Us (belong) the Hereafter and the first (life). Therefore I warn you of a flaming Fire, in which only the most wretched will burn, he who denied and turned away. But those most devoted to God will avoid it, he who spends his wealth for self-purification, seeking no favor in return, only seeking the countenance of his Lord Most High; and he will be well-pleased.” God made it incumbent on Himself to instill guidance in the initial natural disposition of humankind. He also gave humankind guidance through His Messengers and His Message. No one has an excuse for denying guidance; and God will not treat anyone unjustly. God has absolute control over the life of the world and the Hereafter. People have been warned of a flaming fire in which the wretched will burn. Who is the wretched? It is he who denied the truth and turned away from guidance. But the God conscious will be saved. He used to spend his money seeking God’s acceptance. He never expected a worldly reward in return; he was only seeking his Lord’s acceptance. This person will be well pleased with what he gets in the Hereafter.

Sura 93: Al-Duha (The Morning Light)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 11:

1. By the morning light,
2. And by the night when it settles,
3. Your Lord has not forsaken you, nor He is displeased.
4. And verily the Hereafter will be better for you than the First.
5. And your Lord will give you and you will be well-pleased.
6. Did He not find you an orphan and gave you shelter?
7. And He found you wandering, and He gave guidance?
8. And He found you in need, and made you rich?
9. Therefore, do not oppress the orphan,
10. Nor repulse the petitioner;
11. And proclaim the Blessing of your Lord.

The Sura has been revealed in Mecca. It offers a touch of kindness, a breath of mercy, and a message of love. It is like a gentle hand that removes the pain and pours security and certainty. It addressed the Prophet (PBUH) to comfort him and to wipe out his troubles. It has been narrated that the revelation stopped for a period of time and the idolaters said that Muhammad (PBUH) has been abandoned by his Lord. This Sura was then revealed.

“By the morning light, and by the night when it settles, your Lord has not forsaken you, nor He is displeased. And verily the Hereafter will be better for you than the First. And your Lord will give you and you will be well-pleased.” God makes an oath using these two signs to establish a connection between the cosmic phenomena and the emotions of the soul. This encourages the human heart to find harmony with the cosmic phenomena and to deepen the feeling of friendliness with the universe. The objective of the Sura is to surround the Prophet (PBUH) with an atmosphere of friendliness, gentleness, and companionship. To make him feel that he was not abandoned. Your God did not abandon you, nor is He displeased with you. God addresses the Prophet (PBUH) saying, “your Lord,” to emphasize this connection between the Prophet (PBUH) and God. He is your Lord who looks after you and will take care of you. What He has kept for you in the Hereafter is better than what you were given in this life. You will be well-pleased.

“Did He not find you an orphan and gave you shelter? And He found you wandering, and He gave guidance? And He found you in need, and made you rich?” These verses send a reassuring message to the Prophet (PBUH); God cares about you and He will protect you in the future as He has done in the past. The bounties of God which He blessed His Messenger (PBUH) are enumerated. You were born orphan, so He gave you shelter under His care. You were poor, so He enriched you with contentment and made you self-sufficient. You grew up in a bad environment, among people who are ignorant and misguided; so He guided you.

The Prophet (PBUH) and the believers were commanded to be kind and generous, “Therefore, do not oppress the orphan, nor repulse the petitioner; and proclaim the Blessing of your Lord.” These commands were very much needed to change the bad and unfair practices that were prevalent in the Arab society before Islam.

Sura 94: Al-Sharh (The Relief)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 8:

1. Did We not expand your breast for you?
2. And remove your burden,
3. Which weighed down your back?
4. And raised your reputation high?
5. Indeed, with hardship comes ease;
6. Indeed, with hardship comes ease.
7. So when you have finished (your work),
8. Then stand up for worship,
9. And turn to your Lord for everything.

This Sura was revealed after Surat Al-Duha (Chapter 93), as if it came to complement it. The Sura echoes the same tender gentle dialogue between God and His Messenger (PBUH). It reviews the signs of care that God bestowed on him and it gives him glad tidings of the expected ease and the way to get it.

“Did We not expand your breast for you? And remove your burden, which weighed down your back? And raised your reputation high?” The verses suggest that the Messenger (PBUH) was facing a difficult time as a result of the conspiracies the idolaters were plotting against him and the obstacles that they were placing in his way to prevent him from continuing to call people to Islam. God addressed the Prophet (PBUH) directly. God expanded your breast so that your heart became happy with this undertaking. Look into your heart, do you not see it full of light? Taste the sweetness of the task that was entrusted to you. Do you not find comfort from this trust that overcomes the difficulty of the struggle. We removed the burden that has been placed on your back. We raised your reputation in the sky to the High Host, on earth among people, and in the whole universe. Your name will always be associated with the name of God, “There is no deity except God, and Muhammad is His Messenger.” There is no rank higher than this. This is the unique status that was bestowed only on Muhammad (PBUH). Your reputation was also raised in the Guarded Tablet. How can you feel tired after these bounties have been bestowed on you? These bounties should be enough to remove all tiredness and all difficulties.

God further dealt gently with the chosen beloved one; He comforted him and gave him glad tidings, “Indeed, with hardship comes ease, indeed with hardship comes ease.” There will always be some ease in each difficulty. You can see it in your case (Muhammad). When the burden was too much, We expanded your breast so you were able to cope with your burden. It is certain that with difficulty comes ease.

Then the verses explain the way to achieve ease, “So when you have finished (your work), then stand up for worship, and turn to your Lord for everything.” So, when you finish your daily duties whether earning your living or dealing with people, then devote yourself in worship to God. This is the provision that one needs to bring ease with each difficulty.

Sura 95: Al-Tin (The Fig)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 8:

1. By the fig and the olive,
2. And the Mount of Sinai,
3. And this secure city,
4. We have indeed created humankind in the best stature,
5. Then We abased him (to be) the lowest of the low,
6. Except those who believe and do good deeds, for they will have an unfailing reward.
7. So why do you still deny the Judgment?
8. Is not God the Wisest of judges?

This Sura presents a fundamental fact about the nature of the initial natural disposition that God instilled in humankind. The initial natural disposition which God instilled in humankind is upright and in complete harmony with the essence of faith. Together they will allow humankind to reach the perfection which God decreed for him but if the initial natural disposition becomes crooked and deviates from the straight path of faith he will sink to the lowest of the low. God makes an oath on this fact by the fig, olive, the mount of Sinai, and the secure city. The oath usually forms the framework for the verses that come after it.

It is on the mount of Sinai that God talked to Moses (PBUH). Mecca is the secure city. Both the mount and the city have close connection to Islam. But what is the relationship between the fig and olive to matters of faith? It has been narrated that Adam and Eve used the leaves of the fig tree to cover their shame before they were sent to live on earth. It was also narrated that fig grows on the mount on which Noah's (PBUH) Ark has settled. The olive may be a reference to Jerusalem or it may be a reference to the olive branch that the pigeon which Noah (PBUH) sent to discover land brought back to him. Some other narrations suggest that the fig and the olive mentioned in this Sura are simply the fig and olive that we eat.

We have no way of ascertaining the meaning of the reference to the fig and olive in this Sura. What we could say based on our understanding of the style of Qur'an is that they must refer to places or memories that are connected with faith somehow.

However, the main fact which this Sura presents is, "We have indeed created man in the best stature, then We abased him (to be) the lowest of the low, except those who believe and do good deeds, for they will have an unfailing reward." This shows the care that God took in creating humankind. God created him in the perfect form. This has been mentioned in several verses in different places in the Qur'an. God has bestowed His care on this creature in spite of the weaknesses that this creature exhibits which cause him to swerve away for the straight path. Humankind must be important in the sight of God; this may be because of the role that God has assigned to humankind. God's care in creating humankind is apparent in many ways; the complex body structure, the unique mental capacity, and the amazing psychological makeup.

The emphasis in this Sura is on the spiritual characteristics of humankind. These characteristics can sink to the lowest of the low when his initial natural disposition becomes crooked and he strays away from the straight path of faith. It is obvious that his physical form does not suffer any changes when he strays away from the straight path. The same characteristics can raise humankind to a very high rank if he follows guidance and purifies his soul. However, if humankind chooses to go astray from the straight path then he will sink to the lowest of the low. Except the believers who do good deeds; those who keep their initial natural disposition upright and complement it with faith until they achieve the perfection that God has decreed for them. They will receive an unfailing reward in the life of perfection which they will lead in the abode of perfection.

In the light of this fact, God addressed humankind, “So why do you still deny the Judgment? Is not God the Wisest of judges?” Why after knowing all these facts you still deny the judgment? Why are they not guided by the light? Is not God the most fair of the fair judges?

It has been narrated by Abo Hurairah (RA), that when one recites Surat At-Tin and comes to the last verse, “Is not God the Wisest of judges?” One should say, “Yes, and I bear witness to this.”

Sura 96: Al-‘Alaq (The Clot)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 19:

1. Read: In the name of your Lord who created;
2. Created humankind from a clot.
3. Read; and your Lord is the Most Generous,
4. He taught by the pen,
5. Taught humankind that which he knew not.
6. Indeed, humankind transgresses all bounds,
7. When he thinks that he is self-sufficient.
8. Verily, to your Lord is the return.
9. Have you seen him who forbids;
10. A servant when he prays?
11. Have you considered if he is guided;
12. Or enjoins God consciousness?
13. Have you considered if he denies the truth and turns (his) back?
14. Does he not know that God sees?
15. No. If he does not desist, We will drag him by the forelock;
16. A deceitful, sinful forelock.
17. Then let him summon his associates,
18. We will call the guards of Hell.
19. No, do not obey him; but prostrate yourself, and draw near.

This Sura was revealed in Mecca. The beginning of this Sura consists of the first verses of the Qur'an that were revealed to Prophet Muhammad (PBUH). 'Aisha (RA) has been quoted to have said, "The first signs of revelation came to the Prophet (PBUH) as clear dreams that he saw in his sleep but then occurred in real life just as he saw them in his dreams. Then he started to go into seclusions. He used to spend several nights in seclusion in the cave of Hira. During these periods of seclusion he would worship God. One day when he was in the cave he was visited by the Archangel Gabriel (PBUH). Gabriel (PBUH) said to him, 'Read.' The Prophet said, 'I do not read.' Gabriel (PBUH) embraced him tightly until the Prophet (PBUH) was exhausted. Gabriel (PBUH) said, 'Read.' Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) said, 'I do not read.' Gabriel (PBUH) embraced him again, then released him and asked him to read. Again the Prophet (PBUH) said, 'I do not read.' He repeated the same thing for the third time. Then he said, 'Read: In the name of your Lord who created; created humankind from a clot. Read; and your Lord is the Most Generous, He taught by the pen, taught humankind that which he knew not.' The Messenger of God (PBUH) returned home shaken. He asked Khadija (RA) to cover him. When he felt secure, he told Khadija (RA) what happened. Then he said to Khadija (RA), 'I fear for myself.' She said, 'You should not fear. This is glad tidings and God will never let you down. You join your kin, you always tell the truth, you help the weak, you are generous to your guest, and you help the needy in calamities.' Khadija (RA) suggested that they should go to visit her cousin Waraqah ibn Nawfal. Waraqah was a Christian, he was literate, and he knew how to read and write the Gospel. They went, and Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) told him what happened in the cave.

Waraqah said, ‘This is the same revelation that was sent to Prophet Moses (PBUH). I wish I were a young man so that I would live until I see your people drive you out from the city.’ Muhammad (PBUH) asked Waraqah, ‘Will they drive me out?’ Waraqah said, ‘Yes, every man who comes with what you have been given has been expelled by his people. If I live until your day comes, I will support you unconditionally.’ However, Waraqah died very soon after this incident.”

How many times did we read this story? However, we would quickly forget it; or maybe we reflect a little on it then forget it. The revelation of these verses was a major event. In fact, it was a tremendous event; an event which had a tremendous impact on the history of humanity. This event changed the course of the history of humanity. God in His Majesty, God the Great, the Compeller, the One supreme in Pride, the King of absolute Sovereignty looked upon the creature He called humankind who lived in a tiny place in the vast universe and bestowed His honor on this race by choosing one of them to become the recipient of His Divine light, the storage of His wisdom, and the landing place of His Word. This is an enormous fact whose dimensions become clear only when humankind tries to explore, as much as he can, the nature of the Divine.

Humankind was reborn when he received his values from the Divine instead of receiving them from human experience; when he received his laws from the revelation not from the whims. This event was a milestone in the history of humankind. This event changed the path of this history.

The Sura starts with a command to recite, “Read: In the name of your Lord who created; created man from a clot. Read; and your Lord is the Most Generous, He taught by the pen, taught humankind that which he knew not.” It is the first Sura in the Qur’an, so it starts with the name of God and commands the Messenger (PBUH) to read in the name of his Lord. It starts by specifying the attribute of God, “Who created.” Then it explains further, He created humankind from a clot.

This is a process that testifies to God’s generosity as much as to God’s power. God taught by the pen; and He is the source of knowledge. This verse established the fundamental concept of faith: everything, every movement, every step, every action should be in the name of God. In the name of God we start, in the name of God we walk, in the name of God we go towards Him, and in the name of God we return to Him. God is the Creator and He is the Teacher. He taught humankind that which he knew not.

The logical consequence of this fundamental concept of faith is that humankind should be grateful to God who created him, who taught him, and who honored him. But this did not happen. Indeed, what happened was the opposite, “Indeed, humankind transgresses all bounds, when he thinks that he is self-sufficient. Verily, to your Lord is the return.” God bestowed his bounties on humankind and made him self-sufficient. Generally, when humankind becomes self-sufficient, he does not show gratitude nor does he acknowledge the source of his self-sufficiency; except those who are protected by their faith. The verses outline another fundamental concept of faith: to God is the return; the return to God in everything, every intention, and every movement. There is no one else to return to except God.

The following verses display an example of the tyranny of humankind, “Have you seen him who forbids? a servant when he prays? Have you considered if he is guided, or enjoins God consciousness? Have you considered if he denies the truth and turns (his) back? Does he not know that God sees?” The expression expresses amazement and renunciation of this behavior. This is indeed horrendous behavior. Does he not know that God sees him?

The tyrants prevent people from worshipping God; they do not follow guidance; they do not enjoin God consciousness; they deny the truth; and they turn away from the straight path. A dire warning is issued to these tyrants, “No. If he does not desist, We will drag him by the forelock; a deceitful, sinful forelock. Then let him summon his associates, We will call the guards of Hell.” Very stern warning, We will drag him severely by his forelock. The forelock is a symbol of pride for humankind. Let him call upon his associates, they will find the guards of Hell waiting for them. There is no doubt about what his end will be.

The command to the believer was, “No, do not obey him; but prostrate yourself, and draw near.” Leave the tyrant to the guards of Hell and devote yourself to the prayer. The prayer will bring you close to God. You will be most closer to God when you prostrate yourself in worship to God. Abu Hurairah (RA) narrated that the Prophet (PBUH) said, “The closest one can get to God is during prostration. So, make many supplications during your prostration.”

Sura 97: Al-Qadr (The Power)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 5:

1. We have indeed revealed this (Message) in the Night of Power;
2. And what will explain to you what the Night of Power is?
3. The Night of Power is better than thousand months.
4. In it, descend the angels and the Spirit, by the leave of their Lord, with every command. Peace it is; until the rise of dawn.

This Sura was revealed in Mecca. The talk in this Sura is about the glorious night that was registered by the whole universe as a night of joy, happiness and prayers. This was the night in which the connection was established between the earth and the Higher Host. This was night in which the revelation of the Qur'an started. This was a major event the like of which the earth has never witnessed before. Its glory, its significance, and its impact on human life are beyond the understanding of humankind.

The verses of the Qur'an that describe the beginning of the revelation of the Qur'an almost show the light of God through His Word. It is known that this is one of the nights of the month of Ramadan. Some narrations say that it is the night of the twenty seven of Ramadan. Others indicate that it is the night of the twenty first of Ramadan. A third opinion indicates that it is one of the last ten nights of Ramadan. A fourth group is of the opinion that it has not been specified, so it is one of the nights of Ramadan.

Its name is the Night of the Power. The name may mean the power, control, and decree. Or it could mean glory and status. Both alternatives are appropriate to describe such a major universal event. It has shaped the life of the humankind. It is better than thousand months. This is not a definite number. It simply means that this night is better than a great many number of months.

Humanity may ignore the significance of this night, due to its ignorance and bad luck. But the believers are commanded to always remember the significance of this night. The Prophet (PBUH) has been quoted to have said, "Seek the Night of the Power during the last ten nights of Ramadan." He also has been quoted to have said, "God will forgive all previous sins of whoever spent the Night of the Power in prayer." Islam is not a religion of superficial formalities. The prayer during the Night of the Power has to be done on the basis of pure faith and has to be devoted solely to God.

The Islamic project relates the rituals of worship to the belief in the fundamentals of the doctrine. It makes the rituals a way for seeking the understanding of the concepts of the doctrine and transforming these concepts into feelings and behavior. The connection between the Night of the Power and prayer is one of the aspects of the successful Islamic project.

Sura 98: Al-Bayyina (The Clear Evidence)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 8:

1. Those who disbelieved among the People of the Scripture, and among the idolaters, could not have separated themselves (from disbelief) until there had come to them the clear evidence:
2. A messenger from God, reciting purified pages;
3. In them there are valuable books.
4. Nor were the People of the Scripture divided until after the clear evidence had come to them.
5. And they have been commanded only to worship God, devoting their faith to Him alone, to establish regular prayer; and to give alms. That is the upright religion.
6. Those who disbelieve, among the People of the Scripture and the idolaters, will abide in the fire of Hell. They are the worst of creation.
7. Those who believe and do good deeds are the best of creation.
8. Their reward is with their Lord: Gardens of Eden underneath which rivers flow, wherein they dwell forever. God is pleased with them and they are pleased with Him. All this is for those who stand in awe of their Lord.

Many of the narrations indicate that this Sura was revealed in Medina. However, there are some narrations which indicate that it was revealed in Mecca. The style of the Sura may support the opinion that it was revealed in Medina. However, one cannot completely dismiss the opinion that it was revealed in Mecca.

“Those who disbelieved among the People of the Scripture, and among the idolaters, could not have separated themselves (from disbelief) until there had come to them the clear evidence: a messenger from God, reciting purified pages; in them there are valuable books.” The earth was desperate for a new message. Corruption was prevalent. The only hope for abolishing corruption was a new message, a new project, and a new movement. Disbelief crept into the doctrine of faith of all people, whether those who received Scriptures before or the idolaters. The only way that they would relinquish the state of disbelief that they arrived at was through the belief in a new message that would be conveyed by a new messenger; a Messenger who recites purified pages. These pages are purified of disbelief and idolatry. These pages include valuable books. The word books in this verse may mean writings or topics; as we call the information about the rituals of purification the book of purification, and the rituals of prayer the book of prayer. These purified pages, meaning the Qur’an, brought valuable information to people.

“Nor were the People of the Scripture divided until after the clear evidence had come to them.” The first division occurred among the Jews before the coming of Jesus (PBUH). They became divided into five sects: the Sadducees, the Pharisees, the Asians, the Extremists, and the Samaritans. Although all sects believed in one Messenger - Moses (PBUH) - and one book - the Torah - but each sect had its own characteristics and direction. Then the Christians were separated from the Jews, although Jesus (PBUH) was one of the prophets sent to the Children of Israel. He came to confirm the Torah. History tells of great many massacres that happened as a result of the enmity between the Christians and Jews.

Then the Christians became divided in spite of the fact that they all have the same book and the same Messenger. First, they were divided in matters of doctrine then the different sects became mutually antagonistic to each other and they started fighting among themselves. There were also differences among the Christian sects about the nature of Jesus (PBUH), his mother Mary, and the doctrine of trinity.

However, the religion was clear and the faith was simple, “and they have been commanded only to worship God, devoting their faith to Him alone, to establish regular prayer; and to give alms. That is the upright religion.” They were only commanded to worship God alone, become fully devoted to Him, establish prayer, and pay alms. These are the elements of the upright religion; pure faith in the psyche and rituals that express this faith in practice, and spending in the way of God. Whoever fulfilled these principles has fulfilled the principles of faith as was mentioned in the revealed books. It is one religion and one doctrine that came in different messages conveyed by different messengers. It is a clear religion with no mysteries and no complexities.

The destiny of those who received the clear evidence through their messengers and through this last Messenger, who recited to them purified pages, and still disbelieved is clear, “Those who disbelieve, among the People of the Scripture and the idolaters, will abide in the fire of Hell. They are the worst of creation. Those who believe and do good deeds are the best of creation. Their reward is with their Lord: Gardens of Eden underneath which rivers flow, wherein they dwell forever. God is pleased with them and they are pleased with Him. All this is for those who stand in awe of their Lord.” Muhammad (PBUH) is the last Messenger of God. Islam is the last Message. The two represent the last chance for people to be guided. They have to choose one of two alternatives: either belief and salvation or disbelief and destruction. The disbelievers will abide in Hell forever; these are the worst of creation. The believers will be admitted to the Gardens of Eden; these are the best of creation. God will be pleased with them and they will be pleased with God. This is the best reward for those who stand in awe for God.

Sura 99: Al-Zalzala (The Earthquake)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 8:

1. When the earth is shaken with its (violent) earthquake;
2. And the earth throws out its burdens;
3. And humankind says, "What is the matter with it?"
4. On that Day it will tell its news,
5. Because your Lord will have inspired it.
6. On that Day people will emerge in scattered groups to be shown their deeds.
7. And whoever does the weight of an atom of good will see it;
8. And whoever does the weight of an atom of evil will see it.

There are different narrations about whether this Sura was revealed in Mecca or in Medina. We are of the opinion that it was most probably revealed in Mecca. Its style and its topic corroborate this opinion. It shakes the heedless hearts violently. Both the style and the topic contribute to this shock which shakes these heedless hearts.

"When the earth is shaken with its (violent) earthquake; and the earth throws out its burdens; and humankind says, 'What is the matter with it?' On that Day it will tell its news, because your Lord will have inspired it." The verses describe scenes from the Day of Resurrection. The earth will shake violently and will throw out what it has inside it; bodies, metals and other things. It is as if the earth is ridding itself of the burden that it was carrying all these years. It is a scene that shakes the ground under the feet of those who listen to it. People will be wondering, what is happening? This is a question of a person who was taken by surprise and does not know what is happening. On that Day, the earth will tell all its news because God would have inspired it to shake and to throw its burdens.

People will then emerge, "On that Day people will emerge in scattered groups to be shown their deeds. And whoever does the weight of an atom of good will see it; and whoever does the weight of an atom of evil will see it." The graves will open and people will come out from different directions. They will be shown their records to be held accountable for what they have done. Whoever did a deed even as small as the weight of an atom will be held accountable for it. We know now that there is a body that we call an atom and it is a minute thing. It is so small that we cannot even see it using a microscope. So, one should not belittle any of his deeds whether good or bad.

Sura 100: Al-‘Adiyat (The Chargers)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 11:

1. By the charging steeds, panting;
2. And striking sparks;
3. Raiding at dawn;
4. Raising clouds of dust;
5. Storming in the midst;
6. Indeed, humankind is ungrateful to his Lord;
7. And he bears witness to that;
8. And he is fierce in his love of wealth.
9. Does he not know, when the contents of the graves are scattered around;
10. And that which is (locked up) in (human) breasts is made manifest;
11. On that Day, their Lord will be fully aware of them.

“By the charging steeds, panting; and striking sparks; raiding at dawn; raising clouds of dust; storming in the midst.” God makes an oath by the battle horses and describes its movement one after the other; as they charge forward panting, striking the ground with their hoofs, raiding at dawn, and raising clouds of dust. They charge in the middle of the ranks causing disturbance and chaos. This is a battle scene that was familiar to the people at the time of the revelation of the Qur’an.

What is the oath about? “Indeed, humankind is ungrateful to his Lord; and he bears witness to that; and he is fierce in his love of wealth.” Humankind is indeed ungrateful to his Lord. The signs of this are shown in his actions and in his sayings. These actions and sayings bear witness to his ingratitude as if he was the one who was giving the testimony. Humankind is extremely selfish, he loves himself; and he loves wealth and power. This is part of his initial natural disposition. However, when faith enters his heart this can be changed. When faith enters his heart, it will change his values and standards. It will transform his ingratitude into gratitude. His nature will be transformed from a selfish nature into an altruistic one.

One remedy for ingratitude and miserliness is to reflect on one of the scenes of the Day of Judgment, “Does he not know, when the contents of the graves are scattered around; and that which is (locked up) in (human) breasts is made manifest; on that Day, their Lord will be fully aware of them.” It is a horrifying scene: contents of the graves being scattered and secrets of the hearts being exposed. People should know that God is fully aware of all what they do.

Sura 101: Al-Qari'a (The Striking Calamity)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 11:

1. The Striking Calamity;
2. What is the Striking Calamity?
3. And what will explain to you what the Striking Calamity is?
4. (It is) a Day when people will be like scattered moths;
5. And the mountains will be like tufted wool.
6. Then, he whose balance (of good deeds) will be (found) heavy;
7. He will live a pleasant life.
8. But he whose balance (of good deeds) will be (found) light;
9. His abode will be the abyss.
10. And what will explain to you what this is?
11. Raging Fire.

“The Striking Calamity; what is the Striking Calamity? and what will explain to you what the Striking Calamity is?” The Sura starts with a single word like a single projectile being thrown. The word, “The Striking Calamity,” is thrown without an explanation, then it is repeated again to maximize the effect of the strike. The answer then comes, “(It is) a Day when people will be like scattered moths; and the mountains will be like tufted wool.” This is the first scene. It is a scene that makes the hearts fly and makes the limbs shake. Then the end result is explained, “Then, he whose balance (of good deeds) will be (found) heavy; he will live a pleasant life. But he whose balance (of good deeds) will be (found) light; his abode will be the abyss. And what will explain to you what this is? Raging Fire.” The terms heavy and light indicates that God has standards; certain values are important and others are not in the sight of God. Those who will come to the Day of Judgment with heavy weighted deeds will have a pleasant life. No details were given about what is involved in the pleasant life. Using such a term without specifying any details opens the imagination for a life full of the best kind of bliss.

But those who bring light weighted deeds, their abode will be the abyss. What does that mean? It means raging fire.

Sura 102: Al-Takathur (Striving for More)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 8:

1. Striving for more distracts you;
2. Until you visit the graves.
3. No indeed, you will come to know;
4. No indeed, you will come to know.
5. If you knew with certain knowledge,
6. You will most certainly see Hellfire.
7. And you will most certainly see it with the eye of certainty.
8. Then on that day you shall most certainly be questioned about the Bliss.

‘Umar ibn al-Khattab (RA) narrated that the Prophet (PBUH) said, “Whoever recited one thousand verses in one night, Allah will smile in his face when He meets him.” They asked him, “Who can recite one thousand verses in one night?” He (PBUH) recited Surat al-Takathur and said, “By He who has my soul in His hand, it is equivalent to the one thousand verses.” Al-Ghazali indicated that it elucidates one sixth of the objectives of the Qur’an. These are definition of the Message, definition of the straight path, description of what one should expect when he/she meets God, describing the state of the obedient servants, stating what the ungrateful servants say, and description of the stages on the path.

“Striving for more distracts you; until you visit the graves.” You heedless idiots! You who are competing for more wealth, progeny, and the pleasures of life; look where your end will be. You will end up in a small grave. In this grave there will be neither wealth nor pleasure. You should wake up and reflect on what is waiting for you.

You will certainly come to know, a statement that is repeated so that it sinks in the psyche. If you know the truth, you would see the Hellfire and you will most certainly see it with the eye of certainty. Then you will be asked on that Day about the Bliss. Where did you get it? Where did you spend it? What did you use it for? Did you use to earn a sin or to perform an act of obedience?

Sura 103: Al-‘Asr (The Time)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 3:

1. By the time, indeed humankind is in loss;
2. Except those who believe and do good deeds,
3. And exhort one another to truth and exhort one another to perseverance. (103: 1 – 3)

This short Sura which has only three verses presents a complete project for human life as dictated by Islam. The Sura establishes the Islamic constitution in these three verses. It describes the true characteristics and the obligations of the Muslim nation in one verse, the third verse in the Sura. This Sura is an example of the miraculous eloquence of the Qur'an.

“By the time, indeed humankind is in loss; except those who believe and do good deeds, and exhort one another to truth and exhort one another to perseverance.” These three verses establish one single major fact: there is only one successful project for human life. This is the project that the Sura describes. What is belief? Belief is what connects the tiny mortal being with the Eternal Originator of the universe. This connection also connects humankind with the universe and the laws that govern the universe. This connection gives humankind an access to the powers and resources that exist in this universe and allows him to go beyond his limited sphere of influence to the spacious sphere of the universe. Belief allows humankind to enjoy his existence and the beauty of the universe.

Worshipping one God elevates humankind above the servitude to anyone else and establishes equality between all the servants of God. This is the ultimate freedom that humankind can hope for. It is a freedom that emanates from the human conscious and from the understanding of the fact that there is only one power and only one Lord in this universe.

The Lordship of God determines the source of all human concepts, values, standards, laws, and rules. It defines the relationship between the human being and his Lord, between the human being and other people, and between the human being and the universe. The clear, direct, and simple relationship between the servant and the Lord fills the servant's heart with light, security, friendliness, and comfort. It removes feelings of hesitation, fear, stress, and confusion. It also eliminates any tendencies for arrogance and tyranny.

Belief brings consistency in following the Islamic project. It becomes a way of life not a transient condition or a discrete event. The whole Muslim nation becomes united under a single banner and pursuing a single objective. Belief is the origin of life from which all branches of goodness emanate. It is the project that defines the framework of all good deeds in life.

Good deeds are the natural fruits and the practical consequence of belief. Belief is not only a theory that resides in the conscious of the believer, nor it is only an expression of good intentions but it is also a positive force that motivates the believer to move, to act, and to build. Once belief is settled deeply in the heart of the believer, it will shape the deeds and the behavior of the believer.

The concept of enjoining truth and perseverance reflects and defines the special characteristics of the Muslim nation. It is a nation aware of its responsibility and confident of its character. It is aware of the requirements and the hard work that are needed to fulfill its responsibility. This responsibility can only be fulfilled through the mechanism of the collective enjoining of the truth and perseverance. Enjoining truth is essential but difficult. There are many things that can distract people from the truth; including among other things: temptations, social pressures, and tyranny of rulers.

Enjoining perseverance is also necessary. It is required to be able to fulfill the requirements of belief and doing good deeds; and to protect the truth and justice. Enjoining perseverance strengthens the resilience of the nation.

These values define the meaning of profit and loss as one will find them in the Hereafter. This Sura defines clearly how to avoid loss in the Hereafter.

Sura 104: Al-Humaza (The Backbiter)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 9:

1. Woe to every slanderer backbiter,
2. Who amasses wealth and counts it over;
3. Thinking that his wealth would make him live forever;
4. By no means. He will be thrown into the Crusher;
5. And what will explain to you what is the Crusher?
6. It is God's kindled Fire;
7. Which rises above people's hearts.
8. It will be closed down on them;
9. In extended columns.

This Sura reflects one of the images of real life at the early days of Islam in Mecca. It also describes a model that exists in all societies. The Sura paints an image for a mean person who becomes obsessed by wealth. Wealth becomes his ultimate goal for which all values can be trampled upon. He thinks that he can control people and their destiny with his wealth. He thinks that wealth can buy him anything even life; it may even buy his salvation.

The Sura warns those who belong to this category of people. The warning is portrayed in one of the scenes of the Day of Judgment. The person who belongs to this category will find himself on the Day of Judgment thrown into the Crusher which crushes everything that is thrown into it. Not only he will be crushed but he will burn in God's fire that rises above his heart the source of the slander and backbiting.

Sura 105: Al-Fil (The Elephant)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 5:

- 1. Have you not considered how your Lord dealt with the people of the elephant?*
- 2. Did He not completely confound their plans?*
- 3. And He sent against them swarms of birds,*
- 4. Striking them with stones of baked clay.*
- 5. Then He made them like eaten straw.*

This Sura refers to a well known incident that took place in the Arabian Peninsula before the advent of Islam. The incident shows clearly the level of protection that God bestowed on this sacred land which God has chosen to be the spot from which the last light emanates; the spot He chose to be the incubator for the new faith.

This story refers to the invasion of Mecca by Abraha, the Abyssinian ruler of Yemen. Abraha built a huge church in Yemen under the name of the king of Abyssinia. His goal was to attract the Arabs who used to perform pilgrimage to Mecca to his church. But the Arabs did not relinquish the K'aba in favor of Abraha's church. The K'aba was the pride of the Arabs who believed that they were the descendents of Prophet Abraham (PBUH) and Prophet Ishmael (PBUH) who built the K'aba. Abraha decided to destroy the K'aba so that the Arabs would be forced to come to his church to perform the rites of pilgrimage. Abraha led a huge army. The army included a number of elephants. Several Arab tribes tried to stop Abraha's army but he was able to defeat all of them. The army camped in a place called Al-Maghmas between the city of Taif and the city of Mecca. Abraha sent one of his lieutenants on the head of a battalion to Mecca. They were able to capture camels and other booties. Among the booties were two hundred camels that belonged to Abd El-Muttaleb ibn Hashem, the chief of Quraish. Abraha sent a messenger to Quraish to tell them that he did not come to fight them. All what he wanted is to destroy the K'aba. If they do not fight his army, the army will not attack them. Abraha also wanted to speak to the chief of Quraish, so Abd Al-Muttaleb went to see him. Abd Al-Muttaleb was a handsome and respectable man; when Abraha saw him he was quite impressed. Abraha left his throne and sat with Abd Al-Muttaleb on the ground. Abraha asked Abd Al-Muttaleb through a translator if there is anything that Abraha could do for him. Abd Al-Muttaleb said, "I want my camels back." Abraha was disappointed, he said to Abd Al-Muttaleb, "I was impressed when I first saw you, but that impression was lost when I heard you speak about your camels. I came to destroy the house that you consider part of your faith and the faith of your forefathers; and you are only worried about your camels? Abd Al-Muttaleb said, "I am the Lord of the camels. The house has a Lord who will protect it." Abraha said, "It will not be protected from me." Abd Al-Muttaleb said, "It is your business." Abd Al-Muttaleb got his camels back and left. Abd Al-Muttaleb went back to his people and told him to evacuate the city and go to the mountains. They all prayed God to protect the K'aba and left.

Abraha moved with his army towards Mecca, however, just before entering Mecca the elephants sat down and refused to move. God then sent swarms of birds that pelted them with stones of clay. The whole army was destroyed and Abraha was wounded and he died upon his return to Yemen.

Some scholars tried to explain the action of the birds using human logic. However, we are inclined to think of this as miracle. This inclination is corroborated by the style and language of the Sura. The main objective of the Sura is to emphasize the fact that God wanted to preserve this house so that it becomes the place from which the Islamic faith starts. The environment in Mecca at that time was conducive to the achievement of this goal. So, it was the most suitable place for Islam to start.

We do appreciate the efforts of the scholars who tried to find logical explanations of the phenomenon mentioned in this Sura. They wanted to steer away from mythical explanations which may lead to superstition. However, we would like to state that we should not try to force the Qur'anic verses into forms that fit known scientific or logical models. Scientific and logical models may change from time to time while the Qur'an is permanently unchangeable. Qur'anic verses should be the source from which we receive our fundamental facts about our faith. These facts should shape our logical approach to all events and incidents. We should accept whatever the Qur'an states as facts. Our intellect is a product of our limited reality and our limited experience. We are inclined to accept the Sura at its face value and treat what happened to the army of Abraha as a miracle.

The Sura starts with a rhetorical question, "Have you not considered how your Lord dealt with the people of the elephant?" This incident was well known to the Arabs to the extent that they used the year in which it happened as a standard for their Almanac. The Prophet (PBUH) was born in the year of the Elephant, meaning that he was born in the year this incident took place. The intention of the question was to remind the Arabs of the story.

Then the verse explained how God dealt with the attacking army, "Did He not completely confound their plans?" God frustrated the plans of the attackers and they lost their way. How did this happen? "He sent against them swarms of birds, striking them with stones of baked clay. Then He made them like eaten straw."

There are many lessons to be learnt from this Sura.

God did not want to give the idolaters of Mecca the honor of protecting His House. God wanted to save His House Himself through a miracle.

It would have been logical for the idolaters to remember the miracle which God provided to protect His House at the time of the advent of the Prophet (pbuh) and to accept his call to Islam. However, they abused the House that God protected by placing their idols in it. They used this as an excuse to resist the call to Islam.

God did not want Abraha and his army to destroy His House even when the House was being abused by the idolaters of Mecca. God wanted this House to remain pure and free from any type of control.

The Arabs did not have any major role to play before the advent of Islam. Under the banner of Islam they were able to play a major role in the history of humanity.

Sura 106: Quraish (Quraish)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 4:

1. For the security of Quraish;
2. Their security during the winter and the summer journeys;
3. So let them worship the Lord of this House,
4. Who feeds them against hunger and made them safe from fear.

After Abraham (PBUH) had completed the building of the House, He prayed God, “My Lord, make this city secure and provide its people with fruits.” (2: 126). God made Mecca secure, free of the control of anyone, and safe from the tyranny of the oppressors. He made it a safe refuge for everyone; even when people turned away from the straight path and worshiped idols; for a reason God only knows.

God saved the House when Abraha tried to destroy it. This incident raised the sanctity of the House in the psyche of the Arabs. Quraish enjoyed a high status among the Arabs and was able to establish two trade routes, one to Syria and the other to Yemen. Even when the security conditions around Mecca deteriorated, Mecca remained a safe haven and its trade routes were protected from the attacks of thieves and highway gangsters.

This Sura reminds Quraish of the bounty of God, which He bestowed upon them. He reminded them of the security that they enjoy and of the profit which they gain from the trade carried by the summer and winter caravans. This would not have been possible had God not willed. They are being reminded with this bounty so that they feel ashamed for turning away from the worship of God alone to the worship of idols. The Sura commanded them to worship God alone who gave them provision and security. Had it been not for the grace of God they would not have been able to establish the trade routes and they would not have had enough to feed their people; the protection of God kept them safe of attacks of thieves and intruders.

This Sura seems to be a sequel to Surat Al-Fil (Chapter 105). They both deal with similar topics. However, there are nine other Suras that were revealed between these two Suras.

Sura 107: Al-Ma'un (Small Acts of Kindness)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 7:

1. Have you considered him who denies the Judgment?
2. It is he who mistreats the orphan,
3. And does not urge (others) to feed the poor.
4. So woe to those who pray,
5. But are heedless of their prayer;
6. Those who show off,
7. Yet withhold small acts of kindness.

Some are of the opinion that this Sura has been revealed in Mecca; others are of the opinion that the first three verses were revealed in Mecca while the last four were revealed in Medina. However, the seven verses mesh together nicely; they all have the same objective. This makes me inclined to think that the whole Sura was revealed in Medina, especially that the Sura deals with the subject of showing off and hypocrisy. These topics were not known to Muslims in Mecca. However, it is still possible that the first three verses were revealed in Mecca and the last four were revealed in Medina.

“Have you considered him who denies the Judgment? It is he who mistreats the orphan, and does not urge (others) to feed the poor.” The Sura starts with a question about those who deny the Judgment. Then the verses continue to identify those who deny the Judgment: those who mistreat the orphan and do not encourage the feeding of the poor. This may be a surprise for those who expected a traditional definition of belief. But the answer defines the essence of belief. Disbelievers are those who insult, harm, and humiliate the orphan; and they do not encourage feeding the poor and being kind to them. Anyone who truly believes in the Judgment would not commit such acts.

Belief is not a lip service. Belief is a transformation that happens to the heart and motivates it to do good deeds and to be kind to other human beings. God does not want people to talk but He wants them to act. These three verses provide the clearest representation of the essence of the faith.

The following verses present a practical illustration of what was mentioned above, “So woe to those who pray, but are heedless of their prayer; those who show off, yet withhold small acts of kindness.” Who are those who are heedless of their prayer? They are those who perform the movements of the prayer but they do not establish it. They go through the motions, they recite the invocations, but their hearts are far away from it. Their souls are not aware of the true content of the prayer. They pray not because they are devoted to God but because they want to show off. Those people do not benefit from their prayer. They do not enjoy the transformation that prayer brings to the soul to motivate it to do good deeds. That is why they do not perform any acts of kindness to their fellow human beings.

Sura 108: Al-Kawthar (Abundance)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 3:

1. We have given you abundance;
2. So pray to your Lord, and sacrifice.
3. He who hates you is the one who is cut off.

This Sura, similar to Surat Ad-Duha (Chapter 93) and Surat Ash-Sharh (Chapter 94), has been dedicated exclusively to the Prophet (PBUH). Its purpose was to comfort the Prophet (PBUH), promise him glad tidings, threaten his enemies, and guide him to the path of thanksgiving. It exhibits an example of the plots that the idolaters of Mecca were plotting to hurt the Messenger (PBUH) and to stop the spread of Islam. The Sura also illustrates an example of the care and protection that God bestowed on His Messenger (PBUH) and the Muslims who believed with him.

The Sura exhibits the reality of guidance, goodness, and faith on one side; and the reality of misguidance, evil, and disbelief on the other. The former is one of abundance and expansion, while the latter is one of scarcity and shrinking resources.

It has been reported that the idolaters of Quraish used to harm and insult the Prophet (PBUH) hoping that these insults would drive the people away from listening to the call to Islam. One of the ways to slander the Prophet (PBUH) that they used was to say that he will die leaving no male descendants. This kind of ignoble statements would resonate with the people in the Mecca, because these people in their ignorance used to find great pride in having male descendants. They mocked the Prophet (PBUH) saying that his lineage has been cut off. The Sura came to comfort the Prophet (PBUH) and to emphasize the ever lasting legacy that he will leave behind. This legacy is an embodiment of the goodness which God has entrusted His Messenger (PBUH) to convey to the world. The Sura states that it is his enemies whose lineage will be truly cut off.

The Sura starts by emphasizing that God will give His Messenger abundance. He will find this abundance in the prophethood which connects him with God and the universe. He will find abundance in the Qur'an. He will find abundance in the Higher Host who pray peace for him. He will find abundance in the legacy that he will leave behind which will continue to benefit people for millions of years. He will find abundance in the goodness that he brought to humankind.

“So pray to your Lord and sacrifice.” Having received the great abundance of goodness that God has bestowed on him, it is now the time for showing gratitude. The best way to show gratitude to God is to pray, devoting oneself completely to Him; and to slaughter an animal as a sacrifice dedicated to God's name alone. The repeated mention of the name of God each time we slaughter an animal is a way of expressing the belief in the oneness of God.

“He who hates you is the one who is cut off.” God’s promise was fulfilled. Their memory was completely forgotten, while the Prophet’s (PBUH) name is continuously mentioned around the world.

Sura 109: Al-Kafirun (The Disbelievers)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 6:

1. Say, "Disbelievers; I do not worship what you worship,
2. Nor will you worship what I worship.
3. And I will never worship what you worship,
4. And you will never worship what I worship.
5. You have your religion
6. And I have my religion.

The Arabs were not atheists, but they simply did not understand that God, as He described Himself, is One and Unique. They associated partners with Him. They used to worship idols which symbolized righteous ancestors, great men of the past, or angels. They also claimed that the angels are the daughters of God. They thought that the idols could intercede on their behalf to God.

The Qur'an told us that they knew that God is the Creator of the heavens and earth. They believed that He controls the Sun, the Moon, and the rain. However, they still associated partners with Him.

They also believed that they were following the religion of Prophet Abraham (PBUH) and that they were better guided than the People of the Scripture who were living in the Arabian Peninsula.

When Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) told them that he was following the religion of Prophet Abraham (PBUH) they said, "We are following the religion of Abraham (PBUH), so why should we leave what we are following and follow Muhammad (PBUH)?" They tried also to negotiate with Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) a middle ground. They made him an offer that if he accepts their idols as gods, they would accept his God. They may have thought that they can convince the Prophet (PBUH) to meet them halfway.

This Sura came to declare unequivocally that there is no middle ground and that idolatry and Islam are completely two distinct religions, "Say, 'Disbelievers; I do not worship what you worship, nor will you worship what I worship. And I will never worship what you worship, and you will never worship what I worship. You have your religion and I have my religion.'" This is very clear and unequivocal statement. It starts with a firm command to the Prophet (PBUH), telling him to describe the idolaters of Mecca using their principal characteristic, "Disbelievers," so there would be no doubt that they were certainly disbelievers. This emphasized the distinct difference between the two groups, a difference that could not be bridged. The verses reiterated this fact in several ways to show that this difference could not be reconciled.

Sura 110: Al-Nasr (Victory)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 3:

1. When there comes God's victory, and conquest;
2. And you see people entering God's religion in multitudes,
3. Celebrate the praises of your Lord, and pray for His forgiveness. He is Ever-Relenting.

This short Sura brought the Prophet (PBUH) the glad tidings of God's victory; telling him that people will be coming into the fold of Islam in multitudes. In the same time the Sura emphasized a fundamental characteristic of the religion of Islam: its objective to elevate, purify, and honor humankind. Only under the banner of Islam, could humankind achieve such a status. The Sura also directs the Messenger (PBUH) to seek God's forgiveness when he receives God's victory.

Many narrations were reported about this Sura. We will choose the narration reported by Imam Ahmed. 'Aisha (RA) said, "The Messenger of God (PBUH) used to say often, towards the end of his life, 'I glorify God and praise Him. I seek God's forgiveness and I repent to Him.' He also used to say, 'My Lord told me that I will see a sign in my nation. He commanded me that when I see this sign I should glorify Him and praise Him. Now I see the sign. The sign is, "When there comes God's victory, and conquest; and you see people entering God's religion in multitudes, celebrate the praises of your Lord, and pray for His forgiveness. He is Ever-Relenting."'"

The first verse emphasizes the fundamental concept of faith: everything belongs to God. It is God's victory. God decides when this victory will take place and how it will take place. Only He can bring about this victory. God bestowed this victory on the Prophet (PBUH) and the believers. They should respond by expressing their gratitude to God and praising Him.

They should glorify God for the bounty He bestowed on them when He made them the guardians of His Message. They should glorify Him for the mercy that He bestowed on humankind by establishing His religion and allowing people to come into its fold in multitudes.

Seeking forgiveness would address many shortcomings; the shortcoming of the possibility of entertaining a feeling of pride at the moment of victory; the shortcoming of the possibility of entertaining a feeling of despair or impatience during the long struggle before victory; the shortcoming of the possibility of not showing enough gratitude to God. One important reason for seeking forgiveness at the time of victory is to remind oneself of one's own shortcomings to eliminate any possibility of feeling arrogant.

Sura 111: Al-Masad (The Palm Fibre)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 5:

1. May the hands of Abu Lahab be ruined, and ruined is he.
2. His wealth and what he earns will not avail him.
3. He will burn in a flaming Fire,
4. And his wife, the firewood-carrier,
5. Will have upon her neck a rope of palm-fibre.

Abu Lahab was the Prophet's (PBUH) uncle. His name was Abd Al-Ozza ibn Abd Al-Muttaleb. He acquired the nick name Abu Lahab because his face looked bright. He and his wife, Um Jamil were among the worst of those who persecuted the Prophet (PBUH) and resisted Islam. Abu Lahab used to stalk the Prophet (PBUH) and whenever the Prophet (PBUH) started to call people to Islam, Abu Lahab would stand behind him to tell lies about Islam. He would then ask people not to listen to the Prophet (PBUH). He was the enemy of the Prophet (PBUH) and Islam since day one.

When Quraish decided to boycott Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) and the Muslims, the clan of Bani Hashem under the leadership of Abu Taleb, with the exception of Abu Lahab, decided to protect the Prophet (PBUH). Abu Lahab sided with Quraish against his nephew. His two sons were married to the daughters of the Prophet (PBUH) before the advent of Islam. When the Prophet (PBUH) announced that he was sent as a messenger of God, Abu Lahab commanded his two sons to divorce their wives. He continued, together with his wife, to wage a merciless war on the Prophet (PBUH) and Islam. Um Jamil used to place thorns on the way of the Prophet (PBUH).

This Sura was revealed as a response to the war which Abu Lahab and his wife waged against the Prophet (PBUH) and Islam. The Sura started by warning Abu Lahab that he will perish, then emphasized that this warning will take place, "May the hands of Abu Lahab be ruined, and ruined is he." His wealth will not avail him in this life, and in the Hereafter he will burn in Hellfire. His wife will be lead to Hell by a rope of palm-fibre bound around her neck.

Sura 112: Al-Ikhlās (Purity of Faith)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 4:

1. Say, "He is God, the One and Only;
2. God, the Eternal, Absolute;
3. He begets not, nor is He begotten;
4. And there is none like Him."

Authentic traditions reported that this short Sura is equivalent to one third of the Quran. This is not surprising because the Sura proclaims the Oneness of God which is the fundamental concept of the faith, it explains the existence of everything, and it outlines a lifestyle. The Sura includes the most fundamental fact that underlies the faith of Islam. The first verse does not only say, "God is one," but it says, "He is One and the One only." This indicates the oneness of existence. God is the only existing truth and there is no true existence except His. The existence of everything is dependent on the existence of God. The statement also means that He is the only One who has true power. He controls all actions in this universe. The understanding and belief in this concept purifies the heart and opens it to the true understanding of the meaning of the Oneness of God.

True freedom is attained when this belief rests deep in the heart and replaces all other false beliefs. The heart will be able to see that God's hand controls everything. There is no true will nor real power in this universe except the will and power of God. It becomes clear that the apparent causes have no power in themselves. The causes produce effects only by the will and power of God. This fact has been emphasized in several verses in the Quran, "And you did not throw, (Muhammad) when you threw, but it was God who threw." (8:17), "And victory is not except from God." (3:126) and "And you do not will except that God wills." (81: 29). For this reason, the first years of the call to Islam was focused on establishing the true meaning of the belief in the oneness of God, because the belief in the oneness of God is not only an article of faith but it also explains the rules that control the universe and it establishes the foundation of the Islamic project. This will consequently mean that there is no material causality. Every cause refers to the original cause.

According to the Islamic project, one only seeks help from God alone; whether at time of ease or time of adversity. The project is based on God made laws not manmade laws. The project binds the human heart with everything that exists in the universe with a bond of love, compassion, and friendliness. It is a project that opens up the horizon for the progress, the development, and the betterment of life for the whole humanity.

This explains why the Prophet (PBUH) dedicated all his efforts during the early years to establish the fundamental concept of the belief in the oneness of God and to inculcate it in the psyche of the believers. The belief of the oneness of God is the corner stone of the Islamic project as a whole. All aspects of the Islamic project, doctrine, rituals, laws, values, and morals are based on this fundamental concept.

The attributes of God mentioned in the subsequent verses, “God, the Eternal, Absolute; He begets not, nor is He begotten; and there is none like Him;” are simply products of the fundamental concept of God’s Oneness and Uniqueness.

Sura 113: Al-Falaq (The Daybreak)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 5:

1. Say, "I seek refuge with the Lord of the Daybreak;
2. From the evil of that which He created;
3. From the evil of the darkness when it is intense;
4. And from the evil of those who practice witchcraft,
5. And from the evil of the envious when he envies."

This Sura and the following one constitute a directive from God to His Prophet (PBUH) and the believers to seek refuge in Him. God will protect His Prophet (PBUH) and the believers from all evil and harm. It is a call for them to seek security, safety, and serenity in the closeness of God.

‘Uqba ibn ‘Amer (RA) narrated that the Messenger of God (PBUH) told him, "I have received tonight verses that nothing similar to them was revealed before, ‘Say, "I seek refuge with the Lord of the Daybreak;" and ‘Say, "I seek refuge with the Lord of the people."'"

The Sura starts with stating the words that we should use to call upon God when we seek refuge in Him from the evils that are mentioned in the Sura. Then it lists some of the evils that we should seek refuge in God from. It starts with a general statement, "from the evil of that which He created." This is a comprehensive statement that includes any possible evil. Then any evil that can be covered by the intense darkness of the night. The darkness is horrifying in itself because we do not know what dangers it may cover.

"and from the evil of those who practice witchcraft," We know that magicians cannot change reality and they cannot create a new reality. But they may be able to create an illusion, as has been told in the encounter between Prophet Moses (PBUH) and the magicians, "And suddenly their ropes and staffs seemed to him from their magic that they were moving. And he sensed within himself apprehension. We said, 'Fear not. It is you who are superior. And throw what is in your right hand; it will swallow up what they have crafted.'" (20: 66 – 69) Their ropes and staffs were not transformed into serpents, but Prophet Moses (PBUH) was under the illusion that they did. The truth was uncovered when he threw his staff and it swallowed their ropes and staffs. This is the nature of magic. We should believe that magic is an illusion. It is an evil that we should seek God's refuge from.

"and from the evil of the envious when he envies." Envy is an emotion that motivates its owner to wish the envied ill. This emotion, whether it remained as an inner feeling or it developed into an action, produces evil. There is a great deal of mysteries that we did not discover; and consequently we do not know the relationship between the emotions that the envious harbor and the harm that will afflict the envied. However, it is an evil that we should seek God's refuge from. The Prophet (PBUH) used to recite the three Suras, "Say, 'He is God, the One and Only;'" "Say, 'I seek refuge with the Lord of the Daybreak;'" and "Say, 'I seek refuge with the Lord of the people,'" three times before he goes to sleep.

Sura 114: Al-Nas (Humankind)

In the name of God, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy

Verses 1 to 6:

1. Say, "I seek refuge with the Lord humankind,
2. The King of humankind,
3. The God of humankind,
4. From the evil of the sneaking whisperer,
5. Who whispers in the hearts of humankind,
6. Of the jinn and of humankind.

We seek refuge with the Lord of humankind, the King of humankind, the God of humankind. We seek refuge from the evil of the sneaking whisperer who whispers in the hearts of people from jinn and humankind. The Lord is the Educator, the Guide, the Keeper, and the Protector. The King is the owner. God has absolute control. These attributes are the attributes of the Protector who can protect against the invisible evil, which cannot be repelled by humans because it is unseen to them.

The Sura defined the source of this evil, "the sneaking whisperer;" outlined his action, "who whispers in the hearts of humankind;" and identified his nature, "of the jinn and of humankind." People should then be aware and be prepared to fight this evil back. It is an evil which sneaks surreptitiously into the hearts of people whispering evil thoughts. There are two kinds of creatures who can do this, jinn and human beings. We do not know how do the jinn whisper to people but we find its effects clearly in our daily life. The war between Satan and humankind started a long time ago. The war was motivated by Satan's arrogance and his hate of humankind. He sought God's permission to wage this war and God gave him the permission for a reason which is only known to God. However, God did not leave humankind helpless in this war. God gave humankind the faith as a protection from Satan's attacks, the remembrance of God as a tool to combat Satan, and the refuge in God as a weapon to fight Satan with. It is humankind responsibility to look after his protection, his tool, and his weapon. It has been narrated by Ibn Abbas (RA) that the Prophet (PBUH) said, "Satan camps on the heart of the children of Adam. Satan shrinks when they remember God, but he starts to whisper when they become heedless of God." This tradition indicates that the remembrance of God weakens Satan and takes away his power.

We know the evil that some people can produce. We know about those who use their friendship as a way to whisper to their friends and sway them away from the straight path. We know about the evil bands of people who encircle people in power and whisper to them bad advice and turn them into tyrants. We know the backbiter, the slanderer, and the pleasure trader who whisper to people and facilitate their way to sin. Seeking God refuge is the only safeguard which protects people from these evil whisperers. The battle between goodness and evil is an eternal battle. In this battle, the agents of evil whether jinn or human beings are lurking waiting for an opportunity to tempt people. The Qur'an tells us that evil plans are weak and that God supports those who remember Him. Our salvation is in the remembrance of God.

References

- Abdel Haleem, M.A.S. 2005. The Quran. London, U.K.: Oxford.
- Ali, Abdullah Yusuf. 2002. The Quran, the meaning of the Glorious Quran. Istanbul: Asir Media
- Anon. 2011. The Quran: English meaning and notes. Riyadh, S.A.: Saheeh International.
- Asad, Muhammad. 2003. The Message of the Quran. Bristol, England: The Book Foundation.
- Naser, Seyyed Hossein (Ed. In chief). 2015. The Study Quran. New York, N.Y.: Harper Collins.
- Qutb, Syed. 1994. Fi Zelal al-Quran (In the shade of Quran), 22nd. Ed. Cairo: Dar al-Shorouk.
- Pickthall, Mohammed Marmaduke. 2001. The meaning of the Glorious Quran. Kuala Lumpur: Islamic Book Trust.
- Shakir, M.H. 1990. Al-Quran Al-Hakim (The Quran). Elmhurst, New York: Tahrike Tarsile Quran.